 212 and History of the State of Georgia is to encourage the study of historical documents;

213 (2) There is a need to educate and inform the public about the history and background
 214 of American law;

215 (3) The public buildings of this state are an ideal forum in which to display educational 216 and informational material about the history and background of American law; and

217 (4) A basic knowledge of American constitutional history is important to the formation 218 of civic virtue in our society.

219 (b) The state and each municipality and political subdivision of this state shall be 220 authorized to post the Foundations of American Law and Government display, as described 221 in subsection (c) of this Code section, in a visible, public location in the public facilities of

223 (c) The Foundations of American Law and Government display shall include:

224 (1) The Mayflower Compact, 1620;

225 (2) The Ten Commandments as extracted from Exodus Chapter 20;

226 (3) The Declaration of Independence;

227 (4) Magna Carta;

228 (5) 'The Star-Spangled Banner' by Francis Scott Key;

229 (6) The national motto;

230 (7) The Preamble to the Georgia Constitution;

231 (8) The Bill of Rights of the United States Constitution; and 232 (9) The description on the image of Lady Justice.

233 (d) Public displays of the Foundations of American Law and Government shall contain the 234 documents set forth in paragraphs (1) through (9) of subsection (c) of this Code section
235 together with a context for acknowledging formative, historically significant documents
236 in America's heritage as follows:

237 FOUNDATIONS OF AMERICAN LAW AND GOVERNMENT DISPLAY

238 The Foundations of American Law and Government display contains documents that 239 played a significant role in the foundation of our system of law and government. The display 240 contains (1) the Mayflower Compact; (2) the Ten Commandments; (3) the Declaration of 241 Independence; (4) Magna Carta; (5) 'The Star-Spangled Banner'; (6) the national motto of 242 the United States of America; (7) the Preamble to the Georgia Constitution; (8) the Bill of 243 Rights of the United States Constitution; and (9) a picture of Lady Justice.

244 The Mayflower Compact

245 The Mayflower Compact was penned by William Bradford on November 11, 1620, on the 246 Mayflower before the Pilgrims made landfall at Plymouth, Massachusetts. The Compact was 247 the first written constitution in the New World. William Bradford described the reasoning
248 behind the Compact when he stated in the Compact, 'This day, before we came to harbour,
249 observing some not well affected to unity and concord, but gave some appearance of faction,
250 it was thought good there should be an association and agreement, that we should combine 251 together in one body, and to submit to such government and governors as we should by 252 common consent agree to make and choose, and set our hands to this that follows, word for 253 word.'

254 The Ten Commandments

255 The Ten Commandments have profoundly influenced the formation of Western legal 256 thought and the formation of our country. That influence is clearly seen in the Declaration
257 of Independence, which declared that 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men
258 are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that 259 among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness.' The Ten Commandments 260 provide the moral background of the Declaration of Independence and the foundation of our 261 legal tradition.

262 The Declaration of Independence

263 Perhaps the single most important document in American history, the Declaration of 264 Independence was, as Abraham Lincoln stated, the 'frame' into which the Framers placed the 265 Constitution. The Declaration's fundamental premise is that one's right to 'Life, Liberty and 266 the pursuit of Happiness' is not a gift of government. Government is not a giver of rights, 267 but a protector of God-given rights. Moreover, government is a creation of 'the governed'
 268 and derives all its power from the consent of its people. As the Preamble to the United States
 269 Constitution states, 'We the People' are the government.

270 Magna Carta

271 In 1215, King John of England consented to the demands of his barons and agreed for 272 Magna Carta to be publicly read throughout the land. By this act he bound himself and 'our 273 heirs, in all things and all places for ever' to grant to the people of his kingdom the rights 274 pronounced in Magna Carta. By signing Magna Carta, King John brought himself and 275 England's future rulers within the rule of law. The rule of law places a restraint on the 276 exercise of arbitrary government power, and it places all people and civil government under 277 law. The American patriots, therefore, waged war against England to preserve liberties 278 originating in thirteenth century England. A distinction, however, is noted between Magna 279 Carta and the American concept of liberty. While Magna Carta is a guarantee from a king
 280 that he will follow the law, the Constitution of the United States is the establishment of a 281 government consisting of, and created for, 'We the People.'

282 'The Star-Spangled Banner'

283 Guarding the entrance to Baltimore harbor via the Patapsco River during the War of 1812, 284 Fort McHenry faced almost certain attack by British forces. Major George Armistead, the 285 stronghold's commander, was ready to defend the fort, but he wanted a flag that would 286 identify his position, one whose size would be visible to the enemy from a distance. The flag
 287 that was made for the fort was 30 feet by 42 feet. Anxiously awaiting news of the battle's 288 outcome was a Washington, D.C., lawyer named Francis Scott Key. Key had visited the 289 enemy's fleet to secure the release of a Maryland doctor who had been abducted by the 290 British after they left Washington. The lawyer had been successful in his mission, but he 291 could not escort the doctor home until the attack ended. So he waited on a flag-of-truce
 292 sloop anchored eight miles downstream from Fort McHenry.

293 During the night, there had been only occasional sounds of the fort's guns returning fire.
294 At dawn, the British bombardment tapered off. Had the fort been captured? Placing a 295 telescope to his eye. Key trained it on the fort's flagpole. There he saw the large garrison
296 flag catch the morning breeze. It had been raised as a gesture of defiance, replacing the wet 297 storm flag that had flown through the night. Thrilled by the sight of the flag and the 298 knowledge that the fort had not fallen, Key took a letter from his pocket and began to write 299 some verses on the back of it. Later, after the British fleet had withdrawn, Key checked into 300 a Baltimore hotel and completed his poem on the defense of Fort McHenry. He then sent it 301 to a printer for duplication on handbills, and within a few days the poem was put to the music
302 of an old English song. Both the new song and the flag became known as 'The Star-Spangled 303 Banner' and became a rallying cry for the American Patriots during the rest of the war.

304 The National Motto

305 The motto was derived from the line 'And this be our motto, "In God is our trust"' in the 306 U.S. national anthem, 'The Star-Spangled Banner.' The phrase first appeared on U.S. coins
307 in 1864 and became obligatory on all U.S. currency in 1955. In accordance with Public Law
308 No. 851 passed at the Second Session of the 84th Congress of the United States, July 30,
309 1956, the national motto of the United States became 'In God We Trust.'

310 The Preamble to the Georgia Constitution

311 The Preamble to the Georgia Constitution celebrates the ideas of free government, justice, 312 peace, happiness, and liberty. Government is a creation of 'the governed' and derives all its 313 power from the consent of its people. The people, therefore, desiring a civilized society, 314 created and ordained the Constitution of the State of Georgia.

315 The Bill of Rights of the United States Constitution

316 During the debates on the adoption of the U.S. Constitution, its opponents repeatedly 317 charged that the Constitution as drafted would open the way to tyranny by the central 318 government. Fresh in their minds was the memory of the British violation of civil rights 319 before and during the Revolution. They demanded a 'bill of rights' that would spell out the 320 immunities of individual citizens. Several state conventions in their formal ratification of the 321 Constitution asked for such amendments; others ratified the Constitution with the 322 understanding that the amendments would be offered. The Bill of Rights is still a vital and

323 powerful force in American government, shaping our laws and serving as a check on the 324 exercise of government power.

325 Lady Justice

326 Lady Justice has become a symbol of the fair and equal administration of the law, without 327 corruption, avarice, prejudice, or favor. The blindfold represents a system of justice that is 328 blinded to all prejudices or favor. The scales represent justice that is administered fairly and 329 the sword represents justice that is authoritative. Lady Justice is a symbol of the American 330 system of justice and the ideals it embodies.

331 (e) All documents which are included in the Foundations of American Law and 332 Government displays shall be posted on paper not less than 11 x 14 inches in dimension
333 and shall be framed in identically styled frames. No one document shall be displayed more 334 prominently than another.

335 (f) In no event shall any state funding be used for a display of the Foundations of 336 American Law and Government."

337 SECTION 1-2.
