73 (7) The guardian of the person of the decedent at the time of the decedent's death if one 74 had been appointed;

75 (8) The personal representative of the estate of the decedent;

76 (9) The person in the classes of the next degree of kinship, in descending order, under

80 (10) If the disposition of the remains of the decedent is the responsibility of the state or 81 a political subdivision of the state, the public officer, administrator, or employee 82 responsible for arranging the final disposition of decedent's remains; or

83 (11) In the absence of any person under paragraphs (1) through (10) of this subsection, 84 any other person willing to assume the responsibilities to act and arrange the final 85 disposition of the decedent's remains, including the funeral director with custody of the 86 body, after attesting in writing that a good faith effort has been made to no avail to 87 contact the individuals under paragraphs (1) through (10) of this subsection.

88 (c) A person entitled under law to the right of disposition shall forfeit that right, and the 89 right is passed on to the next qualifying person as listed in subsection (b) of this Code
90 section, in the following circumstances:

91 (1) Any person charged with murder or voluntary manslaughter in connection with the 92 decedent's death and whose charges are known to the funeral director; provided, however, 93 that, if the charges against such person are dismissed or if such person is acquitted of the 94 charges, the right of disposition is returned to the person;

95 (2) Any person who does not exercise his or her right of disposition within two days of 96 notification of the death of decedent or within three days of decedent's death, whichever

100 (4) Where the probate court pursuant to subsection (d) of this Code section determines 101 that the person entitled to the right of disposition and the decedent were estranged at the 102 time of death. For purposes of this Code section, the term 'estranged' means a physical 103 and emotional separation from the decedent at the time of death which has existed for a 104 period of time that clearly demonstrates an absence of due affection, trust, and regard for 105 the decedent.

106 (d) Notwithstanding subsections (b) and (c) of this Code section, the probate court for the 107 county where the decedent resided may award the right of disposition to the person 108 determined by the court to be the most fit and appropriate to carry out the right of 109 disposition and may make decisions regarding the decedent's remains if those sharing the 110 right of disposition cannot agree. The following provisions shall apply to the court's 111 determination under this subsection:

112 (1) If the persons holding the right of disposition are two or more persons with the same 113 relationship to the decedent and they cannot, by majority vote, make a decision regarding 114 the disposition of the decedent's remains, any of such persons or a funeral home with 115 custody of the remains may file a petition asking the probate court to make a 116 determination in the matter;

117 (2) In making a determination under this subsection, the probate court shall consider the 118 following:

119 (A) The reasonableness and practicality of the proposed funeral arrangements and 120 disposition;

121 (B) The degree of the personal relationship between the decedent and each of the 122 persons claiming the right of disposition;

123 (C) The desires of the person or persons who are ready, able, and willing to pay the 124 cost of the funeral arrangements and disposition;

125 (D) The convenience and needs of other families and friends wishing to pay respects;

126 (E) The desires of the decedent; and

127 (F) The degree to which the funeral arrangements would allow maximum participation 128 by all wishing to pay respect;

129 (3) In the event of a dispute regarding the right of disposition, a funeral home shall not 130 be liable for refusing to accept the remains or to inter or otherwise dispose of the remains 131 of the decedent or complete the arrangements for the final disposition of the remains until 132 the funeral home receives a court order or other written agreement signed by the parties
133 in the disagreement that decides the final disposition of the remains. If the funeral home
134 retains the remains for final disposition while the parties are in disagreement, the funeral 135 home may embalm or refrigerate and shelter the body, or both, in order to preserve it
136 while awaiting the final decision of the probate court and may add the cost of embalming

137 or refrigeration and sheltering to the final disposition costs. If a funeral home brings an 138 action under this subsection, the funeral home may add the legal fees and court costs
 139 associated with a petition under this subsection to the cost of final disposition. This 140 subsection may not be construed to require or to impose a duty upon a funeral home to 141 bring an action under this subsection. A funeral home and its employees shall not be held 142 criminally or civilly liable for choosing not to bring an action under this subsection; and 143 (4) Except to the degree it may be considered by the probate court under subparagraph 144 (C) of paragraph (2) of this subsection, the fact that a person has paid or agreed to pay for 145 all or part of the funeral arrangements and final disposition shall not give that person a 146 greater claim to the right of disposition than the person would otherwise have. The 147 personal representative of the estate of the decedent shall not, by virtue of being the 148 personal representative, have a greater claim to the right of disposition than the person 149 would otherwise have.

150 (e) Any person signing a funeral service agreement, cremation authorization form, or any 151 other authorization for disposition shall be deemed to warrant the truthfulness of any facts
 152 set forth therein, including the identity of the decedent whose remains are to be buried,
 153 cremated, or otherwise disposed of, and the party's authority to order such disposition. A
 154 funeral home shall have the right to rely on such funeral service agreement or authorization
 155 and shall have the authority to carry out the instructions of the person or persons the funeral
 156 home reasonably believes holds the right of disposition. The funeral home shall have no 157 responsibility to contact or to independently investigate the existence of any next of kin or 158 relative of the decedent. If there is more than one person in a class who are equal in 159 priority and the funeral home has no knowledge of any objection by other members of such 160 class, the funeral home shall be entitled to rely on and act according to the instructions of 161 the first such person in the class to make funeral and disposition arrangements, provided 162 that no other person in such class provides written notice of his or her objections to the 163 funeral home.

164 (f) No funeral home or funeral director who relies in good faith upon the instructions of 165 an individual claiming the right of disposition shall be subject to criminal or civil liability 166 or subject to disciplinary action for carrying out the disposition of the remains in 167 accordance with the instructions."

 196 effective date. For purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'stand-alone crematory' shall 197 mean a crematory that is not located on or adjacent to a tract or parcel of land which 198 contains a funeral establishment."

199 SECTION 3.

200 Said title is further amended by adding a new Code section to read as follows:

201 "43-18-80.

202 (a) For the purposes of this Code section, 'authorizing agent' means a person legally 203 entitled to authorize the cremation of human remains.

204 (b) The authorizing agent shall provide to the funeral establishment in which the cremation

223 establishment. The final resting place of the cremains shall be clearly marked and recorded 224 by the funeral establishment entombing the cremains. Any costs or fees incurred to
