5 impact this has on these children, their families, our schools and other institutions, and the 6 citizens of our state; and

7 WHEREAS, mental health problems in children can impact their ability to learn and function
8 successfully in educational settings, their future job performance and productivity as later 9 adults, their families, and others; and

10 WHEREAS, the array of resources available to help and treat these children is stretched 11 beyond its ability to cope with the need; and

12 WHEREAS, there is a shortage in Georgia of qualified mental health professionals, including 13 child psychiatrists, child psychologists, and other mental health professionals trained to treat 14 children and adolescents for mental health problems; and

15 WHEREAS, other resources for children and adolescents with mental health problems,
