Nonresident cannot acquire domicile by residing on United States military reservation. — While former Code 1933, § 30-107 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-5-2), in conferring jurisdiction in divorce suits, might not exact citizenship, the word “resident” as used therein was equivalent to domicile; and a nonresident of Georgia cannot acquire a Georgia domicile, such as would authorize the bringing of a divorce suit, under the statute by residing on or within a United States military reservation. Darbie v. Darbie, 195 Ga. 769, 25 S.E.2d 685 (1943).

General Assembly cannot declare a person domiciled and residing in one county a resident of and domiciliary of another county. — The General Assembly has no right to provide that a natural person, an individual, who lives and has a domicile and residence in one county, and the individual’s domicile and residence is fixed there under the law as it stands, should be deemed also to be a resident, for certain purposes, of another county. A general law may fix the general place of the individual’s residence; but when the individual has a residence and domicile fixed and established in accordance with the law, the legislature cannot declare that the individual may also be a resident of another county at the same time. Youmans v. Hickman, 179 Ga. 684, 177 S.E. 238 (1934).

Change of domicile. — To effect a change of domicile there must be an avowed intent which may be shown by declarations or acts equivalent thereto, and an actual removal. Temporary absence from the county by a man who has no family does not operate to change the man’s domicile. Bellamy v. Bellamy, 187 Ga. 804, 2 S.E.2d 413 (1939).

Jurisdiction1. In General*Allegation of jurisdiction essential.

— Allegation of the jurisdictional requirements set forth in this paragraph and O.C.G.A. § 19-5-2 is essential to applications for divorce. Rice v. Rice, 223 Ga. 363, 155 S.E.2d 393 (1967) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. I).

Jurisdiction and venue distinguished. — Jurisdiction means the power of a court to render a binding judgment in the case, and venue means the place of trial. Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

Plaintiff must prove by evidence jurisdiction. — The essential allegations in a petition for divorce, including jurisdiction, must be established by evidence, and the burden of proving such allegations rests upon the plaintiff. Johnson v. Johnson, 222 Ga. 433, 150 S.E.2d 684 (1966).

Parties cannot by waiver or agreement confer jurisdiction upon the court where the essential jurisdictional matters stated in this paragraph are absent. Stewart v. Stewart, 195 Ga. 460, 24 S.E.2d 672 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. I).

Duty of court to dismiss case when jurisdiction does not exist. — Since no valid judgment can be rendered in a divorce case where the court is without jurisdiction, it is the duty of the court, when apprised of the fact that it has no jurisdiction, to dismiss the case at any stage of the proceeding, with or without motion therefor. Cohen v. Cohen, 209 Ga. 459, 74 S.E.2d 95 (1953).

Responsibility to prove jurisdiction. — Petitioner in divorce action carries the burden of proving the jurisdiction of the court, and this duty is no less incumbent upon the defendant who asks for alimony; in neither instance can jurisdiction be conferred by consent or by waiver. Jones v. Jones, 181 Ga. 747, 184 S.E. 271 (1936); Stewart v. Stewart, 195 Ga. 460, 24 S.E.2d 672 (1943).

Parties cannot later attack divorce decree as void for lack of jurisdiction after having conceded and confirmed court's jurisdiction. — While the parties cannot confer jurisdiction on the court, where the record shows that the parties affirmatively conceded and confirmed the jurisdiction of the court with respect to the person and subject matter, and the court rendered a divorce decree in the case, neither party can thereafter attack the decree as being void for lack of jurisdiction over the person or the subject matter. Herring v. Herring, 246 Ga. 462, 271 S.E.2d 857 (1980).

A divorce granted by a court having no jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the parties is a nullity. Harmon v. Harmon, 209 Ga. 474, 74 S.E.2d 75 (1953).

2. Attachment of Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction attached when person served with process while sojourning in county where court located. — Even though the allegations showed that the defendant was a resident of a foreign jurisdiction, yet where the defendant was personally served with process while sojourning within the state and county in which the court was located, where the petitioner resided, the court acquired jurisdiction under this paragraph and O.C.G.A. §§ 9-10-33, and 50-2-21. Miller v. Miller, 216 Ga. 535, 118 S.E.2d 85 (1961) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. I).

If defendant in suit acknowledges service of suit, the presumption is that judgment rendered is based upon proper allegations and proof of jurisdiction as to the parties. Hardin v. Hardin, 218 Ga. 39, 126 S.E.2d 216 (1962).

Jurisdiction was litigated. — Where in an action for divorce brought by wife, the husband appeared and filed an answer denying allegations as to residence and also filed a plea to the jurisdiction, the question as to jurisdiction was litigated despite the fact that he had not appeared to defend the action in person, and the result was binding on the husband, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, unmixed with negligence on his part. Johnson v. Johnson, 188 Ga. 800, 4 S.E.2d 807 (1939).

Divorce decree could not be set aside for want of jurisdiction. — Defendant husband, having participated in divorce suit, having admitted jurisdiction of the court, and having obtained the benefit of the decree by another marriage, could not afterwards have the verdict and decree set aside for want of jurisdiction. Davis v. Davis, 191 Ga. 333, 11 S.E.2d 884 (1940).

3. Effect of Lack of Jurisdiction

This provision of the constitution states indispensable essentials for jurisdiction. — Lack of jurisdiction renders the divorce decree null and void. Gates v. Gates, 197 Ga. 11, 28 S.E.2d 108 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. I).

Effect of lack of evidence of residence of plaintiff in county of suit. — Where the record in a divorce case fails to contain any averment or evidence as to the residence of the plaintiff husband in the county where suit was brought against a resident of another state, it was error to refuse a new trial on general grounds. Wade v. Wade, 195 Ga. 748, 25 S.E.2d 683 (1943).

Lack of jurisdiction sufficient ground of attack on divorce decree. — In an original suit in equity for decree declaring void and of no effect verdict and decree in divorce suit, on grounds that court was without jurisdiction of the case, because at the time of filing of suit for divorce defendant was a resident of Clayton County, whereas the suit was brought in Fulton County, the alleged want of jurisdiction was sufficient ground of attack upon verdict and decree of divorce as void and ineffectual. Haygood v. Haygood, 190 Ga. 445, 9 S.E.2d 834 (1940).

Suit to modify divorce judgment not ratification of judgment void for lack of jurisdiction. — Fact that plaintiff husband had brought a petition to modify divorce judgment void for lack of jurisdiction, in which he was unsuccessful and where he filed no exception, would not create such a ratification of the judgment as to make valid that which was void, nor would the fact that the husband, without excepting to the original judgment, had paid alimony in pursuance of the judgment for several years, affect the result. Jones v. Jones, 181 Ga. 747, 184 S.E. 271 (1936).

Where it appears upon the face of the record that the court was without jurisdiction of a divorce case the judgment was void ab initio; and being void the defendant would not be guilty of contempt of court for failing to pay alimony awarded by said judgment. Johnson v. Johnson, 222 Ga. 433, 150 S.E.2d 684 (1966).

Divorce decrees without jurisdiction are nullities; a divorce granted by a court having no jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the parties is a nullity. Johnson v. Johnson, 222 Ga. 433, 150 S.E.2d 684 (1966).

Failure to make proof of venue will render a verdict for divorce subject to be set aside by proper procedure, and such proof is essential, even though the absence of this jurisdictional averment may be supplied by amendment. Wade v. Wade, 195 Ga. 748, 25 S.E.2d 683 (1943).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Venue for divorce proceedings against person confined in penitentiary. — A husband's confinement under penitentiary sentence in another county is not a voluntary change of domicile and proper venue of his wife's subsequent divorce proceeding against him would be the county where he resided before confinement. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 88.

Venue cannot be waived and no court other than that specified has any right to act in the divorce proceeding. — 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 88.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

ANALYSIS

ACTIONS AT LAW
EQUITABLE ACTIONS

General Consideration

This paragraph does not include actions in which plaintiff must first seek aid of equity to perfect plaintiff's title. Schuehler v. Pait, 239 Ga. 520, 238 S.E.2d 65 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

This section may not be altered or changed by the legislature or the courts and the adoption of procedural devices for adjudicating claims of various parties in the same action does not effect a change in the venue requirements of the Constitution. Pemberton v. Purifoy, 128 Ga. App. 892, 198 S.E.2d 356 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Applicability of exception proviso. — The exception of this paragraph applied to condemnation proceedings under former Civil Code 1895, § 4651 (see now O.C.G.A. § 22-1-8). Whitney v. Central Ga. Power Co., 134 Ga. 213, 67 S.E. 197, 19 Ann. Cas. 982 (1910) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Case of ejectment or complaint for land. — If the allegations in a petition are sufficient to show that the plaintiff can recover on the plaintiff's title alone without the aid of a court of equity, the case is one of ejectment or complaint for land; but if this is not the case, and equitable aid is necessary, the petition is equitable in character. Cook v. Grimsley, 175 Ga. 138, 165 S.E. 30 (1932).

When court is without jurisdiction to grant equitable relief. — In a suit which is strictly an action respecting the title to lands, and which is brought in the county in which the land is situated, the court has no jurisdiction to grant equitable relief as to a defendant who is a resident of another county in this state. Cook v. Grimsley, 175 Ga. 138, 165 S.E. 30 (1932).

Basis of action ascertained from pleader's intention. — A rule, perhaps the cardinal rule, by which to determine whether an action is based on equity or title to land is to ascertain the intention of the pleader. Where the pleader's intention is not clearly manifest as to what form of action is relied on in the petition, the courts will prima facie presume that the pleader's purpose was to serve his best interest and will construe the pleadings so as to uphold and not to defeat the action. Cook v. Grimsley, 175 Ga. 138, 165 S.E. 30 (1932).

An Act changing county lines cannot legally deprive a county of its county site. County of DeKalb v. City of Atlanta, 132 Ga. 727, 65 S.E. 72 (1909).

Merger of equity and common law. — This paragraph was not affected by merger of equitable and common law jurisdictions of superior court. Clayton v. Stetson, 101 Ga. 634, 28 S.E. 983 (1897) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Jurisdiction and venue distinguished. — Jurisdiction means the power of a court to render a binding judgment in the case, and venue means the place of trial. Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

General Assembly cannot declare individual resident of another county in contradiction of the general law. — The General Assembly has no right to provide that a natural person, an individual, who lives and has a domicile and residence in one county, and a domicile and residence is fixed there under the law as it stands, should be deemed also to be a resident, for certain purposes, of another county. A general law may fix the general place of residence; but when a person has a residence and domicile fixed and established in accordance with the law, the legislature cannot declare that the person may also be a resident of another county at the same time. Youmans v. Hickman, 179 Ga. 684, 177 S.E. 238 (1934).

Special finding by jury as to ownership in actions for trespass. — In actions for trespass to realty, ownership of the premises is incidentally involved, and while in such cases a special finding by the jury as to ownership is not required, the incorporation of such a finding into the verdict will not vitiate it, if the verdict is in other particulars regular and proper. Anderson v. Black, 191 Ga. 627, 13 S.E.2d 650 (1941).

Venue properly established. — Because a neighbor's claims were incidental to that of the adjoining landowner's, the suit was properly brought in the neighbor's home county, thus supporting a denial of the neighbor's motion for a change of venue. Norton v. Holcomb, 285 Ga. App. 78, 646 S.E.2d 94 (2007), cert. denied, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 654 (Ga. 2007).

Actions at Law

Distinction between suits to establish title and suits to recover land. — There is a distinction between suits to establish title to land or to establish the evidence of title, and suits to recover the land upon legal title; the former being suits in equity, and the latter actions at law. Owenby v. Stancil, 190 Ga. 50, 8 S.E.2d 7 (1940).

Place of trial. — Generally, cases respecting title to land shall be tried in the superior court where the land lies. Pearson v. George, 211 Ga. 18, 83 S.E.2d 593 (1954).

Law governing title and disposition of land is exclusively subject to laws of the state where it is situated. — Such a rule is essential to the sovereignty of the state over the land within its borders. Where a court has no jurisdiction of the subject matter of a suit, the parties cannot waive it. King v. King, 203 Ga. 811, 48 S.E.2d 465 (1948).

This paragraph concerns actions at law, such as ejectment and statutory substitutes, in which the plaintiff asserts a presently enforceable legal title against the possession of the defendant, for the recovery of land or recovery of the land and mesne profits. This paragraph does not apply to suits in equity to establish title to land or to establish evidence of title. Owenby v. Stancil, 190 Ga. 50, 8 S.E.2d 7 (1940); Stolaman v. Stolaman, 220 Ga. 799, 142 S.E.2d 70 (1965); Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F. v. City of Thomasville, 226 Ga. 4, 172 S.E.2d 612 (1970) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

The test as to whether a suit to recover land is one of ejectment and is a "case respecting title to land" within the purview of the venue provisions of this paragraph is whether the plaintiff can recover on the plaintiff's title alone or whether the plaintiff must ask the aid of a court of equity in order to recover. Owenby v. Stancil, 190 Ga. 50, 8 S.E.2d 7 (1940); Screven County v. Reddy, 208 Ga. 730, 69 S.E.2d 186 (1952); White v. Gordon, 213 Ga. 730, 101 S.E.2d 759 (1958); State Hwy. Dep't v. Georgia S. & Fla. Ry., 216 Ga. 547, 117 S.E.2d 897 (1961); Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F. v. City of Thomasville, 226 Ga. 4, 172 S.E.2d 612 (1970) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Action in ejectment brought in proper county. — An action in ejectment wherein the plaintiff claims title to the land in question on the basis of the plain-tiff's abstract of title, which the plaintiff incorporated in the plaintiff's petition by amendment, and seeks to recover the described tract of land and damages for the cutting of timber thereon, sought no equitable relief and was properly brought in the county where the land lies. White v. Gordon, 213 Ga. 730, 101 S.E.2d 759 (1958).

Statutory adverse possession. — A landowner's suit is clearly not in equity where the landowner seeks to establish legal title by adverse possession as a matter of law in reliance on a statute. Venue is constitutionally in the county in which the land lies, as provided in O.C.G.A. § 44-5-168(b)(1). Hayes v. Howell, 251 Ga. 580, 308 S.E.2d 170 (1983).

A statutory partition action under former Code 1933, § 85-1504 (see now O.C.G.A. § 44-6-160) was a case "respecting title to land" under this paragraph since it can bestow title on both parties and divest both parties of title, and must be brought in the county where the land laid. Schuehler v. Pait, 239 Ga. 520, 238 S.E.2d 65 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

A petition stating a case at law for recovery of land, where no equitable relief is sought, is a case respecting title to land, and under this paragraph properly brought in the county where the land lies. Strickland v. Jenkins, 198 Ga. 15, 31 S.E.2d 18 (1944).

Other proceeding adjudicating title to property properly brought in county where land lies. — A petition by the widow and sole heir at law of a named person who died intestate with no administration on his estate, alleging that before her husband's death, he had purchased a tract of land, paid the purchase money, and entered into possession of the land, and that since his death other claimants had entered into possession thereof, where the plaintiff merely sought to recover the land with mesne profits, and the suit was filed in the county where the land lies, stated a cause of action. Strickland v. Jenkins, 198 Ga. 15, 31 S.E.2d 18 (1944).

The allegations of the petition showing an actual controversy, in which petitioner and one of the defendants were claiming title to realty under separate chains of title, coupled with a prayer for a declaratory judgment adjudicating title to the property to be in petitioner, were sufficient to constitute an action respecting title to land under this paragraph and the petition was properly brought in the county where the land lies. Shaw v. Crawford, 207 Ga. 67, 60 S.E.2d 143 (1950) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Situation where action cannot be brought in county land lies. — Where a petition shows that the defendant has legal title to the land and seeks to set up a perfect equity in the plaintiff, and prays that the property be decreed to be that of the plaintiff, such action cannot be brought in the county where the land lies if the defendant is not a resident thereof. Screven County v. Reddy, 208 Ga. 730, 69 S.E.2d 186 (1952).

Equitable Actions

A suit to establish title to land, or to establish the evidence of title, is one that must be brought in equity, but suits to recover land upon legal title are actions at law. The common test as to whether an action to recover land is an action respecting title to land within the venue provision of the Constitution is whether the plaintiff can recover on the plaintiff's title alone, or whether the plaintiff must seek the aid of a court of equity in order to recover. Payne v. Terhune, 212 Ga. 169, 91 S.E.2d 348 (1956).

Nonjudicial foreclosure proceedings are not cases respecting title to land. — A suit seeking a rule nisi to require defendants to show cause why a nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding should not be allowed to proceed is not a case respecting title to land within the meaning of this paragraph, and is without any jurisdictional basis in the Supreme Court. Graham v. Tallent, 235 Ga. 47, 218 S.E.2d 799 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Striking prayer for equitable relief and praying for legal remedy does not result in suit respecting title to land. — Suit by assignee of obligee of a bond for title for an accounting and setoff against the purchase price of rents, appointment of a receiver to collect rents, specific performance and other relief, should have been brought in the county wherein the obligor under the bond for title resided, and not in the county of the tenant's residence; nor did plaintiff's striking of plaintiff's prayer of injunction, and praying for possession of the premises, make the suit one respecting title to land, to be tried in the county where the land lies, as only after relief in equity decreeing title in plaintiff would the plaintiff have an action at law for recovery of the land. Bradley v. Burns, 188 Ga. 434, 4 S.E.2d 147 (1939).

In rem jurisdiction by state's courts over property of nonresident. — While a petition to cancel a deed or lien or to remove a cloud on the title to land is not a suit "respecting titles to land," within the meaning of this paragraph, so as to give jurisdiction against a resident of another county of this state to the superior court of the county where the land lies, still, if the only defendant in an equitable petition for relief in rem is a nonresident of the state, the courts of this state may take jurisdiction for the purpose of applying any recognized equitable principle affecting property located in this state, such as the removal of a cloud on the title, the cancellation or foreclosure of liens thereon, and may grant an order or decree operating in rem with reference to such property, and having the effect of excluding the nonresident from an interest therein. Sweat v. Arline, 186 Ga. 460, 197 S.E. 893 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

A petition to set aside and cancel a deed is not a suit respecting title to land as must be brought in the county where the land lies, but must be brought, if the defendant resides in this state, in the county of defendant's residence. Borden v. I.B.C. Corp., 220 Ga. 688, 141 S.E.2d 449 (1965).

Establishment of boundary line not a case respecting title to land. — Petition predicated upon the ownership by the plaintiff of certain described lands upon which the defendants allegedly committed acts of trespass, and which of necessity required the ascertainment and establishment of the boundary line in controversy, was a case in equity seeking injunctive relief against trespass to land, and was not a case respecting title to land within the venue provisions of this paragraph, and the case was properly brought in the county of the residence of a defendant against whom substantial equitable relief is prayed, as required by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III). Dawson v. Altamaha Land Co., 215 Ga. 700, 113 S.E.2d 129 (1960); Georgia Power Co. v. Harrison, 253 Ga. 212, 318 S.E.2d 306 (1984) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Where equitable relief is sought in conjunction with a boundary-line dispute (i.e., removal of a fence and ejectment from a disputed strip of land), the county of the defendant's residence is the proper venue forum. Beauchamp v. Knight, 261 Ga. 608, 409 S.E.2d 208 (1991).

Action against multiple defendants to restrain continuing trespass maintainable in county or residence of one defendant. — Where a petition for injunction brought in the county where one defendant resides, seeks to restrain a continuing trespass which all of the defendants are committing, the court is not without jurisdiction to grant such relief, even though all except the one defendant are residents of other counties in the state. Bennett v. Bagwell & Stewart, Inc., 214 Ga. 115, 103 S.E.2d 561 (1958).

A bill in equity to enjoin a trespass upon realty by felling timber is not a suit respecting the title to land as must be brought in the county where the land lies. The proper venue of such a case is the county of the residence of a defendant against whom substantial relief is prayed. Powell v. Cheshire, 70 Ga. 357, 48 Am. R. 572 (1883); Chase v. Endsley, 165 Ga. 292, 140 S.E. 876 (1927), commented on in 1 Ga. L. Rev. 49 (1927).

Actions to cancel deed based on fraud and coercion. — An action to cancel a deed conveying land, alleging the deed to have been obtained by fraud and coercion, is not a suit respecting the title to land within the meaning of this paragraph, but is an equitable action, and must be brought in the county of the residence of the defendants, as required by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III). Hawkins v. Pierotti, 232 Ga. 631, 208 S.E.2d 452 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Exception contained in § 9-10-30 does not affect venue of suit brought against nonresident of county suit brought in. — The exception contained in former Code 1933, § 3-202 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-10-30) to the effect that injunction suits to stay pending proceedings may be filed in the county where the proceedings were pending, provided no relief was prayed as to matters not included in such litigation, did not affect the venue of a suit, in which independent relief was sought against one who was a nonresident of the county in which the suit was brought, and who was not a party to the suit there pending. Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943).

A petition for interpleader is an equitable proceeding within this paragraph. Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II).

Removal of cloud on title based on certain year's support was equity action. — Suit to remove from the record a certain year's support proceeding as a cloud upon the title of described land in plaintiff's possession was one in equity and not one respecting title to land, and should have been brought in the county of a defendant against whom substantial relief was sought; since the suit was brought in a county where neither defendant resided, the court was without jurisdiction of the subject matter and such jurisdiction could not be conferred by consent or waived by the parties. Sweatman v. Roberts, 213 Ga. 112, 97 S.E.2d 320 (1957).

Venue improper in nuisance action. — Action brought by plaintiff landowner against defendant landowner for conducting road construction without adequate barriers, causing silt and debris to leave defendant's land, enter a river, and flow onto plaintiff landowner's property was in the nature of a nuisance making venue proper in the county in which defendant landowner resided under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III; venue was improper in the county in which the land lay under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II. Hopkins v. Baker, 258 Ga. App. 14, 572 S.E.2d 716 (2002).

General Consideration

This constitutional provision applies to domestic corporations as well as individuals. Grimaud v. Knox-Georgia Homes, Inc., 210 Ga. 514, 81 S.E.2d 476 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

This paragraph is mandatory, and cannot be altered by legislative enactment or any rule of construction. Bradley v. Burns, 188 Ga. 434, 4 S.E.2d 147 (1939) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

No legislative or judicial tinkering can add to, take from, or vary this provision. Hanson v. Williams, 170 Ga. 779, 154 S.E. 240 (1930).

This paragraph may not be altered or changed by the legislature or the courts and the adoption of procedural devices for adjudicating claims of various parties in the same action does not effect a change in the venue requirements of the Constitution. Pemberton v. Purifoy, 128 Ga. App. 892, 198 S.E.2d 356 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

General Assembly cannot declare a person's domicile and residence in contradiction to general law. — The General Assembly has no right to provide that a natural person, an individual, who lives and has a domicile and residence in one county, and the individual's domicile and residence is fixed there under the law as it stands, should be deemed also to be a resident, for certain purposes, of another county. A general law may fix the general place of residence; but when an individual has a residence and domicile fixed and established in accordance with the law, the legislature cannot declare that the individual may also be a resident of another county at the same time. Youmans v. Hickman, 179 Ga. 684, 177 S.E. 238 (1934).

This paragraph is inapplicable to a defendant who is a nonresident of this state. Moody v. Mendenhall, 238 Ga. 689, 234 S.E.2d 905 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Construction of other Acts. — The courts in construing an Act of the General Assembly will, if possible, ascribe to it a meaning so as to make it square with this paragraph. Newman Motors, Inc. v. Arrington, 194 Ga. 569, 22 S.E.2d 163 (1942) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Removal of trustee not case contemplated by paragraph. — An application to remove a trustee, addressed to the judge at chambers, was not “a case” within the meaning of this paragraph. This paragraph relates only to equitable petitions filed in the superior court and upon which a trial by jury may or must be had. Heath v. Miller, 117 Ga. 854, 44 S.E. 13 (1903), overruled on other grounds, 224 Ga. 440, 162 S.E.2d 294 (1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

An action to enjoin a foreclosure under a power of sale must be brought in the county where the defendant resides. Nylen v. Barbaris, 232 Ga. 79, 205 S.E.2d 303 (1974).

Proper Venue

The test for determining venue of an equitable action in Georgia is not made to depend on the technical name given to the parties defendant. Bennett v. Blackshear Mfg. Co., 183 Ga. 240, 187 S.E. 865 (1936).

Venue of equity actions. — Venue of equitable petition to enjoin levy of an execution and advertisement of land levied upon, and to set aside the judgment on which it issued, and where no complaint of misconduct on the part of the levying officer is alleged, is the county of the residence of the judgment plaintiff, if a resident of this state. Harrington v. Bryan, 169 Ga. 382, 150 S.E. 555 (1929); Whiteley v. Downs, 174 Ga. 839, 164 S.E. 318 (1932).

This also applies to a prayer for cancellation of a transfer of execution by the levying officer, the marshal and the clerk of the superior court being mere nominal parties. Interstate Bond Co. v. Lee, 182 Ga. 238, 184 S.E. 866 (1936).

Venue of petition for injunction, cancellation of deeds, and other equitable relief, in which it is sought to have a conveyance of land delivered up and cancelled, may be brought in the county of the residence of the grantee or in that of the grantor. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. McCurley, 199 Ga. 104, 33 S.E.2d 270 (1945).

Assuming that O.C.G.A. § 53-7-54(b) created a cause of action against third-parties, as the trust created by the statute was a creature of equity jurisdiction, under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III, venue for such actions was in the county where a defendant resided. Thus, where a contempt petition was filed pursuant to the statute, the motion to transfer venue filed by two lawyers and their law firm should have been granted as neither lawyer resided in the forum county and their law firm was not located in that county. Rader v. Levenson, 290 Ga. App. 227, 659 S.E.2d 655 (2008).

Venue of action against public nuisance. — In an injunctive action solely against the owner of the property on which an alleged public nuisance is being operated, the action must be brought in the county of the residence of the defendant, as required by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III. This is true even though O.C.G.A. § 3-10-8 states that the action is to be filed in the county where the nuisance exists, since the constitutional mandate must control. Chancey v. Hancock, 225 Ga. 715, 171 S.E.2d 302 (1969); Hopkins v. Baker, 258 Ga. App. 14, 572 S.E.2d 716 (2002).

Place of filing petition for interpleader when claimants reside in different counties. — A petition for interpleader is an equitable proceeding. Substantial relief is prayed, so far as the stakeholders are concerned, against each of the persons claiming the fund; and, therefore, where the claimants reside in different counties, the petition may be properly filed in the county of the residence of either. The same principle is applicable where the original action is brought in a jurisdiction where the stakeholder is subject to suit, and the stakeholder's response is in the nature of interpleader, and one of the claimants to the stakeholder's funds is subject to the court's jurisdiction though other claimants reside in different counties. Williams v. Overstreet, 230 Ga. 112, 195 S.E.2d 906 (1973).

Venue proper in county of any one of two or more defendants of different counties. — If substantial relief prayed is against two or more defendants residing in different counties, the suit may be brought in the county of the residence of either. O'Hara v. Jacobs, 191 Ga. 5, 11 S.E.2d 199 (1940).

Where plaintiff administratrix alleged that defendants entered into a conspiracy to fraudulently procure transfer to them by decedent of all of the decedent's real and personal estate, that the confederates had made a division of the fruits of their conspiracy and accordingly prayed for appropriate substantial equitable relief against each for benefit of the estate, the defendants were properly joined in the equitable suit and venue of that suit was laid in a county where any one of the defendants resided against whom substantial equitable relief was prayed. Hayes v. Hayes, 214 Ga. 624, 106 S.E.2d 790 (1959).

Injunctions. — Fact of praying for an injunction against a defendant does not in all events confer right to file the equitable petition in county of defendant's residence, or to draw to that county residents of other counties. Carter v. Grogan, 230 Ga. 249, 196 S.E.2d 434 (1973).

Injunction to restrain continuing trespass. — Where a petition for injunction, brought in the county where one defendant resides, seeks relief against joint trespasses by all of the defendants, the court is not without jurisdiction, even though all except one defendant are residents of other counties of the state, and even though the resident defendant, as an employee or agent of other defendants, may have been acting only under their command or authority in the commission of the trespasses. Hoch v. Candler, 190 Ga. 390, 9 S.E.2d 622 (1940).

This is true, even though the resident defendant may have been acting only as agent of or under the command, direction, or authority of the other defendants in the commission of the trespasses. Baggett v. Linder, 208 Ga. 590, 68 S.E.2d 469 (1952).

Where a petition for injunction brought in county where one defendant resides, seeks to restrain a continuing trespass which all defendants are committing, the court is not without jurisdiction to grant relief, even though all except the one defendant are residents of other counties in the state. Bennett v. Bagwell & Stewart, Inc., 214 Ga. 115, 103 S.E.2d 561 (1958), commented on in 21 Ga. B.J. 564 (1959).

Bankruptcy trustee of insolvent corporation seeking to recover unpaid stock subscriptions. — A trustee in bankruptcy of an insolvent corporation may recover unpaid stock subscriptions from any number of persons in one equitable action, and may bring the action in the county of the residence of any of the defendants. Sanders v. Culpepper, 226 Ga. 598, 176 S.E.2d 83 (1970).

Venue proper as to all parties. — Where a nonresident admits jurisdiction and the defendant against whom substantial relief is prayed is a resident and a second defendant is a joint obligor of the first, venue is proper as to all parties. Cheek v. Savannah Valley Prod. Credit Ass'n, 244 Ga. 768, 262 S.E.2d 90 (1979).

Venue in county in which cause of action originated. — A motor common carrier may be a nonresident corporation, yet since it is engaged in doing business in this state, and has agents in the state for that purpose, it is a resident of this state and a resident of the county in which the cause of action originated, so far as the right to bring a suit against it for a cause of action originating in that county is concerned, and, being a resident of that county for purpose of suit, a joint tort-feasor, notwithstanding that the joint tort-feasor may reside in another county of this state, may be sued jointly with the motor common carrier in the county in which the cause of action originated. A.G. Boone Co. v. Owens, 51 Ga. App. 739, 181 S.E. 519 (1935).

An action against a motor common carrier, except where the Constitution of this state otherwise provides, may be brought and maintained in any county or militia district where the action could be brought if the defendant were a railroad company being sued upon a like cause of action, and if the defendant or defendants or any of them cannot be found for service in the county or militia district where the action is brought the second original or originals may issue and service may be made in any other county where the service can be made upon the defendant or defendants or defendant's, its, or their agents; a motor common carrier, doing business as such within this state by being engaged in the business of trucking, hauling, and transporting with automobile trucks over various public highways, is subject to be sued, as is a railroad company, in any county in this state in which the cause of action originated, for damages for an injury to person or property by the operation of the vehicles of such motor common carrier, although it may not have an agent in that county upon whom service of the suit may be perfected. A.G. Boone Co. v. Owens, 51 Ga. App. 739, 181 S.E. 519 (1935).

Proceeding exempt from filing in county instituted in. — When an alleged landlord sued out a statutory proceeding to eject an alleged tenant for nonpayment of rent, the latter could file a suit in equity against the alleged landlord to enjoin the dispossessory proceeding where the tenant denied that the relation of landlord and tenant existed between the tenant and the plaintiff in such proceeding, but alleged that the tenant held under plaintiff under a contract of sale, and in the same suit, in a proper case, could seek specific performance by the plaintiff in such proceeding, of the contract of sale without being required to file a counter-affidavit to such proceeding and to give the bond required by the statute to arrest such proceeding, and without being required to file the tenant's suit for equitable relief in the county where such proceeding was instituted. Harvey v. Atlanta & Lowry Nat'l Bank, 164 Ga. 625, 139 S.E. 147 (1927).

Jurisdiction of probate court and superior court hinges on type of action. — If a will expressly creates a trust, and imposes special fiduciary duties on the person named executor, not as executor but as trustee, and the executor has expressly or impliedly assented to the gift and taken over the property as trustee, it is plain that the person is not amenable to a proceeding in the court of ordinary (now probate court), brought by a legatee for an accounting and settlement with respect to the trust; but relief must be sought by equitable suit in the superior court where the defendant resides. McDowell v. McDowell, 68 Ga. App. 363, 22 S.E.2d 851 (1942).

Boundary-line dispute. — Where equitable relief is sought in conjunction with a boundary-line dispute (i.e., removal of a fence and ejectment from a disputed strip of land), the county of the defendant's residence is the proper venue forum. Beauchamp v. Knight, 261 Ga. 608, 409 S.E.2d 208 (1991).

A bill in equity to enjoin a trespass upon realty by felling timber is not a suit respecting title to land as must be brought in the county where the land lies. The proper venue of such a case is the county of the residence of a defendant against whom substantial relief is prayed. Powell v. Cheshire, 70 Ga. 357, 48 Am. R. 572 (1883); Chase v. Endsley, 165 Ga. 292, 140 S.E. 876 (1927), commented on in 1 Ga. L. Rev. 49 (1927).

Venue in county where at least one of the defendants against whom substantial relief is prayed resides. — An equitable action against three defendants, two resident and one nonresident, seeking to have equity decree title in the plaintiffs to land lying in the county of the suit, not being one respecting title to land, must be brought in the county where one of the defendants against whom substantial relief is prayed resides. Empire Land Co. v. Stokes, 212 Ga. 707, 95 S.E.2d 283 (1956).

If the proceeding to foreclose the lien in the case was one in equity, the suit ought to be brought in the county of the residence of a defendant against whom substantial relief is prayed. Middleton v. Westmoreland, 164 Ga. 324, 138 S.E. 852 (1927).

Venue in foreclosure proceedings. — While a statutory mortgage on real property must be foreclosed in the county where the property lies, the rule is different where a deed is executed by a borrower to secure a note given to the lender, and the deed is foreclosed as an equitable mortgage on land lying in a different county from that where the vendor lives. In the former case, of a statutory mortgage, generally no title to the land passes from the mortgagor to the mortgagee, but in the latter case it does, and may be foreclosed as an equitable mortgage in the county of the residence of the vendor. Kitchens v. Molton, 172 Ga. 690, 158 S.E. 570 (1931).

Venue of suit to foreclose lien for materials, see Atkinson v. Wingate

Plumbing Co., 20 Ga. App. 480, 93 S.E. 122 (1917).

Venue of an equitable action to restrain the exercise of a power of sale contained in a security deed by a resident agent of the grantee, who is a resident of another county, is in the county of the residence of the grantee, and a suit for injunction against the resident agent and the grantee in the county of the agent's residence cannot be sustained. Grace v. Interstate Bond Co., 193 Ga. 810, 20 S.E.2d 131 (1942).

Venue of a suit by a creditor of an intestate person against the administrator is the county of the defendant's residence, and not the county of the administrator's appointment where the administrator resides in a different county. Hopkins v. Kidd, 192 Ga. 791, 16 S.E.2d 570 (1941).

Corporation subject to equity suit in county of principal office. — A corporation of this state is not subject to a suit for equitable relief by injunction in a county other than that fixed by its charter as the county of its principal office, and this is true although the suit embraces also a claim for past damages. Caldwell v. Swift & Co., 174 Ga. 313, 162 S.E. 814 (1932); Grimaud v. Knox-Georgia Homes, Inc., 210 Ga. 514, 81 S.E.2d 476 (1954).

In a representative capacity, an executrix must be sued in equity, if sued alone, in the county of the executrix's residence. Hopkins v. Kidd, 192 Ga. 791, 16 S.E.2d 570 (1941).

Real estate agents. — The joining as defendant of a real estate agent as to whom there is no charge of the commission of any unlawful act against the plaintiff irreparable in damages, and against whom only incidental relief is sought, in an equitable action against the nonresident principal, who is the only defendant against whom substantial equitable relief is sought, will not afford jurisdiction in the county of the residence of the agent. Payne v. Hightower, 198 Ga. 421, 31 S.E.2d 816 (1944).

Wills. — If all the parties interested in a will are nonresidents of the state, the executor may file the bill in the county where the administration is pending, as the Code gives equity concurrent jurisdiction with the courts of ordinary (now probate court) in the administration of estates and permits the executor to apply to equity for direction. As jurisdiction of the administration of the estate is vested in the court of ordinary (now probate court) of the county of the domicile of the deceased, the court of equity for that county can take jurisdiction for the purpose of construing the will or for directing the administration, and service on such nonresidents can be made by publication. Barker v. Wilkinson, 222 Ga. 329, 149 S.E.2d 698 (1966).

Multiple claims arising from same transaction. — Where a plaintiff brings suit in the same county on two claims arising from the same transaction and the Georgia Constitution designates that county as the venue for one of those claims, the trial court has the discretion to entertain both claims. Natpar Corp. v. E.T. Kassinger, Inc., 258 Ga. 102, 365 S.E.2d 442 (1988).

Where a joint obligor claim and an equitable claim arose from the same transaction, and involved the same parties and witnesses and substantially the same proof, venue with regard to both claims was proper in the county where only one of the joint obligors lived, despite the fact that the other joint obligor was the only defendant against whom equitable relief was prayed. Natpar Corp. v. E.T. Kassinger, Inc., 258 Ga. 102, 365 S.E.2d 442 (1988).

Statutory adverse possession. — A landowner's suit is clearly not in equity where the landowner seeks to establish legal title by adverse possession as a matter of law in reliance on a statute. Venue is constitutionally in the county in which the land lies, as provided in O.C.G.A. § 44-5-168(b)(1). Hayes v. Howell, 251 Ga. 580, 308 S.E.2d 170 (1983).

Substantial Relief Requirement

As to equitable jurisdiction of a nonresident defendant, see Fourth Nat'l Bank v. Mooty, 143 Ga. 137, 84 S.E. 546 (1915); Bird v. Trapnell, 147 Ga. 50, 92 S.E. 872 (1917); Atlanta, B. & Atl. Ry. v. Smith, 148 Ga. 282, 96 S.E. 562 (1918); Sayer v. Bennett, 159 Ga. 369, 125 S.E. 855 (1924).

Substantial ReliefRequirement (Cont'd)

Suit subject to dismissal where substantial relief is sought only against nonresident defendant. — Mere fact of praying for injunction against defendant does not in all events confer right to file equitable petition in county of defendant's residence, or to draw to that county residents of other counties; thus, where substantial relief is sought only against nonresident defendant, suit is subject to dismissal for want of jurisdiction. Newport Timber Corp. v. Floyd, 247 Ga. 535, 277 S.E.2d 646 (1981).

Substantial relief rule. — Generally, suits for equitable relief must be brought in the county of the residence of a defendant against whom substantial relief is prayed. Waters v. Waters, 167 Ga. 389, 145 S.E. 460 (1928); Bradley v. Burns, 188 Ga. 434, 4 S.E.2d 147 (1939); Harper v. Gunby, 215 Ga. 466, 111 S.E.2d 85 (1959).

Substantial relief sought against multiple defendants. — An equitable petition asking substantial relief against both defendants may be brought in the county of either. Georgia Power Co. v. City of Rome, 172 Ga. 14, 157 S.E. 283 (1931).

Venue was proper in Echols County, even though the complaint sought additional relief against the DeKalb County Tax Commissioner, who resided in DeKalb County, as the complaint sought substantial relief against the Echols County Tax Commissioner and the commissioner resided in Echols County; the complaint sought declaratory and injunctive relief seeking to prevent the duplicate collection of ad valorem taxes by the two tax commissioners. Scott v. Prime Sales & Leasing, Inc., 276 Ga. App. 283, 623 S.E.2d 167 (2005).

A person who would have equity must do equity, hence equity, having the parties before the court rightfully, will proceed to give full relief to all parties in reference to the subject matter, provided the court has jurisdiction thereof. Pearson v. George, 211 Ga. 18, 83 S.E.2d 593 (1954).

Construction of substantial relief. — Properly construed, "substantial relief" mentioned in this paragraph and in former Civil Code 1910, § 5527 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-10-30) referred to substantial equitable relief. Wright v. Trammell, 176 Ga. 84, 166 S.E. 866 (1932); Huckabee Auto Co. v. Norris, 190 Ga. 515, 9 S.E.2d 840 (1940) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Common substantial equitable relief between resident and nonresident required. — This paragraph has been uniformly construed to mean that in order to join a nonresident in a suit, substantial equitable relief must be common to the nonresident and the resident defendant. This means that regardless of substantial relief sought against the resident defendant and other substantial equitable relief sought against the nonresident, the nonresident cannot be joined. I. Perlis & Sons v. National Sur. Corp., 218 Ga. 667, 129 S.E.2d 915 (1963) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Collateral or incidental relief not sufficient to give jurisdiction. — If relief is sought against a resident defendant, which is merely collateral or incidental, this will not suffice to give the court jurisdiction. The relief prayed for against a defendant must be substantial. Beacham v. Cullens, 194 Ga. 739, 22 S.E.2d 508 (1942).

Substantial equitable relief must be prayed. — The essential fact necessary to confer equitable jurisdiction in a county is not that the defendant residing therein shall have an interest, or a substantial interest, but that substantial relief shall be prayed against such defendant. If substantial relief is prayed against a defendant residing in the county in which an equity case is brought, the equity case "shall be tried" there. Bennett v. Blackshear Mfg. Co., 183 Ga. 240, 187 S.E. 865 (1936); Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. McCurley, 199 Ga. 104, 33 S.E.2d 270 (1945).

An indispensable prerequisite to joining a nonresident in an equity suit is a prayer for substantial equitable relief which is common to the resident and nonresident defendants. Martin v. Bennett, 221 Ga. 482, 145 S.E.2d 517 (1965); Madray v. Ogden, 225 Ga. 806, 171 S.E.2d 560 (1969).

The question is not whether the defendant was a proper or necessary party to the suit, but rather did the petition seek substantial equitable relief against it. That it may properly be made a party does not determine the other inquiry; it is a question of proper venue, not proper parties. Carlson v. Hall County Planning Comm'n, 233 Ga. 286, 210 S.E.2d 815 (1974).

In a suit in equity, all persons whose rights and interests are sought to be affected are necessary party defendants and where they are joined as such they are parties against whom substantial equitable relief is prayed within the meaning of the rule as to venue in equity cases. Huey v. National Bank, 177 Ga. 64, 169 S.E. 491 (1933); Summit Ins. Co. v. Mulherin, 233 Ga. 606, 212 S.E.2d 788 (1975).

Absence of jurisdiction appears on the face of the pleading when there is no prayer for substantial equitable relief that is common to both defendants. Martin v. Bennett, 221 Ga. 482, 145 S.E.2d 517 (1965).

Where rights of the resident defendant are only incidentally involved by the grant of the relief sought by the plaintiff, the resident defendant is not a party against whom substantial relief is prayed. Summit Ins. Co. v. Mulherin, 233 Ga. 606, 212 S.E.2d 788 (1975).

Court properly granted motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction. — Where the sole equitable relief sought in petition is a recovery ex delicto against nonresident defendants, to be set-off against amounts constituting the basis of several suits in the city court, and the alleged acts of the several nonresidents for which a recovery is sought are matters not included in the subject matter of city court suits, the court did not err in sustaining a demurrer (now motion to dismiss) thereto. Askew v. Bassett Furn. Co., 172 Ga. 700, 158 S.E. 577 (1931).

Showing of substantial relief. — While, under this section, an equity case must be brought in the county where a defendant resides against whom substantial relief is prayed, and the mere fact that a defendant residing in the county has a substantial pecuniary interest in the litigation, and is a proper or necessary party thereto, will not confer jurisdiction upon the courts of that county where it is not alleged that the resident defendant is doing or threatening to do an illegal act; however, where the petition, brought by minority stockholders of a corporation, alleges that the deceased owner of the controlling stock had pledged stock to the corporation as security for an indebtedness and that the defendants, the heirs at law, one of whom resides in the county where the suit is filed, have entered into a fraudulent scheme and conspiracy with the administrators of the deceased and directors of the corporation, to sell the stock so as to defeat the lien of the corporation thereon, and such petition seeks discovery of the terms of the proposed sale, and to enjoin such threatened fraudulent sale of stock, and to enjoin the bank, a resident corporation of the county in which the suit was filed, from surrendering possession of stock certificate, the petition sought such substantial relief against the defendants residing in the county where it was filed as to confer jurisdiction upon the superior court of that county. Screven Oil Mill v. Hudmon, 214 Ga. 414, 105 S.E.2d 328 (1958) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Prayer for substantial relief required for injunctive relief. — Where a defendant corporation is a domestic corporation and a resident of a county different from the plaintiff's, the superior court of the plaintiff's county would have no jurisdiction to grant injunctive relief against it, if no substantial relief is prayed against the resident defendant. Screven County v. Reddy, 208 Ga. 730, 69 S.E.2d 186 (1952).

Suit in county of residence of attorney who allegedly had contingent interest in estate. — Where a suit instituted by an administrator against heirs at law and their attorney alleged a contingent interest of the attorney in the subject matter of suit; and, though contingent upon recovery for clients, it was a substantial interest in the property alleged to be in the hands of the administrator for distribution among the heirs, and afforded grounds for equitable relief against the attorney as suit was in equity, venue was properly laid in the county of the residence of the attorney at law. Reynolds v.

Ingraham, 179 Ga. 398, 175 S.E. 918 (1934).

Cancellation of a security deed was “substantial relief” against a resident defendant where plaintiff alleged that the deed was a sham for tax purposes, that there was never any agreement to repay the money used to buy the property, and that defendants, one a county resident and the other a nonresident, were involved in a collusive effort to foreclose on the property and sell it. Stephenson v. Edwards, 259 Ga. 173, 377 S.E.2d 840 (1989).

Actions By and Against Nonresidents

Attachment of jurisdiction in quasi-in rem suit. — Where the plaintiff who obtained an alleged fraudulent judgment was a nonresident of the state and had caused the writ based on the judgment to be levied upon the property of the defendant located in Floyd County, plaintiff was subjected to the jurisdiction of the court in Floyd County for the purpose of a suit quasi-in rem to set aside the judgment and cancel the entry of the writ on the execution docket, as a cloud upon the plaintiff’s title. Turner v. Koske, 173 Ga. 390, 160 S.E. 398 (1931).

Jurisdiction over nonresidents on account of joinder of resident defendant. — It was not contemplated by the framers of the Constitution, in fixing the venue of equity suits, that nonresidents could be made to litigate in one county issues between them and the plaintiffs solely on account of the joinder of a resident defendant against whom there was a prayer for equitable relief. The mere fact of praying for an injunction against a defendant does not in all events confer the right to file the equitable petition in the county of that defendant’s residence, or to draw to that county residents of other counties. Mandeville v. Mandeville, 207 Ga. 125, 60 S.E.2d 460 (1950) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

In order to confer on the court of a particular county jurisdiction to hear and determine an issue between the plaintiff and a nonresident defendant, it is essential that the plaintiff present a case showing grounds for the equitable relief sought against the resident defendant. Mandeville v. Mandeville, 207 Ga. 125, 60 S.E.2d 460 (1950).

Separate and distinct equitable causes of action do not give rise to jurisdiction. — A separate and distinct equitable cause of action against a resident defendant will not give the superior court of the county of such residence jurisdiction of a nonresident defendant against whom the plaintiff has another, independent, separate, and distinct equitable cause of action. Jones v. Hudgins, 218 Ga. 43, 126 S.E.2d 414 (1962).

When paragraph inapplicable. — Where a suit in equity is brought against a sole nonresident defendant of this state, seeking to cancel and set aside certain deeds as a cloud upon the title of the petitioner, and containing a prayer for general relief, a court of equity, under the prayer for general relief, may decree title to be in the petitioner; in such a case, this paragraph is inapplicable and the question is whether any court of equity in this state has jurisdiction. Hale v. Turner, 185 Ga. 516, 195 S.E. 423 (1937) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Others cannot allow court to obtain jurisdiction of nonresident defendants. — The court cannot gain jurisdiction of any defendants who are nonresidents of the state, by reason of including in the petition the superintendent of banks (now commissioner of banking and finance), the judge of a city court, and an attorney at law. Askew v. Bassett Furn. Co., 172 Ga. 700, 158 S.E. 577 (1931).

Law

Distinction between suits to establish title and suits to recover land. — There is a distinction between suits to establish title to land or to establish the evidence of title, and suits to recover the land upon legal title; the former being suits in equity, and the latter actions at law. Owenby v. Stancil, 190 Ga. 50, 8 S.E.2d 7 (1940).

The common test as to whether an action to recover land is an action respecting title to land within the venue provision of the Constitution is whether the plaintiff can recover on the plaintiff's title alone, or whether the plaintiff must seek the aid of a court of equity in order to recover. Payne v. Terhune, 212 Ga. 169, 91 S.E.2d 348 (1956).

Suits alleging fraud and coercion. — An action to cancel a deed conveying land, alleging the deed to have been obtained by fraud and coercion, is not a suit respecting title to land within the meaning of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II), but is an equitable action, and must be brought in the county of the residence of the defendants, as required by this paragraph. Hawkins v. Pierotti, 232 Ga. 631, 208 S.E.2d 452 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Ascertainment and establishment of boundary line case in equity and not one respecting title to land. — Petition predicated upon ownership by plaintiff of certain described lands upon which defendants allegedly committed acts of trespass, and which of necessity required ascertainment and establishment of the boundary line in controversy, was a case in equity seeking injunctive relief against trespass to land, and was not a case respecting title to land, within the venue provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. II), and the case was properly brought in the county of the residence of a defendant against whom substantial equitable relief was prayed, as required by this paragraph. Dawson v. Altamaha Land Co., 215 Ga. 700, 113 S.E.2d 129 (1960) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Suit to remove cloud on title arising from certain year's support proceeding. — Suit to remove from record a certain year's support proceeding as a cloud upon title of described land in plaintiff's possession was one in equity and not one respecting title to land, and should have been brought in the county of a defendant against whom substantial relief was sought; since the suit was brought in a county where neither defendant resided, the court was without jurisdiction of the subject matter and such jurisdiction could not be conferred by consent or waived by the parties. Sweatman v. Roberts, 213 Ga. 112, 97 S.E.2d 320 (1957).

Other equitable proceedings. — Suit by assignee of obligee of a bond for title for an accounting and setoff against the purchase price of rents, appointment of a receiver to collect rents, specific performance and other relief, should have been brought in the county wherein the obligor under the bond for title resided, and not in the county of the tenant's residence; nor did plaintiff's striking of the plaintiff's prayer of injunction, and praying for possession of the premises, make the suit one respecting title to land, to be tried in the county where the land lay, as only after relief in equity decreeing title in plaintiff would the plaintiff have an action at law for recovery of the land. Bradley v. Burns, 188 Ga. 434, 4 S.E.2d 147 (1939).

Contract set aside based on mental incapacity or insanity. — A petition filed in the court where a judgment was rendered to set aside the judgment on the ground of mental incapacity to enter into contract and of insanity existing at the time the judgment was rendered is not "an equity case" as is contemplated by the Constitution of Georgia. Perry v. Fletcher, 174 Ga. 180, 162 S.E. 285 (1932).

Jurisdiction

1. In General

Jurisdiction and venue distinguished. — Jurisdiction means the power of a court to render a binding judgment in the case, and venue means the place of trial. Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

The domicile of transient persons as fixed by former Civil Code 1910, § 2182 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-2-2) was a sufficient residence within the meaning of this paragraph. Crawford v. Wilson, 142 Ga. 734, 83 S.E. 667 (1914) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Essential fact necessary to confer jurisdiction is not that a defendant residing in county has substantial interest in litigation, but whether or not substantial equitable relief is prayed against such

Waiver permissible. — This paragraph confers a personal privilege on the defendant which may be waived by the defendant. Thomason v. Thompson, 129 Ga. 440, 59 S.E. 236, 26 L.R.A. (n.s.) 536 (1907) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Amendment. — An amendment to a bill will not be allowed if one of the effects of the amendment would be to compel defendants to come to trial in a different county from that of their residence. Jordan v. Jordan, 16 Ga. 446 (1854); Johnson v. Griffin, 80 Ga. 551, 7 S.E. 94 (1888).

The trial court properly sustained the ground of demurrer (now motion to dismiss) which set up its want of jurisdiction, because no substantial relief was prayed against the only resident defendant. White v. North Ga. Elec. Co., 139 Ga. 587, 77 S.E. 789 (1913); Middlebrooks v. Barron, 150 Ga. 701, 105 S.E. 298 (1920); Glenn v. Cauthen, 150 Ga. 784, 105 S.E. 365 (1920); Willie v. Willie, 154 Ga. 688, 115 S.E. 257 (1922).

A bill is not demurrable (now motion to dismiss) on the ground that land lying in another county was involved in the litigation. Fulgham v. Pate, 77 Ga. 454 (1886).

Collateral relief against real estate agent does not confer jurisdiction. — Where the relief prayed against a resident real estate agent is collateral to and dependent upon the granting of the main relief sought against the executor, residing in another county, the superior court of that county has no jurisdiction of the case. Martin v. Gaissert, 134 Ga. 34, 67 S.E. 536 (1910).

2. Jurisdiction Satisfied

Upon showing defendant and respondent as joint wrongdoers and substantial relief sought jurisdiction established. — Where the allegations of the amended petition are sufficient to show that the original defendant and the respondent are joint wrongdoers and substantial equitable relief is sought against both, there is no merit in the contention that the superior court of the county does not have jurisdiction of the respondent. Hardin v. Homeyer, 213 Ga. 321, 99 S.E.2d 136 (1957).

Venue in licensing actions against state board. — Venue of contractors' action seeking to restrain the Georgia State Licensing Board for Residential and General Contractors and a county from enforcing a licensing law, O.C.G.A. § 43-41-1 et seq., was proper in Muscogee County because there was substantial equitable relief sought that was common to the Board and to the resident county; the complaint alleged that enforcement of the licensing law by both the Board and the county would cause irreparable injury to the contractors, and it asked that preliminary and permanent injunctions be issued against both the county and the Board enjoining and restraining them from exercising any of the powers, rights, or duties respecting enforcement of the licensing law. Ga. State Licensing Bd. for Residential & Gen. Contrs. v. Allen, 286 Ga. 811, 692 S.E.2d 343 (2010).

3. Residence of One Defendant Determined Venue.

In suit against coexecutors, the residence of one defendant determined venue. Shropshire v. Rainey, 150 Ga. 566, 104 S.E. 414 (1920).

In suit against joint trespassers, the residence of one defendant determined venue. Townsend v. Brinson, 117 Ga. 375, 43 S.E. 748 (1903).

In suit for accounting by guardian, the residence of one defendant determined venue. Bass v. Wolff & Hopp, 88 Ga. 427, 14 S.E. 589 (1892).

In suit by partner on partnership transaction, the residence of one partner determined venue. Jackson v. Southern Flour & Grain Co., 146 Ga. 453, 91 S.E. 481 (1917).

Bill of interpleader filed where claimants reside. Millsap v. Waco Mercantile Co., 145 Ga. 95, 88 S.E. 673 (1916).

Action for marshalling of assets by executor of insolvent estate. Ragan v. Smith, 142 Ga. 398, 83 S.E. 119 (1914).

In action against superintendent of banks (now commissioner of banking and finance). Sayer v. Bennett, 159 Ga. 369, 125 S.E. 855 (1924).

Specific performance, cancellation, and injunction in county where some of defendants reside was proper. Wynne v. Lumpkin, 35 Ga. 208 (1886); Lester v. Matthews, 58 Ga. 403 (1877); Taylor v. Colley, 138 Ga. 41, 74 S.E. 694 (1912); Chosewood v. Jones, 146 Ga. 804, 92 S.E. 646 (1917); Bird v. Trapnell, 147 Ga. 50, 92 S.E. 872 (1917).

Trustees and shareholders of a bankrupt industrial corporation may be sued in the county of the residence of any one of the defendants. Carlisle v. Ottley, 143 Ga. 797, 85 S.E. 1010, 1917C L.R.A. 393, 1917A Ann. Cas. 573 (1915).

An action for cancellation of a deed, where grantee resides outside this state and the grantor resides within this state, should be brought in the county of the residence of the latter. Thomas v. Calhoun Nat'l Bank, 157 Ga. 475, 121 S.E. 808 (1924).

4. Lack of Jurisdiction

Grounds for dismissal for lack of jurisdiction. — A motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction is properly granted by the trial court where an equitable action is brought: (1) in which in personam relief is prayed against a nonresident of Georgia; and (2) in which no substantial relief is prayed against a resident of the county where the action is brought. Roberts v. Markin, 225 Ga. 352, 168 S.E.2d 576 (1969).

Joinder of a resident defendant did not give jurisdiction. — A nonresident cannot be made to litigate in one county issues between the nonresident and a plaintiff solely on account of joinder of a resident defendant against whom there is a prayer for equitable relief. Beacham v. Cullens, 194 Ga. 739, 22 S.E.2d 508 (1942).

Suit subject to dismissal for want of jurisdiction. — Where the only substantial relief sought is against nonresident defendants, and the sole resident defendant individually has no connection with the alleged cause of action, and no act or claim by the defendant is involved except as agent of the other defendants, the suit is subject to dismissal for want of jurisdiction. Carter v. Grogan, 230 Ga. 249, 196 S.E.2d 434 (1973).

Jury's finding not authorized by evidence. — The evidence did not authorize a finding by a jury that defendant resided in the county in which suit for injunction and damages was brought when such suit was brought. Grimaud v. Knox-Georgia Homes, Inc., 210 Ga. 514, 81 S.E.2d 476 (1954).

Nonresident defendant lacked substantial interest. — An equitable petition against two defendants residing in different counties in this state, brought in the county of the residence of one of them, where it is apparent that the only substantial relief sought is against the nonresident defendant, is subject to dismissal for want of jurisdiction. Beacham v. Cullens, 194 Ga. 739, 22 S.E.2d 508 (1942).

Where the interests of the plaintiff and the resident defendant are identical and the allegations of the petition fail to show any justiciable controversy between the plaintiff and the resident defendant in which the nonresident defendant has any substantial interest, on motion of the nonresident defendant, setting out that it is a resident of a named county in this state and subject to suit only in the superior court of that county, the petition will be dismissed as to such nonresident defendant for want of jurisdiction. Maryland Cas. Co. v. City of Adel, 87 Ga. App. 138, 73 S.E.2d 237 (1952).

Where defendants filed a complaint in equity to set aside a default judgment rendered against them in a previous civil action, the trial court lacked personal jurisdiction and venue was improper, since a complaint in equity to set aside a judgment must be brought in the county in which a defendant resides against whom substantial relief is prayed. Franks v. Horton, 244 Ga. 611, 261 S.E.2d 570 (1979).

Dismissal proper where suit brought in county other than defendant's residence. — While a written motion to dismiss an equitable petition will not be granted unless every material fact on which the motion is founded is apparent in the petition, yet there is no deviation from this rule in dismissing a petition on written motion specifically raising the question of lack of jurisdiction where it appears that the only defendant against whom substantial relief is prayed is a resident of a county other than that in which the petition is brought. Payne v. Hightower, 198 Ga. 421, 31 S.E.2d 816 (1944).

Where the only defendant was a resident of one county, when the plaintiff instituted a suit against the defendant for equitable relief in the superior court of another county, and the petition prayed for relief as to matters not included in the defendant's pending application to probate a will in solemn form, the court did not err in sustaining the defendant's plea to the jurisdiction of the court and in dismissing the plaintiff's suit. Spiller v. Chapman, 216 Ga. 456, 117 S.E.2d 536 (1960).

Cross actions. — When to a suit at law, by the transferee against the maker of a promissory note, an answer in the nature of a cross action was filed praying equitable relief against the original payee, who resided in a county other than the one wherein the suit was pending, it was error to sustain a motion making such transferor a party, over the transferor's objection that the court had no jurisdiction to do so, or to grant the relief sought. Huckabee Auto Co. v. Norris, 190 Ga. 515, 9 S.E.2d 840 (1940).

Where, to an action at law brought by a resident of Polk County against a defendant residing in Fulton County, an answer in the nature of a cross action was filed, in which substantial equitable relief was prayed against the plaintiff and a third party who was also a resident of Polk County, it was erroneous to make the latter a party over the latter's objection, and to refuse the third party's motion to dismiss the cross action as to the third party, the ground of such objection and motion being that the court had no jurisdiction to grant as to the third party the relief sought. Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943).

An equitable petition against two defendants residing in this state, brought in the county where one of them resides, from which together with the prayers it is apparent that the only substantial relief sought is against the nonresident defendant, and that the sole resident defendant individually has no connection with the alleged cause of action, and no act or claim by the resident defendant is involved except as agent of the other defendant, is subject to dismissal for want of jurisdiction. Payne v. Hightower, 198 Ga. 421, 31 S.E.2d 816 (1944).

Contracting company's residence did not give jurisdiction. — Fact that plaintiff, as surety, guaranteed performance of contract by contracting company, as principal, would not give the superior court of the county of residence of the contracting company jurisdiction on petition of the surety to hear and determine controversy between the contracting company and the city for which the work was to be performed as to whether or not there had been a breach of contract on the part of the contracting company, nor would fact that plaintiff and contracting company had entered into a separate contract by application for the performance bond give plaintiff any right to compel the city to join in a suit with reference to this separate contract, since the city was not a party to the application and had no interest therein. Maryland Cas. Co. v. City of Adel, 87 Ga. App. 138, 73 S.E.2d 237 (1952).

The Superior Court of Murray County did not have jurisdiction to entertain a case for a declaratory judgment where all of the party defendants except one defendant, against whom no substantial equitable relief was prayed, were nonresidents of Murray County; the equitable feature of the case is removed, leaving the action solely one at law under Ga. L. 1945, p. 137, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-4-2). The venue of such an action is in the county where the de-defendant resides, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI). The nonresident defendants not being of the class of persons who may be sued in counties other than the counties of their residence as permitted in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Paras. IV and V (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Paras. IV and V), the court was without jurisdiction to enter a declaratory judgment as to their rights. Harper v. Gunby, 215 Ga. 466, 111 S.E.2d 85 (1959).

Error in finding venue under § 33-4-1. — Where an owner's suit did not arise out of a title insurance company's business as an insurer, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III, the trial court erred in finding venue under O.C.G.A. § 33-4-1(2); in addition, the grant of an interlocutory injunction was error because there was no showing that the title company had any opportunity to challenge the applicability of an amendment to add a quiet title action under O.C.G.A. § 23-3-62 to the complaint. First Am. Title Ins. Co. v. Broadstreet, 260 Ga. App. 705, 580 S.E.2d 676 (2003).

Dismissal proper in dispute over insurance policy. — Columbia County Superior Court did not have personal jurisdiction over an insurance policy beneficiary who resided in another county sufficient to impose equitable relief against the beneficiary, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III. Joinder of the beneficiary was not proper even if jurisdiction was proper as to the insurer under O.C.G.A. § 33-4-1(4) because the complaint did not seek equitable relief common to both the non-resident beneficiary and the insurer. Skaliy v. Metts, 287 Ga. 777, 700 S.E.2d 357 (2010).

5. Waiver of Jurisdiction

This paragraph guarantees a personal privilege, which may be waived, so far as the rights of the parties themselves are concerned, but not so as to prejudice third persons. Scardina v. Scardina, 229 Ga. 341, 191 S.E.2d 52 (1972) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

“Waiver” defined. — The only way in which former Code 1933, § 3-202 (see now

O.C.G.A. § 9-10-30) can be reconciled with this paragraph is on the idea of waiver, in that a plaintiff by voluntarily instituting a suit gave to the court of the county where it was so instituted jurisdiction of the plaintiff's person, sufficient to answer all the ends of justice respecting the suit originally instituted. Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Significance of waiver. — Only through waiver or voluntary submission to the courts of another county may a trial take place in a county other than that of the defendant's residence. Hanson v. Williams, 170 Ga. 779, 154 S.E. 240 (1930); Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943).

Connection and reconciling paragraph with other sections. — Since former Code 1933, § 3-202 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-10-30) can be reconciled with this paragraph as to venue of equity cases only on the ground of waiver, then former Code 1933, § 24-112 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-1-2), and particularly the latter portion thereof, was directly on point in a case where third parties were involved. Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III).

Plaintiffs estopped by their action to deny jurisdiction of court. — Where the plaintiffs themselves brought the petition, and invoked the aid of a court of equity to enjoin certain acts by the bank, and filed the suit in the county of residence of the bank against which substantial relief was prayed, and the petition alleged that title to the land in controversy was in the plaintiffs, and the court was asked to decree that the title was legally in them, and was not subject to the payment of the indebtedness of another to the bank, the plaintiffs, having invoked the jurisdiction in equity of the court in such county, were estopped from denying that the court had jurisdiction to entertain the case; and if the title to the land in another county is involved in the litigation, it is only incidentally so, and on account of the fact that the plaintiffs themselves brought the question into the case. Manry v. Farmers' Bank, 177 Ga.

Actions Ancillary to Action at Law

Prayers for ancillary equitable relief against a resident defendant do not operate to confer jurisdiction over nonresidents. Summit Ins. Co. v. Mulherin, 233 Ga. 606, 212 S.E.2d 788 (1975).

Temporary injunctive relief against resident defendant in effort to preserve status quo pending resolution of claim against nonresident defendants was merely ancillary to claim against nonresident defendants and did not render the action equitable in nature. Summit Ins. Co. v. Mulherin, 233 Ga. 606, 212 S.E.2d 788 (1975).

An action not otherwise equitable is not made so by a plea setting up purely defensive matter of an equitable nature, in the absence of prayers for some affirmative equitable remedy. This is true even though such answer might call for the application of equitable principles. Summit Ins. Co. v. Mulherin, 233 Ga. 606, 212 S.E.2d 788 (1975).

General Consideration

Paragraph permits joinder of non-resident tortfeasor. — This paragraph provides the right to bring an action in the county of the residence of a resident of Georgia and join as a defendant a tort-feasor who is a nonresident of the state if the nonresident can be lawfully served with process. Record Truck Line v. Harrison, 109 Ga. App. 653, 137 S.E.2d 65, aff'd, 220 Ga. 289, 138 S.E.2d 578 (1964) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

This provision only comes into play when two resident defendants are involved. Bergen v. Martindale-Hubbell, Inc., 245 Ga. 742, 267 S.E.2d 10 (1980) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

The constitutional provision regarding joint tort-feasors applies only to resident joint tort-feasors. Dodd v. Simpson, 191 Ga. App. 369, 381 S.E.2d 585 (1989).

General Assembly's authority to fix residence of corporation. — The General Assembly may fix the residence of a corporation under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI) and there appears to be no reason it cannot also fix the residence of a corporation under this paragraph. White v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 233 Ga. 919, 213 S.E.2d 879 (1975)

(see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Jurisdiction and venue distinguished. — Jurisdiction means the power of a court to render a binding judgment in the case, and venue means the place of trial. Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

In a borrower's suit asserting various claims against a lender, which was a citizen of Delaware and California, and an appraiser in connection with a loan that encumbered the borrower's property with a debt that exceeded the property's value, jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332 did not exist where the borrower and the appraiser were both citizens of Georgia; the fact that the borrower may have filed the suit in an inappropriate venue under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV did not render the appraiser's joinder fraudulent under the doctrine of fraudulent pleading because such a pleading of jurisdictional facts did not destroy diversity, as the appraiser was still a resident of Georgia. Austin v. Ameriquet Mortg. Co., 510 F. Supp. 2d 1218 (N.D. Ga. Feb. 27, 2007).

The constitutional venue provisions may not be altered or changed by the legislature or the courts and the adoption of procedural devices for adjudicating claims of various parties in the same action does not effect a change in the venue requirements of the Constitution. Pemberton v. Purifoy, 128 Ga. App. 892, 198 S.E.2d 356 (1973); Haley v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 141 Ga. App. 13, 232 S.E.2d 362 (1977).

"Trespass" broadly employed. —

The word "trespass" is employed in a broad sense, and comprehends any misfeasance, transgression, or offense which damages another person's health, reputation, or property. Cox v. Strickland, 120 Ga. 104, 47 S.E. 912, 1 Ann. Cas. 870 (1904); Williams v. Inman, 1 Ga. App. 321, 57 S.E. 1009 (1907).

Trespass includes libels. Howe v. Bradstreet Co., 135 Ga. 564, 69 S.E. 1082 (1911).

Threatened trespass enjoined pursuant to this paragraph. Baker v. Davis, 127 Ga. 649, 57 S.E. 62 (1907) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Where answer of resident defendant has been stricken and case is in default as to the resident defendant, a verdict against both the resident and non-resident defendant is authorized. Smith v. Ross, 168 Ga. App. 817, 310 S.E.2d 567 (1983).

Waiver of jurisdiction. — Once a timely objection to jurisdiction and venue has been raised by a nonresident defendant in an action where Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV is the sole basis for the court's jurisdiction over the nonresident, affirmative conduct inconsistent with the objection is necessary to support a finding that it has been waived. Owens v. Pollock, 214 Ga. App. 107, 447 S.E.2d 325 (1994).

Jurisdiction

1. Lack of Jurisdiction

Instance of lack of jurisdiction. — Fact that plaintiff, as surety, guaranteed performance of a contract by a contracting company, as principal, would not give superior court of county of residence of contracting company jurisdiction on petition of the surety to hear and determine the controversy between contracting company and city for which the work was to be performed as to whether or not there had been a breach of contract on the part of the contracting company, nor would the fact that plaintiff and contracting company had entered into separate contract by application for performance bond give plaintiff any right to compel the city to join in a suit with reference to this separate contract, since the city was not a party to the application and had no interest therein. Maryland Cas. Co. v. City of Adel, 87 Ga. App. 138, 73 S.E.2d 237 (1952).

Reason jurisdiction of action by common carrier and insurance company lacking. — Common carrier that negligently injured a person, and the insurance company that issued the carrier an indemnity policy under provisions of former Code 1933, § 68-612, were neither joint tort-feasors nor joint contractors, so as to bring them within the provisions of this paragraph, since the liability of the carrier to the injured person arose from a tort in the commission of which the insurance company was not concerned, while the insurance company's obligation to pay damages caused by the carrier's negligence was a contractual duty not assumed by the carrier. Bolin v. Pennsylvania Threshermen & Farmers Mut. Cas. Ins. Co., 92 Ga. App. 726, 89 S.E.2d 831 (1955) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

2. Loss of Jurisdiction

Must be able to prove claim against resident defendant. — In order to maintain suit against nonresident joint tort-feasor, it is necessary that a cause of action be alleged and proven against resident defendant. Chitty v. Jones, 210 Ga. 439, 80 S.E.2d 694 (1954); Stroud v. Doolittle, 213 Ga. 32, 96 S.E.2d 876 (1957), commented on in 20 Ga. B.J. 260 (1957).

Where suit is brought against two defendants, one of whom resides in the county, the court has no jurisdiction of nonresident defendant unless resident co-defendant is liable in the action. Timberlake Grocery Co. v. Cartwright, 146 Ga. App. 746, 247 S.E.2d 567 (1978).

The test as to whether a verdict is authorized against a nonresident joint obligor is whether a verdict is authorized against the resident joint obligor. Woods v. Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp., 110 Ga. App. 394, 138 S.E.2d 593 (1964), aff'd sub nom. Scarboro v. Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp., 364 F.2d 10 (5th Cir. 1966).

Where suit is brought against two alleged joint tort-feasors in county where one of them resides, the other being a nonresident, and where on trial of case resident defendant is found by jury not liable, the court is without jurisdiction to render a judgment against the nonresident defendant, and if such judgment is rendered it may be arrested or set aside upon motion. Southern Nitrogen Co. v. Manuel, 110 Ga. App. 597, 139 S.E.2d 453 (1964), overruled on other grounds, Crawford v. Randle, 191 Ga. App. 112, 381 S.E.2d 77 (1989).

Lack of jurisdiction defense when unable to prove claim against resident defendant. — Only time defense of lack of jurisdiction over person of nonresident defendants because of their nonres-idency would be valid in an action against joint tortfeasors is in event of judgment in favor of resident joint defendant, whereby the court would lose jurisdiction as to the nonresident joint defendants unless they expressly or impliedly waive this defense. Lansky v. Goldstein, 136 Ga. App. 607, 222 S.E.2d 62 (1975).

Proof needs to show jurisdiction in action against residents and nonresidents. — While in most cases a bare allegation of the defendant's residence within the county will suffice to meet the requirements of alleging the facts upon which venue depends, in an action against residents and nonresidents where venue as to the nonresidents depends upon the relief sought against the residents, a plea to the jurisdiction will be sustained where the petition does not set forth a cause of action against the resident defendant. Martin v. Approved Bancredit Corp., 224 Ga. 550, 163 S.E.2d 885 (1968), overruled on other grounds, Cochran v. McCollum, 233 Ga. 104, 210 S.E.2d 13 (1974).

Allegation sufficient by nonresidents to raise question of jurisdiction. — Where two alleged tort-feasors are sued jointly and severally, the demurrer (now failure to state a claim) of the nonresident defendant that the petition sets out no cause of action against the nonresident defendant is sufficient to raise the question of whether the nonresident should be dismissed from the suit on a jurisdictional ground that no cause of action is set out against the resident defendant and that the nonresident defendant is accordingly entitled to be sued in the county of the nonresident defendant's own residence. Harrell v. Gardner, 115 Ga. App. 171, 154 S.E.2d 265 (1967).

Joint tort-feasors may be sued residing in different counties or may be sued together in the county of either. — But in order to maintain such a suit where one of the defendants is a nonresident, it is essential that a cause of action be alleged and proven against the resident defendant. Richards & Assocs. v. Studstill, 212 Ga. 375, 93 S.E.2d 3 (1956), later appeal, 96 Ga. App. 270, 99 S.E.2d 558 (1957).

Facts rendering motion to arrest judgment proper. — Where the only two defendants against whom a verdict was rendered resided out of the county, and the finding of the jury was in favor of the one defendant on account of whose residence in the county of the suit the court acquired jurisdiction, it was proper to arrest the judgment, on motion of the defendants against whom the verdict was returned. Pickron v. Garrett, 73 Ga. App. 61, 35 S.E.2d 540 (1945).

Motion in arrest of judgment proper remedy where jurisdiction lost. — Where action is brought in county of residence of one defendant, and on trial of case no judgment is taken against the resident defendant, the court loses jurisdiction as to any nonresident defendant unless jurisdiction thereof is waived, either expressly or impliedly by the conduct of the defendant. A motion in arrest of judgment has been held to be a proper remedy where jurisdiction has been lost, and not waived. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 759, 59 S.E.2d 761 (1950).

Jurisdiction against nonresident defendant lost. — Where joint tort-feasors residing in different counties are sued in county of one, and on trial of case the resident defendant is discharged and a verdict returned solely against the nonresident defendant, the court is without jurisdiction to enter a judgment against the nonresident defendant. O'Neill v. Western Mtg. Corp., 153 Ga. App. 151, 264 S.E.2d 691 (1980).

An action may be maintained against joint tortfeasors who reside in different counties in the county of residence of either, but if there is no liability against the resident defendant, the latter necessarily is not a joint tortfeasor or a joint obligor with the nonresident defendant, and the court, with respect to the person of the nonresident defendant, has no jurisdiction to render a verdict and judgment against the nonresident. Register v. Sanders, 103 Ga. App. 368, 119 S.E.2d 294 (1961).

Must be able to obtain jurisdiction. — Where there is an inability to obtain jurisdiction over the only one of two or more defendants alleged to be resident of forum county because of nonresidency, there is no jurisdiction. Register v. Sanders, 103 Ga. App. 368, 119 S.E.2d 294 (1961).

Suits against joint tortfeasor, joint obligors, or joint trespassers, may be brought in county of residence of any, but if no judgment is taken against a resident defendant, the court loses venue as to the nonresident defendant unless the issue of venue is waived. Timberlake Grocery Co. v. Cartwright, 146 Ga. App. 746, 247 S.E.2d 567 (1978).

Loss of jurisdiction of nonresident defendants occasioned by finding of nonliability of resident defendants.

— Where a single suit is brought against several joint tort-feasors in a county where one of them is a resident, and where the others reside outside the county, and, where on the trial of the case, the resident defendant is found not liable by the jury, and the nonresident defendants are found liable, the court is without jurisdiction to enter judgment against the nonresident defendants. Southeastern Truck Lines v. Rann, 214 Ga. 813, 108 S.E.2d 561 (1959).

Petition dismissible for want of jurisdiction where the interests of the plaintiff and the resident defendant are identical and the allegations of the petition fail to show any justiciable controversy between the plaintiff and the resident defendant in which the nonresident defendant has any substantial interest, on motion of the nonresident defendant, setting out that it is a resident of a named county in this state and subject to suit only in the superior court of that county, the petition will be dismissed as to such nonresident defendant for want of jurisdiction. Maryland Cas. Co. v. City of Adel, 87 Ga. App. 138, 73 S.E.2d 237 (1952).

Court without jurisdiction to enter declaratory judgment. — Superior Court of Murray County did not have jurisdiction to entertain a case for declaratory judgment where all parties defendant except one, against whom no substantial equitable relief was prayed, were nonresidents of Murray County; the equitable feature of the case is removed, leaving the action solely one at law under Ga. L. 1945, p. 137, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-4-2). The venue of such an action is in the county where the defendant resides, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI). The nonresident defendants not being of the class of persons who may be sued in counties other than the counties of their residence as permitted in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Paras. IV and V (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Paras. IV and V), the court was without jurisdiction to enter a declaratory judgment as to their rights. Harper v. Gunby, 215 Ga. 466, 111 S.E.2d 85 (1959).

3. Jurisdiction by Estoppel or Default

Default judgment insufficient basis for jurisdiction. — Default with judgment based thereon, which is unsupported by a verdict, and which carries no finding of damages as to a resident defendant, is insufficient to furnish a venue base on which the verdict against the nonresident can rest. Woods v. Long Mfg., N.C., Inc., 150 Ga. App. 499, 258 S.E.2d 592 (1979), cert. denied, 245 Ga. 162, 264 S.E.2d 230 (1980).

Verdict against both resident and nonresident defendant is authorized where resident defendant is in default. Woods v. Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp., 110 Ga. App. 394, 138 S.E.2d 593 (1964), aff'd sub nom. Scarboro v. Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp., 364 F.2d 10 (5th Cir. 1966).

Default of nonresident defendant irrelevant. — The default of the nonresident defendants, which otherwise would have constituted a waiver of the defenses specified in paragraph (b)(1) of Ga. L. 1966, p. 609, § 12 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-11-12) was irrelevant to the issue of jurisdiction of nonresident defendants, and would not estop them from asserting the fact of their nonresidency in the event of a judgment in favor of the resident defendant. Lansky v. Goldstein, 136 Ga. App. 607, 222 S.E.2d 62 (1975).

A nonresident defendant, even if in default, will not be subject to a final judgment until the resident defendant is found liable. Woods v. Long Mfg., N.C., Inc., 150 Ga. App. 499, 258 S.E.2d 592 (1979), cert. denied, 245 Ga. 162, 264 S.E.2d 230 (1980).

Jurisdiction issue waived by non-resident defendant invoking ruling of court. — Want of jurisdiction of the person is waived and such jurisdiction is admitted where nonresident defendant, after discharge of resident defendant, invokes ruling of the court on the merits of case. A ruling by the trial court on a motion for a new trial made by such nonresident defendant is such a ruling on the merits. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 759, 59 S.E.2d 761 (1950).

Effect of voluntary submission of person to court's jurisdiction. — An equitable petition instituted against a nonresident of a county and against the sheriff of the county in which suit is brought, seeking to set aside a judgment obtained by such nonresident against petitioner in the same superior court, on ground that the judgment is void, and seeking to cancel the execution issuing on such judgment and to restrain the sheriff from proceeding with levy thereof and the sale of petitioner's property thereunder, is properly brought in the superior court of the county of residence of the sheriff, in which was rendered the judgment sought to be set aside, the nonresident having submitted itself to jurisdiction of the court by institution of suit therein against petitioner, and the petitioner not seeking any relief as to matters outside of such litigation. Napier v. Bank of La Fayette, 183 Ga. 865, 189 S.E. 822 (1937).

Venue1. In General

O.C.G.A. § 15-21-56 does not overrule constitutional provisions. — The provisions of Ga. L. 1949, p. 1168, §§ 4-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-21-56) are not sufficient to overrule provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI), providing that civil actions shall be brought in county of the defendant's residence. However, where there are joint defendants, such an action may be brought in the county of residence of either. Banks County v. Stark, 88 Ga. App. 368, 77 S.E.2d 33 (1953).

O.C.G.A. §§ 9-11-13(g) and 9-11-14 are not in conflict with this paragraph; of course, even if they were, the venue provisions of the Constitution would be controlling and cannot be extended or limited by those sections. Lester Witte & Co. v. Cobb Bank & Trust Co., 248 Ga. 235, 282 S.E.2d 296 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Actions to which paragraph applicable. — This paragraph determines the venue of an action to restrain joint defendants from cutting timber and committing other waste, and to secure the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the timber already cut. McPhaul v. Fletcher, 111 Ga. 878, 36 S.E. 938 (1900); Burch v. King, 14 Ga. App. 153, 80 S.E. 664 (1914) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Proper service required to achieve venue. — Equity will grant relief against a judgment where the joint defendant on a note who was sued at the defendant's residence was not properly served. Austell v. McLarin, 51 Ga. 467 (1874).

This paragraph applies to cases in which one or more joint obligors are railroad companies. Waycross Air-Line R.R. v. Offerman & W.R.R., 114 Ga. 727, 40 S.E. 738 (1902) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Applies to actions for injuries against a foreign railroad company operating in this state and an engineer in its employment. Southern Ry. v. Grizzle, 124 Ga. 735, 53 S.E. 244, 110 Am. St. R. 191 (1906).

This paragraph applies to joint assaults on a passenger by a conductor and a third person. Central of Ga. Ry. v. Brown, 113 Ga. 414, 38 S.E. 989, 84 Am. St. R. 250 (1901) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Venue of separate actions not determined by this paragraph, hence guarantor by separate contract could not be joined with debtor. Sims v. Clark, 91 Ga. 302, 18 S.E. 158 (1893) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Venue between maker and party promising to sign note is not determined by this paragraph. Adams v.

Williams, 125 Ga. 430, 54 S.E. 99 (1906) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Venue for action against owner of realty and contractor placing improvements thereon is not determined by this paragraph. Mauch v. Rosser, 126 Ga. 268, 55 S.E. 32 (1906); Atkinson v. Wingate Plumbing Co., 20 Ga. App. 480, 93 S.E. 122 (1917) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

An individual defendant who lives outside the state does not “reside” in Georgia so as to be subject to the joint obligor venue provisions, and venue against the nonresident individual is proper only where authorized by the long-arm statute. Goodman v. Vilston, Inc., 197 Ga. App. 718, 399 S.E.2d 241 (1990).

Multiple claims arising from same transaction. — Where a plaintiff brings suit in the same county on two claims arising from the same transaction and the Georgia Constitution designates that county as the venue for one of those claims, the trial court has the discretion to entertain both claims. Natpar Corp. v. E.T. Kassinger, Inc., 258 Ga. 102, 365 S.E.2d 442 (1988).

Where a joint obligor claim and an equitable claim arose from the same transaction, and involved the same parties and witnesses and substantially the same proof, venue with regard to both claims was proper in the county where only one of the joint obligors lived, despite the fact that the other joint obligor was the only defendant against whom equitable relief was prayed. Natpar Corp. v. E.T. Kassinger, Inc., 258 Ga. 102, 365 S.E.2d 442 (1988).

Venue under Child Custody Intrastate Jurisdiction Act. — Boyfriend, who had been appointed temporary guardian of child, was not the child’s “legal custodian” as that term was used in the Georgia Child Custody Intrastate Jurisdiction Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-20 et seq., and, thus, the provisions of the Act, including its venue provisions, did not apply; accordingly, the trial court erred in dismissing the grandmother’s petition for custody of the child on the ground that venue was not proper in the county where the mother was incarcerated but would have been proper where the temporary guardian, the boyfriend, resided, as application of the general venue rules governing venue in civil cases, contained in the Georgia Constitution, showed that since the mother was a necessary party to the grandmother’s custody action, filing the action in the county where the mother was incarcerated was proper. Gordon v. Gordon, 269 Ga. App. 224, 603 S.E.2d 732 (2004).

Dismissal warranted. — If upon trial of a joint action plaintiff fails to prove a joint undertaking, and dismisses as to the resident defendant, the other defendant may secure a dismissal of the action although the defendant has pleaded to the merits. Maddox v. Brooks, 17 Ga. App. 644, 87 S.E. 911 (1916).

2. Joint Tortfeasors

Joint tortfeasors and joint trespassers synonymous for venue purposes. — Joint trespassers having been held to be synonymous with joint tortfeasors, venue lies under this paragraph against all joint tortfeasors in the county of residence of any of the joint tortfeasors. Lester Witte & Co. v. Cobb Bank & Trust Co., 248 Ga. 235, 282 S.E.2d 296 (1981) (decided prior to insertion in paragraph of specific reference to “joint tortfeasors”; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

It does not matter whether joint tortfeasors are cross-defendants, third-party defendants, or both. — This paragraph does not concern itself with whether joint tortfeasors are cross-defendants, third-party defendants, or a combination of the two. It merely provides that suits against joint tortfeasors residing in different counties may be brought in either county. Lester Witte & Co. v. Cobb Bank & Trust Co., 248 Ga. 235, 282 S.E.2d 296 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

A state department or agency can be considered a joint tortfeasor with other resident defendants for venue purposes. Gault v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 208 Ga. App. 134, 430 S.E.2d 63 (1993).

Department of Transportation employee as joint tortfeasor. — Venue against an employee of the Department of Transportation may be had in a county only if the employee is an alleged joint tortfeasor with a defendant resident in that county. Gault v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 208 Ga. App. 134, 430 S.E.2d 63 (1993).

Injury created joint tortfeasors. — Although liability insurance carrier was not a joint tortfeasor for venue purposes because the cause of action against it arose in contract, and the alleged negligent acts of its client and others were separate, where the injury or death was single and indivisible, the tortfeasors were joint, and venue proper as to one tortfeasor was proper as to all. Gault v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 208 Ga. App. 134, 430 S.E.2d 63 (1993).

Estate not nominal party despite its insolvency. — Defendant tortfeasor did not constitute a “nominal party” for venue purposes merely because of insolvency; although an estate named in a suit as a defendant and a joint tortfeasor with a city was insolvent, the estate was not a nominal party on this basis, and venue was proper in the county of residence of the estate’s administrator. Banks v. City of Hampton, 280 Ga. App. 432, 634 S.E.2d 192 (2006).

An individual defendant may be sued in a county other than the county of residence when sued as a joint tortfeasor with a foreign corporation operating as a motor common carrier in this state and having an agent, office, and place of doing business in the county where the suit is brought, as a foreign corporation doing business in this state may be treated for the purpose of being sued, as a resident of any county in which it has an agent, office, and place of doing business, and venue of a suit against such joint tort-feasors may be laid in the county of either of them. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953).

Suit against joint wrongdoers together and in county of either permissible. — Where the defendant carrier and the individual defendant were joint tort-feasors, venue of the suit as to both could be laid in the county of either of them pursuant to this paragraph and under such circumstances, the provision of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI) to the effect that a defendant is entitled to be sued in the county of the defendant’s residence does not apply. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Where one seeks to sell property of another at public auction under no authority for doing so other than power therefor which is contained in a forged security deed, one’s act is a positive wrong against the owner of such property, and all who participate in such an unlawful undertaking are joint wrongdoers and they may be sued together for the purpose of preventing consummation of the wrong in any county of this state where one of them resides. Budget Charge Accounts, Inc. v. George, 214 Ga. 312, 104 S.E.2d 434 (1958).

Where a third-party complaint is sued out in main case against two alleged tort-feasors in county of residence of one of them, this paragraph gives county of residence of either tort-feasor jurisdiction of the action. Shell v. Watts, 127 Ga. App. 378, 193 S.E.2d 566 (1972) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Joint tort-feasors required to show proof of status. — Joint tort-feasors residing in different counties of the state may be sued together in the county of either, but in order to maintain such a suit, it is necessary for the plaintiff to allege and prove that the defendants are in fact joint tort-feasors. Richards & Assocs. v. Studstill, 212 Ga. 375, 93 S.E.2d 3 (1956), later appeal, 96 Ga. App. 270, 99 S.E.2d 558 (1957).

Allegation and proof of action against resident defendant necessary. — While joint tort-feasors residing in different counties of this state may be sued in the county of residence of either, the cause of action must be alleged and proved against the resident defendant, and the nonresident defendant has standing to raise these questions. Ryder Auto. Leasing Co. v. Tate, 112 Ga. App. 18, 143 S.E.2d 411 (1965).

Defendants jointly liable for conversion can be sued in county of either residence. — A foreign railroad company operating in this state and an engineer in its employment may be jointly sued in the county in which the cause of action originated, even though the residence of the engineer is in another county in this state. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953).

Where the petition in a trover action alleges that named defendants have possession of described articles of personal property to which the plaintiff claims title and refuse to deliver the same to plaintiff, such averments directly and in express terms charge defendants jointly with the tortious act of conversion, and hence, all defendants may be sued together in a county where any of them resides. Screven Oil Mill v. Crosby, 94 Ga. App. 238, 94 S.E.2d 146 (1956).

Suit against nonresident corporation can be brought in county corporation doing business. — Although a motor common carrier may be a nonresident corporation, yet since it is engaged in doing business in this state, and has agents in the state for that purpose, it is, as in the case of a nonresident railroad corporation doing business in this state, so far as the right to sue is concerned, a resident of this state, and a resident of the county in which the cause of action originated, so far as the right to bring a suit against it for a cause of action originating in that county is concerned, and, being a resident of that county for the purpose of suit, a joint tort-feasor, notwithstanding that the tort-feasor may reside in another county of this state, may be sued, jointly with the motor common carrier, in said county under this provision of the state Constitution. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

It is not essential that joint tort-feasors owed same duty or should be guilty of same act of negligence, but it is sufficient if each owed a separate and distinct duty to person injured, provided only that the separate acts of negligence concurred in proximately causing the injury. Albany Coca-Cola Bottling Co. v. Shiver, 63 Ga. App. 755, 12

S.E.2d 114 (1940), later appeal, 67 Ga. App. 359, 20 S.E.2d 181 (1942); Brooks v. Douglas, 154 Ga. App. 54, 267 S.E.2d 495 (1980).

Suits against joint obligors may be tried in the county wherein either defendant resides. Midtown Properties, Inc. v. George F. Richardson, Inc., 139 Ga. App. 182, 228 S.E.2d 303 (1976).

Although a judgment was not taken against a nonresident defendant, resident defendants waived any issue regarding venue by failing to raise it even after the verdict. Parker v. Kennon, 242 Ga. App. 627, 530 S.E.2d 527 (2000).

Suit appropriate in any venue where jurisdiction can be obtained over nonresident. — Where residents and nonresidents are joint obligors or joint tort-feasors, suit against them may be brought in any county in state in which jurisdiction can be obtained over nonresident defendant. Nelson Assocs. v. Grubbs, 135 Ga. App. 947, 219 S.E.2d 607 (1975).

Residence of Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority varies. — Under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI), the General Assembly may fix the residence of Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority for venue purposes when it is sued alone, but this paragraph provides the venue when MARTA is sued as a joint tort-feasor. Glover v. Donaldson, 243 Ga. 479, 254 S.E.2d 857 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Venue in county of codefendant's residence permissible. — Despite the provision of Ga. L. 1965, p. 2243, as amended by Ga. L. 1971, p. 2092, that suits may be brought against MARTA only in the Superior Court of Fulton County where MARTA is sued as a joint tort-feasor, venue may be proper in another county where a codefendant resides. Glover v. Donaldson, 243 Ga. 479, 254 S.E.2d 857 (1979).

An ex-spouse filed a tort action against the defendants in a county where two of them did not reside. As one defendant admitted that venue was proper as to that defendant, venue was proper as to the other defendants as well. Walker v. Walker, 293 Ga. App. 872, 668 S.E.2d 330 (2008).

County of original action venue of suit against nonresident third-party defendant. — Where a third-party complaint is brought against two alleged joint tort-feasors, one of whom is a resident of the county in which the original action was brought, the nonresident third-party defendant may be jointly sued in the county of the original action. Shell v. Watts, 229 Ga. 474, 192 S.E.2d 265 (1972).

Venue lost following dismissal of party. — In a personal injury action by the passenger against the estate of the driver of the vehicle in which the passenger was riding and the owner of a truck, venue over the nonresident truck owner vanished when the passenger dismissed the owner from the main action, notwithstanding a pending cross-claim for wrongful death against the owner by the estate, a joint tortfeasor which had consented to judgment against it. Airgrowers, Inc. v. Tomlinson, 230 Ga. App. 415, 496 S.E.2d 528 (1998).

Trial court, in a tort case, lacked venue when it granted summary judgment in favor of the security interest holder on the same day that it dismissed the insurer from the action with prejudice; once the resident insurer was dismissed from the action, venue under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV could not be maintained against the nonresident bank. Colony Bank Worth v. Caterpillar Fin. Servs. Corp., 281 Ga. App. 397, 636 S.E.2d 119 (2006).

Teenager's motion to remand was properly denied as: (1) a police officer was the only defendant who resided in Toombs County; (2) venue in Toombs County "vanished" when the officer was granted summary judgment, so the teenager could not rely on the joint tortfeasor venue provision of the Georgia Constitution; (3) the newspaper defendants did not have an office in Toombs County so as to preclude venue there pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 14-2-510(b)(3); (4) although the newspaper defendants transacted business in Toombs County, they did not maintain an office there; and (5) venue was not properly based on O.C.G.A. § 14-11-1108(b), even though some defendants were limited liability companies. Torrance v. Morris Publ'g Group, LLC, 281 Ga. App. 563, 636 S.E.2d 740 (2006), cert. denied, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 160 (Ga. 2007).

Claims involving third parties. — If a claim asserted against codefendants or third parties is essentially independent rather than one ancillary to main action, it must satisfy within itself constitutional venue requirements. Register v. Stone's Indep. Oil Distribs., 122 Ga. App. 335, 177 S.E.2d 92 (1970), rev'd on other grounds, 227 Ga. 123, 179 S.E.2d 68 (1971), commented on in 23 Mercer L. Rev. 667 (1972).

Suit by defendant seeking contribution from third-party plaintiff must be brought in third-party defendant's residence. — Even though this paragraph allows actions against joint trespassers to be brought in county of residence of either, a defendant seeking contribution as a third-party plaintiff cannot bring the action in a county other than that of the residence of the third-party defendant. Register v. Stone's Indep. Oil Distribs., Inc., 227 Ga. 123, 179 S.E.2d 68 (1971), commented on in 23 Mercer L. Rev. 667 (1972). (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Directed verdict for resident tort-feasor. — Where a party is sued outside the party's county of residence as an alleged joint tort-feasor, a directed verdict in favor of the resident alleged joint tort-feasor makes the venue improper and the party must be sued again in the party's county of residence. Smith v. United Ins. Co. of Am., 169 Ga. App. 751, 315 S.E.2d 265 (1984).

Action against company in county where agent resides. — Where evidence presented at trial supported the conclusion that appellant, through agents residing in various counties of the state, was the nexus of a conspiracy involving all the individual defendants and calculated to damage appellee's business, the trial court did not err in refusing to dismiss the suit for improper venue since civil conspirators are liable as joint tort-feasors and suits against joint tort-feasors residing in different counties may be tried in any of those counties. American Family Life As- urance Co. v. Queen, 171 Ga. App. 870, 321 S.E.2d 750 (1984).

Consent judgment. — Where a single suit is brought against several joint tortfeasors in a county where one of them is a resident, and the others reside outside the county, a consent judgment and an agreement not to enforce it constitute a finding that the resident is liable and do not deprive the trial court of jurisdiction over the nonresident defendants in the county where suit was brought. Motor Convoy, Inc. v. Brannen, 194 Ga. App. 795, 391 S.E.2d 671, aff'd, 260 Ga. 340, 393 S.E.2d 262 (1990).

Waiver of venue. — Where a nonresident defendant waived its existing venue defense to facilitate entry of judgment, it could not withdraw that waiver because its expectations were subsequently disappointed. Robinson v. Star Gas of Hawkinsville, Inc., 243 Ga. App. 112, 533 S.E.2d 97 (2000).

O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31(c) was not a proper exercise of the legislature's authority to enact laws which allowed the superior and state courts to change venue; furthermore, because O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31.1(a) vested power to change venue in the court, and not in a defendant, as did O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31(c), O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31.1(a) was proper under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII, and did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV. EHCA Cartersville, LLC v. Turner, 280 Ga. 333, 626 S.E.2d 482 (2006).

Constitutional joint tortfeasor venue provision did not apply. — In a mortgage broker's breach of contract action against a limited liability company, the trial court erred in denying a motion to transfer to a proper venue filed by the mortgage broker president, who was added as a defendant, because the constitutional joint tortfeasor venue provision, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV, did not apply to subject the president to trial with the broker on the LLC's counterclaim in Coweta County since the broker did not reside in Coweta County; as an individual resident of DeKalb County, the president was entitled under the constitutional venue provisions to be sued in DeKalb County, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI. M&M Mortg. Co. v. Grantville Mill, LLC, 302 Ga. App. 46, 690 S.E.2d 630 (2010).

3. Partnerships and Limited Partnerships

Constitutional and statutory provisions as to venue of suits against partners apply to a limited partnership.

Farmers Hdwe. of Athens, Inc. v. L.A. Properties, Ltd., 136 Ga. App. 180, 220 S.E.2d 465 (1975).

Venue of suits between partners. See Sloan v. Cooper, 54 Ga. 486 (1875).

One partner must reside in county regardless of where doing business.

— A partnership may be sued in any county in which one partner resides but it cannot be sued in a county where none of the partners reside even if the partnership may be doing business in the latter county. King Bros. & Co. v. Passmore, 18 Ga. App. 514, 89 S.E. 1103 (1916); Farmers Hdwe. of Athens, Inc. v. L.A. Properties, Ltd., 136 Ga. App. 180, 220 S.E.2d 465 (1975).

Citizenship is not controlling factor. — A partnership may be sued in any county in which one of the partners has such a residence as will confer upon courts of that county jurisdiction over the partner's person, regardless of the place of the partner's citizenship. Nelson Assocs. v. Grubbs, 135 Ga. App. 947, 219 S.E.2d 607 (1975).

There is no basis for a distinction as to partners who may be sued in county of either. Nelson Assocs. v. Grubbs, 135 Ga. App. 947, 219 S.E.2d 607 (1975).

Suit was not proper where nonresidents' business transacted. — In the case of a suit brought against six members of a joint venture, four of whom were Georgians and two of whom were Texans, as to the resident joint defendants, suit was not proper in the county where the business of the nonresidents was transacted but had to be brought in the county where residents resided. The Texans were not "residents" for venue purposes and "nonresidents" for long-arm purposes; they were simply nonresidents. Weitzel v. Griffin & Assocs., 192 Ga. App. 89, 383 S.E.2d 653 (1989).

Venue (Cont'd)4. Corporations

Residence of nonresident corporation for suit purposes. — A nonresident corporation is for purposes of suit a resident of the county in Georgia in which it has an office, agent, and place of business and a joint action lies against it and a resident of Georgia in the county in which the corporation has an agent, office, and place of business even though the joint defendant resides in another county. Quinton v. American Thread Co., 74 Ga. App. 436, 40 S.E.2d 95 (1946); Nelson Assocs. v. Grubbs, 135 Ga. App. 947, 219 S.E.2d 607 (1975).

Place of venue for enjoining continuing nuisance. — Where corporation which owned rendering plant in first county, and its president and sole owner were residents of second county, but main foreman at rendering plant was a resident of first county and the foreman gave all orders and directions for work to be done at rendering plant during absence of president, superior court of first county had jurisdiction of action against corporation, president, and main foreman at rendering plant, as alleged joint tort-feasors, to enjoin operation of rendering plant as an alleged continuing nuisance. Bennett v. Bagwell & Stewart, Inc., 214 Ga. 115, 103 S.E.2d 561 (1958), commented on in 21 Ga. B.J. 564 (1959).

Resident defendant acting under direction of another. — Where a petition for injunction, brought in county where one defendant resides, seeks relief against joint trespasses by all defendants, the court is not without jurisdiction, even though all except the one defendant are residents of other counties of the state. This is true even though the resident defendant may have been acting only as agent of or under the command, direction, or authority of the other defendants in the commission of the trespasses. Hoch v. Candler, 190 Ga. 390, 9 S.E.2d 622 (1940); Baggett v. Linder, 208 Ga. 590, 68 S.E.2d 469 (1952).

Temporary presence of nonresident tort-feasor in state is not such residence within meaning of state Constitution as will authorize joining in suit against the nonresident in county where the nonresident is found and served, other joint tort-feasors who reside in a different county or counties of this state. Benton Rapid Express v. Johnson, 202 Ga. 597, 43 S.E.2d 667 (1947).

When corporation sued as joint tort-feasor deemed of different county. — Corporation which is sued as a joint tort-feasor and is deemed to be a resident of the same county as other joint tort-feasors which it is joined with and is also considered to be a resident of another county in which neither of the other joint tort-feasors reside is a resident of a "different" county within the meaning of this paragraph. Richards v. Johnson, 219 Ga. 771, 135 S.E.2d 881 (1964) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Venue in a borrower's action for fraud against a corporate lender was proper in Coffee County where the lender was a foreign corporation registered to do business in Georgia, and although its registered office was in Fulton County, it transacted business in Coffee County. Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Brown, 198 Ga. App. 653, 402 S.E.2d 753 (1991).

Facility operated in county. — Trial court's order that venue was proper in Twiggs County was proper in a declaratory judgment action between an owner and a corporation arising from leases between the parties for facilities because one of the facilities at issue was located in Twiggs County and the corporation's subsidiary, a co-defendant, had an office and transacted business in Twiggs County. Mariner Healthcare, Inc. v. Foster, 280 Ga. App. 406, 634 S.E.2d 162 (2006).

5. Joint Trespassers

Intent. — The constitutional venue provision as to joint trespassers was evidently intended to declare what might be venue in suits where persons were jointly liable for tort. Georgia Power Co. v. Blum, 80 Ga. App. 618, 57 S.E.2d 18 (1949).

Meaning of word "trespass." — The meaning of word "trespass" is broad enough so that an action against persons jointly maintaining a nuisance can be brought in the county of the residence of either under this paragraph. J.D. Jewell, Inc. v. Hancock, 226 Ga. 480, 175 S.E.2d

A suit against joint trespassers, residing in different counties, may be tried in either county. Minhinnett v. Jackson, 45 Ga. App. 207, 164 S.E. 96 (1932).

As where it was sufficiently alleged that defendants were joint trespassers; and the venue of the suit as to both defendants was in the county of the residence of either. Flowers, Inc. v. Chamblee, 165 Ga. 703, 141 S.E. 907 (1928).

Trespass to acquire timber. — One who makes a written instrument purporting to convey to another sawmill rights in certain timber on lands of a third person may be sued as a joint trespasser with person taking the conveyance who enters upon the land under the writing and cuts the sawmill timber thereon. Pickron v. Garrett, 73 Ga. App. 61, 35 S.E.2d 540 (1945).

Joint action against county and Department of Transportation permitted. — Where a county and Department of Transportation joined in damaging private property for use of public without first paying adequate compensation, a right of action arose in favor of the owner of the property, and the owner could have brought a joint action against the County and the Department of Transportation. State Hwy. Bd. v. Ward, 42 Ga. App. 220, 155 S.E. 384 (1930).

6. Principals and Sureties

Sureties sued in county of administrator. Bishop v. Pinson, 33 Ga. App. 269, 125 S.E. 880 (1924).

Principal sued in county of surety's residence. — Under this paragraph, principal and surety may be sued together in the county of the surety's residence. White v. Hart, 35 Ga. 269 (1866); Lumpkin v. Calloway, 101 Ga. 226, 28 S.E. 622 (1897) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

A surety who pays the note is entitled to the same rights as to venue as is the principal. Anderson v. Armistead, 18 Ga. App. 387, 89 S.E. 525 (1916).

Pursuant to this paragraph, proper venue of building contractor and surety on bond was determined. O'Connell v. Stoddard, 27 Ga. App. 452, 108 S.E. 622 (1921) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Venue in an action against the guarantor of unpaid promissory notes was not lost merely because no final judgment for money damages was entered against resident joint obligors where summary judgment was granted against all joint obligors and final judgment for money damages was entered against only the guarantor, who resided in another county, and the others could not satisfy the liability of their debt. Hodge Residential, Inc. v. Bankers First Fed. Savs. & Loan Ass'n, 199 Ga. App. 474, 405 S.E.2d 302 (1991).

7. Joint Obligors

Waiver of defense. — In an action against joint obligors residing in different counties, a nonresident's failure to object to improper venue prior to the entry of summary judgment against the nonresident constituted a waiver of the defense that the court lacked jurisdiction following the entry of summary judgment for the resident joint obligor. Taylor v. Career Concepts, Inc., 184 Ga. App. 551, 362 S.E.2d 128 (1987).

Jurisdiction and venue distinguished. — Jurisdiction means the power of a court to render a binding judgment in the case, and venue means the place of trial. Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

The constitutional venue provisions may not be altered or changed by the legislature or the courts and the adoption of procedural devices for adjudicating claims of various parties in the same action, does not effect a change in the venue requirements of the Constitution. Pemberton v. Purifoy, 128 Ga. App. 892, 198 S.E.2d 356 (1973); Haley v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 141 Ga. App. 13, 232 S.E.2d 362 (1977).

Venue needs clear proof beyond reasonable doubt. — Jury instructions set forth in O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(c) violated the habeas petitioner's due process rights when Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. V made venue an essential element of malice murder, and the instruction's mandate that jurors had to consider the cause of death to have occurred where the body was found improperly shifted the burden of proving otherwise onto the defendant. Owens v. McLaughlin, 733 F.3d 320 (11th Cir. 2013).

Where drawer of check and endorsers thereon are residents of different counties, joint suit against drawer and endorsers must be brought in county of drawer's residence, in the absence of a waiver by the drawer of jurisdiction over the drawer's person. Pioneer Prods., Inc. v. Sinclair, 92 Ga. App. 95, 88 S.E.2d 43 (1955).

Suit instituted against drawer of check in county other than place of business or incorporation lacked requisite jurisdiction. — Where check was drawn by defendant corporation incorporated in one county and having and maintaining an office and place of business in another county, payable to the order of the endorsers, a partnership composed of partners resident in a third county, and plaintiff instituted suit upon the check against the drawer and the endorser in a city court in the third county, that court was without jurisdiction of the defendant drawer. Pioneer Prods., Inc. v. Sinclair, 92 Ga. App. 95, 88 S.E.2d 43 (1955).

Resident defendant must have substantial equitable interest. — The Superior Court of Murray County did not have jurisdiction to entertain a case for a declaratory judgment where all of the parties defendant except one defendant, against whom no substantial equitable relief was prayed, were nonresidents of Murray County, the equitable feature of the case is removed, leaving the action solely one at law under Ga. L. 1945, p. 137, § 13 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 4, T. 9). The venue of such an action is in the county where the defendant resides, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI). The nonresident defendants not being of the class of persons who may be sued in counties other than the counties of their residence as permitted by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV), and this paragraph, the court was without jurisdiction to enter a declaratory judgment as to their rights. Harper v. Gunby, 215 Ga. 466, 111 S.E.2d 85 (1959) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. V).

All other civil cases, except juvenile court cases as may otherwise be provided by the Juvenile Court Code of Georgia, shall be tried in the county where the defendant resides; venue as to corporations, foreign and domestic, shall be as provided by law; and all criminal cases shall be tried in the county where the crime was committed, except cases in the superior courts where the judge is satisfied that an impartial jury cannot be obtained in such county.

This paragraph is a venue provision which defines location of suits in state court. Scott v. Crescent Tool Co., 296 F. Supp. 147 (N.D. Ga. 1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

O.C.G.A. § 16-9-121 is constitutional. — O.C.G.A. § 16-9-125 complies with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; since the crime of identity fraud, as defined by O.C.G.A. §§ 16-9-121 and 16-9-125, when read in para materia, takes place in the county where the victim and his or her personal information are located, there is no constitutional bar to trying the defendant in that county. State v. Mayze, 280 Ga. 5, 622 S.E.2d 836 (2005).

O.C.G.A. § 19-9-62 constitutional. — O.C.G.A. § 19-9-62(a) did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; a trial court correctly ruled that it had subject matter jurisdiction over a father's post-decree child custody modification action pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-9-62 and that personal jurisdiction over the mother was unnecessary in order for it to address the requested modification. Devito v. Devito, 280 Ga. 367, 628 S.E.2d 108 (2006).

Applies to in personam cases. — This paragraph comprehends cases in which a judgment in personam may be recovered, not cases respecting title to land. Wall v. Federal Land Bank, 240 Ga. 236, 240 S.E.2d 76 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Jurisdiction and venue distinguished. — Jurisdiction means the power of a court to render a binding judgment in the case, and venue means the place of trial. Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

In a borrower's suit asserting various claims against a lender, which was a citizen of Delaware and California, and an appraiser in connection with a loan that encumbered the borrower's property with a debt that exceeded the property's value, jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332 did not exist where the borrower and the appraiser were both citizens of Georgia; the fact that the borrower may have filed the suit in an inappropriate venue under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI did not render the appraiser's joinder fraudulent under the doctrine of fraudulent pleading because such a pleading of jurisdictional facts did not destroy diversity, as the appraiser was still a resident of Georgia. Austin v. Ameriquist Mortg. Co., 510 F. Supp. 2d 1218 (N.D. Ga. Feb. 27, 2007).

Venue in criminal case is a jurisdictional fact which must be proved. Wright v. State, 219 Ga. App. 119, 464 S.E.2d 216 (1995).

General Assembly cannot declare persons domiciled and residing in one county residents of and domiciliaries of another county. — The General Assembly has no right to provide that a natural person, an individual, who lives and has a domicile and residence in one county, and the person's domicile and residence is fixed there under the law as it stands, should be deemed also to be a resident, for certain purposes, of another county. A general law may fix the general place of the person's residence; but when the person has a residence and domicile fixed and established in accordance with the law, the legislature cannot declare that the person may also be a resident of another county at the same time. Youmans v. Hickman, 179 Ga. 684, 177 S.E. 238 (1934).

The constitutional venue provisions may not be altered or changed by the legislature or the courts and the adoption of procedural devices for adjudicating claims of various parties in the same action does not effect a change in the venue requirements of the Constitution. Pemberton v. Purifoy, 128 Ga. App. 892, 198 S.E.2d 356 (1973); Haley v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 141 Ga. App. 13, 232 S.E.2d 362 (1977).

The residence of an individual cannot be shifted to another county where the individual has a business, so that the latter county may be the proper venue of a suit against the individual because of a tort committed by the individual's agents in the county where the tort was committed. Youmans v. Hickman, 179 Ga. 684, 177 S.E. 238 (1934).

Trial by court with jurisdiction is constitutional right. — It is not within the power of the General Assembly, by any exercise of its legitimate legislative functions, to impose limitations and restrictions which deprive the defendant of the defendant's constitutional right to be tried in a court that has jurisdiction of the defendant's case. Parks v. State, 212 Ga. 433, 93 S.E.2d 663 (1956).

The doctrine of forum non conveniens has never been expressly sanctioned in the Georgia courts. Smith v. Board of Regents, 165 Ga. App. 565, 302 S.E.2d 124 (1983).

Change of venue based on forum non conveniens improper. — Because the relevant constitutional and statutory authority places venue, absent certain specified circumstances, squarely and solely in the county of the defendant's residence, and because Georgia's courts have not seen fit generally to invoke the doctrine of forum non conveniens, the trial court erred in granting defendant's motion to dismiss based on forum non conveniens. Smith v. Board of Regents, 165 Ga. App. 565, 302 S.E.2d 124 (1983).

Venue rights may be waived. — The venue rights established under the Georgia Constitution may be waived. Holcomb v. Ellis, 259 Ga. 625, 385 S.E.2d 670 (1989).

O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(b) does not violate this paragraph. — Section 17-2-2(b), establishing venue when crime is committed on or immediately adjacent to boundary line between two counties, is not in violation of this paragraph, providing that criminal trials be held in county in which crime was committed. Adsitt v. State, 248 Ga. 237, 282 S.E.2d 305 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

constitutional limitation, while not a substantive right in a federal court, should be preserved whenever possible, so long as it does not jeopardize valid federal interests. United States ex rel. Std. Mach. & Fabricating Co. v. Collins & Co. Gen. Contractors, 648 F. Supp. 967 (M.D. Ga. 1986).

Determining Venue1. In General

There is no authority that special venue statutes are exclusive and the inference in the cases is that they are cumulative of other venue statutes. Jahncke Serv., Inc. v. Department of Transp., 134 Ga. App. 106, 213 S.E.2d 150 (1975), later appeal, 137 Ga. App. 179, 223 S.E.2d 228 (1976).

Venue as jurisdictional fact. — Generally, criminal trials shall be tried in the county where the crime was committed, and venue is a jurisdictional fact that must be proven as part of the general case. McGee v. State, 209 Ga. App. 261, 433 S.E.2d 374 (1993), overruled on other grounds, Jones v. State, 272 Ga. 900, 537 S.E.2d 80 (2000).

Evidence as to venue, though slight, is sufficient where there is no conflicting evidence. Wilkes v. State, 238 Ga. 57, 230 S.E.2d 867 (1976).

“Residence” of state agency. — In the absence of statutory direction, the “residence” of a state agency for purposes of venue must be determined based upon the general meaning of the term. Hoffman v. Department of Cors., 218 Ga. App. 363, 460 S.E.2d 882 (1995).

In sexual harassment action alleging that the Department of Correction was a joint tort-feasor in incidents occurring prior to enactment of the Georgia Tort Claims Act, it was reasonable to establish venue based on the “residence” of the department in Fulton County, i.e., the site of the state capitol and seat of government as well as the location of the principal offices of the department. Hoffman v. Department of Cors., 218 Ga. App. 363, 460 S.E.2d 882 (1995).

Venue for sheriff’s office in action based on O.C.G.A. § 15-16-21. — Trial court erred in finding that venue was proper in Dougherty County, Georgia and in denying the defendants’ motion to dismiss on that basis because proper venue for the case against the state defendants for noncompliance with O.C.G.A. § 15-16-21(b)(1) and (g) was in Fulton County, Georgia, as although the defendants maintained offices throughout the State of Georgia, the defendants’ principal offices were located in Fulton County. Ga. Dep’t of Human Servs. v. Dougherty County, 330 Ga. App. 581, 768 S.E.2d 771 (2015).

Resident defendant must be found liable for court to enter judgement against nonresident defendants. — Where a single suit is brought against several joint tort-feasors in a county where one of them is a resident, and where the others reside in another county of the state, and where on the trial of the case the resident defendant is found not liable by the jury, and the nonresident defendants are found liable, the judge is without jurisdiction to enter judgment against the nonresident defendants. Evans v. Garrett, 72 Ga. App. 846, 35 S.E.2d 387 (1945).

Apparent venue negated by police subterfuge. — Police officers’ activities in maneuvering appellant into a county for the sole purpose of obtaining venue constituted a subterfuge and impermissibly conferred apparent venue over the defendant in that county. McCarty v. State, 152 Ga. App. 726, 263 S.E.2d 700 (1979).

Sole proprietorship. — The county of residence of a sole proprietorship is the county of residence of its proprietor. Dowis v. Watson, 161 Ga. App. 749, 289 S.E.2d 558 (1982).

Venue will be determined as of date of filing as long as service is subsequently perfected upon defendant within a reasonable time period. Franek v. Ray, 239 Ga. 282, 236 S.E.2d 629 (1977).

For purposes of venue and other jurisdictional questions, party’s residence at time of filing suit is determining factor. Franek v. Ray, 239 Ga. 282, 236 S.E.2d 629 (1977).

Codefendant’s right to challenge venue. — A nonresident codefendant who asserts the county of residence in the nonresident’s answer may admit that the trial court is the proper venue without waiving the right to challenge venue later if the resident codefendant is dismissed from the case; there is no waiver in that instance because the earliest a defense of improper venue can be properly raised by the nonresident defendant is when the resident defendant has been adjudged not liable to the plaintiff and is dismissed from the case. Nadew v. Alemu, 217 Ga. App. 438, 457 S.E.2d 709 (1995).

An action for a writ of possession under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-231 is not a “civil action” within the meaning of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI, and thus venue is proper in a county other than that of the defendant’s residence. McClintock v. Wellington Trade, Inc., 252 Ga. 563, 315 S.E.2d 428 (1984).

Affidavit as to residence not controverted by other evidence. — Trial court did not err in finding improper venue where evidence that defendant’s spouse was a resident of Jackson County and that defendant practiced medicine in Jackson County was irrelevant, and evidence that the defendant spent several nights at the defendant’s spouse’s residence in Jackson County did not refute the defendant’s affidavit stating the defendant’s intent to remain a resident of DeKalb County. Lance v. Safwat, 170 Ga. App. 694, 318 S.E.2d 86 (1984).

2. Civil Actions

All civil cases other than those specifically excepted shall be tried in the county where the defendant resides. Shell v. Watts, 125 Ga. App. 542, 188 S.E.2d 269, rev'd on other grounds, 229 Ga. 474, 192 S.E.2d 265 (1972); Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

Where a personal judgment may be recovered. — General provision that all other civil cases shall be tried in county where defendant resides comprehends cases in which judgment in personam may be recovered; this construction is inevitable from the application of the rule of ejusdem generis, as well as from the clear import of the words themselves in the connection in which they are employed. Moss v. Strickland, 138 Ga. 539, 75 S.E. 622 (1912); Bennett v. Wheatley, 154 Ga. 591, 115 S.E. 83 (1922); Wilson v. Healey Real Estate & Imp. Co., 203 Ga. 52, 45 S.E.2d 656 (1947).

The constitutional scheme seems to be that the venue of every action not respecting title to land, wherein a personal judgment may be recovered, shall be the county of residence of the defendant in the action, or, if there be more than one, then in the county of one of them. Wilson v. Healey Real Estate & Imp. Co., 203 Ga. 52, 45 S.E.2d 656 (1947).

Paragraph's intent. — Upon the whole, what is meant by this part of the Constitution is this: that all civil cases are to be tried in the county in which the defendant resides — the county in which the defendant resides should be ascertained by the law of residence, which may happen to be in existence at the time when the case arises, or perhaps at the time when the case is to be tried. Martin & Thompson, Inc. v. Allen, 188 Ga. 42, 2 S.E.2d 668 (1939).

Venue is in county where defendant resides. — Under the Constitution and statutes of this state, venue of civil actions against natural persons, unless within specified exceptions, is the county where the defendant resides. Harmon v. Wiggins, 48 Ga. App. 469, 172 S.E. 847 (1934).

In a mortgage broker's breach of contract action against a limited liability company, the trial court erred in denying a motion to transfer to a proper venue filed by the mortgage broker president, who was added as a defendant, because the constitutional joint tortfeasor venue provision, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV, did not apply to subject the president to trial with the broker on the LLC's counterclaim in Coweta County since the broker did not reside in Coweta County; as an individual resident of DeKalb County, the president was entitled under the constitutional venue provisions to be sued in DeKalb County, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI. M&M Mortg. Co. v. Grantville Mill, LLC, 302 Ga. App. 46, 690 S.E.2d 630 (2010).

Trial court did not err in granting a landowner summary judgment in a church's quiet title action because the doctrine of collateral estoppel applied when prior action adjudicated that the director of the church did not have the authority to act on behalf of or to represent the church, but the director did so by directing the filing of the quiet title action; the previous litigation was decided by a court of competent jurisdiction because the case was filed in the superior court in the county of the director's residence, and that court could adjudicate whether the director had the authority to act on behalf of or to represent the church corporation. Body of Christ Overcoming Church of God, Inc. v. Brinson, 287 Ga. 485, 696 S.E.2d 667 (2010).

Trial court erred in finding that venue was proper in Effingham County, Georgia because the defendant, who maintained residences in both Effingham County and Chatham County, Georgia, was domiciled in Chatham County. Oglesby v. Deal, 311 Ga. App. 622, 716 S.E.2d 749 (2011).

Trial court did not err when the court denied the father's motion to move a child custody action from Gwinnett County to DeKalb County because the father had not proved domicile in DeKalb County; while the father testified that the father moved to DeKalb County, the father's driver's license showed a Gwinnett County address eight months later and the father had not notified the father's homeowner's insurance company or the Internal Revenue Service of the move. Goyal v. Fifadara, 324 Ga. App. 567, 751 S.E.2d 190 (2013).

Provisions of Ga. L. 1949, p. 1168, §§ 4-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-21-56) were not sufficient to overrule provisions of this paragraph, providing that civil actions generally shall be brought in the county of the defendant's residence. However, where there were joint defendants, such an action may be brought in the county of residence of either. Banks County v. Stark, 88 Ga. App. 368, 77 S.E.2d 33 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Except as the Constitution may otherwise authorize, all civil cases shall be tried in the county of the defendant's residence. — While jurisdiction of the person may be waived by appearance and pleading to the merits, parties cannot by consent give jurisdiction of the subject matter where the court has none. The superior court in one county has no jurisdiction in quo warranto of the office of "director" of electric corporation created and existing in another county. Smith v. Upshaw, 217 Ga. 703, 124 S.E.2d 751 (1962).

Residence of surety did not control. — Fact that plaintiff, as surety, guaranteed performance of contract by contracting company, as principal, would not give superior court of county of residence of contracting company jurisdiction on petition of the surety to hear and determine the controversy between the contracting company and the city for which the work was to be performed as to whether or not there had been a breach of the contract on the part of the contracting company, nor would the fact that the plaintiff and contracting company had entered into a separate contract by the application for the performance bond give the plaintiff any right to compel the city to join in a suit with reference to this separate contract, since the city was not a party to the application and had no interest therein. Maryland Cas. Co. v. City of Adel, 87 Ga.

Court maintains venue only if judgment is rendered against resident defendant. Thoni Oil Co. v. Tinsley, 140 Ga. App. 887, 232 S.E.2d 162 (1977).

If resident defendant is dismissed, the other defendant may still, prior to verdict, raise the question of lack of jurisdiction, if the defendant's nonresidence appears on the face of the plaintiff's pleading, or, if it does not so appear, may raise the question by plea; and this is true notwithstanding the defendant had previously filed a plea to the merits at a time when the defendant's defense of lack of jurisdiction would not have been well taken. Any other rule would open the door to easy evasion of the constitutional provision that, except in the enumerated cases, the venue of all suits is in the county of the defendant's residence. Metcalf v. Hale, 42 Ga. App. 402, 156 S.E. 301 (1930).

Petition dismissible for want of jurisdiction. — Where the interests of the plaintiff and the resident defendant are identical and the allegations of the petition fail to show any justiciable controversy between the plaintiff and the resident defendant in which the nonresident defendant has any substantial interest, on motion of the nonresident defendant, setting out that it is a resident of a named county in this state and subject to suit only in the superior court of that county, the petition will be dismissed as to such nonresident defendant for want of jurisdiction. Maryland Cas. Co. v. City of Adel, 87 Ga. App. 138, 73 S.E.2d 237 (1952) (case cites former §§ 2-4903, 2-4904, and 2-4906).

Resident defendant must be found liable. — Where suit is brought against two defendants, one of whom resides in the county, the court has no jurisdiction of nonresident defendant unless the resident codefendant is liable in the action. Metcalf v. Hale, 42 Ga. App. 402, 156 S.E. 301 (1930).

Service on nonresident motorist cannot affect jurisdiction for Georgia resident. — Action cannot be instituted against a resident of Georgia in a county other than that of the resident's residence where the nonresident motorist is found and served. Such a fictitious residence of the nonresident motorist is not sufficient to authorize the joining of a resident of Georgia outside the county of residence. Horton v. Western Contracting Corp., 113 Ga. App. 613, 149 S.E.2d 542 (1966).

This paragraph simply prescribes that suits must be brought in the county of the defendant's residence, and the whole subject of domicile and residence of persons both natural and artificial is left to be determined by the General Assembly. Drake v. Chesser, 230 Ga. 148, 196 S.E.2d 137 (1973); Davenport v. Petroleum Delivery Serv. of Ga., Inc., 134 Ga. App. 418, 214 S.E.2d 692, aff'd, 235 Ga. 116, 218 S.E.2d 848 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

O.C.G.A. § 43-34-38 does not violate this paragraph. Smith v. State Bd. of Medical Exmrs., 172 Ga. 106, 157 S.E. 268 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

This paragraph is applicable to tort actions. Orkin Exterminating Co. v. Gilland, 130 Ga. App. 788, 204 S.E.2d 469 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Venue where accident occurred out of state. — The venue of an action for damages for injuries suffered by plaintiff when the plaintiff fell in a store in Tennessee was proper in the county in Georgia where the defendant resided. Gray v. Armstrong, 222 Ga. App. 392, 474 S.E.2d 280 (1996).

Auto negligence case, neither party Georgia resident, but defendant served in Georgia. — In an auto negligence suit, a trial court properly found that venue was proper in Muscogee County, Georgia, though the accident occurred in Alabama and both parties were Alabama residents, because the defendant was found and served in Muscogee County. Gowdy v. Schley, 317 Ga. App. 693, 732 S.E.2d 774 (2012).

One's legal residence for purpose of being sued in this state is generally the same county as his or her domicile. Sorrells v. Sorrells, 247 Ga. 9, 274 S.E.2d 314 (1981).

There must be either tacit or explicit intention to change one's domicile before there is a change of legal residence. Sorrells v. Sorrells, 247 Ga. 9, 274 S.E.2d 314 (1981).

Suits against guardians in representative capacity. — General requirement that defendant in civil case must be tried in county of the defendant's residence is applicable to suits against guardians in their representative capacities; and suit against a guardian must be brought in the county of the guardian's residence unless such representative is subject to suit in another county within one of the exceptions to the general rule which are embodied in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Paras. I through V and VII. Kimsey v. Caudell, 109 Ga. App. 271, 135 S.E.2d 903 (1964).

Venue in legitimacy action. — The rights afforded a mother in the scheme for legitimating the mother's child render the mother a defendant within the meaning of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; thus, that portion of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22(a) that provides for venue in the county of the putative father, when different from the county of the mother, offends the Georgia Constitution. Where one portion of a statute is unconstitutional, the Supreme Court of Georgia has the power to sever that portion of the statute and preserve the remainder if the remaining portion of the Act accomplishes the purpose the Georgia General Assembly intended; accordingly, severance of this venue provision does not affect the purpose of the remainder of the statute, and the remaining provisions of O.C.G.A. § 19-7-22(a) are to be given full effect. Holmes v. Traweek, 276 Ga. 296, 577 S.E.2d 777 (2003).

Termination of parental rights. — Termination of parental rights does not fall under any exceptions to general civil provision that all civil cases must be tried where defendant resides and, therefore, must be tried in the county of the parent's residence. Quire v. Clayton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 242 Ga. 85, 249 S.E.2d 538 (1978).

Venue under Child Custody Intra-state Jurisdiction Act. — Boyfriend, who had been appointed temporary guardian of child, was not the child's "legal custodian" as that term was used in the Georgia Child Custody Intrastate Jurisdiction Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-20 et seq., and, thus, the provisions of the Act, including its venue provisions, did not apply; accordingly, the trial court erred in dismissing the grandmother's petition for custody of the child on the ground that venue was not proper in the county where the mother was incarcerated but would have been proper where the temporary guardian, the boyfriend, resided, as application of the general venue rules governing venue in civil cases, contained in the Georgia Constitution, showed that since the mother was a necessary party to the grandmother's custody action, filing the action in the county where the mother was incarcerated was proper. Gordon v. Gordon, 269 Ga. App. 224, 603 S.E.2d 732 (2004).

Counterclaim for change in custody. — Under the plain language of the statute, the trial court erred in denying a motion to dismiss a parent's counterclaim seeking a change in physical custody and in finding that the evidence was sufficient to support the same. Seeley v. Seeley, 282 Ga. App. 394, 638 S.E.2d 837 (2006).

Application of guardianship must be heard in county of mentally incompetent's residence. — Where a person files an application for the appointment of a guardian of an allegedly mentally incompetent state resident, the allegedly mentally incompetent person is entitled to have the application for guardianship heard in the probate court of the county of his or her residence. Sorrells v. Sorrells, 247 Ga. 9, 274 S.E.2d 314 (1981).

Representative of alleged incompetent can contest jurisdiction. — Where representative of alleged incompetent files a plea to court's jurisdiction on ground that alleged incompetent is a resident of another county, the plea should be sustained if it is determined that the alleged incompetent is, in fact and in law, a resident of the other county. Sorrells v. Sorrells, 247 Ga. 9, 274 S.E.2d 314 (1981).

Resident defendant must be found liable. — Where suit is brought against two or more defendants jointly liable to plaintiff, one of whom resides in county where suit is brought, court has jurisdiction of the other defendants, who are nonresidents of the county, where the resident defendant is liable in the action. Moore v. Bryan, 52 Ga. App. 272, 183 S.E. 117 (1935).

General venue provisions of the Georgia Constitution apply in a proceeding involving termination of parental rights. — The Constitution grants to a parent the right to defend a termination of parental rights suit in the county in which the parent resides. Quire v. Clayton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 242 Ga. 85, 249 S.E.2d 538 (1978); Williams v. Department of Human Resources, 150 Ga. App. 610, 258 S.E.2d 288 (1979).

Adoption petitions. — This constitutional requirement that venue in civil cases be in county where defendant resides is not in conflict with former O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1, requiring that petitions for adoption be filed in the county where the adopting parents reside. Chandler v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 184, 275 S.E.2d 23 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

The award of custody made by the divorce court is a final judgment on the facts then existing. — Where the record showed that a divorce action terminated with the entry of a final judgment and decree, that the wife subsequently changed her residence to another county, and that the husband filed his motion to modify outside the term of court, the trial court erred in ruling on the husband's motion to modify visitation. Ward v. Ward, 194 Ga. App. 669, 391 S.E.2d 480 (1990).

Action to modify decree awarding alimony is separate action and must be filed in county of defendant's residence under the mandate of the Constitution. Hill v. Harper, 230 Ga. 246, 196 S.E.2d 397 (1973).

Actions to modify alimony and divorce decrees must proceed in the county where the defendant currently resides. Buckholts v. Buckholts, 251 Ga. 58, 302 S.E.2d 676 (1983).

Father waived his defense to lack of venue in mother's counterclaim in an action for modification of child visitation by failing to file a motion to dismiss in a timely and expeditious manner. Houston

v. Brown, 212 Ga. App. 834, 443 S.E.2d 3 (1994).

Bringing change of custody suit as submission to jurisdiction for counter-claim regarding child support. — Where plaintiff brings suit for change of custody in county other than county of residence, the plaintiff submits to jurisdiction of court in which suit is filed for purpose of allowing defendant to file counterclaim for revision of child support. Ledford v. Bowers, 248 Ga. 804, 286 S.E.2d 293 (1982).

Action to revise alimony is separate action. — Action for revision of award of permanent alimony and support after decree of divorce and award of alimony becomes final is not divorce case but is new and distinct action separate from the original divorce action in which the alimony was awarded. Being a separate and independent suit, it is subject to the constitutional provisions respecting venue just as any other civil case. Bugden v. Bugden, 224 Ga. 517, 162 S.E.2d 719 (1968).

Jurisdiction in habeas corpus action for child custody not sustained. — In habeas corpus action for child custody where the petition does not allege that the defendant is a resident of the county but alleges that the petitioner believes that the petitioner is a resident of such county, and the defendant could admit that the petitioner believes the defendant to be a resident of the county without conceding in any way that the defendant is a resident of that county, petition failed to allege that the defendant was a resident of the county and therefore subject to the jurisdiction of the court, and fails to show that the court had jurisdiction of the defendant and was subject to general demurrer (now motion to dismiss for failure to state claim) specifically pointing out this defect. Dutton v. Freeman, 213 Ga. 445, 99 S.E.2d 204 (1957).

Court of appropriate jurisdiction. — Where there is an attack upon a part of an original divorce decree and the court's jurisdiction is based upon the original decree having allegedly been obtained by fraud, the superior court granting the decree attacked is the superior court of appropriate jurisdiction. Hill v. Harper, 230 Ga. 246, 196 S.E.2d 397 (1973).

Transfer provision not violative of Constitution. — The provision of former Code 1933, § 24A-1201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30), providing that after adjudication of delinquency in a court of another county the proceeding shall be transferred to the county of the child's residence for disposition, is not violative of this paragraph. M.E.B. v. State, 230 Ga. 154, 195 S.E.2d 891 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Trial court erred in granting transfer motion. — In a wrongful death medical malpractice suit, the trial court erred in granting the plaintiff's motion to transfer venue of the case because the remaining defendant had waived the defendant's venue defenses and, therefore, the plaintiff had no standing to require the trial court to transfer the case to the county where the defendant resided when suit was filed. Richardson v. Gilbert, 319 Ga. App. 72, 733 S.E.2d 783 (2012).

Determining legal residence in delinquency proceeding. — A juvenile proceeding for delinquency or unruly conduct may be tried either in the county where the child resides or in the county where the unruly or delinquent conduct occurred. In re A.M.C., 213 Ga. App. 897, 446 S.E.2d 760 (1994).

In determining where a juvenile resides for purposes of venue under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15, it is generally the legal residence that controls. In re A.M.C., 213 Ga. App. 897, 446 S.E.2d 760 (1994).

In a proceeding against a juvenile for the status offense of unruliness, the juvenile's legal residence for purposes of venue was in the county of the Department of Family & Children Services having custody over the juvenile, even though the place of the offense and the juvenile's family residence were in other counties. In re A.M.C., 213 Ga. App. 897, 446 S.E.2d 760 (1994).

Minor who is resident of this state is subject to jurisdiction of juvenile court of county of the minor's residence, the proceedings in such court being civil rather than criminal in nature. Where the crime charged is a felony, such minor is also subject to the criminal jurisdiction of the superior court of the county wherein the felony was committed. Whitman v. State, 96 Ga. App. 730, 101 S.E.2d 621 (1957).

Juvenile court action not bar to superior court action. — Juvenile court of residence of defendant may proceed to punish juvenile in civil action, and superior court of county where felony is committed may also proceed to try defendant in a criminal action, the one not being a bar to the other. Whitman v. State, 96 Ga. App. 730, 101 S.E.2d 621 (1957).

Instances of venue in civil cases. — Returns of administrators, under former Code 1882, § 2598 (see now O.C.G.A. § 53-7-163). Young v. Brown, 75 Ga. 1 (1885).

This paragraph was held to regulate venue in suits as to validation of municipal bonds. Ray v. City of Lavonia, 141 Ga. 626, 81 S.E. 884 (1914) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Affidavit contesting assessment by Superintendent of Banks. Martin v. Bennett, 291 F. 626 (N.D. Ga. 1923).

Attachment proceedings. — There was no constitutional provision which fixed the venue of attachment proceedings against nonresidents. Hence, former Civil Code 1910, § 5063 (see now O.C.G.A. § 18-3-17) must apply. Carroll & Downs v. Groover, 27 Ga. App. 747, 110 S.E. 30 (1921).

Where declaration in attachment does not show that the defendant was a nonresident or that the defendant was a resident of the county where the attachment was returned, nor was the ground of attachment one that would lie only against a nonresident, the trial court erred in overruling the defendant's demurrer (now motion to dismiss for failure to state claim) to petition for lack of jurisdiction over defendant. Harris v. McDaniel, 92 Ga. App. 299, 88 S.E.2d 442 (1955).

Superior Court of Murray County did not have jurisdiction to entertain case for declaratory judgment where all of the parties defendant except one defendant, against whom no substantial equitable relief was prayed, were nonresidents of Murray County; the equitable feature of the case is removed, leaving the action solely one at law under Ga. L. 1945, p. 137 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 4, T. 9). The venue of such an action is in the county where the defendant resides. The nonresident defendants not being of the class of persons who may be sued in counties other than the counties of their residence as permitted in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Paras. IV and V (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Paras. IV and V), the court was without jurisdiction to enter a declaratory judgment as to their rights. Harper v. Gunby, 215 Ga. 466, 111 S.E.2d 85 (1959).

Venue where tenant sold crops illegally in two counties. Curry v. State, 17 Ga. App. 272, 86 S.E. 533 (1915).

Venue where stolen goods taken to several counties. Williams v. State, 105 Ga. 743, 31 S.E. 749 (1898).

Where defendant's lottery operation covers several counties, each county would have jurisdiction over defendant for trial, regardless of the defendant's activities in other counties. Lunsford v. State, 60 Ga. App. 537, 4 S.E.2d 112 (1939).

Proceeding by a money rule is civil case within meaning of this paragraph. Commings v. Ross, 44 Ga. App. 182, 160 S.E. 679 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Confirmation required by Ga. L. 1935, p. 381, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 44-14-161) is not a civil case within the meaning of this paragraph, requiring civil cases to be brought in the county where the defendant resides. Wall v. Federal Land Bank, 240 Ga. 236, 240 S.E.2d 76 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Plaintiff is required to bring an action for civil damages in county of residence of defendant trespassers and not in the county where the trespass allegedly occurred. Jones v. Hudgins, 218 Ga. 43, 126 S.E.2d 414 (1962).

If libel action is brought against noncorporate newspaper, venue would, by constitutional mandate, have to be brought in county of residence of libeler, which may not be the county where the newspaper is published. Carroll City/County Hosp. Auth. v. Cox Enters., 243 Ga. 760, 256 S.E.2d 443 (1979).

Convict does not acquire residence in county where the convict has been involuntarily placed to serve sentence of confinement. Williams v. Department of Human Resources, 150 Ga. App. 610, 258 S.E.2d 288 (1979).

Boundary-line dispute. — Where equitable relief is sought in conjunction with a boundary-line dispute (i.e., removal of a fence and ejectment from a disputed strip of land), the county of the defendant's residence is the proper venue forum. Beauchamp v. Knight, 261 Ga. 608, 409 S.E.2d 208 (1991).

Dispossessory warrant proceeding not civil case. — A dispossessory warrant proceeding being a summary statutory action to obtain possession of premises, in which proceeding the only judgment which can be obtained by the landlord is the statutory incidental penalty for double rent, now no longer double, imposed upon the tenant for unlawfully withholding possession, such a proceeding is not a civil case within the meaning of this paragraph, which declares that "all other civil cases shall be tried in the county where the defendant resides." Wilson v. Healey Real Estate & Imp. Co., 203 Ga. 52, 45 S.E.2d 656 (1947) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Section 44-7-54 did not violate this paragraph. — Portions of O.C.G.A. § 44-7-54, which formerly provided that issue formed in dispossessory warrant shall be returned to "the county where the land lies," was not violative of this paragraph. Wilson v. Healey Real Estate & Imp. Co., 203 Ga. 52, 45 S.E.2d 656 (1947) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Venue in action against motor carrier. — Under the constitutional and statutory venue provisions applicable to a tort action against a domestic motor carrier corporation, a motor carrier "may be" sued in the county where the cause of action or some part thereof originated or may be sued in the county where it maintains its principal office and place of business. Thomas v. Bobby Stevens Hauling Contractors, 165 Ga. App. 710, 302 S.E.2d 585 (1983).

Notwithstanding the 1937 legislation allowing permissive joinder under O.C.G.A. § 46-7-12, a suit in tort against a motor carrier is not ancillary to a suit in contract against the carrier's insurer, and such a tort action must be brought only where venue would be constitutionally permitted. Thomas v. Bobby Stevens Hauling Contractors, 165 Ga. App. 710, 302 S.E.2d 585 (1983).

Recovery of payment due on account. — Proper venue for action to recover payment due on an account was in the county where the debtor resided, not the county where the debtor's sole proprietorship was located. Lee v. Xerox Corp., 193 Ga. App. 432, 387 S.E.2d 653 (1989).

Consent judgment against joint tortfeasors. — Where a single suit is brought against several joint tortfeasors in a county where one of them is a resident, and the others reside outside the county, a consent judgment and an agreement not to enforce it constitute a finding that the resident is liable and do not deprive the trial court of jurisdiction over the nonresident defendants in the county where suit was brought. Motor Convoy, Inc. v. Brannen, 194 Ga. App. 795, 391 S.E.2d 671, aff'd, 260 Ga. 340, 393 S.E.2d 262 (1990).

Tort Claims Act. — O.C.G.A. § 50-21-28, establishing the venue of tort actions against the state under the Georgia Tort Claims Act in the county wherein the loss occurred, does not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI. Campbell v. Department of Cors., 268 Ga. 408, 490 S.E.2d 99 (1997).

Probate. — Where the decedent's grandniece filed a caveat to the probate of the will in solemn form on grounds of undue influence and contract to make a will and then filed an identical complaint in the superior court, the superior court was an improper venue for the contract to make a will action, as the co-executors did not live in the county where the action was filed as was required under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; as a result, the case had to be transferred to the appropriate superior court as provided under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. VIII. SunTrust Bank v. Peterson, 263 Ga. App. 378, 587 S.E.2d 849 (2003).

Counterclaim. — Regarding counterclaims, Georgia law has long held that a party that files suit in a Georgia court submits oneself to that court's jurisdiction and venue relating to all matters directly connected with the case that the party had originated; one who goes into the court of a county other than that of the party's residence, to assert a claim or set up an equity, must be content to allow that court to determine any counter-claim growing out of the original suit which the defendant sees fit to set up by a cross-action. Kennestone Hosp., Inc. v. Hopson, 264 Ga. App. 123, 589 S.E.2d 696 (2003).

3. Criminal Actions

Construction with statutory provisions. — O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2, governing venue in criminal cases, does not conflict with the state constitutional requirement that all criminal cases be tried in the county where the crime was committed. Miller v. State, 174 Ga. App. 42, 329 S.E.2d 252 (1985).

Allegations of venue. Morakes v. State, 158 Ga. 114, 123 S.E. 687 (1924).

The venue of criminal cases is determined at the time of trial, regardless of location of territory when crime was committed. Bundrick v. State, 125 Ga. 753, 54 S.E. 683 (1906); Pope v. State, 124 Ga. 801, 53 S.E. 384, 110 Am. St. R. 197, 4 Ann. Cas. 551 (1906); Minter v. State, 158 Ga. 127, 123 S.E. 23 (1924).

Venue of the crime must be established clearly and beyond a reasonable doubt. Jackson v. State, 177 Ga. App. 718, 341 S.E.2d 274 (1986).

Under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI, venue lies in the county where a crime is committed. Goodrum v. State, 259 Ga. App. 704, 578 S.E.2d 484 (2003).

Because the state failed to prove the element of venue beyond a reasonable doubt, and there was no indication in the record that the juvenile waived said requirement or that the court took judicial notice of venue as an element of the offenses charged, the juvenile's adjudications of delinquency had to be reversed. In the Interest of J.B., 289 Ga. App. 617, 658 S.E.2d 194 (2008).

Venue of city coextensive with county. — Venue for the Atlanta City Court did not need to be shown to be in Fulton County or DeKalb County as venue was coextensive with city territorial limits and need not be shown to lie in either county. State v. Walker, 276 Ga. 756, 585 S.E.2d 77 (2003).

Defendant's plea of not guilty contested every allegation against the defendant, including those pertaining to venue. Graves v. State, 269 Ga. 772, 504 S.E.2d 679 (1998), overruled on other grounds, Jones v. State, 272 Ga. 900, 537 S.E.2d 80 (2000), reversing Graves v. State, 227 Ga. App. 628, 490 S.E.2d 111 (1997).

Test to determine county crime committed in when in doubt not violative of paragraph. — Where it cannot be determined in what county a crime was committed, charge by trial court that the crime shall be considered to have been committed in any county in which the evidence shows beyond a reasonable doubt that it might have been committed and which correctly stated the law concerning venue in subsections (b), (e), and (h) of O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2, does not violate this paragraph. Bundren v. State, 247 Ga. 180, 274 S.E.2d 455 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

State not required to stipulate to venue. — Venue is not a fact to which the state is required to stipulate whenever the defendant wishes to do so, particularly when the state disbelieves the defendant's account of that fact, because stipulations and waivers of jurisdictional defenses streamline a proceeding in which both parties agree on a fact, making further proof unnecessary; stipulations and jurisdictional waivers are not a means of forcing an opposing party to agree to facts it believes are not true and would mislead the factfinder. If the facts are disputed, the parties' competing evidence and arguments can be presented to the factfinder to resolve. State v. Dixon, 286 Ga. 706, 691 S.E.2d 207 (2010).

Proof of venue. — Testimony of police officers that the crimes charged in the indictment occurred in the county where defendant's trial was conducted was sufficient to authorize finding of venue. Jones v. State, 220 Ga. App. 161, 469 S.E.2d 300 (1996).

When a criminal defendant pleads not guilty, the defendant has challenged venue and the state will not be permitted to invoke the exception permitting it to establish venue with mere slight evidence. Jones v. State, 272 Ga. 900, 537 S.E.2d 80 (2000).

Evidence that showed that the police in a particular county investigated the subject crimes and that the medical examiner in that same county performed the autopsy on the murdered man killed during the subject crimes was sufficient to prove venue was proper in defendant's trial on those same crimes. Allison v. State, 259 Ga. App. 775, 577 S.E.2d 845 (2003).

State proved venue in Cobb County beyond a reasonable doubt, with direct and circumstantial evidence, which showed that the defendant committed aggravated sexual battery upon the child victim while traveling from the victim's home in Cobb County to a bus stop. Harris v. State, 279 Ga. App. 570, 631 S.E.2d 772 (2006).

The incident on which a sodomy charge was based occurred about one mile from the home in Gordon County where the defendant and the victim lived, when the defendant and the victim were driving home; thus, under O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(e), the crime was considered to have occurred in Gordon County, through which the car traveled, and the state proved venue. Prudhomme v. State, 285 Ga. App. 662, 647 S.E.2d 343 (2007).

In a juvenile delinquency case, the state had failed to prove venue where it offered no evidence that a church where an aggravated assault occurred was within the boundaries of the county in question; as to charges of obstruction of an officer, there was no evidence as to the location of the houses where the acts in question occurred. In the Interest of D.D., 287 Ga. App. 512, 651 S.E.2d 817 (2007).

In a prosecution for aggravated child molestation and sodomy, a child's testimony that the defendant sodomized the child at the child's home on three occasions was sufficient to prove that venue was in the county where that home was located. Terry v. State, 293 Ga. App. 455, 667 S.E.2d 109 (2008).

While there was sufficient evidence that the defendant obstructed an officer in making an arrest, as there was no evidence that the city and street where the arrest and the obstruction occurred were in Floyd County, the state failed to prove venue, which was an essential element of the obstruction charge. Frasier v. State, 295 Ga. App. 596, 672 S.E.2d 668 (2009).

State's failure to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant and the codefendant possessed a pipe with traces of methamphetamine on it, which was discovered in a search of the defendant's impounded vehicle in the county, rendered the verdict contrary to law, without a sufficient evidentiary basis, because venue was an essential element of the crime, and there was no direct evidence of possession of the pipe in the county; because there was no evidence placing the pipe in the vehicle while the vehicle was in the county, and there was a possibility that the pipe was put in the vehicle after the shootings during one of several stops the defendant and the codefendant made while in Alabama, venue for possession of methamphetamine was not proven to be in the county. Coleman v. State, 286 Ga. 291, 687 S.E.2d 427 (2009).

Venue with regard to convictions for possession of methamphetamine and of the less than an ounce of marijuana was established as being in the county where the drugs were discovered during a search of the defendant's impounded vehicle because although the state presented no evidence that the methamphetamine residue and the marijuana found in the vehicle were in the possession of the defendant and the codefendant while they were in the county. On cross-examination, the defendant admitted to having hand-rolled a marijuana cigarette found in the vehicle the morning of the shooting; that testimony, coupled with the undisputed fact that the defendant, the codefendant, and the vehicle were at a service station in the county at a time following the point at which the defendant admitted having made the cigarette, established beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant and codefendant possessed the marijuana cigarette in the county. Coleman v. State, 286 Ga. 291, 687 S.E.2d 427 (2009).

State failed to prove venue beyond a reasonable doubt because evidence that the defendant's drugs sales to an informant occurred somewhere in Vidalia, Georgia, was insufficient to establish that the crimes occurred in Toombs County since the habeas court properly took judicial notice that Vidalia was located in two different counties, Toombs and Montgomery; there was no evidence that the drug task force agents were limited to acting within Toombs County, and even if the agents' authority was limited to Toombs County, the agents did not exercise any police power during the time in which the drug sales were made that was required to be limited to the agents' territorial jurisdiction, but instead, the agents were simply watching the informant and the defendant as the agents drove, and in doing so, the agents would have been authorized to follow the defendant across county lines. Thompson v. Brown, 288 Ga. 855, 708 S.E.2d 270 (2011).

Trial court did not err in denying the defendant's motion for new trial after the defendant was convicted of rape because venue was sufficiently established by a detective's testimony that the apartment complex where the crimes occurred was in DeKalb County, and even accepting the defendant's argument that the evidence only supported the conclusion that the victim could have been driven into another county before the rape occurred, that would not preclude a jury's conclusion that venue could be proper in DeKalb County; because the most definite testimony regarding the location of the crimes related to DeKalb County, the jury was authorized to find beyond a reasonable doubt that the rape could have occurred there. Bizimana v. State, 311 Ga. App. 447, 715 S.E.2d 754 (2011).

Evidence was sufficient to support codefendant's conviction on 12 counts of identity fraud, in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-9-121(a)(1), based on the state introducing evidence that the victims' identifying information was found in the Henry County, Georgia, residence of defendant, and 12 of the victims testified at trial that they did not authorize any such use of their identifying information, and codefendant admitted in her statement that she was a party to the crime in that she provided the victims' identifying information to an unauthorized third party, thus, the evidence was sufficient to allow the jury to find that at least part of the identity fraud took place in Henry County, regardless of whether codefendant was ever actually in that county. Manhertz v. State, 317 Ga. App. 856, 734 S.E.2d 406 (2012).

Since there was no clear evidence that the fatal injury was inflicted anywhere other than Harris County, where the victim was found, and where the victim died, the state sufficiently proved venue. Walton v. State, 293 Ga. 607, 748 S.E.2d 866 (2013).

Defendant's conviction for making a false statement in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-10-20 was reversed on appeal because the state offered no proof that the jail where the alleged statement was made was in a particular county and since the defendant was transported, the false statement may have been made in another county. Stockard v. State, 327 Ga. App. 184, 755 S.E.2d 548 (2014).

Sufficient evidence supported defendant's conviction for theft by taking since it showed that defendant never used the funds borrowed for relocating the Florida plant, as promised, and the loan was secured with equipment that defendant did not own; however, the prosecution failed to prove venue was proper in Dodge County, Georgia, since although the contracts were executed in Dodge County, there was no evidence that defendant exercised any control over the $ 350,000 in Dodge County. Davis v. State, 326 Ga. App. 279, 754 S.E.2d 815 (2014).

Uniform traffic citations are not evidence, and thus cannot provide the factual basis necessary to establish venue. Graves v. State, 269 Ga. 772, 504 S.E.2d 679 (1998), overruled on other grounds, Jones v. State, 272 Ga. 900, 537 S.E.2d 80 (2000), reversing Graves v. State, 227 Ga. App. 628, 490 S.E.2d 111 (1997).

Venue is a jurisdictional fact, and if not proved, a new trial is required. Davis v. State, 82 Ga. 205, 8 S.E. 184 (1888); Alexander v. State, 105 Ga. 834, 31 S.E. 754 (1898); Mill v. State, 1 Ga. App. 134, 57 S.E. 969, later appeal, 2 Ga. App.

398, 58 S.E. 673 (1907), later appeal, 3 Ga. App. 414, 60 S.E. 4 (1908).

Trial in an improper venue will not prevent trial in proper venue. Barrs v. State, 22 Ga. App. 642, 97 S.E. 86, cert. denied, 227 Ga. App. 803 (1918), overruled on other grounds, Deyton v. Wanzer, 240 Ga. 509, 241 S.E.2d 228 (1978).

In Georgia, power to change venue in criminal cases is vested exclusively in superior courts. Slaughter v. State, 61 Ga. App. 619, 7 S.E.2d 215 (1940) (decision based in part on former Code 1933, § 27-1201).

Grant or denial of motions for change of venue lies largely within discretion of trial judge. — The requirement that a defendant be tried in the county where the crime is alleged to have occurred cannot be vacated by a legislative Act purporting to vest discretion in a trial judge relating to the comfort of the jury. Hannah v. State, 212 Ga. 313, 92 S.E.2d 89 (1956).

The exercise of judicial discretion will not be reversed on appeal unless it is made to appear that there has been an abuse of discretion. Jarrell v. State, 234 Ga. 410, 216 S.E.2d 258 (1975).

Burden of persuasion. — Jury charge based on O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2 did not improperly shift the burden of persuasion regarding venue to defendants; however, the Georgia Supreme Court noted that the subject legislation was poorly drafted and courts in the future should refrain from quoting such language, then the court suggested that the intent of the statute could be better effectuated by another instruction (which the court provided). Napier v. State, 276 Ga. 769, 583 S.E.2d 825 (2003).

An Act which disregards this paragraph is unconstitutional. Dempsey v. State, 94 Ga. 766, 22 S.E. 57 (1894) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Venue provisions of Ch. 11, T. 15 and this Constitution in accord. — Although some of the proceedings in juvenile court are of a criminal character, all are not. For those that are, delinquency, unruliness, and juvenile traffic offenses, the venue provisions of Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 11, T. 15) and this Constitution, that venue lies in the county in which the act was committed, are in accord. Quire v. Clayton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 242 Ga. 85, 249 S.E.2d 538 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Accessory before the fact is indictable and triable in county where principal crime was committed. Welch v. State, 49 Ga. App. 380, 175 S.E. 598 (1934).

Acts relating to trial of misdemeanors in Criminal Court of Fulton County did not contravene provisions of U.S. Const., amend. 14 for the reason that defendants therein seeking a review by appellate courts must proceed by the slower and more expensive method of first petitioning to the superior court of the county for a certiorari, whereas, if tried in the superior court, they may sue out a bill of exceptions directly to the Court of Appeals, for the further reason that newly discovered evidence cannot be considered by superior courts in awarding a new trial on a petition for certiorari, or for the further reason that misdemeanor defendants in the court of the trial have no right to move for a change of venue as defendants were permitted to move in the superior courts, under Ga. Const., Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII) and this paragraph, and former Code 1933, § 27-1201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 17-7-150). McIntyre v. State, 190 Ga. 872, 11 S.E.2d 5 (1940), cert. denied, 312 U.S. 695, 61 S. Ct. 732, 85 L. Ed. 1130 (1941) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Venue in cases of kidnapping is proper in the county where the victim was seized. Harris v. State, 165 Ga. App. 249, 299 S.E.2d 924 (1983).

Venue in violation of state ethics law. — When the defendants were indicted under O.C.G.A. § 21-5-9 for failing to file documents with the state ethics commission under O.C.G.A. § 21-5-34, venue was in the county where the commission was exclusively located; the place fixed for performance of the required act fixed the situs of the alleged crime. McKinney v. State, 282 Ga. 230, 647 S.E.2d 44 (2007).

Traffic cases. — Trial of defendant in the Atlanta Traffic Court, a city court which sits in the Fulton County portion of Atlanta, was improper where the state proved that the alleged offense took place in the City of Atlanta but did not offer any proof that it occurred in Fulton County; defendant is entitled to be tried in the county in which the offense was alleged to have occurred. Waller v. State, 231 Ga. App. 323, 498 S.E.2d 362 (1998).

Offense of armed robbery and possession of firearm during felony. — Where the victim testified that movant took a car from the victim at gunpoint in Chatham County, Georgia, a reasonable trier of fact was authorized to find beyond a reasonable doubt that movant committed the crimes of armed robbery and possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony in Chatham County, making that county the appropriate venue for movant's trial pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI and O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(a); thus, the convictions and sentences were not void and the trial court properly dismissed, based on a lack of subject matter jurisdiction, movant's postconviction motion to vacate the convictions and sentences. Green v. State, 259 Ga. App. 195, 575 S.E.2d 921 (2002).

Medicaid fraud. — In a Medicaid fraud case committed by a fraudulent scheme or device under O.C.G.A. § 49-4-146.1(b)(1)(C) of the Georgia Medical Assistance Act, O.C.G.A. § 49-4-140 et seq., pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI and O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(a), venue is proper in any county where an act was committed in furtherance of the fraudulent transaction and since defendants committed acts in furtherance of the fraud in counties in which they were tried and convicted then venue in those counties was proper and the appellate court improperly reversed defendants' convictions. State v. Kell, 276 Ga. 423, 577 S.E.2d 551 (2003).

Identity fraud. — O.C.G.A. § 16-9-125 complies with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; since the crime of identity fraud, as defined by O.C.G.A. §§ 16-9-121 and 16-9-125 when read in para materia, takes place in the county where the victim and the victim's personal information are located, there is no constitutional bar to trying the defendant in that county. State v. Mayze, 280 Ga. 5, 622 S.E.2d 836 (2005).

Trial court erred in sustaining defendant's demurrer to the identity fraud charges as O.C.G.A. § 16-9-125 did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI, since identity fraud was a continuing offense, which extended into the county where the victim resided or was located. State v. Mayze, 280 Ga. 5, 622 S.E.2d 836 (2005).

State established venue under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI and O.C.G.A. §§ 16-9-125 and 17-2-2(a) because a reasonable trier of fact was authorized to find beyond a reasonable doubt that the victims resided or were found in Forsyth County at the time the offense of financial identity fraud was committed as alleged in the indictment; the victim testified that the victim had been a resident of Forsyth County for twelve years and that the victim's company had been located there for seventeen years. Zachery v. State, 312 Ga. App. 418, 718 S.E.2d 332 (2011).

Financial transaction fraud. — Venue was proper for a conviction of financial transaction card theft, O.C.G.A. § 16-9-31(a), as jurisdiction was proper in the county where the offense occurred, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI, and the trial was held in the county in which the defendant resided and the site where the stolen cards were found. Middlebrooks v. State, 277 Ga. App. 551, 627 S.E.2d 154 (2006).

DUI cases. — Defendant's DUI conviction had to be reversed as the prosecution failed to prove venue beyond a reasonable doubt even though the city where the offense occurred was only within one county; the Georgia Constitution, state statutory law, and judicial precedent required that the prosecution expressly prove venue and the appellate court could not presume the trial court took judicial notice of venue. Robinson v. State, 260 Ga. App. 186, 581 S.E.2d 285 (2003).

After a defendant was granted a directed verdict on the basis that the state failed to prove venue in a criminal prosecution for driving under the influence per se, retrial was not barred under U.S. Const., amend. V and O.C.G.A. § 16-1-8 because, while venue had to be laid in the county in which the crime was allegedly committed under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI and O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2 and venue was a jurisdictional fact, failure to prove venue was a procedural error that implied nothing as to defendant's guilt or innocence. Hudson v. State, 296 Ga. App. 758, 675 S.E.2d 603, cert. denied, No. S09C1163, 2009 Ga. LEXIS 413 (Ga. 2009); cert. denied, 558 U.S. 1076, 130 S. Ct. 799, 175 L. Ed. 2d 559 (2009).

Inadequate showing of venue in murder conviction. — Defendant's murder conviction was reversed because although the evidence established that the cause of death, the shooting of the victim, was inflicted on a boat ramp in or near Lock and Dam Park and venue was proper where the boat ramp was situated under O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(c), there was no evidence as to the county in which the park was located. Twitty v. State, 298 Ga. 204, 779 S.E.2d 298 (2015).

Adequate evidence of proper venue. — Although the prosecution did not introduce direct evidence which showed that the location of a robbery and murder was in the county where the defendant was tried, it did introduce evidence which showed that the crime occurred near a lounge that was in the county, and the jury was able to find proper venue by considering that evidence and the facts that the police officer who investigated the crime worked for the county and that the deceased's body was taken to the county's coroner for autopsy. Chapman v. State, 275 Ga. 314, 565 S.E.2d 442 (2002).

In a child molestation case, venue in McIntosh County was proper; the victim testified that the crime occurred in the home of the victim's aunt, where the victim currently lived, and the aunt testified that she currently lived in McIntosh County. Flanders v. State, 285 Ga. App. 805, 648 S.E.2d 97 (2007).

With regard to a defendant's conviction for child molestation, the victim's testimony that the victim lived in a particular city, which was located in Spalding County, and that the incident occurred at another apartment, which the evidence revealed through the testimony was also located in that particular city, there was sufficient evidence to prove venue in Spalding County beyond a reasonable doubt. Mahone v. State, 293 Ga. App. 790, 668 S.E.2d 303 (2008).

Although defendant argued that the state failed to prove venue beyond a reasonable doubt, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI and O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(a) generally, a criminal case had to be tried in the county in which the crime was committed. The state had the burden of proving venue, which the state could do using either direct or circumstantial evidence, and whether the evidence as to venue satisfied the reasonable-doubt standard was a question for the jury, and the court's decision will not be set aside if there is any evidence to support the decision; therefore, because in defendant's case, the victim testified that defendant molested the victim in their residence and that the residence was located in Grady County, Georgia, venue was established beyond a reasonable doubt. Bynum v. State, 300 Ga. App. 163, 684 S.E.2d 330 (2009), cert. denied, No. S10C0225, 2010 Ga. LEXIS 300 (Ga. 2010).

Evidence that a police officer found the victim lying on a sidewalk in Fulton County was sufficient to establish venue in that county under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI and O.C.G.A. § 17-2-2(a). Branford v. State, 299 Ga. App. 890, 685 S.E.2d 731 (2009).

Trial court did not err in denying the defendant's motion to dismiss an indictment charging the defendant with arranging to buy cattle and failing or refusing to pay the seller in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-9-58 on the ground that venue did not lie in Laurens County because there was some evidence that the place of payment was at the seller's location in Laurens County and that the defendant wrongfully failed or refused to pay the seller in Laurens County for the cattle; even if the defendant's fraudulent intent arose in Kansas sometime after the cattle were shipped, the crime was not consummated until the defendant failed or refused to pay. Babbitt v. State, 314 Ga. App. 115, 723 S.E.2d 10 (2012).

Because any challenge on direct appeal to the sufficiency of proof of venue in a child molestation case would have failed due to evidence in the record from which the jury could have inferred venue was proper, appellate counsel was not unreasonable in failing to raise such a challenge. Martin v. McLaughlin, 298 Ga. 44, 779 S.E.2d 294 (2015).

Trial court did not err in denying the defendant's motion to dismiss an indictment charging the defendant with arranging to buy cattle and failing or refusing to pay the seller in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-9-58 on the ground that venue did not lie in Laurens County because there was some evidence that the place of payment was at the seller's location in Laurens County and that the defendant wrongfully failed or refused to pay the seller in Laurens County for the cattle; even if the defendant's fraudulent intent arose in Kansas sometime after the cattle were shipped, the crime was not consummated until the defendant failed or refused to pay. Jackson v. State, 292 Ga. 685, 740 S.E.2d 609 (2013).

Venue properly set forth in indictment. — Contrary to defendant's contention, the indictment against him was not fatally flawed as it stated the venue of the crimes by indicating that it was returned in the Superior Court of Elbert County, Georgia, and that each count charged was committed by him in the county and state aforesaid. Leverette v. State, 291 Ga. 834, 732 S.E.2d 255 (2012).

Waiver of improper venue. — Although Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI sets forth venue requirements, a challenge to the sufficiency of the evidence of venue is a "procedural matter" and may be waived in certain situations; where defendant failed to raise the issue of improper venue in the first direct appeal of defendant's conviction, defendant was not entitled to raise the venue issue in an appeal of a later denial of a motion to vacate the conviction due to the alleged improper venue. Shields v. State, 276 Ga.

Trial court not required to instruct jury on lesser included offense over which court lacks venue. — Court of appeals erred in reversing the defendant's conviction for armed robbery because the trial court properly declined to instruct the jury on the lesser included offense of theft by taking since there was no evidence that the included crime was committed in the county in which the defendant was being tried; although the state was unwilling to allow the defendant to waive venue or stipulate that what occurred was a theft by taking that happened entirely in Clayton County, the defendant was free to present evidence and argue to the jury that while the defendant was guilty of committing theft by taking in Clayton County, the defendant was not guilty of armed robbery in DeKalb County. But the defendant could not require the state to agree that the defendant committed theft by taking in Clayton County or require the trial court to instruct the jury on a lesser included offense over which the court lacked venue. State v. Dixon, 286 Ga. 706, 691 S.E.2d 207 (2010).

Venue was question for jury. — Whether the state established venue was a question for a jury because the question of whether the defendant's efforts to abandon the illegal files was successful when the defendant placed the files in the trash before entering Clayton County could not be determined as a matter of law at the pretrial stage. State v. Al-Khayyal, 322 Ga. App. 718, 744 S.E.2d 885 (2013).

Standard for reviewing sufficiency of evidence of venue. — When reviewing the sufficiency of the evidence as to venue, an appellate court must view the evidence in the light most favorable to the verdict and inquire whether the evidence would authorize a rational trier of fact to find beyond a reasonable doubt that venue was properly laid. Decisions of the Court of Appeals to the contrary are disapproved. Martin v. McLaughlin, 298 Ga. 44, 779 S.E.2d 294 (2015).

4. Corporations Generally

Editor's notes. — Some of the cases noted under this subheading were decided prior to the addition of the provision regarding prescribing of venue as to corporations by law.

Determining Venue (Cont'd)4. Corporations Generally (Cont'd)

General Assembly has power to declare residence of corporations. Dependable Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 218 Ga. 305, 127 S.E.2d 454 (1962).

The right of the General Assembly to create a corporation carries with it the power to designate its venue. Davenport v. Petroleum Delivery Serv. of Ga., Inc., 134 Ga. App. 418, 214 S.E.2d 692, aff'd, 235 Ga. 116, 218 S.E.2d 848 (1975).

Since the General Assembly may fix the residence of a corporation under this paragraph, there appears to be no reason it cannot also fix the residence of a corporation under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV). White v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 233 Ga. 919, 213 S.E.2d 879 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Venue of corporation provided by statute not exclusive of venue provided by Constitution. — The General Assembly may declare a corporation to be a resident of a county for venue purposes under this paragraph, the general venue-residence provision, but the venue of a corporation provided by statute is not the exclusive venue provided by the Constitution. Glover v. Donaldson, 243 Ga. 479, 254 S.E.2d 857 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Place of suit against corporation. — A corporation must generally be sued in the county of its principal office or place of business. Campbell v. Jim Walter Homes, Inc., 140 Ga. App. 435, 231 S.E.2d 450 (1976).

Although O.C.G.A. § 9-12-132 of the Uniform Enforcement of Foreign Judgments Law, O.C.G.A. § 9-12-130 et seq., did not contain a venue provision, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI and O.C.G.A. § 14-2-510(b)(1) provided that venue was in the county where the corporation maintained its registered office; therefore, the Superior Court of Cobb County erred in denying the corporation's motion to set aside a foreign judgment when the corporation's registered office was in Henry County. Cherwood, Inc. v. Marlin Leasing Corp., 268 Ga. App. 64, 601 S.E.2d 356 (2004).

This paragraph applies to corporations as well as to natural persons and therefore a corporation must be sued in the county of its residence unless the case comes within one of the exceptions set out in the Constitution. Lloyd Adams, Inc. v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 190 Ga. 633, 10 S.E.2d 46 (1940); Benton Rapid Express v. Johnson, 202 Ga. 597, 43 S.E.2d 667 (1947); Dependable Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 218 Ga. 305, 127 S.E.2d 454 (1962); Orkin Exterminating Co. v. Gilland, 130 Ga. App. 788, 204 S.E.2d 469 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Residence of Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority. — Pursuant to this paragraph, General Assembly may fix residence of Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority for venue purposes when it is sued alone, but Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV) provides the venue when MARTA is sued as a joint tort-feasor. Glover v. Donaldson, 243 Ga. 479, 254 S.E.2d 857 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Situation rendering paragraph inapplicable. — Where the defendant carrier and the individual defendant were joint tort-feasors, venue of the suit as to both could be laid in the county of either of them pursuant to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV), and under such circumstances, the provision of this paragraph, to the effect that a defendant is entitled to be sued in the county of the defendant's residence, does not apply. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Amendment of 1912 (Ga. L. 1912, p. 66, §§ 1-4) fixing venue of electric companies was not violative of this paragraph. Central Ga. Power Co. v. Stubbs, 141 Ga. 172, 80 S.E. 636 (1913) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Venue against railroads fixed by O.C.G.A. § 46-1-2 is cumulative. Williams v. East Tenn., V. & Ga. Ry., 90 Ga. 519, 16 S.E. 303 (1892); Gilbert v. Georgia

R.R. & Banking Co., 104 Ga. 412, 30 S.E. 673 (1898).

Proper venue had to be determined pursuant to Georgia's long arm statute. — Trial court did not err in denying a motion filed by a corporate president and the president's spouse to dismiss a corporation's action against them or, in the alternative, to transfer the case because the trial court's application of the relation-back statute, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-15(c), did not violate the constitutional right of the president and the wife to be sued in the county where they resided under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI; because the president and the spouse were not residents of Georgia when the suit was filed, the proper venue had to be determined pursuant to Georgia's Long Arm Statute, O.C.G.A. §§ 9-10-91 and 9-10-93. Cartwright v. Fuji Photo Film U.S.A., Inc., 312 Ga. App. 890, 720 S.E.2d 200 (2011), cert. denied, No. S12C0600, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 306 (Ga. 2012).

5. Foreign Corporations

Editor's notes. — Some of the cases noted under this subheading were decided prior to the addition of the provision regarding prescribing of venue as to corporations by law.

Office and place of business. — Foreign corporation has residence in any county in this state for the purpose of being sued where it has an office and a place of doing business. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953).

Agent upon whom service can be perfected. — A foreign corporation doing business in this state, for purposes of suit, may be treated as a resident of this state and of any county in which it has an agent upon whom service can be perfected. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953).

Foreign LLC's principal place of business was not LLC's registered office in Georgia. — Under O.C.G.A. §§ 14-2-510(b)(4) and 14-11-1108(b), venue for a Georgia corporation's suit against a foreign LLC lay in the county where the tort occurred, Thomas County; the provision allowing the LLC to transfer venue to the LLC's principal place of business did not apply because the statute permitted transfer only to a county in Georgia and the LLC's principal place of business was in Maryland as shown in the LLC's application for a certificate of authority under O.C.G.A. § 14-11-702(a)(6). Kingdom Retail Group, LLC v. Pandora Franchising, LLC, 334 Ga. App. 812, 780 S.E.2d 459 (2015).

Foreign railway company can have residence in this state, which will subject it to suit in the courts; whenever it is present in any county of this state conducting a part of the business for which it was organized, it becomes a resident of such county. Jones v. Chandler, 88 Ga. App. 103, 76 S.E.2d 237 (1953).

Action against nonresident motor common carrier. — Even though a nonresident interstate motor common carrier was registered in Georgia and had a registered agent for service of process, venue of a personal injury action against the carrier and nonresident driver was proper only in the county in which the accident occurred. Southern Drayage, Inc. v. Williams, 216 Ga. App. 721, 455 S.E.2d 418 (1995).

Nonresident who voluntarily institutes suit in this state submits, for all purposes of that suit, to jurisdiction of the courts of the county in which suit is pending and is not deprived of constitutional venue requirements of this paragraph. Howard Concrete Pipe Co. v. Cohen, 139 Ga. App. 491, 229 S.E.2d 8 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Temporary presence of nonresident tortfeasor. — The temporary presence of a nonresident tortfeasor in this state is not such residence within the meaning of the Constitution as will authorize joining, in a suit against the tortfeasor in the county where the tortfeasor is found and served, other joint tortfeasors who reside in a different county or counties of this state. Benton Rapid Express v. Johnson, 202 Ga. 597, 43 S.E.2d 667 (1947).

Impartial Jury Requirement

Exception to trial in county of crime. — This paragraph requires that unless an impartial jury cannot be obtained "all criminal cases shall be tried in the county where the crime was committed." Stephens v. Zant, 631 F.2d 397 (5th Cir. 1980), modified, 648 F.2d 446, (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1035, 102 S. Ct. 575, 70 L. E. 2d 480 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 462 U.S. 862, 103 S. Ct. 2733, 17 L. Ed. 2d 235 (1983) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Best test of jury impartiality is examination of prospective jurors on voir dire. Jarrell v. State, 234 Ga. 410, 216 S.E.2d 258 (1975).

Judge need not put all jurors on voir dire before granting change of venue, as voir dire questions go to the impartiality of the juror; and, if the judge is satisfied that no qualified jury can be obtained in a certain county, the judge can in the judge's discretion grant a change of venue. Alley v. Gormley, 181 Ga. 650, 183 S.E. 787 (1935).

Test for pretrial publicity impact. — Test as to whether pretrial publicity has so prejudiced a case that accused cannot receive fair trial is whether jurors summoned to try the case have formed fixed opinions as to guilt or innocence of accused from pretrial publicity. Wilkes v. State, 238 Ga. 57, 230 S.E.2d 867 (1976).

Motions for change of venue within court's discretion. — Grant or denial of motions for change of venue lies within discretion of trial court and its discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent an abuse of that discretion. Jordan v. State, 247 Ga. 328, 276 S.E.2d 224 (1981).

Test for determining whether trial court abused its discretion in overruling a motion for change of venue based on alleged juror prejudice is whether the jurors summoned to try the case are found at voir dire to have formed fixed opinions as to guilt or innocence. Jordan v. State, 247 Ga. 328, 276 S.E.2d 224 (1981).

The prospective jurors passed the test of impartiality and the trial court did not abuse its discretion in overruling defendant's motion for a change of venue. Jordan v. State, 247 Ga. 328, 276 S.E.2d 224 (1981).

Submission of conflicting evidence not sufficient to demonstrate abuse of discretion. — The fact that conflicting evidence is submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion for change of venue based on alleged juror prejudice is not sufficient to demonstrate an abuse of discretion. Jordan v. State, 247 Ga. 328, 276 S.E.2d 224 (1981).

Superior Court judge may not change venue on own motion over defendant's objection. — Under Georgia's constitutional and statutory law, a superior court judge lacks the authority to grant a change of venue in a criminal case, on the judge's own motion and over defense objection, on the ground that a fair and impartial jury cannot be obtained in the county where the crime was allegedly committed. Patterson v. Faircloth, 256 Ga. 489, 350 S.E.2d 243 (1986), disapproving dicta in Wheeler v. State, 42 Ga. 306 (1871).

Venue of libel action against newspaper corporation in this state would be "where the defendant resides," or in other words, in the county of the principal office or place of business of the corporation. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 223. (Opinion rendered prior to addition of provision regarding prescribing of venue as to corporations by law.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Jurisdiction and venue distinguished. — Jurisdiction means the power of a court to render a binding judgment in the case, and venue means the place of trial. Williams v. Fuller, 244 Ga. 846, 262 S.E.2d 135 (1979).

In Georgia, the power to change the venue in criminal cases is vested exclusively in the superior courts. Slaughter v. State, 61 Ga. App. 619, 7 S.E.2d 215 (1940) (decided in part under former Code 1933, § 27-1201).

The acts relating to trial of misdemeanors in Criminal Court of Fulton County do not contravene provisions of U.S. Const., amend. 14 for the reason that defendants therein in seeking a review by appellate courts must proceed by the slower and more expensive method of first petitioning to the superior court of the county for a certiorari, whereas, if tried in the superior court, they may sue out a bill of exceptions directly to the Court of Appeals, for the further reason that newly discovered evidence cannot be considered by superior courts in awarding a new trial on a petition for certiorari, or for the further reason that misdemeanor defendants in the court of the trial have no right to move for a change of venue as defendants were permitted to move in the superior courts, under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI), and this paragraph, and former Code 1933, § 27-1201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 17-7-150). McIntyre v. State, 190 Ga. 872, 11 S.E.2d 5 (1940), cert. denied, 312 U.S. 695, 61 S. Ct. 732, 85 L. Ed. 1130 (1941) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Judge need not put all jurors on voir dire before granting a change of venue, as voir dire questions go to the impartiality of the jurors; and, if the judge is satisfied that no qualified jury can be obtained in a certain county, the judge can, in judicial discretion, grant a change of venue. Alley v. Gormley, 181 Ga. 650, 183 S.E. 787 (1935).

Superior court judge may not change venue on own motion over defendant's objection. — Under Georgia's constitutional and statutory law, the superior court judge lacks the authority to grant a change of venue in a criminal case, on the judge's own motion and over defense objection, on the ground that a fair and impartial jury cannot be obtained in the county where the crime was allegedly committed. Patterson v. Faircloth, 256 Ga.

489, 350 S.E.2d 243 (1986), disapproving dicta in Wheeler v. State, 42 Ga. 306 (1871).

Improper venue. — O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31(c) was not a proper exercise of the legislature's authority to enact laws which allowed the superior and state courts to change venue; furthermore, because O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31.1(a) vested power to change venue in the court, and not in a defendant, as did O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31(c). O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31.1(a) was proper under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII, and did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV. EHCA Cartersville, LLC v. Turner, 280 Ga. 333, 626 S.E.2d 482 (2006).

ANALYSIS

GENERAL CONSIDERATION

PROBATE COURTS

FORMER JUSTICE OF THE PEACE COURTS

Uniform jurisdiction of magistrate courts. — The requirement of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I that “magistrate ... courts shall have uniform jurisdiction as provided by law” relates to jurisdiction rather than to the method of selection and terms of office of magistrates. State v. Boatright, 256 Ga. 23, 342 S.E.2d 674 (1986).

Jurisdiction over foreign plaintiff’s contract action. — When an out-of-state seller sued an in-state buyer in Georgia, despite a provision in the parties’ contract for the jurisdiction of the courts of Texas, and the seller did not respond, the courts of Georgia had subject matter jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 15-7-4(a)(2); Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. I; Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I; and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I; the parties waived the forum selection clause by either filing suit in Georgia or not responding. Euler-Siac S.P.A. (Creamar Spa) v. Drama Marble Co., 274 Ga. App. 252, 617 S.E.2d 203 (2005).

Termination of parental rights. — Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(2)(C), the superior court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to terminate the husband’s parental rights because the biological father’s petition to legitimate a child who was born in wedlock was a petition to terminate the parental rights of the legal father; after the superior court determined that the biological father had not abandoned his opportunity interest, the issue became whether the superior court could grant the petition to legitimate the child, and to grant the legitimation petition required the superior court to first terminate the parental rights of the husband, who was the legal father. Brine v. Shipp, 291 Ga. 376, 729 S.E.2d 393 (2012).

Probate Courts

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II and antecedent provisions, relating to specific powers of the probate courts, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Purpose of Ga. Const. 1945, Art. 6, Sec. 6, Para. II(b) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I and Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III) is to provide for speedy trials for persons charged with misdemeanor violations upon highways. It was not the purpose of Ga. Const. 1945, Art. 6, Sec. 6, Para. II(b) to divest existing courts of jurisdiction in such cases, or to transfer jurisdiction from existing courts to another court not having such jurisdiction prior to the enactment of II(b). Gibson v. Gober, 204 Ga. 714, 51 S.E.2d 664 (1949).

Intent of Ga. Const. 1945, Art. 6, Sec. 6, Para. II(b) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I and Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III) is to confer jurisdiction as to subject matter upon police courts with the same restrictions as are imposed upon courts of ordinary (now probate courts). Clarke v. Johnson, 199 Ga. 163, 33 S.E.2d 425 (1945).

Limited authority as to county matters. — This paragraph must be construed in connection with the other provisions of the Constitution, and carries the implication that the courts of ordinary (now probate courts) have no authority as to county matters except such “as may be conferred on them by law.” Harrison v. Southern Ry., 44 Ga. App. 49, 160 S.E. 656 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I).

Legislative authority. — Authority of General Assembly to prescribe powers of ordinary (now probate judge) over county affairs necessarily includes authority to increase or diminish such powers. Bleckley v. Vickers, 225 Ga. 593, 170 S.E.2d 695 (1969).

Where probate judge sits for county purposes. — The ordinary (now probate judge) sits for county purposes only in those counties where jurisdiction over county matters and county affairs has not been granted by legislative Act to a county commissioner or board of county commissioners. Bleckley v. Vickers, 225 Ga. 593, 170 S.E.2d 695 (1969).

Local Act creating board of county commissioners does not unconstitutionally infringe upon authority of ordinary (now probate judge). Bleckley v. Vickers, 225 Ga. 593, 170 S.E.2d 695 (1969).

Judgments subject to revision and vacation. — Courts of record retain full control over their orders and judgments during the term at which they are rendered, and in the exercise of sound discretion may revise or vacate them, as the ends of justice may require; the court of ordinary (now probate court) is a court of record, and its judgments are subject to this same rule and may be set aside during the term when entered, in the sound discretion of the ordinary (now probate judge). Hall v. First Nat’l Bank, 87 Ga. App. 142, 73 S.E.2d 252 (1952), cert. denied, 348 U.S. 896, 75 S. Ct. 215, 99 L. Ed. 704 (1954).

Probate court did not have jurisdiction to remove a trustee. Moring v. Moring, 228 Ga. App. 662, 492 S.E.2d 558 (1997).

Probate court has no authority to appoint another as guardian of the person of a child who has a living natural guardian unless the loss of that status has been ascertained and declared in some regular proceeding authorized by law, after due notice is given. Whitlock v. Barrett, 158 Ga. App. 100, 279 S.E.2d 244 (1981).

Range of appointment limited where minor has natural guardian. — For a minor having no guardian, the judge of the probate court may appoint a guardian of the person and property, or of either, but if the minor has a natural guardian, it certainly cannot be said in a broad sense that he or she has no guardian; in such case the range of appointment is limited to guardianship of the property, for it is only as to property that there is no guardian. Whitlock v. Barrett, 158 Ga. App. 100, 279 S.E.2d 244 (1981).

Compromise of claim. — The probate court’s plenary jurisdiction does not cease upon the guardian’s compromise of a contested or doubtful claim. Gnann v. Woodall, 270 Ga. 516, 511 S.E.2d 188 (1999).

No jurisdiction to try title claims on application for year’s support. — The probate court has no jurisdiction to try conflicting claims of title to real property on an application for a year’s support. Johnson v. Johnson, 199 Ga. App. 549, 405 S.E.2d 544 (1991).

Probate court erred by allowing the objections of a bank and a decedent’s parents solely on the basis of adverse title and by denying a year’s support to the widow when the widow failed to meet the resulting burden of proof because the probate court lacked the jurisdiction under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 6, Sec. 3, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 15-9-30 to determine that the relevant money-market account and real property were not part of the estate; despite the jurisdictional limitation and the lack of an appropriate objection, the probate court proceeded to conduct a hearing as to the amount necessary for the widow’s support, thereby inappropriately placing upon the widow a burden of proof that was contrary to O.C.G.A. § 53-3-7(a) and otherwise lacking in the absence of the jurisdictionally defective objections to the petition. In re Mahmoodzadeh, 314 Ga. App. 383, 724 S.E.2d 797 (2012).

No jurisdiction to adjudicate claims of title to property. — Probate court does not have the jurisdiction to adjudicate conflicting claims of title to property; thus, where decedent's widow asserted an ownership interest in property sought by the executor of the estate, and order of the probate court giving possession of such property to the executor was void, the widow could not be found in contempt for noncompliance with the order. In re Estate of Adamson, 215 Ga. App. 613, 451 S.E.2d 501 (1994).

Former Justice of the Peace Courts

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. II and antecedent provisions, relating to jurisdiction of the former justice of the peace courts (now magistrate courts), are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

This paragraph is not self-executing. Tibbs v. Williamson, 61 Ga. 74 (1878); Humphrey v. Johnson, 13 Ga. App. 557, 79 S.E. 530 (1913).

Right of appeals under Ch. 2, T. 5 is consistent with this paragraph. Helmly v. Davis, 100 Ga. 493, 28 S.E. 231 (1897).

Justice of the peace court has jurisdiction of action to recover debt less than $200.00. — Where one is indebted to another on an open account in excess of $200.00, and gives two checks for a part thereof, which are credited on the account, an action against that person by the creditor for less than $200.00 to recover the full amount of the balance of the open account will lie, and is within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace court even though another action has been filed to recover on the checks which had been dishonored. Parker v. Timberlake Grocery Co., 71 Ga. App. 280, 30 S.E.2d 650 (1944).

Justice of the peace courts have jurisdiction of suits on distinct evidences of debt although they are given for one and the same debt or consideration. Parker v. Timberlake Grocery Co., 71 Ga. App. 280, 30 S.E.2d 650 (1944).

Extent of criminal jurisdiction of justice court. — While justice courts have jurisdiction with respect to certain matters in the administration of criminal law, such courts did not have jurisdiction in criminal actions as the word was defined in former Code 1933, §§ 3-101-3-103 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-2-1). Pate v. Taylor Chem. Co., 88 Ga. App. 127, 76 S.E.2d 131 (1953).

Effect of Act creating municipal court providing that criminal jurisdiction would not exceed that of justice court. — Where Act creating municipal court provides that the criminal jurisdiction of the court would not exceed the jurisdiction by law in the justice courts, but would extend over the entire county, such municipal court is not thereby given jurisdiction of criminal actions, though it might have jurisdiction with respect to certain matters in connection with the administration of criminal law. Pate v. Taylor Chem. Co., 88 Ga. App. 127, 76 S.E.2d 131 (1953).

Section providing for abatement of nuisances unconstitutional. — Jurisdiction to abate a nuisance as provided in former Code 1933, § 72-201 (see § 41-2-1) was expressly denied the justices of the peace courts under this paragraph. Because that section was in irreconcilable conflict with the Constitution, it was void. Sizemore v. Coker, 220 Ga. 773, 141 S.E.2d 891 (1965).

Court lacked jurisdiction. — Under this paragraph, affidavits of illegality filed to levy of ordinary executions for amounts greater than $200.00 are returnable to other courts having jurisdiction. Scott v. Mayor of Mount Airy, 186 Ga. 652, 198 S.E. 693 (1938).

Conversion of personal property does not constitute injury to property within the meaning of this paragraph. Blocker v. Boswell, 109 Ga. 230, 34 S.E. 289 (1899); Covington v. Rosenbusch, 148 Ga. 459, 97 S.E. 78 (1918).

For definition of damages under this paragraph, see Seaboard Air-Line Ry. v. Smith, 3 Ga. App. 644, 60 S.E. 353 (1908).

Insured in life insurance policy may not reduce amount of claim without consent so as to vest jurisdiction in justice of the peace court. — Where an insured in a life insurance policy, in an action against the insurer to recover for an alleged breach of the contract, alleges the insured's damage as being in the amount of the premiums which had been paid on the policy, the amount of the damage was fixed and certain, and constituted a liquidated demand which, in a suit in a justice of the peace court, the insured cannot, without the consent of the insurer, reduce in order to bring the case within the monetary jurisdiction of the justice's court. Smith v. Atlanta Mut. Ins. Co., 42 Ga. App. 254, 155 S.E. 535 (1930).

Jurisdiction of court in action in trover is determinable by allegations in petition and not by averment in affidavit for bail. Dorsey v. Cotton States Fertilizer Co., 46 Ga. App. 485, 167 S.E. 924 (1933).

Probate Courts

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II and antecedent provisions, relating to specific powers of the probate courts, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

This paragraph does not contemplate creation of a court, but rather enlargement of the jurisdiction of the probate court. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-10 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I).

Probate judge calls special primary. — While T. 21 does not specify the exact method of calling a special primary, the judge of the probate court is the officer generally having jurisdiction of primaries, and the judge is the proper person to call a special primary. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-128.

Probate judges continue to exercise jurisdiction over traffic cases. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

Probate judges may issue arrest warrants only in certain traffic cases and for peace officers accused of any offense in the performance of their duties. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-13.

Ga. L. 1955, p. 736, §§ 1 and 2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 40-6-371 and 40-6-376), giving local authorities right to pass traffic regulations, was not in conflict with this paragraph. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-79 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I).

Jurisdiction to issue warrants and require bond. — Because a probate court may hold a court of inquiry pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 17-7-20, it may also issue warrants and require bond pursuant to either O.C.G.A. § 17-6-90 or O.C.G.A. § 17-6-110. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

Jurisdiction to set bail. — Because a probate court may hold a court of inquiry pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 17-7-20, it may also set bail for any criminal offense not included in O.C.G.A. § 17-6-1(a). 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

Jurisdiction to hear case where offense occurs within city limits. — Probate court has jurisdiction to hear traffic case involving violation of state law even where offense occurs within city limits of municipality which has recorder's court. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-47.

Jurisdiction over violations of county ordinances. — A probate court has jurisdiction over violations of county ordinances in counties of 550,000, or more, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 36-1-17. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

A probate court, having jurisdiction over traffic offenses pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-30(b)(8) and 40-13-21, has jurisdiction over violations of county traffic ordinances. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

No jurisdiction over violations of waste management or air pollution statutes. — The probate court does not have jurisdiction to try or sentence an individual accused of violating the criminal provisions concerning waste management or air pollution. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

A probate court may exercise state judicial power over misdemeanor traffic offenses occurring within the corporate limits of a municipal corporation where the charter of the municipal corporation authorizes a municipal court but no such court is in existence. The arresting officer in a misdemeanor traffic case is responsible for returning those charges to the proper court with jurisdiction to hear the matter, but, if the citation is erroneously returned to the incorrect court, that court should promptly act to transfer the matter to a court with jurisdiction to consider the charges. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-30.

O.C.G.A. § 40-13-29 does not prohibit the probate court from exercising state judicial power in any county simply because of the existence of a municipal court within the corporate limits of a municipal corporation within that county. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-30.

Section 40-13-20 is broader than this paragraph, for under the former, any recorder's court is authorized to try traffic offenses, while under this paragraph, only those recorder's courts situated in counties having no city or county court are given such jurisdiction. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 899 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I).

Probate court is not governed by Ga. L. 1971, p. 180, §§ 6 and 9 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-15-9), since a probate court does not have comparable powers to those of the superior court. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-119.

Drunkenness of person in automobile other than driver is not traffic offense and the probate court is without jurisdiction to try that offense. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 59.

Probate court has affirmative burden to obtain written waiver of a jury trial prior to proceeding to dispose of a pending traffic case on merits. However, the defendant has an affirmative burden to notify the court if the jury trial is desired. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-135.

Named probate court may issue warrant ordering apprehension of individual charged with violating traffic laws of this state who fails to appear in court on the date and at the time specified in the citation upon which he or she was arrested. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-58.

Probate court judges may not exercise jurisdiction over cases involving possession of one ounce or less of marijuana, either by virtue of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. XI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. X, Para. I) or by virtue of their undisputed authority over misdemeanor traffic cases. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-25.

Probate courts have jurisdiction to try violations of provisions regulating the size of loads and vehicles on public roads. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U79-14.

Probate court does not have jurisdiction to try violations of weight restrictions. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U79-14.

Probate court does not have jurisdiction over violations of motor vehicle licensing law. — The provisions regulating motor vehicle licensing are not within the purview of this paragraph and Ga. L. 1962, p. 3146, § 2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 40-13-21), and the provisions are not "traffic laws" contemplated by this paragraph and the Georgia law. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-18 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I).

Former Justice of the Peace Courts

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. II and antecedent provisions, relating to jurisdiction of the former justice of the peace courts (now magistrate courts), are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Justice of the peace courts have jurisdiction in bail trover cases up to the amount of $200.00. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 77.

Justice of the peace may only honor applications for writs of possession as provided by former Code 1933, § 67-701 et seq. (see now O.C.G.A. Part 4, Art. 7, Ch. 14, T. 44) when amount in controversy does not exceed $200.00. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U74-104.

Justice of the peace may not issue bill of peace. — Since the superior court has exclusive jurisdiction over equity matters and a bill of peace is an equitable remedy, justices of the peace do not have jurisdiction to entertain a petition for such relief; it follows that any such bill of peace issued by a justice of the peace would be void and of no effect. 1957 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 66.

Attendance at justice of the peace court commitment hearing does not entitle officer to fee. 1970 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U70-234.

Superior courts have exclusive jurisdiction to hear appeals from justice of the peace/magistrate courts; such jurisdiction having a constitutional basis until July 1, 1983, and a statutory one thereafter. 1983 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U83-27.

SECTION IV.

SUPERIOR COURTS

Paragraph

I. Jurisdiction of superior courts.

Paragraph I. Jurisdiction of superior courts.

The superior courts shall have jurisdiction in all cases, except as otherwise provided in this Constitution. They shall have exclusive jurisdiction over trials in felony cases, except in the case of juvenile offenders as provided by law; in cases respecting title to land; in divorce cases; and in equity cases. The superior courts shall have such appellate jurisdiction, either alone or by circuit or district, as may be provided by law.

Court may be presided over by more than one judge. — There is only one superior court in each county, but the court may be presided over by more than one judge, and the court may be divided into divisions, each presided over by a different judge. Fulton County v. Woodside, 222 Ga. 90, 149 S.E.2d 140 (1966).

Section 9-10-31.1(a) is constitutional. — O.C.G.A. § 9-10-31.1(a) does not automatically divest a superior court of its jurisdiction, but to the contrary a transfer of venue under the statute occurs only after the trial court exercises initial jurisdiction over the case to determine whether, in the interest of justice and for the convenience of the parties and witnesses, a claim or action would be more properly heard in a forum outside the state; accordingly, § 9-10-31.1(a) remains constitutional under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I. Hawthorn Suites Golf Resorts, LLC v. Feneck, 282 Ga. 554, 651 S.E.2d 664 (2007).

Legislature and judges may not alter jurisdiction of superior court. — The Constitution has vested all the judicial power in the courts of the state, and neither the legislature nor a judge, nor the judges of a superior court have authority to limit or expand the jurisdiction and authority of a superior court. Fulton County v. Woodside, 222 Ga. 90, 149 S.E.2d 140 (1966).

Judges in multi-judge circuits have coequal jurisdiction and authority, yet are subject to reasonable rules designed to expedite the business of the court by adopting a manner or method for distribution of the business of the court among the judges. Fulton County v. Woodside, 222 Ga. 90, 149 S.E.2d 140 (1966).

Superior courts do not have exclusive jurisdiction of actions involving injuries to the person, nor does any other court within the same territorial jurisdiction as the Municipal Court of Savannah have such exclusive jurisdiction. Goebel v. Hodges, 83 Ga. App. 574, 64 S.E.2d 207 (1951).

All superior courts have jurisdiction over subject matter of habeas corpus cases or cases in nature of habeas corpus. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 237 Ga. 845, 229 S.E.2d 751 (1976).

For jurisdiction of superior courts as to appeals from Department of Industrial Relations (now State Board of Workers' Compensation), see Department of Indus. Relations v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 669, 170 S.E. 883, answer conformed to, 47 Ga. App. 553, 171 S.E. 169 (1933).

The superior courts have inherent authority to supervise the inferior courts in their respective jurisdictions. McCray v. Cobb County, 251 Ga. 24, 302 S.E.2d 563 (1983).

Designation of part-time and full-time judges. — Legislative Act may require the judges of the superior courts to designate which judges of courts of limited jurisdiction are full-time and which are part-time for purposes of compensation and to approve a schedule of availability for issuing warrants. McCray v. Cobb County, 251 Ga. 24, 302 S.E.2d 563 (1983).

Superior courts retain exclusive jurisdiction as to declaratory judgment actions. EVI Equip., Inc. v. Northern Ins. Co., 178 Ga. App. 197, 342 S.E.2d 380 (1986), overruled on other grounds, 185 Ga. App. 870, 366 S.E.2d 179 (1988).

Subject-matter jurisdiction for judicial review of State Personnel Board decisions lies in the superior courts with venue in the county of the place of employment of the employee. Duval v. Department of Human Resources, 183 Ga. App. 726, 359 S.E.2d 756 (1987).

Subject matter jurisdiction over probate matter. — Trial court had subject matter jurisdiction to review the probate court's decision under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(4)(E) to deny probate of the decedent's 1988 will and the parties' waiver of the statutory right to a jury trial did not deprive the trial court of subject matter jurisdiction to deny probate of the will. Mosley v. Lancaster, 296 Ga. 862, 770 S.E.2d 873 (2015).

Divorce

Exclusive jurisdiction of alimony cases is within superior courts. Mathews v. Mathews, 123 Ga. App. 81, 179 S.E.2d 547 (1970).

City courts without jurisdiction in divorce. — Since the exclusive jurisdiction of questions of divorce and/or alimony is vested in the superior courts, city courts are without jurisdiction to entertain a suit for alimony in a case in which a judgment has previously been rendered in the superior court. Tyson v. Tyson, 176 Ga. 137, 167 S.E. 172 (1932).

A city court is without jurisdiction to entertain a suit for alimony and/or child support ancillary to such action in a case in which a judgment setting the sum payable has previously been rendered in a superior court. Mathews v. Mathews, 123 Ga. App. 81, 179 S.E.2d 547 (1970).

Reference to "divorce cases" does not include determination of custody of minor children. Wilbanks v. Wilbanks, 220 Ga. 665, 141 S.E.2d 161 (1965).

Superior court has no jurisdiction in action on foreign alimony judgment. — An action on a foreign judgment for alimony, being an action on a debt of record rather than for an allowance from the husband for support of the wife, does not come within the exclusive jurisdiction of the superior courts. Ryle v. Ryle, 130 Ga. App. 680, 204 S.E.2d 339 (1974).

Award of custody does not fix exclusive jurisdiction. — It cannot be said that a judge of the superior court, by awarding the custody of minor children in a decree of divorce, acquires exclusive jurisdiction as to their future custody, under this paragraph and § 19-9-1. The interest and welfare of the minor children being the paramount issue, even in a contest between parents, or by other persons against the parents, the state is also parens patriae, and neither the child nor the state is finally concluded by the divorce proceedings. Fortson v. Fortson, 200 Ga. 116, 35 S.E.2d 896 (1945).

Jurisdiction over custody dispute involving nonparent. — Custody dispute between a child's grandmothers and the child's parents fell within the superior court's broad original jurisdiction. Barfield v. Butterworth, 323 Ga. App. 156, 746 S.E.2d 819 (2013).

O.C.G.A. § 19-5-13 does not divest state courts of jurisdiction over trover or conversion actions in which the alleged trover or conversion results from the defendant's retention of property awarded to the plaintiff in a final divorce decree. Dunlap v. Pope, 177 Ga. App. 539, 339 S.E.2d 662 (1986).

Criminal Cases

Jurisdiction to try person accused of felony is vested exclusively by this paragraph in superior courts. Andrews v. State, 130 Ga. App. 2, 202 S.E.2d 246 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Superior court has concurrent jurisdiction with other courts in misdemeanor cases. Bell v. State, 41 Ga. 589 (1871); Clifton v. State, 53 Ga. 241 (1874).

Subject matter jurisdiction. — Allegations of fraud in a presentence report and improper consideration by the trial court of another pending charge against defendant did not constitute "fraudulent subject matter" and thus did not deprive the court of jurisdiction nor did it render defendant's sentence void. Broadwell v. State, 224 Ga. App. 193, 480 S.E.2d 215 (1996).

Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I vests superior courts with exclusive subject matter jurisdiction over all felony trials. Goodrum v. State, 259 Ga. App. 704, 578 S.E.2d 484 (2003).

Effect of proceedings in juvenile court on jurisdiction. — The superior court has constitutional jurisdiction to try a person accused of a felony if the person has reached the age of criminal responsibility. Nothing in Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 11, T. 15) or in the proceedings of a juvenile court can abrogate this jurisdiction. Mathis v. State, 231 Ga. 401, 202 S.E.2d 73 (1973).

Statutory bar to a criminal prosecution and a statutory limitation upon a criminal prosecution (see now O.C.G.A. § 16-1-8(c)) are procedural prohibitions that do not affect jurisdiction in any way. Dorsey v. State, 237 Ga. 876, 230 S.E.2d 307 (1976).

Sheriff is not entitled to payment from county funds of sheriff's fees in misdemeanor cases disposed of in city court. Hubbard v. Henderson, 205 Ga. 438, 54 S.E.2d 271 (1949).

Sentence entered by a Superior Court in a felony case not void. — State did not have the right to appeal sentences imposed by the trial court contrary to a plea agreement under O.C.G.A. § 5-7-1(a)(6) because the sentences were not void; the sentences were within the 20-year range of punishments for robbery and aggravated assault, O.C.G.A. §§ 16-5-21(b) and 16-8-40(b), and the trial court had jurisdiction over the case, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(1). State v. Harper, 279 Ga. App. 620, 631 S.E.2d 820 (2006) was overruled. State v. King, 325 Ga. App. 445, 750 S.E.2d 756 (2013).

Juvenile Cases

Effect of adjudication of guilt in superior court. — A juvenile whose case is properly transferred to the superior court is subject to the criminal sanctions which may be imposed in that court. Thus, an adjudication of guilt of a juvenile in superior court is a criminal adjudication. Carrindine v. Ricketts, 236 Ga. 283, 223 S.E.2d 627 (1976).

Jurisdictional parameters of courts over juveniles. — This paragraph is authority and direction for the General Assembly to adopt implementing legislation defining the jurisdictional parameters of courts over juveniles. J.W.A. v. State, 233 Ga. 683, 212 S.E.2d 849 (1975), commented on in 27 Mercer L. Rev. 335 (1975). (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

The juvenile court jurisdiction statute does not violate the separation of powers doctrine of the state constitution, nor does it violate the due process and equal protection provisions of the federal and state constitutions. Bishop v. State, 265 Ga. 821, 462 S.E.2d 716 (1995); Murphy v. State, 267 Ga. 100, 475 S.E.2d 590 (1996).

Jurisdiction of superior court to try juvenile for felony. — Where a child has been indicted by a grand jury for murder, the superior court has constitutional jurisdiction to try the child, as any person accused of a felony, if the child has reached the age of criminal responsibility. Nothing in Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 11, T. 15) or in the proceedings of a juvenile court can abrogate this jurisdiction. J.E. v. State, 127 Ga. App. 589, 194 S.E.2d 288 (1972).

This paragraph preserves superior court jurisdiction over criminal cases but also authorizes concurrent original jurisdiction to be placed in juvenile courts. J.W.A. v. State, 233 Ga. 683, 212 S.E.2d 849 (1975), commented on in 27 Mercer L. Rev. 335 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Superior court jurisdiction over juveniles not exclusive. — This paragraph only provides that the jurisdiction of the superior courts over juvenile felony offenders is not exclusive, in the case of juvenile offenders as provided by law. J.W.A. v. State, 133 Ga. App. 102, 210 S.E.2d 24 (1974), rev'd on other grounds, 233 Ga. 683, 212 S.E.2d 849 (1975).

Statutory scheme does not deprive juveniles of due process rights. — Statutory scheme which contemplates trials of juveniles in felony cases that are punished by death or life imprisonment in either superior or juvenile court does not deprive juveniles of any substantive or procedural due process rights. Chapman v. State, 259 Ga. 592, 385 S.E.2d 661 (1989).

This paragraph does not preclude joint indictment and trial of capital and noncapital felonies. Jarrell v. State, 234 Ga. 410, 216 S.E.2d 258 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Indictment of juvenile for noncapital felony in superior court does not oust juvenile court of its first obtained jurisdiction. J.W.A. v. State, 233 Ga. 683, 212 S.E.2d 849 (1975), commented on in 27 Mercer L. Rev. 335 (1975).

Title to Land

No jurisdiction in state court. — As the superior courts have exclusive jurisdiction in cases respecting title to land, this issue cannot be tried in state court. Hyman v. Leathers, 168 Ga. App. 112, 308 S.E.2d 388 (1983).

Action must involve title directly. — An action is not one respecting title to land where the title is not directly involved. Adair v. Spellman Sem., 13 Ga. App. 600, 79 S.E. 589 (1913); Kennedy v. Smith, 23 Ga. App. 724, 99 S.E. 318 (1919).

The phrase "cases respecting title to land," as that phrase is used in determining subject-matter jurisdiction of superior courts under this paragraph, refers to cases in which the plaintiff asserts the plaintiff's title to the land in question, and depends for a recovery upon the plaintiff's maintenance of it. Ingold, Inc. v. Adair, 247 Ga. 155, 274 S.E.2d 560 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Superior courts have jurisdiction in action to contest issue of delivery of deed and thereby try the title to the land described in the deed. Dobbs v. First Nat'l Bank, 65 Ga. App. 796, 16 S.E.2d 485 (1941).

Superior courts do have jurisdiction in action for recovery of value of land taken. — An action in which it is alleged that the city appropriated certain land of the plaintiff to the use of the public as a sidewalk, and asking recovery for the value of the land so taken, is not an action respecting title to land. City of Atlanta v. West, 60 Ga. App. 269, 3 S.E.2d 755 (1939).

Superior courts do not have jurisdiction in actions to recover damages for trespass to land. Batson v. Higginbotham, 7 Ga. App. 835, 68 S.E. 455 (1910).

Superior court does not have jurisdiction in landlord's complaint for ejectment. Ingold, Inc. v. Adair, 247 Ga. 155, 274 S.E.2d 560 (1981).

Jurisdiction held proper. — Upon finding that the trial court had exclusive subject matter jurisdiction, the court also properly ruled that a sibling had prescriptive title to certain property under O.C.G.A. § 44-5-164 by possessing the property under color of title for a period greater than seven years, satisfying the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 44-5-161; the fraud alleged by the other siblings did not defeat said title, as they were unaware of the fraud from 1989 to 2002. Goodrum v. Goodrum, 283 Ga. 163, 657 S.E.2d 192 (2008).

This paragraph confers exclusive jurisdiction in equity cases upon superior courts. Miles v. Wilson, 212 Ga. 60, 90 S.E.2d 568 (1955); Kaplan v. City of Atlanta, 158 Ga. App. 58, 279 S.E.2d 307 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Legal remedies not exhausted. — Trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over a class action suit brought in equity by a class representative who had failed to exhaust the representative's available legal remedies in the juvenile court after the representative's request that counsel be appointed for the representative was denied. Patterson v. Ellerbee, 268 Ga. App. 826, 603 S.E.2d 308 (2004).

Whether action is equitable is determined by its allegations and prayers. Wellcraft Mfg., Inc. v. Troutman, 123 Ga. App. 321, 180 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

On appeal, whether complaint rests in equity and is beyond jurisdiction of court of origin is matter for determination by Court of Appeals. Wellcraft Mfg., Inc. v. Troutman, 123 Ga. App. 321, 180 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

Superior court has jurisdiction of an equitable complaint seeking decree ordering sale of interest of contingent remaindermen. Kennedy v. Durham, 219 Ga. 859, 136 S.E.2d 343 (1964).

Superior court has jurisdiction where judgment for fraud sought. — A judgment sought not merely against the corporation, but also against one of its officers who it is alleged obtained cash and other property for an inadequate consideration, which rendered defendant insolvent and by which plaintiff, a creditor, was defrauded, falls within the purview of this paragraph. Wellcraft Mfg., Inc. v. Troutman, 123 Ga. App. 321, 180 S.E.2d 588 (1971) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

In action to enjoin proceedings, the superior court has jurisdiction. — City courts have no jurisdiction to grant affirmative equitable relief where an action is filed in a city court ordinarily a court of equity will entertain an application by the defendant to enjoin a proceeding, where it is made to appear that the defendant has such rights in the subject matter of the litigation as require the application of equitable remedies for the grant of full relief. Crummey v. Crummey, 190 Ga. 774, 10 S.E.2d 859 (1940).

Where a surviving spouse had abandoned minor children and could not be found, the factual circumstances demanded the exercise of the court's equitable powers to preserve the rights of the minor children, the trial court should have allowed the minors, who had no remedy at law, to maintain an action for the wrongful death of their mother. Brown v. Liberty Oil & Ref. Corp., 261 Ga. 214, 403 S.E.2d 806 (1991).

No equity jurisdiction for garnishment. — A trial court has no authority to modify the child support provisions of a final judgment and divorce decree in a garnishment action; such a modification must be accomplished by the filing of a petition in superior court pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-6-18 or O.C.G.A. § 19-6-19. In addition, the court lacks equity jurisdiction in garnishment cases, even under unusual and exceptional circumstances. Davis v. Davis, 220 Ga. App. 745, 470 S.E.2d 268 (1996).

Former Code 1933, § 37-1104, providing for special verdicts in equity cases, has been repealed by the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. Ch. 11, T. 9. Cawthon v. Douglas County, 248 Ga. 760, 286 S.E.2d 30 (1982).

Jurisdiction Generally

First sentence clearly relates to original jurisdiction. Department of Indus. Relations v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 669, 170 S.E. 883, answer conformed to, 47 Ga. App. 553, 171 S.E. 169 (1933).

Word "jurisdiction," as used in the first sentence, refers to subject matter alone. Starnes v. Mutual Loan &

Banking Co., 102 Ga. 597, 29 S.E. 452 (1897).

Superior court has concurrent jurisdiction with justices' courts in all civil cases where the amount involved is less than $100.00. Phillips v. Rawls, 46 Ga. App. 200, 167 S.E. 189 (1932).

Superior courts have concurrent jurisdiction over misdemeanors with inferior courts. Lee v. State, 222 Ga. App. 389, 474 S.E.2d 281 (1996).

Superior court has no jurisdiction of action brought to establish copy of lost will. Perkins v. Perkins, 21 Ga. 13 (1857); Ponce v. Underwood, 55 Ga. 601 (1876).

Trustee in bankruptcy has right to maintain action in superior court. — Where a bankrupt partnership, before becoming adjudicated a bankrupt, had a right to action against a third person to recover money of the partnership in the hands of the third person, the trustee in bankruptcy has the right to recover the money from the wrongdoer, in a court in which the bankrupt, before the adjudication in bankruptcy, could have maintained such suit; therefore the trustee had the right to maintain such action in the superior court. Brownlow v. Davis, 69 Ga. App. 111, 25 S.E.2d 150 (1943).

Breach of payment bond contract. — Subcontractor's action against surety for breach of payment bond contract, bad faith, and attorney fees was within the superior court's subject matter jurisdiction. Harry S. Peterson Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 209 Ga. App. 585, 434 S.E.2d 778 (1993).

Conversion actions. — The superior courts have subject matter jurisdiction to entertain conversion actions. Hughes v. Hughes, 193 Ga. App. 72, 387 S.E.2d 29 (1990).

Subject matter jurisdiction over employer case. — Superior courts have subject matter jurisdiction over timely Title VII claims under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 filed pursuant to Equal Employment Opportunity Commission notification to the claimant that, the federal prerequisites for suit having been fulfilled, suit may be filed. Collins v. DOT, 208 Ga. App. 53, 429 S.E.2d 707 (1993).

Subject matter jurisdiction of breach of contract and fraud action.

— The superior court had jurisdiction of an action for breach of contract and fraud involving an agreement between an employer and employee, even though the agreement provided that the parties "submit to the exclusive jurisdiction of the English Courts." Bradley v. British Fitting Group, Plc, 221 Ga. App. 621, 472 S.E.2d 146 (1996).

When an out-of-state seller sued an in-state buyer in Georgia, despite a provision in the parties' contract for the jurisdiction of the courts of Texas, and the seller did not respond, the courts of Georgia had subject matter jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 15-7-4(a)(2); Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. I; Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I; and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I; the parties waived the forum selection clause by either filing suit in Georgia or not responding. Euler-Siac S.P.A. (Creamar Spa) v. Drama Marble Co., 274 Ga. App. 252, 617 S.E.2d 203 (2005).

Subject matter jurisdiction over business dispute. — In a direct action brought by a shareholder against another, the trial court did not err by vacating a consent order that incorporated a settlement agreement allegedly reached by the parties as the trial judge to whom the case had been reassigned had subject matter jurisdiction to vacate the previously entered order when the trial judge heard the contempt motions since the trial judge had subject matter jurisdiction over the action, which involved a business dispute. Further, since no final order had been entered in the matter and the case remained pending, the trial court had authority to reconsider the ruling made on the consent order, vacate the order, and order that the matter proceed to trial, irrespective of whether the case has been reassigned to a different trial judge. Internal Med. Alliance, LLC v. Budell, 290 Ga. App. 231, 659 S.E.2d 668 (2008).

Subject matter jurisdiction over action seeking injunction on dockage issues. — Trial court had subject matter jurisdiction over a landowner's action seeking an interlocutory injunction requiring neighbors to move the neighbors' dock because the neighbors did not point to any federal law that would preempt the trial court as an appropriate forum for adjudicating the rights and remedies of the parties; there was no Congressional intent to preclude state action concurrently with the statutory and regulatory scheme establishing the authority of the Army Corps of Engineers over docks on the lake where the parties lived. Dillon v. Reid, 312 Ga. App. 34, 717 S.E.2d 542 (2011).

Termination of parental rights. — Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(2)(C), the superior court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to terminate the husband's parental rights because the biological father's petition to legitimate a child who was born in wedlock was a petition to terminate the parental rights of the legal father; after the superior court determined that the biological father had not abandoned his opportunity interest, the issue became whether the superior court could grant the petition to legitimate the child, and to grant the legitimation petition required the superior court to first terminate the parental rights of the husband, who was the legal father. Brine v. Shipp, 291 Ga. 376, 729 S.E.2d 393 (2012).

Custody dispute of orphaned children. — In a custody dispute involving children orphaned by the murder-suicide of their parents, a trial court did not err in denying an aunt's motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction because the trial court correctly held that, in the absence of an earlier-filed action in juvenile court or probate court, it was the first court to take jurisdiction and it properly retained it. Stone-Crosby v. Mickens-Cook, 318 Ga. App. 313, 733 S.E.2d 842 (2012).

Appellate Jurisdiction

Provision as to appellate jurisdiction not self-executing. De Lamar v. Dollar, 128 Ga. 57, 57 S.E. 85 (1907); De Lamar v. Dollar, 1 Ga. App. 687, 57 S.E. 1054 (1907).

Provision as to appellate jurisdiction is not self-executing, and such jurisdiction can be exercised only in accordance with enabling Acts; that is, only in such manner and to such extent as may be provided by statute. Department of Indus. Relations v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 669, 170 S.E. 883, answer conformed to, 47 Ga. App. 553, 171 S.E. 169 (1933).

Provision as to appellate jurisdiction must be made available by implementation of statute law prescribing the procedural processes to be employed in taking the appeal. Rogers v. Anderson, 95 Ga. App. 637, 98 S.E.2d 388 (1957).

This paragraph is not self-executing, and does not become operative until legislative action regulating the mode and manner of appeal. Southern States Landfill, Inc. v. City of Atlanta Bd. of Zoning Adjustments, 261 Ga. 759, 410 S.E.2d 721 (1991) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Provision as to appellate jurisdiction gives General Assembly authority to enact laws placing conditions upon appeals. Hancock v. Board of Tax Assessors, 226 Ga. 570, 176 S.E.2d 102 (1970).

Appellate jurisdiction of superior court must be exercised, and can only be exercised, in such cases as are provided by law. Georgia R.R. & Banking Co. v. Redwine, 208 Ga. 261, 66 S.E.2d 234 (1951).

Powers limited to that of tribunal. — Superior court as appellate court has no greater or broader powers in reference to subject matter than court or tribunal from which appeal is taken. Department of Indus. Relations v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 669, 170 S.E. 883, answer conformed to, 47 Ga. App. 553, 171 S.E. 169 (1933).

Jurisdiction in workers' compensation appeals. — The jurisdiction of the superior court in cases appealed from the Department of Industrial Relations (now State Board of Workers' Compensation) is not as provided in other laws relating to appeals, but is as defined in Ga. L. 1920, p. 167, § 59 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-9-105). Department of Indus. Relations v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 669, 170 S.E. 883, answer conformed to, 47 Ga. App. 553, 171 S.E. 169 (1933).

Appellate Division of the State Board of Workers' Compensation had the authority to award a life estate to an employer because no dispute as to the title of land was foreseeable in the future, and the Board did not exercise authority reserved to the superior court alone, but rather, it simply exercised its broad authority to craft a reasonable remedy; the Board's Rehabilitation Guidelines require that all issues of ownership and maintenance be resolved before any construction begins. S. Concrete/Watkins Associated Indus. v. Spires, No. A10A1981, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 243 (Mar. 22, 2011).

Authority of court in employment actions. — Trial court had such appellate jurisdiction as the law provided, and, thus, it could consider the county police sergeant's petition for writ of certiorari to review the county manager's affirmance of the police department's decision to demote the county police sergeant even though the county police sergeant could have appealed to the county board of commissioners as the county did not show any authority that the county police sergeant was required to do so or that the trial court did not have the authority to consider the petition. Crumpler v. Henry County, 257 Ga. App. 615, 571 S.E.2d 822 (2002).

Appeal to jury in justice's court not to take precedence of appeal to superior court. — To allow an appeal to a jury in a justice's court to take precedence over an appeal to the superior court would be to deprive the latter court of the jurisdiction expressly provided by this paragraph. East Tenn., V. & Ga. R.R. v. Miles, 72 Ga. 252 (1884) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Proper and timely filing of notice of appeal is absolute requirement to confer jurisdiction upon appellate court. Cooper v. Gwinnett County Bd. of Educ., 157 Ga. App. 289, 277 S.E.2d 285 (1981).

Superior court has no jurisdiction where proper appellate procedure not followed. — Where, in appeal from decision of board of education discharging a teacher, no notice of appeal was filed with the State Board of Education but, instead, appellant filed an appeal directly in the superior court, proper appellate procedure was not followed. Therefore, the superior court did not have jurisdiction to review the decision sought to be appealed. Cooper v. Gwinnett County Bd. of Educ., 157 Ga. App. 289, 277 S.E.2d 285 (1981).

Judicial review of local government's zoning appeal board. — Property owner properly filed a writ of mandamus challenging a county's denial of a business license because the county had no ordinance directing an alternative method of judicial review from a decision by the zoning appeal board, and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I did not provide a form of appeal. Haralson County v. Taylor Junkyard of Bremen, Inc., 291 Ga. 321, 729 S.E.2d 357 (2012).

Judicial review of disability determination. — Superior court lacked jurisdiction for direct appellate review of the denial of a state employee's application for retirement disability benefits under O.C.G.A. § 47-2-123(b)(1). O.C.G.A. § 47-2-3 was inapplicable because the employee was not discharged from employment. Employees' Ret. Sys. of Ga. v. Harris, 303 Ga. App. 191, 692 S.E.2d 798 (2010).

Certiorari

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. V and antecedent provisions, relating to writs of certiorari to superior courts, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Right to correct errors by certiorari conferred by this paragraph and former Civil Code 1910, § 5180 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 4, T. 5) cannot be taken away by legislative Acts. Moore v. City of Winder, 10 Ga. App. 384, 73 S.E. 529 (1912); Taylor v. Georgia Power Co., 44 Ga. App. 326, 161 S.E. 669 (1931); City Inv. Co. v. Crawley, 187 Ga. 48, 199 S.E. 747 (1938); Bankers Life & Cas. Co. v. Cravey, 209 Ga. 274, 71 S.E.2d 659 (1952); Morman v. Pritchard, 108 Ga. App. 247, 132 S.E.2d 561 (1963) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

General Assembly may provide that certiorari is available only after defendant has exhausted the defendant's remedies in municipal court. Rose v. Mayor of Thunderbolt, 86 Ga. App. 867, 72 S.E.2d 823 (1952).

Right of certiorari is constitutional right which exists independently of any statute. City Inv. Co. v. Crawley, 187 Ga. 48, 199 S.E. 747 (1938).

Effect of constitutional amendment authorizing General Assembly to provide for procedure in justice of the peace courts. — The constitutional amendment of 1927 to Ga. Const. 1877, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. X, Para. I, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. I), authorizing the General Assembly, as to certain courts established in lieu of justice courts, to make “such provisions as to rules and procedure in such courts (that is, in the courts substituted) and as to new trials and the correction of errors in and by said courts, and with such further provision for the correction of errors by the superior court or the Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court as the General Assembly may, from time to time, in its discretion, provide or authorize,” is not to be construed as conferring authority upon the General Assembly to prevent the granting of writs of certiorari as to such courts under this paragraph. Aspironal Labs., Inc. v. Mallinckrodt Chem. Works, 180 Ga. 544, 179 S.E. 709 (1935) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

City court judge cannot issue writ of certiorari. Kieve v. Ford, 111 Ga. 30, 36 S.E. 293 (1900).

Local Act an exception to this paragraph. — Georgia Laws 1929, p. 367, providing that cases decided in the Municipal Court of Atlanta without a jury must first be appealed to a jury before seeking certiorari to the superior court, is an exception to the general power of the superior court to grant certiorari and not unconstitutional. Von Schmidt v. Noland Co., 176 Ga. 784, 169 S.E. 11 (1933).

Approval of certiorari bond by superior court judge not to come when bond not passed on by trial judge. — The judge of the superior court, at the time of sanctioning a petition for certiorari, has no authority to approve the certiorari bond where the bond has not been approved or disapproved by the judge who tried the case. Clark v. Morris Plan Bank,

Writ of certiorari to superior court is constitutional as well as statutory remedy available where a party is dissatisfied with a decision or judgment of an inferior judicatory exercising judicial or quasi-judicial powers. Flacker v. Berr-Nash Corp., 157 Ga. App. 638, 278 S.E.2d 180 (1981), overruled on other grounds, Smith v. Elder, 174 Ga. App. 316, 329 S.E.2d 511 (1985), overruled on other grounds as stated in, Norris v. Henry County, 255 Ga. App. 718, 566 S.E.2d 428 (2002).

Action in nature of judicial proceeding always subject to review by certiorari. Heath v. City of Atlanta, 67 Ga. App. 85, 19 S.E.2d 746 (1942).

Certiorari lies from city court having direct right to writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49, 5-6-50) to appellate court. Walker v. State, 8 Ga. App. 214, 68 S.E. 873 (1910).

Certiorari will lie from conviction of policeman under city ordinance. — A trial and conviction of a policeman, pursuant to a city ordinance, on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and with violation of police department rule, is a judicial proceeding from the final judgment in which the writ of certiorari will lie. Heath v. City of Atlanta, 67 Ga. App. 85, 19 S.E.2d 746 (1942).

Any decision rendered by city's recorder under former Code 1933, § 72-401 (see now O.C.G.A. § 41-2-5) may be reviewed by certiorari in superior court pursuant to this paragraph. City of East Point v. Henry Chanin Corp., 210 Ga. 628, 81 S.E.2d 812 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Certiorari available from revocation of certificate of qualification to practice as architect. Beckanstin v. Dougherty County Council of Architects, 215 Ga. 543, 111 S.E.2d 361 (1959).

No certiorari from order directing sheriff to take charge of room occupied by justice of the peace. — The action of county authorities in ordering a sheriff to take charge of the room in the courthouse occupied by a justice of the peace is a mere exercise of administrative power, and possesses no such attribute of a judicial function as to permit certiorari therefrom under this paragraph. McDonald v. Marshall, 185 Ga. 438, 195 S.E. 571 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Intent and effect of paragraph. — This paragraph was not intended to and does not have any effect other than to permit the General Assembly to create certain exceptions from the superior court's otherwise exclusive jurisdiction. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-179.

Except in case of capital crimes, juvenile courts generally have exclusive original jurisdiction of children and may not transfer them to other courts for criminal proceedings unless the child is 15 or older; a person will not come to the Department of Offender Rehabilitation (now Department of Corrections) under the exceptions of Ga. L. 1974, p. 1455, § 1 (see former O.C.G.A. § 49-5-7(a)(5)), unless the person is less than 17, and unless the person is at least 13 in the case of a capital crime or is at least 15 in the case of other crimes. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-88.

Ga. L. 1974, p. 1455, § 1 (see former paragraph (a)(5) of O.C.G.A. § 49-5-7) providing for the custody of convicted misdemeanants and felons under the age of 17 is not unconstitutional. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-3.

Effect of section on power of superior court to try juvenile offender. — Ga. L. 1974, p. 1455, § 1 (see former paragraph (a)(5) of O.C.G.A. § 49-5-7) sets apart a defined class of offenders and directs how they shall be punished for the offense; in doing this, the power of any superior court to try an individual under the age of 17 for any given crime is in no way affected. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-3.

Justice of the peace without jurisdiction to issue bill of peace. — Since the superior court has exclusive jurisdiction over equity matters and a bill of peace is an equitable remedy, justices of the peace do not have jurisdiction to entertain a petition for such relief; it follows that any such bill of peace issued by a justice of the peace would be void and of no effect. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 66.

Superior courts have exclusive jurisdiction to hear appeals from justice of the peace/magistrate courts; such jurisdiction having a constitutional basis until July 1, 1983, and a statutory one thereafter. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-27.

2. NEED FOR RECORD

General Consideration

Court of Appeals was created as arm of Supreme Court, with no original jurisdiction, for the purpose of correcting errors of law in lower tribunals. Harmon

v. Southern Ry., 123 Ga. App. 309, 180 S.E.2d 604 (1971).

Court of Appeals is a court for correction of errors below; it is not a court of original jurisdiction. Barnes v. State, 157 Ga. App. 582, 277 S.E.2d 916

All appellate jurisdiction not specifically given to Supreme Court is conferred upon Court of Appeals. City of Trenton v. Dade County, 201 Ga. 189, 39 S.E.2d 473 (1946).

Case transferred when not within jurisdiction of Supreme Court. —

Where allegations and prayers of the petition do not make a case which comes within the jurisdiction of Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of the writ of error and the case must be transferred. Bond v. Ray, 207 Ga. 559, 63 S.E.2d 399 (1951), commented on in 3 Mercer L. Rev. 220 (1951).

Erroneous decision of Court of Appeals within its exclusive jurisdiction is final and binding in that case. Saffold v. Mangum, 139 Ga. 119, 76 S.E. 858 (1912); Buck v. Duval, 139 Ga. 599, 77 S.E. 809 (1913).

Decisions of Supreme Court are precedents in other cases. Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Glawson, 140 Ga. 507, 79 S.E. 136 (1913); Holmes v. Southern Ry., 145 Ga. 172, 88 S.E. 924 (1916).

The decisions of the Supreme Court shall bind the Court of Appeals as precedents, and the Court of Appeals is not authorized by this paragraph to request a review by the Supreme Court of a decision rendered by the Supreme Court. Cargile v. State, 194 Ga. 20, 20 S.E.2d 416, answer conformed to, 67 Ga. App. 610, 21 S.E.2d 326 (1942) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III).

The appellate court was not at liberty to overrule the established line of authority for the hearsay rule to which the Supreme Court of the state adhered. Day v. State, 235 Ga. App. 771, 510 S.E.2d 579 (1998).

Decisions of the Georgia Court of Appeals that were inconsistent with Georgia Supreme Court precedent were not binding. — Following the defendant's conviction for attempted murder, there was no change in the law because McNair v. State, 293 Ga. 282 (2013) applying the rule of lenity when there was ambiguity between two felony punishments, was dictated by the Supreme Court's own precedents. Contrary cases by the Georgia Court of Appeals were never binding precedents. Rollf v. Carter, 298 Ga. 557, No. S15A1505, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 195 (2016).

Supreme Court decisions need not be unanimous. — As to the Court of Appeals, a Supreme Court decision is a binding precedent even though not unanimous. Life Ins. Co. v. Lawler, 211 Ga. 246, 85 S.E.2d 1 (1954).

A decision rendered by a divided Supreme Court is authoritative as a precedent, and, although a decision of the Supreme Court may have been rendered by a divided court, the Court of Appeals is nevertheless bound thereby. Western & Atl. R.R. v. Michael, 43 Ga. App. 703, 160 S.E. 93 (1931).

Effect of Court of Appeals' opinions on trial court. — A trial court, regardless of its good intentions, cannot decide to disregard the opinions of the Court of Appeals. Eastgate Assocs. v. Piggly Wiggly S., Inc., 200 Ga. App. 872, 410 S.E.2d 129, cert. denied, 200 Ga. App. 896, 410 S.E.2d 129 (1991).

Where the opinion of the Court of Appeals was not appealed by either party, the holdings therein were binding on the trial court. Jackson v. Beech Aircraft Corp., 217 Ga. App. 498, 458 S.E.2d 377 (1995).

Argument of reliance on precedent without merit. — There was no merit in contention of insurer that a policy should be construed in accordance with named earlier decisions of the Court of Appeals relating to similar policies, upon the theory that, in the absence of any other pertinent decision at the time, the parties in issuing and accepting the instant policy presumably relied upon those decisions as to how it should be construed. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Barron, 198 Ga. 1, 30 S.E.2d 879 (1944).

Court of Appeals cannot render advisory opinion as such, although in many cases where the principal question decided leaves the case for further treatment in the lower court, instructions are often given for the guidance of the lower court and counsel for the parties. Harmon v. Southern Ry., 123 Ga. App. 309, 180 S.E.2d 604 (1971).

Court of Appeals has the power to entertain a petition for mandamus or prohibition in order to enforce its judgments. Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc. v. Moran, 248 Ga. 461, 284 S.E.2d 256 (1981).

Court of Appeals without power to require lower court judge to issue writ returnable before the judge for trial. — While the Supreme Court may aid a party by the writ of mandamus to bring to it the party's case from the lower court, as by issuing the writ to compel the judge to certify a bill of exceptions or to require the proper officers to perform their legal duties in reference to such proceeding, it is without any power or jurisdiction to require the judge of the lower court to issue a writ returnable before the judge for the purpose of trial. This rule is equally applicable to the Court of Appeals. McPhail v. Bagley, 96 Ga. App. 179, 99 S.E.2d 500 (1957).

Court of Appeals lacked jurisdiction to construe constitutional provision. — In reversing a trial court's denial of a motion for summary judgment, the Georgia Court of Appeals exceeded its jurisdiction by construing a constitutional provision that had not previously been construed by the Georgia Supreme Court and then applying the newly construed provision to the facts of the case. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 284 Ga. 434, 668 S.E.2d 247 (2008).

Court lacked jurisdiction to adjudicate a debtor's claim of state court judicial misconduct after the stay was lifted to permit a state court suit involving the debtor to proceed because nothing in 28 U.S.C. § 157 granted the court appellate power over, or disciplinary power, or oversight responsibility of the state court. Proper forum for the claim was the state appellate court pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III. In re Osborne, No. 00-40453, 2001 Bankr. LEXIS 2314 (Bankr. S.D. Ga. Mar. 14, 2001).

Correction of Errors of Fact

Court of Appeals is a court for correction of errors of law only and has no jurisdiction to hear evidence outside the record, or to decide disputed issues of fact. Jones v. Smith, 83 Ga. App. 798, 65 S.E.2d 188 (1951); Allen v. Jentzen, 141 Ga. App. 548, 234 S.E.2d 136 (1977); Graham v. State, 152 Ga. App. 233, 262 S.E.2d 465 (1979); Johnson v. Lastinger, 152 Ga. App. 328, 262 S.E.2d 601 (1979).

The role of the Court of Appeals as an intermediate appellate court is limited to correcting lower court errors of law. Sturdy v. State, 192 Ga. App. 71, 383 S.E.2d 632 (1989).

Appellate court lacks jurisdiction to decide issues of fact. — Because the trial court, in a DUI case, determined that the arresting officer's testimony was not credible and suppressed the breath test results, the appellate court had to accept that determination because it lacked jurisdiction to decide disputed issues of fact pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III. State v. Ellison, 271 Ga. App. 898, 611 S.E.2d 129 (2005).

Questions certified must be questions of law and not mixed questions of law and fact. Lynch v. Southern Express Co., 146 Ga. 68, 90 S.E. 527 (1916); Brown v. State, 149 Ga. 816, 102 S.E. 449 (1920); Louisville & N.R.R. v. Hood, 149 Ga. 829, 102 S.E. 521 (1920).

Error in granting new trial not law question. Randall v. Bell, 12 Ga. App. 614, 77 S.E. 1132 (1912); English v. Rosenkrantz, 150 Ga. 817, 105 S.E. 613 (1920).

Appellate court's review as to evidence is limited to its legal sufficiency, not its weight. Ballew v. State, 138 Ga. App. 530, 227 S.E.2d 65 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 435 U.S. 223, 98 S. Ct. 1029, 55 L. Ed. 2d 234 (1978).

Verdict supported by some evidence. — In the absence of legal error, the Court of Appeals has no jurisdiction to interfere with a verdict supported by some evidence, although the verdict was against the preponderance of the evidence. Black v. Duncan, 79 Ga. App. 342, 53 S.E.2d 726 (1949).

Where there is only an appeal from jury verdict and no description of appealable judgment or order there is nothing to review, and the Court of Appeals has no jurisdiction since it is a court for the corrections of errors of law alone. Interstate Fire Ins. Co. v. Chattam, 222 Ga. 436, 150 S.E.2d 618, answer conformed to, 114 Ga. App. 332, 151 S.E.2d 486 (1966).

When jury verdict may be set aside.

— In a court for the correction of errors, the verdict of a jury should not be set aside upon the assignment of error that it is without evidence to support it, unless it be further made to appear: (a) that some ruling of the court improperly withheld evidence from the jury; (b) or illegally permitted the jury to consider testimony which should not have been submitted to them; (c) or that the court's instructions, as applied to the evidence, were erroneous, inapplicable, or misleading. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 76 Ga. App. 215, 45 S.E.2d 855 (1947).

Jurisdiction over cross-appeal.

— Although under O.C.G.A. § 5-6-48(e), a cross-appeal may survive the dismissal of the main appeal, that is true only if the cross-appeal can stand on its own merit, and the Court of Appeals of Georgia has no jurisdiction to entertain a cross-appeal which must derive its life from the main appeal. An appellant's voluntary withdrawal of its direct appeal requires the dismissal of a cross-appeal that has no independent basis for jurisdiction and, to the extent it holds otherwise, MARTA v. Harrington, George & Dunn, P.C., 208 Ga. App. 736 (1993) is overruled. State, DOT v. Douglas Asphalt Co., 297 Ga. App. 511, 677 S.E.2d 728 (2009).

Constitutional Questions1. In General

Supreme Court has jurisdiction where constitutionality of law called in question. — Supreme Court, and not the Court of Appeals, has jurisdiction of writ of error excepting to judgment dismissing motion for new trial in a case involving the constitutionality of a state law. Carmichael v. City of Jackson, 193 Ga. 553, 19 S.E.2d 268, answer conformed to, 67 Ga. App. 278, 19 S.E.2d 922 (1942).

Supreme Court and not Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of action involving construction of United States Constitution. Price v. State, 118 Ga. App. 207, 163 S.E.2d 243 (1968), rev'd on other grounds, 398 U.S. 323, 90 S. Ct. 1757, 26 L. Ed. 2d 300 (1970).

Court of Appeals has jurisdiction over mere application of Constitution.

— The Court of Appeals can decide questions of law involving the application of a clear constitutional provision to a given set of facts. Howell v. State, 153 Ga. 201, 111 S.E. 675 (1922); Wright v. Southern Ry., 28 Ga. App. 545, 112 S.E. 171 (1922); Daniel v. City of Claxton, 35 Ga. App. 107, 132 S.E. 411 (1926).

Under this paragraph, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to decide questions of law that involve application, in a general sense, of unquestioned and unambiguous provisions of the Constitution to a given state of facts, and that do not involve construction of some constitutional provision directly in question and doubtful either under its own terms or under the decisions of the Supreme Court of the state or of the United States, and that do not involve the constitutionality of any law of the state or of the United States or any treaty. Meadows v. State, 170 Ga. 802, 154 S.E. 188 (1930); Norman v. State, 171 Ga. 527, 156 S.E. 203 (1930); Thompson v. State, 174 Ga. 804, 164 S.E. 202 (1932); Felker v. Still, 176 Ga. 735, 169 S.E. 15 (1933); Gormley v. Searcy, 179 Ga. 389, 175 S.E. 913 (1934); Payne v. State, 180 Ga. 609, 180 S.E. 130 (1935); Campbell v. Atlanta Coach Co., 186 Ga. 77, 196 S.E. 769 (1938); Head v. Edgar Bros. Co., 187 Ga. 409, 200 S.E. 792 (1939); Turner v. Board of Tax Assessors, 197 Ga. 241, 28 S.E.2d 902 (1944); Reliable Transf. Co. v. May, 70 Ga. App. 613, 29 S.E.2d 187 (1944); Ayers v. Franklin County, 199 Ga. 835, 35 S.E.2d 455 (1945); Macon Busses, Inc. v. Dashiell, 73 Ga. App. 108, 35 S.E.2d 666 (1945); Dade County v. State, 201 Ga. 241, 39 S.E.2d 473 (1946); Franklin v. Mobley, 202 Ga. 212, 42 S.E.2d 755 (1947); Loomis v. State, 203 Ga. 394, 47 S.E.2d 58 (1948); Boyett v. State, 205 Ga. 370, 53 S.E.2d 919 (1949); Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 146, 71 S.E.2d 216 (1952); Hilliard v. State, 209 Ga. 497, 74 S.E.2d 65 (1953); Abbott v. State, 211 Ga. 200, 84 S.E.2d 667 (1954); Harrold v. State, 217 Ga. 612, 124 S.E.2d 73 (1962); City of Atlanta v. Don- ald, 220 Ga. 98, 137 S.E.2d 294 (1964); Woods v. State, 223 Ga. 754, 158 S.E.2d 395 (1967), transferred to 117 Ga. App. 546, 160 S.E.2d 922 (1968); Pollard v. State, 229 Ga. 698, 194 S.E.2d 107 (1972); Scott v. State, 157 Ga. App. 608, 278 S.E.2d 49 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III).

The Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to decide constitutional questions that do not involve the construction of the Constitution of the United States or of this state, or the constitutionality of a law of the United States or of any law of this state. City of Columbus v. Atlanta Cigar Co., 220 Ga. 533, 140 S.E.2d 267 (1965).

Where exception taken to judgment as violative of Constitution, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — Where, in a writ of error to dismissal of a petition for certiorari seeking review of a judgment holding one in contempt of court, exception is taken to such judgment as violative of certain named provisions of the Constitutions of the State of Georgia and of the United States, and such assignment of error does not contemplate construction of the Constitution where the meaning of some provision thereof is directly in question, or is doubtful by force of its own terms, or under the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States or of the Supreme Court of Georgia, the Court of Appeals, and not the Supreme Court, has jurisdiction of the writ of error. White v. State, 196 Ga. 847, 27 S.E.2d 695 (1943).

Supreme Court is without jurisdiction of an action to recover damages for taking and injuring private property for public use, and the mere fact that Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. III, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. III, Para. I) forbids such injury to or taking of private property without just and adequate compensation being first paid therefor in no wise makes a constitutional question for decision by such court. Mayor of Athens v. Gamma Delta Chapter House Corp., 208 Ga. 392, 67 S.E.2d 111 (1951).

Where constitutional question not necessary to determination of case. — Where a constitutional question is raised in the Court of Appeals, but its solution is not necessary to the determination of the case under consideration, the question will not be certified to the Supreme Court. Brown v. State, 16 Ga. App. 268, 85 S.E. 262 (1915); Kendricks v. Millen, 16 Ga. App. 273, 85 S.E. 264 (1915).

Where question of constitutionality of an Act is improperly raised, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. Neal v. City of Dublin, 20 Ga. App. 263, 92 S.E. 1021 (1917); Lee v. Central of Ga. Ry., 147 Ga. 428, 94 S.E. 558 (1917).

Effect of transfer of action to Court of Appeals on constitutional question. — The Court of Appeals is authorized to conclude that no constitutional question is properly raised in a case where it is first sent to the Supreme Court for decision, and then is transferred by that court to the Court of Appeals. Wadley S. Ry. v. Faglee, 42 Ga. App. 80, 155 S.E. 65 (1930), rev'd on other grounds, 173 Ga. 814, 161 S.E. 847 (1931).

Where case being appealed was filed in the Supreme Court but was subsequently transferred to the Court of Appeals for decision, the Supreme Court is deemed to have determined that the constitutional issue was not properly raised or was otherwise not before that court on appellate review. Harris v. State, 157 Ga. App. 367, 278 S.E.2d 52 (1981).

Power of lower courts to rule on constitutionality of laws. — Any lower or inferior court of original jurisdiction in this state, when a proper attack is made upon an ordinance or statutory provision involved in a matter properly before the court, may rule upon its constitutionality, which becomes the law of the case, unless reversed on appeal; but only the appellate courts of this state can effectively declare an ordinance or a statute of this state unconstitutional and legally obliterate it from the books. Freeman v. City of Valdosta, 119 Ga. App. 345, 167 S.E.2d 170 (1969).

Exceptions to admission of evidence based on violation of Constitution vest jurisdiction in Court of Appeals. — Where there are certain exceptions based upon the contention that the admission of evidence violated the rights of the defendant as guaranteed to the defendant by the state and federal Constitutions but these assignments of error do not raise such questions as to the construction of any part of the state or federal Constitutions as to give the Supreme Court jurisdiction, the questions involve merely the application of well-known constitutional principles and come under the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals. Turner v. State, 176 Ga. 823, 169 S.E. 21 (1933).

Duty of court in obscenity case. —

On appeal in an obscenity case, the appellate court cannot merely decide whether there is sufficient evidence to support a finding by the jury that the material is obscene, but must review independently the constitutional fact of obscenity and make a determination of such vel non. Ballew v. State, 138 Ga. App. 530, 227 S.E.2d 65 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 435 U.S. 223, 98 S. Ct. 1029, 55 L. Ed. 2d 234 (1978).

2. Constitutionality of Municipal Ordinances

Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to determine constitutionality of municipal ordinance. Maner v. Dykes, 183 Ga. 118, 187 S.E. 699 (1936); Cox v. DeJarnette, 104 Ga. App. 664, 123 S.E.2d 16 (1961); Rogers v. Mayor of Atlanta, 219 Ga. 799, 136 S.E.2d 342 (1964).

Court of Appeals, and not Supreme Court, has jurisdiction of case wherein the only exception complains of judgment of the superior court overruling a certiorari sued out to set aside a conviction in the recorder's court, the specific assignment of error being that the city ordinance upon which the conviction rested was unconstitutional. Jewel Tea Co. v. City Council, 186 Ga. 145, 197 S.E. 235 (1938).

Municipal ordinance not law of state under this paragraph. — A municipal corporation is a public corporation, being a subordinate agent of the state, exercising governmental functions in a certain community; and while an ordinance enacted by such governmental agency may in that sense be a law of the state, it is not a law of the state as is contemplated in this paragraph. Maner v. Dykes, 183 Ga. 118, 187 S.E. 699 (1936)

(see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III).

Disputes Concerning Land

Court of Appeals has jurisdiction in proceeding to partition land. Anderson v. Anderson, 27 Ga. App. 513, 108 S.E. 907, cert. denied, 27 Ga. App. 835 (1921).

In objection to setting aside homestead, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — The title to the property in which a homestead is sought to be set aside is not directly involved, and therefore the question raised by the application and objections urged by a creditor of the applicant is not one respecting title to land, so as to confer jurisdiction on the Supreme Court. Adams v. Bishop, 174 Ga. 262, 162 S.E. 531 (1932).

In dispute over proper payment of condemnation award, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — On appeal of an award by assessors in a condemnation proceeding in which the condemnor was dissatisfied the question of whether or not the condemnor properly tendered the amount of the award before entering the appeal did not make a question for decision within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, nor did the allegation of estoppel by reason of a judgment decreeing fee-simple title to be in the condemnor make a question involving title to land and within the jurisdiction thereof. Wilson v. State Hwy. Dep't, 208 Ga. 510, 67 S.E.2d 578 (1951).

In action to recover damages for breach of warranty of title, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — The overruling of a demurrer, interposed by a defendant to a petition seeking to recover damages for a breach of warranty of title contained in a deed conveying land, does not present a case respecting title to land, so as to vest jurisdiction in the Supreme Court of a bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49, 5-6-50) assigning error on such ruling; accordingly, it must be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Sanders v. Calloway, 211 Ga. 580, 87 S.E.2d 397 (1955).

In proceeding to establish copy of lost deed, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — Where a petition in a superior court to establish a copy of a deed claimed to have been lost alleged only that the debtor resided in the county in which the suit was filed, that the debtor had executed to the plaintiff a certain deed, a true copy of which was attached to the petition, and that the deed had been lost, and in which petition the only prayer was that "the clerk of this court issue a rule nisi calling upon (the defendant) to show cause, if any he has, why the copy deed aforesaid should not be established in lieu of said lost original," such petition was a mere statutory proceeding to establish a copy of the deed claimed to have been lost, and was not a suit in equity such as to grant appellate jurisdiction in the Supreme Court. Loftin v. Carroll County Bd. of Educ., 195 Ga. 689, 25 S.E.2d 293 (1943).

In dispute over location of boundary line, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — Where the parties by agreement have eliminated all issues in a case to enjoin a continuing trespass and an action in ejectment, except the issue as to the location of the dividing line, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of the writ of error. Whaley v. Ellis, 209 Ga. 147, 71 S.E.2d 209 (1952).

Neither an application for the proceSSIONING of an alleged disputed land line nor the protest thereto make a case "respecting title to land," and, accordingly, such a case must be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Jarrard v. Wildes, 209 Ga. 282, 71 S.E.2d 549 (1952).

A writ of error will not lie to the Supreme Court to correct a judgment of the superior court where, on the trial of the case, it was stipulated and agreed by and between counsel for the parties that neither party required proof of title on the part of the other party, and that the issue in the case was the correct location of the dividing line between the property of the plaintiff and the property of the defendants. Lively v. Thompson, 209 Ga. 425, 73 S.E.2d 90 (1952).

Where the controlling issue, as limited by stipulation and as actually litigated in the lower court, is the correct location of a boundary line between adjacent tracts of land, and the verdict and judgment in effect do nothing more than establish the boundary line and award damages to the successful litigants, an appeal from the judgment comes within the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals. Fendley v. Weaver, 121 Ga. App. 526, 174 S.E.2d 369 (1970).

Where dispossessory warrant brought to evict tenant, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. Arnold v. Water Power & Mining Co., 147 Ga. 91, 92 S.E. 889 (1917).

Court of Appeals, and not the Supreme Court, has jurisdiction of a case brought after the overruling of a motion for new trial after verdict upon an issue made by the filing of a counter-affidavit to a dispossessory warrant, which affidavit merely denied the tenancy alleged in the warrant. Downs v. Weaver, 184 Ga. 856, 193 S.E. 858 (1937).

Where a dispossessory warrant is sued out to evict a tenant who files a counter-affidavit alleging facts which are only defensive in character, and no equitable or affirmative relief is prayed, the action is a statutory one falling within the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals. Brumfield v. Home Owners Loan Corp., 196 Ga. 821, 27 S.E.2d 678 (1943).

Where defendants appealed to the Supreme Court from entry by the state court of an order granting a writ of possession in a dispossessory proceeding filed after foreclosure of defendants' interest under a deed to secure debt, as right of possession, not title to land, was the issue before the state court, jurisdiction of the appeal was in the Court of Appeals. Jordan v. Atlanta Neighborhood Hous. Servs., Inc., 251 Ga. 37, 302 S.E.2d 568 (1983).

Equity

1. In General

Transfer to Court of Appeals means no equity jurisdiction in case. — The transfer of a case from the Supreme Court to the Court of Appeals is an adjudication that the prayers for injunction in the intervention are mere surplusage and that there is no equity jurisdiction in the case. Carter v. State, 93 Ga. App. 12, 90 S.E.2d 672 (1955).

For purpose of testing equity jurisdiction a case is appraised in character it bore at time issues resulting in judgment complained of were submitted. McCowan

v. Aldred, 208 Ga. 483, 67 S.E.2d 478 (1951).

Petition containing allegations only appropriate to prayer for damages does not assume character of equitable action by virtue of prayer for injunctive relief. Hollinshead v. Shadrack, 212 Ga. 624, 94 S.E.2d 705 (1956).

Attempts to escape effect of constitution rejected. — Litigants should not be permitted to evade this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III) by the simple device of adding a spurious prayer for relief of an equitable nature. Alderman v. Crenshaw, 208 Ga. 71, 65 S.E.2d 178 (1951), overruled on other grounds, Wiley v. Wiley, 233 Ga. 824, 213 S.E.2d 682 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III).

Mere designation of action as equity not determinative. — Whether an action is one at law or in equity is determined by the allegations of the petition and the nature of the relief prayed, and not by designation given to the action by the pleader. City of Summerville v. Georgia Power Co., 204 Ga. 276, 49 S.E.2d 661 (1948).

When plaintiff amends plaintiff's petition by eliminating prayer for equitable relief and seeks only legal relief then the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Boze v. Atlanta Veterans Transp., Inc., 218 Ga. 274, 127 S.E.2d 466 (1962).

Cases involving equity or constitutional questions. — Where a case involves equity or constitutional questions or other features that come within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, but all such features are abandoned or otherwise eliminated in the trial court before the judgment of that court, the Court of Appeals has exclusive jurisdiction. Leggitt v. Allen, 208 Ga. 298, 66 S.E.2d 709 (1951), disapproved sub nom. Wiley v. Wiley, 233 Ga. 824, 213 S.E.2d 682 (1975).

Where the equity features which a case originally contained have been abandoned or eliminated before the judgment dismissing the petition was rendered, the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Rumph v. Rister, 211 Ga. 312, 85 S.E.2d 768 (1955).

Where by amendment all prayers for equitable relief have been stricken from petition, and court asked to vacate its temporary restraining order and to otherwise treat the case as an action at law for a money judgment against the defendants, the case is no longer one involving equity, and the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Citizens Bank v. Thompson, 214 Ga. 674, 107 S.E.2d 175 (1959).

Dismissal of equitable action removes equity jurisdiction from counterclaim. — Where a defendant, in answer to an equitable petition for injunctive relief, sets up a money demand, and asks a judgment therefor against the petitioner, and after the grant of a temporary restraining order, the petitioner voluntarily dismisses the petitioner's action, such a dismissal removes all equitable questions involved in the case. Rogers v. Miller Peanut Co., 199 Ga. 835, 35 S.E.2d 469 (1945).

Election of plaintiff to proceed in tort under former Code 1933, § 105-1207 (see now O.C.G.A. § 51-12-30) removed all equity from the case and left only an action at law for money damages of which the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court had jurisdiction. Kenimer v. Ward Wight Realty Co., 219 Ga. 275, 133 S.E.2d 18 (1963).

2. Specific Cases

Addition of prayer that contract be set aside insufficient to give Supreme Court jurisdiction. — In petition seeking money damages because of alleged fraudulent misrepresentations inducing the plaintiff to sign a contract of sale for the purchase of an automobile, the addition of a prayer that the contract of sale "be set aside on the grounds of fraud" was not such a prayer for equitable relief as to give the Supreme Court rather than the Court of Appeals jurisdiction of the appeal. Douglas v. Currie Ford Co., 103 Ga. App. 75, 118 S.E.2d 586 (1961).

Court of Appeals has jurisdiction where equitable challenges raised to senior judgment. — Where a case involves the distribution of money arising from the sale of property under a senior judgment and execution, and the holder of a junior judgment and execution claims the fund upon the ground that the judgment in the older case is void, because at the time of its rendition the defendant therein was insane and confined in the state sanitarium, it is not an equity case. Burkhalter v. Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co., 170 Ga. 237, 152 S.E. 98 (1930).

In action to recover shares in insolvent institution, Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — Where the case under consideration is an action to recover the statutory liability of an alleged stockholder of an insolvent institution, in the hands of the Superintendent of Banks for liquidation, and to have the property seized under the writ of attachment in pursuance of law, and subjected to payment of the alleged liability, it is not a suit in equity but at law and is, therefore, under the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals. Pignatel v. Mobley, 173 Ga. 410, 160 S.E. 411 (1931).

Where verdict of equity count not appealed, Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — Where petition was in two counts, in which the prayer was for a money judgment in the first count and for reformation of a contract and for the stated amount in count two, and the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for the sum sued for and the prayer for reformation was not granted, the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court has jurisdiction of the writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49, 5-6-50) the exception being to the failure to grant a motion for new trial in which the jury returned a verdict for a money judgment. Ford v. Harden, 212 Ga. 624, 94 S.E.2d 720 (1956).

In action under Declaratory Judgment Act, Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — An action brought under the Declaratory Judgment Act, Ga. L. 1945, p. 137 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 4, T. 9), is not per se an equitable proceeding. City of Summerville v. Georgia Power Co., 204 Ga. 276, 49 S.E.2d 661 (1948).

An action brought under the Declaratory Judgment Act (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 4, T. 9), not being an equitable proceeding per se, must involve some phase of those cases listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III) in order to come within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on exceptions to the rulings of the lower court. Bankers Life & Cas. Co. v. Cravey, 210 Ga. 239, 78 S.E.2d 507 (1953).

A case falls within the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals where it involves a declaratory judgment and temporary restraining order to maintain the status quo between the parties until an accounting may be had. Stone v. First Nat'l Bank, 223 Ga. 804, 158 S.E.2d 382 (1967).

Since an action to enforce an equitable foreclosure is in equity, the Court of Appeals is without jurisdiction to hear a case arising under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-49. Arnold v. Hickey, 169 Ga. App. 750, 315 S.E.2d 273 (1984).

Criminal Cases and Contempt of Court

Jurisdiction of appeals in all cases of conviction of a capital felony lies in the Supreme Court and jurisdiction as to other crimes is in the Court of Appeals. Jarrell v. State, 234 Ga. 410, 216 S.E.2d 258 (1975).

Supreme Court has no jurisdiction in cases involving misdemeanor offenses unmixed with equitable or constitutional questions. Hilliard v. State, 209 Ga. 497, 74 S.E.2d 65 (1953).

Jurisdiction of change of venue motion in Court of Appeals. — The Court of Appeals, and not the Supreme Court, has appellate jurisdiction of a murder case involving change of venue. Wilburn v. State, 140 Ga. 138, 78 S.E. 819 (1913); Scoggins v. State, 24 Ga. App. 677, 102 S.E. 39 (1920); Ruffin v. State, 151 Ga. 743, 108 S.E. 29 (1921).

The jurisdiction of all venue cases of this class (motion to change venue after an indictment for a capital felony) is vested in the Court of Appeals, and not the Supreme Court, provided no constitutional question is raised in the lower court. Humphrey v. State, 175 Ga. 666, 165 S.E. 587 (1932).

Court of Appeals without jurisdiction to review order of State Board of Pardons and Paroles denying the petition of a defendant for reduction of the sentence imposed by the trial court. Aikens v. State, 111 Ga. App. 268, 141 S.E.2d 188 (1965).

Court of Appeals has jurisdiction in dispute over admissibility of illegally obtained evidence. Howell v. State, 153 Ga. 201, 111 S.E. 675 (1922).

Where, in a criminal trial, a part of the evidence was objected to upon the ground that it was obtained by an unlawful search of the defendant's house, the error complained of is not of such a character as to give the Supreme Court jurisdiction. Thompson v. State, 174 Ga. 804, 164 S.E. 202 (1932).

In appeal from contempt judgment, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction. — The Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment finding the appellant guilty of contempt in failing to obey a notice to produce certain papers into court, where the contempt feature arises out of the question of law as to the right to require such records produced. Cranford v. Cranford, 225 Ga. 60, 165 S.E.2d 847 (1969).

A life without parole sentence imposed on a juvenile who is not properly determined to be in the very small class of juveniles for whom such a sentence may be deemed constitutionally proportionate is not just erroneous but contrary to law and, as a result, void; it follows that state collateral review courts that are open to federal law claims must apply the holding of Miller v. Alabama, — U.S. —, 132 S.Ct. 2455 (2012), retroactively if a petitioner challenges such a sentence under the Eighth Amendment, and it follows, as a matter of Georgia procedural law, that a defendant's Miller claim, a substantive claim that, if meritorious, would render a sentence void, can be properly raised in an amended motion for new trial and in a direct appeal, despite the failure to raise the claim before the defendant was sentenced. Veal v. State, 298 Ga. 691 (2016).

Other Cases

Where Court of Appeals sitting as a body is equally divided as to judgment that should be rendered, Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Pacific Nat'l Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummins Diesel of Ga., Inc., 213 Ga. 4, 96 S.E.2d 881 (1957).

Court of Appeals is without jurisdiction to grant mandamus against judge of municipal court requiring the judge to show cause for the judge's failure to entertain a petition on the part of the movant seeking to have a judicial sale set aside for excessive levy and other grounds stated therein. The superior court of the county has original jurisdiction in mandamus and injunction cases, and movant's remedy, if any, would be by a proper proceeding in that court. McPhail v. Bagley, 96 Ga. App. 179, 99 S.E.2d 500 (1957).

In custody controversy in nature of habeas corpus, the Court of Appeals is without jurisdiction. Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975).

Issues concerning the interpretation of a contract are properly brought on appeal before the Court of Appeals. Cowen v. Snellgrove, 169 Ga. App. 271, 312 S.E.2d 623 (1983).

Grant of motion for summary judgment in the Civil Court of Bibb County can be appealed directly to the Court of Appeals. Middle Ga. Bank v. Continental Real Estate & Assocs., 168 Ga. App. 611, 309 S.E.2d 893 (1983).

Suit brought by one against former spouse seeking to domesticate out-of-state judgment in a divorce proceeding and to have spouse attached for contempt and ordered to pay arrearages was a suit on a foreign judgment, not a divorce or alimony case, within the meaning of the Georgia Constitution, and jurisdiction of appeal was in the Court of Appeals. Lewis v. Robinson, 254 Ga. 378, 329 S.E.2d 498 (1985).

Family violence actions. — Because family violence actions involve neither divorce nor alimony, they do not fall within the Supreme Court's exclusive jurisdiction and, therefore, jurisdiction lies in the Georgia Court of Appeals. Schmidt v. Schmidt, 270 Ga. 461, 510 S.E.2d 810 (1999).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction in action for personal injuries. Gulf Ref. Co. v. Miller, 151 Ga. 727, 108 S.E. 28 (1921).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction over gift by testator recovered from executor. Hodgson v. Hodgson, 28 Ga. App. 250, 110 S.E. 754 (1922).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction over claim case for ungathered crops. Griffin v. Leggett, 153 Ga. 663, 112 S.E. 899 (1922).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction over petition in nature of rule is filed against clerk of superior court. Wallace v. State, 155 Ga. 414, 117 S.E. 243 (1923).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction after garnishee's answer was denied. Ford v. Southern Ry., 159 Ga. 111, 124 S.E. 887 (1924).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction to review determination by judge of superior court as to whether particular case is within jurisdiction of justice court. Smith v. Atlanta Mut. Ins. Co., 42 Ga. App. 254, 155 S.E. 535 (1930).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction in adoption proceeding in adoption proceeding. Criswell v. Jones, 187 Ga. 55, 199 S.E. 804 (1938).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction in action on contract providing support for wife in settlement of alimony. Hayes v. Hayes, 191 Ga. 237, 11 S.E.2d 764 (1940).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction in proceeding to confirm and validate revenue anticipation certificates. Dade County v. State, 201 Ga. 241, 39 S.E.2d 473 (1946).

Court of Appeals had jurisdiction in custody controversy involving delinquent, unruly, or deprived child. Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975).

Appeal of an order denying a motion for a default judgment was reviewable because the order denying the motion for default judgment made findings of fact which barred the relief requested by the movant. The order left no issues remaining to be resolved, and constituted the trial court's final ruling on the merits of the action; the trial court left the parties with no further recourse in that court, in such circumstances, the order was a final judgment and the appeal was within the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals of Georgia. Standridge v. Spillers, 263 Ga. App. 401, 587 S.E.2d 862 (2003).

Cases involving revenues of the state. — The enactment of the 1983 Constitution superseded the Supreme Court's order in Collins v. State, 239 Ga. 400, 236 S.E.2d 759 (1977), which gave the Supreme Court jurisdiction over cases involving revenues of the state. Thus, all pending cases which involve revenues of the state and which have been docketed in the Supreme Court will be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Collins v. AT & T Co., 265 Ga. 37, 456 S.E.2d 50 (1995).

Action for accounting against estate of deceased agent. — Action brought against administration of intestate on grounds that said intestate had been verbally appointed agent of plaintiff's intestate and had made no accounting or settlement was an action at law and not an equity case. Goodwyn v. Roop, 181 Ga. 327, 182 S.E. 4 (1935).

In action against surety on guardian's bond. — This paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III) confer exclusive jurisdiction upon the Court of Appeals to review a judgment dismissing, on defendant's oral motion, a petition seeking recovery against a surety on a guardian's bond. Gunby v. Roberts, 205 Ga. 346, 53 S.E.2d 370 (1949) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III).

In exception to judgment discharging a rule nisi issued by superior court on address of two-thirds of the grand jury on charges of inefficiency of certain members of county board of education. State v. Walker, 209 Ga. 523, 74 S.E.2d 461 (1953).

Appellate jurisdiction to review grant of summary judgment. — Court of appeals had appellate jurisdiction to review the grant of summary judgment in favor of a bank on the bank's conversion claim against a real estate firm because the grant of summary judgment was directly appealable under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-56(h), and the firm's cross-appeal of that grant of summary judgment could stand on its own merits; because the court of appeals had jurisdiction to review the grant of summary judgment in favor of the bank on the bank's conversion claim, the court also had jurisdiction pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 5-6-34(d) to review the denial of the firm's motion for summary judgment on that same issue. Trey Inman & Assocs., P.C. v. Bank of Am., N.A., 306 Ga.

App. 451, 702 S.E.2d 711 (2010).

Pleading and Practice

Appeal from non-final judgment was dismissed. — Georgia Court of Appeals did not have jurisdiction over an appeal from a decision of a superior court remanding a case involving a challenge to a permit to build a community dock issued under the Coastal Marshlands Protection Act, O.C.G.A. § 12-5-286(a), to an administrative law judge for further consideration. The order was not final as required under O.C.G.A. § 50-13-20. Coastal Marshlands Prot. Comm. v. Altamaha Riverkeeper, Inc., 304 Ga. App. 1, 695 S.E.2d 273, cert. denied, No. S10C1494, 2010 Ga. LEXIS 745 (Ga. 2010).

1. In General

Court of Appeals will take notice of its own lack of jurisdiction and, where such lack appears, will dismiss the writ of error even without a motion to that effect by the defendant in error. Personal Credit Corp. v. Goldwire, 88 Ga. App. 125, 76 S.E.2d 129 (1953).

Court of Appeals is not bound by statement of Supreme Court as to what rules court should adopt or how such rules should be enforced, provided such rules comply with the Constitution. Justice v. Dunbar, 152 Ga. App. 831, 264 S.E.2d 301 (1979).

Rule as to payment of costs. — The same rule (see Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. XXI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. XXIV)) applies in the Court of Appeals as to payment of costs as obtains in the Supreme Court. Swearengen v. State, 146 Ga. 3, 90 S.E. 283 (1916).

Case returned without instruction where Supreme Court equally divided. — Where the Supreme Court is evenly divided in opinion upon the question certified by the Court of Appeals, the case must be returned without instruction in answer to the question. Thornton v. Germania Fire Ins. Co., 151 Ga. 312, 106 S.E. 264 (1921).

Ex parte proceedings may be decided by Court of Appeals. Whitehurst

v. Singletary, 77 Ga. App. 811, 50 S.E.2d 80 (1948).

Trial courts cannot pass orders in such manner as to preclude appellate courts from exercising their jurisdiction when called upon to do so by a proper bill of exceptions and at the same time treat the order as valid and enforceable at the trial level, for such an order would violate this paragraph and Ga. Const., Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III). Garland v. State, 99 Ga. App. 826, 110 S.E.2d 143 (1959), later appeal, 101 Ga. App. 395, 114 S.E.2d 176 (1960) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III).

Effect of entry of new trial motion raising constitutional question after judgment of trial court upon jurisdiction of appellate court. Western & Atl. R.R. v. Michael, 172 Ga. 561, 158 S.E. 426 (1931), appeal dismissed, 291 U.S. 649, 54 S. Ct. 530, 78 L. Ed. 1044 (1934).

Court of Appeals may decide only such questions as are made by specific assignment of error certified to by the judge of the court appealed from. Republic of Cuba v. Arcade Bldg. of Savannah, Inc., 104 Ga. App. 848, 123 S.E.2d 453 (1961).

Proper and timely filing of notice of appeal is an absolute requirement to confer jurisdiction upon the appellate court. Grant v. State, 157 Ga. App. 390, 278 S.E.2d 53 (1981).

Failure to file brief and enumerations of error. — Georgia Department of Transportation's (DOT's) cross-appeal was dismissed with regard to a trial court's grant of an asphalt company's motions in limine and the denial of the DOT's partial motion for summary judgment since the asphalt company's direct appeal was dismissed for failure to file a brief and enumerations of error; therefore, the cross-appeal could not survive on its own under O.C.G.A. § 5-6-48. The DOT never applied for interlocutory review of the rulings of the trial court it was challenging, therefore, the appellate court had no independent basis for jurisdiction over the cross-appeal. State, DOT v. Douglas Asphalt Co., 297 Ga. App. 511, 677 S.E.2d 728 (2009).

In a suit pursuant to O.C.G.A.

§ 36-91-90 et seq. seeking to recover against a payment bond for amounts due for labor and materials provided on a construction project on private property, the court dismissed the subcontractors' appeal because the subcontractors failed to set forth an enumeration of errors as required by O.C.G.A. § 5-6-40. Complete Wiring Solutions, LLC v. Astra Group, Inc., 335 Ga. App. 723, 781 S.E.2d 597 (2016).

2. Need for Record

Grounds for error not enumerated cannot be considered by Court of Appeals. If no exception is taken at the trial, no point made, and the opinion of the court not invoked and not given, there has been no decision, sentence judgment, or decree of a superior court rendered upon the point; and, therefore, the Court of Appeals has no right to review the proceeding. May v. Lee, 57 Ga. App. 893, 197 S.E. 50 (1938).

Court of Appeals has no original jurisdiction and no right to make a ruling on questions in the lower court which have not yet been ruled on there. Harmon v. Southern Ry., 123 Ga. App. 309, 180 S.E.2d 604 (1971); Craig v. State, 130 Ga. App. 689, 204 S.E.2d 307 (1974).

Court of Appeals cannot consider and reverse on error enumerated unless it is supported in record and shown to have been ruled on by trial judge. Craig v. State, 130 Ga. App. 689, 204 S.E.2d 307 (1974).

Appellate courts have no original jurisdiction and will decide no question on appeal not clearly presented to and passed upon by the trial court. Security Mgt. Co. v. King, 132 Ga. App. 618, 208 S.E.2d 576 (1974).

Certification of question authorized. — The Court of Appeals was authorized to certify a question to the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of retroactive application of the cap on damages recoverable against the state provided in O.C.G.A. § 50-21-26. Department of Human Resources v. Phillips, 223 Ga. App. 520, 478 S.E.2d 598 (1996).

Paragraph V. Equal division of court.

In the event of an equal division of the Judges when sitting as a body, the case shall be immediately transmitted to the Supreme Court.

1976 Constitution. — Art. VI, Sec. II, Paras. IV and VIII.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Supreme Court has jurisdiction when Court of Appeals, sitting as a body, is equally divided on the judgment that should be rendered. Pacific Nat'l Fire Ins. Co. v. Cummins Diesel of Ga., Inc., 213 Ga. 4, 96 S.E.2d 881 (1957).

When judges are divided on only one question in case. — This paragraph contemplates the transfer by the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court of cases where the judges of the Court of Appeals are equally divided on all questions in the case which would require an affirmance or reversal of the judgment of the trial court, and does not provide for a transfer by that court to the Supreme Court of any case where there is an equal division between the judges of the Court of Appeals on an isolated question in the case. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Godard, 211 Ga. 41, 83 S.E.2d 591 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. V).

When the judges of the Court of Appeals are not equally divided in the case at bar on all questions presented by the writ of error which would either require an affirmance or a reversal of the judgments excepted to, but only as to one of the questions in the case, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction of the case. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Clinard, 211 Ga. 340, 86 S.E.2d 1 (1955).

If six judges would affirm and six would not. — In a review of a denial of a motion to suppress, six judges of the Georgia Court of Appeals would have affirmed, and six would not have affirmed; because there was an equal division, the Court of Appeals should have immediately transferred the case to the Supreme Court of Georgia, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. V. The judges' differences of opinion about whether the judgment of the trial court should be set aside as "reversed" or instead as "vacated" were not dispositive. *Rodriguez v. Petition seeking to require superior court judge to enter order. — Although there may occasionally appear to be a need to file an original petition in the Supreme Court to issue process in the nature of mandamus, and perhaps quo warranto or prohibition where a superior court judge is named as the respondent, such as where the petitioner seeks to require the judge to enter an order in a matter allegedly pending more than 30 days in violation of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(a), such a petition may in fact be filed in the appropriate superior court. Being the respondent, the superior court judge will disqualify, another superior court judge will be appointed to hear and determine the matter, and the final decision may be appealed to the Supreme Court for review. Brown v. Johnson, 251 Ga. 436, 306 S.E.2d 655 (1983).

ANALYSIS

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

General Consideration

Exclusive jurisdiction where constitutionality of law or ordinance in question. — Georgia Supreme Court has exclusive appellate jurisdiction of cases in which the constitutionality of a law or ordinance is in question without regard to the court from which the appeal is taken. Kariuki v. DeKalb County, 253 Ga. 713, 324 S.E.2d 450 (1985).

The Court of Appeals has no authority to determine the constitutionality of a state statute. Burson v. State, 183 Ga.

App. 647, 359 S.E.2d 731, cert. denied, 183 Ga. App. 905, 359 S.E.2d 731 (1987).

The state appellate court has no jurisdiction to determine the constitutionality of a state law, other than where the law has been held to be constitutional against the same attack being made, and only to decide the application of established constitutional law to the facts. Braden v. Bell, 222 Ga. App. 144, 473 S.E.2d 523 (1996).

In reversing a trial court’s denial of a motion for summary judgment, the Georgia Court of Appeals exceeded its jurisdiction by construing a constitutional provision that had not previously been construed by the Georgia Supreme Court and then applying the newly construed provision to the facts of the case. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 284 Ga. 434, 668 S.E.2d 247 (2008).

A distinct, oral ruling, reflected in a transcript is sufficient and need not be reduced to writing in order to invoke the Supreme Court of Georgia's exclusive appellate jurisdiction in cases in which the constitutionality of a law has been drawn into question. Jenkins v. State, 284 Ga. 642, 670 S.E.2d 425 (2008).

Georgia trial court erred by denying injunctive relief to a county and the county's chosen waste disposal company which sought to prohibit an unauthorized waste company from providing services in the county against an ordinance because the ordinance served a legitimate public purpose by establishing means reasonably necessary for providing a comprehensive solid waste management plan as the county was required to do under O.C.G.A. § 12-8-31.1. Advanced Disposal Servs. Middle Ga., LLC v. Deep S. Sanitation, LLC, 296 Ga. 103, 765 S.E.2d 364 (Sept. 22, 2014).

Under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II (1), the Supreme Court of Georgia had exclusive appellate jurisdiction in a case involving the construction of the Constitution of the State of Georgia or of the United States; therefore, the Supreme Court had jurisdiction in a stalking case in which the defendant contended that publication of commentary about the victim and the victim's copyright enforcement practices was speech protected by the First Amendment, although the court did not reach that question. Chan v. Ellis, 296 Ga. 838, 770 S.E.2d 851 (2015).

Constitutional issue required. — The Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction over a discretionary appeal of a superior court order, based on a question as to the constitutionality of a statute, where the trial court had not specifically passed upon the issue of constitutionality. Marr v. Georgia Dep't of Educ., 264 Ga. 841, 452 S.E.2d 112 (1995).

Constitutional challenges considered. — Trial court erred in determining that a defendant's challenges to the constitutionality of O.C.G.A. § 17-10-10 were waived; however, the Supreme Court of Georgia had jurisdiction to consider the constitutional challenges under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, § VI, Para. II, because the trial court also made a distinct ruling in the alternative rejecting the challenges on the merits. Rooney v. State, 287 Ga. 1, 690 S.E.2d 804, cert. denied, 131 S. Ct. 117, 178 L. Ed. 2d 72 (2010).

A life without parole sentence imposed on a juvenile who is not properly determined to be in the very small class of juveniles for whom such a sentence may be deemed constitutionally proportionate is not just erroneous but contrary to law and, as a result, void; it follows that state collateral review courts that are open to federal law claims must apply the holding of Miller v. Alabama, — U.S. —, 132 S.Ct. 2455 (2012), retroactively if a petitioner challenges such a sentence under the Eighth Amendment, and it follows, as a matter of Georgia procedural law, that a defendant's Miller claim, a substantive claim that, if meritorious, would render a sentence void, can be properly raised in an amended motion for new trial and in a direct appeal, despite the failure to raise the claim before the defendant was sentenced. Veal v. State, 298 Ga. 691 (2016).

Waiver of constitutional challenge. — While a defendant challenged the constitutionality of the non-merger provision of the hijacking a motor vehicle statute, O.C.G.A. § 16-5-44.1(d), the state supreme court, where the initial appeal had been filed under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II, had determined that the challenge was untimely and thus had been waived; thus, the defendant could not pursue the challenge at the appellate court level after the case had been transferred. Rutland v. State, 296 Ga. App. 471, 675 S.E.2d 506 (2009).

Direct appeal of administrative agency decision. — Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II does not permit the direct appeal of an administrative agency decision just because the constitutionality of an ordinance is drawn into question. O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(1) requires the filing of an application for an appeal. City of Atlanta Bd. of Zoning Adjustment v. Midtown N., Ltd., 257 Ga. 496, 360 S.E.2d 569 (1987).

Questions of constitutionality of administrative regulations are not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Georgia Bd. of Dentistry v. Pence, 223 Ga. App. 603, 478 S.E.2d 437 (1996).

Appellate court had subject matter jurisdiction over two associations' claims that included a challenge to the constitutionality of administrative regulation, as the state supreme court's exclusive appellate jurisdiction extended to all cases in which the constitutionality of a law, ordinance, or constitutional provision was in question, but a regulation was not in any of those categories under the state constitution, and, thus, jurisdiction in the appellate court was proper. Ga. Oilmen's Ass'n v. Ga. Dep't of Revenue, 261 Ga. App. 393, 582 S.E.2d 549 (2003).

Exclusive appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Georgia under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II does not extend to questions concerning the constitutionality of an administrative regulation; thus, the Georgia Court of Appeals had jurisdiction to resolve whether Interim Ethics Rule 505-2-.03(1)(o), Ga. Comp. R. & Regs. r. 505-2-.03(1)(o), which permitted suspension or revocation of an educator's certificate, was constitutional. Prof'l Stds. Comm'n v. Alberson, 273 Ga. App. 1, 614 S.E.2d 132 (2005).

Direct appeal not available from recorder's court. — A direct appeal from the recorder's court to the Supreme Court was not available in a case challenging the constitutionality of an ordinance. Instead, the proper method of review was by certiorari to the superior court. Russell v. City of E. Point, 261 Ga. 213, 403 S.E.2d 50 (1991), cert. denied, 502 U.S. 971, 112 S. Ct. 448, 116 L. Ed. 2d 466 (1991).

Cases involving revenues of the state. — The enactment of the 1983 Constitution superseded the Supreme Court's order in Collins v. State, 239 Ga. 400, 236 S.E.2d 759 (1977), assuming jurisdiction over cases involving revenues of the state, thus, all pending cases which involve revenues of the state and which have been docketed in the Supreme Court will be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Col- lins v. AT & T Co., 265 Ga. 37, 456 S.E.2d 50 (1995).

Election contest must tie to specific election. — Without a clear connection to a specific election, a challenge to a voter's qualifications brought under O.C.G.A. § 21-2-228 or O.C.G.A. § 21-2-229 does not come within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Georgia over "cases of election contest," Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. II(2). To the extent that Jarrard v. Clayton County Bd. of Registrars, 425 S.E.2d 874 (1992), was decided as an election contest, it was overruled. Cook v. Board of Registrars, 291 Ga. 67, 727 S.E.2d 478 (2012).

Transfer to Court of Appeals. — Transfer of a case to the Court of Appeals does not represent the Supreme Court's determination that no constitutional issue in the case has merit since there are a number of reasons why a case can fail to come with the court's exclusive jurisdiction. Atlanta Indep. Sch. Sys v. Lane, 266 Ga. 657, 469 S.E.2d 22 (1996).

Jurisdiction of appeal from denial of equitable defense to alimony enforcement. — Where an appeal arises from the trial court's judgment against a husband on his affidavit of illegality filed in response to his wife's fiery facias issued on the alimony provisions of their divorce decree where the appellant is seeking to have the superior court set aside the fiery facias on equitable grounds because of his former wife's apparent abandonment of their children over which she was charged with custody pursuant to the decree, this appeal is from a judgment rendered pursuant to a request for equitable relief, which places the appeal within the Supreme Court's jurisdiction. Iannicelli v. Iannicelli, 169 Ga. App. 155, 311 S.E.2d 850 (1983).

Paragraph III. General appellate jurisdiction of Supreme Court.

Unless otherwise provided by law, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction of the following classes of cases:

- (1) Cases involving title to land;
- (2) All equity cases;
- (3) All cases involving wills;
- (4) All habeas corpus cases;
- (5) All cases involving extraordinary remedies;
- (6) All divorce and alimony cases;
- (7) All cases certified to it by the Court of Appeals; and
- (8) All cases in which a sentence of death was imposed or could be imposed.

Review of all cases shall be as provided by law.

General Consideration

Court of Appeals has jurisdiction in all cases in which jurisdiction has not been conferred upon the Supreme Court. White v. State, 196 Ga. 847, 27 S.E.2d 695 (1943).

Where a bill of exceptions presents no question over which the Supreme Court has jurisdiction, no equity is involved, nor is title to land, constitutional question, or any other question over which the Supreme Court has jurisdiction, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of the bill of exceptions. May v. Braddock, 211 Ga. 285, 85 S.E.2d 421 (1955).

Effect of reversal by Supreme Court is to place the case where it stood prior thereto; and thereafter the trial court should enter an order sustaining the exceptions of law, and a finding sustaining the exceptions of fact. Holton v. Lankford, 189 Ga. 506, 6 S.E.2d 304 (1939).

It is the duty of the Supreme Court to inquire upon its own motion into question of its jurisdiction. Abel v. State, 190 Ga. 651, 10 S.E.2d 198 (1940); City of Summerville v. Georgia Power Co., 204 Ga. 276, 49 S.E.2d 661 (1948); Findley v. City of Vidalia, 204 Ga. 279, 49 S.E.2d 661 (1948); Carter v. Walker, 209 Ga. 807, 76 S.E.2d 401 (1953); Alderman v. Crenshaw, 208 Ga. 71, 65 S.E.2d 178 (1951), overruled on other grounds, Wiley v. Wiley, 233 Ga. 824, 213 S.E.2d 682 (1975); United States Cas. Co. v. Georgia

S. & Fla. Ry., 212 Ga. 569, 94 S.E.2d 422 (1956).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction to determine jurisdiction of particular case and to order its transfer to the court having jurisdiction of the case. Water Power & Mining Co. v. Arnold, 149 Ga. 107, 99 S.E. 382 (1919).

Decision rendered by divided Supreme Court is authoritative as precedent, and the Court of Appeals is bound thereby. Western & Atl. R.R. v. Michael, 43 Ga. App. 703, 160 S.E. 93 (1931).

When Supreme Court can decline to answer. — When the answer to a certified question would constitute the decision in the main case, the Supreme Court will decline to answer the question. Lawrence v. State, 268 Ga. 420, 489 S.E.2d 850 (1997).

Court of Appeals was created as an arm of the Supreme Court with no original jurisdiction for the purpose of correcting errors of law in lower tribunals. Harmon v. Southern Ry., 123 Ga. App. 309, 180 S.E.2d 604 (1971).

The issue of venue is within the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals. Beauchamp v. Knight, 261 Ga. 608, 409 S.E.2d 208 (1991).

Limited jurisdiction of Court of Appeals. — Court of Appeals only has jurisdiction in all cases in which such jurisdiction has not been conferred by the Constitution upon the Supreme Court. Evans v. Pennington, 50 Ga. App. 146, 177 S.E. 357 (1934); Findley v. City of Vidalia, 204 Ga. 279, 49 S.E.2d 658 (1948); United States Cas. Co. v. Georgia S. & Fla. Ry., 212 Ga. 569, 94 S.E.2d 422 (1956).

Ga. L. 1963, p. 70, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-19-30), establishing the State Bar, does not violate this paragraph. Wallace v. Wallace, 225 Ga. 102, 166 S.E.2d 718, cert. denied, 396 U.S. 939, 90 S. Ct. 369, 24 L. Ed. 2d 240 (1969) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Interpretation of legal document. — Appeals filed by a trustee and a beneficiary were transferred from the supreme court to the court of appeals because the cases did not come within the supreme court's appellate jurisdiction over "equity cases" under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec.

VI, Para. III; the issue presented on appeal, how to interpret a specific provision of a legal document, was a straightforward legal question. Durham v. Durham, 291 Ga. 231, 728 S.E.2d 627 (2012).

Allowing videotaping of criminal calendar proceedings. — Trial court erred in excluding a camera and denying a purported student's request to make video recordings of the criminal calendar proceedings because the trial court erred in the court's application of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-10.1 and did not properly consider the factors set forth therein. McLaurin v. Ott, 327 Ga. App. 488, 759 S.E.2d 567 (2014).

App. 566, 445 S.E.2d 538 (1994); United States Fid. and Guar. Co. v. Park 'N Go of Ga., Inc., 66 F.3d 273 (11th. Cir. 1995); Redfearn v. Huntcliff Homes Ass'n, 243 Ga. App. 222, 531 S.E.2d 376 (2000); Henson v. Tucker, 278 Ga. App. 859, 630 S.E.2d 64 (2006); Bishop v. Patton, 288 Ga. 600, 706 S.E.2d 634 (2011); *Southern LNG, Inc. v. Right of Review

Right of appeal is not absolute, but is based upon the conditions imposed by the General Assembly for bringing cases to the appellate courts. Fife v. Johnston, 225 Ga. 447, 169 S.E.2d 167 (1969); State v. Hollomon, 132 Ga. App. 304, 208 S.E.2d 167 (1974).

When jurisdiction alterable by General Assembly. — Jurisdiction of Supreme Court over cases not involving construction of Constitution or constitutionality of statutes is alterable by legislative enactment. Taylor v. Stovall, 155 Ga. 894, 118 S.E. 715 (1923).

Power of General Assembly to set conditions on right of review. — This paragraph vests in the General Assembly the power to prescribe conditions as to the right of review of a case in the Supreme Court. Gordy v. Dunwody, 210 Ga. 810, 83 S.E.2d 7 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Constitution gives General Assembly authority to enact laws placing conditions upon appeals. Fife v. Johnston, 225 Ga. 447, 169 S.E.2d 167 (1969); State v. Hollomon, 132 Ga. App. 304, 208 S.E.2d 167 (1974); Reed v. Hopper, 235 Ga. 298, 219 S.E.2d 409 (1975).

General Assembly has no authority to prescribe cases to Supreme Court. Collins v. State, 239 Ga. 400, 236 S.E.2d 759 (1977).

Supreme Court not a court for hearing appeals from Court of Appeals generally. — As to most cases, that court is and should be considered as a court of last resort, though technically it is not such. Adair v. Traco Div., 192 Ga. 59, 14 S.E.2d 466, answer conformed to, 65 Ga. App. 110, 15 S.E.2d 306 (1941).

When Supreme Court will not review Court of Appeals decisions. — Supreme Court will not ordinarily review judgment of Court of Appeals because of assignment of error complaining that Court of Appeals has erroneously construed pleadings, nor will it ordinarily review a decision of the Court of Appeals merely because of an assignment of error complaining that the judgment of such court is incorrect. Frazier v. Southern Ry., 200 Ga. 590, 37 S.E.2d 774 (1946).

Correction of Errors of Fact

Where trial judge has discharged the judge's duty to review evidence, the Supreme Court has no power to pass judgment on issues of fact. Merritt v. State, 190 Ga. 81, 8 S.E.2d 386 (1940).

Supreme Court is a court for the correction of errors of law only, and cannot undertake to correct errors of fact.

Mills v. State, 188 Ga. 616, 4 S.E.2d 453 (1939).

Where eight trial jurors petition trial judge to grant a new trial, and trial judge declines to do so, no question of law is presented to the Supreme Court to authorize a judgment of reversal. Myrick v. State, 199 Ga. 244, 34 S.E.2d 36 (1945), overruled on other grounds, Dunagan v. State, 269 Ga. 590, 502 S.E.2d 726 (1998).

Title to Land1. In General

Meaning of term "cases involving title to land." — "Cases involving title to land," as that term is used in this paragraph, refers to and means actions at law, such as ejectment and statutory substitutes, in which the plaintiff asserts a presently enforceable legal title against the possession of the defendant for the purpose of recovering the land. Bond v. Ray, 207 Ga. 559, 63 S.E.2d 399 (1951), commented on in 3 Mercer L. Rev. 220 (1951); Reid v. Standard Oil Co., 218 Ga. 289, 127 S.E.2d 678 (1962); Barton v. Gammell, 238 Ga. 643, 235 S.E.2d 18, aff'd, 143 Ga. App. 291, 238 S.E.2d 445 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Supreme Court has no jurisdiction when title to land is not directly, but only incidentally, involved. Colley v. Atlanta & W. Point R.R., 156 Ga. 43, 118 S.E. 712 (1923); Radcliffe v. Jones, 174 Ga. 324, 162 S.E. 679 (1932); Reece v. McCrary, 179 Ga. 812, 177 S.E. 741 (1934); Lewis v. Fry, 194 Ga. 842, 22 S.E.2d 817 (1942); Miller v. Ray, 208 Ga. 27, 64 S.E.2d 449 (1951).

Since the children sought a determination that their deceased parent had a one-half interest in a home occupied by the parent and the second spouse and the second spouse sought a determination that the parent had no interest in the property, the parties were not seeking recovery of the land and the case was not within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Cole v. Cole, 205 Ga. App. 332, 422 S.E.2d 230 (1992).

Plaintiff must depend for recovery on maintenance of title. — The Supreme Court has jurisdiction of cases in which the plaintiff asserts the plaintiff's title to the land in question, and depends for a recovery upon the plaintiff's maintenance of it; or to supply a link in the chain, wanting by reason of accident or other cause. Colley v. Atlanta & W. Point R.R., 156 Ga. 43, 118 S.E. 712 (1923).

Plaintiff must not be in actual possession of land. — Where petition shows that the plaintiff is in actual possession of the land described in the deed involved in the action, the action is not one at law for the recovery of land. Bond v. Ray, 207 Ga. 559, 63 S.E.2d 399 (1951), commented on in 3 Mercer L. Rev. 220 (1951).

Action seeking legal and equitable title to estate. — The Supreme Court's exclusive jurisdiction of cases "involving title to land" was not applied to an action by alleged illegitimate children of a decedent seeking legal and equitable title to the decedent's estate. Tolbert v. Whatley, 223 Ga. App. 508, 478 S.E.2d 587 (1996).

Supreme Court has no jurisdiction in contest over title growing out of proceeding for homestead exemption. Adams v. Bishop, 174 Ga. 262, 162 S.E. 531 (1932).

In action seeking rule nisi to require defendants to show cause why nonjudicial foreclosure proceeding should not be allowed to proceed, the Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction. Graham v. Tallent, 235 Ga. 47, 218 S.E.2d 799 (1975).

In action for abatement in contract price for purchase of described realty, the Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction. Halliburton v. Collier, 201 Ga. 340, 39 S.E.2d 698 (1946).

In appeal from judgment in favor of widow's application for dower, the Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction. Rowe v. Rowe, 221 Ga. 820, 147 S.E.2d 447 (1966).

In overruling of demurrer (now motion to dismiss) to petition seeking to recover damages for breach of warranty of title, the Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction. Sanders v. Calloway, 211 Ga. 580, 87 S.E.2d 397 (1955).

In action to confirm sale of land under power of sale, pursuant to former Code 1933, § 37-608 (see now O.C.G.A. § 44-14-161), the Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction. Tingle v. Atlanta Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 211 Ga. 636, 87 S.E.2d 841 (1955).

Determining if defective security deed exists. — Where purchaser of property at a tax sale sought determination that assignee of security deed had no interest in the property by virtue of a defective security deed in the chain of title, the Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction. Hooten v. Goldome Credit Corp., 224 Ga. App. 581, 481 S.E.2d 550 (1997).

Where dispossessory warrant is sued out to evict tenant who files a counter-affidavit alleging defensive facts only, and no equitable or affirmative relief is prayed, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Brumfield v. Home Owners Loan Corp., 196 Ga. 821, 27 S.E.2d 678 (1943).

Appeal of judgment determining local church held property in trust for national church within Supreme Court's jurisdiction. — Appeal by the trustees of a local church of a judgment determining that the possessory interest in property held by the local church was held in trust for the benefit of a national church and ordering that property delivered to the national church was within the supreme court's appellate jurisdiction over all equity cases under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(2); because resolution of the equitable issue would not be a matter of routine once the underlying legal issues were resolved, a substantive issue on appeal involved the legality or propriety of equitable relief. Kemp v. Neal, 288 Ga. 324, 704 S.E.2d 175 (2010).

Ownership as defense. — Where the statutory affidavit provided for in former Civil Code 1910, § 5385 (see now O.C.G.A. § 44-7-50), seeking to evict one alleged to be tenant holding over beyond the tenant's term, was resisted by the filing of a counter-affidavit denying tenancy and asserting ownership as a defense, the issue presented was not a case respecting title to land. Anderson v. Watkins, 170 Ga. 483, 153 S.E. 8 (1930).

Denial of tenancy. — Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of a case brought after the overruling of a motion for new trial after verdict upon an issue made by the filing of a counter-affidavit to a dispossessory warrant, which affidavit merely denied the tenancy alleged in the warrant. Downs v. Weaver, 184 Ga. 856, 193 S.E. 858 (1937).

Rights of possession, not title was issue. — Where defendants appealed to the Supreme Court from entry by the state court of an order granting a writ of possession in a dispossessory proceeding filed after foreclosure of defendants' interest under a deed to secure debt, as right of possession, not title to land, was the issue before the state court, jurisdiction of the appeal was in the Court of Appeals. Jordan v. Atlanta Neighborhood Hous. Servs., Inc., 251 Ga. 37, 302 S.E.2d 568 (1983).

Easements. — The Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction to hear an appeal on grounds that the case "involved title to land" where the party against whom default judgment had been entered admitted that there was no slope-and-fill easement on the party's property and the title-insurance policy covering such easements did not affect title to property. Krystal Co. v. Carter, 256 Ga. 43, 343 S.E.2d 490 (1986).

2. Proceedings to Establish Copy of Lost Deed

Form of judgment affected nature of case. — Where in an action to establish a copy of a lost deed the jury found in favor of the plaintiff's contention as to the character of the deed, and upon such verdict the judge entered a decree that the plaintiff recover the land described, that fee-simple title be vested in it, and that the deed attached to the petition be established as prayed, the only effect of the decree was to establish the deed as prayed by the plaintiff; the provisions therein as to recovery of land and decree of title being surplusage. Accordingly, the form of the judgment did not make the case one in equity or one respecting title to land. Loftin v. Carroll County Bd. of Educ., 195 Ga. 689, 25 S.E.2d 293 (1943).

Proceeding not converted into equity case by defendant's answer. — A proceeding to establish a copy of a lost deed was not converted into an equity case by the answer of the defendant, asserting only that the deed executed by the defendant contained a provision whereby title would revert to the defendant on a certain condition stated, and not invoking any equitable relief; nor did it constitute a suit respecting title to land, hence appellate jurisdiction was not in the Supreme Court. Loftin v. Carroll County Bd. of Educ., 195 Ga. 689, 25 S.E.2d 293 (1943).

3. Condemnation

Supreme Court has no jurisdiction where sole issue is value of property condemned. Housing Auth. v. Spink, 210 Ga. 718, 82 S.E.2d 502 (1954).

Where only issue is value of property sought to be acquired by city, the Supreme Court does not have jurisdiction. Burress v. Montgomery, 148 Ga. 548, 97 S.E. 538 (1918); Brandt v. Buckley, 151 Ga. 582, 107 S.E. 773 (1921); City of Reynolds v. Carter, 159 Ga. 229, 125 S.E. 380 (1924).

Where sole subject of appeal is amount awarded intervenor claiming an easement, the Supreme Court does not have jurisdiction. State Hwy. Dep't v. Holleman, 220 Ga. 72, 137 S.E.2d 39 (1964).

In controversy over proceeds of condemnation award, the Supreme Court does not have jurisdiction. Boswell v. Underwood, 217 Ga. 675, 124 S.E.2d 394 (1962).

Where title to land has been decreed in the condemnor, incidental questions determining the rights of parties to receive the award of condemnation money, not directly involving the title to land, do not give the Supreme Court jurisdiction of a condemnation case. DeKalb County v. Jackson-Atlantic Co., 226 Ga. 664, 177 S.E.2d 90 (1970).

Question of whether condemnor properly tendered award outside jurisdiction. — On appeal of an award by assessors in a condemnation proceeding in which the condemnor was dissatisfied, the question of whether or not the condemnor properly tendered the amount of the award before entering the appeal did not make a question for decision within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, nor did the allegation of estoppel by reason of a judgment decreeing fee-simple title to be in the condemnor make a question involving title to land and within the jurisdiction thereof. Wilson v. State Hwy. Dep't, 208 Ga. 510, 67 S.E.2d 578 (1951).

4. Partitioning Proceedings

Supreme Court has jurisdiction over partition proceeding involving title to land. Harlowe v. Harlowe, 160 Ga. 822, 129 S.E. 98 (1925).

Jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment in an action involving statutory partitioning proceedings is in the Supreme Court. Wiley v. Wiley, 233 Ga. 824, 213 S.E.2d 682 (1975).

Appellate jurisdiction of partitioning rested in the Supreme Court as involving title to land where a divorced husband, who filed a complaint seeking a partitioning under O.C.G.A. § 44-6-160, appealed the grant of a summary judgment to the wife, denying partitioning. Wallace v. Wallace, 260 Ga. 400, 396 S.E.2d 208 (1990).

5. Processioning and Boundary Disputes

Supreme Court had no jurisdiction over proceedings to procession land under former Civil Code 1910, § 3817 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. I, Ch. 4, T. 44). Elkins v. Merritt, 146 Ga. 647, 92 S.E. 51 (1917); Frey v. Thompson, 147 Ga. 559, 94 S.E. 999 (1918).

Neither an application for the processioning of an alleged disputed land line nor the protest thereto make a case respecting title to land. Jarrard v. Wildes, 209 Ga. 282, 71 S.E.2d 549 (1952).

An application for processioning to determine a disputed land line and a protest thereto is not a case respecting title to land so as to give the Supreme Court jurisdiction. Fulford v. Johnson, 221 Ga. 338, 144 S.E.2d 526 (1965).

Boundary-line cases are within the province of the Court of Appeals. Rarely does a boundary-line dispute exist in which equitable relief is not sought, but such relief is incidental to and secondary to the principal issue—the location of the line. Beauchamp v. Knight, 261 Ga. 608, 409 S.E.2d 208 (1991).

Action not one respecting title to land which only involves the proper location of a boundary between coterminous landowners. Taylor v. Murray, 215 Ga. 628, 112 S.E.2d 583 (1960).

Location of dividing line appropriate issue for Court of Appeals. —

Where the parties by agreement have eliminated all issues in a case to enjoin a continuing trespass and an action in ejectment, except the issue as to the location of the dividing line, the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of the writ of error. Whaley v. Ellis, 209 Ga. 147, 71 S.E.2d 209 (1952).

Title to land not involved. — Where the controlling question in an encroachment action between owners of adjoining lots is the location of the dividing line separating the lots, title to land is not directly involved. Grobli v. Foreman, 171 Ga. 712, 156 S.E. 622 (1931).

Equity

1. In General

Supreme Court has exclusive appellate jurisdiction of equity cases. Wyche v. Bank of Campbell County, 160 Ga. 258, 127 S.E. 741 (1925).

Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court embraces both good and bad equity cases. — Consequently, even though a petition, may not state a valid and subsisting cause of action for equitable relief, it is within that court's jurisdiction. Sutker v. Pennsylvania Ins. Co., 114 Ga. App. 627, 152 S.E.2d 578 (1966), transferred to 223 Ga. 58, 153 S.E.2d 540 (1967).

Where action is not one in equity, Supreme Court is without jurisdiction, and the action should be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Regal Textile Co. v. Feil, 189 Ga. 581, 6 S.E.2d 908 (1940); Gay v. Lewis, 215 Ga. 317, 109 S.E.2d 646 (1959).

Case the Court of Appeals transferred to the Supreme Court was returned to the Court of Appeals because the matter was not an equity case that triggered the Supreme Court's jurisdiction; the issues raised in the case, which placed an implied trust on disputed property, were legal in nature, and the issues did not relate to the propriety of an implied trust itself. Reeves v. Newman, 287 Ga. 317, 695 S.E.2d 626 (2010).

Constitution of will. — Where none of the findings or exceptions thereto are of such a character as to make a case in equity, and the case does not involve the validity or construction of a will, the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction of the subject matter, the jurisdiction being in the Court of Appeals. Adams v. Bishop, 170 Ga. 238, 152 S.E. 108 (1930).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction over affirmative equitable relief. — If there are pleadings and facts to warrant affirmative equitable relief, only the Supreme Court could entertain jurisdiction for purposes of review, but where the pleadings and evidence do not authorize affirmative equitable relief, the Supreme Court would have no jurisdiction for purposes of review. Alsabrook v. Prudential Ins. Co., 174 Ga. 637, 163 S.E. 706 (1932).

Transfer of case by Supreme Court equivalent to holding that action is not in equity. Stone v. Edwards, 32 Ga. App. 479, 124 S.E. 54 (1924); Taylor Lumber Co. v. Clark Lumber Co., 53 Ga. App. 815, 127 S.E. 905 (1924); Carter v. State, 93 Ga. App. 12, 90 S.E.2d 672 (1955).

Where an action for specific performance of a contract for the sale of land is transferred by the Supreme Court to the Court of Appeals, transfer of the appeal is tantamount to a ruling eliminating and resolving the equitable issues which lie only within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to determine. Brooks v. Boykin, 194 Ga. App. 854, 392 S.E.2d 46 (1990).

Equitable complaint rejected by Supreme Court states no cause of action at law. — Where the plaintiff has instituted an action and has prosecuted an appeal upon the theory that the plaintiff has some right that is cognizable in a court of equity, and the Supreme Court, which has exclusive jurisdiction of writs of error in equity cases, has decided that no jurisdiction of the cause exists in that court, it does not appear that the plaintiff has stated a cause of action at law. Citizens' & S. Nat'l Bank v. Georgia R.R. Bank, 43 Ga. App. 387, 159 S.E. 287 (1931).

Judgment sustaining demurrer to equitable petition reviewable. — In a suit brought in a superior court seeking equitable relief, the Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction to review a judgment sustaining a demurrer to the petition, regardless of whether a valid and subsisting cause of action was stated. O'Callaghan v. Bank of Eastman, 180 Ga. 812, 180 S.E. 847 (1935).

2. Tests for Equity Jurisdiction

Fact that case may be "equitable proceeding" does not make it "equity case" within meaning of this paragraph. Robinson v. Lindsey, 184 Ga. 684, 192 S.E. 910 (1937) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

In order for action to be treated as one in equity, pleader must allege or seek to allege such cause of action as is cognizable only in court of equity, according to the historical jurisdiction of such courts as modified by statute, as distinguished from those causes of action which are cognizable at law; and the prayers or some of them must be such as are appropriate to equitable relief in the particular situation. Regal Textile Co. v. Feil, 189 Ga. 581, 6 S.E.2d 908 (1940); Reynolds v. Hyers, 190 Ga. 200, 9 S.E.2d 78 (1940).

Test is what remains in case for review. — The test of a case as to whether it is one in equity, and hence reviewable by the Supreme Court, is not what it might have been at any given time during its pendency in the trial court but what remained in it for review. Matters eliminated either by the parties or by order of the trial court constitute no part of the case in the Supreme Court. Douglas-Guardian Whse. Corp. v. Todd, 212 Ga. 791, 96 S.E.2d 275 (1957); Benton v. State Hwy. Dep't, 220 Ga. 674, 141 S.E.2d 396 (1965); Sanders v. Carney, 224 Ga. 429, 162 S.E.2d 351 (1968); Gainesville Carpet Mart v. First Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 225 Ga. 315, 168 S.E.2d 159 (1969); Matuszczak v. Kelly, 233 Ga. 914, 213 S.E.2d 875 (1975).

Nature of relief sought. — Whether a complaint sets forth an equitable or a legal cause of action depends upon the relief prayed for. Burgess v. Ohio Nat'l

Life Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 48, 169 S.E. 364 (1933).

Whether an action is one at law or in equity is determined by the nature of the relief sought, rather than the form of the allegations of the complaint. Firemen's Fund Ins. Co. v. Thomas, 177 Ga. 427, 170 S.E. 222 (1933); Griffin v. Securities Inv. Co., 181 Ga. 455, 182 S.E. 594 (1935); Dobbs v. FDIC, 187 Ga. 569, 1 S.E.2d 672 (1939); Regal Textile Co. v. Feil, 189 Ga. 581, 6 S.E.2d 908 (1940); Comstock v. Tarbush, 200 Ga. 320, 37 S.E.2d 148 (1946); City of Summerville v. Georgia Power Co., 204 Ga. 276, 49 S.E.2d 661 (1948); United States Cas. Co. v. Georgia S. & Fla. Ry., 212 Ga. 569, 94 S.E.2d 422 (1956); State Hwy. Dep't v. Hewitt Contracting Co., 221 Ga. 621, 146 S.E.2d 632 (1966); Gifford v. Jackson, 223 Ga. 155, 154 S.E.2d 224 (1967).

To make a case one for equity jurisdiction in the Supreme Court, it must contain allegations and prayers for equitable relief. Jones v. Van Vleck, 224 Ga. 796, 164 S.E.2d 724 (1968).

Litigants will not be permitted to evade this paragraph by adding spurious prayer for equitable relief. Alderman v. Crenshaw, 208 Ga. 71, 65 S.E.2d 178 (1951), overruled on other grounds, Wiley v. Wiley, 233 Ga. 824, 213 S.E.2d 682 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Prayer for equitable relief does not make equity action. — Complaint containing allegations appropriate only to action for damages does not assume character of equity action merely by virtue of prayer for equitable relief. Atlanta Fin. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 189 Ga. 121, 5 S.E.2d 242 (1939); Hollinshed v. Shadrack, 212 Ga. 624, 94 S.E.2d 705 (1956).

Complaint will not be construed as suit in equity merely because it is filed in the superior court and is styled "complaint in equity." Burgess v. Ohio Nat'l Life Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 48, 169 S.E. 364 (1933).

A complaint is not to be treated as a case in equity merely because of general language so terming it where the allegations of fact and the specific prayers do not support the general language used. Dobbs v. FDIC, 187 Ga. 569, 1 S.E.2d 672 (1939).

Allegations of a complaint must be applicable to equitable relief prayed, and there must be a prayer either for the specific relief prayed or for general relief. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Dorman, 179 Ga. 890, 177 S.E. 703 (1934); Hollinshed v. Shadrack, 212 Ga. 624, 94 S.E.2d 705 (1956).

Allegation to effect that equitable relief is necessary to avoid multiplicity of suits is merely conclusion of pleader; without allegations to support it, the action is not one in equity within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Woolsey v. Mimms, 209 Ga. 360, 72 S.E.2d 706 (1952).

Equitable defense does not make equity case. — The posing of an equitable defense in response to a motion for summary judgment in a case in the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals clearly does not make it a case in equity. Capitol Fish Co. v. Tanner, 192 Ga. App. 251, 384 S.E.2d 394 (1989).

3. Where Equitable Features Eliminated

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court lost where equitable prayers in complaint are stricken by amendment. Cochran v. Stephens, 147 Ga. 401, 94 S.E. 303 (1917); Cochran v. Stephens, 155 Ga. 134, 116 S.E. 303 (1923); Henley v. Colonial Stages S., Inc., 184 Ga. 445, 191 S.E. 445 (1937); Leggitt v. Allen, 208 Ga. 298, 66 S.E.2d 709 (1951); Fulford v. Johnson, 221 Ga. 338, 144 S.E.2d 526 (1965).

A case may begin as an action in equity; but, in its progress the equitable features may become eliminated, so that the Supreme Court would have no jurisdiction. Regal Textile Co. v. Feil, 189 Ga. 581, 6 S.E.2d 908 (1940).

Where the equity features which a case originally contained have been abandoned, or eliminated before the judgment dismissing a complaint was rendered, the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Rumph v. Rister, 211 Ga. 312, 85 S.E.2d 768 (1955).

Where the complaint, after being amended, seeks only legal relief, the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court has jurisdiction to decide the case.

Motels, Inc. v. Shadrack, 213 Ga. 434, 99 S.E.2d 107 (1957).

Where by amendment all prayers for equitable relief have been stricken from petition, and court asked to vacate its temporary restraining order and to otherwise treat the case as an action at law for a money judgment against the defendants, the case is no longer one involving equity. Citizens Bank v. Thompson, 214 Ga. 674, 107 S.E.2d 175 (1959).

When a plaintiff amends the plaintiff's petition by eliminating a prayer for equitable relief, and the petition as finally amended seeks and prays only for legal relief, the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Boze v. Atlanta Veterans Transp., Inc., 218 Ga. 274, 127 S.E.2d 466 (1962).

Election of plaintiff to proceed in tort under former Code 1933, § 105-1207 (see now O.C.G.A. § 51-12-30) removed all equity from the case and left only an action at law for money damages of which the Court of Appeals and not the Supreme Court had jurisdiction. Kenimer v. Ward Wight Realty Co., 219 Ga. 275, 133 S.E.2d 18 (1963).

Failure to appeal judgment denying reformation eliminates jurisdiction. — Where plaintiff cobroker has not appealed the grant of summary judgment as to the plaintiff's pleadings seeking to reform the contract based upon a mutual mistake of fact of the parties, the reformation sought therein is not now before the court on appeal which would have rendered jurisdiction of this case in the Supreme Court. MPI Corp. v. Northside Realty Assocs., 151 Ga. App. 516, 260 S.E.2d 499 (1979), rev'd, 245 Ga. 321, 265 S.E.2d 11 (1980).

Dismissal of equity action removes equity jurisdiction from counterclaim. — Where a defendant, in answer to an equitable complaint for injunctive relief, sets up a money demand, and asks a judgment therefor against the complainant and, after the grant of a temporary restraining order, the complainant voluntarily dismisses the action, such a dismissal removes all equitable questions involved in the case. Rogers v. Miller Peanut Co., 199 Ga. 835, 35 S.E.2d 469 (1945).

4. Declaratory Judgments

Jurisdiction in Supreme Court is not afforded merely because declaratory judgment is sought. Jones v. Van Vleck, 224 Ga. 796, 164 S.E.2d 724 (1968).

Prayer for restraining order as provided for under the Declaratory Judgment Act (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 4, T. 9) is not one for equitable relief within meaning of this paragraph. Milwaukee Mechanics Ins. Co. v. Davis, 204 Ga. 67, 48 S.E.2d 876 (1948); City of Summerville v. Georgia Power Co., 204 Ga. 276, 49 S.E.2d 661 (1948); Bond v. Ray, 207 Ga. 559, 63 S.E.2d 399 (1951), commented on in 3 Mercer L. Rev. 220 (1951); Adler v. Adler, 209 Ga. 363, 72 S.E.2d 714 (1952); Boggs v. Broome, 209 Ga. 836, 76 S.E.2d 497 (1953); Peoples v. Bass, 211 Ga. 802, 89 S.E.2d 171 (1955); United States Cas. Co. v. Georgia S. & Fla. Ry., 212 Ga. 569, 94 S.E.2d 422 (1956); McMahon v. Folds, 216 Ga. 709, 119 S.E.2d 353 (1961) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Where all of the substantial relief sought by the plaintiff in an action for declaratory judgment may be obtained in a court of law, jurisdiction of the cause on appeal is not vested in the Supreme Court merely because the trial court granted a temporary restraining order "to maintain the status pending the adjudication of the questions." Findley v. City of Vidalia, 204 Ga. 279, 49 S.E.2d 658 (1948).

An action brought under the Declaratory Judgment Act, not being an equitable proceeding per se, must involve some phase of those cases listed in this paragraph in order to come within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on exceptions to rulings of the lower court. Bankers Life & Cas. Co. v. Cravey, 210 Ga. 239, 78 S.E.2d 507 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

5. Injunctions

Nature of order. — The nature of the order containing the underlying contested issues of law will govern the appellate path in the Court of Appeals under O.C.G.A. § 5-6-34(b). Saxton v. Coastal Dialysis & Medical Clinic, Inc., 220 Ga. App. 805, 470 S.E.2d 252 (1996), aff'd, 267 Ga. 177, 476 S.E.2d 587 (1996).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction in appeal from grant of permanent injunction. — Where the general judgment and decree includes the grant of a permanent injunction, the Supreme Court has jurisdiction of the writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49, 5-6-50) excepting to such general judgment and decree granting equitable relief. Pinkard v. Mendel, 216 Ga. 487, 117 S.E.2d 336 (1960), later appeal, 217 Ga. 562, 123 S.E.2d 770 (1962).

Where a complaint is brought by the corporate operator of a business alleging that a license ordinance of a municipality sought to be enforced is unconstitutional and praying for process, a temporary restraining order, and for a permanent injunction, such a case is an equity case within the meaning of this paragraph. City of Atlanta v. Royal Peacock Social Club, Inc., 119 Ga. App. 648, 168 S.E.2d 335 (1969) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction over injunctive relief. — The Supreme Court had jurisdiction where the primary issue on appeal was whether the trial court erred in denying injunctive relief given the jury's finding of misappropriation of trade secrets and use of those trade secrets by defendants. Electronic Data Sys. Corp. v. Heinemann, 268 Ga. 755, 493 S.E.2d 132 (1997).

Where prayer for injunction is mere surplusage, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Gulf Am. Fire & Cas. Co. v. McNeal, 222 Ga. 454, 150 S.E.2d 685 (1966); Tierce v. Davis, 225 Ga. 574, 170 S.E.2d 228 (1969).

A prayer for permanent injunction without alleging facts which would support the prayer for such relief is insufficient to place jurisdiction in the Supreme Court. Stone v. First Nat'l Bank, 223 Ga. 804, 158 S.E.2d 382 (1967).

In complaint seeking injunction against criminal prosecution pending adjudication of questions raised in complaint, the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Tierce v. Davis, 225 Ga. 574, 170 S.E.2d 228 (1969).

Requirement that injunctive relief be substantive issue. — Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court does not attach simply because pleadings contain a prayer for an injunction or any other form of equitable relief; instead, an equity case for purposes of Supreme Court jurisdiction is a case in which a substantive issue raised on appeal involves the legality or propriety of equitable relief. Saxton v. Coastal Dialysis & Medical Clinic, Inc., 267 Ga. 177, 476 S.E.2d 587 (1996); Powell v. Norman Elec. Galaxy, Inc., 229 Ga. App. 99, 493 S.E.2d 205 (1997).

No jurisdiction where denial of injunction was not appealed. — Where the only request for equitable relief made by appellants in their complaint was for an injunction to halt construction of road improvements, and the denial of that request was not appealed, there was not currently any claim for equitable relief pending in the case and jurisdiction over the appeal was in the Court of Appeals rather than the Supreme Court. Clay v. Department of Transp., 198 Ga. App. 155, 400 S.E.2d 684 (1990), cert. denied, 198 Ga. App. 897, 400 S.E.2d 684 (1991).

6. Equitable Defenses

Equitable defense does not make action equity case. — Where an action is one at law and the defendant's answer, if at all equitable in nature, is purely defensive, the sustaining of which would result simply in a general verdict in favor of the defendant, the case is not an "equity case" within the meaning of this paragraph. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y v. Bischoff, 179 Ga. 255, 175 S.E. 560 (1934); Alderman v. Crenshaw, 208 Ga. 71, 65 S.E.2d 178 (1951), overruled on other grounds, Wiley v. Wiley, 233 Ga. 824, 213 S.E.2d 682 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Petition to set aside judgment on equitable grounds not equity case. — A petition filed in the court where a judgment was rendered to set aside the judgment on the ground of mental incapacity to enter into contract and of insanity existing at the time the judgment was rendered is not "an equity case" as is contemplated by this paragraph. Perry v. Fletcher, 174 Ga. 180, 162 S.E. 285 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Response to motion to dismiss petition denominated "plea of equitable estoppel" and not seeking any affirmative equitable relief does not confer jurisdiction on Supreme Court and not seeking any affirmative equitable relief does not confer jurisdiction on Supreme Court under this paragraph because it does not change the character of the cross action from a money demand to a suit in equity. Rogers v. Miller Peanut Co., 199 Ga. 835, 35 S.E.2d 469 (1945) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Where petition subject to demurrer (now motion to dismiss) on ground of misjoinder of parties or causes of action is brought, the fact that no demurrer is filed will not convert it into equity case. Dobbs v. FDIC, 187 Ga. 569, 1 S.E.2d 672 (1939).

7. Receivership

Supreme Court has jurisdiction in appointment of receiver of partnership property. Greeson v. Taylor, 160 Ga. 392, 128 S.E. 177 (1925).

Where there is no objection to appointment, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — Where suit, as originally brought, was one in equity seeking the appointment of a receiver, to which there is no objection, nor is there any complaint as to anything done, the case before the Supreme Court on writ of error (see §§ 5-6-49, 5-6-50) does not involve any equitable relief, or the application of any rule of equitable procedure; the question in issue is one of law, and is not such as to confer jurisdiction upon the Supreme Court but that it be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Refrigeration Appliances, Inc. v. Atlanta Provision Co., 210 Ga. 475, 80 S.E.2d 683 (1954).

Fact that verdict and judgment were obtained by receiver as substituted plaintiff does not make case one in equity. Henley v. Colonial Stages S., Inc., 184 Ga. 445, 191 S.E. 445 (1937).

8. Specific Cases

Claim case can, by pleadings and prayer, be converted into equitable proceeding. Columbus Plumbing, Heating & Mill Supply Co. v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 216 Ga. 706, 119 S.E.2d 118 (1961).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction in action involving equitable setoff. — Where petitioner, a nonresident railroad, brought an action ex contractu against a resident of this state for the collection of freight charges owing the petitioner, and by cross action the defendant set off an action ex delicto for negligence, a court of equity would take jurisdiction thereof, under former Code 1933, § 37-308 (see now O.C.G.A. § 23-2-76), and the Supreme Court had jurisdiction. Atlanta Paper Co. v. New York, N.H. & H.R.R., 211 Ga. 185, 84 S.E.2d 359 (1954).

In controversy arising out of complaint for interpleader, the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Freeman v. Atlanta Police Relief Ass'n, 62 Ga. App. 523, 8 S.E.2d 711 (1940); Finney v. Green, 90 Ga. App. 321, 83 S.E.2d 65 (1954).

In judgment against corporate director for fraud, the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. — Where a judgment is not merely against a corporation to which an overpayment was made, but also against one of the directors who was liable, not because the director received the overpayment, but because the director wrongfully took that much and more money out of the capital assets of the corporation, rendering it insolvent, in fraud of the plaintiff's rights, the case presented is one in equity. Regal Textile Co. v. Feil, 189 Ga. 581, 6 S.E.2d 908 (1940).

In action involving conventional subrogation, the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. Lee v. Holman, 52 Ga. App. 543, 183 S.E. 837, aff'd, 182 Ga. 559, 186 S.E. 189 (1936).

Where claimant of personalty seeks equitable relief, the Supreme Court has jurisdiction. — Where one files a claim to personalty levied upon under an attachment or other process, and in aid of that claim files an amendment in which the person seeks affirmative equitable relief, the original proceeding at law is converted into a proceeding both at law and in equity. In such a case, when a writ of error is sued out to review the final judgment, the Supreme Court has jurisdiction to determine the assignments of error set out in the bill of exceptions. Benton v. Benton, 164 Ga. 541, 139 S.E. 68 (1927).

Contract law issues. — Georgia Court of Appeals, rather than the Georgia Supreme Court, had jurisdiction over the appeal because the propriety of equitable relief was ancillary to the underlying substantive issues of contract law that were the focus of the appeal including whether the parties made a mutual mistake in their agreement over the purchase of the acquisition loan. First Chatham Bank v. Liberty Capital, LLC, 325 Ga. App. 821, 755 S.E.2d 219 (2014).

Contract claim against county barred by sovereign immunity. — Builder's contractual and quasi-contractual claims against a county and the county's officials for an interest in a sewer pumping station were properly dismissed by the trial court because those claims were barred by sovereign immunity as there was no written contract to enforce. Layer v. Barrow County, 297 Ga. 871, 778 S.E.2d 156 (2015).

Action for specific performance. — An appeal from an order granting summary judgment against the plaintiff seeking specific performance of an alleged agreement for the sale of land was within the Supreme Court's jurisdiction, not within the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals, even though the plaintiff had included an alternative prayer for damages in the complaint. Stephens v. Trotter, 205 Ga. App. 497, 422 S.E.2d 568 (1992).

In an action for the violation of restrictive covenants, because the "primary issue" to be resolved on appeal was whether the trial court properly construed the contracts and the viability of any equitable claim was ancillary thereto, the appeal was outside the realm of the Supreme Court's jurisdiction. Redfern v. Huntcliff Homes Ass'n, 271 Ga. 745, 524 S.E.2d 464 (1999).

Affidavit of illegality did not give Supreme Court jurisdiction. — Where simple law case made by foreclosure on personal property was halted by affidavit of illegality, denying that defendant owes the debt, the Supreme Court did not have jurisdiction. Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp. v. Pritchett, 217 Ga. 52, 121 S.E.2d 17 (1961).

In action at law to recover judgment upon note secured by deed to land, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Burgess v. Ohio Nat'l Life Ins. Co., 177 Ga. 48, 169 S.E. 364 (1933).

In proceeding to establish copy of lost deed, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. — Where a petition in a superior court to establish a copy of a deed claimed to have been lost alleged only that the debtor resided in the county in which the suit was filed, that the debtor had executed to the plaintiff a certain deed, a true copy of which was attached to the petition, and that the deed had been lost, and in which petition the only prayer was that "the clerk of this court issue a rule nisi calling upon (the defendant) to show cause, if any he has, why the copy deed aforesaid should not be established in lieu of said lost original," such petition was a mere statutory proceeding to establish a copy of the deed claimed to have been lost, and was not a suit in equity such as to grant appellate jurisdiction in the Supreme Court. Loftin v. Carroll County Bd. of Educ., 195 Ga. 689, 25 S.E.2d 293 (1943).

In proceeding to subject trust estate to payment of debt, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. The suit did not seek or pray for any relief not allowable in a court of law under the statutory procedure under Art. 4, Ch. 12, T. 53. Robinson v. Lindsey, 184 Ga. 684, 192 S.E. 910 (1937).

Prayer added to set aside contract did not give Supreme Court jurisdiction. — In petition seeking money damages because of alleged fraudulent misrepresentations inducing the plaintiff to sign a contract of sale for the purchase of an automobile, the addition of a prayer that the contract of sale "be set aside on the grounds of fraud" was not such a prayer for equitable relief as to give the Supreme Court jurisdiction of the appeal. Douglas v. Currie Ford Co., 103 Ga. App.

75, 118 S.E.2d 586 (1961).

Where order requires executor to secure additional bond, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — Order of the superior court on appeal from the court of ordinary (now probate court) requiring executor to secure an additional surety bond within 15 days and, upon the executor's failure to comply, revocation of the executor's letters of executorship and order to make an accounting are reviewable solely by the Court of Appeals. Goodman v. Little, 213 Ga. 178, 97 S.E.2d 567 (1957).

Where plaintiff asks for special lien against fund in garnishment, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Henley v. Colonial Stages S., Inc., 184 Ga. 445, 191 S.E. 445 (1937).

In motion to revoke order of incorporation on grounds that movant had acquired prior use to name used by the corporation, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Methodist Episcopal Church S., Inc. v. Decell, 60 Ga. App. 843, 5 S.E.2d 66 (1939).

Where holder of junior judgment claims older judgment void on grounds of insanity, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — Where a case involves the distribution of money arising from the sale of property under a senior judgment and execution, and the holder of a junior judgment and execution claims the fund upon the ground that the judgment in the older case is void, because at the time of its rendition the defendant therein was insane and confined in the state sanitarium, it is not an equity case within the meaning of the Constitution declaring the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, and will be transferred to the Court of Appeals, which has jurisdiction. Burkhalter v. Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co., 170 Ga. 237, 152 S.E. 98 (1930).

In money rule against sheriff under former Civil Code 1910, § 5348 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-13-13), the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Alsabrook v. Prudential Ins. Co., 174 Ga. 637, 163 S.E. 706 (1932).

In action for accounting against deceased agent, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. — Suit brought against administration of intestate on grounds that the administrator had been verbally appointed agent of plaintiff's intestate and had made no accounting or settlement was an action at law and not an equity case. Goodwyn v. Roop, 181 Ga. 327, 182 S.E. 4 (1935).

In discovery ancillary to recovery of funds from guardian, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Williams v. Farmers State Bank, 147 Ga. 569, 94 S.E. 998 (1918).

In action to recover assets of stockholder of insolvent corporation, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — A suit to recover the statutory liability of an alleged stockholder of an insolvent institution, in the hands of the Superintendent of Banks for liquidation, and to have the property seized under the writ of attachment in pursuance of law and subjected to payment of the alleged liability, is not a suit in equity. Pignatel v. Mobley, 173 Ga. 410, 160 S.E. 411 (1931).

In action for recovery of money had and received, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Orient Ins. Co. v. Dunlap, 193 Ga. 241, 17 S.E.2d 703 (1941).

Action for money had and received. — Though a petition filed in the superior court may contain allegations authorizing the rendition of a money judgment against the defendant therein, as upon an action in equity upon the doctrine of subrogation, or as upon an action at law for money had and received, if the prayer of the petition seeks the recovery of the money judgment as for money had and received, in the absence of any other prayer, the case presented is not an equity case within the meaning of the constitutional provision giving the Supreme Court exclusive jurisdiction of equity cases. Jasper School Dist. v. Gormley, 184 Ga. 756, 193 S.E. 248 (1937).

Equitable adoption. — Appeal in which the substantive issue involves the legality or propriety of a trial court's declaration that a certain individual is or is not the virtually adopted child of a decedent is an action in equity that invokes the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Georgia under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(2); to the extent Walden

v. Burke, 282 Ga. App. 154, 637 S.E.2d 859 (Ga. Ct. App. 2006) may have been read as indicating the contrary, it was disapproved. Morgan v. Howard, 285 Ga. 512, 678 S.E.2d 882 (2009).

Action involving riparian rights to water. — Because equitable principles were at the core of a trial court's determination as to whether an appellee had made a reasonable use of the water the appellee shared with the appellants, jurisdiction over the appeal was properly in the Supreme Court of Georgia under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(2). Tunison v. Harper, 286 Ga. 687, 690 S.E.2d 819 (2010).

Interpretation of trust not within supreme court's jurisdiction over equity cases. — Appeals that involve the proper interpretation of a trust provision do not come within the supreme court's general appellate jurisdiction over "equity cases," Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(2), because the resolution of that legal issue will affect the administration of the trust. Durham v. Durham, No. S12A0607, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 577 (June 18, 2012).

Appeals challenging orders granting and denying motions for summary judgment were transferred to the court of appeals because the cases did not come within the supreme court's appellate jurisdiction over "equity cases" under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(2); the sole issue presented on appeal was how to interpret a specific provision of a legal document, the in terrorem clause of the trust, which was a straightforward legal question and one that did not require any analysis that could be termed an evaluation of equitable considerations. Durham v. Durham, No. S12A0607, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 577 (June 18, 2012).

Wills

Language "all cases involving wills" means those cases in which the will's validity or meaning is in question. Where the only issue in a case is the jurisdiction of the probate court to set aside a probate based on discovery of new evidence, jurisdiction lies in the Court of Appeals. In re Estate of Lott, 251 Ga. 461, 306 S.E.2d 920 (1983).

Supreme Court has no jurisdiction where construction of a will is involved only as incident to some other proceeding. Reece v. McCrary, 179 Ga. 812, 177 S.E. 741 (1934); Trust Co. v. Smith, 182 Ga. 360, 185 S.E. 525 (1936); Hicks v. Wadsworth, 184 Ga. 681, 192 S.E. 729 (1937); Furlow v. Sanders, 189 Ga. 614, 7 S.E.2d 181 (1940); Roberts v. Wilson, 198 Ga. 428, 31 S.E.2d 707 (1944); Darnell v. Tate, 208 Ga. 23, 64 S.E.2d 582 (1951); Grant v. Bell, 150 Ga. App. 141, 257 S.E.2d 12, rev'd on other grounds, 244 Ga. 665, 261 S.E.2d 616 (1979).

In proceeding to establish copy of lost will, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — Where the proceeding was not one to probate a copy of a lost or destroyed will under former Civil Code 1910, § 3863 (see now O.C.G.A. § 53-3-6), but was one to establish a copy of a lost record of a will therefore duly probated and admitted to record, the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction under this paragraph. Bond v. Reid, 152 Ga. 481, 110 S.E. 281 (1922) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

In dispute over identity of beneficiary, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — The issue of which of two persons of the same name is the beneficiary named in a testator's will does not involve either the validity of a will or the construction of a will. Scheridan v. Scheridan, 231 Ga. 729, 204 S.E.2d 293 (1974).

In a proceeding to determine heirship, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — In an action to determine heirship where the parties did not raise, nor did the trial court consider or resolve, any issue relating to the validity or meaning of decedent's will, the Court of Appeals had jurisdiction of the appeal. Goodman v. Hammonds, 224 Ga. App. 387, 480 S.E.2d 397 (1997).

Will dispute within Court of Appeals' jurisdiction upon transfer. — Court of Appeals had jurisdiction upon the transfer by the Supreme Court of Georgia of an appeal of a will dispute as the Supreme Court's determination that the issue did not involve the validity or meaning of the will, such that it was ancillary, was binding; the Court of Appeals nonetheless had jurisdiction to resolve the dispute. Simmons v. England, 323 Ga. App. 251, 746 S.E.2d 862 (2013).

Where provisions of will incidentally relied upon to show title to stock, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. — Where certain provisions of a will are incidentally relied on to show title to corporate stock as the basis of stockholder's liability and no question is made as to construction or validity of the will, but both sides treat it as valid and meaning the same thing as bequeathing the capital stock in question to the defendant, the case does not involve the validity or construction of a will. Pignatel v. Mobley, 173 Ga. 410, 160 S.E. 411 (1931).

In proceeding to select replacement for executor, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. — Where the purpose of an action is the selection of an executor to succeed one who is resigning because of ill health, the construction of the testator's will is only incidentally involved, if at all, and the nature of the alleged cause will be determined by the controlling object for which the proceeding is instituted and the character of the relief sought. Measured by this rule, the proceeding does not make a case involving the construction of a will within the constitutional provision relating to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Darnell v. Tate, 208 Ga. 23, 64 S.E.2d 582 (1951).

Denial of motion for new trial, subject of which is qualification of nominated executors of probated will, does not involve validity or construction of a will. Thomasson v. Barber, 191 Ga. 262, 11 S.E.2d 887 (1940).

Criminal Cases

Jurisdiction in Supreme Court turns not on what punishment is actually imposed, but on whether conviction is for a capital felony. Mika v. State, 196 Ga. 473, 26 S.E.2d 616 (1943); Birdell v. State, 200 Ga. 785, 38 S.E.2d 589 (1946); Climmer v. State, 78 Ga. App. 125, 50 S.E.2d 633 (1948); Osborne v. State, 209 Ga. 345, 72 S.E.2d 317 (1952); Coleman v. State, 211 Ga. 704, 88 S.E.2d 381 (1955).

Sentence to life imprisonment does not change nature of conviction.

— When a person on trial for murder is found guilty of that offense, but with a recommendation by the jury that the person be imprisoned for life in the penitentiary, the person is convicted of a capital felony. Caesar v. State, 127 Ga. 710, 57 S.E. 66 (1907).

If under a murder indictment one is convicted, not of murder but of a lower grade of homicide such as manslaughter, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction since the defendant has not been convicted of the capital felony as charged. Mika v. State, 196 Ga. 473, 26 S.E.2d 616 (1943).

Plea of guilty, accepted and entered by the court, is a "conviction." McCrary v. State, 215 Ga. 887, 114 S.E.2d 133 (1960).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction of all counts of indictment once conviction shown. — Although "conviction of a capital felony" is critical to the Supreme Court's jurisdiction, once the conviction is shown, then the court has jurisdiction of that "case," including all counts of the indictment on which the accused was found guilty and all enumerations of error arising therefrom regardless of their subject matter. Jarrell v. State, 234 Ga. 410, 216 S.E.2d 258 (1975).

Convictions of rape, kidnapping, and armed robbery are no longer convictions of capital felonies for appellate jurisdictional purposes and jurisdiction of these appeals lies in the Court of Appeals. Collins v. State, 239 Ga. 400, 236 S.E.2d 759 (1977).

Mere indictment of capital felony does not give Supreme Court jurisdiction. — Where there has been indictment, but no trial and no conviction of a capital felony, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction. Robinson v. State, 209 Ga. 48, 70 S.E.2d 514 (1952).

The mere fact that a capital offense is charged in an indictment does not give the Supreme Court jurisdiction of a criminal case, but there must be a conviction of a capital felony. McCrary v. State, 215 Ga. 887, 114 S.E.2d 133 (1960).

Jurisdiction of change of venue motion in Court of Appeals. — The Court of Appeals, and not the Supreme Court, has appellate jurisdiction of a murder case involving change of venue. Wilburn v. State, 140 Ga. 138, 78 S.E. 819 (1913); Scoggins v. State, 24 Ga. App. 677, 102 S.E. 39 (1920); Ruffin v. State, 151 Ga. 743, 108 S.E. 29 (1921).

The jurisdiction of all venue cases of this class (motion to change venue after an indictment for a capital felony is vested in the Court of Appeals, and not the Supreme Court, provided no constitutional question is raised in the lower court. Humphrey v. State, 175 Ga. 666, 165 S.E. 587 (1932).

Denial of pretrial motion no basis for appeal. — Denial of a motion for new trial on a plea of insanity at the time of trial on an indictment for murder, when, in fact, there had been no trial upon the murder charge, cannot afford a basis for jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Spell v. State, 225 Ga. 237, 167 S.E.2d 642 (1969).

Objection to illegally seized evidence does not give jurisdiction. — Where, in a criminal trial, a part of the evidence was objected to upon the ground that it was obtained by an unlawful search of the defendant's house, the error complained of is not of such a character as to give the Supreme Court jurisdiction. Thompson v. State, 174 Ga. 804, 164 S.E. 202 (1932).

Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction in cases involving misdemeanor offenses unmingled with equitable or constitutional questions. Hilliard v. State, 209 Ga. 497, 74 S.E.2d 65 (1953).

Contempt of Court

Supreme Court has jurisdiction over attachment for contempt in violating injunction. — An attachment for contempt in violating an injunctive order, though having some of the characteristics of a criminal proceeding, is so connected with the injunction that a writ of error to review a judgment imposing a fine or a term of imprisonment for such contempt should be treated as an equity case within this paragraph. Tomlin v. Rome Stove & Range Co., 183 Ga. 183, 187 S.E. 879 (1936); Wagner v. Commercial Printers, Inc., 203 Ga. 1, 45 S.E.2d 205 (1947) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Where a citation seeking a judgment for criminal contempt is filed as a branch of an equity case in which the judgment enjoined the defendant from committing the acts which form the basis for the contempt citation, the contempt case comes within the jurisdiction of the court having jurisdiction of the equity case. Holcomb v. Johnston, 103 Ga. App. 116, 118 S.E.2d 387 (1961).

In appeal of trial court's finding of contempt of witness in divorce proceeding, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Crocker v. Crocker, 232 Ga. 97, 205 S.E.2d 308 (1974).

In appeal of judgment finding appellant guilty of contempt in failing to obey notice to produce certain papers into court where the contempt feature arises out of the question of law as to the right to require such records produced, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction. Cranford v. Cranford, 225 Ga. 60, 165 S.E.2d 847 (1969).

Habeas Corpus

Motions to vacate judgments in all criminal cases are not normally to be treated as petitions for habeas corpus. Martin v. State, 240 Ga. 488, 241 S.E.2d 246 (1978).

Child custody. — Custody controversies involving delinquent children, unruly children, or deprived children are not cases "in the nature of habeas corpus" and are not within the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975).

In a custody controversy in the nature of habeas corpus, the juvenile court has concurrent jurisdiction to decide the issue only if the case is transferred to the juvenile court by proper order of the superior court; and, in such a transferred case, appellate jurisdiction is lodged in the Supreme Court of Georgia. Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975).

Where the natural parent of a child contended that there had never been a transfer of custody to defendant, the parent properly brought the complaint as habeas corpus, and the appeal of the case should have remained with the Supreme

Extraordinary Remedies

Phrase “extraordinary remedies” refers only to such extraordinary legal remedies as mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto, and the like. Spence v. Miller, 176 Ga. 96, 167 S.E. 188 (1932); Felton v. Chandler, 201 Ga. 347, 39 S.E.2d 654 (1946).

“Extraordinary remedies” encompass mandamus proceedings. James v. State, 120 Ga. App. 317, 170 S.E.2d 303 (1969).

Declaratory judgments are not included in “extraordinary remedies.” Felton v. Chandler, 201 Ga. 347, 39 S.E.2d 654 (1946).

Proceeding for contempt for violation of mandamus involves extraordinary remedy. — A proceeding for contempt in violation of a mandamus absolute is so connected with the mandamus that a writ of error to review a judgment therein should be treated as a case involving an extraordinary remedy within this paragraph. Settle v. McWhorter, 203 Ga. 93, 45 S.E.2d 210 (1947) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Divorce and Alimony

Appellate jurisdiction of custody dispute in Supreme Court. — In case of dispute over custody between parents, original jurisdiction exists exclusively in courts having jurisdiction of habeas corpus or divorce and alimony actions, in both of which the Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction on appeal. Bartlett v. Bartlett, 99 Ga. App. 770, 109 S.E.2d 821 (1959).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction in proceeding for modification of alimony judgment. Perry v. Perry, 213 Ga. 847, 102 S.E.2d 534 (1958).

Sheriff failed to secure bond in divorce action. — The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction of a suit against a sheriff and the sheriff's sureties, to enforce a liability against them for failure of the sheriff to obtain from the defendant in a suit for divorce and alimony an appearance bond as ordered by the trial court. Swain v. Jaudon, 147 Ga. 773, 95 S.E. 696 (1918).

In citation for contempt based upon failure to comply with judgment rendered by court of another state, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Henderson v. Henderson, 209 Ga. 148, 71 S.E.2d 210 (1952).

In action in which defense alleges divorce in plaintiff's action for damages for death of spouse, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Thompson v. Central of Ga. Ry., 214 Ga. 130, 103 S.E.2d 555 (1958).

Where exceptions are taken to an order sustaining a demurrer (now motion to dismiss) on an oral motion to strike defendant's answer and to judgment in action upon contract for payment of alimony, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Arnold v. Arnold, 217 Ga. 430, 122 S.E.2d 734 (1961).

In action based solely upon contract for support in settlement of alimony and praying for recovery of sums agreed upon, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Hayes v. Hayes, 191 Ga. 237, 11 S.E.2d 764 (1940).

Petition for support under uniform act. — The petition of a divorced wife for support of two minor children by her former husband, brought under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 11, T. 19) is not a divorce or alimony case within the meaning of this paragraph. O'Quinn v. O'Quinn, 217 Ga. 431, 122 S.E.2d 925 (1961) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Action on foreign judgment for alimony is simply an action on debt of record and is not an alimony case. McLendon v. McLendon, 192 Ga. 70, 14 S.E.2d 477 (1941); Johnson v. Johnson, 223 Ga. 147, 154 S.E.2d 13 (1967).

Suit brought by one against former spouse seeking to domesticate out-of-state judgment in a divorce proceeding and to have spouse attached for contempt and ordered to pay arrearages was a suit on a foreign judgment, not a divorce or alimony case within the meaning of the Georgia Constitution, and jurisdiction of the appeal was in the Court of Appeals. Lewis v. Robinson, 254 Ga. 378, 329 S.E.2d 498 (1985).

Family violence actions. — Because family violence actions involve neither divorce nor alimony, they do not fall within the Supreme Court's exclusive jurisdiction and, therefore, jurisdiction lies in the Georgia Court of Appeals. Schmidt v. Schmidt, 270 Ga. 461, 510 S.E.2d 810 (1999).

A case involving a "domestic relations" issue wherein appellant sought domestication and "correction" of a foreign divorce decree, normally within the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals, also involved claims based upon an unincorporated settlement agreement which raised no "domestic relations" issue and, therefore, the Supreme Court had jurisdiction over the direct appeal from the grant of summary judgment in favor of the former husband as to the former wife's claims for specific performance of the settlement agreement and jurisdiction over the rulings on all the former wife's claims, including the "domestic relations" claim. Eickhoff v. Eickhoff, 263 Ga. 498, 435 S.E.2d 914 (1993).

Non-custodial parent receiving child support. — Trial court erred by incorrectly starting with the father's presumptive amount of child support and incorrectly applying a parenting time deviation available only to the noncustodial parent to him under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15(b)(1)-(7) when the court ordered him to pay the non-custodial mother child support per month. Williamson v. Williamson, 293 Ga. 721, 748 S.E.2d 679 (2013).

Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of appeals of contempt actions involving child custody. — Having eschewed jurisdiction over appeals which involve child custody but not a judgment for divorce and alimony and having held in Munday v. Munday, 243 Ga. 863, 257 S.E.2d 282 (1979), that the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction of appeals involving child custody, the Supreme Court retains jurisdiction of contempt actions involving child custody. Ashburn v. Baker, 256 Ga. 507, 350 S.E.2d 437 (1986).

Contempt order entered in divorce case. — Where the jury specifically designates a property transfer as alimony in a divorce case, the Court of Appeals does not have jurisdiction of an appeal of a contempt order entered therein, which by law is subject to application for discretionary appeal to the Supreme Court. Cale v. Byrdwell, 166 Ga. App. 901, 305 S.E.2d 468 (1983).

Georgia Supreme Court, as opposed to the Georgia Court of Appeals, had jurisdiction over a discretionary appeal by a former spouse of a contempt ruling relating to a property distribution portion of a divorce decree pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(6) as the application for contempt was ancillary to the divorce action and not a new civil action; thus, it fell within the Georgia Supreme Court's jurisdiction over divorce and alimony cases. Morris v. Morris, 284 Ga. 748, 670 S.E.2d 84 (2008).

Tort action. — Wife's claim for damages for a motorcycle accident against her husband involved only a tort claim, and was not a divorce case within the meaning of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(6), even though the wife sought a divorce in another count of the complaint, and the Supreme Court of Georgia did not have jurisdiction over the interlocutory appeal of the denial of the husband's motion to dismiss, which had been treated as a motion for summary judgment; the wife's argument that the appeal fell within the Supreme Court of Georgia's appellate jurisdiction over constitutional issues was rejected as she did not specify any allegedly unconstitutional statutes, and argued only that the interspousal tort immunity doctrine, as codified in O.C.G.A. § 19-3-8, was unconstitutional as applied. Gates v. Gates, 277 Ga. 175, 587 S.E.2d 32 (2003).

Writ of mandamus. — Superior court's order that the county issue building permits to the developer amounted to a writ of mandamus and, thus, the Georgia Supreme Court properly had appellate jurisdiction over the county's appeal. Union County v. CGP, Inc., 277 Ga. 349, 589 S.E.2d 240 (2003).

Action for damages. — Because an ex-wife and children sought damages for a decedent's alleged failure to comply with an insurance provision in a divorce decree, and not a recovery of alimony or child support, the Georgia Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction to hear a discretionary appeal under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(6) and the orders appealed from were subject to the discretionary appeal requirements of O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(2); therefore, the Court of Appeals correctly dismissed their direct appeal. Walker v. Estate of Mays, 279 Ga. 652, 619 S.E.2d 679 (2005).

Other Cases

Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to review judgment rendered on action for breach of contract. Lexington Presbyterian Church v. Reid, 147 Ga. 225, 93 S.E. 208 (1917).

In contract action for cutting timber where the issue was payment of the amount due, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. King v. Rodgers, 147 Ga. 464, 94 S.E. 580 (1917).

In action at law for deceit. — A suit seeking to recover damages for misrepresentations inducing the petitioner to purchase described real property where the sole prayer of the petition is for a money judgment as compensation for injury done, the suit must be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Elliott v. Dolvin, 160 Ga. 320, 127 S.E. 651 (1925).

In action on account, the Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction. Fuller v. Cox, 206 Ga. 332, 57 S.E.2d 173 (1950).

In action to remove obstructions from private way under former Code 1933, § 83-119 (see now O.C.G.A. § 44-9-59), the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Carter v. Kinman, 231 Ga. 759, 204 S.E.2d 299 (1974).

The Court of Appeals, not the Supreme Court, had jurisdiction of an action begun in the probate court as a petition for removal of an obstruction of a private way, which was appealed as such to the superior court, and which also concerned whether plaintiffs had an easement across defendant's property. Stutts v. Moore, 218 Ga. App. 624, 463 S.E.2d 30 (1995).

In judgment discharging rule nisi issued by superior court judge on charges of inefficiency of certain members of county board of education, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. State v. Walker, 209 Ga. 523, 74 S.E.2d 461 (1953).

In petition seeking recovery against surety on guardian's bond, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Gunby v. Roberts, 205 Ga. 346, 53 S.E.2d 370 (1949).

To review determination by judge of superior court as to whether particular case is within jurisdiction of justice court, the Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction. Smith v. Atlanta Mut. Ins. Co., 42 Ga. App. 254, 155 S.E. 535 (1930).

Where only question is plaintiff's right to recover attorney's fees, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction. Pickett v. Georgia F. & A.R.R., 214 Ga. 263, 104 S.E.2d 450 (1948).

In action against State Revenue Commissioner to recover money paid as corporation license tax, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction. Atlanta Labor Temple Ass'n v. Williams, 214 Ga. 263, 104 S.E.2d 449 (1958).

In cases involving revenues of the state, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction. — The enactment of the 1983 Constitution superseded the Supreme Court's order in Collins v. State, 239 Ga. 400, 236 S.E.2d 759 (1977), giving the Supreme Court jurisdiction over cases involving revenues of the state; thus, all pending cases which involve revenues of the state and which have been docketed in the Supreme Court will be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Collins v. AT & T Co., 265 Ga. 37, 456 S.E.2d 50 (1995).

Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction in proceeding to confirm and validate revenue anticipation certificates. Dade County v. State, 201 Ga. 241, 39 S.E.2d 473 (1946).

Supreme Court lacked jurisdiction in adoption proceeding. Criswell v. Jones, 187 Ga. 55, 199 S.E. 804 (1938).

An appraisal proceeding pursuant to former § 14-2-251 (see now O.C.G.A. § 14-2-1330) is legal, not equitable, in character; and thus no right of direct appeal to the Supreme Court lies from such a proceeding. Atlantic States Constr., Inc. v. Beavers, 250 Ga. 828, 301 S.E.2d 635 (1983).

Non-capital murder trial. — In non-capital murder trial, the Court of Appeals retained jurisdiction under the Georgia Constitution to evaluate the merits of defendant's direct appeal from a denied double jeopardy plea, despite the Court of Appeals' failure to transfer the appeal to the Supreme Court. Rhyne v. State, 264 Ga. 176, 442 S.E.2d 742 (1994).

Class action challenging cheating on exam. — In an appeal pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(2), arising from a class action suit challenging cheating on a city's firefighter exam, a trial court abused the court's discretion in fashioning injunctive relief specific to appealing non-party firefighters because the firefighters were not bound by the judgment since the firefighters were never joined in the action. Barham v. City of Atlanta, 292 Ga. 375, 738 S.E.2d 52 (2013).

Pleading and Practice

1. In General

Proper and timely filing of notice of appeal is absolute requirement to confer jurisdiction upon the appellate court. Mingo v. State, 133 Ga. App. 385, 210 S.E.2d 835 (1974).

Court not precluded from disposing of issues not reached by Court of Appeals. — While ordinarily the Supreme Court, in granting certiorari, does not undertake to dispose of issues not reached by the Court of Appeals in its decision, it is not precluded from doing so under this paragraph. State v. Royal, 247 Ga. 309, 275 S.E.2d 646 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Certification of question authorized. — The Court of Appeals was authorized to certify a question to the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of retroactive application of the cap on damages recoverable against the state provided in O.C.G.A. § 50-21-26. Department of Human Resources v. Phillips, 223 Ga. App. 520, 478 S.E.2d 598 (1996).

The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to consider merits of any question which is omitted in the trial court, and it is upon errors alleged by the complaining party to have been committed in the court below that the court must confine itself. Yarbrough v. Georgia R.R. &

Banking Co., 176 Ga. 780, 168 S.E. 873 (1933); Herndon v. State, 179 Ga. 597, 176 S.E. 620 (1934), appeal dismissed, 295 U.S. 441, 55 S. Ct. 794, 79 L. Ed. 1530 (1935); Calhoun v. State, 211 Ga. 112, 84 S.E.2d 198 (1954); Willingham v. Lee, 227 Ga. 425, 181 S.E.2d 49 (1971).

Enumeration of errors complaining of rulings not appearing of record cannot be considered by Supreme Court. Cowart v. Cowart, 223 Ga. 487, 156 S.E.2d 94 (1967).

Supreme Court has no original jurisdiction and it cannot decide questions raised for first time on appeal. Kitchens v. State, 228 Ga. 624, 187 S.E.2d 268 (1972).

Appellate courts have no original jurisdiction and will decide no question on appeal not clearly presented to and passed upon by the trial court. Security Mgt. Co. v. King, 132 Ga. App. 618, 208 S.E.2d 576 (1974).

Supreme Court has no original jurisdiction. — It is the province of the appellate court to consider only such questions as were presented to the trial court. Accordingly, an assignment of error is limited by the objections made at the time the evidence was offered. The objections cannot be enlarged by the addition of new matter as argument or grounds of error in a motion for new trial. Herndon v. State, 178 Ga. 832, 174 S.E. 597 (1934), appeal dismissed with opinions, 295 U.S. 441, 55 S. Ct. 794, 79 L. Ed. 1530 (1935).

The Supreme Court is a court for the correction of errors, and has no original jurisdiction; it will not pass upon questions on which no ruling has ever been made by the trial judge. South View Cem. Ass'n v. Hailey, 199 Ga. 478, 34 S.E.2d 863 (1945).

The Supreme Court is limited in its consideration of a case to the rulings actually made by the trial court to which there is exception. Walker v. State, 220 Ga. 415, 139 S.E.2d 278 (1964), rev'd on other grounds, 381 U.S. 355, 85 S. Ct. 1557, 14 L. Ed. 2d 681 (1965).

Any error not enumerated shall be disregarded. Windsor v. Southeastern Adjusters, Inc., 221 Ga. 329, 144 S.E.2d 739 (1965).

Party alleging error has burden of showing it in the record. Tukes v.

Pleading and Practice (Cont'd)1. In General (Cont'd)

State, 238 Ga. 114, 230 S.E.2d 841 (1976).

All interested persons are necessary parties. — All persons who are interested in sustaining or reversing the judgment of the court below are necessary parties in the Supreme Court, and must be made parties to the bill of exceptions. Greeson v. Taylor, 160 Ga. 392, 128 S.E. 177 (1925).

Appeal to United States Supreme Court tolls term for case. — Where on appeal from Georgia Supreme Court to the United States Supreme Court the judgment has been reversed and the case remanded for further proceedings, the appeal tolls the term for the case, and the Georgia Supreme Court still has jurisdiction to give such direction and make such disposition of the case as it may deem proper, not inconsistent with the opinion and judgment of the United States Supreme Court. Georgia Power Co. v. City of Decatur, 181 Ga. 187, 182 S.E. 32 (1935), aff'd sub nom. Georgia Ry. & Elec. Co. v. City of Decatur, 297 U.S. 620, 56 S. Ct. 606, 80 L. Ed. 925 (1936).

Case transferred when outside jurisdiction. — Where an action was held by the Supreme Court to be a tort action, and not for equitable accounting, it will be transferred to the Court of Appeals. Callaway v. Pearson, 146 Ga. 632, 92 S.E. 43 (1917).

When case transferred to Court of Appeals entered on docket. — When a case is transferred by the Supreme Court to the Court of Appeals during a term of the latter court and before the docket of the term is by order of the court closed, such case shall be entered upon the docket of the court when received, which shall be the first term; but when such transferred case is received by the clerk of the court after the docket for the term has been by order of the court closed, it shall be entered upon the docket of the next term, which shall be the first term of the case in the court to which it is transferred. Atlantic C.L.R. Co. v. Georgia Sweet Potato Growers' Ass'n, 171 Ga. 30, 154 S.E. 698, answer conformed to, 42 Ga. App. 82, 154 S.E. 915 (1930).

2. Need for Definiteness

Each question certified must be distinct question or proposition of law clearly stated, so that it can be definitely answered without regard to other issues of law or of fact in the case. A question must not contain inferences drawn either from the pleadings or from the evidence. Gormley v. Slicer, 177 Ga. 430, 170 S.E. 224 (1933); Willis v. Georgia Power Co., 178 Ga. 878, 174 S.E. 625 (1934).

Supreme Court will not answer question of objectionable generality, or such as contains a number of contingencies dependent upon evidence. A question is improper which is so broad and indefinite as to admit of one answer under one set of circumstances, and a different answer under another. Willis v. Georgia Power Co., 178 Ga. 878, 174 S.E. 625 (1934).

Where certified question does not present distinct issue of law, Supreme Court is not required or authorized to answer it. Butler v. State, 194 Ga. 426, 21 S.E.2d 846 (1942).

There can be no order or judgment by inference or implication that can be subject of review by an appellate court. Calhoun v. State, 211 Ga. 112, 84 S.E.2d 198 (1954).

Referring to prior case as "essentially similar" insufficient. — It is not sufficient to refer to a former case decided by the Supreme Court and to certify that the prayers and the allegations of the petition are "essentially similar" to the case mentioned. Such certification necessarily includes an inference or opinion on the question as to whether the allegations and prayers are "essentially similar." Gormley v. Slicer, 177 Ga. 430, 170 S.E. 224 (1933).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Particular phrasing of the certified question does not restrict the supreme court’s consideration of the problems involved and issues raised as perceived by it in its analysis of the record certified in the case. Union Camp Corp. v. Helmy, 258 Ga. 263, 367 S.E.2d 796 (1988).

Court declined to answer certified questions seeking advisory or anticipatory answers. — Because a federal district court certified questions regarding potential issues in a litigation and the certified questions addressed matters that either were previously decided in a prior certified opinion, were advisory or anticipatory in nature, or appeared to involve determinations properly made under federal practice and procedure, the court declined to answer the certified questions. CSX Transp., Inc. v. City of Garden City, 279 Ga. 655, 619 S.E.2d 597 (2005).

Habeas corpus. — Defendant's "Motion to Set Aside Sentences" was not an appropriate remedy and should have been considered as a petition for habeas corpus. State v. McCrary, 193 Ga. App. 11, 387 S.E.2d 10 (1989), aff'd, 259 Ga. 830, 388 S.E.2d 682 (1990).

No certification for moot questions. — While federal district courts could certify open questions of law under the Georgia state constitution and relevant state statutes to the Supreme Court of Georgia under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. IV, O.C.G.A. § 15-2-9, and Ga. Sup. Ct. R. 46-48, because the direct actions by plaintiff insureds against defendant insurer were barred by O.C.G.A. § 33-7-11 for failure to have first obtained a judgment against their uninsured motorists, the insureds' request for certification of a question of law to the Supreme Court of Georgia, to determine whether Georgia precedent prohibited the insurer from asserting set-offs in the payment of uninsured motorist personal injury claims was not warranted. *Harden v. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Under this paragraph, Supreme Court has authority to review any case by certiorari from Court of Appeals. Frazier v. Southern Ry., 200 Ga. 590, 37 S.E.2d 774 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. V).

General Assembly does not have power to limit time period for Supreme Court to grant certiorari. Holliman v. State, 175 Ga. 232, 165 S.E. 11 (1932).

Writ issued only for questions of gravity and importance. — The power of the Supreme Court to require the Court of Appeals to certify a case by certiorari is exercised with great caution and the writ is issued only in cases involving questions of great public concern in matters of gravity and importance. Central of Ga. Ry. v. Yesbik, 146 Ga. 620, 91 S.E. 873 (1917); King v. State, 155 Ga. 707, 118 S.E. 368 (1923); Louisville & N.R.R. v. Tomlin, 161 Ga. 749, 132 S.E. 90 (1926); *Adair v. Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. 6, Para. V gives the state's highest court the power to review by certiorari cases in the Georgia Court of Appeals that are of gravity or great public importance. Mathis v. Cannon, 276 Ga. 16, 573 S.E.2d 376 (2002).

Denial of writ of certiorari shall not be taken as adjudication that decision or judgment of Court of Appeals is correct. — The writ may have been denied for want of sufficient assignment of error in the petition, or for other failure to comply with the rules, or because the case was not considered as one falling within the class which may be reviewed on certiorari. Adair v. Traco Div., 192 Ga. 59, 14 S.E.2d 466, answer conformed to, 65 Ga. App. 110, 15 S.E.2d 306 (1941).

Supreme Court determines whether to grant certiorari. — When conflict in decisions is involved, whether or not writ of certiorari will be granted is a question for determination by the Supreme Court, under the facts and circumstances of each particular case. Frazier v. Southern Ry., 200 Ga. 590, 37 S.E.2d 774 (1946).

Court of Appeals decision in favor of defendant in criminal case. — The Supreme Court has jurisdiction to review by certiorari any decision by the Court of Appeals in the defendant's favor in a criminal case, and a defendant's constitutional right against double jeopardy is not implicated when the state seeks discretionary review of an adverse decision by the Court of Appeals in a criminal case. State v. Tyson, 273 Ga. 690, 544 S.E.2d 444 (2001).

Court not precluded from disposing of issues not reached by Court of Appeals. — While ordinarily the Supreme Court, in granting certiorari, does not undertake to dispose of issues not reached by the Court of Appeals in its decision, it is not precluded from doing so under this paragraph. State v. Royal, 247 Ga. 309, 275 S.E.2d 646 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. V).

Certiorari properly granted where question involved is effect of Carmack Amendment to Hepburn Act (49 U.S.C. §§ 11, 18). Central of Ga. Ry. v. Yesbik, 146 Ga. 620, 91 S.E. 873 (1917).

Federal habeas petitioner. — A federal habeas petitioner was not required to petition the Georgia Supreme Court to review the Georgia appellate court's decision in the petitioner's appeal of convictions for armed robbery and aggravated battery, the convictions being appealed because of the alleged unconstitutionality of the grand and traverse jury pools, as the state Supreme Court's certiorari jurisdiction is extremely limited and offered no practical remedy to be exhausted. Buck v. Green, 743 F.2d 1567 (11th Cir. 1984).

Because certiorari was only granted in cases of gravity or great public importance under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. V, and the Georgia Supreme Court's denial of certiorari was not a ruling on the merits, petitioner state inmate had not fairly presented the petitioner's claims to the state and dismissal of the petitioner's federal habeas petition was proper for failure to exhaust. Mauk v. Lanier, 484 F.3d 1352 (11th Cir. 2007).

Appeals by state prisoners. — Because a state prisoner did not appeal a conviction to the Georgia Supreme Court, the conviction became final 10 days after the appellate court affirmed the conviction, and the prisoner was not entitled to seek certiorari review to the U.S. Supreme Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1257(a). Thus, the habeas petition was untimely under 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(A); although the Georgia Constitution circumscribed review by the Georgia Supreme Court, the Georgia Supreme Court placed no limit on its certiorari jurisdiction under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, O.C.G.A. § 5-6-15, and Ga. Sup. Ct. R. 40. Pugh v. Smith, 465 F.3d 1295 (11th Cir. 2006).

Paragraph VI. Decisions of Supreme Court binding.

The decisions of the Supreme Court shall bind all other courts as precedents.

1976 Constitution. — Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

In general. — See Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Glawson, 140 Ga. 507, 79 S.E. 136 (1913); Holmes v. Southern Ry., 145 Ga. 172, 88 S.E. 924 (1916).

The decisions of the Supreme Court shall bind the Court of Appeals as precedents, and the Court of Appeals is not authorized by this paragraph to request a review by the Supreme Court of a decision rendered by the Supreme Court. Cargile v. State, 194 Ga. 20, 20 S.E.2d 416, answer conformed to, 67 Ga. App. 610, 21 S.E.2d 326 (1942) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. VI).

Unanimity not required. — A decision rendered by a divided Supreme Court is authoritative as a precedent, and, although a decision of the Supreme Court may have been rendered by a divided court, the Court of Appeals is nevertheless bound thereby. Western & A.R.R. v. Michael, 43 Ga. App. 703, 160 S.E. 93 (1931).

As to the Court of Appeals, a Supreme Court decision is a binding precedent even though not unanimous. Life Ins. Co. v. Lawler, 211 Ga. 246, 85 S.E.2d 1 (1954).

Court of Appeals has no authority to overrule or modify decision of the Supreme Court of Georgia. Adams v. State, 174 Ga. App. 558, 331 S.E.2d 29 (1985); Etkind v. Suarez, 234 Ga. App. 108, 505 S.E.2d 831 (1998), aff'd, 271 Ga. 352, 519 S.E.2d 210 (1999).

The Appellate Court of Georgia was without authority to abolish or modify the Supreme Court's determination that constitutional challenges must be raised before the jury returns a verdict. Nahid v. State, 276 Ga. App. 687, 624 S.E.2d 264 (2005).

Decisions of the Georgia Court of Appeals that were inconsistent with Georgia Supreme Court precedent were not binding. — Following the defendant's conviction for attempted murder, there was no change in the law because McNair v. State, 293 Ga. 282 (2013), applying the rule of lenity when there was ambiguity between two felony punishments, was dictated by the Supreme Court's own precedents. Contrary cases by the Georgia Court of Appeals were never binding precedents. Rollf v. Carter, 298 Ga. 557, No. S15A1505, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 195 (2016).

Declaratory ruling. — Litigants who argued that a prior decision of the court was not a genuine case or controversy between adversaries and that the prior litigation was "arranged" solely to elicit a declaratory ruling on the constitutionality of a statute were not availed because the court had previously ruled that the statute, O.C.G.A. § 36-60-13, was constitutional under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, § V, Para. I(a), and that prior decision was binding on any lower court faced with an argument that the statute was not constitutional. Bauerband v. Jackson County, 278 Ga. 222, 598 S.E.2d 444 (2004).

SELECTION, TERM, COMPENSATION, AND DISCIPLINE OF JUDGES

Paragraph

- I. Election; term of office.
- II. Qualifications.
- III. Vacancies.
- IV. Period of service of appointees.
- V. Compensation and allowances of judges.

Paragraph

- VI. Judicial Qualifications Commission; power; composition.
- VII. Discipline, removal, and involuntary retirement of judges.
- VIII. Due process; review by Supreme Court.

Paragraph I. Election; term of office.

All superior court and state court judges shall be elected on a nonpartisan basis for a term of four years. All Justices of the Supreme Court and the Judges of the Court of Appeals shall be elected on a nonpartisan basis for a term of six years. The terms of all judges thus elected shall begin the next January 1 after their election. All other judges shall continue to be selected in the manner and for the term they were selected on June 30, 1983, until otherwise provided by local law.

1976 Constitution. — Art. VI, Sec. II, Paras. III, VIII; Art. VI, Sec. III, Paras. I, II, and III; Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III; Art. VI, Sec. VII, Paras. I and III.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Election held under paragraph not affected by paragraph providing for filling vacancy in unexpired term. — An election held at the time prescribed by this paragraph to fill the office for the next ensuing four-year term is not affected by the provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV), which provide not for the election of a judge for the next ensuing four-year term, but for the filling of a vacancy for the portion of the unexpired term occasioned by the death or resignation of the incumbent. Hooper v. Almand, 196 Ga. 52, 25 S.E.2d 778 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I).

“Six month provision” in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV is not in conflict with the mandate in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I that superior court and state court judges are to be elected on a nonpartisan basis for a four-year term because the drafters envisioned that the six month provision would give the voters the right to select the holders of elective office, yet would afford the appointee a sufficient opportunity to demonstrate the merit, or lack thereof, of the appointee’s service. Perdue v. Palmour, 278 Ga. 217, 600 S.E.2d 370 (2004).

Agreement to change to retention election system unconstitutional. — In an action challenging Georgia’s judicial election system under the Voting Rights Act and the federal Constitution a proposed consent decree that would establish retention elections instead of direct elections was rejected because it would impermissibly decrease the power of the electorate in violation of constitutional and statutory law of the state. Brooks v. State Bd. of Elections, 848 F. Supp. 1548 (S.D.

Ga. 1994), appeal dismissed, 59 F.3d 1114 (11th Cir. 1995).

One elected Chief Justice not entitled to office where previous term unexpired. — One who claims to have been elected Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia in a state-wide general election is not entitled to a commission from the Governor, and could not qualify as Chief Justice where before such election there existed a vacancy in the office, the unexpired term whereof extended beyond the time when a regular election would be held for judicial officers of that class, and the vacancy had been filled by executive appointment. Stephens v. Reid, 189 Ga. 372, 6 S.E.2d 728 (1939).

Quo warranto denied challenging appointment of judges. — Trial court's denial of the challenger's petition for a writ of quo warranto was affirmed because the newly created positions on the Georgia Court of Appeals qualified as vacancies under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. III; thus, the governor had the authority to appoint judges to the vacancies created by amended O.C.G.A. § 15-3-1(a). Clark v. Deal, No. S16X0560, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 314 (Apr. 26, 2016).

Intra-county judicial assistance. — Requesting and receiving intra-county judicial assistance did not unconstitutionally create a judgeship as the juvenile court judges who assisted the superior court did not become superior court judges; thus, no judicial position constitutionally required to be filled by election under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I, or by gubernatorial appointment until election under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. V, Sec. II, Para. VIII, was created by the exercise of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2)(C). Earl v. Mills, 278 Ga. 128, 598 S.E.2d 480 (2004).

Remaining in office after term of office ends. — Previous state constitutions explicitly provided that the term of office for superior court judges “shall be for four years, and until his successor is qualified.” Omission of the phrase “until his successor is qualified” in the 1983 Constitution does not prevent judges from remaining in office after their four-year term of office ends. Garcia v. Miller, 261 Ga. 531, 408 S.E.2d 97 (1991).

Serving on state court after taking oath of superior court judge. — There are no constitutional or statutory bars to a judge's continuing to serve as judge of the state court until the effective date of the judge's resignation from that office, notwithstanding the judge having taken the oath of office of judge of the superior court a few days before the judge's term of office was to begin. Carey Can., Inc. v. Hinely, 181 Ga. App. 364, 352 S.E.2d 398 (1986), rev'd on other grounds, 257 Ga. 150, 356 S.E.2d 202, cert. denied, 484 U.S. 898, 108 S. Ct. 233, 98 L. Ed. 2d 192 (1987).

Magistrate judges and variance by local law. — As the constitution permits selection and terms of offices of magistrate judges to be varied by local law, the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-20, 15-10-23, 15-10-100, 15-10-105 and Ga. L. 1983, p. 4027, are not unconstitutional. In re Magistrate Court, 262 Ga. 334, 418 S.E.2d 42 (1992).

Judicial appointment to a vacant seat. — Since any appointment for the judicial position would have been made less than six months prior to the election, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, the judge candidate could not show that the candidate was deprived of the candidate's right to vote or participate in the electoral process where the candidate's candidacy was “revoked” by the Secretary of State after the Governor decided to appoint a judge to the vacant seat; thus, the judge candidate failed to state a claim pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 or U.S. Const., amend. 14 against the Governor or the Secretary of State. Hornsby v. Barnes, No. 1:02-cv-1812-GET, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27508 (N.D. Ga. July 22, 2002).

Appointment not improper. — Because defendant's claim that defendant's trial judge was not properly appointed under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2) was first raised on a motion for new trial, the complaint was untimely; in any event, the judge's previous appointments by separate orders to preside over other superior court matters for specified periods of time did not render the judge a de facto superior court judge in violation of the constitutional requirement that all superior court judges be elected, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I, and thus defendant failed to establish that counsel's failure to object to the allegedly improper appointment of the judge was ineffective assistance. Moreland v. State, 279 Ga. 641, 619 S.E.2d 626 (2005).

Cited in Madden v. Cleland, 105 F.R.D. 520 (N.D. Ga. 1985); Brooks v. State Bd. of Elections, 838 F. Supp. 601 (S.D. Ga. 1993).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Candidates not restricted to judicial district involved. — Names appearing upon nomination petition for candidate seeking office of judge of superior court or solicitor general (now district attorney) are not restricted to electors residing in judicial circuit directly involved. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-126.

Election of clerks of state court on partisan basis. — In enacting Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I and O.C.G.A. §§ 21-2-138 and 21-2-139, the General Assembly did not intend to place the election of clerks of state courts on a nonpartisan basis unless the General Assembly so provided by special legislation. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-6.

Terms of appointees to vacancies. — An appointee to fill a vacancy occurring in a superior or state court judgeship will serve until January 1 following the next general election which is more than six months after the date of the person's appointment at which time the appointee will be required to run for a new four year term of office regardless of the time remaining in the original term of office. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 86-31.

Paragraph II. Qualifications.

(a) Appellate and superior court judges shall have been admitted to practice law for seven years.

(b) State court judges shall have been admitted to practice law for seven years, provided that this requirement shall be five years in the case of state court judges elected or appointed in the year 2000 or earlier. Juvenile court judges shall have been admitted to practice law for five years.

(c) Probate and magistrate judges shall have such qualifications as provided by law.

(d) All judges shall reside in the geographical area in which they are selected to serve.

(e) The General Assembly may provide by law for additional qualifications, including, but not limited to, minimum residency requirements. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 6, § 7, Para. 2; Ga. L. 2000, p. 2002, § 1/HR 268.)

1976 Constitution. — Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII; Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I; Art. VI, Sec. XIII, Para. I.

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2000, p. 2002, § 1), which changed the experience requirement for eligibility for the office of state court judge from five years to seven years, was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 7, 2000.

ANALYSIS

LAW-PRACTICE REQUIREMENT

General Consideration

Qualifications for office constitutionally fixed cannot be changed by statute. — Certain offices are created by the Constitution itself, and in certain cases the Constitution prescribes the qualifications which will prevent one from holding or being eligible to hold such office; and where the Constitution does fix the grounds of qualification and disqualification, the legislature cannot by statute take from or add to those grounds. Ray v. Hand, 225 Ga. 589, 170 S.E.2d 692 (1969).

This paragraph does not bar a person with the constitutional qualifications from seeking and assuming office. Ray v. Hand, 225 Ga. 589, 170 S.E.2d 692 (1969) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. II).

Age at time of election. — The word “election” as it appears in this provision means the day votes are cast, not the day when they are finally tabulated and certified by the Secretary of State. Poythress v. Moses, 250 Ga. 452, 298 S.E.2d 480 (1983) (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIII, Para. I, relating to qualifications of appellate and superior court judges and other officials.).

Cited in Anderson v. Flake, 270 Ga. 141, 508 S.E.2d 650 (1998).

Law-Practice Requirement

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIII, Para. I and antecedent provisions, which stated that a person must “have practice law” for specified periods before becoming eligible for service as a Justice of the Supreme Court, Judge of the Court of Appeals, or judge of the superior court, are included in the annotations for this paragraph. The present provision requires one to have been “admitted to practice law” for a specified period.

The language “shall have practiced” means actual practice and, of course, contemplates lawful practice. Wallace v. Wallace, 225 Ga. 102, 166 S.E.2d 718, cert. denied, 396 U.S. 939, 90 S. Ct. 369, 24 L. Ed. 2d 240 (1969).

If an attorney never registers with nor pays any license fee to the State Bar, any practice of law which the attorney may have engaged in is unlawful and the attorney is ineligible for the office of district attorney. Wallace v. Wallace, 225 Ga. 102, 166 S.E.2d 718, cert. denied, 396 U.S. 939, 90 S. Ct. 369, 24 L. Ed. 2d 240 (1969).

Qualification of § 15-18-3 must be read in light of this paragraph. — The denial of eligibility to one “who has not been duly admitted and licensed to practice law in the superior courts for at least three years” under former Code 1933, § 24-2901 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-18-3), must be read in light of the higher requirement of this paragraph. Wallace v. Wallace, 225 Ga. 102, 166 S.E.2d 718, cert. denied, 396 U.S. 939, 90 S. Ct. 369, 24 L. Ed. 2d 240 (1969) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. II).

Disbarment and cancellation of license to practice law separate proceedings. — Where a lawyer is also a judge of the superior court and hence a constitutional officer and must have practiced law seven years at time of the lawyer’s election and is prohibited from practicing law while serving as judge, the lawyer cannot at the same time be disbarred and the lawyer’s license to practice law canceled as provided in the Rules and Regulations of the State Bar of Georgia. The two proceedings are provided for the accomplishment of entirely different results. Each must be pursued to accomplish the result which it is intended to accomplish. Gordon v. Clinkscales, 215 Ga. 843, 114 S.E.2d 15 (1960).

Supreme Court Justice candidate. — An individual must be a member of the State Bar of Georgia in order to be qualified to run for office as a Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia. Littlejohn v.

Cleland, 251 Ga. 597, 308 S.E.2d 186 (1983).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Residency requirement. — A state court judge must continue to maintain residency in the county from which the judge is elected in order to retain office and, if the judge fails to do so, then the office becomes vacant as a matter of law. 1995 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U95-6.

Seven-year practice of law requirement must be met by date of election. — One running for office of judge of superior court must meet seven-year practice of law requirement by date of one’s election to that office, rather than at time of oath of office. 1981 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 81-64.

Magistrates should be classified as county officials for purposes of social security reporting and contributions. 1986 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 86-9.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Judge appointed upon request for assistance. — Judgment entered by a judge who was appointed by the chief county magistrate judge upon a request for “assistance” made by the superior court chief judge pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1, was not void, even though the judge was appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of a superior court judge, which vacancy should have been filled by the Governor. Dominguez v. Enterprise Leasing Co., 197 Ga. App. 664, 399 S.E.2d 269 (1990).

Quo warranto denied challenging appointment of judges. — Trial court’s denial of the challenger’s petition for a writ of quo warranto was affirmed because the newly created positions on the Georgia Court of Appeals qualified as vacancies under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. III; thus, the governor had the authority to appoint judges to the vacancies created by amended O.C.G.A. § 15-3-1(a). Clark v. Deal, No. S16X0560, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 314 (Apr. 26, 2016).

Six-month provision. — Trial court erred in directing a county election superintendent to proceed with the primary and general elections for a judge and solicitor-general because the Governor's appointees would not have had six months to demonstrate their merit. Perdue v. Palmour, 278 Ga. 217, 600 S.E.2d 370 (2004).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Reelection of Supreme Court Justice appointed to fill vacancy. — When the Governor appoints to fill a vacancy on the Supreme Court, the appointee must stand for reelection in the nonpartisan judicial primary and also during the next general election in November, which is more than six months after their appointment. 1992 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U92-7.

Special election occurs when superior court judge has died and a successor is to be selected according to this paragraph and no call is necessary. 1970 Op.

Att'y Gen. No. U70-144. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. III).

State court solicitor. — A person appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of a state court solicitor may serve until January 1 of the year following the next general election which is more than six months after such person's appointment and, if elected in the general election next preceding that January 1 date, such person would begin to serve a new four-year term of office. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-17.

Paragraph IV. Period of service of appointees.

An appointee to an elective office shall serve until a successor is duly selected and qualified and until January 1 of the year following the next general election which is more than six months after such person's appointment.

cies in public office generally, Ch. 5, T. 45, and § 45-12-50 et seq.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Paragraph does not affect regular elections. — An election held at the time prescribed by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I) to fill the office for the next ensuing four-year term is not affected by the provisions of this paragraph, which provide not for the election of a judge for the next ensuing four-year term, but for the filling of a vacancy for the portion of the unexpired term occasioned by the death or resignation of the incumbent. Hooper v. Almand, 196 Ga. 52, 25 S.E.2d 778 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV).

Trial court erred in directing a county election superintendent to proceed with the primary and general elections for a judge and solicitor-general because the Governor's appointees would not have had six months to demonstrate their merit. Perdue v. Palmour, 278 Ga. 217, 600 S.E.2d 370 (2004).

Paragraph does affect regular elections. — "Six month provision" in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV is not in conflict with the mandate in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I that superior court and state court judges are to be elected on a nonpartisan basis for a four-year term because the drafters envisioned that the six month provision would give the voters the right to select the holders of elective office, yet afforded the appointee a sufficient opportunity to demonstrate the merit, or lack thereof, of the appointee's service. Perdue v. Palmour, 278 Ga. 217, 600 S.E.2d 370 (2004).

Meaning of term “general election.”

— The term “the general election” refers to a general election held for members of the General Assembly. Brackett v. Etheridge, 190 Ga. 216, 9 S.E.2d 275 (1940).

Application of term “vacancy.”

— “Vacancy,” as applied to an office, applies not to the incumbent, but to the term or to the office, or both, depending generally upon the context of a statute or a constitutional provision in which the term is used. Hooper v. Almand, 196 Ga. 52, 25 S.E.2d 778 (1943).

How vacant seat filled. — When a vacancy occurs during a justice's term of office, the seat is filled by executive appointment, but when the vacancy occurs after a general election and prior to the commencement of the term, the seat is filled by a special election called for that purpose. Duncan v. Poythress, 515 F. Supp. 327 (N.D. Ga.), aff'd, 657 F.2d 691 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. dismissed, 459 U.S. 941, 103 S. Ct. 368, 74 L. Ed. 2d 504 (1982).

Limitation on exercise of power of executive appointment. — The exercise of the authority of appointment under the constitutional provision now contained in this paragraph must necessarily be given a restricted meaning, and is limited to those instances where an election is to be had for the unexpired term. Hooper v. Almand, 196 Ga. 52, 25 S.E.2d 778 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV).

Power of executive appointment contemplates only vacancies occurring in term. — The right and duty of the Governor under this paragraph to appoint is shown by the context not to contemplate vacancies other than those that occur in the term. Hooper v. Almand, 196 Ga. 52, 25 S.E.2d 778 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV).

Executive appointment power not to be exercised while incumbent in office. — The power of executive appointment in this paragraph is for an emergency and can be exercised only in case of a vacancy. It cannot be exercised to be effective while a duly commissioned incumbent is in office. Pittman v. Ingram, 184 Ga. 255, 190 S.E. 794 (1937) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV).

When vacancy must occur.

— Thirty-day (now six-month) provision in this paragraph is operative only when vacancy occurs during that period or longer before the election. Hooper v. Almand, 196 Ga. 52, 25 S.E.2d 778 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV).

When tenure of office of appointee expires. — Under this paragraph, when a vacancy in the office of judge of the superior court is filled by appointment of the Governor, the tenure of office of the appointee expires on the first day of January after the general election held next after the expiration of 30 days (now six months) from the time such vacancy occurs, at which election a successor for the unexpired term shall be elected. Stephens v. Reid, 189 Ga. 372, 6 S.E.2d 728 (1939) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV).

Term of office not affected by holding over of incumbent. — The term of an office, as fixed in the Constitution or statute creating the office, is not to be confused with the tenure of an officer, and is not affected by the holding over of an incumbent beyond the expiration of the term for which the incumbent was appointed. Hooper v. Almand, 196 Ga. 52, 25 S.E.2d 778 (1943).

Incumbent holds office until successor qualified. — Where the legislature creates an office and provides for the election of an officer to fill it for a given term of years, the incumbent will hold over and beyond the fixed term until the incumbent's successor is elected, qualified, and commissioned. Pittman v. Ingram, 184 Ga. 255, 190 S.E. 794 (1937).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Reelection of Supreme Court Justice appointed to fill vacancy. — When the Governor appoints to fill a vacancy on the Supreme Court, the appointee must stand for reelection in the nonpartisan judicial primary and also during the next general election in November, which is more than six months after their appointment. 1992 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U92-7.

Special election occurs when superior court judge has died and the judge’s successor is to be selected according to this paragraph and no call is necessary. 1970 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U70-144. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. IV).

Terms of appointees to vacancies. — An appointee to fill a vacancy occurring in a superior or state court judgeship will serve until January 1 following the next general election which is more than six months after the date of the person’s appointment at which time the appointee will be required to run for a new four year term of office regardless of the time remaining in the original term of office. 1986 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 86-31.

State court solicitor. — A person appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of a state court solicitor may serve until January 1 of the year following the next general election which is more than six months after such person’s appointment and, if elected in the general election next preceding that January 1 date, such person would begin to serve a new four-year term of office. 1990 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U90-17.

Paragraph V. Compensation and allowances of judges.

All judges shall receive compensation and allowances as provided by law; county supplements are hereby continued and may be granted or changed by the General Assembly. County governing authorities which had the authority on June 30, 1983, to make county supplements shall continue to have such authority under this Constitution. An incumbent’s salary, allowance, or supplement shall not be decreased during the incumbent’s term of office.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XII, Para. I and antecedent provisions, which empowered the General Assembly to authorize counties to supplement, out of county funds, the compensation and allowances of superior court judges and district attorneys, are included in the anno-tations for this paragraph. See Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I(c) for authorization for supplemental compensation for district attorneys.

Intent and purpose of this paragraph after fixing salaries of state officers, including district attorneys, in declaring: “with the right of the General Assembly to authorize any county to supplement the salary of a judge of the superior court and district attorney of the judicial circuit in which such county lies, out of county funds,” is to require the concurrence of both the General Assembly and the county fiscal authorities in any salary supplement. Houlihan v. Ryan, 205 Ga. 734, 55 S.E.2d 243 (1949) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V).

Salary supplement authorized, not required. — It clearly appears from the language that the General Assembly undertook only to authorize, and not to require, county commissioners to supplement the salary, to the extent provided for in the Act (Ga. L. 1949, p. 406), and further provided that, “if so fixed,” it should be paid to the incumbent judge. Houlihan v. Atkinson, 205 Ga. 720, 55 S.E.2d 233 (1949).

Construing this paragraph as a whole and in connection with the constitutional amendment of 1927 (Ga. L. 1927, p. 111), the salary of the judge of the superior court of the Eastern Circuit was $6000.00, paid from the state treasury; $5000.00 paid under the constitutional amendment of 1927 from funds of the county, and the General Assembly has the right to authorize the county to further supplement the salary from county funds, just as was done by Ga. L. 1949, p. 406, and the county ordinance. That meaning of the Constitution is apparent from the latter part of this paragraph where it is provided that the board of commissioners or other authority having charge of the fiscal affairs of the county shall without further legislative action continue to supplement from the county’s treasury the salary of the judge of the superior court of the circuit of which the county is a part, by the sum of $2000.00 per annum, which was in addition to the amount received by the judge from the state treasury, which payment was made to the judge then in office during the judge’s term or subsequent term as well as to the judge’s successor, with the authority in the General Assembly to increase such salary from the county treasury as provided. Houlihan v. Atkinson, 205 Ga. 720, 55 S.E.2d 233 (1949).

General Assembly may by legislation authorize counties to supplement salaries of judges without a constitutional amendment. — While the valid local amendment of 1927 (Ga. L. 1927, p. 111) to the Constitution of 1877, brought forward as a part of the Constitution of 1945, could not be altered or repealed by a legislative Act, there is a specific right granted to the General Assembly by this paragraph to authorize, by legislative Act, counties which are already supplementing the salaries of judges under previous constitutional amendments to further supplement salaries of judges as provided, and there is also specifically granted to the General Assembly the right by legislative Act to authorize counties which have not heretofore supplemented salaries of such officers from county funds to do so without necessity of having to secure a constitutional amendment each time this is desired. This right and power the General Assembly did not possess prior to the authority conferred upon it by the Constitution of 1945. Houlihan v. Atkinson, 205 Ga. 720, 55 S.E.2d 233 (1949) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V).

Reduction of erroneously calculated salary proper. — County was not barred from reducing a judge’s salary when the salary had been inflated erroneously; the fact that the inflated salary was calculated by the same method as used previously did not estop the county from paying the reduced salary that the judge was actually due. Maddox v. Hayes, 278 Ga. 141, 598 S.E.2d 505 (2004).

Reduction of compensation during term authorized. — Chief magistrate working less than full-time is not entitled to full-time salary. Poppell v. Gault, 278 Ga. 437 (2004).

Reduction of compensation during term not authorized. — County commissioners violated the mandates of this paragraph and O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23 by reducing a magistrate’s compensation during the elected term. Dudley v. Rowland, 271 Ga. 176, 517 S.E.2d 326 (1999) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V).

Validity of Act conferring authority on county commissioners to adopt ordinance supplementing district attorney’s salary. — Where the Act (Ga. L.

1949, p. 648) is mandatory, it unquestionably authorizes, and while the county commissioners are not under the terms of this paragraph compelled to obey, they may nevertheless choose to act voluntarily in accordance with the authority conferred by the legislative Act. Accordingly, the Act is valid, and has conferred authority upon the county commissioners to adopt the ordinance supplementing the salary of the district attorney. Houlihan v. Ryan, 205 Ga. 734, 55 S.E.2d 243 (1949).

Trial court did not err in holding Act constitutional. — The trial court did not err in holding the Act of 1949 (Ga. L. 1949, p. 648) and the ordinance passed by the commissioners of the county under the authority granted, providing that the salary of the judge of the superior court of the Eastern Judicial Circuit be supplemented by $1000.00 per year from county funds as a court expense in addition to the salary provided for by the Constitution, were in all respects valid and constitutional; nor did it err in directing the county commissioners to make payment of such supplemental salary to the duly elected and qualified judge then in commission from and after the effective date of the ordinance. Houlihan v. Atkinson, 205 Ga. 720, 55 S.E.2d 233 (1949).

The right of the judge of the superior court to supplementary salary provided for in this paragraph is not contractual, but arises under the Constitution of this state; and therefore the statute of limitations as to matters of contract is not applicable thereto. Best v. Maddox, 185 Ga. 78, 194 S.E. 578 (1937)

(see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V).

Remedy available to former judge to recover salary due. — Mandamus is available at the instance of a former judge of the superior court to recover of the county treasurer salary alleged to be due the judge pursuant to this paragraph. Best v. Maddox, 185 Ga. 78, 194 S.E. 578 (1937) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V).

Retirement. — The Georgia Constitution does not prohibit the award to elected judicial officers of creditable service for retirement purposes based upon accrued but unused annual leave and sick leave. Arneson v. Board of Trustees, 257 Ga. 579, 361 S.E.2d 805 (1987).

Reduction upon appointment to fill unexpired term. — County board of commissioners violated this paragraph and O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23 in reducing the salary of a chief magistrate following the magistrate's appointment to fill the unexpired term of the predecessor. Lee v. Peach County Bd. of Comm'rs, 269 Ga. 380, 497 S.E.2d 562 (1998) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V).

Reduction of incumbent's compensation illegal. — Chief magistrate was entitled to recover salary because the magistrate was an incumbent, having performed the duties of chief magistrate before the salary reduction, and defendants reduced the magistrate's salary in violation of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V, and O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23(d). Pike County v. Callaway-Ingram, 292 Ga. 828, 742 S.E.2d 471 (2013).

Paragraph VI. Judicial Qualifications Commission; power; composition.

The power to discipline, remove, and cause involuntary retirement of judges shall be vested in the Judicial Qualifications Commission. It shall consist of seven members, as follows:

- (1) Two judges of any court of record, selected by the Supreme Court;
- (2) Three members of the State Bar of Georgia who shall have been active status members of the state bar for at least ten years and who shall be elected by the board of governors of the state bar; and
- (3) Two citizens, neither of whom shall be a member of the state bar, who shall be appointed by the Governor.

Proposed amendment. — Amendment of the Georgia Constitution proposed by Ga. L. 2016, p. 896, § 1/HR 1113, if ratified, would amend this paragraph to read as follows: “Paragraph VI. Judicial Qualifications Commission; power; composition. (a) The General Assembly shall by general law create and provide for the composition, manner of appointment, and governance of a Judicial Qualifications Commission, with such commission having the power to discipline, remove, and cause involuntary retirement of judges as provided by this Article. shall be subject to confirmation by the Senate as provided for by general law.

“(b) The procedures of the Judicial Qualifications Commission shall comport with due process. Such procedures and advisory opinions issued by the Judicial Qualifications Commission shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court.

services of the Center for Judicial Conduct Organizations of the American Judicature Society. 1979 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 79-8.

Paragraph VII. Discipline, removal, and involuntary retirement of judges.

(a) Any judge may be removed, suspended, or otherwise disciplined for willful misconduct in office, or for willful and persistent failure to perform the duties of office, or for habitual intemperance, or for conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude, or for conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice which brings the judicial office into disrepute. Any judge may be retired for disability which constitutes a serious and likely permanent interference with the performance of the duties of office. The Supreme Court shall adopt rules of implementation.

(b)(1) Upon indictment for a felony by a grand jury of this state or by a grand jury of the United States of any judge, the Attorney General or district attorney shall transmit a certified copy of the indictment to the Judicial Qualifications Commission. The commission shall, subject to subparagraph (b)(2) of this Paragraph, review the indictment, and, if it determines that the indictment relates to and adversely affects the administration of the office of the indicted judge and that the rights and interests of the public are adversely affected thereby, the commission shall suspend the judge immediately and without further action pending the final disposition of the case or until the expiration of the judge's term of office, whichever occurs first. During the term of office to which such judge was elected and in which the indictment occurred, if a nolle prosequi is entered, if the public official is acquitted, or if after conviction the conviction is later overturned as a result of any direct appeal or application for a writ of certiorari, the judge shall be immediately reinstated to the office from which he was suspended. While a judge is suspended under this subparagraph and until initial conviction by the trial court, the judge shall continue to receive the compensation from his office. After initial conviction by the trial court, the judge shall not be entitled to receive the compensation from his office. If the judge is reinstated to office, he shall be entitled to receive any compensation withheld under the provisions of this subparagraph. For the duration of any suspension under this subparagraph, the Governor shall appoint a replacement judge. Upon a final conviction with no appeal or review pending, the office shall be declared vacant and a successor to that office shall be chosen as provided in this Constitution or the laws enacted in pursuance thereof.

(2) The commission shall not review the indictment for a period of 14 days from the day the indictment is received. This period of time may be extended by the commission. During this period of time, the indicted judge may, in writing, authorize the commission to suspend him from office. Any such voluntary suspension shall be subject to the same conditions for review, reinstatement, or declaration of vacancy as are provided in this subparagraph for a nonvoluntary suspension.

(3) After any suspension is imposed under this subparagraph, the suspended judge may petition the commission for a review. If the commission determines that the judge should no longer be suspended, he shall immediately be reinstated to office.

(4) The findings and records of the commission and the fact that the public official has or has not been suspended shall not be admissible in evidence in any court for any purpose. The findings and records of the commission shall not be open to the public.

(5) The provisions of this subparagraph shall not apply to any indictment handed down prior to January 1, 1985.

(6) If a judge who is suspended from office under the provisions of this subparagraph is not first tried at the next regular or special term following the indictment, the suspension shall be terminated and the judge shall be reinstated to office. The judge shall not be reinstated under this provision if he is not so tried based on a continuance granted upon a motion made only by the defendant.

(c) Upon initial conviction of any judge for any felony in a trial court of this state or the United States, regardless of whether the judge has been suspended previously under subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph, such judge shall be immediately and without further action suspended from office. While a judge is suspended from office under this subparagraph, he shall not be entitled to receive the compensation from his office. If the conviction is later overturned as a result of any direct appeal or application for a writ of certiorari, the judge shall be immediately reinstated to the office from which he was suspended and shall be entitled to receive any compensation withheld under the provisions of this subparagraph. For the duration of any suspension under this subparagraph, the Governor shall appoint a replacement judge. Upon a final conviction with no appeal or review pending, the office shall be declared vacant and a successor to that office shall be chosen as provided in this Constitution or the laws enacted in pursuance thereof. The provisions of this subparagraph shall not apply to any conviction rendered prior to January 1, 1987. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 6, § 7, Para. 7; Ga. L. 1984, p. 1722, § 1/SR 267; Ga. L. 1986, p. 1619, §§ 1, 2/HR 506.)

Proposed amendment. — Amendment of the Georgia Constitution proposed by Ga. L. 2016, p. 896, § 2/HR 1113, if ratified, would amend subparagraph (b)(4) to read as follows: “(4)(A) The findings and records of the commission and the fact that the public official has or has not been suspended shall not be admissible in evidence in any court for any purpose.

“(B) The findings and records of the commission shall not be open to the public except as provided by the General Assembly by general law.”

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L.

Language regarding conduct bringing office into disrepute not unconstitutionally vague and overbroad. — Language “conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice which brings the judicial office into disrepute” in this section is not so vague and overbroad as to deny respondent equal protection and due process. In re Judge No. 491, 249 Ga. 30, 287 S.E.2d 2 (1982) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. VII).

Commission cannot be restricted by legislature in consideration of conduct bringing judicial office into disrepute. — Under this paragraph, the Judicial Qualifications Commission cannot be restricted by legislative Act from considering any conduct of judicial officer which reflects on question they are called upon to decide, i.e., does such conduct bring judicial office into disrepute. In re Judge No. 491, 249 Ga. 30, 287 S.E.2d 2 (1982) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. VII).

Plea of nolo contendere to crime involving moral turpitude brings judicial office into disrepute. — Judge who enters plea of nolo contendere to crime involving moral turpitude is guilty of conduct which brings judicial office into disrepute. This is so even though question of guilt is not formally adjudicated by such plea. In re Judge No. 491, 249 Ga. 30, 287 S.E.2d 2 (1982).

Commission’s consideration of nolo contendere plea not violative of due process or equal protection. — Consideration by Judicial Qualifications Commission of judge’s nolo contendere plea to a felony involving moral turpitude, pursuant to this paragraph, is not a denial of equal protection and due process to defendant under either state or federal constitutions. In re Judge No. 491, 249 Ga. 30, 287 S.E.2d 2 (1982) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. VII).

Coroners are not “judges” within the meaning of that term as it is used in this Paragraph. In re Smith, 259 Ga. 831, 388 S.E.2d 683 (1990) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. VII).

Seeking nonjudicial office brings judicial office into disrepute. — By the adoption of the Code of Judicial Conduct, Canon 7.A.(3), the Supreme Court has resolved that a judge seeking a nonjudicial office without resigning judicial office thereby is guilty of conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice which brings the judicial office into disrepute. Such a determination is an exercise of the express power relative to removal as contained in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIII, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Paras. VI-VIII), as well as within the inherent power of the Supreme Court by virtue of its creation by the Constitution, and, the delegation to it of constitutional responsibilities. In re Inquiry Concerning Judge No. 591, 250 Ga. 796, 300 S.E.2d 807 (1983).

Justices of the peace may seek election to General Assembly. — The 1976 Constitution which assigned duties and vested powers, express and inherent, in the Supreme Court, provided (in former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. V, Para. VII, now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. II, Para. IV) that justices of the peace, unlike other public officers, are not prohibited from serving in the General Assembly. Thus, a justice of the peace who was a candidate for the office of state senator, being constitutionally empowered to seek election to the General Assembly while serving as a justice of the peace, could not be disciplined for the exercise of that power, despite the Code of Judicial Conduct, Canon 7.A.(3). In re Inquiry Concerning Judge No. 591, 250 Ga. 796, 300 S.E.2d 807 (1983).

Supreme Court may regulate judicial elections. — The Supreme Court possesses the authority to regulate the conduct of judges — including conduct during judicial elections. Accordingly, the court had the authority to promulgate and enforce former Canon 7 B(2), Code of Jud. Cond. (1974), which provided: “A candidate’s committees may solicit funds for his campaign no earlier than six (6) months before a primary election and no later than the date of the last election in which he participates during the election year.” Judicial Qualifications Comm’n v. Lowenstein, 252 Ga. 432, 314 S.E.2d 107 (1984).

Probate judge who allowed defendants to “buy out” their community service sentences was removed from office. — Probate judge who told criminal defendants they had the burden of proving their innocence, who allowed defendants to “buy out” their community service sentences and kept the proceeds in a bank account that the judge controlled, participated in ex parte communications, insulted and abused parties in the judge’s court, and disposed of cases outside the jurisdiction of the probate court, was found in violation of Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canons 1, 2, and 3, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. VII(a), and O.C.G.A. §§ 16-10-32 and 40-13-26, was removed from office and barred from seeking judicial office again. Inquiry Concerning Fowler, 287 Ga. 467, 696 S.E.2d 644 (2010).

Judge properly removed from office. — Magistrate court judge was permanently removed from office, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. VII(a), for violating Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canons 1-3 by using illegal drugs, forcibly kicking in doors at a man’s home at the request of a relative, pulling out a gun in front of at least one colleague, and refusing to work assigned hours. Inquiry Concerning Judge (Peters), 289 Ga. 633, 715 S.E.2d 56 (2011).

Election

Office of district attorney is an elective office; an appointment made by the Governor shall be for such period of time only as is necessary to fill the office until the people can legally elect a district attorney. Copland v. Wohlwender, 197 Ga. 782, 30 S.E.2d 462 (1944).

Construction of language. — The language, “next preceding the expiration of their respective terms,” was intended to designate the election at which the district attorneys should be elected for the full term of four years, and was not intended to designate the “general election” at which a successor should be elected in case of a vacancy. Copland v. Wohlwender, 197 Ga. 782, 30 S.E.2d 462 (1944).

Age at time of election. — The word “election” as it appears in this provision means the day votes are cast, not the day when they are finally tabulated and certified by the Secretary of State. Poythress v. Moses, 250 Ga. 452, 298 S.E.2d 480 (1983) (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIII, Para. I, relating to qualifications of district attorneys and other officials).

Qualifications

The intent of the legislature when it imposed the three-year practice as a requirement for the district attorney post was to ensure that the individuals elected to the office of district attorney would be experienced in the practice of law before the courts in which they would be required to perform their functions as district attorneys. It would be contrary to this intent to allow individuals who have not been licensed to practice before the superior courts of this state to include their practice time in other states as partial satisfaction of this paragraph and former Code 1933, § 24-2901 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-18-3). Whitmer v. Thurman, 241 Ga. 569, 247 S.E.2d 104 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I).

“Lawful practice” defined. — The three-year practice requirement, one of the qualifications for district attorney, of this paragraph and former Code 1933, § 24-2901 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-18-3) contemplated lawful practice and lawful practice was defined as the practice of law as an active member of the State Bar of Georgia in good standing. Whitmer v. Thurman, 241 Ga. 569, 247 S.E.2d 104 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I).

Three-year practice requirement does not include legal practice in other states. Whitmer v. Thurman, 241

Ga. 569, 247 S.E.2d 104 (1978).

Qualifications at time of appointment. — This paragraph does not either expressly, or by inference, by any of its terms, purport to deal with the qualifications of a district attorney at the time of the district attorney's election or appointment. Ray v. Hand, 225 Ga. 589, 170 S.E.2d 692 (1969) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I).

Time of effectiveness of active-status membership. — Where an attorney was sworn in to practice law on Nov. 5, 1981, and the attorney's membership application and dues were received by the State Bar within 60 days as contemplated by the bar's rules, the attorney's active-status membership was effective upon the date of the attorney's admission in the superior court, and thus the attorney was qualified for election as district attorney on Nov. 6, 1984. Weaver v. Cleland, 253 Ga. 482, 322 S.E.2d 56 (1984).

Duties

District attorneys performing duties are immune in civil cases. — District attorneys who send a letter to the parole board describing aspects of crimes, giving their opinion, and including an autobiographical manuscript detailing a murder are protected by the same immunity in civil cases which is applicable to judges, provided their acts are within the scope of their jurisdiction and intimately associated with the judicial phase of the criminal process. Mosier v. State Bd. of Pardons & Paroles, 213 Ga. App. 545, 445 S.E.2d 535 (1994), cert. denied, 5 U.S. 1040, 115 S. Ct. 1409, 131 L. Ed. 2d 295 (1995).

District attorney's function as calendar clerk not unconstitutional. — Internal Operating Procedure 2000-3 of the Appalachian Judicial Circuit, under which a district attorney set the time for a defendant's arraignment for aggravated assault and related charges in a road rage incident, was not an unconstitutional delegation of judicial powers and did not require dismissal of the charges against the defendant; the functions of the district attorney were not exclusively executive, as shown by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I(d), O.C.G.A. § 15-18-6(3), and Ga. Unif. Super. Ct. R. 30.1. Adams v. State, 282 Ga. App. 819, 640 S.E.2d 329 (2006).

Internal Operating Procedure 2000-3 of the Appalachian Judicial Circuit, which appoints the district attorney to act as calendar clerk for criminal matters, including setting the time for arraignments, merely aids the judges in the Appalachian Judicial Circuit in organizing their courts and is not an unconstitutional delegation of judicial powers; the functions of the district attorney are not exclusively executive, as shown by the requirement in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I(d) that the district attorney must perform such other services as shall be required by law, the requirement of O.C.G.A. § 15-18-6(3) that the district attorney shall aid the presiding judge in organizing the courts as the presiding judge may require, and Ga. Unif. Super. Ct. R. 30.1, providing that the judge or the judge's designee shall set the time of an arraignment. Adams v. State, 282 Ga. App. 819, 640 S.E.2d 329 (2006).

Department of Transportation condemnation cases prosecuted by Department of Law and not district attorney. — In condemnation cases which are brought by the Department of Transportation, it is "otherwise specially provided for" that the Department of Law and not the solicitor general (now district attorney) shall prosecute such actions. State Hwy. Dep't v. Smith, 120 Ga. App. 529, 171 S.E.2d 575 (1969).

Proceeding for removal from office of county board of education members properly brought by district attorney. — A county board of education was a political subdivision of the state, an agency through which the county acted in school matters, and the state had an interest in whether or not members of a county school board were competent and qualified to act; hence, a proceeding for removal from office of members of a county board of education under former Code 1933, § 32-905 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-53) was properly brought by the district attorney of the county in the state's name. State v. Walker, 88 Ga. App. 413, 76 S.E.2d 852 (1953).

Paragraph not applicable to divorce cases where state not named nor appears as a party. — According to the usual and ordinary signification of the language employed, this clause applies only to cases in which the state is a formal party, and would not include a divorce case in which the state has not been named and has not appeared as a party, although the state has an interest in all divorce cases. Boykin v. Martocello, 194 Ga. 867, 22 S.E.2d 790 (1942) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I).

Private citizen cannot procure private practitioner to file appeals in state's name when district attorney decides against appeal. — Where the state, through its authorized legal arm, does not wish to appeal and takes no action in a matter, there is no provision of law allowing a private citizen to procure the services of a private practitioner to file appeals in the name of the state, that being the constitutional and statutory duty of the office of the district attorney. State v. Trice, 150 Ga. App. 588, 258 S.E.2d 270 (1979).

Special prosecutor may take part in prosecution of a case on behalf of the state, and by inference of an appeal therefrom, if the special prosecutor is subject to the direction and control of the district attorney. State v. Trice, 150 Ga. App. 588, 258 S.E.2d 270 (1979).

Performance of duties in another circuit. — A district attorney may be authorized to perform duties in a county constituting another circuit, but which formerly was embraced in the district attorney's own circuit. Godbee v. State, 141 Ga. 515, 81 S.E. 876 (1914).

A district attorney in a judicial circuit of this state was not disqualified by this paragraph, and former Code 1933, §§ 24-2913, 24-2914 and 24-2908 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-18-5 and 15-18-6), or by any other law, to appear before courts of a different judicial circuit at the request of the prosecution on a trial for murder, and assist the district attorney of the latter circuit in the prosecution, notwithstanding the last mentioned officer was not indisposed, or disqualified from interest or relationship, or absent from the circuit, and such assistance was not requisitioned by the presiding judge. Floyd v. State, 182 Ga. 549, 186 S.E. 556 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I).

Notice of Appeal

Effect of failure to give sufficient notice of sanction of writ of certiorari to district attorney. — A failure to give the district attorney at least ten days written notice of sanction of a writ of certiorari to which the state is a party and of the time and place of hearing, unless prevented by unavoidable cause, or to obtain a waiver of such notice, is fatal to the proceedings; and service upon and notice to the district attorney of the criminal court is insufficient to cure the defect. Washburn v. Thompson, 78 Ga. App. 133, 50 S.E.2d 761 (1948).

Effect of failure to serve notice of appeal upon district attorney. — Where a misdemeanor was tried in county criminal court and from judgment therein a certiorari was taken to the superior court and, upon judgment entered after hearing, overruling and denying petition for certiorari, a bill of exceptions was sued out to the Court of Appeals, such bill of exceptions should have been served upon the district attorney of the circuit, and since the district attorney was not so served, and did not acknowledge or waive service, the motion to dismiss the bill of exceptions would be granted. Welch v. State, 91 Ga. App. 86, 84 S.E.2d 838 (1954).

Compensation

Fixing of district attorney's salary by grand jury or probate judge. — Statute that delegates to grand jury and judge of probate court authority to fix salary to be paid district attorney for years subsequent to 1932 is violative of this paragraph which vests in the General Assembly power to prescribe such salaries, and is violative of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. I, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. I, Para. I) of the Constitution which vests the legislative power of the state in the General Assembly.

Compensation (Cont'd)

Mosley v. Garrett, 182 Ga. 810, 187 S.E. 20 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I).

Immunity

Scope of immunity. — A district attorney is protected by the same immunity in civil cases that is applicable to judges, provided that the district attorney's acts are within the scope of his jurisdiction. Robbins v. Lanier, 198 Ga. App. 592, 402 S.E.2d 342 (1991).

Decision to file charges is protected. — A prosecutor's decision to file formal criminal charges against an individual is an act intimately associated with the judicial phase of the criminal process, for which act the prosecutor would be protected by the doctrine of prosecutorial immunity. Robbins v. Lanier, 198 Ga. App. 592, 402 S.E.2d 342 (1991).

GENERAL CONSIDERATION

DUTIES AND POWERS

COMPENSATION

General Consideration

Counties within circuits legislating individually regarding district attorneys prohibited. — As to whether it is possible, in a judicial circuit including several counties, to allow each county to legislate separately in regard to the district attorney, such separate treatment would contravene the intent of the state's Constitution; the intent was to treat the judicial circuit as the appropriate legal unit and not subdivide it further when providing for compensation of the district attorney and whether the district attorney may engage in the private practice of law; therefore, the judicial circuit should be dealt with as a unit rather than as individual counties. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-453.

Election

Procedure to fill office after withdrawal of person elected in general election. — A special election called by the Secretary of State is the proper procedure to fill the office of district attorney for the full four-year term beginning January 1, in the event the person elected to such office in the November general election has withdrawn. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-120.

A person elected to fill a vacancy in the office of district attorney holds only for the unexpired term. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 281.

A district attorney cannot run in the same election for one-half of an unexpired term and for an additional full term. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-77.

Qualifications

The three-year practice of law requirement of this paragraph related solely to the date of election rather than the date of qualification; therefore, a candidate for the office of district attorney must meet the three-year practice of law requirement at the time of such candidate's election rather than at the time of such candidate's qualification for the office governed by former Code 1933, § 24-2901 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-18-3). 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-20 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VIII, Para. I).

Service by third-year law student as legal assistant to district attorney not lawful practice of law. — A third-year law student who served as a legal assistant to a district attorney pursuant to former Code 1933, § 9-401.2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-18-22) did not thereby become "duly admitted and licensed to practice law in the superior courts" for the purposes of determining eligibility to the office of district attorney under former Code 1933, § 24-2901 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-18-3). 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-28.

Duties and Powers

District attorneys do not possess arrest powers greater than those of ordinary citizens. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-33.

District attorneys do not exercise direct power or control over law enforcement agencies within their circuits. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-33.

Representing sheriff indicted for federal violation in performance of duties. — Where sheriff or other enforcement officer is charged or indicted for federal violation in performance of duties, the Attorney General may order a district attorney to represent the sheriff in defense of the charge. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 67.

Compensation

Role of State Commission on Compensation. — State Commission on Compensation may make recommendations to General Assembly concerning elimination, increase or decrease of county supplements of salaries of district attorneys. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-173.1.

One county of a judicial circuit cannot legally place a district attorney who is on the fee system on salary. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 317.

Paragraph I. Administration of the judicial system; uniform court rules; advice and consent of councils.

The judicial system shall be administered as provided in this Paragraph. Not more than 24 months after the effective date hereof, and from time to time thereafter by amendment, the Supreme Court shall, with the advice and consent of the council of the affected class or classes of trial courts, by order adopt and publish uniform court rules and record-keeping rules which shall provide for the speedy, efficient, and inexpensive resolution of disputes and prosecutions. Each council shall be comprised of all of the judges of the courts of that class.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Supreme Court powers enumerated. — The Supreme Court has the inherent power to protect the judiciary as an independent branch of state government and to maintain a court system capable of providing for the administration of justice in an orderly and efficient manner. Garcia v. Miller, 261 Ga. 531, 408 S.E.2d 97 (1991).

Judicial power of holdover superior court judges. — Because a complete and continuous judicial system is required to ensure that governmental functions continue without interruption, the judicial power of holdover superior court judges remains vested in them until their successors are qualified. Garcia v. Miller, 261 Ga. 531, 408 S.E.2d 97 (1991).

Speedy resolution is a constitutional requirement under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. I, just as speedy trial is a defendant’s right under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. XI. Williams v. State, 187 Ga. App. 355, 370 S.E.2d 210 (1988).

Refusal to restore budget cuts for district attorney. — Trial court exercised proper caution in denying a requested writ of mandamus to require county commissioners to restore budget cuts for the district attorney’s office. Wilson v. Southerland, 258 Ga. 479, 371 S.E.2d 382 (1988).

Supreme Court’s approval of a local court rule providing that civil actions seeking primarily money damages up to $25,000 or in an unspecified amount would be referred to compulsory but non-binding arbitration did not abridge the rights of any litigants or conflict with any federal or state constitutional provision or Georgia statute. Davis v. Gaona, 260 Ga. 450, 396 S.E.2d 218 (1990).

“Two-term” rule not applicable to bar candidates. — Bar examinee’s motion to admit the examinee to the practice of law by default, because the Georgia Supreme Court did not dispose of the examinee’s appeal during the term of court in which it was filed or the term next following, was denied; the “two-term” rule did not apply to those cases filed in the Supreme Court in furtherance of the Court’s exercise of its inherent authority to supervise and regulate the practice of law in Georgia. In re Singh, 276 Ga. 288, 576 S.E.2d 899 (2003).

Challenges to criminal indictment. — Because O.C.G.A. § 17-10-36 did not grant the Supreme Court of Georgia the power to abrogate or interfere with an otherwise-valid statutory enactment, such as the statutory procedure by which prosecutors procured indictments and conducted criminal prosecutions through them, the trial court did not err in refusing to quash the indictment filed against the defendant, despite the fact that a 6.04 percentage point under-representation of white persons on the grand jury list from which the defendant's grand jury was selected violated the standard outlined in Ga. Unif. R. Super. Ct. 34, Unif. App. P. II(E). Edwards v. State, 281 Ga. 108, 636 S.E.2d 508 (2006).

ANALYSIS

GENERAL CONSIDERATION PLAINTIFF'S OR CLERK'S ERROR

General Consideration

Paragraph imperative. — This paragraph imperatively requires that all cases brought to the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals shall be heard at the first term, unless continued for providential cause and that all cases shall be decided not later than the end of the term following that at which they are heard. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Georgia Sweet Potato Growers' Ass'n, 171 Ga. 30, 154 S.E. 698, answer conformed to, 42 Ga. App. 82, 154 S.E. 915 (1930) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. II).

Where case does not reach Supreme Court in time to be heard at first term, the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction to hear and determine the cause. Dixie Realty Fin. Co. v. Morgan, 171 Ga. 348, 155 S.E. 468 (1930).

When cases deemed entered on docket following Supreme Court transfer or remand to Court of Appeals. — For the purpose of compliance by the appellate courts with the two-term rule, cases transferred or remanded by the Supreme Court to the Court of Appeals will be considered as entered on the court's docket for hearing on the day the remittitur from the Supreme Court is received in the Court of Appeals. CC Fin., Inc. v. Ross, 250 Ga. 832, 301 S.E.2d 262 (1983).

Disposal must be in current term. — Appellate court lacked the authority to stay the case because the appellate court had to dispose of the action during the term in which the case was entered on the court's docket. Boardman v. Brenninkmeijer, 328 Ga. App. 882, 763 S.E.2d 267 (2014).

Appeal disposed of within two

terms. — Where, although an appeal was filed in the September 1986 term of court, it was docketed for hearing during the January 1987 term, the disposition of the appeal during the April 1987 term complied with the “two-term rule” of this Paragraph. Superb Carpet Mills, Inc. v. Thomason, 183 Ga. App. 554, 359 S.E.2d 370, cert. denied, 183 Ga. App. 907, 359 S.E.2d 370 (1987) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. II).

Plaintiff's or Clerk's Error

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. V and antecedent provisions, relating to the effect of delay or lack of preparation by plaintiff in error and the effect of the clerk's failure to transfer the bill of exceptions or record, are included in the annotations for this paragraph. See also Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III for decisions relating to taking of appeals.

This paragraph forbids dismissal of action where delay is attributable to clerk of court rather than to counsel. AMOCO v. McCluskey, 116 Ga. App. 706, 158 S.E.2d 431 (1967), rev'd on other grounds, 224 Ga. 253, 161 S.E.2d 271 (1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. II).

Court of Appeals is controlled by this paragraph and dismisses appeals when delays in transmission are due to the fault of appellant. Brookshire v. J.P. Stevens Co., 133 Ga. App. 97, 210 S.E.2d 46 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. II).

Supreme Court will not consider appeal which represents stale one caused by laches of appellant, and it is dismissed under the authority of this section. George v. American Credit Control, Inc., 222 Ga. 512, 150 S.E.2d 683 (1966); Elliott v. Leathers, 223 Ga. 497, 156 S.E.2d 440 (1967); Fahrig v. Garrett, 224 Ga. 817, 165 S.E.2d 126 (1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. II).

Section allowing extension of time for filing appeal not to be construed as requiring dismissal. — To construe Ga. L. 1965, p. 18, § 6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 5-6-39) as requiring dismissal where an appellant did not cause the delay and the trial judge declined to grant a requested extension would shut off the right of appeal, and would thus violate the mandate of this paragraph. Such a construction would also be contrary to the legislative intent expressed in Ga. L. 1965, p. 18, §§ 13 and 23 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-48 (b), (c), and (d) and 5-6-30) as to a decision upon the merits. Elliott v. Leathers, 223 Ga. 497, 156 S.E.2d 440 (1967) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. II).

Section stating that cause not to be dismissed where extension granted is in accordance with this paragraph. — Ga. L. 1965, p. 18, § 12 (see now O.C.G.A. § 5-6-43) follows this paragraph by stating that a cause shall not be dismissed if the clerk is unable to transmit the record within the time specified (15 days) or when the judge grants an extension of time, and the judge shall attach a certificate attesting to the cause of the delay. George v. American Credit Control, Inc., 222 Ga. 512, 150 S.E.2d 683 (1966) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IX, Para. II).

Cause for late filing of transcript is fact issue for determination in the trial court. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. v. Echols, 138 Ga. App. 593, 226 S.E.2d 742 (1976).

Issue of late filing of a transcript waived if not raised and determined in trial court. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. v. Echols, 138 Ga. App. 593, 226 S.E.2d 742 (1976).

Illness of trial court clerk does not excuse failure to transmit record. — Where plaintiff in error failed to certify and transmit the record within the time required by law because of illness of the clerk of the trial court and the lack of clerical help, this did not prevent the dismissal of the case for want of jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to hear the case after the first term. Dixie Realty Fin. Co. v. Morgan, 171 Ga. 348, 155 S.E. 468 (1930).

Failure to pay bond results in dismissal. — Where a pauper's affidavit is held not to be good, and appellant is ordered to make a supersedeas bond within three days but fails to do so and causes a delay of 70 days, the appeal is dismissed. George v. American Credit Control, Inc., 222 Ga. 512, 150 S.E.2d 683 (1966).

Costs must be paid before record transmitted. — All costs shall be paid in the court below or the appellant shall make an affidavit that the appellant is unable to pay such costs before the clerk transmits the record to the appellate court. Pickett v. Paine, 139 Ga. App. 508, 229 S.E.2d 90 (1976).

Supreme Court and Court of Appeals cannot require lower court judge to issue writ returnable for purpose of trial. — While the Supreme Court may aid a party by the writ of mandamus to bring to it the party's case from the lower court, as by issuing the writ to compel the judge to certify a bill of exceptions or to require the proper officers to perform their legal duties in reference to such proceeding, it is without any power or jurisdiction to require the judge of the lower court to issue a writ returnable before the judge for the purpose of trial. This rule is equally applicable to the Court of Appeals. McPhail v. Bagley, 96 Ga. App. 179, 99 S.E.2d 500 (1957).

This paragraph effectively extinguishes small claims courts throughout the state, vesting their jurisdiction instead in magistrate courts. Porter v. Calhoun County Bd. of Comm’rs, 252 Ga. 446, 314 S.E.2d 649 (1984) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. X, Para. I).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Term “judge” includes a justice of the peace who becomes a magistrate because magistrate courts replace justice courts and magistrate courts are included within the courts described in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. X, Para. II. 1983 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 83-53.

Unless justice uncertified. — A justice of the peace in office on June 30, 1983, who was not certified under the former Georgia Justice Courts Training Council

Magistrate assuming office serves original term. — A magistrate assuming office on July 1, 1983, by virtue of the magistrate’s previous position serves a term as magistrate identical to the original term of the magistrate’s former judicial office. 1983 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 83-59.

ANALYSIS

SOVEREIGN RIGHT OF TAXATION
INCOME TAXATION

PAYMENT OF GRATUITY BY STATE

TAXATION OF CORPORATIONS AND CORPORATE PROPERTY

General Consideration

Inherent power of taxation. — The power of the legislature to impose taxes is inherent and is only circumscribed by the organic law. Featherstone v. Norman, 170 Ga. 370, 153 S.E. 58 (1930).

General Assembly does not need constitutional authorization to levy a tax or to authorize the levy of a tax by a county. Board of Comm'rs v. Cooper, 245 Ga. 251, 264 S.E.2d 193 (1980).

This paragraph changed the prior law. Augusta Factory v. City Council, 83 Ga. 734, 10 S.E. 359 (1889) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Taxation of all properties not subject to exemption is required under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III), and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV). Atlanta Nat'l Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Stewart, 109 Ga. 80, 35 S.E. 73 (1900).

De facto government has inherent power to tax. O'Byrne v. Mayor of Savannah, 41 Ga. 331, 5 Am. R. 532 (1870).

State may not grant irrevocable tax exemptions, whether statutory or constitutional. Because the Constitution prohibits irrevocable restraints on the state's taxing powers, the state may amend the Constitution to repeal any tax exemption. Collins v. City of Dalton ex rel. Bd. of Water, Light & Sinking Fund Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 584, 408 S.E.2d 106 (1991).

This paragraph says nothing of the time when a tax execution must be issued or enforced. Georgia R.R. & Banking v. Wright, 124 Ga. 596, 53 S.E. 251 (1906) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

This paragraph has no relation to the right of the legislature to give legislative sanction to bar orders, and make them applicable to the state. Suttles v. J.B. Withers Cigar Co., 194 Ga. 617, 22 S.E.2d 129 (1942), overruled on other grounds, Johnson v. Mayor of City of Carrollton, 249 Ga. 173, 288 S.E.2d 565 (1982) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Municipality's power to tax must be conferred directly by Constitution or statute. — Basic power to tax belongs to state; for a municipality to possess this power it must be conferred upon it either directly in the Constitution or by statute and it must be conferred in plain and unmistakable terms. Camden Tel. & Tel. Co. v. City of St. Marys, 247 Ga. 687, 279 S.E.2d 200 (1981).

Authority of municipality to collect occupation tax. — First city lacked authority to collect an occupation tax on professional or business activities within a second city's limits because the first city did not identify any constitutional provision or general law that authorized the first city to levy, assess, and collect an occupation tax on businesses and practitioners that were not located in that city's limits, and to the extent an agreement between the cities purported to vest in the first city the authority to collect an occupation tax on businesses located within the second city's limits, the contract was unenforceable; a contract between municipalities, however, is not a general law. City of Atlanta v. City of College Park, 311 Ga. App. 62, 715 S.E.2d 158 (2011).

Sanitation assessments. — Sanitation assessments were not taxes within the meaning of the Georgia Constitution but rather charges for services rendered by a county, which was authorized to enforce by ordinance the collection of fees for solid waste collection services in the same manner as authorized by law for the enforcement of the collection and payment of state taxes, fees, or assessments; thus, the county's solid waste collection fee did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I. Strykr v. Long County Bd. of Comm'rs, 277 Ga. 624, 593 S.E.2d 348 (2004).

Cited in Harrison v. Southern Ry., 44 Ga. App. 49, 160 S.E. 656 (1931); Jones v. Darby, 174 Ga. 71, 161 S.E. 835 (1931); City of Moultrie v. Moultrie Banking Co., 175 Ga. 738, 165 S.E. 814 (1932); Barwick v. Roberts, 192 Ga. 783, 16 S.E.2d 867 (1941); State v. State Toll Bridge Auth., 210 Ga. 690, 82 S.E.2d 626 (1954); Sams v.

Olah, 225 Ga. 497, 169 S.E.2d 790 (1969); Blackmon v. Ewing, 231 Ga. 239, 201 S.E.2d 138 (1973).

Sovereign Right of Taxation

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I and antecedent provisions, providing for "The right of taxation is a sovereign right...of the State," are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Right of taxation in the legislature is without limit, except as provided in the Georgia Constitution. — The right of taxation is not a power specially granted; it is assumed to exist, and is limited by special clauses. Featherstone v. Norman, 170 Ga. 370, 153 S.E. 58 (1930).

Georgia Constitution denies to the legislature power to surrender the sovereign right of the state to tax. IBM Corp. v. Evans, 213 Ga. 333, 99 S.E.2d 220 (1957).

Provisions of former Code 1933, § 92-5712 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-25) were not violative of this paragraph of the Georgia Constitution pertaining to the sovereign right of the state to tax. Aldridge v. Federal Land Bank, 203 Ga. 285, 46 S.E.2d 578 (1948) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

The main purpose of this paragraph is to prohibit exemptions from taxation, and to void all limitations of every kind and character upon the taxing power of the state. It is not the purpose of this paragraph to prohibit the legislature from prescribing the priority by which debts of an insolvent bank should be paid as in Ga. L. 1931, p. 7, § 91 (see now O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202). Felton v. McArthur, 173 Ga. 465, 160 S.E. 419 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202 not violative of this paragraph and other constitutional provisions. — The order of distribution of assets upon the insolvency of a bank which grant payments of debts due to depositors prior to payment of state taxes (see now O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202) is not an unconstitutional violation of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec.

I, Paras. III and IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III and Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I). Felton v. McArthur, 173 Ga. 465, 160 S.E. 419 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Restraint on state's taxing power. — In the field of direct taxation, the power of the sovereign state is supreme, except when exercise of that supreme right brings it into collision with the operation of a government instrumentality necessary to the existence of the federal government and the exercise of its powers upon a subject as to which exclusive jurisdiction was delegated to Congress. City of Atlanta v. Stokes, 175 Ga. 201, 165 S.E. 270 (1932).

Interference with federal government war power by state taxation prohibited. — Even though power of a state to tax is supreme, that power may not be used to hamper, hinder, annoy, harass, and impede the federal government in the exercise of its unlimited power to carry on war. City of Atlanta v. Stokes, 175 Ga. 201, 165 S.E. 270 (1932).

State taxation of veterans benefits. — Where Congress enacts legislation declaring that certain compensation for war veterans shall be exempt from taxation, Congress is acting within its war powers and the exemption applies to state taxation, including taxation of property purchased by veterans with funds declared tax exempt by Congress. City of Atlanta v. Stokes, 175 Ga. 201, 165 S.E. 270 (1932).

Exercise of taxing power for local improvements. — Though assessments for local improvements are not taxes, within the meaning of the requirement of the Constitution that taxes must be ad valorem and uniform, nevertheless assessments for local improvements, such as street paving and sewerage, are an exercise of the taxing power. Steele v. City of Waycross, 190 Ga. 816, 10 S.E.2d 867 (1940).

Income Taxation

Right to impose an income tax is an inherent right of the people. — The grant of this power is not necessary to enable the legislature to exercise it. There is nothing in the Constitution of Georgia which denies to the legislature the power to impose an income tax, if it is levied without infringing some provision of that instrument. Featherstone v. Norman, 170 Ga. 370, 153 S.E. 58 (1930).

Exemption. — Allowing a tax exemption for retirement benefits paid to teachers and state employees bestowed an irrevocable tax exemption upon the retirees in violation of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I. Parrish v. Employees' Retirement Sys., 260 Ga. 613, 398 S.E.2d 353 (1990), cert. denied, 500 U.S. 353, 111 S. Ct. 2016, 114 L. Ed. 2d 103 (1991).

Payment of Gratuity by State

Payment of claim was forbidden gratuity. — A payment of plaintiff's claim, with or without a judgment against a school board, in settlement of a supposed tort liability of the board is a gratuity which is forbidden. Sheley v. Board of Pub. Educ., 132 Ga. App. 314, 208 S.E.2d 126 (1974), cert. dismissed, 233 Ga. 487, 212 S.E.2d 627 (1975).

Taxation of Corporations and Corporate Property

Corporation doing business in a city is taxable, although its principal office is elsewhere. Georgia Ins. Co. v. City of Cedartown, 134 Ga. 87, 67 S.E. 410, 19 Ann. Cas. 954 (1910).

Contract limiting the taxes on certain property is void. Tarver v. Mayor of Dalton, 134 Ga. 462, 67 S.E. 929, 29 L.R.A. (n.s.) 183, 20 Ann. Cas. 281 (1910).

For case purporting to exempt from "all state, county, and municipal taxation" lands ceded to United States government, see IBM Corp. v. Evans, 213 Ga. 333, 99 S.E.2d 220 (1957).

For case purportedly holding former Code 1933, §§ 15-301, 15-302, and 15-303 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 50-2-22, 50-2-23 and 50-2-24) was void as being offensive to this paragraph, see IBM Corp. v. Evans, 213 Ga. 333, 99 S.E.2d 220 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

The state has not waived and cannot waive its right to tax private property on federal land and indeed the Constitution demands that it be taxed. IBM Corp. v. Evans, 213 Ga. 333, 99 S.E.2d 220 (1957).

Taxing private property not interfering with government business. — Former Code 1933, §§ 15-301, 15-302, and 15-303 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 50-2-22, 50-2-23 and 50-2-24) must be construed in pari materia with this paragraph of the Georgia Constitution. When thus construed, they mean that taxation cannot be prevented so long as such taxation in no wise interferes with the business of the United States. Taxing private property could not conceivably interfere with the government's business. IBM Corp. v. Evans, 213 Ga. 333, 99 S.E.2d 220 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Legislature cannot violate this paragraph. — Nothing legislature does, no matter how unambiguously it is expressed, can have validity if it offends this paragraph of the Georgia Constitution. IBM Corp. v. Evans, 213 Ga. 333, 99 S.E.2d 220 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Classification of business. — The General Assembly may classify different businesses for purpose of taxation and may make subclassifications within one type of business. These classifications have been held constitutional where there was a business tax involved as opposed to a property tax. A tax on gross insurance premiums is a business tax. Nash v. National Preferred Life Ins. Co., 222 Ga. 14, 148 S.E.2d 402 (1966).

Does not apply to O.C.G.A. § 33-8-8. — Neither Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. X), nor this paragraph is applicable to Ga. L. 1964, p. 122, § 2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 33-8-8) because the constitutional provisions contain the words "irrevocable" and "irrevocably." Webster's Third New International Dictionary defines the word "irrevocable" as "incapable of being recalled or revoked." Statutes passed by the General Assembly such as Ga. L. 1964, p. 122, § 2 are clearly revocable at the will of the legislature. Nash v. National Preferred Life Ins. Co., 222 Ga. 14, 148 S.E.2d 402 (1966).

Paragraph II. Taxing power limited.

(a) The annual levy of state ad valorem taxes on tangible property for all purposes, except for defending the state in an emergency, shall not exceed one-fourth mill on each dollar of the assessed value of the property.

(b) So long as the method of taxation in effect on December 31, 1980, for the taxation of shares of stock of banking corporations and other monied capital coming into competition with such banking corporations continues in effect, such shares and other monied capital may be taxed at an annual rate not exceeding five mills on each dollar of the assessed value of the property.

Cross references. — Prohibition against certain taxes, U.S. Const., Art. I, Sec. X, Cl. 2, and § 48-13-2 et seq.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

The constitutional restriction to five mills is applicable only to taxes upon property ad valorem, and does not apply to occupation privilege sales tax.

Standard Oil Co. v. State Revenue Comm'n, 179 Ga. 371, 176 S.E. 1 (1934).

The tax imposed by the revenue tax act is an excise tax, and is not tax on “property” in the sense in which that word is used in this paragraph, limiting the levy of taxes on property by the General Assembly to five mills on each dollar of the value of the property. Scott v. State, 187 Ga. 702, 2 S.E.2d 65 (1939), overruled on other grounds, Blackston v. State Dep’t of Natural Resources, 255 Ga. 15, 334 S.E.2d 679 (1985) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II).

Uniformity of taxation and equal protection not violated. — A decree enjoining the assessment of a railroad’s property for local ad valorem tax purposes at a greater percentage of fair market value than that employed in counties and municipalities and ordering a new assessment does not violate uniformity and equal protection by discriminating against taxpayers in counties and municipalities where assessments are higher as to the quarter-mill tax authorized by this paragraph. Undercofler v. Seaboard Air Line R.R., 222 Ga. 822, 152 S.E.2d 878 (1966) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II).

Levy exceeding tax cap authorized for quality education. — The exception contained in the 1982 tax-cap amendment to former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II), presented a clear and unambiguous explanation of those circumstances under which the levy could exceed the tax cap. The Quality Basic Education Act, O.C.G.A. § 20-2-130 et seq., which imposes additional funding obligations upon local boards of education for which no state or federal funds are provided, mandated such a levy. Hicks v. Arnall, 258 Ga. 296, 368 S.E.2d 733 (1988).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

The phrase “for all purposes” means all state purposes. 1952-53 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 189.

The purpose of this paragraph was to take the state out of ad valorem taxes and leave this field of taxation to counties and municipalities; it was necessary for the state to retain in the Constitution the right to levy some amount in order that the state might continue its present functions in assessment and collection of taxes on public utilities; another purpose of this paragraph was to eliminate so far as practicable the inequalities existing in various counties in assessing real estate for the purpose of taxation. 1952-53 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 189. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II).

Former Code 1933, § 92-3701 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-220) did not provide any limitation upon the rate of taxation for welfare purposes other than that stated in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I). 1948-49 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 357.

The State Board of Education can enforce in court notes and agreements, properly executed on standard forms, given in consideration of scholarship payments made pursuant to this paragraph in order to enable Georgia students to become teachers. 1968 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 68-373. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II).

Paragraph III. Uniformity; classification of property; assessment of agricultural land; utilities.

(a) All taxes shall be levied and collected under general laws and for public purposes only. Except as otherwise provided in subparagraphs (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of this Paragraph, all taxation shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax.

(b)(1) Except as otherwise provided in this subparagraph (b), classes of subjects for taxation of property shall consist of tangible property and one or more classes of intangible personal property including money; provided, however, that any taxation of intangible personal property may be repealed by general law without approval in a referendum effective for all taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1996.

(2) Subject to the conditions and limitations specified by law, each of the following types of property may be classified as a separate class of property for ad valorem property tax purposes and different rates, methods, and assessment dates may be provided for such properties:

(A) Trailers.

(B) Mobile homes other than those mobile homes which qualify the owner of the home for a homestead exemption from ad valorem taxation.

(C) Heavy-duty equipment motor vehicles owned by nonresidents and operated in this state.

(3) Motor vehicles may be classified as a separate class of property for ad valorem property tax purposes, and such class may be divided into separate subclasses for ad valorem purposes. The General Assembly may provide by general law for the ad valorem taxation of motor vehicles including, but not limited to, providing for different rates, methods, assessment dates, and taxpayer liability for such class and for each of its subclasses and need not provide for uniformity of taxation with other classes of property or between or within its subclasses. The General Assembly may also determine what portion of any ad valorem tax on motor vehicles shall be retained by the state. As used in this subparagraph, the term “motor vehicles” means all vehicles which are self-propelled.

(c) Tangible real property, but no more than 2,000 acres of any single property owner, which is devoted to bona fide agricultural purposes shall be assessed for ad valorem taxation purposes at 75 percent of the value which other tangible real property is assessed. No property shall be entitled to receive the preferential assessment provided for in this subparagraph if the property which would otherwise receive such assessment would result in any person who has a beneficial interest in such property, including any interest in the nature of stock ownership, receiving the benefit of such preferential assessment as to more than 2,000 acres. No property shall be entitled to receive the preferential assessment provided for in this subparagraph unless the conditions set out below are met:

(1) The property must be owned by:

(A)(i) One or more natural or naturalized citizens;

(ii) An estate of which the devisee or heirs are one or more natural or naturalized citizens; or

(iii) A trust of which the beneficiaries are one or more natural or naturalized citizens; or

(B) A family-owned farm corporation, the controlling interest of which is owned by individuals related to each other within the fourth degree of civil reckoning, or which is owned by an estate of which the devisee or heirs are one or more natural or naturalized citizens, or which is owned by a trust of which the beneficiaries are one or more natural or naturalized citizens, and such corporation derived 80 percent or more of its gross income from bona fide agricultural pursuits within this state within the year immediately preceding the year in which eligibility is sought.

(2) The General Assembly shall provide by law:

(A) For a definition of the term “bona fide agricultural purposes,” but such term shall include timber production;

(B) For additional minimum conditions of eligibility which such properties must meet in order to qualify for the preferential assessment provided for herein, including, but not limited to, the requirement that the owner be required to enter into a covenant with the appropriate taxing authorities to maintain the use of the properties in bona fide agricultural purposes for a period of not less than ten years and for appropriate penalties for the breach of any such covenant.

(3) In addition to the specific conditions set forth in this subparagraph (c), the General Assembly may place further restrictions upon, but may not relax, the conditions of eligibility for the preferential assessment provided for herein.

(d)(1) The General Assembly shall be authorized by general law to establish as a separate class of property for ad valorem tax purposes any tangible real property which is listed in the National Register of Historic Places or in a state historic register authorized by general law. For such purposes, the General Assembly is authorized by general law to establish a program by which certain properties within such class may be assessed for taxes at different rates or valuations in order to encourage the preservation of such historic properties and to assist in the revitalization of historic areas.

(2) The General Assembly shall be authorized by general law to establish as a separate class of property for ad valorem tax purposes any tangible real property on which there have been releases of hazardous waste, constituents, or substances into the environment. For such purposes, the General Assembly is authorized by general law to establish a program by which certain properties within such class may be assessed for taxes at different rates or valuations in order to encourage the cleanup, reuse, and redevelopment of such properties and to assist the revitalization thereof by encouraging remedial action.

(e) The General Assembly shall provide by general law:

(1) For the definition and methods of assessment and taxation, such methods to include a formula based on current use, annual productivity, and real property sales data, of: “bona fide conservation use property” to include bona fide agricultural and timber land not to exceed 2,000 acres of a single owner; and “bona fide residential transitional property,” to include private single-family residential owner occupied property located in transitional developing areas not to exceed five acres of any single owner. Such methods of assessment and taxation shall be subject to the following conditions:

(A) A property owner desiring the benefit of such methods of assessment and taxation shall be required to enter into a covenant to continue the property in bona fide conservation use or bona fide residential transitional use; and

(B) A breach of such covenant within ten years shall result in a recapture of the tax savings resulting from such methods of assessment and taxation and may result in other appropriate penalties;

(2) That standing timber shall be assessed only once, and such assessment shall be made following its harvest or sale and on the basis of its fair market value at the time of harvest or sale. Said assessment shall be two and one-half times the assessed percentage of value fixed by law for other real property taxed under the uniformity provisions of subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph but in no event greater than its fair market value; and for a method of temporary supplementation of the property tax digest of any county if the implementation of this method of taxing timber reduces the tax digest by more than 20 percent, such supplemental assessed value to be assigned to the properties otherwise benefiting from such method of taxing timber.

(f)(1) The General Assembly shall provide by general law for the definition and methods of assessment and taxation, such methods to include a formula based on current use, annual productivity, and real property sales data, of “forest land conservation use property” to include only forest land each tract of which exceeds 200 acres of a qualified owner. Such methods of assessment and taxation shall be subject to the following conditions:

(A) A qualified owner shall consist of any individual or individuals or any entity registered to do business in this state;

(B) A qualified owner desiring the benefit of such methods of assessment and taxation shall be required to enter into a covenant to continue the property in forest land use;

(C) All contiguous forest land conservation use property of an owner within a county for which forest land conservation use assessment is sought under this subparagraph shall be in a single covenant;

(D) A breach of such covenant within 15 years shall result in a recapture of the tax savings resulting from such methods of assessment and taxation and may result in other appropriate penalties; and

(E) The General Assembly may provide by general law for a limited exception to the 200 acre requirement in the case of a transfer of ownership of all or a part of the forest land conservation use property during a covenant period to another owner qualified to enter into an original forest land conservation use covenant if the original covenant is continued by both such acquiring owner and the transferor for the remainder of the term, in which event no breach of the covenant shall be deemed to have occurred even if the total size of a tract from which the transfer was made is reduced below 200 acres.

(2) No portion of an otherwise eligible tract of forest land conservation use property shall be entitled to receive simultaneously special assessment and taxation under this subparagraph and either subparagraph (c) or (e) of this Paragraph.

(3)(A) The General Assembly shall appropriate an amount for assistance grants to counties, municipalities, and county and independent school districts to offset revenue loss attributable to the implementation of this subparagraph. Such grants shall be made in such manner and shall be subject to such procedures as may be specified by general law.

(B) If the forest land conservation use property is located in a county, municipality, or county or independent school district where forest land conservation use value causes an ad valorem tax revenue reduction of 3 percent or less due to the implementation of this subparagraph, in each taxable year in which such reduction occurs, the assistance grants to the county, each municipality located therein, and the county or independent school districts located therein shall be in an amount equal to 50 percent of the amount of such reduction.

(C) If the forest land conservation use property is located in a county, municipality, or county or independent school district where forest land conservation use value causes an ad valorem tax revenue reduction of more than 3 percent due to the implementation of this subparagraph, in each taxable year in which such reduction occurs, the assistance grants to the county, each municipality located therein, and the county or independent school districts located therein shall be as follows:

(i) For the first 3 percent of such reduction amount, in an amount equal to 50 percent of the amount of such reduction; and

(ii) For the remainder of such reduction amount, in an amount equal to 100 percent of the amount of such remaining reduction amount.

(4) Such revenue reduction shall be calculated by utilizing forest land fair market value. For purposes of this subparagraph, forest land fair market value means the 2008 fair market value of the forest land. Such 2008 valuation may increase from one taxable year to the next by a rate equal to the percentage change in the price index for gross output of state and local government from the prior year to the current year as defined by the National Income and Product Accounts and determined by the United States Bureau of Economic Analysis and indicated by the Price Index for Government Consumption Expenditures and General Government Gross Output (Table 3.10.4). Such revenue reduction shall be determined by subtracting the aggregate forest land conservation use value of qualified properties from the aggregate forest land fair market value of qualified properties for the applicable tax year and the resulting amount shall be multiplied by the millage rate of the county, municipality, or county or independent school district.

(5) For purposes of this subparagraph, the forest land conservation use value shall not include the value of the standing timber located on forest land conservation use property.

(g) The General Assembly may provide for a different method and time of returns, assessments, payment, and collection of ad valorem taxes of public utilities, but not on a greater assessed percentage of value or at a higher rate of taxation than other properties, except that property provided for in subparagraph (c), (d), (e), or (f) of this Paragraph. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 7, § 1, Para. 3; Ga. L. 1984, p. 1711, § 1/HR 589; Ga. L. 1988, p. 2119, §§ 1, 2/SR 265; Ga. L. 1990, p. 2437, §§ 1, 2/HR 836; Ga. L. 1992, p. 3336, § 1/HR 715; Ga. The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1990, p. 2437, §§ 1, 2) which rewrote subparagraph (a) and added subparagraphs (e) and (f) was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 6, 1990.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L.

1992, p. 3336, § 1) which revised subparagraphs (a) and (b) to provide that heavy-duty equipment motor vehicles owned by nonresidents may be classified as a separate rate class of property for ad valorem property tax purposes was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 3, 1992.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1996, p. 1665, § 1), which added the proviso at the end of paragraph (b)(1), was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 5, 1996.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2000, p. 2003, § 1), which would have revised subparagraph (b) to provide that marine vessels may be classified as a separate class of property for ad valorem property tax purposes, and such class may be divided into separate subclasses for ad valorem purposes, was defeated at the general election held on November 7, 2000.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2002, p. 1499, § 1), which would have revised this Paragraph to provide that qualified low-income building projects may be classified as a separate class of property for ad valorem property tax purposes and different rates, methods, and assessment dates may be provided for such building projects, was defeated at the general election held on November 5, 2002.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2002, p. 1502, § 1), which would have revised this Paragraph to provide that commercial dockside facilities may be classified as a separate class of property for ad valorem property tax purposes and different rates, methods, and assessment dates may be provided for such dockside facilities, was defeated at the general election held on November 5, 2002.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2002, p. 1504, § 1), which revised this Paragraph to provide that the General Assembly shall be authorized to provide by general law for the separate classification and taxation of properties on which there have been releases of hazardous waste, constituents, or substances into the environment so as to encourage cleanup, reuse, and redevelopment of such properties was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held November 5, 2002.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2008, p. 1209, §§ 1 and 2), which in subparagraph (a), substituted “subparagraphs (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of this Paragraph,” for “subparagraphs (b), (c), (d), and (e)”; added present subparagraph (f); redesignated former subparagraph (f) as subparagraph (g); and, in subparagraph (g), substituted “subparagraph (c), (d), (e), or (f) of this Paragraph” for “subparagraph (c), (d), or (e)” at the end was ratified at the general election held on November 4, 2008.

General Consideration

The power of the legislature to impose taxes is inherent and is only circumscribed by the organic law. Featherstone v. Norman, 170 Ga. 370, 153 S.E. 58 (1930).

Legislative power is without limit, except as provided in the Constitution. It is not a power specially granted; it is assumed to exist, and is limited by special clauses. Featherstone v. Norman, 170 Ga. 370, 153 S.E. 58 (1930).

States’ latitude in devising fiscal systems. — When dealing with their proper domestic concerns, and not trenching upon prerogatives of national government or violating guaranties of federal Constitution, the states have attribute of sovereign powers in devising their fiscal systems to ensure revenue and foster their local interests. Rogers v. DeKalb County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 247 Ga. 726, 279 S.E.2d 223 (1981).

States have very wide discretion in levying of their taxes. Rogers v. DeKalb County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 247 Ga. 726, 279 S.E.2d 223 (1981).

Taxes and assessments distinguished. — Taxes are burdens, while assessments are equivalents which are compensated by the benefits received. Hayden v. City of Atlanta, 70 Ga. 817 (1883).

O.C.G.A. § 48-5-28 applies to all property subject to tax. — Former Civil Code 1910, § 1140 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-28) mandates payment of taxes before other claims applies to all property returned or held by a taxpayer that is subject to taxation under the state Constitution. Cason v. Aldred, 175 Ga. 256, 165 S.E. 221 (1932).

Section 7-1-202 not unconstitutional. — The order of distribution of assets upon insolvency of a bank which grant payments of debts due to depositors prior to payment of state taxes under Ga. L. 1927, p. 195, § 5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202) is not an unconstitutional violation of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Paras. I and IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I and Art. VII, Sec. II, Paras. I-IV). Felton v. McArthur, 173 Ga. 465, 160 S.E. 419 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

This paragraph was not violated by Ga. L. 1924, p. 87 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-180) abolishing fee system. Abbott v. Commissioners of Fulton County, 160 Ga. 657, 129 S.E. 38 (1925) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Ga. L. 1913, p. 123, § 12 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-2-2), creating State Tax Commission (now Revenue Commissioner) did not violate this paragraph. Ogletree v. Woodward, 150 Ga. 691, 105 S.E. 243 (1920) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Bonds issued by a municipal corporation of this state in the hands of a resident are not taxable. Penick v. Foster, 129 Ga. 217, 58 S.E. 773, 12 L.R.A. 1159, 12 Ann. Cas. 346 (1907).

This paragraph does not apply to the expenditure or distribution of money raised by taxes. Abbott v. Commissioners of Fulton County, 160 Ga. 657, 129 S.E. 38 (1925) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Ga. L. 1937, p. 806 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-8-34) is not invalid as violating due process or equal protection clauses of state and federal Constitutions, or the principle of uniformity in matters of taxation, as expressed in the state Constitution. Jeffreys-McElrath Mfg. Co. v. Huie, 196 Ga. 710, 27 S.E.2d 385 (1943).

Payment of unemployment benefits to employees voluntarily unemployed amounts to unconstitutional donations or gratuities. — Where unemployment is voluntary or due to fault of the unemployed, to require employers, who sought to persuade them to return to work, to supply the money with which to pay them would encourage and reward idleness and impose an unjust and intolerable burden upon employers by arbitrary and discriminatory legislation. To construe Ga. L. 1945, p. 57 to authorize such payments would be to render it unconstitutional in that it would make donations or gratuities in violation of the plain inhibition of the Constitution. It would be void for the further reason that it classified employers for purpose of imposing a tax upon them while exempting others, when there is no possible relation between the basis of such classification and the objective of donations and gratuities to those workers who had qualified under the article during periods while they are voluntarily unemployed due to their own fault. Ford Motor Co. v. Abercrombie, 207 Ga. 464, 62 S.E.2d 209 (1950).

Rule delineating jurisdiction of Appeals Court and state Supreme Court.

— The Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to decide questions of law that involve application, in a general sense, of unquestioned and unambiguous provisions of the state Constitution to a given state of facts, and that do not involve construction of some constitutional provision directly in question and doubtful either under its own terms or under decisions of the Supreme Court of Georgia or of the United States, and that do not involve the constitutionality of any law of the state or of the United States or any treaty. Under this rule, the Supreme Court and not the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction where a surety seeks to be held free of liability on grounds of constitutional provisions which made obligation unenforceable against a school system as principal. Franklin v. Mobley, 202 Ga. 212, 42 S.E.2d 755 (1947).

The General Assembly may fix taxing situs of all tangible or intangible personal property, but it must be by general law, and classified according to nature of the property, and not according to the nature of the owner. County of Walton v. County of Morgan, 120 Ga. 548, 48 S.E. 243 (1904).

Uniformity of Taxation

Uniform rate of taxation required on property. — Taxation on property must be upon all not exempted by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Paras. I through IV) with a uniform rate upon all kinds. Tarver v. Mayor of Dalton, 134 Ga. 462, 67 S.E. 929, 29 L.R.A. (n.s.) 183, 20

Ann. Cas. 281 (1910).

Taxpayer not required to receive equal benefit from tax supported facilities. — The federal and state Constitutions require an equal assessment of taxes, but there is no requirement that the persons paying the taxes receive equal benefits from facilities for which taxes are used. Decatur Tax Payers League, Inc. v. Adams, 236 Ga. 871, 226 S.E.2d 69 (1976).

Power to require uniformity of taxation may be delegated. — The General Assembly's power to require uniformity of taxation between counties is inherent, is not prohibited by the Constitution, and may be properly delegated to the state revenue commissioner. Salem v. Tattnall County, 250 Ga. 881, 302 S.E.2d 99 (1983).

Ga. L. 1927, p. 195, § 5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202) is not unconstitutional as a violation of this paragraph since it does not affect uniformity of taxes, it does not change or make less uniform the rate of taxes fixed upon the same class of subject, nor does it affect the ad valorem taxes on all property subject to taxes within the territorial limits of the state; even though the statute fixes the priority of other claims relative to taxes. Baggett v. Mobley, 171 Ga. 268, 155 S.E. 334 (1930).

Systematic and comprehensive increase in value of property to raise additional revenue violates uniform taxation clause. — Where courts' tax assessors, without investigation, made a systematic and comprehensive increase in value of all property returned in the county for taxes, for a particular year, not for purpose of fixing just and fair values after investigation, or for purpose of equalizing taxes, but for the sole purpose of raising additional revenue, such assessments were null and void, as they were violative of the uniform-taxation clause of this paragraph of the state Constitution and the equal-protection clauses of the state and federal Constitutions. Hutchins v. Howard, 211 Ga. 830, 89 S.E.2d 183 (1955).

Where uniformity of taxation is involved, reasonableness of classification is all that is required. Chanin v. Bibb County, 234 Ga. 282, 216 S.E.2d 250 (1975).

Construction of uniform taxation clause. — "All taxation shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax," means that the levy for county purposes must be uniform throughout the county, and the levy for state purposes must be uniform throughout the state. Hawes v. Conner, 224 Ga. 567, 163 S.E.2d 724 (1968).

Creation of classes of taxpayers based on prior nonuniformity of taxation in group's differing areas unreasonable. — Where the object of the provision is to insure that uniformity within a class over the state is achieved, and where requirement for a class is that it be based upon some reasonable ground, it is per se unreasonable to create classes of taxpayers based only on prior nonuniformity of taxation within their differing areas. Chanin v. Bibb County, 234 Ga. 282, 216 S.E.2d 250 (1975).

The fact that a revenue or tax-raising statute discriminates in favor of a certain class does not make it arbitrary, if the discrimination is founded upon a reasonable distinction. Nance v. Harrison, 176 Ga. 674, 169 S.E. 22 (1933).

Instance of reasonable classification in levying tax. — State does not create an unreasonable classification in violation of the uniformity clause of this paragraph in levying a tax upon persons who hold or possess for personal use unstamped cigarettes, while exempting those who hold or possess cigarettes for such purpose which have been stamped by a dealer as required by law. Head v. Cigarette Sales Co., 188 Ga. 452, 4 S.E.2d 203 (1939) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Equal protection clause of fourteenth amendment does not prohibit flexibility and variety in taxation schemes. — The states, in the exercise of their taxing power, are subject to requirements of equal protection clause of fourteenth amendment; but that clause imposes no iron rule of equality, prohibiting the flexibility and variety that are appropriate to reasonable schemes of state taxation. Rogers v. DeKalb County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 247 Ga. 726, 279 S.E.2d 223 (1981).

Assessment at 40% of value. — Assessment of property at 40% of value did not violate the constitutional requirement of uniformity, even though statistical evidence showed the average level of assessment of other property to be 38.84% of fair market value or lower. Bellsouth Telecommunications, Inc. v. Henry County Bd. of Assessors, 217 Ga. App. 699, 458 S.E.2d 705 (1995).

Discharge of Chief Tax Assessor for noncompliance. — The giving of preferential treatment to one taxpayer's property violated the long-established laws requiring tax assessors to perform their duties in good faith, and to ensure that the fair market value between individual taxpayers is fairly and justly equalized, and justified the discharge of the Chief Tax Assessor of a county by the board of commissioners of that county. Parsons v. Chatham County Bd. of Comm'rs, 204 Ga. App. 130, 418 S.E.2d 459 (1992), overruled in part on other grounds, Swafford v. Dade County Bd. of Comm'rs, 266 Ga. 646, 469 S.E.2d 666 (1996).

Cigarette tax was excise tax rather than direct tax or ad valorem tax. — Tax (formerly) imposed under Ga. L. Ex. Sess. 1937-38, pp. 126-144 upon every person who received by means in this state, and who held or possessed for his or her own personal use in this state, or for the use of any member of his or her family, cigarettes which had been stamped, was an excise upon the privilege of holding or possessing such cigarettes for personal use, and not a direct or ad valorem tax upon such articles, and, accordingly, the statute did not violate the Constitution of this state because the statute was not uniform with ad valorem tax levied by the state upon tangible property. Head v. Cigarette Sales Co., 188 Ga. 452, 4 S.E.2d 203 (1939).

Instance of valid uniformity taxing. — Uniformity within the state will not be violated if the tax is imposed by the county only on sales within its unincorporated areas and by municipalities on sales within their boundaries. Chanin v. Bibb County, 234 Ga. 282, 216 S.E.2d 250 (1975).

Single classes of property must be assessed and taxed alike. — Under this paragraph, all real and personal tangible property, except "motor vehicles, including trailers," and "mobile homes, other than those mobile homes which qualify the owner thereof for the homestead property tax exemption under Georgia law," constitutes a single class of property and must be assessed and taxed alike. Benson-Corwin, Inc. v. Cobb County School Dist., 239 Ga. 199, 236 S.E.2d 361 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Motor vehicles placed in different category from other tangible property. — Clause 2 of this paragraph authorized the enactment of Ga. L. 1966, p. 517, § 2 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 10, Ch. 5, T. 48), wherein the General Assembly placed motor vehicles in a different category from other tangible property. Hawes v. Cordell Ford Co., 223 Ga. 260, 154 S.E.2d 599 (1967) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Uniform assessment required. — Having once placed motor vehicles in a separate classification of tangible property, as permitted by this paragraph, all motor vehicles must be assessed uniformly. Hawes v. Cordell Ford Co., 223 Ga. 260, 154 S.E.2d 599 (1967) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Property valuation by method other than standard method. — The uniformity clause of the state constitution and the equal protection clauses of the state and federal Constitutions were not offended by a county's valuation of a motel by a method other than the standard method for motels, where the motel property was not actually being operated as a motel and there was no income stream from which to calculate room revenue for use with the standard gross income multiplier method. Coastal Equities, Inc. v. Chatham County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 201 Ga. App. 571, 411 S.E.2d 540, cert. denied, 201 Ga. App. 903, 411 S.E.2d 540 (1991).

Hypothetical lack of uniformity in valuation of property. — If an Act or the revenue commissioner by regulation should place a valuation upon motor vehicles based upon identity of owner or purpose for which motor vehicles are held then a lack of uniformity in valuation would appear which would be clearly unconstitutional. Hawes v. Cordell Ford Co., 223 Ga. 260, 154 S.E.2d 599 (1967).

Admission of evidence to prove lack of uniformity. — Where a county increased the value of properties that it had previously deemed comparable at a lower rate than the taxpayers' property, the trial court abused its discretion by refusing to admit evidence that was relevant to prove that the county might not have assessed the taxpayers' property uniformly as required by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III(a). Buckler v. DeKalb County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 263 Ga. App. 305, 587 S.E.2d 797 (2003).

Assessments lacked uniformity in failing to follow the mandates of O.C.G.A. § 48-5-2 regarding consideration of "existing use of the property" and "other factors deemed pertinent in arriving at fair market value" and in failing to exempt standing timber under the mandate of O.C.G.A. §§ 48-5-7.1(a)(1) and 48-5-7.5 as set forth in this paragraph. Leverett v. Jasper County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 233 Ga. App. 470, 504 S.E.2d 559 (1998).

The conflict between this paragraph and the differential rollback that was established by former Code 1933, § 91A-4601 (Ga. L. 1975, p. 984, § 26A(i)(j)) was clear. — The Constitution requires uniformity, and the statute provided for nonuniformity. Martin v. Ellis, 242 Ga. 340, 249 S.E.2d 23 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

In a taxpayer's suit against a county and its officials, the court upheld the grant of summary judgment to the defendants because the taxpayer's mandamus failed to present evidence that any actual assessment of any particular property was other than at fair market value or that the county had failed to comply with the county's legal duty to see that all taxable property within the county is assessed and returned for taxes at the property's fair market value. SJN Props., LLC v. Fulton County Bd. of Assessors, 296 Ga. 793, 770 S.E.2d 832 (2015).

This paragraph was not violated by a tax on collection agencies. Assets Realization Co. v. Lewis, 150 Ga. 301, 103

S.E. 463 (1920) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Homestead freeze local amendment. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment to a group of taxpayers, as a Homestead Freeze local constitutional amendment was not unconstitutional merely because it conflicted with the uniformity in taxation clause of the Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III; the local constitutional amendment was a subsequent amendment to the uniformity in taxation clause, and continued in force and effect, thus it was valid despite any conflict with the clause. Columbus-Muscogee County Consol. Gov't v. CM Tax Equalization, Inc., 276 Ga. 332, 579 S.E.2d 200, cert. denied, 540 U.S. 878, 124 S. Ct. 288, 157 L. Ed. 2d 142 (2003).

Tax on stock of foreign corporation held by domestic corporation did not violate this paragraph. Wright v. Louisville & N.R.R., 195 U.S. 219, 25 S. Ct. 16, 49 L. Ed. 167 (1904) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Real estate and personalty of manufacturing plant taxed as unit did not violate this paragraph. County of Walton v. County of Morgan, 120 Ga. 548, 48 S.E. 243 (1904) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Tax on packing house agents did not violate this paragraph. Stewart v. Kehrer, 115 Ga. 184, 41 S.E. 680 (1902), aff'g 197 U.S. 60, 25 S. Ct. 403, 49 L. Ed. 663 (1905) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Tax on sale of sewing machines did not violate this paragraph. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Wright, 33 F. 121 (N.D. Ga. 1887), appeal dismissed, 141 U.S. 696, 12 S. Ct. 103, 35 L. Ed. 906 (1891) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Statute creating special districts for the purpose of implementing a hotel/motel tax did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III. Youngblood v. State, 259 Ga. 864, 388 S.E.2d 671 (1990).

Tax on aircraft. — The requirement of O.C.G.A. § 48-5-16(e) to return for taxation an aircraft in the county in which it has its primary home base does not effectively create a prohibited separate class of tangible property in violation of the constitutional requirement for uniformity of taxation. Rogers v. DeKalb County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 269 Ga. 31, 495 S.E.2d 33 (1998).

Challenge reviewed first on administrative appeal. — Property owners improperly challenged a tax re-valuation by a county in a Georgia trial court because the owners had an adequate remedy at law pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 48-5-311 in an appeal to a county board of tax equalization (BOE) as the BOE had to first address procedural errors and errors in methodology to value the property under § 48-5-311(e)-(g); constitutional claims, such as claims of the uniformity of assessment under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III also had to be addressed first before the BOE. Hooten v. Thomas, 297 Ga. App. 487, 677 S.E.2d 670 (2009).

Classes of Taxes1. In General

Power to classify must be exercised reasonably. — The power of the legislature to classify for purposes of taxation is unlimited, unless it exercises its power capriciously or unreasonably, and unless the classification is fictitious rather than real. Coy v. Linder, 183 Ga. 583, 189 S.E. 26 (1936).

The authority of the General Assembly under the Constitution, to classify subjects for taxation cannot be successfully challenged. The power thus to classify is subject to the limitation that any classification must be reasonable, natural, and not arbitrary. Forrester v. Edwards, 192 Ga. 529, 15 S.E.2d 851 (1941); Pharr Rd. Inv. Co. v. City of Atlanta, 224 Ga. 752, 164 S.E.2d 803 (1968).

Three classes of taxation. — The subject of taxation has been divided into three classes — capitation, property, and income; and when one or more is mentioned or treated of, the other is never intended. Mayor of Savannah v. Hartridge, 8 Ga. 23 (1850); Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. City Council, 109 Ga. 73, 35 S.E. 71 (1900).

The basis for classification for tax purposes must be related to the objective of the ordinance. Pharr Rd. Inv. Co. v. City of Atlanta, 224 Ga. 752, 164 S.E.2d 803 (1968).

When the legislature makes a distinct class, it must treat each member of it alike. McGhee v. State, 92 Ga. 21, 17 S.E. 276 (1893); Price v. Richardson, 159 Ga. 299, 125 S.E. 449 (1924).

Where a proper basis for classification exists the law may classify, and uniformity within the classes thus created satisfies the Constitution. Pharr Rd. Inv. Co. v. City of Atlanta, 224 Ga. 752, 164 S.E.2d 803 (1968).

Realty and tangible personal property are of the same class, and the constitutional rule of uniformity in taxation requires that both be taxed alike. Colvard v. Ridley, 218 Ga. 490, 128 S.E.2d 732 (1962); Register v. Langdale, 226 Ga. 82, 172 S.E.2d 620 (1970); Gwinnett County v. Ackerman/Indian Trail Ass'n, 198 Ga. App. 723, 402 S.E.2d 794 (1991), overruled on other grounds, Fulton County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. NABISCO, 296 Ga. App. 884, 676 S.E.2d 41 (2009).

General Assembly power limited. — The General Assembly has no authority to establish different classes or subclasses of tangible property other than as fixed by this constitutional provision. Griggs v. Greene, 230 Ga. 257, 197 S.E.2d 116 (1973).

Different method of taxing personal property of non real estate owners and real estate owners violates this paragraph. — A policy of a board of tax assessors not to assess tangible personal property of residents of the county not owning real estate, and to assess the personal property of real estate owners at either 10 percent of the value of the real estate, or at a valuation which the assessors would “imagine” would be a reasonable figure, violates this paragraph. Register v. Langdale, 226 Ga. 82, 172 S.E.2d 620 (1970).

Different classifications permissible. — A person renting or offering for rent real property and one investing in securities need not be included in the same classification. Pharr Rd. Inv. Co. v. City of Atlanta, 224 Ga. 752, 164 S.E.2d 803 (1968).

2. Occupation Tax

Certain occupations may be taxed, and others not; but as between the subjects of taxation in the same class there must be equality. Pharr Rd. Inv. Co. v. City of Atlanta, 224 Ga. 752, 164 S.E.2d 803 (1968).

Authority to tax occupation. — There is no constitutional reason why the legislature cannot make one general class of all persons upon whose occupation it imposes taxation; and, if this were done, it would be incumbent on the legislature to make its system of taxation, as to such persons, uniform in all essential particulars, so as to operate fairly and equally upon every member of this general class; and this general class might be made to include every person engaged in any sort of business or vocation. Hoffman & Crowell, Inc. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 792, 156 S.E. 685 (1931).

The legislative right to classify is nothing more or less than authority to discriminate in taxation by the process of making separate classes of different occupations, or by making different classes within a specific occupation, with the only restraint upon the power thus to classify being that it be reasonable and not arbitrary, and the only requirement of the uniformity clause of the Constitution being that the tax operate uniformly upon the members of the separate classes. Cutliff v. Mayor of Albany, 60 Ga. 597 (1878); Fulton County v. Lockhart, 202 Ga. 878, 45 S.E.2d 220 (1947).

Occupation tax. — The validity of an occupation tax depends upon whether it is confiscatory and oppressive upon the class designated, and is not unreasonable because prohibitive upon certain financially weak persons. Adams Motor Co. v. Cler, 149 Ga. 818, 102 S.E. 440 (1920); Wright v. Hirsch, 155 Ga. 229, 116 S.E. 795 (1923).

Legislative discretion. — A very wide discretion must be conceded to the legislative power of the state in the classification of trades, callings, businesses, or occupations which may be subjected to special forms of regulation or taxation through an excise or license tax. If the selection or classification is neither capricious nor arbitrary, and rests upon some reasonable consideration of difference or policy, there is no denial of the equal protection of the law. Nance v. Harrison, 176 Ga. 674, 169 S.E. 22 (1933).

The legislature can make any classification or subclassification which is reasonable and not arbitrary. Southern Transf. Co. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 358, 155 S.E. 338 (1930); Fulton Bros. Elec. Co. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 571, 156 S.E. 255 (1930); Huffman & Crowell, Inc. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 792, 156 S.E. 685 (1931); Milliron v. Harrison, 175 Ga. 764, 166 S.E. 231 (1932); Wright v. City of Atlanta, 50 Ga. App. 244, 177 S.E. 753 (1934); Coy v. Linder, 183 Ga. 583, 189 S.E. 26 (1936); Solomons v. Mayor of Savannah, 183 Ga. 631, 189 S.E. 230 (1936); Coolidge v. Mayor of Savannah, 128 Ga. App. 704, 197 S.E.2d 773 (1973).

Power of the legislature to classify persons for purpose of imposing occupation taxes is undisputed, and necessarily includes the power to subclassify. Coy v. Linder, 183 Ga. 583, 189 S.E. 26 (1936) (decided under Ga. Const. 1877, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I).

Limited classes within same occupation. — It is within the power of the General Assembly to make one general class of persons engaged in a particular business, for purpose of taxing their occupation; and it may constitutionally make for this purpose a more limited class composed of persons engaged in the same occupation in a particular way. Southern Transf. Co. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 358, 155 S.E. 338 (1930).

The General Assembly, in the imposition of occupation taxes, may subdivide into different classes persons engaged in same business but under different conditions and surroundings; in the exercise of this power of classification they may impose an occupation tax upon only one of these classes, provided the classification and the consequent imposition of the tax is based upon sound reason, and is not arbitrary or capricious. Milliron v. Harrison, 175 Ga. 764, 166 S.E. 231 (1932); Coy v. Linder, 183 Ga. 583, 189 S.E. 26 (1936); Cook v. Cobb, 72 Ga. App. 150, 33 S.E.2d 366 (1945).

Reasonable basis for subclassifications required. — The legislature can divide persons engaged in the same general occupation into subdivisions, if there is reasonable ground for such subclassification, and tax members of one subdivision and exempt those of another subdivision. Coy v. Linder, 183 Ga. 583, 189 S.E. 26 (1936); Coolidge v. Mayor of Savannah, 128 Ga. App. 704, 197 S.E.2d 773 (1973).

Discretion to determine reasonableness of classification. — Whether classification in a given instance is a reasonable one or not is a question addressed to the judgment and discretion of the taxing power, subject to review by the courts. Decker v. McGowan, 59 Ga. 805 (1877); United Cigar Stores Co. v. Stewart, 144 Ga. 724, 87 S.E. 1034 (1916).

Exemption does not necessarily destroy uniformity. — Fact of exemption of certain persons from operation of the tax imposed upon a class does not destroy the uniformity required by this paragraph, provided the exemption is not arbitrary and is based upon some good reason. Southern Transf. Co. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 358, 155 S.E. 338 (1930) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Power of the legislature extends only to classifying business occupations into different branches, and laying upon each separate branch thus created such tax as is deemed proper. Fulton County v. Lockhart, 202 Ga. 878, 45 S.E.2d 220 (1947).

To provide a different rate of taxation as to intangible personal property from that on real property does not violate the equal protection clause of the U.S. Const., amend. 14. Miller v. Mitchell, 226 Ga. 892, 178 S.E.2d 175 (1970).

Uniformity not violated. — Classifications of businesses in a license tax ordinance which are related to its objective to raise revenue based upon ability to pay and the burdens upon the city in furnishing facilities and protection to the businesses do not violate the uniformity provisions of this paragraph of the Georgia Constitution. Pharr Rd. Inv. Co. v. City of Atlanta, 224 Ga. 752, 164 S.E.2d 803 (1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Classification void upon showing of unreasonableness and arbitrary classification. — Where a city is given authority under its charter to make classification of businesses into specific classes for purpose of levying occupational taxes on such businesses, the action of its regularly constituted authorities in making such classification and levying such occupational taxes will not be disturbed as being void and unconstitutional, except where it is clearly apparent that such classification has no reasonable relation to the subject matter and is therefore unreasonable and arbitrary. Wright v. City of Atlanta, 50 Ga. App. 244, 177 S.E. 753 (1934).

Imposition of license tax. — Right to classify businesses and occupations for purpose of imposing a license tax lies largely within discretion of the legislative body imposing the tax, and that in the absence of a clear showing of an abuse of that discretion the courts ought not to interfere with its exercise. Lake Lanier Theatres v. Hall County, 229 Ga. 54, 189 S.E.2d 439 (1972).

A classification based upon number of employees is not repugnant to this paragraph of the Constitution and such classification is neither unreasonable nor arbitrary. Atlanta Laundries, Inc. v. Harrison, 174 Ga. 448, 162 S.E. 912 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Constitutionality of O.C.G.A. § 34-8-34. — Ga. L. 1937, p. 806 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-8-34) defining “employing unit” and providing that an employing unit which maintains two or more separate establishments within the state shall be deemed to be a single employing unit, was not violative of the due process clauses of the state or federal Constitutions on grounds that it raised an irrebuttable presumption; nor did it impose upon petitioners a higher rate of tax than “successors in the same class,” in violation of state and federal equal protection claims, since successors who acquire the benefit-experience rating of their predecessors would not be in the same class as petitioners; nor did it violate the uniformity-of-taxation clause of the state. Cartersville Candlewick, Inc. v. Huiet, 204 Ga. 609, 50 S.E.2d 647 (1948).

Inequality among taxpayers in the same taxing authority with respect to distribution of benefits is not unconstitutional. Board of Comm'rs v. Cooper, 245 Ga. 251, 264 S.E.2d 193 (1980).

Instance of different constitutional classification. — Though the General Assembly exempts the business of "garages" for safe-keeping and repair of automobiles which are not located in a city or town having a population of 1,000 or more, and not located within a mile of such municipalities, from payment of an occupation tax, while imposing a special tax graduated according to population upon the occupation of keeping such garages as are located in such cities or towns and within one mile thereof, such classification is not violative of the state or the federal Constitution. Milliron v. Harrison, 175 Ga. 764, 166 S.E. 231 (1932).

The exclusion from the class of operators of garages generally of those engaged in that business in rural districts is neither arbitrary nor unreasonable. Milliron v. Harrison, 175 Ga. 764, 166 S.E. 231 (1932).

Graduated occupation tax. — The legislature can impose upon dealers an occupation tax, graduated according to the population of the towns and cities in which such dealers do business; and when the same tax is imposed upon each member of each class in every incorporated town and city in the state, and the method of its enforcement is the same, the uniformity required by the tax uniformity provision of this paragraph of the Georgia Constitution is secured. Fulton Bros. Elec. Co. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 571, 156 S.E. 255 (1930) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

An occupation tax upon the practice of law which provided for graduated taxes according to the number of years of practice was not unconstitutional under this paragraph. Coolidge v. Mayor of Savannah, 128 Ga. App. 704, 197 S.E.2d 773 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

The classification must be based on some difference which bears a just and proper relation to the attempted classification. Wright v. City of Atlanta, 50 Ga. App. 244, 177 S.E. 753 (1934).

Graduated tax dependent on capacity. — An ordinance which requires all gasoline filling stations to pay a license tax, the amount of which tax is graduated according to the capacity in gallons of the tanks located at such filling station, is not such an ordinance as will be declared void as being unreasonable and arbitrary. Wright v. City of Atlanta, 50 Ga. App. 244, 177 S.E. 753 (1934).

An occupation tax may show a relation to the income of the taxpayer although it is not itself an income tax. Coolidge v. Mayor of Savannah, 128 Ga. App. 704, 197 S.E.2d 773 (1973).

Occupation tax reducing railroad franchise tax. State v. Express Co., 133 Ga. 113, 65 S.E. 282 (1909).

It is perfectly competent for the legislature to impose different amounts as taxes upon wholesalers, retailers, and manufacturers. Carswell v. Wright, 133 Ga. 714, 66 S.E. 905 (1910).

Manner of enforcing tax on laundry not discriminatory. — Where although no fi. fa. had been issued against either of two other laundries subject to an occupational tax, although a fi. fa. was issued and levy made upon a truck belonging to the petitioner, the record disclosed that such proceedings against the petitioner were at the special instance and request of its counsel, in order that a test case might be made as to the legality of the ordinance in question, it could not be said that the ordinance, because of the manner of enforcement, was discriminatory and void. National Linen Serv. Corp. v. City of Gainesville, 181 Ga. 397, 182 S.E. 610 (1935).

The classification for taxation of distributors of motor fuels is not arbitrary, unreasonable, or unnatural, because it seeks to place in the same class and tax under one head distributors of motor fuel engaged in business as an occupation and for profit, and a political subdivision of the state not engaged in business, which uses such fuels for a purely governmental purpose. Wright v. Fulton County, 169 Ga. 354, 150 S.E. 262 (1929).

Taxation of sleeping cars owned by foreign corporation. — The State Revenue Commissioner has no authority to assess for county taxation railroad sleeping cars owned by an Illinois corporation, the cars having no fixed situs in the county, but being temporarily out of train in a county, the assessment being based on average number and average value of the cars out of train, and being applied to one group consisting of Pullman cars which, in each day of a number of alleged taxable years, remained in the county as long as 24 hours, and another group consisting of additional cars in the county on each day of a number of alleged taxable years, the period of time being ascertained by adding the car hours for which such cars were in the county and dividing by 24. Forrester v. Pullman Co., 65 Ga. App. 112, 15 S.E.2d 461 (1941).

Disparity in application between Georgia corporations and domesticated foreign corporations prohibited. — To so construe this constitutional exemption of property owned by a Georgia corporation and to deny its application to the same class or species of property when owned by a domesticated foreign corporation would violate state constitutional requirements which require that protection to person and property be impartial and complete, and that all taxation shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and would also violate that provision of the U.S. Const., amend. 14, which declares that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. Redwine v. Southern Co., 206 Ga. 377, 57 S.E.2d 194 (1950).

An occupation tax conditioned upon the amount of ad valorem tax is invalid. Wright v. Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 127 Ga. 227, 56 S.E. 116 (1906).

Ad valorem tax not applicable to occupation and business taxes. — The provision of this paragraph that “and ad valorem on all property subject to be taxed within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and shall be levied and collected under general laws,” has no application to occupation and business taxes. Wright v. City of Atlanta, 50 Ga. App. 244, 177 S.E. 753 (1934) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

A tax upon a business or occupation is not a tax upon property within the ad valorem and uniformity clause of this provision of the Constitution. Solomons v. Mayor of Savannah, 183 Ga. 631, 189 S.E. 230 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Uniformity taxation clause not violated. — Georgia L. 1935, p. 81 (repealed by Ga. L. 1965, p. 373) imposing an excise tax on all oleomargarine sold in this state containing any fat or oil other than certain specified fats or oils, was not violative of the uniform taxation provision of this paragraph of the Constitution. Coy v. Linder, 183 Ga. 583, 189 S.E. 26 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Former Code 1933, §§ 42-551 — 42-555 (repealed by Ga. L. 1972, p. 1015, § 509) did not levy any tax upon dealers, producers, or producer-distributors, but exacted merely a license fee to be used in aid of the expenses of administration of the law as a health measure did not violate this paragraph. Holcombe v. Georgia Milk Producers Confederation, 188 Ga. 358, 3 S.E.2d 705 (1939) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

3. Ad Valorem Tax

Taxation on all real and tangible personal property subject to be taxed is required to be ad valorem that is, according to value, and the requirement in the Constitution that the rule of taxation shall be uniform, means that all kinds of property of the same class not absolutely exempt must be taxed alike, by the same standard of valuation, equally with other taxable property of the same class, and coextensively with the territory to which it applies; meaning the territory from which the given tax, as a whole, is to be drawn. Hutchins v. Howard, 211 Ga. 830, 89 S.E.2d 183 (1955); O’Quinn v. Ellis, 224 Ga. 328, 161 S.E.2d 832 (1968).

The requirement that the property be taxed “ad valorem” has nothing whatever to do with a business or excise tax. Wright v. Hirsch, 155 Ga. 229, 116 S.E. 795 (1923).

Where taxation is ad valorem, values are the ultimate objects of taxation, and they to whom the values belong should pay the taxes. Wells v. Mayor of Savannah, 87 Ga. 397, 13 S.E. 442 (1987). See also Atlanta & F.R.R. v. Wright, 87 Ga. 487, 13 S.E. 578 (1891).

Exemption to dealer-owned vehicles. — Clause (b)(3) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III is broad enough to authorize the General Assembly to grant an exemption to dealer-owned vehicles, as provided in O.C.G.A. § 48-5-472(b), and is not in conflict with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Paras. I and II. Lowry v. McDuffie, 269 Ga. 202, 496 S.E.2d 727 (1998).

4. Income Tax

Income is not property in the sense of this paragraph. Waring v. Mayor of Savannah, 60 Ga. 93 (1878) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Right to impose income tax is inherent right of the people. The grant of this power is not necessary to enable the legislature to exercise it. There is nothing in the Constitution of this state which denies to the legislature power to impose an income tax, if it is levied without infringing some provision of the state Constitution. Featherstone v. Norman, 170 Ga. 370, 153 S.E. 58 (1930).

The State Income-Tax Act of August 22, 1929, Ga. L. 1929, p. 92, now repealed, did not violate this paragraph, which declared that “all taxation shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and ad valorem on all property subject to be taxed within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax,” for the reason that income is distinguished from property from which income flows, with the result that income was not property within the meaning of this provision, and did not need to be levied ad valorem. Green & Milam v. State Revenue Comm’n, 188 Ga. 442, 4 S.E.2d 144 (1939) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Taxation by Municipalities

The limitations upon the taxing power, in this paragraph, apply as well to cities and towns as to the legislature. Burch v. Mayor of Savannah, 42 Ga. 596 (1871) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Taxes imposed by the municipality were valid in the licensing of jitney buses. Hazleton v. City of Atlanta, 144 Ga. 775, 87 S.E. 1043 (1916).

Insurance company properly taxed. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass’n v. City Council, 109 Ga. 73, 35 S.E. 71 (1900).

Junk ordinance tax valid. Shurman v. City of Atlanta, 148 Ga. 1, 95 S.E. 698 (1918).

Stock of domestic corporation could not be taxed. City of Albany v. Brown, 137 Ga. 796, 74 S.E. 518 (1912).

Tax on realty and proceeds thereof. Sheibley v. City of Rome, 107 Ga. 384, 33 S.E. 398 (1899).

Attorneys at law lending money illegally taxed. Beckett v. Mayor of Savannah, 118 Ga. 58, 44 S.E. 819 (1903).

Ordinance requiring bond partly void. City Council v. Clark & Co., 124 Ga. 254, 52 S.E. 881 (1905).

This paragraph was violated by a tax upon persons redeeming tobacco tags. United Cigar Stores Co. v. Stewart, 144 Ga. 724, 87 S.E. 1034 (1916) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

A tax which is greater where goods are manufactured out of state is not valid. Morgan v. State, 13 Ga. App. 123, 78 S.E. 941 (1913).

Disproportionate tax on out-of-state water users not invalid.

— Where the city has the right under its charter to furnish water to resident and nonresident users, and to classify the rates for such service, an ordinance, increasing the rates and fixing rates for nonresident users higher than for resident users, is not violative of the due process and equal protection clauses of the federal and state Constitutions. Messenheimer v. Windt, 211 Ga. 575, 87 S.E.2d 402 (1955).

Taxation of leasehold estate of state property. — Under the general language of this paragraph, a leasehold estate in state owned property (governor’s mansion) is taxable by a municipality. Henry Grady Hotel Co. v. City of Atlanta, 162 Ga.

818, 135 S.E. 68 (1926) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Local constitutional amendment gave discretion to board of commissioners. — Local constitutional amendment authorizing county to impose business license taxes vests discretionary power in board of commissioners of that county, and the court cannot say that in imposing the tax on places of amusement charging an admission fee and not upon other places of amusement they have abused their discretion. Lake Lanier Theatres v. Hall County, 229 Ga. 54, 189 S.E.2d 439 (1972).

Classification must be based on reasonable ground. — Only requirement with respect to classification for taxation purposes is that the classification must be based on some reasonable ground. The classification must be based on some difference which bears a just and proper relation to the attempted classification. Lake Lanier Theatres v. Hall County, 229 Ga. 54, 189 S.E.2d 439 (1972).

Discretion did not violate equal protection or due process. — Reasonable exercise of discretion, even to extent of imposing tax on one class and none on other classes, does not violate constitutional guarantees of equal protection and due process. Lake Lanier Theatres v. Hall County, 229 Ga. 54, 189 S.E.2d 439 (1972).

This paragraph refers to subjects of taxation other than property and means only that if one kind of business, privilege, franchise, right, etc., is taxed, the tax shall be uniform and means only that if one kind of business, privilege, franchise, or right is taxed, the tax shall be uniform upon all of those who engage in that business. Lake Lanier Theatres v. Hall County, 229 Ga. 54, 189 S.E.2d 439 (1972) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

There is a relative sense in which mere local law can, with intelligible meaning, be called law of general obligation. — If it acts upon the whole municipal area, and upon all persons and property therein, with the same comprehensive generality as it would act throughout the state were it applicable to the state at large, it is a law of general, though local, operation. This generality as to territory, with full generality as to subject matter, that is, that the tax shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and ad valorem on all property subject to be taxed, within the given territory — is the generality which is needful. Verdery v. Village of Summerville, 82 Ga. 138, 8 S.E. 213 (1888).

Ordinance was special law. — The omission of property, which constitutionally had to be taxed under this paragraph, from village tax ordinance narrowed the ordinance into particular or special law, whereas the Constitution declares that all taxes shall be levied and collected under general laws; hence, the ordinance was void. Verdery v. Village of Summerville, 82 Ga. 138, 8 S.E. 213 (1888) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Property subject to tax. — The only classification of property, relative to taxation, that is made or authorized, is into exempt property, and property subject to be taxed; and taxation on all property subject to be taxed is required to be ad valorem, that is, according to value. Verdery v. Village of Summerville, 82 Ga. 138, 8 S.E. 213 (1888).

Enumeration of property classes exhaustive. — This paragraph has enumerated two classes of property, which enumeration the legislature, the courts, and the citizen must recognize as exhaustive. Property, whatever its species, is simply exempt or subject to tax. If exempt, it pays nothing; if subject, the amount it shall pay is measured by multiplying the fixed rate into the actual value. The result will be, in every instance, that all persons who own taxable property of equal value will pay the same amount of taxes, and all who own more than others will pay more, and all who own less will pay less. Verdery v. Village of Summerville, 82 Ga. 138, 8 S.E. 213 (1888) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Village tax ordinance imposing tax ad valorem upon real estate only is void by reason of conflict with the Constitution in not laying the tax ad valorem upon all property, real and personal, subject to be taxed within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax. Verdery v. Village of Summerville, 82 Ga. 138, 8 S.E. 213 (1888).

Uniformity of tax rates is not required between city and city, when the levy is for municipal taxes; but it is required between every man's property and every other man's property in the same city or village. Verdery v. Village of Summerville, 82 Ga. 138, 8 S.E. 213 (1888).

Storm water utility charges. — Trial court properly concluded that a storm water utility charge which Columbia County (Georgia) imposed on property owners was not an invalid tax and that the county's method of apportioning costs of storm water services was not arbitrary. McLeod v. Columbia County, 278 Ga. 242, 599 S.E.2d 152 (2004).

Property subject to be taxed is treated as one single class, and the only division of it contemplated or allowable is by territorial lines coinciding with the territorial limits of the various authorities by which the taxes upon it are levied. There cannot be this rate on one species of property, and that on another, though there can be different rates for different cities or villages on all taxable property whatsoever. Verdery v. Village of Summerville, 82 Ga. 138, 8 S.E. 213 (1888).

Suit barred by laches. — In suit in which plaintiffs sought, among other things to enjoin enforcement of tax executions, upon the ground that the city tax assessors from 1932 through 1937 intentionally and systematically discriminated against real estate and in favor of personal property in fixing the basis of value for taxation, the petition showed upon its face that the plaintiffs were guilty of such laches as to bar their claim for injunction to restrain the proposed tax sales because of alleged discrimination. Mayor of Savannah v. Fawcett, 186 Ga. 132, 197 S.E. 253 (1938).

County land assessment procedures, including those that involve subclassification of real property, did not offend this constitutional provision unless they affected the uniformity of tangible property assessments, which under former Code 1933, § 92-5703, (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-7) must be made at 40 percent of fair market value. Tax Assessors v. Chitwood, 235 Ga. 147, 218 S.E.2d 759 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Ga. L. 1972, p. 1094 provides an adequate remedy for failure at the county level to obtain uniformity of assessment between individual taxpayers. Tax Assessors v. Chitwood, 235 Ga. 147, 218 S.E.2d 759 (1975).

Part 2, Art. 4, Ch. 5, T. 3 does not impose a state tax for state purposes, which would invoke this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I); instead, it imposes a state tax for local purposes, and the counties' adherence to the tests of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Paras. I and II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Paras. II and III), delineating the allowable scope of county purposes of taxation is all that is required. Chanin v. Bibb County, 234 Ga. 282, 216 S.E.2d 250 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Tax levying cost of paving assessment against street railway company not unconstitutional. — Acts amending the charter of Decatur and the ordinance padded thereunder by the municipal authorities ordering levying of cost of paving assessment against the street railway company and its property located therein and used by it in operation of said street-railway system, are not violative of U.S. Const., amend. 14, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I, and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I, and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. II), neither are they in violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. III, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I), against the taking of private property for public use without paying adequate compensation therefor as that provision relates to the exercise of the power of eminent domain; whereas the levying of any assessment for a local public benefit is imposed as a special tax in the exercise of the police power of the state. Neither do they violate this paragraph, which provides a uniform system of taxation for the general support of the government. Georgia Power Co. v. City of Decatur, 170 Ga. 699, 154 S.E. 268 (1930)

(see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Tax reasonable revenue measure. — Ordinance imposing a license tax on the right to operate butcher-shops and retail grocery stores, classified according to a graduated scale based on the number of meat blocks, or value of stock and fixtures, respectively, and number of hours operated, and applicable to all persons operating businesses of the designated classes within the city, were reasonable revenue measures, and not violative of this paragraph, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I, Ga. Const. 1983 Art. I, Sec. I, Para. II), and U.S. Const., amend. 14. Ard v. City of Macon, 187 Ga. 127, 200 S.E. 678 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Graduated tax on different classes valid. — Provisions of a city ordinance imposing a graduated tax on those persons using the streets for business purposes who use vehicles in connection therewith, in addition to the business tax required of them, and also levying a graduated tax for doing business on the streets upon carriers for hire, was not violative of this paragraph, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I), and U.S. Const., amend. 14. Solomons v. Mayor of Savannah, 183 Ga. 631, 189 S.E. 230 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Tax on single person. — An amendment to a general tax assessment on property by a county commissioner which amounts to a new levy against a single tax payer violates this paragraph. Wright v. Southern Ry., 28 Ga. App. 545, 112 S.E. 171 (1922) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Over assessment of railroad's property unconstitutional. — An assessment of the railroad's property at $18,700,000.00 under the ad valorem taxation provisions for public utilities (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 11, Ch. 5, T. 48), while the properties of other taxpayers in those counties are being assessed on a basis of value which would produce an assessment of the railroad's property at $13,692,342.00, violates this paragraph, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I, and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. II), and U.S. Const., amend. 14. Undercoffer v. Seaboard Air Line R.R., 222 Ga. 822, 152 S.E.2d 878 (1966).

Tax by county commissioners violated uniformity provision. — An Act authorizing the Commissioners of Fulton County to classify businesses in unincorporated areas of the county and to levy a tax thereon for general revenue purposes was invalid as being violative of the uniform-taxation provision of this paragraph. Fulton County v. Lockhart, 202 Ga. 878, 45 S.E.2d 220 (1947) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Ordinance imposing gross receipts tax on secondary suppliers of electricity. — A city ordinance imposing a gross receipts tax on secondary suppliers of electricity that have not entered into franchise agreements pursuant to another ordinance, also applying to secondary suppliers, did not violate uniformity requirements of the constitution. North Ga. Elec. Membership Corp. v. City of Calhoun, 264 Ga. 769, 450 S.E.2d 410 (1994), cert. denied, 514 U.S. 1109, 115 S. Ct. 1960, 131 L. Ed. 2d 852 (1995).

Establishing Property Value

Duty to assess at full value is not supreme but yields to the duty to avoid discrimination. Hutchins v. Howard, 211 Ga. 830, 89 S.E.2d 183 (1955).

Separate methods of valuation of realty and personalty may be adopted. Mayor of Savannah v. Weed, 84 Ga. 683, 11 S.E. 235, 8 L.R.A. 270 (1890); McLendon v. City of La Grange, 107 Ga. 356, 33 S.E. 405 (1899).

Methods employed in assessing value of property may be varied. — Object of tax assessors must be to determine fair market value of property subject to taxation in county and methods employed may be varied if object is attained. Rogers v. DeKalb County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 247 Ga. 726, 279 S.E.2d 223 (1981).

While tax assessor must use same standard — fair market value — or system —

40 percent of fair market value — in determining and fixing taxable value of all property of same class, it is not impermissible under uniformity of taxation provision of the Constitution to apply different methods of arriving at fair market value on tangible property. Rogers v. DeKalb County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 247 Ga. 726, 279 S.E.2d 223 (1981).

Different valuation methods used.

— Utilization of different methods for determining fair market value for purposes of taxation creates no infirmity under the state Constitution or laws. Dougherty County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. Burt Realty Co., 250 Ga. 467, 298 S.E.2d 475, cert. denied, 463 U.S. 1208, 103 S. Ct. 3540, 77 L. Ed. 2d 1390 (1983).

Tax assessors have the authority to place property in homogeneous groups for the purpose of determining its value in relation to other and like property, and different valuation methods may be utilized. Harrington v. Baldwin County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 214 Ga. App. 178, 447 S.E.2d 300 (1994).

Location as determinant of value.

— Method of appraisal of rural property within a county which realistically emphasized the location of the property as determinant of value was not an impermissible subclassification of the same type of property in violation of the uniform taxation clause. Thomas County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. Balfour Land Co., 214 Ga. App. 181, 446 S.E.2d 745 (1994).

Taxation on all real and tangible personal property subject to be taxed is required to be ad valorem — that is, according to value, and the requirement in the Constitution that the rule of taxation shall be uniform, means that all kinds of property of the same class not absolutely exempt must be taxed alike, by the same standard of valuation, equally with other taxable property of the same class, and coextensively with the territory to which it applies, meaning the territory from which the given tax, as a whole, is to be drawn. Colvard v. Ridley, 218 Ga. 490, 128 S.E.2d 732 (1962).

A classification exempting sale of agricultural products from taxation is reasonable. City of Atlanta v. Georgia Milk Producers Confederation, 187 Ga.

Construction of “property.” — “Property,” within the meaning of this paragraph, providing that taxation should be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and ad valorem on all property subject to be taxed, was not intended to include all species of property, but property upon which value can be placed, and which is capable of ownership. City of Atlanta v. Georgia Milk Producers Confederation, 187 Ga. 117, 200 S.E. 712 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Sales of agricultural products were not property within the meaning of this paragraph, and hence former Code 1933, § 5-603, exempting such sales from taxation, was not inhibited by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Paras. I-IV), providing that laws exempting property from taxation other than property therein enumerated were void, nor was former Code 1933, § 5-603 violative of the provision of this paragraph relating to uniformity of taxation upon the same class of subjects. City of Atlanta v. Georgia Milk Producers Confederation, 187 Ga. 117, 200 S.E. 712 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Legislature has authority to classify as to taxes not on property within the meaning of the Constitution, and to be uniform such taxation need not be universal; certain objects may be its subjects and others may be exempted from its operation, all the law requires being that classifications be reasonable. City of Atlanta v. Georgia Milk Producers Confederation, 187 Ga. 117, 200 S.E. 712 (1938).

Method of assessing land values not accurate reflection of value. — Where assessors assigned vacant land a base value according to the district in which it was located, determined by the sale price of other vacant lands purchased for development, relying upon the property’s highest and best use and the sales relied upon did not accurately reflect the value of other vacant land because such sales were often for special purposes such as schools or parks, or speculative development, evidence was sufficient to support the trial court’s ultimate judgment that the assessors failed to consider the existing use of vacant land not commercial, industrial, or residential subdivision. Cobb County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. Sibley, 244 Ga. 404, 260 S.E.2d 313 (1979).

“Existing use of property” cannot be assigned any particular value as real property is unique and the extent to which existing use affects its value is dependent upon a great variety of other factors. Cobb County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. Sibley, 244 Ga. 404, 260 S.E.2d 313 (1979).

Existing use of property is not the exclusive factor in determining fair market value; the assessors are directed to consider also “existing zoning of property,” “existing covenants or restrictions in deed dedicating the property to a particular use,” or “any other factors deemed pertinent in arriving at fair market value.” Cobb County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. Sibley, 244 Ga. 404, 260 S.E.2d 313 (1979).

Utilization of one method of determining fair market value of real property and another method of determining the fair market value of tangible personal property does not violate this paragraph. Wade v. Ray, 234 Ga. 234, 214 S.E.2d 923 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Authority of county board of tax assessors. — The Court of Appeals of Georgia properly held that, although the county board of tax assessors could alter the assessment ratio proposed by the Georgia Revenue Commissioner on land owned by a utility in the course of making a final assessment of a utility's property, it could not alter the apportioned fair market value for the property used by the Commissioner in its proposed assessment. Monroe County v. Ga. Power Co., 283 Ga. 12, 655 S.E.2d 817 (2008).

Home site value added to all residences. — A taxpayer did not show that the taxpayer's property was not uniformly taxed. The $2,500 home site value added to all residential property in the county was only one factor in the valuation of such property, and there was no evidence that the home site value resulted in some houses not being assessed at their fair market value. Smith v. Elbert County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 292 Ga. App. 417, 664 S.E.2d 786 (2008), overruled on other grounds by Gilmer County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. Spence, 309 Ga. App. 482, 711 S.E.2d 51 (2011).

Club membership appurtenant to property. — Although taxpayers' memberships in a club were not subject to taxation, if a taxpayer relinquished that membership upon sale of the taxpayer's real estate, the buyer could apply for immediate membership, and such an application would normally be granted. Therefore, a county board of tax assessors would have violated Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III and O.C.G.A. § 48-5-1 if it excluded the enhanced value of the properties attributable to the right to apply for such memberships from ad valorem taxation, because it was part of the properties' fair market value. Morton v. Glynn County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 294 Ga. App. 901, 670 S.E.2d 528 (2008).

Tax Exempt Property

First sentence of this paragraph carries with it the implied right of the legislature to exempt certain property. Wright & Council v. Long, 34 Ga. 330 (1866) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

First sentence of this paragraph does not have reference to the levying of a tax upon public property. State v. Western & A.R.R., 136 Ga. 619, 71 S.E. 1055 (1911) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Exemption under former Code 1933, § 92-201.7 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-41) of 300 acres or less from provision for taxation of public real property owned by a city outside its territorial limits was not an arbitrary classification of property for taxation, because the quantity of land held by a city in a county which contained no part of the city had a reasonable relationship to the right of the county to subject the land to taxation. Since the finances of a county could be adversely affected by large quantities of tax exempt land within its boundaries, and there must be some limit of acreage in order to distinguish a smaller tract from a larger tract, and consequently, such a classification did not offend this paragraph. City of Atlanta v. Spence, 242 Ga. 194, 249 S.E.2d 554 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Public property can be taxed. — Construing together the provisions of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I), the Constitution does not prohibit taxing of public property. Wright v. Fulton County, 169 Ga. 354, 150 S.E. 262 (1929) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Supreme Court has construed this to mean that all property within the limits of the state is subject to taxation, except such as the Constitution expressly authorizes the legislature to exempt from taxation. Wright v. Fulton County, 169 Ga. 354, 150 S.E. 262 (1929).

Effect of construing tax immunity as applicable to in state corporation.

— To construe the tax immunity provision of the Georgia Constitution so as to make it applicable only to those cooperative, nonprofit, membership corporations which have been incorporated under the laws of this state for the purpose of engaging in rural electrification, and so as to deny its application to a like membership corporation when incorporated in another state and duly domesticated in this state for the purpose of engaging in rural electrification here, would be offensive to those provisions of the Georgia Constitution which require impartial and complete protection to person and property, and that all taxation shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and also, offensive to that provision of the U.S. Const., amend. 14 which declares that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. City of McCaysville v. Tri-State Elec. Coop., 211 Ga. 5, 83 S.E.2d 598 (1954).

This paragraph shall not apply to persons, firms, or corporations hauling farm produce, livestock, and fertilizers exclusively; provided, that the width of load of trucks and trailers shall not be more than eight feet, was not unconstitutional and void as violative of this paragraph. Southern Transf. Co. v. Harrison, 171 Ga. 358, 155 S.E. 338 (1930) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

A leasehold granted to a railroad in a charter granting certain exemptions, is not taxable, and such exemptions are not affected by a subsequent merger. Central of Ga. Ry. v. Wright, 250 U.S. 519, 40 S. Ct. 1, 63 L. Ed. 1123 (1919), aff'g 248 U.S. 525, 39 S. Ct. 181, 63 L. Ed. 401 (1919).

County homestead exemptions did not violate the Uniformity Clause. — County homestead exemptions were constitutional under the Tax Exemption Clauses of the Georgia Constitution, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. II, although the nature of tax exemptions was at odds with the equality of taxation sought by the Uniformity Clause, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III. Blevins v. Dade County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 288 Ga. 113, 702 S.E.2d 145 (2010).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

City's authority to levy and collect taxes. — Authority to levy and collect taxes, not otherwise prohibited by state law or constitutional provision, may be conferred upon a city by amendment to the city charter provided such charter provision satisfies the requirements in this paragraph that the tax have uniform application throughout the territorial limits of the city and that it be for a public purpose. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-521.

(see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III).

Board members are personally liable for the illegal expenditure of public tax funds. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-172.

County tax funds cannot be used to construct or maintain privately owned driveways or roads. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-172.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Exemption for dealer-owned vehicles. — Georgia Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III(b)(3) is broad enough to authorize the General Assembly to grant an exemption to dealer-owned vehicles, as provided in O.C.G.A. § 48-5-472(b), and is not in conflict with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I or Ga. Const. 1983, Paragraph II. Exemptions from taxation of property.

(a)(1) Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, no property shall be exempted from ad valorem taxation unless the exemption is approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the General Assembly in a roll-call vote and by a majority of the qualified electors of the state voting in a referendum thereon.

(2) Homestead exemptions from ad valorem taxation levied by local taxing jurisdictions may be granted by local law conditioned upon approval by a majority of the qualified electors residing within the limits of the local taxing jurisdiction voting in a referendum thereon.

(3) Laws subject to the requirement of a referendum as provided in this subparagraph (a) may originate in either the Senate or the House of Representatives.

(4) The requirements of this subparagraph (a) shall not apply with respect to a law which codifies or recodifies an exemption previously authorized in the Constitution of 1976 or an exemption authorized pursuant to this Constitution.

(b) The grant of any exemption from ad valorem taxation shall be subject to the conditions, limitations, and administrative procedures specified by law.

1976 Constitution. — Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. IV.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Exemption for dealer-owned vehicles. — Georgia Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III(b)(3) is broad enough to authorize the General Assembly to grant an exemption to dealer-owned vehicles, as provided in O.C.G.A. § 48-5-472(b), and is not in conflict with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. II or Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I. Lowry v. McDuffie, 269 Ga. 202, 496 S.E.2d 727 (1998).

County homestead exemptions did not violate the Uniformity Clause. — County homestead exemptions were constitutional under the Tax Exemption Clauses of the Georgia Constitution, Ga.

Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. II, although the nature of homestead exemptions was at odds with the equality of taxation sought by the Uniformity Clause, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III. Blevins v. Dade County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 288 Ga. 113, 702 S.E.2d 145 (2010).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

A homestead exemption may neither be created, nor its amount raised, without the approval of the General Assembly and a subsequent referendum. 1989 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U89-25.

Disabled veterans homestead exemption. — The disabled veterans homestead exemption set forth in O.C.G.A. § 48-5-48.3, which became effective July 1, 1986, can go into effect without a referendum. 1987 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 87-2.

Paragraph III. Exemptions which may be authorized locally.

(a)(1) The governing authority of any county or municipality, subject to the approval of a majority of the qualified electors of such political subdivision voting in a referendum thereon, may exempt from ad valorem taxation, including all such taxation levied for educational purposes and for state purposes, inventories of goods in the process of manufacture or production, and inventories of finished goods.

(2) Exemptions granted pursuant to this subparagraph (a) may only be revoked by a referendum election called and conducted as provided by law. The call for such referendum shall not be issued within five years from the date such exemptions were first granted and, if the results of the election are in favor of the revocation of such exemptions, then such revocation shall be effective only at the end of a five-year period from the date of such referendum.

(3) The implementation, administration, and revocation of the exemptions authorized in this subparagraph (a) shall be provided for by law. Until otherwise provided by law, the grant of the exemption shall be subject to the same conditions, limitations, definitions, and procedures provided for the grant of such exemption in the Constitution of 1976 on June 30, 1983.

(b) Repealed.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Approval of exemption. — It is not necessary that county voters hold a referendum to approve every amendment affecting the freeport tax exemption because, even though the voters approve the exemption, the Constitution delegates the details of implementing the exemption to the legislature. Delta Air Lines, Inc. v. Clayton County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 246 Ga. App. 225, 539 S.E.2d 905 (2000).

Paragraph IV. Current property tax exemptions preserved.

Those types of exemptions from ad valorem taxation provided for by law on June 30, 1983, are hereby continued in effect as statutory law until otherwise provided for by law. Any law which reduces or repeals any homestead exemption in existence on June 30, 1983, or created thereafter must be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the General Assembly in a roll-call vote and by a majority of the qualified electors of the state or the affected local taxing jurisdiction voting in a referendum thereon. Any law which reduces or repeals exemptions granted to religious or burial grounds or institutions of purely public charity must be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the General Assembly.

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. IV and antecedent provisions, relating to specific tax exemptions, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Constitution limits effect of legislative exemptions. — The constitutional provisions shall govern and, to the extent they are inconsistent therewith, shall limit the effect of legislative attempts to exempt religious, educational, and charitable institutions from taxation where such institutions act as trustees of intangible personal properties under agreement to pay income to donors or their designees. Salvation Army v. Strickland, 253 Ga. 758, 325 S.E.2d 147 (1985).

Tax exemptions are to be strictly construed since taxation is the rule and exemption is the exception. Athens City Water-Works Co. v. Mayor of Athens, 74 Ga. 413 (1885); Mundy v. Van Hoose, 104 Ga. 292, 30 S.E. 783 (1898); Leggett v. Macon Baptist Ass'n, 232 Ga. 27, 205 S.E.2d 197 (1974).

All grants of exemptions must be strictly construed in favor of the state, and nothing passes by implication, but this rule must not be pushed to unreasonableness. Rayle Elec. Membership Corp. v. Cook, 195 Ga. 734, 25 S.E.2d 574 (1943); Collins v. Mills, 198 Ga. 18, 30 S.E.2d 866 (1944); Church of God v. City of Dalton, 213 Ga. 76, 97 S.E.2d 132 (1952).

All grants of exemptions must be construed against the taxpayer. Presbyterian Ctr., Inc. v. Henson, 221 Ga. 750, 146 S.E.2d 903 (1966); Johnson v. Wormsloe Found., Inc., 228 Ga. 722, 187 S.E.2d 682 (1972).

Exemption from taxation must be strictly construed, and the exemption will not be held to be conferred unless the terms under which it is granted clearly and distinctly show that such was the intention of the legislature. Gold Kist, Inc. v. Jones, 231 Ga. 881, 204 S.E.2d 584 (1974).

Narrowest possible meaning not required. — The rule of strict construction of tax exemptions does not require that the narrowest possible meaning be given to words descriptive of the exemption. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 71 Ga. App. 374, 31 S.E.2d 61 (1944).

Ordinary rules of construction apply. — The strict construction rule does not relieve a court of the duty of interpreting the exemption by ordinary rules of construction in order to carry out the intention of the legislature, and does not apply where there is no language in an act justifying or requiring construction. A fair and reasonable construction of a statute or contract must always be adopted, giving the language used its ordinary meaning, and taking into consideration the purpose and spirit of the exemption as well as the public policy entertained at the time and the history of the times when the statute was passed. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 71 Ga. App. 374, 31 S.E.2d 61 (1944).

Effect of doubt. — The rule that exemptions must be strictly construed in favor of the taxing power does not mean that if there is a possibility of doubt it is to be resolved against the exemption. It simply means that if, after the application of all rules of interpretation for the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the legislature, a well founded doubt exists, then an ambiguity occurs which may be settled by the strict rule of construction. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 71 Ga. App. 374, 31 S.E.2d 61 (1944).

Any ambiguity in an alleged exemption from taxation must be construed favorably to the state and against the taxpayer. Brandywine Townhouses, Inc. v. Joint City-County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 231 Ga. 585, 203 S.E.2d 222 (1974).

All property must be taxed and no property except that specifically mentioned in the Constitution can be exempted from taxation. Brandywine Townhouses, Inc. v. Joint City-County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 231 Ga. 585, 203 S.E.2d 222 (1974).

Natural and ordinary meaning. — In interpreting a constitutional exemption, it is to be presumed that the words used were employed in their natural and ordinary meaning, and where a constitutional provision or statute is plain and susceptible of but one natural and reasonable construction, a court has no authority to place a different construction upon it, but must construe it according to its terms. Rayle Elec. Membership Corp. v. Cook, 195 Ga. 734, 25 S.E.2d 574 (1943).

Property not deemed tax until tax levied. — Since “taxation” includes determination of rate of levy and imposition of levy, as an essential part of sovereign power and process, it follows that property will not be deemed as taxed until the tax has been levied. Rayle Elec. Membership Corp. v. Cook, 195 Ga. 734, 25 S.E.2d 574 (1943).

Municipality cannot exempt a class not enumerated in this paragraph. Tarver v. Mayor of Dalton, 134 Ga. 462, 67 S.E. 929, 29 L.R.A. (n.s.) 183, 20 Ann. Cas. 281 (1910) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Property, whatever its species, if simply exempt, pays nothing. Georgia Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Cedartown, 134 Ga. 87, 67 S.E. 410, 19 Ann. Cas. 954 (1910).

Contract cannot defeat government right to tax. — Aside from exemptions from taxation as exists in this paragraph, the parties cannot by contract defeat right of the government to collect taxes for which property would otherwise be liable. Real Estate Loan Co. v. Union City, 177 Ga. 55, 169 S.E. 301 (1933); City of Leesburg v. Forrester, 59 Ga. App. 503, 1 S.E.2d 584 (1939) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Special assessments not for revenue purposes are radically different from ad valorem taxes, and are not taxes within meaning of the Constitution. Crestlawn Mem. Park v. City of Atlanta, 235 Ga. 194, 219 S.E.2d 122 (1975).

State has not waived and cannot waive its right to tax private property on federal land and indeed the Constitution demands that it be taxed. IBM Corp. v. Evans, 213 Ga. 333, 99 S.E.2d 220 (1957).

Exemption not destroyed by incidental income derived from operation of charitable or educational institution. — The proviso that “the property so exempted be not used for purposes of private or corporate profit or income" was not intended to destroy the exemption already granted where incidental income was derived from the operation of the charitable or educational institution. Richardson v. Executive Comm., 176 Ga. 705, 169 S.E. 18 (1933).

Property subject to taxation should not be exempted. — Apart from permitted exemptions, the Constitution evinces an intention that no property which is subject to taxation in this state shall be relieved therefrom, and the statutes express with equal certainty an intention by the lawmakers to lay a tax upon all property of every kind or class which the State of Georgia has jurisdiction to tax, nothing excepted. Suttles v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 193 Ga. 495, 19 S.E.2d 396 (1942), later appeal, 201 Ga. 84, 38 S.E.2d 786 (1946).

Airport property leased to corporation which was used for provision of inflight meals was subject to taxation where provisions of lease did not preserve the public's "rightful, equal, and uniform use" of the property as required by O.C.G.A. § 6-3-25. Clayton County Bd. of Tax Assessors v. City of Atlanta, 164 Ga. App. 864, 298 S.E.2d 544 (1982).

Places of Religious Worship

Test for charitable immunity from suit is not the use to which the income is put, but the nature of the source from which the income is derived. This is the same test applied in determining the taxability of property. The scheme of exemption as to other than public property seems to be this: to exempt all that is used immediately and directly as a part of the establishment in the conduct of the regular business, there carried on, but not such as may be devoted to other uses, such as farming, merchandising, manufacturing, etc., and from which profit or income is derived. Mack v. Big Bethel A.M.E. Church, Inc., 125 Ga. App. 713, 188 S.E.2d 915 (1972).

Religious worship construed. — The words "religious worship" import a concept of a congregation assembling in a place open to the public to honor the Deity through reverence and homage. Leggett v. Macon Baptist Ass'n, 232 Ga. 27, 205 S.E.2d 197 (1974), commented on in 26 Mercer L. Rev. 361 (1974).

In applying the exemption authorized by this paragraph and former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-41), the court must look to the use of the property, not merely its ownership, and the court must also look to the primary use of the property to determine whether it was exempt from taxation. Leggett v. Macon Baptist Ass'n, 232 Ga. 27, 205 S.E.2d 197 (1974), commented on in 26 Mercer L. Rev. 361 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

If property is used primarily for either profit or non-operational purposes, it is not exempt from taxes. Leggett v. Macon Baptist Ass'n, 232 Ga. 27, 205 S.E.2d 197 (1974), commented on in 26 Mercer L. Rev. 361 (1974).

Exemption applies to buildings where congregations gather for worship. — Exemptions from taxation of places of religious worship are intended to apply to buildings where congregations come together in a public forum for religious services. Leggett v. Macon Baptist Ass'n, 232 Ga. 27, 205 S.E.2d 197 (1974), commented on in 26 Mercer L. Rev. 361 (1974).

Property used to make a profit which will in turn be given or used by the church for church purposes does not confer tax exempt status. Church of God of Union Ass'y, Inc. v. City of Dalton, 216 Ga. 659, 119 S.E.2d 11 (1961).

Income-producing real estate, not used directly in charitable activities, is a noncharitable asset and defendant is liable to the extent of such noncharitable assets. Mack v. Big Bethel A.M.E. Church, Inc., 125 Ga. App. 713, 188 S.E.2d 915 (1972).

Property used to produce income for a charity is too remote from the ultimate charitable object to be exempt. — If property is allowed to be used as taxed property it also is to be taxed. If it competes in the common business and occupations of life with the property of other owners, it must bear the tax which theirs bears, and it is a noncharitable asset, not immune from execution of a judgment. Mack v. Big Bethel A.M.E. Church, Inc., 125 Ga. App. 713, 188 S.E.2d 915 (1972).

Property subject to execution of judgment if subject to taxation. — It has been held that since the public welfare is a dominant consideration as to both the exemption from taxation and immunity from suit, and that it is the prerogative of the legislature to declare the policy of the state touching the general welfare, the test as to whether property is subject to execution of a judgment is whether the property is subject to taxation. Mack v. Big Bethel A.M.E. Church, Inc., 125 Ga. App. 713, 188 S.E.2d 915 (1972).

Religious institutions are, for some purposes, considered to be matters of charity, they are not necessarily considered such for all purposes, and the word “charity” itself is given a narrower meaning in tax exemption cases. Presbyterian Ctr., Inc. v. Henson, 221 Ga. 750, 146 S.E.2d 903 (1966).

Only church properties enumerated in exemption statute are exempt from taxes, and all references to income relate solely to such exempted property. Church of God of Union Ass’y, Inc. v. City of Dalton, 216 Ga. 659, 119 S.E.2d 11 (1961).

Legislature did not intend that religious groups or institutions be considered charitable institutions for purpose of this exemption. Presbyterian Ctr., Inc. v. Henson, 221 Ga. 750, 146 S.E.2d 903 (1966).

Facts sufficient to qualify church for exemption of property. — In suit by church seeking equitable relief from tax execution, allegations that no dividends, income, or profits have been, or will be, distributable for the purpose of profit or personal gain, that the property upon which the execution has been levied is a place of religious worship, used in maintaining and operating a church, that the income derived therefrom is used exclusively for religious purposes, and that the primary purpose of such real estate is not that of securing an income thereon, but of providing a meeting place and quarters for members of affiliate churches placed the plaintiff squarely within the constitutional and statutory exemptions. Church of God v. City of Dalton, 213 Ga. 76, 97 S.E.2d 132 (1957).

Exemption must be clearly intended. — An exemption from taxation will not be held to be conferred unless terms under which it is granted clearly and distinctly show that such was the intention of the legislature. Church of God v. City of Dalton, 213 Ga. 76, 97 S.E.2d 132 (1957).

Words given ordinary meaning. — In determining whether or not exemption claimed has in fact been granted, the words in the constitutional exemption are to be given their ordinary meaning. Church of God v. City of Dalton, 213 Ga. 76, 97 S.E.2d 132 (1957).

Effect of §§ 48-5-41 and 48-6-22. — The exemptions applying to a charitable institution under this paragraph and Ga. L. 1946, p. 12 and Ga. L. 1955, p. 262 placed religious, educational, and charitable institutions on same basis with reference to income, in that any income from such property must be “used exclusively for religious, educational and charitable purposes, or for either one or more of such purposes and for the purpose of maintaining and operating such institutions.” Church of God v. City of Dalton, 213 Ga. 76, 97 S.E.2d 132 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Burial Places

Proper suit in equity. — Suit by cemetery corporation seeking declaratory judgment that its property was not properly subject to municipal property tax and for injunction to prevent levy of this tax stated a case in equity within the jurisdiction of the Georgia Supreme Court. City of Atlanta v. Crest Lawn Mem. Park Corp., 218 Ga. 497, 128 S.E.2d 722 (1962).

Public policy to protect and encourage cemeteries arises out of the common wish of mankind to ensure a fitting resting place for the dead, especially in crowded areas, while at the same time giving consideration to the safety of the living and the saving of the public from the burden of maintaining them at its expense. Suttles v. Hill Crest Cem., 87 Ga. App. 343, 73 S.E.2d 760 (1952).

Burial Places (Cont'd)

Land deeded for cemetery use met exemption notwithstanding reservation for future use. — Under the constitutional and legislative provisions exempting “places of burial” from taxation, land acquired by cemetery corporation under a deed containing a restriction that it was to be used as a cemetery for human beings and for no other purpose, was, under the facts stipulated, exempt from taxation, despite the fact that the land in question was being reserved for future needs. Suttles v. Hill Crest Cem., 87 Ga. App. 343, 73 S.E.2d 760 (1952).

Distinction between buildings used in cemetery. — There is a distinction between those structures in which bodies are prepared for burial, and buildings necessary for administration of the cemetery and the maintenance of the burying grounds. The latter are exempt from taxation. City of Atlanta v. Crest Lawn Mem. Park Corp., 218 Ga. 497, 128 S.E.2d 722 (1962).

Exemption for portion of property used for burial. — Where the plaintiff’s petition alleged the property was exempt from taxation under state law, the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction against a levy on that portion of its property used as a place of burial. City of Atlanta v. Crest Lawn Mem. Park Corp., 218 Ga. 497, 128 S.E.2d 722 (1962).

The exemption accorded to cemetery lands may extend to all property used or held exclusively for the burial of the dead or for the care, maintenance, or upkeep of such property, and ordinarily applies to a columbarium, a crematory, a mausoleum, or unsold lots, crypts or niches, and covers permanent improvements placed on the land and necessary to its use as a burying ground. City of Atlanta v. Crest Lawn Mem. Park Corp., 218 Ga. 497, 128 S.E.2d 722 (1962).

Undeveloped cemetery area exempt. — Where the evidence indicated that the number of burials was increasing each year, and that the undeveloped area of cemetery tract was not disproportionate to the future needs of the area from which the burials were made, the trial judge did not err in holding that the undeveloped portion of the area was exempt from taxation. City of Atlanta v. Crest Lawn Mem. Park Corp., 218 Ga. 497, 128 S.E.2d 722 (1962).

Preservation of a historical site in a tract of land dedicated to burial purposes would not change its character as a place of burial. City of Atlanta v. Crest Lawn Mem. Park Corp., 218 Ga. 497, 128 S.E.2d 722 (1962).

Institutions of Purely Public Charity1. In General

Georgia General Assembly may exempt all public property from ad valorem taxation, and may also exempt some portion of public property from taxation. City of Atlanta v. Spence, 242 Ga. 194, 249 S.E.2d 554 (1978).

General Assembly may exempt some public property and refuse to exempt other public property, because the power to exempt from the burden of taxation necessarily implies the power to impose such taxes. City of Atlanta v. Spence, 242 Ga. 194, 249 S.E.2d 554 (1978).

Private property not converted to public property and not relieved from ad valorem taxation. — While businesses which are privately owned, but used in the exercise of governmental functions on state-owned or state-controlled property for private gain, and in accordance with the rules and regulations imposed by the state, may be exempt from occupation taxes because of threatened impairment of the functions of the state thus performed, yet private property cannot thus be said to be converted into public property in order to relieve it from ad valorem taxation. Davis v. City of Atlanta, 206 Ga. 652, 58 S.E.2d 140 (1950).

To qualify for ad valorem tax exemption as an “institution of purely public charity” the property itself must be dedicated to a purely public charitable use. Johnson v. Wormsloe Found., Inc., 228 Ga. 722, 187 S.E.2d 682 (1972).

Tax exemption restriction. — The Constitution restricts tax exemption of institutions of charity to those and those only that are “purely” charity and also to those that are “public” charity. Georgia Osteopathic Hosp. v. Alford, 217 Ga. 663, 124 S.E.2d 402 (1962).

Fact that an institution serves a benevolent purpose does not necessarily make it a “purely public charity.” Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Sch. v. Thomas, 228 Ga. 231, 184 S.E.2d 824 (1971).

Test for purely public charity. — Test of whether property is within an exemption from taxation of institutions of purely public charity is whether the property itself is dedicated to charity and used exclusively as an institution of purely public charity, and not whether the organization owning it is one of purely public charity. It is not material, however, for the purpose of determining the public nature of a charity, through what particular forms the charity may be administered. If it is established and maintained for the use and benefit of the public, and so conducted that the public can make available use of it, that is all that is required to bring it within the meaning of a statute exempting from taxation institutions of purely public charity. Mu Beta Chapter Chi Omega House Corp. v. Davison, 192 Ga. 124, 14 S.E.2d 744 (1941); McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Boy Scout included as charity. — The word “charity,” as used in paragraph (5) of former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-40), and in this paragraph of the Georgia Constitution authorizing its enactment, was broad enough to include the use of the property by the Boy Scout organization. Tharpe v. Central Ga. Council of BSA, 185 Ga. 810, 196 S.E. 762 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Intent to dedicate to public use. — Whether express or implied, an intention on the part of the owner to dedicate the owner’s property to the public use must be shown in order to claim a tax exemption. When an implied dedication is claimed, the facts relied on must be such as to clearly indicate a purpose on the part of the owner to abandon the owner’s personal dominion over the property and to devote it to a definite public use. Johnson v. Wormsloe Found., Inc., 228 Ga. 722, 187 S.E.2d 682 (1972).

“Used for the operation of such institution” means that the charitable institution itself must be carrying on an operation on its real estate for benefit of the public or for some other legitimate charitable purpose. Johnson v. Wormsloe Found., Inc., 228 Ga. 722, 187 S.E.2d 682 (1972).

Intent for public purpose must be accepted by public. — Use of one’s property by a small portion of the public, even for an extended period of time, will not amount to a dedication of the property to a public use, unless it appears clearly that there was an intention to dedicate and that this dedication was accepted by the public for public use. Johnson v. Wormsloe Found., Inc., 228 Ga. 722, 187 S.E.2d 682 (1972).

Because charitable institutions are public, if they are open “to the whole public,” or the whole of the classes for whose relief they are intended or adapted” then the institution is exempt from taxation. It is sufficient that the property is open to the members of the organization without turning a profit. Tharpe v. Central Ga. Council of BSA, 185 Ga. 810, 196 S.E. 762 (1938); Peachtree on Peachtree Inn, Inc. v. Camp, 120 Ga. App. 403, 170 S.E.2d 709 (1969).

Merely making real estate available to other public or charitable institutions for their use is not sufficient to qualify the property of a charitable institution for the tax exemption. Johnson v. Wormsloe Found., Inc., 228 Ga. 722, 187 S.E.2d 682 (1972).

2. Homes for Elderly

For a nursing home to be tax exempt, it must be purely charitable and public. Central Bd. on Care of Jewish Aged, Inc. v. Henson, 120 Ga. App. 627, 171 S.E.2d 747 (1969).

To qualify as public it is not necessary that a nursing home be open to the entire public. It is sufficient that it be open to classes for whose relief it was intended. Central Bd. on Care of Jewish Aged, Inc. v. Henson, 120 Ga. App. 627, 171 S.E.2d 747 (1969).

Meaning of charity. — A familiar meaning of the word “charity” is almsgiving, but as used in the law it may include substantially any scheme or effort to better the condition of society or any considerable part of it. Peachtree on Peachtree Inn, Inc. v. Camp, 120 Ga. App. 403, 170 S.E.2d 709 (1969); Central Bd. on Care of Jewish Aged, Inc. v. Henson, 120 Ga. App. 627, 171 S.E.2d 747 (1969).

"Charity," as used in tax exemption statutes, is not restricted to the relief of the sick or indigent, but extends to other forms of philanthropy or public beneficence, such as practical enterprises for the good of humanity, operated at moderate cost to the beneficiaries, or enterprises operated for the general improvement and happiness of mankind. Peachtree on Peachtree Inn, Inc. v. Camp, 120 Ga. App. 403, 170 S.E.2d 709 (1969); Central Bd. on Care of Jewish Aged, Inc. v. Henson, 120 Ga. App. 627, 171 S.E.2d 747 (1969).

Charity not limited to needy and destitute. — Charity is not confined to relief of the needy and destitute, for aged people require care and attention apart from financial assistance, and the supply of this care and attention is as much a charitable and benevolent purpose as the relief of their financial wants. Peachtree on Peachtree Inn, Inc. v. Camp, 120 Ga. App. 403, 170 S.E.2d 709 (1969); Central Bd. on Care of Jewish Aged, Inc. v. Henson, 120 Ga. App. 627, 171 S.E.2d 747 (1969).

Payment of rent. — Fact that residents are charged a rental toward expenses of operating an inn for the elderly does not necessarily destroy charitable nature of the institution especially if the payments made by the residents are insufficient to cover the direct operating expenses of the inn and all income is used for the operation, maintenance and enlarging the facilities with no part of its income being distributed to any person with an interest therein. Peachtree on Peachtree Inn, Inc. v. Camp, 120 Ga. App. 403, 170 S.E.2d 709 (1969).

The fact that residents paid rent according to their ability would not destroy the charitable nature of the institution. Central Bd. on Care of Jewish Aged, Inc. v.

Henson, 120 Ga. App. 627, 171 S.E.2d 747 (1969).

Property with a dual purpose. — Where an institution is a purely public charity and meets the requirements of Ga. L. 1946, p. 12 and Ga. L. 1955, p. 262, the portion of its property which is being used as a home for the aged is tax exempt. However, where part of the building consists of two retail stores which are leased, that part would not be tax exempt since the area where the stores are located is being used to gain rental and not for the primary purpose of operating the inn. Peachtree on Peachtree Inn, Inc. v. Camp, 120 Ga. App. 403, 170 S.E.2d 709 (1969).

3. Hospitals

Control by legislature. — A corporation created by the legislature and funded with state funds is a creature of the legislature and subject to the control of the legislature, while a corporation created by the legislature to be funded by private funds is not so subject to future legislative control. Hospital Auth. v. Stewart, 226 Ga. 530, 175 S.E.2d 857 (1970).

Organization's charter is not controlling factor. — That an organization is nonprofit and its charter as well as statute under which it is chartered declare it to be a charitable and benevolent institution exempt from taxation does not make it such. Nor does the fact that it serves a benevolent purpose make it a purely public charity. United Hosps. Serv. Ass'n v. Fulton County, 216 Ga. 30, 114 S.E.2d 524 (1960).

Use of property controls. — It is the use to which the property is put rather than the declaration of purpose found in its owner's charter that determines the question of exemption from taxation. Georgia Osteopathic Hosp. v. Alford, 217 Ga. 663, 124 S.E.2d 402 (1962).

Charging patients based on ability to pay. — Where a hospital is organized for charitable purposes, and its facilities are available alike to poor and unfortunate children, the fact that patients who are able to pay are charged for services rendered, according to their ability, does not alter its character as such, and where all of its income from all sources is used exclusively for maintenance, operation, enlarging its charitable facilities, and for furtherance of its charitable purposes, with no part of the same distributable to any one having an interest therein, it is exempt within the meaning of this paragraph, and interpretation of this paragraph which accords with the intention of the framers of that document as shown in the Records of the Constitutional Commission 1943-1944, Volume I, pages 138-141, 388-395, 397, 528-531; Volume II, pages 58-59. Elder v. Henrietta Eggleston Hosp. for Children, 205 Ga. 489, 53 S.E.2d 751 (1949), commented on in 1 Mercer L. Rev. 111 (1949) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Nothing provided in § 48-8-41 not already in this paragraph. — Where, by enacting this paragraph, the General Assembly exempted from taxation all of the property enumerated in this paragraph, using the identical language herein employed, it fully exhausted its constitutional power to make exemptions, and Ga. L. 1947, p. 1183, which expressly exempted from taxation all hospitals of purely public charity added nothing to what the General Assembly had previously done by Ga. L. 1946, p. 12, § 1. Elder v. Henrietta Eggleston Hosp. for Children, 205 Ga. 489, 53 S.E.2d 751 (1949) commented on in 1 Mercer L. Rev. 111 (1949), (decided under former Code 1933, § 2-5404; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Instance of no charitable exemption. — Where a hospital receives charitable patients without pay but it also charges for patients able to pay (the proportion being vastly in favor of the latter) the property in question is used for "corporate income," and is not exempted from taxation. Richardson v. Executive Comm., 176 Ga. 705, 169 S.E. 18 (1933).

Public property embraces only such property as is owned by the state, or some political division thereof, and title to which is vested directly in the state, or one of its subordinate political divisions, or in some person holding exclusively for the benefit of the state or subordinate public corporation. Culbreth v. Southwest Ga. Regional Hous. Auth., 199 Ga. 183, 33 S.E.2d 684 (1945); Sigman v. Brunswick Port Auth., 214 Ga.

332, 104 S.E.2d 467 (1958); Hospital Auth. v. Stewart, 226 Ga. 530, 175 S.E.2d 857 (1970).

Cases involving trusts give the word "charity" a broader meaning than the tax exemption cases. United Hosps. Serv. Ass'n v. Fulton County, 216 Ga. 30, 114 S.E.2d 524 (1960).

4. Public Authorities

Property may be public property so as to come within exemption from taxation although legal title is not in the state, the county, or a municipality. Sigman v. Brunswick Port Auth., 214 Ga. 332, 104 S.E.2d 467 (1958).

Qualities rendering authority's property exempt from taxation. — Where no private interest exists in the property of port authority, and the members thereof may not use it for private gain or income, and the authority holds title only for the benefit of the state and the public and the authority is an instrumentality of the state or a subordinate public authority or corporation of the state, the property and revenue bonds of the authority may be exempted from taxation. Sigman v. Brunswick Port Auth., 214 Ga. 332, 104 S.E.2d 467 (1958); Hospital Auth. v. Stewart, 226 Ga. 530, 175 S.E.2d 857 (1970).

Property used for purpose of public convenience and welfare in matters of public travel and transportation and to facilitate public transportation and as a dock or port operation, to provide buildings which the users of the port may lease, and in which to store and process commodities transported by water, is in the aid of commerce, and is for the promotion of public transportation, public commerce and general welfare, and may properly be classified as public property and is therefore exempt from taxation. Sigman v. Brunswick Port Auth., 214 Ga. 332, 104 S.E.2d 467 (1958).

Gratuity not constituted by exemption section. — Former Code 1933, § 95A-1230 (see now O.C.G.A. § 32-10-49), expressly exempting the property of the authority, its revenue bonds and income therefrom from all taxation within the state, does not constitute a donation or a gratuity in violation of Ga.

Institutions of Purely PublicCharity (Cont'd)*4. Public Authorities (Cont'd)

Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI), or offend this paragraph, which declares that all laws exempting property from taxation other than the property therein enumerated are void. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

State Tollway Authority sufficient beneficent purpose to constitute purely public charity. — The property of the Bridge Building Authority (now State Tollway Authority) is not public property, but, in view of the beneficent purpose for which it was created by the legislature, coupled with the fact that it has no shareholders or other owners of any character to which its corporate profit or income is distributable, it is an institution of purely public charity. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Exemption from taxation of the property of the Housing Authority, and its bonds, is not forbidden by the Constitution of this state, because the project involved is for public purposes, and affects the general public. Williamson v. Housing Auth., 186 Ga. 673, 199 S.E. 43 (1938).

Property of municipal electric authority of Georgia is public property and exempt from taxation. Thompson v. Municipal Elec. Auth., 238 Ga. 19, 231 S.E.2d 720 (1976).

Teachers Retirement System. — Exception to the exemption from taxation in the Georgia Constitution is not applicable to public property, all of which the General Assembly is authorized to exempt from taxation and a teacher's retirement system may hold tax-exempt real property for income purposes. Teachers Retirement Sys. v. City of Atlanta, 249 Ga. 196, 288 S.E.2d 200 (1982).

Dwelling house built by electric membership corporation. — Where the dominant consideration of the corporation in building and maintaining the dwelling house near its office to be occupied as a residence for its manager was to promote efficient and prompt service, day and night, to its members rather than merely to furnish a place of habitation for its employee, the building should thereby be considered as being used by it in supplying rural electrification to its members. The property is therefore exempt from taxation. The fact that the manager paid the corporation rent and the dwelling house was not located on the premises of its home office does not require a different result. Flint Elec. Membership Corp. v. Adams, 214 Ga. 280, 104 S.E.2d 431 (1958).

Effect of construing "profit" in pari materia with § 46-1-2 and Art. 2, Ch. 3, T. 46. — The word "profit" as employed in the Constitution did not, when construed in pari materia with former Code 1933, §§ 93-413, 94-1101 and the former provisions on nonprofit rural electrification membership corporations (see now O.C.G.A. § 46-1-2) exclude the electric corporations created under the former statutory provisions from the class of electric companies engaged in the business of generating and transmitting electricity. Lamar Elec. Membership Corp. v. Carroll, 89 Ga. App. 440, 79 S.E.2d 832 (1953).

5. Miscellaneous Institutions

Bonds issued by the state or its institutions are public instrumentalities, and thus, properly exempted from taxation under this paragraph. Rich v. State, 237 Ga. 291, 227 S.E.2d 761 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

License fee not revenue raising measure. — The license fee provided for in the motor vehicle registration law is nothing more than a license fee and is not in essence a revenue-raising measure, and therefore does not amount to the levying of a tax against public property. Burkett v. State, 198 Ga. 747, 32 S.E.2d 797 (1945).

College, Academy, and Seminary Buildings

Fraternity houses tax exempt. — The fraternity houses are buildings erected for and used as a college, and not used for the purpose of making either private or corporate income or profit for the university, and they shall be exempt from taxes. Alford v. Emory Univ., 216 Ga. 391, 116 S.E.2d 596 (1960).

Seminary not intended as charitable institution. — Since this paragraph exempts certain specified property owned by a seminary of learning and then exempts “all institutions of purely public charity,” it appears that it was the intention of the drafters of the Constitution that a seminary of learning not be considered as a charitable institution for the purpose of this exemption. Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Sch. v. Thomas, 228 Ga. 231, 184 S.E.2d 824 (1971) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

A university-owned radio station, operated as any commercial broadcasting station, is not exempt from payment of city business license fee under this paragraph authorizing the exemption from taxation of educational institutions, notwithstanding the fact that its purpose of operation was said to be educational. City of Atlanta v. Oglethorpe Univ., 178 Ga. 379, 173 S.E. 110 (1934) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

It is the use of the property which renders it exempt or nonexempt, not the use of the income derived from it. Elder v. Atlanta-Southern Dental College, 183 Ga. 634, 189 S.E. 254 (1936).

Evidence authorized findings that dental college, chartered as purely educational institution, was not used for purpose of making either private or corporate income or profit to the corporation or owners, so as to make it liable for municipal taxes. Elder v. Atlanta-Southern Dental College, 183 Ga. 634, 189 S.E. 254 (1936).

Exemption for School Purposes

Use of property controls. — It is the use to which property of an educational institution is put, rather than the declaration of the purpose of the institution found in its charter, that determines the question of exemption from taxation. Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Sch. v. Thomas, 228 Ga. 231, 184 S.E.2d 824 (1971).

It is the use of the property which renders it exempt or nonexempt, not the use of the income derived from it. Property used to produce income to be expended in charity is too remote from the ultimate charitable object to be exempt. If property competes in the common business and occupations of life with the property of other owners, it must bear the tax which theirs bears. Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Sch. v. Thomas, 228 Ga. 231, 184 S.E.2d 824 (1971).

Homestead exemption for school purposes. — This paragraph on homestead is to be construed as exempting personal property from taxation for all purposes, from and after January 1, 1938. This would include exemption from ad valorem taxation for payment of principal and interest on a proposed bonded indebtedness of a consolidated school district, a political division of the state, incurred for the purpose of building a schoolhouse. Campbell v. Red Bud Consol. Sch. Dist., 186 Ga. 541, 198 S.E. 225 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

The homestead exemption from taxation for “school purposes” should not be construed to include exemption for purpose of building a schoolhouse. Campbell v. Red Bud Consol. Sch. Dist., 186 Ga. 541, 198 S.E. 225 (1938).

Taxation for school purposes in Clarke County. — In 1964 and in 1968 the people of the state did not authorize an additional homestead exemption for certain persons 65 years of age or over, but an increase in amount of the homestead granted other persons. Since the people of Clarke County had already expressly waived the homestead exemption as to “school purposes,” the later constitutional amendments, which expressly created an additional increase in the old age homestead exemption amount and clarified persons who might claim it, were not intended to apply to taxation for school purposes in Clarke County. Logan v. Davison, 225 Ga. 575, 170 S.E.2d 297 (1969).

Property devoted to public purposes not always tax exempt. — Although the State School Building Authority (now Georgia Education Authority (Schools)) is empowered to own and use properties for public school purposes, it is, nevertheless, the owner of that property and the authority is not “the state, or a part of the state, or an agency of the state." Therefore, the property exempt is not public property as contemplated by the Constitution. The fact that the property is devoted exclusively to public purposes would not make it public property and authorize the legislature to exempt it from taxation. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952).

Exemption for School

The properties of the State School Building Authority (now Georgia Education Authority (Schools)) are devoted exclusively to public charity as contemplated by the Constitution. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952).

Section 20-2-571 does not constitute gratuity or donation in violation of this paragraph. — Ga. L. 1951, p. 241, § 21 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-571), which expressly exempts the property of the authority from all taxation, does not constitute a donation or a gratuity in violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI), nor offend the last sentence of this paragraph, which declares that all laws exempting property from taxation other than the property therein enumerated are void. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Homestead Exemption

The purpose of this paragraph is to exempt the homestead of each bona fide resident of the state from taxation to the extent provided. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 71 Ga. App. 374, 31 S.E.2d 61 (1944) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Intent. — The reasonable intent of the homestead exemption provisions of the Constitution and statutes is to include in rural homesteads the entire tract of land upon which the house is situated, regardless of whether the land surrounding the dwelling is used simply as an extended approach to the building or put to agricultural uses. Jones v. Johnson, 80 Ga. App. 340, 55 S.E.2d 904 (1949).

There is no limitation as to the size or physical proportions of the property to be embraced within the homestead provision, and the purpose of the constitutional provision and statute pursuant thereto in fixing a maximum valuation was by so doing to equalize the exemption as between applicants on the basis of value, regardless of the extent of the tract involved. Jones v. Johnson, 80 Ga. App. 340, 55 S.E.2d 904 (1949).

Actual occupancy construed. — The provisions for actual occupancy by the owner, in this paragraph, enter into the definition of bona fide homestead, and do not mean in everyday life that the owner must occupy the property in person every day in the year, or a majority of the days of a year, but that there must be such occupancy by the owner as is not inconsistent with ownership and maintenance of the dwelling as the owner's homestead and place of abode. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 71 Ga. App. 374, 31 S.E.2d 61 (1944) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

One may actually occupy a home through the agency of others so long as it is maintained as a home, and the control is not changed in character, since the emphasis in the words used in this paragraph is not on the actual occupancy, but on the provision as a whole, the actual occupancy primarily as a residence or homestead. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 71 Ga. App. 374, 31 S.E.2d 61 (1944).

Effect of § 48-5-40. — The provisions in former Code 1933, § 92-233 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-40), that exempted homestead shall be the legal residence and domicile of such person for all purposes, meant no more than was required by this paragraph, which required actual occupancy primarily as a residence or homestead. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 71 Ga. App. 374, 31 S.E.2d 61 (1944) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Rules and regulations of constitutional amendment. — The rules and regulations contained in this paragraph providing the manner in which the taxing officials should determine the eligibility of a resident to receive the exemption are not violative of the constitutional amendment upon which Ga. L. Ex. Sess. 1937-38, p. 145 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-49) was based. Duncan v. Proctor, 195 Ga. 499, 24 S.E.2d 791 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

The Constitution requires that property claimed as a homestead be reasonably separated and separately valued, instead of being commingled with other property under a gross valuation. Harper v. Davis, 197 Ga. 762, 30 S.E.2d 481 (1944).

Applicant not entitled to an exemption. — Fact that applicant's entire property on which were located several buildings, was assessed at only $1,550.00, which is less than the maximum exemption allowable under the Constitution, did not entitle the applicant to an exemption where the applicant did not show the separate value of the property actually occupied by the applicant as a residence, nor give any data by which it could be ascertained. Harper v. Davis, 197 Ga. 762, 30 S.E.2d 481 (1944).

Farm Products Exemption

Intent. — The obvious intent of exemption for farm products is to relieve the farmer by giving the farmer a year after harvest in which to sell the farmer's products; therefore, during that period until the farmer sells the farmer's products, the farmer is exempt from ad valorem taxation thereupon. Gold Kist, Inc. v. Jones, 231 Ga. 881, 204 S.E.2d 584 (1974).

Section 48-5-41. — Language of this paragraph and former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-41) did not contemplate an exemption for farm products either after an outright sale, or when placed in the hands of another for future sale or processing with advance payment to the producer. Gold Kist, Inc. v. Jones, 231 Ga. 881, 204 S.E.2d 584 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Amendment of § 48-5-41. — Georgia Law 1913, p. 122, which amended former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-41), was passed for the express purpose of putting "in force" the constitutional amendment of 1912, amending this paragraph, and the descriptive words were the same as in the constitutional amendment. Collins v. Mills, 198 Ga. 18, 30 S.E.2d 866 (1944) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Lumber not classed as farm product. — Since according to its usual signification, the term "lumber" would not ordinarily be classified as a farm product; it would be presumed prima facie that it was not such a product, and in the circumstances, it was not sufficient to allege in general terms that this lumber was a farm product and as such exempt from taxation. Collins v. Mills, 198 Ga. 18, 30 S.E.2d 866 (1944).

Tax Exemption Not Applicable

Debts evidenced by notes not exempt. — Debts evidenced by notes are not embraced in the properties which the Constitution authorizes the General Assembly to exempt from taxation. It follows that since former Code 1933, § 92-2407 (see § 48-6-81) exempted from taxation property made subject to taxes by O.C.G.A. § 48-1-2 and since such property was not embraced in that which the Constitution authorized to be exempted from taxation, the statute offended the Constitution and was void. Elder v. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 188 Ga. 113, 3 S.E.2d 75 (1939).

Noncharitable hospital. — Where a hospital operated generally for profit, and while there was some evidence that it did on occasion treat indigent patients, the general practice of the institution was to collect all that it could from its patients, and only charge off as charity those bills it was unable to collect, the hospital is engaged principally for noncharitable purposes and apparently chiefly for benefit of its staff, and not exempt from taxation. Georgia Osteopathic Hosp. v. Alford, 217 Ga. 663, 124 S.E.2d 402 (1962).

Where a hospital is not chartered as a purely public charity, the use of its property is not put to purely public charity, and neither its income nor its surplus is used exclusively for purely public charity, it does not bring itself within the strict requirements for the ad valorem tax exemption sought. St. Joseph Hosp. v. Bohler, 229 Ga. 577, 193 S.E.2d 603 (1972).

Tax Exemption Not

Nonexempt property. — Property owned for profit by church such as: (1) apartment buildings leased for rent by church; (2) property formerly used as a dining hall but now as an apartment rented to a widow who sometimes pays rent; and (3) lot and dwelling house rented sometimes to a widow who pays rent when the widow can is not exempt from taxation. Church of God of Union Ass'y, Inc. v. City of Dalton, 216 Ga. 659, 119 S.E.2d 11 (1961).

Interpreting private or corporate income. — Interpreting “private or corporate income” to mean any income which is not public, productive property used as capital to raise money to expend in charity is used for private income when the owner is a private individual, and for corporate income when the owner is a corporation. It is no more allowable under the Constitution for a charitable association to accumulate money by the use of exempt property, to be disbursed in charity, than it is for a common citizen to do it. Richardson v. Executive Comm., 176 Ga. 705, 169 S.E. 18 (1933).

The terms “private or corporate” are employed in contradistinction to public. — Public property is not taxed, whether income is derived from it or not; but private or corporate property, though it may be connected with the external, visible “institution,” is not exempt if used for income, since the income from such property must, by reason of its ownership, be either private or corporate; these terms being comprehensive enough to include all income whatsoever that is not public. Richardson v. Executive Comm., 176 Ga. 705, 169 S.E. 18 (1933).

Acquisition of moneys or gains for disbursal not tax-exempt. — Insofar as charitable organizations are administrators and disbursers of purely public charity, their property permanently in use for that purpose is exempt from taxation; but, insofar as they are capitalists or proprietors engaged in acquiring money or effects to be so disbursed, property of any and every kind from which their income is derived is subject to be taxed the same as property generally. Richardson v. Executive Comm., 176 Ga. 705, 169 S.E. 18 (1933).

Property purchased by contractor for eventual purchase by city not tax exempt. — A contractor who contracts with a municipality to construct a water-works system, and who purchased property within and without the state to use in such construction, is a “user” and a “consumer” of such property and is liable to the state for use and sales tax on the sale of such property, even though the title to such property finally vests in the city, and the city would have been exempt from taxation had it purchased the property directly. J.W. Meadors & Co. v. State, 89 Ga. App. 583, 80 S.E.2d 86 (1954).

Effect of local authorities actions. — Where law of this state as applied to facts required taxation of credits in question, no interpretation or practice to the contrary by local authorities could properly be adopted by the court in determining their taxability. Suttles v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 193 Ga. 495, 19 S.E.2d 396 (1942), later appeal, 201 Ga. 84, 38 S.E.2d 786 (1946).

Former Code 1933, § 41A-813 (see now O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202) did not violate this paragraph; even though the section fixes the priority of other claims relative to taxes. Baggett v. Mobley, 171 Ga. 268, 155 S.E. 334 (1930) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Former Code 1933, § 41A-813 (see now O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202) may render the execution issued by a tax collector unfruitful, in view of the fact that claims which are given priority may exhaust the property classed among assets of the bank; but no attempt was made by the section to exempt the property from taxation even though the statute fixed the priority of other claims relative to taxes. Baggett v. Mobley, 171 Ga. 268, 155 S.E. 334 (1930).

Order of distribution of insolvent bank not unconstitutional. — The order of distribution of assets upon the insolvency of a bank which grant payments of debts due to depositors prior to payment of state taxes pursuant to Ga. L. 1927, p. 195, § 5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 7-1-202) is not an unconstitutional violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. I and III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Paras. I and III). Felton v. McArthur, 173 Ga. 465, 160 S.E. 419 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Paragraph not applicable to insolvent bank property. — The last sentence of this paragraph provides that “all laws exempting property from taxation, other than the property herein enumerated, shall be void.” The above exceptions do not include taxes of the character accruing against the property or assets of a bank after it has been taken over by the Superintendent of Banks for liquidation. Tharpe v. Gormley, 48 Ga. App. 731, 173 S.E. 212 (1934) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Assets in bank’s possession for liquidation. — The property and assets of a bank which are in the possession of the Superintendent of Banks, for the purpose of liquidation, are not exempt from taxation. Tharpe v. Gormley, 184 Ga. 605, 192 S.E. 211 (1937).

Uniform Application of Tax Exemption

Exemption uniformly applicable to state and foreign corporations alike. — To so construe this constitutional and statutory exemption of property owned by a Georgia corporation and to deny its application to the same class or species of property when owned by a domesticated foreign corporation would violate state constitutional requirements which require that protection to person and property be impartial and complete, and that all taxation shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and would also violate that provision of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States which declares that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. Redwine v. Southern Co., 206 Ga. 377, 57 S.E.2d 194 (1950).

Business tax exemption applicable to foreign corporation. — Constitutional and statutory provisions exempting from ad valorem intangible taxes common voting stock of a subsidiary corporation not doing business in this state, if at least 90 percent of such common voting stock is owned by a Georgia corporation with its principal place of business located in this state and was acquired or is held for the purpose of enabling the parent company to carry on some part of its established line of business through such subsidiary, applies to a domesticated foreign corporation as fully and as completely as it does to a corporation created under the laws of Georgia. Redwine v. Southern Co., 206 Ga. 377, 57 S.E.2d 194 (1950).

Tax exemption applicable to cooperative, nonprofit corporation.

— There is no merit in the contention that a cooperative, nonprofit, membership corporation, which has been incorporated in a sister state for the purpose of engaging in a rural electrification, and which has been subsequently domesticated in Georgia for the conduct of its corporate purpose here, is not entitled to tax immunity. After being duly domesticated in Georgia such a corporation and its stockholders have the same powers, privileges, and immunities as a similar corporation created under the laws of Georgia, and it, and its stockholders, are subject to the same obligations, duties, liabilities, and disabilities as that of a corporation originally created in Georgia. City of McCaysville v. Tri-State Elec. Coop., 211 Ga. 5, 83 S.E.2d 598 (1954).

Provision of the city charter relating to compensation for granting franchises was not impliedly repealed by ratification of the Constitution of 1945 or by enactment of Art. 2, Ch. 3, T. 46, since the charter provision does not per se relate to electric membership corporations, but to the right of the city to grant easements for the use of its streets by whatever kind of public service corporation. Tri-State Elec. Coop. v. City of Blue Ridge, 88 Ga. App. 717, 77 S.E.2d 547 (1953).

Claim barred by laches. — In this suit by citizens of Savannah, in which plaintiffs sought, among other things to enjoin enforcement of tax executions, upon grounds that city tax assessors from 1932 through 1937 intentionally and systematically discriminated against real estate and in favor of personal property in fixing the basis of value for taxation, the petition showed upon its face that the plaintiffs were guilty of such laches as to bar their claim for injunction to restrain the proposed tax sales because of alleged discrimination. Mayor of Savannah v. Fawcett, 186 Ga. 132, 197 S.E. 253 (1938).

Exemptions Granted by Corporate Charters

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. V and antecedent provisions, which provided: "All exemptions from taxation heretofore granted to corporate charters are declared to be henceforth null and void.", are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Effect of charter provision limiting tax on stock of corporation. — Where a charter provision limits the tax on the "stock" of the corporation to 1/2 of 1 percent "on the net proceeds of their investments," it is a property tax and constitutes no bar to collection by the state under Ga. L. 1931, Ex. Sess., p. 24 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-7-50), of an income tax from a lessee of the corporation on its net income derived from the use of the corporate property on which the charter thus limits the property tax. Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R.R., 200 Ga. 856, 38 S.E.2d 774 (1946), aff'd sub nom. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Phillips, 332 U.S. 168, 67 S. Ct. 1584, 91 L. Ed. 1977 (1947) commented on in 9 Ga. B.J. 207 (1946).

Suit by railroad company for declaratory judgment and injunction against collection of ad valorem taxes is in substance and effect an action against the state and it is not maintainable, unless the state has consented to be sued. Musgrove v. Georgia R.R. & Banking Co., 204 Ga. 139, 49 S.E.2d 26 (1948), appeal dismissed, 335 U.S. 900, 69 S. Ct. 407, 93 L. Ed. 435 (1949).

Suits to restrain state officials from executing an unconstitutional statute. — It is a well recognized general rule that a suit to restrain a state official from executing an unconstitutional statute in violation of plaintiff's rights and to plaintiff's irreparable damage is not a suit against the state, for in such a case the officer is stripped of official or representative character and is subject in the officer's person to the consequences of the officer's individual conduct. Seemingly, the same principle would apply where the officer claims to act under a provision of the state Constitution, provided such provision is void as being in violation of the United States Constitution, and is duly challenged. It has no application where the suit is by a railroad company against the state revenue commissioner for declaratory judgment and injunction to prevent assessment of ad valorem taxes in violation of a company's charter. Musgrove v. Georgia R.R. & Banking Co., 204 Ga. 139, 49 S.E.2d 26 (1948), appeal dismissed, 335 U.S. 900, 69 S. Ct. 407, 93 L. Ed. 435 (1949).

Legislative intent in enacting exemption clause construed. — Where there existed in Georgia at the time the corporation charter exemption was enacted no general law which would subject the corporation to payment of an income tax, and in the exemption clause it was expressly stated that the limitation provided was upon the taxation of stock of the corporation, hence, the General Assembly of Georgia, in enacting this exemption clause, did not intend to include an income tax. Such limitation or exemption was not necessary, because in the absence of the same, no income tax, under the law as it then existed, would have been exacted of the corporation. Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R.R., 200 Ga. 856, 38 S.E.2d 774 (1946), aff'd sub nom. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Phillips, 332 U.S. 168, 67 S. Ct. 1584, 91 L. Ed. 1977 (1947) commented on in 9 Ga. B.J. 207 (1946).

This provision does not purport to be retroactive; and even if it was expressly made retroactive, it would nevertheless be completely ineffective insofar as the fixed and established rights of the party are concerned. Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R.R., 200 Ga. 856, 38 S.E.2d 774 (1946), aff'd sub nom. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Phillips, 332 U.S. 168, 67 S. Ct. 1584, 91 L. Ed. 1977 (1947) commented on in 9 Ga. B.J. 207 (1946). (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

A perpetual corporate charter granted by the legislature conferring tax exemption upon the corporation is irrevocable. Accordingly, this paragraph purporting to revoke such charter provisions, is void and of no effect. Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R.R., 200 Ga. 856, 38 S.E.2d 774 (1946), aff'd sub nom. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Phillips, 332 U.S. 168, 67 S. Ct. 1584, 91 L. Ed. 1977 (1947) commented on in 9 Ga. B.J. 207 (1946).

State cannot impair its contractual obligations. — This state is powerless by legislative enactment or constitutional provision to nullify or impair in any respect whatsoever its existing contractual obligations. Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R.R., 200 Ga. 856, 38 S.E.2d 774 (1946), aff'd sub nom. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. Phillips, 332 U.S. 168, 67 S. Ct. 1584, 91 L. Ed. 1977 (1947) commented on in 9 Ga. B.J. 207 (1946).

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. IV and antecedent provisions, relating to specific tax exemptions, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

This paragraph is exclusive in the matter of exemptions from taxation and supersedes any other law. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 708 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Items not included in gross income. — The General Assembly did not intend to exclude from computation for income tax purposes those items not included in gross income; otherwise, the words "from all sources" would not have been used nor would reference have been made to certain benefits not included in gross income; to construe the amendment as requiring that only income which is included in gross income for income tax purposes be considered in determining whether a person is entitled to the increased exemption would render the words "from all sources" surplusage. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-28.

Ga. L. 1946, p. 12, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 48-5-42 and 48-5-44) was authorized by this paragraph. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 439 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Land owned by an organization, which is normally tax exempt, is subject to taxation when leased for commercial purposes. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 716.

Responsibility and authority of tax administrators limited. — Tax administrators have from time to time the responsibility to determine whether or not a particular piece of property is exempt property under the provisions of the Constitution and the statutes lawfully enacted thereunder; they do not have the authority to create any special exemption. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-457.

Public Property

Public property is exempt from taxation and motor vehicles owned by political subdivisions of the state, such as a public school system, are exempt from taxation as public property. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-237.

Public Property (Cont'd)

Properties of Religious Groups

Land owned by a religious organization is exempt from taxation so long as it is used for religious worship or as a recreational park for purely public charity. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 716.

A single family residence owned by a church is exempt from ad valorem taxes as long as no income is derived therefrom; the same rule applies where the church owns two or more residences. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-172.

Residences of pastor and minister of education are tax exempt. — Two single family residences owned by a church, one of which is occupied rent free by the pastor as the pastor's residence, and the other of which is occupied rent free by the minister of education as the minister's residence, are both exempt from ad valorem taxes. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-94.

Motor vehicles owned by churches are not exempt from taxation. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 287.

Automobiles are not exempt from ad valorem tax because they are owned by and registered in name of a church organization. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-47.

Burial Places

Cemeteries are exempt from property taxation, even land not yet sold as burial lots. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 474.

Ownership of property. — Property utilized as a cemetery or place of burial is exempt from taxation without regard for fact that the property is owned by either a public or private corporation or by individuals, collectively or severally. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-15.

Institutions of Purely Public Charity

All property, both real and personal, is taxable except that which is exempt under this paragraph; there is no classification under the property tax exemptions enumerated in the Constitution that could include the property of the legion post, even though it is a nonprofit organization being operated solely for the benefit of its membership and the American Legion and its property was fully acquired through the donations of the citizens of the community and the membership of the post. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 668 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Description in charter that an institution is charitable is not necessarily controlling; institution's tangible personal property is taxable where it appears proceeds may inure to benefit of private person. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 523.

Georgia Warm Springs Foundation and comparable organizations. — Any property used by an institution of the character of Georgia Warm Springs Foundation in its operation and any operation necessary thereto is exempted from taxation; however, any real estate owned by such an institution that is not necessary to the direct operation but is merely owned by them is subject to taxation. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 576.

Camp grounds owned and operated by Conference of Seventh-day Adventists are exempt from taxation as institution of purely public charity. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 499.

A hospital supported largely by income derived from pay patients is not entitled to an exemption on its intangible personal property since it cannot be classified as an institution of "purely public charity." 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 574.

A Veterans of Foreign Wars post is not exempt from ad valorem taxation. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 291.

Colleges, Academies, and Seminaries

For discussion of what educational and religious institution property is exempt from taxation. See 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 181.

Law libraries not included in personalty subject to exemption from ad valorem taxes. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 499.

If a motel owned by a college is held or used as an endowment, such property is not exempt from ad valorem taxation because it is invested in real estate. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-362.

Motor vehicles owned and used by private educational institutions are not exempt from ad valorem taxation. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-237.

Homestead Exemption

The purpose of this paragraph was to exempt the homestead of each bona fide resident to the extent provided. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 563 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

The homestead exemption exempts only real property. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-1.

Homestead exemption relates to state and county taxes; if a city wished to extend this or a similar exemption to municipal taxes, a constitutional amendment would be needed. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-98.

Homestead exemption can be applied to only one house. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-3.

It is necessary that the applicant seeking exemption must have a permanent residence on property owned by the applicant to receive an exemption. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-6.

Federal old-age, survivor, or disability benefits not included in determining to increase exemption. — Prior to the 1972 amendment to this paragraph, all income including federal old-age, survivor, or disability benefits was included in income in determining whether a person met the income requirements for the increased homestead exemption; the change made by the 1972 amendment, insofar as the income requirements are concerned, was to provide specifically that federal old-age, survivor, or disability benefits would not be included in income for such purposes. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-38.

Ordinance exempting parcels exceeding five acres. — Any city ordinance exempting parcels of property exceeding five acres in area from ad valorem taxes until the parcel is subdivided violates this paragraph and is void. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U72-100 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Exemption extended to administrator, executor, or trustee. — The 1970 amendment to this paragraph, dealing with exemptions granted to homesteads, extends the homestead exemption to property in which title is vested in an administrator, executor, or trustee where an heir or cestui que use resides on the property and claims the exemption. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-7 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Section 48-5-40. — The 1970 amendment to this paragraph was intended to clarify former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-40) by making it clear that in instances of multiple, undivided interests, qualified applicants could properly seek a proportionate exemption. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-7 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

The 1970 amendment to this paragraph extends, as former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-40) did in part, the homestead exemption to owner-occupants holding an undivided interest in property. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-7 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

The 1970 amendment to this paragraph made it clear, which former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-40) did not do, that an individual can apply for exemption if the individual was the only owner actually occupying the property. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-7 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Joint ownership. — Where there is joint ownership of the homestead property, each owner may only assert the owner's claim as an applicant for an exemption based upon the interest the owner holds in the property. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-7.

Joint property owners entitled to claim interest proportion to interest in property. — Where title to real estate is vested in two or more owners, or in an administrator, executor, or trustee, and one of the joint owners, or an heir or cestui que use, who resides on the property meets the criteria for one of the applicable homestead exemptions and applies for the homestead exemption, the applicant is only entitled to claim a proportionate exemption of the amount allowed by law in proportion to which the applicant's interest bears to the total interest of the property. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-7.

Invoking benefits triggers limitation clause of benefit. — If a taxpayer is qualified for and chooses to invoke benefits of any one of the exemptions from any one of the types of ad valorem taxes, the taxpayer necessarily triggers the limitation clause of that exemption; any attempt to take two or more similar exemptions would violate the limitation clause of each of the exemptions and cannot be done. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-83.

Amount of exemption qualified taxpayer entitled to. — A taxpayer who meets the qualifications of both the 1964 and 1974 exemptions would be entitled to an exemption of no more than $4,000.00 from state ad valorem taxes, $4,000.00 from county ad valorem taxes excluding those taxes levied for educational purposes, and $10,000.00 from ad valorem taxes levied for educational purposes. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-83.

Not more than one homestead exemption may be claimed in connection with the occupancy of one building except in the case of duplex or double occupancy dwellings when the line of division follows a natural and bona fide plan as to both land and buildings and the two units thus formed are separately owned and occupied. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-138.

Where nonprofit housing facilities are made available to members of public whose incomes are insufficient to enable them to acquire adequate housing, such facilities may be charitable property, and exempt from ad valorem tax; the fact that some charge is made for accommodations will not alter this, provided no profit is made, and no income therefrom can inure to any private person. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-186.

Life tenant with remainderman responsible for ad valorem taxes. — A covenant contained in a deed conveying a life estate which makes the remainder interest responsible for paying the ad valorem taxes does not alter the ownership interests in the property for purposes of eligibility to claim the homestead exemptions allowed for the elderly. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-71.

The board of assessors may raise a taxpayer's homestead exemption and should do so, as the taxpayer has not waived any part of the full exemption provided in this paragraph. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 142 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Veterans Exemption

Method for construction of paragraph. — The amendment to this paragraph, granting an exemption of $10,000.00 to a disabled veteran, is to be read in pari materia with the original homestead provision in this paragraph, and the statutory provisions (see now O.C.G.A. Part 1, Art. 2, Ch. 5, T. 48), passed to carry the original provision into effect, should be applied also to this paragraph. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 492 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

O.C.G.A. § 48-5-40 is applicable to disabled veterans and a disabled veteran is entitled to an exemption of $5,000.00 where the disabled veteran has a 50 percent interest in the property. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 492.

Amount of exemption available to disabled veteran and spouse. — A disabled veteran was entitled to a homestead exemption under this paragraph upon property owned jointly by the veteran and the veteran's spouse would, under former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-40), be entitled to claim only half the amount prescribed by this paragraph; the veteran's spouse could claim an exemption of $1,000.00 on the spouse's half of the property. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 340 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Veterans exemption in lieu of general exemption. — The special $25,000 homestead exemption granted to disabled veterans is in lieu of and not in addition to the $2,000.00 homestead exemption available to the general citizenry of this state. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-3.

Nonservice connected pensions received by World War I veterans must be considered in determining whether a person meets income requirements for increased homestead exemption. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-28.

Automobiles. — Disabled veteran is not exempt from payment of ad valorem taxes on the disabled's veteran's automobile. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 487.

Disabled veteran's $25,000 homestead exemption is limited to real property and does not include an automobile. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 494.

The language of the exemption makes it clear that unless the vehicle is owned by the disabled veteran, the exemption may not be granted. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-19.

PERSONS AGE 65 AND OVER =cd.

Homestead exemption allowed to persons 65 years of age or over is a personal right of those individuals where the income limitation is met; where there is joint ownership of the homestead property, each owner may assert the owner's claim as an applicant for an exemption based upon the interest the owner holds in the property. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-60.

This paragraph, authorizing homestead exemptions from school taxes for certain elderly persons, is not self-executing, as demonstrated by the change in the words "shall be exempt" to "may be exempt," the decision of whether or not to grant exemptions having been left to the discretion of the legislature. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-2 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Exemption enacted by 1972 amendment must be implemented on state-wide application. — The 1972 amendments to this paragraph, relating to exemptions from ad valorem taxes for educational purposes for certain persons over 62 years of age, cannot be implemented on a district by district basis but must be implemented, if at all, so as to have state-wide application. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-52 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Does not apply to municipalities. — This paragraph, granting a homestead exemption of $4,000.00 to certain persons 65 years of age and over, grants direct constitutional exemption from all state and county ad valorem taxes, including taxes levied for school purposes and for purposes of paying interest on and retiring bonded indebtedness, but grants no exemption from ad valorem taxes levied by municipalities. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 733 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Income limitation. — To be entitled to the homestead exemption for persons over 65 years of age, income must not exceed $4,000.00 after subtracting all deductions allowed by law from gross income. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-17.

General Assembly did not intend for Ga. L. 1969, p. 960, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-20) to apply to persons claiming the increased homestead exemption; the provisions of Ga. L. 1969, p. 960, § 1 do not eliminate the requirement that persons claiming the increased homestead exemption of $4,000.00 file an annual application for such exemption. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-236.

Social security benefits must be included in computation in determining whether or not a person over 65 and that person's spouse has met income requirements for increased homestead exemption. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-112.

Pension and retirement benefits. — Although this paragraph first refers to "net income," which would not include certain retirement or pension payments, these pension and retirement payments must be included. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-53 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Personal exemptions and credits are not considered in arriving at net income. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-17.

"From all sources." — That something more than "taxable net income" was intended by the framers of this paragraph is indicated by the insertion of the words "from all sources" in the term "income from all sources." 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 749 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Responsible for city property tax. — A home having a value of less than $4,000.00 which is owned and occupied by a 75-year-old person having an income of less than $4,000.00 per year, is subject to city property tax, but is exempt from state and county property tax; all personal clothing and furniture owned by a taxpayer are exempted from all state, county, city, and school district ad valorem tax in an amount not to exceed $300.00. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-198.

Farm Products

Interpretation of farm products exemption clause. — This paragraph states: "The General Assembly shall further have power to exempt from taxation, farm products, including baled cotton grown in this state and remaining in the hands of the producer, but not longer than for the year next after their production"; this constitutional exemption simply means that agricultural products in the hands of the producer or the farmer are exempted for a year after their production; any other exemption of agricultural products would be void. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 658 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

The term "farm products" is not limited to products of the soil, but also encompasses livestock and poultry, including laying hens, which are commonly regarded as agricultural products; such products are exempt from taxation so long as they meet other statutory criteria. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-359.

Chickens remaining in hands of the producer are "farm products" exempt from ad valorem taxation for the next year after their production. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-359.

Effect of federal ownership. — As farm products within the hands of the producer, within the year next after their production, and all property within the scope of federal ownership are exempt from taxation, farm products owned by the producer and stored by the federal government are not within the classification of properties taxable by a municipal corporation. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 238.

Instance of ineligibility for exemption. — A person owning and operating a farm, working on the farm and being on the farm practically all day year round, but eating and sleeping in a home not owned by that person about two miles from the person's property in the same county, would not be eligible for an exemption. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 153.

A person who only lived on the person's property a few days out of the year would not be entitled to the exemption; this would not be the case if the person was away from the person's home serving in the armed forces. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 153.

Farm products in the hands of warehousemen who are not producers are not exempt from property taxation. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-283.

Nursery products such as ornamental garden shrubs are not farm products as that term is used in this paragraph and are subject to property taxation. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-407 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Industry and Business Exemption

In view of this paragraph, towns and counties are prohibited from granting tax exemptions to industries or businesses. 1950-51 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 114 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Provision in city charter which would exempt corporations from taxation of realty is unconstitutional. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 487.

Exemption of property from ad valorem taxation for industrial development purposes is prohibited by the Constitution and can only be allowed with respect to specific localities by constitutional amendment. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 504.

Board of commissioners of a county cannot grant any exemptions from ad valorem taxation; the General Assembly may, by law, grant exemptions from ad valorem taxation but only on property enumerated in this paragraph. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-328 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Exemptions to promote business growth prohibited. — County commissioners cannot exempt new businesses or industries from ad valorem taxation for a given period in order to induce them to move into the county; even though the General Assembly has some authority to exempt certain property from taxation, only property specifically enumerated in this paragraph may be exempted. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-174 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art VII, Sec. II, Para. IV).

If a city is located within a county, its gas facility located in the county is not subject to ad valorem taxation by the county. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-191.

Property returned for taxation on January first and later sold to a municipality is not subject to be levied on for taxes in the hands of the municipality. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 680.

An electric cooperative organized under foreign state law and doing business in this state is not exempt from payment of state ad valorem taxes. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 183.

Property owned by a mutual fund. — Neither former Code 1933, § 92-201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-41) nor the Constitution exempt from ad valorem taxation taxable property owned by a mutual fund. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-195.

Paragraph V. Disabled veteran's homestead exemption.

Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, the amount of the homestead exemption granted to disabled veterans shall be the greater of $32,500.00 or the maximum amount which may be granted to a disabled veteran under Section 802 of Title 38 of the United States Code as hereafter amended. Such exemption shall be granted to: those persons eligible for such exemption on June 30, 1983; to disabled American veterans of any war or armed conflict who are disabled due to loss or loss of use of one lower extremity together with the loss or loss of use of one upper extremity which so affects the functions of balance or propulsion as to preclude locomotion without the aid of braces, crutches, canes, or a wheelchair; and to disabled veterans hereafter becoming eligible for assistance in acquiring housing under Section 801 of the United States Code as hereafter amended. The General Assembly may by general law provide for a different amount or a different method of determining the amount of or eligibility for the homestead exemption granted to disabled veterans. Any such law shall be enacted by a simple majority of the votes of all the members to which each house is entitled and may become effective without referendum. Such law may provide that the amount of or eligibility for the exemption shall be determined by reference to laws enacted by the United States Congress. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 7, § 2, Para. 5, approved by Ga. L. 1984, p. 1707, § 1/HR 185.)

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1984, p. 1707, § 1) which added this Paragraph was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 6, 1984.

Section 802 of Title 38 of the United States Code is now Section 2102 of Title 38 of the United States Code.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

No referendum required. — The disabled veterans homestead exemption set forth in § O.C.G.A. 48-5-48.3, which became effective July 1, 1986, can go into effect without a referendum. 1987 Op.

Att’y Gen. No. 87-2.

SECTION IIA.

HOMEOWNER’S INCENTIVE ADJUSTMENT

Paragraph

- I. State grants; adjustment amount.

Paragraph I. State grants; adjustment amount.

For each taxable year, a homeowner’s incentive adjustment may be applied to the return of each taxpayer claiming such state-wide homestead exemption as may be specified by general law. The amount of such adjustment may provide a taxpayer with a benefit equivalent to a homestead exemption of up to $18,000.00 of the assessed value of a taxpayer’s homestead or the taxpayer’s ad valorem property tax liability on the homestead, whichever is lower. The General Assembly may appropriate such amount each year for grants to local governments and school districts as homeowner tax relief grants. The adjustments and grants authorized by this Paragraph shall be made in such manner and shall be subject to the procedures and conditions as may be specified by general law heretofore or hereafter enacted. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 7, § 2A, Para. 1, approved by Ga. L. 1999, p. 1275, § 1/HR 269)

Editor’s notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1999, p. 1275, § 1), which added Section IIA and this Paragraph, was approved by a majority of the voters voting at the general election held on November 7, 2000.

SECTION III.

Paragraph I. Taxation; purposes for which powers may be exercised.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, the power of taxation over the whole state may be exercised for any purpose authorized by law. Any purpose for which the powers of taxation over the whole state could have been exercised on June 30, 1983, shall continue to be a purpose for which such powers may be exercised.

(b) Subject to conditions and limitations as may be provided by law, the power of taxation may be exercised to make grants for tax relief purposes to persons for sales tax paid and not otherwise reimbursed on prescription drugs. Credits or relief provided hereunder may be limited only to such reasonable classifications of taxpayers as may be specified by law.

ANALYSIS

PURPOSE FOR EXERCISING POWERS OF TAXATION

1. SUPPORT OF STATE GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS
2. EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES
3. PAYMENT OF PUBLIC DEBT
4. CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF STATE FACILITIES
5. CONTRIBUTIONS TO STATE EMPLOYEES’ RETIREMENT SYSTEMS

General Consideration

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I and antecedent provisions, providing for specific allowable purposes of taxation, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Power of taxation limited. — The General Assembly has only those powers of taxation over the state which it is permitted to exercise under the grant of power contained in the Constitution. Brown v. Martin, 162 Ga. 172, 132 S.E. 896 (1926).

Sole purposes for which the state may tax are listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. III). City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

List of purposes in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. III) is the only source of purposes of taxation for which the state may validly delegate to its creatures the power to tax. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Express constitutional authorization is required to validate a tax levy by a creature of the state. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

This paragraph is not applicable to a taxation act by county. Columbus S. Ry. v. Wright, 89 Ga. 574, 15 S.E. 293 (1892), aff'd, 151 U.S. 470, 14 S. Ct. 396, 38 L. Ed. 238 (1894) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

County tax for purpose of paying pensions is invalid. Verdery v. Walton, 137 Ga. 213, 73 S.E. 390 (1911).

Taxing to grant funds to municipalities is not delegable. — Though the purposes listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) are capable of delegation, the right of the state to tax in order to grant funds to municipalities under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. III) is not capable of delegation to counties or to any other subdivision of the state. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

It can never be a valid county purpose to provide revenue to a municipality, because municipalities are not citizens of nor creatures of counties — they are an entirely different form of government. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Restitution does not fully satisfy injury which results to one from wrongful levy and collection of a tax for payment of which the person is not legally liable. Agricultural Commodities

Auth. v. Balkcom, 215 Ga. 107, 109 S.E.2d 276 (1959).

General Assembly exceeded tax power. — The assessment which the agricultural commodities authority was empowered to levy and collect from the producers of the commodity peanuts, under the attacked section of former Code 1933, Ch. 5-26, § 10 of Ga. L. 1951, p. 717, as amended by Ga. L. 1958, p. 237, was unquestionably a tax on that particular agricultural commodity, which was levied and collected by the state through one of its instrumentalities solely for the purpose of advertising and promoting such commodity by the authority; and since it was not a tax which the General Assembly has constitutional power to impose only on that particular agricultural commodity for any one of the purposes enumerated in this provision of the Constitution, the General Assembly was without constitutional authority to create an instrumentality of the state and clothe it with power to impose a tax on such commodity. Agricultural Commodities Auth. v. Balkcom, 215 Ga. 107, 109 S.E.2d 276 (1959).

Wrongful tax not cured by refund. — Invalidity of former Code 1933, Ch. 5-26, § 10 of Ga. L. 1951, p. 717, as amended by Ga. L. 1958, p. 237, empowering agricultural commodities authority to levy and collect from procedures of the commodity peanuts, was not cured by the election provided for by § 7 of the act or by provision in § 10 for refund to dissatisfied producer. Agricultural Commodities Auth. v. Balkcom, 215 Ga. 107, 109 S.E.2d 276 (1959).

Term "debt," as used in this paragraph, refers to the principal of the debt due, exclusive of unearned interest on the debt. City Council v. Dawson Waterworks Co., 106 Ga. 696, 32 S.E. 907 (1899); Epping v. City of Columbus, 117 Ga. 263, 43 S.E. 803 (1903), overruled on other grounds, 141 Ga. 322, 80 S.E. 1010 (1914) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

None of the purposes of taxation enumerated by this paragraph are broad enough to include acquisition of a railroad. Park v. Candler, 113 Ga. 647, 39 S.E. 89 (1901) (see Ga. Const.

1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

Purpose for Exercising Powers of Taxation

1. Support of State Government and Public Institutions

This paragraph authorizes levy of an ad valorem tax upon all property in the state for support of public institutions, which includes the superior courts. Clark v. Hammond, 134 Ga. 792, 68 S.E. 600 (1910) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

2. Educational Purposes

Constitution adheres to the strict requirement that all school funds be devoted to educational purposes as defined in the statutes and Constitution of this state. Sheley v. Board of Pub. Educ., 132 Ga. App. 314, 208 S.E.2d 126 (1974), cert. dismissed, 233 Ga. 487, 212 S.E.2d 627 (1975).

Neither payment nor settlement of a claim is within the ambit of "educational purpose" for which alone a school board may spend its funds. Sheley v. Board of Pub. Educ., 132 Ga. App. 314, 208 S.E.2d 126 (1974), cert. dismissed, 233 Ga. 487, 212 S.E.2d 627 (1975).

3. Payment of Public Debt

Loaning of money to political subdivisions of this state or authorities controlled by them is not a permitted purpose for which public funds may be used under this paragraph and, therefore, it is not a facility or service of the state within the meaning of that term in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I). Mulkey v. Quillian, 213 Ga. 507, 100 S.E.2d 268 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

Former Code 1933, § 58-706.1 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 4, Ch. 5, T. 3) did not impose a state tax for state purposes, which would invoke this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III); instead, it imposes a state tax for local purposes, and the counties' adherence to the tests of Ga. Const. 1976, Art.

IX, Sec. V, Paras. I and II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV), delineating the allowable scope of county purposes of taxation is all that is required. Chanin v. Bibb County, 234 Ga. 282, 216 S.E.2d 250 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

4. Construction and Maintenance of State Facilities

Provided the authority has been established for a valid public purpose, the legislature may appropriate money for administrative expenses of that authority and such appropriation would be a valid use of tax funds under this paragraph. Rich v. State, 237 Ga. 291, 227 S.E.2d 761 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

State docks and promotion of natural resources. — This paragraph authorizes the state to levy taxes to be used to construct and maintain state docks, and to promote natural resources of the state. The acquisition, construction, maintenance, and operation of public ports, docks, wharves and related facilities is a function ordinarily carried on by the state, or a state instrumentality, and is a legitimate function of state government. Sigman v. Brunswick Port Auth., 214 Ga. 332, 104 S.E.2d 467 (1958).

The Ports Authority is a creature of the state, and in the operation of the docks, wharves, etc., it does so as the instrumentality of the state for governmental purposes as authorized by the Constitution. The Ports Authority as an employer comes within the exception provision of 29 U.S.C. §§ 151-168 of the National Labor Relations Act and is not subject to the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board. International Longshoremen's Ass'n v. Georgia Ports Auth., 217 Ga. 712, 124 S.E.2d 733, cert. denied, 370 U.S. 922, 82 S. Ct. 1561, 8 L. Ed. 2d 503 (1962).

This paragraph and Ga. Const., Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I), are in pari materia, and must be construed together. When so construed, ample authority is found in the Constitution for those provisions of former Code 1933, Ch. 95A-12 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 1, Ch. 10, T.

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I and antecedent provisions, relating to specific allowable purposes of taxation, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Former Code 1933, § 32-403 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-11) did not exceed this paragraph's constitutional limitations on the use of moneys derived from state taxation. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 697. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

For the state to provide with state funds an awards luncheon would violate Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (1) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI) prohibiting granting any donation or gratuity in favor of any person, corporation, or association. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-42.

Department of Public Safety may expend funds allotted by the Office of Planning and Budget for purpose of printing posters and leaflets in connection with campaign to promote safe driving. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 601.

Taxation Powers

1. State Government and Public Institutions

State departments, institutions, or agencies can pay dues and membership fees in various state and national organizations from state appropriated funds. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-110.

2. Educational Purposes

Expression "for educational purpose" is to be given the broadest significance; the expression is "... broad enough to cover all things necessary or incidental to the furtherance of education ...," but the scope of the expression does not extend to any measure that might incidentally prove to be of assistance to a program of education. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-33.

The phrase "educational purposes" in this paragraph does not include a school lunch program. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 71. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

Expenditure not necessarily for school purpose because of name. — Since the impediment to the expenditure of school funds for purposes other than school or educational purposes is constitutional, suffice it to say with reference to the statutory authorization in § 20-2-184, that simply "calling" a proposed expenditure an expenditure "for school purposes" does not necessarily make it an expenditure "for school purposes." 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-52.

Local school boards may spend state and local tax funds to maintain debate program; these expenditures may include payment of debate meet registration fees for individuals and schools. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-20.

State tax funds may be spent on individual and school registration fees for centrally located debate meets. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-20.

Local, but not state, tax funds may be spent on room or board for students attending centrally located debate meets. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-20.

Medical services may or may not be for school purposes. — Answering of the question of whether a given expenditure can be said to be an expenditure "for school purposes" is exceedingly difficult and an area as broad as "medical services" is not one which can be said to be either wholly within or wholly without the outer limits of a lawful expenditure "for school purposes." 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-52.

Some forms of medical service have such direct and substantial relationship to the educational process as to render it unlikely a court would not authorize expenditure of school funds for such service at least where arguably authorized by statute. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-44.

School funds cannot lawfully be expended to provide pupils with full medical care. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-44.

Expenditure of school funds for construction of public library facilities is educational purpose. — In view of the inherent nature of library facilities as a learning tool and the pervasive relationship between educational authorities and library systems on both state and local governmental levels, together with the stated legislative policy that establishment of a public library service is to be part of the provisions for public education in this state, the use of common school funds for construction of public library facilities is an expenditure for educational purposes. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-33.

An expenditure involving expenses for conducting a Junior Fire Marshal Camp is not an illegal expenditure, it being a constitutional and authorized educational expense authorized by Ga. L. 1949, p. 1057, § 26 (see now O.C.G.A. § 25-2-31). 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 446.

Expenditure of school funds for payment of rewards offered for information concerning damage to and destruction of school property is not an expenditure for educational purposes, and therefore not a lawful use of general school funds. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-122.

Paying school personnel for unused sick or personal leave. — Concerning the legality of a school system paying personnel for unused sick or personal leave, there does not seem to be any extant constitutional or statutory prohibition of making such payments as a part of an overall compensation plan, provided that specific peripheral statutory requirements, such as those pertaining to the maximum number of days of sick leave which can be accumulated, are not violated. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U86-19 (decided under former § 20-2-284).

3. Welfare Benefits

Payment of unemployment compensation coverage for state or local employees of public hospitals and institutions of higher learning would be authorized by this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II (8) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV,

Purposes Supportable by Exercise of
3. Welfare Benefits (Cont'd)

Para. II) to provide necessary welfare benefits as specified by the General Assembly. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-35 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

4. State Employees Retirement Systems

Must be actual employee, dependent, or survivor. — No one except employees actually in employment of such governmental agencies, or dependents, or survivors of such employees can be covered by an act of the General Assembly relating to any program of benefits financed through taxation of public funds raised by taxation. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 233.

5. School Lunch Purposes

Use of public funds for school lunches not applicable to independent school systems. — This paragraph, enabling the General Assembly to authorize counties to use public funds for school lunch purposes, does not confer any authority or enable the General Assembly to confer any authority upon independent school systems to use public funds for such purposes. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 167.

State Board of Education determines allocation of lunch funds. — The proper authority to determine how much of the state funds allocated for school lunch purposes shall be spent is the State Board of Education which in determining what it believes to be necessary in the way of state fiscal assistance could presumably take into account the amount of available funds from other areas such as local taxation and federal grants. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-8.

Effect of federal funds. — Provided that state funds allocated by the State Board of Education "for school lunch purposes" are expended for this purpose and none other, there is no legal, as opposed to state board policy, restriction on the use of such funds flowing from the fact that the school lunch programs of local school systems also receive federal fiscal support. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-8.

Restrictions on use established by State Board of Education. — Provided that state funds appropriated for support of school lunch programs of local school systems are not expended for other than school lunch purposes, restrictions on and reasonable conditions appertaining to the use of such funds by local school systems is a matter to be determined by policies, rules, and regulations of the State Board of Education. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-8.

Neither state nor local school funds may be used to provide lunches for children not enrolled in the public school program. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-155.

Students not enrolled in public school. — No direct provision of law prohibits a local school system from providing school lunches for children not enrolled in the public school program, assuming full reimbursement is made to the school system for expenses incurred in the providing of such service. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-155.

Charges for school meals sold to employees. — From a viewpoint of state law, since there are no longer any apparent state constitutional restrictions (as opposed to statutory and regulatory authorizations and restraints) respecting charges for school meals, in determining the sum it will charge teachers and other school employees for school meals, a local school system may properly exclude those indirect costs which the school system would have to bear whether or not the meals were sold to teachers and employees as well as to students; it would be permissible for a local school system to calculate the sum to be charged to the teacher or other employee based upon direct costs only. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 85-23.

6. Promotion of State Qualities and Resources

Grant of donation or gratuity prohibited even though General Assembly can appropriate funds for comparable purposes. — The General Assembly could tax for, and appropriate funds for, the same purposes as may be intended by Ducks Unlimited, e.g., recreation, conservation of the natural resources of the state, etc.; however, this does not mean the General Assembly may grant a donation or gratuity, in violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (1) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI) prohibition, in order to effectuate the purposes for which it is authorized to levy taxes. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-128.

An agency or department of the state may employ Atlanta Historical Society to obtain information in connection with advertising and promoting historical resources. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 287.

7. Public Transportation

Under this paragraph, it is immaterial that the state appropriation might exceed 10 percent of some individual contract, as long as 10 percent of the total overall cost of the project is not exceeded. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-318. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

Partial reimbursement allowed. — This paragraph allows partial reimbursement of expenses incurred by two or more separate instrumentalities, working on the same transportation project. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-318. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

8. Support School Programs

Valid expenditure of school funds by county school board. — The expenditure of public school funds by a county board of education to run sewer lines from its schools to city sewer lines on nearby city streets, and to purchase sewage disposal services from the city, would not violate any constitutional or statutory provision of the State of Georgia. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-85.

In-service training for teachers. — The State Board of Education is fully authorized by law to make grants to local school systems for purpose of enabling local systems to provide in-service training for teachers in their employment. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-79.

Common school funds can lawfully be used for support of "community school programs," which programs are ordinarily conducted after normal school hours and consist of various activities of an educational nature provided for the general citizenry without violating constitutional prohibitions on the expenditure of school funds for purposes other than "school" or "educational" purposes. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-60.

Public school funds cannot lawfully be expended for extra-curricular athletic teams such as football and basketball teams. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-10; 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U79-6.

School funds may not legally be used to purchase uniforms for school lunch personnel. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-182.

Correction of drainage problem at stadium owned by public authority not educational purpose. — Where the State Board of Education received $15,000 from the Governor's Emergency Fund and these funds were then transferred to the Dougherty County Board of Education, and the Dougherty County Board of Education used the funds to alleviate a drainage problem at the Mills Memorial Stadium, which is owned and operated by the Albany Stadium Authority; the funds involved in this transfer were state funds, and correction of the drainage problems at the stadium is not an "educational purpose" and was an improper expenditure of state funds. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-41.

Neither the State Board of Education nor local boards of education can lawfully use school funds for room and board, other than school lunches, or for medical, including psychiatric treatment or services beyond such evaluation as is necessary to placement and the determination of the proper educational program for a given child. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-1.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERALANALYSIS*GENERAL CONSIDERATION

DISPOSITION OF FUNDS

1. PAYABLE INTO STATE TREASURY
2. RETAINED BY AGENCY

General Consideration

Constitutional requirements generally prohibit state organizations from collecting money and using that money for their own programs. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-126.

This provision was designed to give the General Assembly a more complete and continuous control over state finances than it had previously, when many sources of state income were earmarked for specific purposes. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-77.

Purpose of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. X, Para. I in conjunction with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. X, Para. VII. — Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Paras. II and III (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. II), and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. X, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. IX, Para. I), when read in conjunction with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. X, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. IX, Para. VI), preclude both the practice of allocating particular sources of income for the use of a particular agency and the allocation of the fees, or any part of the fees, collected by the various examining boards to meet their expenses, and further preclude any implied commitment on the part of the General Assembly to appropriate to the examining boards an amount equal to the total fees generated. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-93.

The statutory counterpart to this paragraph is found in Ga. L. 1962, p. 17, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-12-92). 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-77 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. II).

Grant of donation or gratuity prohibited even though General Assembly can appropriate funds for comparable activities. — The General Assembly could tax for, and appropriate funds for, the same purposes as may be intended by Ducks Unlimited, e.g., recreation, conservation of the natural resources of the state, etc.; however, this does not mean the General Assembly may grant a donation or gratuity, in violation of the state constitutional prohibition, in order to effectuate the purposes for which it is authorized to levy taxes. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-128.

Section 20-2-832 possibly ineffective. — Former Code 1933, § 32-1302 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-832) was now ineffective since adoption of the 1945 Constitution which abolished, by provisions of this paragraph, special or allocated funds and required that all funds of the state be paid into the general fund of the state treasury and appropriated therefrom as required by the Constitution, and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Paras. I through V) limited the purposes and the amounts to those therein specified that may be borrowed by the state. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 642 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. II).

Method of funding Real Estate Commission. — The lawful method of distribution of funds to the Real Estate Commission calls for the Secretary of State to exercise the Secretary's discretion in dividing the total appropriation for the Joint Secretary's office among the various examining boards including the Georgia Real Estate Commission. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-93.

Constitutional amendment required for assessment program. — Absent a constitutional amendment, a program to assess testing of equines for equine infectious anemia cannot be established. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 95-18.

Disposition of Funds1. Payable into State Treasury

A state agency is not authorized to collect fees and deposit those fees in its own account, but rather such fees must be paid over in compliance with this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. X, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. IX, Para. I). 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 631. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. II).

Payment into treasury of money recovered for contractual violations as delinquent accounts. — While the constitutional provisions concerning collections and appropriations do not specifically provide that money recovered for contractual violations or delinquent accounts be paid into the treasury, such money must be paid into the state treasury, and not earmarked. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 71-126.

Funds received from delinquent state teachers’ scholarships. — Constitutional provisions require that any money which is collected by State Board of Education from delinquent state teachers’ scholarships must be paid into general fund of state treasury and cannot be used in making future scholarship commitments by the State Board of Education. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 71-126.

Assessments under § 34-9-63. — Assessments made by the State Board of Workers’ Compensation pursuant to authority under former Code 1933, § 114-717 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-9-63) must be paid into the general fund of the state treasury and the operating expenses of the State Board of Workers’ Compensation may be funded only through an appropriation by the General Assembly. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 74-62.

Property sales proceeds regulated by statute and payable into state treasury. — Proceeds of property sales may constitutionally be retained by the agency concerned, because such proceeds are not “taxes,” “fees,” or “assessments.” As a matter of statute, however, most such proceeds must be paid into the state treasury: first, such proceeds would in general constitute “other moneys” within the meaning of Ga. L. 1962, p. 17, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-12-92); and, second, former Code 1933, § 91-804 provided that the proceeds of sales of unserviceable property shall be paid into the treasury. 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-77.

Application fees by the joint secretary, State Examining Boards, which are paid into the state treasury are nonrefundable unless there is express statutory authority to do so. 1975 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 75-69.

2. Retained by Agency

When agencies permitted to retain funds. — If the collection of funds does not depend upon a statutory premise, a statutory command or authorization to collect the funds, then the funds may be retained by the agency concerned. 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-77.

All incoming funds are to be placed in the state treasury, unless a specific reason can be found which justifies their retention by an individual agency. 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-77.

Gifts and grants, whether federal or private, may be retained by an agency recipient as gifts and grants and are not “taxes,” “fees,” or “assessments”; nor is an agency under a legal duty to collect them, although some agencies are by law authorized or required to accept whatever gifts may be made available to them. 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-77.

Revenues received by one agency from another agency need not be deposited in state treasury. — The constitutional and statutory provisions, when they speak of revenues, refer to outside receipts; revenues which are received by one agency from another agency, unlike outside receipts, are already subject to the annual appropriations process; therefore, such revenues need not be deposited into the state treasury to insure that the General Assembly can exercise control over state finances. 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-77.

With respect to character examination fees paid by prospective members of the bar, neither the Constitution nor Ga. L. 1962, p. 17, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. Part 1, Art. 4, Ch. 12, T. 45) requires that such fees be deposited into the state treasury. 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-77.

Other bar examination fees not remitted to state treasury. — Fees, generated by proposed rules of the Supreme Court creating a board to determine fitness of bar applicants and an office of bar admissions (now Board of Bar Examiners), are not to be collected pursuant to any revenue statute and these fees do not have to be remitted to the state treasury. 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U77-10.1.

Disposition of Funds (Cont'd)2. Retained by Agency (Cont'd)

Income generated by judicial branch. — Certain income generated by the judicial branch of government, including dues paid by members of the State Bar of Georgia, fees paid to the office of bar admissions (now Board of Bar Examiners) by applicants for admission to the bar, and fees paid by court reporters to the board of court reporting of the judicial council, may be retained by the judicial branch. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-77.

Funds Department of Offender Rehabilitation (now Department of Corrections) and Department of Human Resources permitted to retain. — As there is no specific statutory premise for collecting room and board charges from probationers, by the Department of Offender Rehabilitation (now Department of Corrections), or for collecting meal money from employees working in group homes operated by the Department of Human Resources, these funds may be retained by the respective departments. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-77.

Funds donated to and accepted by the Department of Public Safety for a designated purpose need not be deposited in the state treasury. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-140.

Company funds to public entity for specific research purpose. — Funds made available to the Surface Mined Land Use Board (now Environmental Protection Division of Department of Natural Resources) by a mining company for specific research need not be paid into the general fund of the state treasury since the moneys involved do not constitute money collected from taxes, fees, and assessments under the authority of revenue statutes of this state. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-29.

Subsequent Injury Trust Fund. — The Subsequent Injury Trust Fund is not subject to the requirement that monies be paid into the general fund of the state treasury. 1993 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 93-28.

Commissions paid state agencies by telephone companies for the privilege of locating pay telephones on state property are not required to be deposited into the state treasury. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 97-26.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Purposes for which the state may tax are listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. III) is the only source of purposes of taxation for which the state may validly delegate to its creatures the power to tax. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Right of state to tax to grant funds to municipalities not delegable. — Though the purposes listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) are capable of delegation, the right of the state to tax in order to grant funds to municipalities pursuant to this paragraph is not capable of delegation to counties or to any other subdivision of the state. *City Council v. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL Legislature has a great deal of latitude in providing the manner, form and procedure for granting of funds to municipalities, including the authority to amend the present law so as to include municipalities incorporated later than 1960. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-409.

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment proposed by Ga. L. 2010, p. 1263, § 1, which would have added Paragraph XII to allow the state to execute multiyear contracts for long-term transportation projects, was defeated at the general election held on November 2, 2010.

Paragraph I. Purposes for which debt may be incurred.

The state may incur:

(a) Public debt without limit to repel invasion, suppress insurrection, and defend the state in time of war.

(b) Public debt to supply a temporary deficit in the state treasury in any fiscal year created by a delay in collecting the taxes of that year. Such debt shall not exceed, in the aggregate, 5 percent of the total revenue receipts, less refunds, of the state treasury in the fiscal year immediately preceding the year in which such debt is incurred. The debt incurred shall be repaid on or before the last day of the fiscal year in which it is incurred out of taxes levied for that fiscal year. No such debt may be incurred in any fiscal year under the provisions of this subparagraph (b) if there is then outstanding unpaid debt from any previous fiscal year which was incurred to supply a temporary deficit in the state treasury.

(c) General obligation debt to acquire, construct, develop, extend, enlarge, or improve land, waters, property, highways, buildings, structures, equipment, or facilities of the state, its agencies, departments, institutions, and of those state authorities which were created and activated prior to November 8, 1960.

(d) General obligation debt to provide educational facilities for county and independent school systems and to provide public library facilities for county and independent school systems, counties, municipalities, and boards of trustees of public libraries or boards of trustees of public library systems, and, when the construction of such educational or library facilities has been completed, the title to such facilities shall be vested in the respective local boards of education, counties, municipalities, or public library boards of trustees for which such facilities were constructed.

(e) General obligation debt in order to make loans to counties, municipal corporations, political subdivisions, local authorities, and other local government entities for water or sewerage facilities or systems or for regional or multijurisdictional solid waste recycling or solid waste facilities or systems. It shall not be necessary for the state or a state authority to hold title to or otherwise be the owner of such facilities or systems. General obligation debt for these purposes may be authorized and incurred for administration and disbursement by a state authority created and activated before, on, or after November 8, 1960.

(f) Guaranteed revenue debt by guaranteeing the payment of revenue obligations issued by an instrumentality of the state if such revenue obligations are issued to finance:

- (1) Toll bridges or toll roads.
- (2) Land public transportation facilities or systems.
- (3) Water facilities or systems.
- (4) Sewage facilities or systems.
- (5) Loans to, and loan programs for, citizens of the state for educational purposes.
- (6) Regional or multijurisdictional solid waste recycling or solid waste facilities or systems. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 7, § 4, Para. 1; Ga. L. 1984, p. 1713, § 1/SR 300; Ga. L. 1986, p. 1612, § 1/HR 363; Ga. L. 1992, p. 3329, §§ 1, 2/HR 732)

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1984, p. 1713, § 1) which revised subparagraph (d) by inserting “and to provide public library facilities...of public library systems,” inserting “or library” preceding “facilities has been completed,” and inserting “counties, municipalities, or...boards of trustees” preceding “for which such facilities,” and deleting “educational” preceding “facilities shall be vested,” was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 6, 1984.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1986, p. 1612, § 1) which redesignated former subparagraph (e) as subparagraph (f) and which added present subparagraph (e) was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 4, 1986.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1992, p. 3329, §§ 1, 2) which revised subparagraphs (e) and (f) to add provisions as to regional or multijurisdictional solid waste recycling or solid waste facilities or systems was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 3, 1992.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I and antecedent provisions are included in the annotations for this paragraph. Current provisions on the same subjects and cases construing them now appear in this paragraph and Paragraphs II through IV of this section.

This paragraph was not violated by Ga. L. 1912, p. 230 for discounting the rentals of the Western and Atlantic Railroad. Wright v. Hardwick, 152 Ga. 302, 109 S.E. 903 (1921) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Proper construction of this paragraph and former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. III). — This paragraph and former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. III), were each in the Constitution of 1945 when it was adopted. They deal with the same subject matter, namely, “finance, taxation & public debt.” They are of equal dignity and to give full force and effect to the will of the people, as thus expressed, they must be construed together, in pari materia. The latter lifts out of the former any inhibition against creation of a debt insofar as creation of a debt is authorized by the latter clause. Any other construction would render one of them meaningless and the Supreme Court will not ascribe to the people an intention to adopt a Constitution containing inconsistent provisions. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953) (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

This paragraph permits the legislature to authorize debt for any purpose that is consistent with the terms of subparagraph (c). Fuller v. State, 232 Ga. 581, 208 S.E.2d 85 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

An authority, being an agent of the state but not the state, is not restricted by state’s debt limitation under this paragraph. Rich v. State, 237 Ga. 291, 227 S.E.2d 761 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Word “debt” means any obligation of the state to pay money or other thing of value, which obligation arises the very moment that it is undertaken, and continues until discharged by payment. Barwick v. Roberts, 188 Ga. 655, 4 S.E.2d 664 (1939).

Warrant does not evidence a debt on the part of the state. It creates no contract. Harrison v. Hardman, 169 Ga. 435, 150 S.E. 542 (1929).

Effect of tendering executive warrant upon state treasury. — An executive warrant upon the state treasury, authorizing payment of money in pursuance of an appropriation made by law, is not a contract nor in the nature of a contract, but is only a license or power, and is revocable so long as the payment which it warranted has not been made. Harrison v. Hardman, 169 Ga. 435, 150 S.E. 542 (1929).

Should a fund fail to materialize, whatever rights and privileges purchasers of warrants may have had, had not their obligations against state been so met, are not absolutely extinguished in all respects, but shall continue to exist or remain in abeyance for benefit of holders of corresponding warrants should the specific fund for their payment fail to materialize. No debt is thus created by or on behalf of the state, but as part of consideration for sale and discount of the warrants. The holders in a given contingency are allowed certain rights which other obligees formerly had against the state which had never been entirely extinguished, but had been preserved for such holders upon a contingency. Harrison v. Hardman, 169 Ga. 435, 150 S.E. 542 (1929).

Instance of debt inhibited and invalid pursuant to state Constitution.

— An agreement between the Commissioner of Agriculture and an individual, whereby the Commissioner, in consideration of an assignment to the Commissioner of a number of leases to lands on which the state farm market is located, promises to pay the assignor, in addition to the consideration expressed in the assignment, $100.00 per month for a period of several years, such promise is a debt inhibited by the Constitution, and cannot be enforced, nor would full performance by the assignor of the agreement impose any legal duty on the state or its officials to comply with such invalid contract. Barwick v. Roberts, 188 Ga. 655, 4 S.E.2d 664 (1939).

Section 32-10-9 does not violate the debt restriction and limitation provision of the state Constitution. — Neither Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32), nor the lease contract which the state highway department (now Department of Transportation) made with the State Bridge Building (now Georgia Highway) Authority under and pursuant to Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626, § 8 (see now O.C.G.A. § 32-10-9) for the use of its facilities or services violates the debt restriction and limitation provision of the Constitution. On their face they do not run counter to the Constitution, and the Supreme Court will not attribute to state lawmakers a purpose to circumvent the provisions of that instrument. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626, § 14 (see now O.C.G.A. § 32-10-30), insofar as it authorized issuance of negotiable revenue bonds, did not offend the constitutional provisions. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Highway Authority's revenue bonds not state obligations or debts.

— While the State Bridge Building (now Georgia Highway) Authority is an instrumentality of the state, it is nevertheless not the state, nor a part of the state, nor an agency of the state. It is a mere creature of the state, having a distinct corporate entity. Its revenue bonds are not obligations or debts of the state, nor a pledge of the credit of the state, but they are payable solely and exclusively from revenue derived from use of its facilities; and the state is not directly, indirectly, or contingently obligated to levy or pledge any form of taxation whatsoever therefor or to make any appropriation for the payment of them, and Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626, § 23 (see now O.C.G.A. § 32-10-39), requires that the bonds, when issued, must contain recitals on their face to this effect. They are first, last, and always a corporate debt of the authority and in no sense a debt of the state. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Ga. L. 1949, p. 1009 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 5, Ch. 3, T. 20), forbids any attempt to obligate the state, pledge the state's faith or credit, or donate anything belonging to the state; therefore, neither the article, lease contract executed thereunder, nor the revenue bonds issued pursuant thereto offend constitutional inhibitions against state debts, donations, or pledging the faith and credit of the state. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952).

An obligation incurred by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia, is not a debt of the state, and therefore is not affected by constitutional limitations upon state indebtedness. State v. Regents of Univ. Sys., 179 Ga. 210, 175 S.E. 567 (1934).

It cannot be said that creation of a debt by the Regents of the University System of Georgia is unconstitutional under this paragraph. Villyard v. Regents of Univ. Sys., 204 Ga. 517, 50 S.E.2d 313 (1948) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Instance of debt contemplated by this paragraph. — Even though the statute establishing state farmers markets provides that fees shall be charged by the markets and used to pay the expenses of establishing and operating them, since the statute does not prohibit other assets of the state from being used in paying such expenses, a debt for an alleged sale of leases of the land on which the market was situated, constituted a debt as contemplated by this paragraph of the state Constitution. Barwick v. Roberts, 188 Ga. 655, 4 S.E.2d 664 (1939) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

unexcepted to, or affirmed on review, is conclusive against the municipality and the citizens of the municipality upon all questions, including the constitutionality of the statute under which the proceedings are had. Cox v. Georgia Educ. Auth., 225 Ga. 542, 170 S.E.2d 240 (1969).

Construction and improvement of water and sewage treatment facilities are activities that the Georgia Development Authority was expressly empowered to undertake by Ga. L. 1983, pp. 1024, 1026 and are not germane to the authority's powers as they existed before November 8, 1960; therefore, the state may not incur general obligation debt for these new purposes. Georgia State Fin. & Inv. Comm'n v. State, 253 Ga. 766, 325 S.E.2d 162 (1985).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions noted under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I and antecedent provisions are included in the annotations for this paragraph. Current provisions on the same subjects and opinions construing them now appear in this paragraph and Paragraphs II through IV of this section.

Section 20-2-832 possibly ineffective. — Former Code 1933, § 32-1302, (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-832) was ineffective since adoption of the 1945 Constitution which abolished, by provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. II), special or allocated funds and required that all funds of the state be paid into the general fund of the state treasury and appropriated therefrom as required by the Constitution, and this paragraph limited the purposes and the amounts to those therein specified that may be borrowed by the state. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 642. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

County board of education authority to expend funds on facility located on property owned by Georgia Education Authority (Schools). — Since a board of education can expend money to construct a facility and then convey that facility to a public authority, a county board of education is constitutionally authorized to expend funds on a facility that will be located on property owned by the Georgia Education Authority (Schools) since the legal and practical effect is no different; the specific authority in any particular situation will be governed by any local law that might exist. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-51.

Limitations on purposes for issuances of general debt. — In absence of constitutional authority, the state cannot issue general obligation debt to acquire, construct, develop, extend, or enlarge property of counties or municipalities of the state. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-51.

The state cannot issue general obligation debt with contemplation that title to the financed facility will be given to the county, municipality, or school district because of the constitutional limitation on the purposes for which general obligation debt can be issued. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-51.

Unemployment compensation. — Payment of unemployment compensation is not a purpose for which public debt may be incurred as set forth in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Paras. I and II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Paras. I and II). 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-35.

Funds of private individuals requiring reimbursement. — The Department of Transportation could not use funds of private individuals to construct a project and agree to reimburse those individuals at a later date. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-27.

Contractual obligation violated Constitution. — It is not legal for the Department of Natural Resources or the Parks and Historic Sites Division to incur a contractual obligation with respect to future maintenance of erosion control structures at historic sites. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-44.

State park expansion funds. — Commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources is authorized to request issuance of general obligation bonds and execute any subsequent contracts to effect state park expansion project in accordance with powers otherwise vested in the department. 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-12.

The state may incur general obligation debt for construction of highways; however, the Department of Transportation is not authorized to incur this debt on behalf of the state because the constitutional amendment gives this power only to the Financing and Investment Commission. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-27.

The Board of Regents cannot contract debts or obligations on behalf of the state in violation of this paragraph of the Constitution. 1948-49 Op.

Att'y Gen. p. 141. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Obligations running on accounts not prohibited. While this paragraph prohibits the state or its agencies from contracting debts except for certain specified purposes, it does not and could not prohibit incurrence of obligations on running account. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 350.

A repurchase agreement transaction can be an authorized investment of Teachers Retirement System, Employees' Retirement System, and Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission so long as the transaction is intended by the parties to be a sale and repurchase of securities on terms under which such securities might normally be sold, the documents supporting the transaction adequately record that intention of the parties, and the securities involved are those in which the state entity is otherwise authorized to invest. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-62.

Imprudent for state agencies to execute multi-year installment purchase agreements. — While it is not apparent on the face of multi-year installment purchase agreements that a state agency is being asked to pledge the credit in an impermissible manner, the totality of the provisions typically contained in such agreements indicate that they could be construed in their essence to constitute a debt; as such a debt is not one of those authorized by the state Constitution under this paragraph, it is imprudent for state agencies to execute agreements which create such obligations. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 267. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Department of Medical Assistance (now Department of Community Health) may not forbear collection of overpayments made to providers. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-89.

Entering into and payment pursuant to enforceable contract for prepayment of professional services is not unlawful. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-29.

Contract to prepay for professional services does not constitute loan of credit. — Prohibition against loaning credit of state does not prevent state department from entering into enforceable contract to prepay for professional services and to make payment according to such contract. By entering into contract to prepay for professional services one does not promise to make a loan but promises to pay in advance in return for a promise by the other party to perform a service. The payment is not a loan but the satisfaction of an obligation for services to be provided. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-29.

Contract clause requiring state agency to indemnify and hold harmless a private corporation violates paragraph. — Indemnify and hold harmless clause in proposed contract, under which clause a state agency would indemnify a private corporation, constitutes both a gratuity and a pledge of state's credit and thus falls within the prohibitions contained in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI) and this paragraph. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-67.

State agency or public official cannot hold federal government harmless for claims against it. — Any attempt by a state agency or public official to hold the federal government harmless for claims against it would be an unconstitutional attempt to pledge the credit of the sovereign State of Georgia and, therefore, ultra vires. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-34.

Paragraph II. State general obligation debt and guaranteed revenue debt; limitations.

(a) As used in this Paragraph and Paragraph III of this section, "annual debt service requirements" means the total principal and interest coming due in any state fiscal year. With regard to any issue of debt incurred wholly or in part on a term basis, "annual debt service requirements" means an amount equal to the total principal and interest payments required to retire such issue in full divided by the number of years from its issue date to its maturity date.

(b) No debt may be incurred under subparagraphs (c), (d), and (e) of Paragraph I of this section or Paragraph V of this section at any time when the highest aggregate annual debt service requirements for the then current year or any subsequent year for outstanding general obligation debt and guaranteed revenue debt, including the proposed debt, and the highest aggregate annual payments for the then current year or any subsequent fiscal year of the state under all contracts then in force to which the provisions of the second paragraph of Article IX,

Section VI, Paragraph I(a) of the Constitution of 1976 are applicable, exceed 10 percent of the total revenue receipts, less refunds of the state treasury in the fiscal year immediately preceding the year in which any such debt is to be incurred.

(c) No debt may be incurred under subparagraphs (c) and (d) of Paragraph I of this section at any time when the term of the debt is in excess of 25 years.

(d) No guaranteed revenue debt may be incurred to finance water or sewage treatment facilities or systems when the highest aggregate annual debt service requirements for the then current year or any subsequent fiscal year of the state for outstanding or proposed guaranteed revenue debt for water facilities or systems or sewage facilities or systems exceed 1 percent of the total revenue receipts less refunds, of the state treasury in the fiscal year immediately preceding the year in which any such debt is to be incurred.

(e) The aggregate amount of guaranteed revenue debt incurred to make loans for educational purposes that may be outstanding at any time shall not exceed $18 million, and the aggregate amount of guaranteed revenue debt incurred to purchase, or to lend or deposit against the security of, loans for educational purposes that may be outstanding at any time shall not exceed $72 million.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I and antecedent provisions are included in the annotations for this paragraph. Current provisions on the same subjects and cases construing them now appear in this paragraph and Paragraphs I, III, and IV of this section.

An authority, being an agent of the state but not the state, is not restricted by state's debt limitation under this paragraph. Rich v. State, 237 Ga. 291, 227 S.E.2d 761 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Section 32-10-9 not violative of debt restriction and limitation provision of state Constitution. — Neither Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32), nor the lease contract which the state highway department (now Department of Transportation) made with the State Bridge Building (now Georgia Highway) Authority under and pursuant to Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626, § 8 (see now O.C.G.A. § 32-10-9) for the use of its facilities or services violates the debt restriction and limitation provision of the Constitution. On their face they do not run counter to the Constitution; and the Supreme Court will not attribute to state lawmakers a purpose to circumvent the provisions of that instrument. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

An obligation incurred by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia, is not a debt of the state, and therefore is not affected by constitutional limitations upon state indebtedness. State v. Regents of Univ. Sys., 179 Ga. 210, 175 S.E. 567 (1934).

It cannot be said that creation of a debt by the Regents of the University System of Georgia is unconstitutional. Villyard v. Regents of Univ. Sys., 204 Ga. 517, 50 S.E.2d 313 (1948).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I and antecedent provisions are included in the annotations for this paragraph. Current provisions on the same subjects and cases construing them now appear in this paragraph and Paragraphs I, III, and IV of this section.

Construction of paragraph. — This paragraph is construed as prohibiting incurring a fiscal liability not to be discharged by taxes levied within the year in which the liability is undertaken. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-103. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II).

"Debt" defined. — Debt, as used in this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I), which forms the basis of the restriction upon public debt, means the incurring of a fiscal liability not to be discharged by taxes levied within the year in which the liability is undertaken.

1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-19 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II).

State contracts in excess of one year are not enforceable. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-8.

As a general rule, a contract which fiscally obligates the state for a period longer than one year is invalid. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-132.

An Area Vocational-Technical School Board may not borrow money to be repaid to the lender over a period of time extending beyond the fiscal year in which the loan was made. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-19 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

A golf-cart lease contract creating state liability for over a year is in violation of this paragraph. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-59. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Paragraph III. State general obligation debt and guaranteed revenue debt; conditions upon issuance; sinking funds and reserve funds.

(a)(1) General obligation debt may not be incurred until legislation is enacted stating the purposes, in general or specific terms, for which such issue of debt is to be incurred, specifying the maximum principal amount of such issue and appropriating an amount at least sufficient to pay the highest annual debt service requirements for such issue. All such appropriations for debt service purposes shall not lapse for any reason and shall continue in effect until the debt for which such appropriation was authorized shall have been incurred, but the General Assembly may repeal any such appropriation at any time prior to the incurring of such debt. The General Assembly shall raise by taxation and appropriate each fiscal year, in addition to the sum necessary to make all payments required under contracts entitled to the protection of the second paragraph of Paragraph I(a), Section VI, Article IX of the Constitution of 1976, such amounts as are necessary to pay debt service requirements in such fiscal year on all general obligation debt.

(2)(A) The General Assembly shall appropriate to a special trust fund to be designated "State of Georgia General Obligation Debt Sinking Fund" such amounts as are necessary to pay annual debt service requirements on all general obligation debt. The sinking fund shall be used solely for the retirement of general obligation debt payable from the fund. If for any reason the monies in the sinking fund are insufficient to make, when due, all payments required with respect to such general obligation debt, the first revenues thereafter received in the general fund of the state shall be set aside by the appropriate state fiscal officer to the extent necessary to cure the deficiency and shall be deposited by the fiscal officer into the sinking fund. The appropriate state fiscal officer may be required to set aside and apply such revenues at the suit of any holder of any general obligation debt incurred under this section.

(B) The obligation to make sinking fund deposits as provided in subparagraph (2)(A) shall be subordinate to the obligation imposed upon the fiscal officers of the state pursuant to the provisions of the second paragraph of Paragraph I(a) of Section VI of Article IX of the Constitution of 1976.

(b)(1) Guaranteed revenue debt may not be incurred until legislation has been enacted authorizing the guarantee of the specific issue of revenue obligations then proposed, reciting that the General Assembly has determined such obligations will be self-liquidating over the life of the issue (which determination shall be conclusive), specifying the maximum principal amount of such issue and appropriating an amount at least equal to the highest annual debt service requirements for such issue.

(2)(A) Each appropriation made for the purposes of subparagraph (b)(1) shall be paid upon the issuance of said obligations into a special trust fund to be designated “State of Georgia Guaranteed Revenue Debt Common Reserve Fund” to be held together with all other sums similarly appropriated as a common reserve for any payments which may be required by virtue of any guarantee entered into in connection with any issue of guaranteed revenue obligations. No appropriations for the benefit of guaranteed revenue debt shall lapse unless repealed prior to the payment of the appropriation into the common reserve fund.

(B) If any payments are required to be made from the common reserve fund to meet debt service requirements on guaranteed revenue obligations by virtue of an insufficiency of revenues, the amount necessary to cure the deficiency shall be paid from the common reserve fund by the appropriate state fiscal officer. Upon any such payment, the common reserve fund shall be reimbursed from the general funds of the state within ten days following the commencement of any fiscal year of the state for any amounts so paid; provided, however, the obligation to make any such reimbursements shall be subordinate to the obligation imposed upon the fiscal officers of the state pursuant to the second paragraph of Paragraph I(a) of Section VI, Article IX of the Constitution of 1976 and shall also be subordinate to the obligation to make sinking fund deposits for the benefit of general obligation debt. The appropriate state fiscal officer may be required to apply such funds as provided in this subparagraph (b)(2)(B) at the suit of any holder of any such guaranteed revenue obligations.

(C) The amount to the credit of the common reserve fund shall at all times be at least equal to the aggregate highest annual debt service requirements on all outstanding guaranteed revenue obligations entitled to the benefit of the fund. If at the end of any fiscal year of the state the fund is in excess of the required amount, the appropriate state fiscal officer, as designated by law, shall transfer the excess amount to the general funds of the state free of said trust.

(c) The funds in the general obligation debt sinking fund and the guaranteed revenue debt common reserve fund shall be as fully invested as is practicable, consistent with the requirements to make current principal and interest payments. Any such investments shall be restricted to obligations constituting direct and general obligations of the United States government or obligations unconditionally guaranteed as to the payment of principal and interest by the United States government, maturing no longer than 12 months from date of purchase.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Under this paragraph, the state becomes liable upon a lease contract with an authority; this is an enforceable obligation of the state. Paragraph IV. Certain contracts prohibited.

The state, and all state institutions, departments and agencies of the state are prohibited from entering into any contract, except contracts pertaining to guaranteed revenue debt, with any public agency, public corporation, authority, or similar entity if such contract is intended to constitute security for bonds or other obligations issued by any such public agency, public corporation, or authority and, in the event any contract between the state, or any state institution, department or agency of the state and any public agency, public corporation, authority or similar entity, or any revenues from any such contract, is pledged or assigned as security for the repayment of bonds or other obligations, then and in either such event, the appropriation or expenditure of any funds of the state for the payment of obligations under any such contract shall likewise be prohibited.

Garbage collection contract valid. — There was no merit in a resident's arguments that the provision in a contract in which a county agreed to reimburse a private enterprise for a percentage of uncollected fees for garbage collection services prior to the county's recovery of those fees from residents by means provided by O.C.G.A. § 12-8-39.3 violated Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. IV, prohibiting the state from entering contracts with any public agency, public corporation, authority, or similar entity as security for bonds or other obligations. *Strykr v. Paragraph V. Refunding of debt.

The state may incur general obligation debt or guaranteed revenue debt to fund or refund any such debt or to fund or refund any obligations issued upon the security of contracts to which the provisions of the second paragraph of Paragraph I(a), Section VI, Article IX of the Constitution of 1976 are applicable. The issuance of any such debt for the purposes of said funding or refunding shall be subject to the 10 percent limitation in Paragraph II(b) of this section to the same extent as debt incurred under Paragraph I of this section; provided, however, in making such computation the annual debt service requirements and annual contract payments remaining on the debt or obligations being funded or refunded shall not be taken into account. The issuance of such debt may be accomplished by resolution of the Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission without any action on the part of the General Assembly and any appropriation made or required to be made with respect to the debt or obligation being funded or refunded shall immediately attach and inure to the benefit of the obligations to be issued in connection with such funding or refunding. Debt incurred in connection with any such funding or refunding shall be the same as that originally authorized by the General Assembly, except that general obligation debt may be incurred to fund or refund obligations issued upon the security of contracts to which the provisions of the second paragraph of Paragraph I(a), Section VI, Article IX of the Constitution of 1976 are applicable and the continuing appropriations required to be made under this Constitution shall immediately attach and inure to the benefit of the obligation to be issued in connection with such funding or refunding with the same force and effect as though said obligations so funded or refunded had originally been issued as a general obligation debt authorized hereunder. The term of a funding or refunding issue pursuant to this Paragraph shall not extend beyond the term of the original debt or obligation and the total interest on the funding or refunding issue shall not exceed the total interest to be paid on such original debt or obligation. The principal amount of any debt issued in connection with such funding or refunding may exceed the principal amount being funded or refunded to the extent necessary to provide for the payment of any premium thereby incurred.

Paragraph VI. Faith and credit of state pledged debt may be validated.

The full faith, credit, and taxing power of the state are hereby pledged to the payment of all public debt incurred under this article and all such debt and the interest on the debt shall be exempt from taxation. Such debt may be validated by judicial proceedings in the manner provided by law. Such validation shall be incontestable and conclusive.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Purpose of paragraph. — The purpose of this paragraph is to provide that every valid bond of the state should be paid, whether the state was liable thereon as principal or as endorser. Park v. Candler, 113 Ga. 647, 39 S.E. 89 (1901) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VI).

The debt of an authority or agency of the state does not obligate the state or pledge credit of the state as is required to be made explicit by the authority on the face of the bonds it issues. Rich v. State, 237 Ga. 291, 227 S.E.2d 761 (1976).

Revenue bonds of authority not state obligations. — While the State Bridge Building (now Georgia Highway) Authority is an instrumentality of the state, it is nevertheless not the state, nor a part of the state, nor an agency of the state. It is a mere creature of the state; a distinct corporate entity. Its revenue bonds are not obligations or debts of the state, nor a pledge of the credit of the state, but they are payable solely and exclusively from revenue derived from a use of its facilities; and the state is not directly, indirectly, or contingently obligated to levy or pledge any form of taxation whatsoever therefor or to make any appropriation for the payment of them, and Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626, § 23 (see now O.C.G.A. § 32-10-39) required that the bonds, when issued, must contain recitals on their face to this effect. They are first, last, and always a corporate debt of the authority and in no sense a debt of the state. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32), insofar as it authorized the issuance of negotiable revenue bonds, did not offend the constitutional provisions. McLucas v.

State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Ga. L. 1949, p. 1009 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 5, Ch. 3, T. 20), forbid any attempt to obligate the state, pledge the state's faith or credit or donate anything belonging to the state; therefore, neither the article, lease contract executed thereunder, nor the revenue bonds issued pursuant thereto offend constitutional inhibitions against state debts, donations, or pledging the faith and credit of the state. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952).

An obligation incurred by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia is not a debt of the state and, therefore, is not affected by constitutional limitations upon state indebtedness. State v. Regents of Univ. Sys., 179 Ga. 210, 175 S.E. 567 (1934).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Unemployment compensation. — Payment of unemployment compensation is not a purpose for which public debt may be incurred as set forth in Ga. Const.

1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Paras. I and II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Paras. I and II). 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-35.

Paragraph VII. Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission; duties.

(a) There shall be a Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission. The commission shall consist of the Governor, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the State Auditor, the Attorney General, the director, Fiscal Division, Department of Administrative Services, or such other officer as may be designated by law, and the Commissioner of Agriculture. The commission shall be responsible for the issuance of all public debt and for the proper application, as provided by law, of the proceeds of such debt to the purposes for which it is incurred; provided, however, the proceeds from guaranteed revenue obligations shall be paid to the issuer thereof and such proceeds and the application thereof shall be the responsibility of such issuer. Debt to be incurred at the same time for more than one purpose may be combined in one issue without stating the purpose separately but the proceeds thereof must be allocated, disbursed and used solely in accordance with the original purpose and without exceeding the principal amount authorized for each purpose set forth in the authorization of the General Assembly and to the extent not so used shall be used to purchase and retire public debt. The commission shall be responsible for the investment of all proceeds to be administered by it and, as provided by law, the income earned on any such investments may be used to pay operating expenses of the commission or placed in a common debt retirement fund and used to purchase and retire any public debt, or any bonds or obligations issued by any public agency, public corporation or authority which are secured by a contract to which the provisions of the second paragraph of Paragraph I(a) of Section VI, Article IX of the Constitution of 1976 are applicable. The commission shall have such additional responsibilities, powers, and duties as are provided by law.

(b) Notwithstanding subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, proceeds from general obligation debt issued for making loans to local government entities for water or sewerage facilities or systems or for regional or multijurisdictional solid waste recycling or solid waste facilities or systems as provided in Paragraph I(e) of this section shall be paid or transferred to and administered and invested by the unit of state government or state authority made responsible by law for such activities, and the proceeds and investment earnings thereof shall be applied and disbursed by such unit or authority. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 7, § 4, Para. 7; Ga. L. 1986, p. 1612, § 2/HR 363; Ga. L. 1992, p. 3329, § 3/HR 732.)

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1988, p. 2116, § 1) which would have revised subparagraph (a) to remove the Attorney General from the Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission was defeated at the general election on November 8, 1988.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1992, p. 3329, § 3) which revised subparagraph (b) to add provisions as to regional or multijurisdictional solid waste recycling or solid waste facilities or systems was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 3, 1992.

This paragraph was not violated by Ga. L. 1921, p. 230, for discounting the rentals of the W. & A. Railroad. Wright v. Hardwick, 152 Ga. 302, 109 S.E. 903 (1921) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VII).

Procedure of commission to incur debt obligating state. — Under this constitutional method of incurring state debt, if the legislature authorizes the Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission to incur debt in a specified amount for a specified purpose and makes the specified appropriation to the "State of Georgia General Obligation Debt Sinking Fund," then the commission created by the Constitution can resolve to incur the authorized debt, have it procedurally validated, deliver evidences of the state debt to the lenders, and receive the proceeds from the lenders; and once the commission created by the Constitution receives the proceeds of the debt incurred from the lenders, then the commission itself is responsible for "the proper application of the proceeds of such debt to the purposes for which it is incurred." Fuller v. State, 232 Ga. 581, 208 S.E.2d 85 (1974).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Borrowing for unemployment compensation fund. — There does not appear to be any basis in the Constitution or the Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission Act which would authorize the Employment Security Agency, Georgia Department of Labor to borrow or obtain advances from the federal unemployment account in the unemployment trust fund for payment of unemployment compensation. 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-35.

Paragraph VIII. State aid forbidden.

Except as provided in this Constitution, the credit of the state shall not be pledged or loaned to any individual, company, corporation, or association. The state shall not become a joint owner or stockholder in or with any individual, company, association, or corporation.

Art. 5, Ch. 3, T. 20), forbids any attempt to obligate the state, pledge the state's faith or credit or donate anything belonging to the state; therefore, neither the article, lease contract executed thereunder, nor the revenue bonds issued pursuant thereto offend constitutional inhibitions against state debts, donations or pledging the faith and credit of the state. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952).

Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626 (see Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32), insofar as it authorized issuance of negotiable revenue bonds did not offend constitutional provisions. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Its revenue bonds are not obligations or debts of the state, nor a pledge of the credit of the state, but they are payable solely and exclusively from revenue derived from a Long term contract between municipality and corporation not unconstitutional. — A contract between a municipality and another corporation for a lease for a term of 35 years of land owned by the municipality, in consideration of care of the poor of the city by the lessee to the extent of supplying specified medical and surgical treatment in a clinic or hospital existing on such land, is not unlawful as violating any of the provisions of the Constitution. *Aven v. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Proposed acquisition of game and fish areas by the state for custody in the Department of Natural Resources, in which sellers reserve timber rights for a limited time, will not violate the constitutional prohibition against the state becoming a joint owner. 1989 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 89-16.

Former Code 1933, § 100-101 et seq. (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 17, T. 50) did not pledge the credit of the state in violation of the prohibition contained in this paragraph of the Constitution. 1948-49 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 435 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VIII).

The state may not participate in a cooperative, since it would in effect be pledging the aid of the state to a private company. 1954-56 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 635 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VIII).

The Department of Industry and Trade would not violate this paragraph by staffing a welcome station constructed by private funds. 1960-61 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 446.

When fee simple title required. — The State of Georgia may not accept a deed conveying anything less than fee simple title where it is contemplated that state funds will be expended in connection with use and enjoyment of the property; however, one exception to the above rule has been where the improvements, though considered “permanent” in the sense that under general principles of law they would become a part of the realty, were of such a nature as to be easily removable without material damage thereto and the deed or other instrument of conveyance contained a clause giving the state the right to remove these improvements either before or within a reasonable time after abandonment by the state. 1967 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 67-226.

Unconstitutional conveyance. — Property conveyed to the state containing a reversionary interest in the grantor would, after being improved with state funds or by the labors of state personnel, be in violation of this paragraph. 1960-61 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 384. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VIII).

Medicaid agreements must limit financial liability. — Medicaid provider agreements, or any arrangement through which Department of Human Resources reimburses medicaid providers, must limit potential financial liabilities of the state so as to insure that such liabilities cannot exceed the unobligated funds appropriated for the fiscal year in which the agreements are executed. 1975 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 75-88; 1978 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 267.

Effect of federally financed program providing state funded school resources to public and private school. — So long as Title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, 20 U.S.C. §§ 2881-2922, is wholly financed by the federal government and no state matching funds are involved, the State Board of Education may lawfully administer a state plan adopted under Title II of the act even though it contemplates providing school library resources, textbooks, and other printed instructional materials for use of students and teachers in private as well as public schools. 1965-66 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 65-4.

The use of convict labor on private property is permissible where the sole benefit flows to the state. 1969 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 69-158.

The State Highway Department (now Department of Transportation) can contract with a private property owner to use prison labor or state maintenance forces to remove and reset fences upon the private property which is to be used as a right of way since the utilization of this prison labor is to benefit the state; the department cannot guarantee to a county that it will perform these acts or expend this money if a county in turn entered into such an agreement with the private landowner which guaranteed to the private landowner that the state would perform such acts. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-158.

The (State) Forestry Commission may not legally assist a private corporation in the construction of a dam on property belonging to the latter, notwithstanding the fact that the state would receive considerable benefit therefrom. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 95.

Sections 45-7-25 through 45-7-28. — The use of public funds for the purposes authorized under Ga. L. 1973, p. 842, §§ 1-4 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 45-7-25 through 45-7-28) did not violate Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII(1) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI), or this paragraph. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-87. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VIII).

The procedures authorized by Ga. L. 1973, p. 842, §§ 1-4 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 45-7-25 through 45-7-28) did not constitute either a gratuity or a loan to an employee; payments to an employee to compensate the employee for expenses to be incurred in rendering services to the state clearly do not constitute a gratuity where the employee is accountable for the employee's failure to employ the funds for that purpose; nor do such payments constitute a loan simply because there is a requirement that the employee account for such funds. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-87.

Board donation to professional council unauthorized. — The making of a donation by the State Board of Engineers (see State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors) to the Engineers' Council for Professional Development would be an illegal and unwarranted expenditure of state funds. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 491.

Expenditure of state funds unauthorized. — The Department of Natural Resources is without authority to expend funds to be used in the construction of a fence which, upon completion, will be jointly owned by the state and a private individual. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 100.

The Board of Regents cannot pledge the credit or property of the state to any individual, company, corporation, or association, nor shall the state "become a joint owner or stockholder in or with, any individual, company, association or corporation," in violation of this paragraph of the state Constitution. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 141 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VIII).

Sponsorship agreements between the Georgia Tech Athletic Association and MacDonald's Corporation in which MacDonald's permanently acquires the preeminent right to associate its name and reputation commercially with the property, goodwill, and programs of the state violates the constitution. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 95-9.

Paragraph IX. Construction.

Paragraphs I through VIII of this section are for the purpose of providing an effective method of financing the state's needs and their provisions and any law now or hereafter enacted by the General Assembly in furtherance of their provisions shall be liberally construed to effect such purpose. Insofar as any such provisions or any such law may be inconsistent with any other provisions of this Constitution or of any other law, the provisions of such Paragraphs and laws enacted in furtherance of such Paragraphs shall be controlling; provided, however, the provisions of such Paragraphs shall not be so broadly construed as to cause the same to be unconstitutional and in connection with any such construction such Paragraphs shall be deemed to contain such implied limitations as shall be required to accomplish the foregoing.

Paragraph X. Assumption of debts forbidden; exceptions.

The state shall not assume the debt, or any part thereof, of any county, municipality, or other political subdivision of the state, unless such debt be contracted to enable the state to repel invasion, suppress civil disorders or insurrection, or defend itself in time of war.

1976 Constitution. — Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. VI.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Ga. L. 1919, p. 242 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 1, Ch. 2, T. 32), creating the Highway Commission (now Commissioner of Transportation), does not violate this paragraph. Faver v. Mayor of Washington, 159 Ga. 568, 126 S.E. 464 (1925) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. X).

Ga. L. 1949, p. 1009 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 5, Ch. 3, T. 20), forbids any attempt to obligate the state, pledge the state's faith or credit or donate anything belonging to the state; therefore, neither the article, lease contract executed thereunder, nor the revenue bonds issued pursuant thereto offend constitutional inhibitions against state debts, donations, or pledging the faith and credit of the state. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952).

Bonds issued by Georgia Highway Authority not violative of Constitution. — There is no merit in the contention that the bonds which may be issued under and pursuant to Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. Sess., p. 626 (see now O.C.G.A. Part 1, Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32), create an obligation against the state in violation of the provisions of the Constitution of this state, which declares that the state shall not assume the debt, nor any part thereof, of any county, municipal corporation, or political subdivision of the state, unless such debt is contracted to enable the state to repel invasion, suppress insurrection, or defend itself in time of war. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Costs and attorney's fees for public defender. — Because appointment of counsel to represent a defendant in a death penalty case occurred before its effective date, the application of former O.C.G.A. § 17-12-127(b) regarding payment of costs and attorney's fees by the Georgia Public Defender Standards Council did not violate the prohibition on the state's assumption of prior debts as set forth in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. X. Ga. Pub. Defender Stds. Council v. State, 285 Ga. 169, 675 S.E.2d 25 (2009).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Constitutionality of Art. 4, Ch. 3, T. 20. — Ga. L. 1958, p. 47 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 4, Ch. 3, T. 20), did not violate any of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. I, Para. I, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. I, Para. I, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI), or this paragraph. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 100. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. X).

Transfer of leave time constitutes assumption of debt. — No leave accrued by a county employee under a county personnel system can be transferred when the employee becomes a state employee since assumption of such leave by the state would be a gratuity prohibited by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI and would violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. X, which prohibits the assumption of any debt owed by the county. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-38.

Paragraph XII. Multiyear contracts for energy efficiency or conservation improvement.

The General Assembly may by general law authorize state governmental entities to incur debt for the purpose of entering into multiyear contracts for governmental energy efficiency or conservation improvement projects in which payments are guaranteed over the term of the contract by vendors based on the realization of specified savings or revenue gains attributable solely to the improvements; provided, however, that any such contract shall not exceed ten years unless otherwise provided by general law. Paragraph XIII. Multiyear rental agreements.

The General Assembly may by general law authorize the State Properties Commission, the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia, and the Georgia Department of Labor to enter into rental agreements for the possession and use of real property without obligating present funds for the full amount of obligation the state may bear under the full term of any such rental agreement. Any such agreement shall provide for the termination of the agreement in the event of insufficient funds. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 7, § 4, Para. 13, approved by Ga. L. 2012, p. 1363, § 1/SR 84.)

Paragraph I. Public education; free public education prior to college or postsecondary level; support by taxation.

The provision of an adequate public education for the citizens shall be a primary obligation of the State of Georgia. Public education for the citizens prior to the college or postsecondary level shall be free and shall be provided for by taxation, and the General Assembly may by general law provide for the establishment of education policies for such public education. The expense of other public education shall be provided for in such manner and in such amount as may be provided by law. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 8, § 1, Para. 1; Ga. L. 2012, p. 1364, § 1/HR 1162.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Immunity of school district. — School district was not an arm of the state for purposes of federal immunity, even though the district carried out the state’s constitutional duty to provide public education. Lightfoot v. Henry County Sch. Dist., 771 F.3d 764 (11th Cir. 2014).

System of financing public education is not violative of state equal protection as it bears a rational relationship to legitimate state purposes. McDaniel v. Thomas, 248 Ga. 632, 285 S.E.2d 156 (1981).

Paragraph neither restricts districts from improving opportunities nor requires state to equalize opportunities between districts. — “Adequate education” provisions of Constitution do not restrict local school districts from doing what they can to improve educational opportunities within district, nor do they require the state to equalize educational opportunities between districts. McDaniel v. Thomas, 248 Ga. 632, 285 S.E.2d 156 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Time period tuition-free education guaranteed. — Although the right to a free education is guaranteed by the Constitution of the State of Georgia, this right is presently limited to 180 days of tuition-free education. Crim v. McWhorter, 242 Ga. 863, 252 S.E.2d 421 (1979), commented on in 31 Mercer L. Rev. 341.

There is no constitutional right to attend school for summer quarter. Therefore, the denial of attendance at summer school to students who do not pay a tuition or students who reside in school districts which choose not to conduct summer school sessions is not a denial of equal protection under this paragraph. Crim v. McWhorter, 242 Ga. 863, 252 S.E.2d 421 (1979), commented on in 31 Mercer L. Rev. 341.

A common school department in a private school is subject to the laws governing common schools. Wilson v. Stanford, 133 Ga. 483, 66 S.E. 258 (1909).

High schools included. — The state system of education provided for in this paragraph of the Constitution embraces high schools operated by funds whether derived from taxation or otherwise; and no matriculation fee can be charged for children within the school age. Brinson v. Jackson, 168 Ga. 353, 148 S.E. 96 (1929) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Acceptance of state funds estops school from excluding children in district. — A consolidated public school or high school established and maintained in a consolidated school district in part by state funds is a common school of this state, admission to which must be free. The trustees (school board) by accepting the benefits of such funds are estopped from denying that this school is subject to the constitutional provision making the common schools free to the children of the state residing in the district. Wilson v. Stanford, 133 Ga. 483, 66 S.E. 258 (1909); Brinson v. Jackson, 168 Ga. 353, 148 S.E. 96 (1929).

Discrimination based on payment of matriculation fees prohibited. — A public school which discriminates between children of parents who pay matriculation fees and children of parents who do not pay such fees violates this provision of the Constitution that the public schools shall be free to all children of this state. Moore v. Brinson, 170 Ga. 680, 154 S.E. 141 (1930) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. I, Para. I).

A child residing in school district cannot be charged a fee for matriculation. Mayor of Gainesville v. Simmons, 96 Ga. 477, 23 S.E. 508 (1895); Mayor of Gainesville v. Simmons, 99 Ga. 400, 27 S.E. 710 (1896); Brewer v. Ray, 149 Ga. 596, 101 S.E. 667 (1919); Moore v. Brinson, 170 Ga. 680, 154 S.E. 141 (1930).

The purpose for which the funds are to be used is immaterial. Wilson v. Stanford, 133 Ga. 483, 66 S.E. 258 (1909).

It is doubtful if a matriculation fee can be imposed before entrance in a high school. Brewer v. Ray, 149 Ga. 596, 101 S.E. 667 (1919).

Deducting funds for unfunded pension expenses from charter schools. — Pursuant to the plain language of O.C.G.A. § 20-2-2068.1(c), a school system and school board had no authority or discretion to deduct the system's unfunded pension expense of $ 38.6 million from their calculation of local revenue to be distributed to start-up charter schools; the start-up charter schools were entitled to mandamus relief. Atlanta Indep. Sch. Sys. v. Atlanta Neighborhood Charter Sch., 293 Ga. 629, 748 S.E.2d 884 (2013).

These rules do not apply to nonresidents. Irvin v. Gregory, 86 Ga. 605, 13 S.E. 120 (1891).

Having extended to all children in Georgia the right to an education, the state cannot arbitrarily withdraw that right. Wells v. Banks, 153 Ga. App. 581, 266 S.E.2d 270 (1980).

Interscholastic sports not essential to curriculum. — Although an important part of a school's program, interscholastic sports are extracurricular and not essential to the prescribed curriculum which must be made available to all of Georgia's children. Smith v. Crim, 240 Ga. 390, 240 S.E.2d 884 (1977).

Those choosing to resort to the educational institutions maintained with funds of the state are subject to the commands of the state and the Board of Education of a city is a governmental agency, and those wishing to avail themselves of the free education provided by the public schools of that city are amenable to the reasonable commands of its supervising body, the City Board of Education. Leoles v. Landers, 184 Ga. 580, 192 S.E. 218, appeal dismissed, 302 U.S. 656, 58 S. Ct. 364, 82 L. Ed. 507 (1937).

The salute of the United States flag by a pupil "is by no stretch of the imagination a religious rite." It is a gesture of patriotism, signifying respect for the American government and its institutions and ideals, and where a pupil of one of the schools of the public school system of a city absolutely and continuously refuses to salute the United States flag, the privilege extended to such child of free education afforded by such school may be withdrawn and the child expelled from school. Leoles v. Landers, 184 Ga. 580, 192 S.E. 218, appeal dismissed, 302 U.S. 656, 58 S. Ct. 364, 82 L. Ed. 507 (1937).

Refusal to salute flag. — Requirement of school authorities that all pupils shall salute the flag of the United States, and their action in expelling from school a pupil who refuses to salute the flag, violates no rights secured to the child by the Constitution of the United States or of the State of Georgia, even though the child is a member of a religious sect calling themselves "Jehovah's Witnesses," who deem it a sin to salute the United States flag, in that such act constitutes a violation of one of the precepts of their religion forbidding "them to worship any image, emblem, person, or thing, save and except Almighty God." Leoles v. Landers, 184 Ga. 580, 192 S.E. 218, appeal dismissed, 302 U.S. 656, 58 S. Ct. 364, 82 L. Ed. 507 (1937).

Permanent expulsion of a student for disciplinary reasons was not contrary to law since the constitutional right to free public education may be limited and the applicable statute, O.C.G.A. § 20-2-751, does not prohibit permanent expulsion; further, such expulsion does not conflict with or violate O.C.G.A. § 20-2-690.1, the compulsory attendance law. D.B. v. Clarke County Bd. of Educ., 220 Ga. App. 330, 469 S.E.2d 438 (1996).

State is not strictly liable for alleged unlawful segregation activities by local schools. However, it has continuing authority and obligation to insure that local education agencies have completely eliminated all vestiges of the dual system and have not adopted practices that will cause racial separation. Georgia State Conference v. Georgia, 570 F. Supp. 314 (S.D. Ga. 1983).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Students not required to pay fee for course in public schools offered by regulatory board. — To permit a regulatory board, such as the State Board of Cosmetology, created by Ga. L. 1963, p. 45, §§ 1 and 2, Ch. 10, T. 43, to administer a course of study in the public school system, to impose a registration fee upon a public school and a license fee upon teachers therein and to require a registration fee from students taking a course of study in the public schools, would be in violation of this paragraph, former Code 1933, § 32-403 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-11 and former 20-2-671 (repealed)); therefore, public schools offering courses in cosmetology are not required to pay the school registration fee; the teachers license fee, and students in such schools taking cosmetology courses are not required to pay the students registration fee required by Ga. L. 1963, p. 45. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 250 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. I, Para. I).

A charge for matriculation cannot be imposed as a condition precedent to admission of children to a public school which forms a part of the general school system of children living in the territory of the school and otherwise qualified; however, the right of school authorities to charge tuition for children who are nonresidents of the territory where the school is located has never been and cannot be seriously doubted. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 137.

No matriculation fee for military or R.O.T.C. training. — The State Board of Education has no specific regulation concerning military or R.O.T.C. training; however, the local board of education has a discretionary authority to include such training in its curriculum but no state educational funds would come into the program. Should the local board of education see fit to include military or R.O.T.C. training as a part of its curriculum, no tuition or matriculation fee could be charged by the local school authorities as a condition precedent to a pupil enrolling in a course in military or R.O.T.C. training. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 108.

Provision of free tuition has not been extended to include nonresidents of the state or school area when such nonresidents enter Georgia schools even where the nonresident pays school property taxes on Georgia property. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 140.

This paragraph neither states nor implies that no educational services may be provided to noncitizens in Georgia public schools, with tuition charged therefor. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-152 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. I, Para. I).

Attendance outside of district. — The school laws of the State of Georgia do not prohibit a child from receiving an education in a school system other than that in which the child resides; however, if a child desires to enter a school in any other territory, it is permissible to charge such child tuition for the privilege. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 74-70.

A board of education may charge nonresident students tuition. 1963-65 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 737.

Application procedure for participation in summer program need not consider difficulty of private school students to participate. — The Superintendent is authorized to select screening procedures for selection for participation in a summer educational program without regard as to whether or not the application of procedures, at least where reasonable from an educational or administrative viewpoint, makes it difficult or even impossible for students who have enrolled in a private or parochial school during the prior school year to participate. 1963-65 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 430.

Tuition for school enrichment courses. — Once the Quality Basic Education Act, O.C.G.A. § 20-2-130 et seq., becomes effective, a local school system may offer driver’s education and other enrichment courses during the regular school day and may charge tuition or fees for the provision of the courses. 1985 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 85-35.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Paragraph

I. State Board of Education.

Paragraph I. State Board of Education.

(a) There shall be a State Board of Education which shall consist of one member from each congressional district in the state appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The Governor shall not be a member of said board. The ten members in office on June 30, 1983, shall serve out the remainder of their respective terms. As each term of office expires, the Governor shall appoint a successor as herein provided. The terms of office of all members appointed after the effective date of this Constitution shall be for seven years. Members shall serve until their successors are appointed and qualified. In the event of a vacancy on the board by death, resignation, removal, or any reason other than expiration of a member's term, the Governor shall fill such vacancy; and the person so appointed shall serve until confirmed by the Senate and, upon confirmation, shall serve for the unexpired term of office.

(b) The State Board of Education shall have such powers and duties as provided by law.

(c) The State Board of Education may accept bequests, donations, grants, and transfers of land, buildings, and other property for the use of the state educational system.

(d) The qualifications, compensation, and removal from office of the members of the board of education shall be as provided by law.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

All suits by, or against, a county shall be in the name thereof. Since the Constitution of 1877, all suits by or against a county must be in the name of a county. Commissioners of Rds. & Revenue v. Howard, 59 Ga. App. 451, 1 S.E.2d 222 (1939).

State is not strictly liable for alleged unlawful segregation activities by local schools. However, it has continuing authority and an obligation to insure that local education agencies have

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Terms "school purpose" and "educational purpose" construed. — The term "school purpose" is more limited in meaning, nature, and scope than the term "educational purpose," and that although the terms are similar to the extent that the former is certainly included within the latter, the two terms themselves are not, in all their ramifications, sufficiently alike in meaning and significance as to be termed synonymous with each other; this is particularly true where such terms are used in conjunction with creation of charitable trusts. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 157.

Authority of Superintendent of Schools in employment and dismissal of department's employees. — The Superintendent of Schools has no authority in law to employ or dismiss employees of the Department of Education but the Superintendent has the authority and the duty to recommend employment and dismissal from employment of employees of the department to the State Board of Education; employees of the department are employed and dismissed by the State Board of Education, but only on the recommendation of the Superintendent; the state board may not concur with recommendations made by the Superintendent but the board cannot employ or dismiss employees of the department without a recommendation to such effect by the State Superintendent of Schools. 1962 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 177.

“Professional” construed. — The word “professional” within the context of this paragraph and former Code 1933, § 32-401 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-4) refers to educational, rather than to legal capacity. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U71-124 (decided under former § 2-6501; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. I, Para. I)

Instance of unwarranted disqualification from appointment to board. —

Receipt by an attorney at law under a legal partnership agreement of a prorated share of a fee for legal services furnished by the attorney’s partner to a local board of education does not disqualify the attorney from appointment to the state board of education under this paragraph or under § 20-2-4. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U71-124 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. II, Para. I).

STATE SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

Paragraph

I. State School Superintendent.

Paragraph I. State School Superintendent.

There shall be a State School Superintendent, who shall be the executive officer of the State Board of Education, elected at the same time and in the same manner and for the same term as that of the Governor. The State School Superintendent shall have such qualifications and shall be paid such compensation as may be fixed by law. SECTION IV.BOARD OF REGENTS*Paragraph

- I. University System of Georgia; board of regents.

Paragraph I. University System of Georgia; board of regents.

(a) There shall be a Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia which shall consist of one member from each congressional district in the state and five additional members from the state at large, appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The Governor shall not be a member of said board. The members in office on June 30, 1983, shall serve out the remainder of their respective terms. As each term of office expires, the Governor shall appoint a successor as herein provided. All such terms of members shall be for seven years. Members shall serve until their successors are appointed and qualified. In the event of a vacancy on the board by death, resignation, removal, or any reason other than the expiration of a member's term, the Governor shall fill such vacancy; and the person so appointed shall serve until confirmed by the Senate and, upon confirmation, shall serve for the unexpired term of office.

(b) The board of regents shall have the exclusive authority to create new public colleges, junior colleges, and universities in the State of Georgia, subject to approval by majority vote in the House of Representatives and the Senate. Such vote shall not be required to change the status of a college, institution or university existing on the effective date of this Constitution. The government, control, and management of the University System of Georgia and all of the institutions in said system shall be vested in the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia.

(c) All appropriations made for the use of any or all institutions in the university system shall be paid to the board of regents in a lump sum, with the power and authority in said board to allocate and distribute the same among the institutions under its control in such way and manner and in such amounts as will further an efficient and economical administration of the university system.

(d) The board of regents may hold, purchase, lease, sell, convey, or otherwise dispose of public property, execute conveyances thereon, and utilize the proceeds arising therefrom; may exercise the power of eminent domain in the manner provided by law; and shall have such other powers and duties as provided by law.

(e) The board of regents may accept bequests, donations, grants, and transfers of land, buildings, and other property for the use of the University System of Georgia.

(f) The qualifications, compensation, and removal from office of the members of the board of regents shall be as provided by law.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

The Board of Regents is an agency of the state with sovereign immunity from tort liability. It performs a governmental function, i.e., the education of its citizens, and is supported by state funds. Azizi v. Board of Regents, 132 Ga. App. 384, 208 S.E.2d 153 (1974), cert. dismissed, 233 Ga. 487, 212 S.E.2d 627 (1975).

Lower courts properly dismissed the foreign college students' declaratory judgment action seeking in-state tuition because the suit against the University System of Georgia's Board of Regents was barred by sovereign immunity and waiver did not apply. Olvera v. Univ. Sys. of Georgia's Bd. of Regents, 298 Ga. 425, 782 S.E.2d 436 (2016).

O.C.G.A. § 20-3-36 attempts to diminish powers and duties of Board of Regents contrary to Constitution. — Since it is clear that the power to sue and be sued existed in Board of Regents at the time of adoption of the 1943 constitutional amendment and 1945 Constitution and was reenacted as part of the 1976 Constitution, an Act attempting to provide sovereign immunity for the Board of Regents is in direct conflict with the Constitution. As to the Board of Regents, O.C.G.A. § 20-3-36 is an attempt to diminish its powers and duties contrary to the Constitution and in no way prevents the Board of Regents from suing to protect its other powers and duties or from being sued. McCafferty v. Medical College, 249 Ga. 62, 287 S.E.2d 171 (1982).

Medical College of Georgia lacks power to sue and be sued. — Powers and duties of Board of Regents as they existed in 1943 are preserved in the Constitution, and include power to sue and be sued. On the other hand, the similar power of the Medical College of Georgia to sue and be sued was transferred to Board of Regents in 1931 and leaves the Medical College without power to sue and be sued. Trial court erred in granting motion to dismiss by Board of Regents but did not err in dismissing the Medical College of Georgia. McCafferty v. Medical College, 249 Ga. 62, 287 S.E.2d 171 (1982).

Regents are governmental agency. — The Regents of the University System of Georgia is a governmental agency of the state in charge of property of which title is in the state. Azizi v. Board of Regents, 132 Ga. App. 384, 208 S.E.2d 153 (1974), cert. dismissed, 233 Ga. 487, 212 S.E.2d 627 (1975).

Ownership of property and authority to contract. — The state is the equitable and beneficial owner of all property now vested in the Regents of the University System, and the corporation by that name is the holder only of legal title; but it does not follow that the corporation may not enter into any contract which in its reasonable discretion is necessary for the usefulness of the institution, or may not incur liabilities in its own name for that purpose. Being a distinct legal entity, any such liability would be a debt of the corporation and not a debt of the state. State v. Regents of Univ. Sys., 179 Ga. 210, 175 S.E. 567 (1934).

The regents and Board of Regents are not two separate entities. There is but one entity in which are vested the government, control, and management of the University System of Georgia. Azizi v. Board of Regents, 132 Ga. App. 384, 208 S.E.2d 153 (1974), cert. dismissed, 233 Ga. 487, 212 S.E.2d 627 (1975).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Terms “school purpose” and “educational purpose” construed. — The term “school purpose” is more limited in meaning, nature, and scope than the term “educational purpose,” and that though the terms are similar to the extent that the former is certainly included within the latter, the two terms themselves are not, in all their ramifications, sufficiently alike in meaning and significance as to be termed synonymous with each other; this is particularly true where such terms are used in conjunction with creation of charitable trusts. 1962 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 157.

The Board of Regents does not fall under the classification of a “political subdivision.” 1970 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 70-161.

This paragraph does not prevent the regents from operating as a corporate entity as provided for by statutory enactment; the fact that control and management of the university system are vested in the Board of Regents by the Constitution does not prevent or prohibit the regents from operating as a distinct corporate entity. 1945-47 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 231 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. IV, Para. I).

It does no more than make the Board of Regents constitutional officers of this state, and as such, the Board of Regents becomes a department of the state government; however, this does not mean that the corporate entity is a department of state. It follows that the corporation is fully authorized to enter into any contract or issue revenue bonds which, in its reasonable discretion, may be necessary for the usefulness of the university system or any one of its institutions. This liability incurred in the corporate name is not a liability of the state, but rather a separate legal obligation of the corporation. 1945-47 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 231.

A joint resolution of the General Assembly which has the effect of law may not infringe upon the constitutional authority of the Board of Regents to govern, control, and manage the University System of Georgia. 1996 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U96-12.

The powers of the board in exercising management over the various phases of the state educational system are very broad and comprehensive. 1948-49 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 141.

Board has authority to merge institutions in university system. 1988 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 88-12.

Conversion of county technical school. — General Assembly approval is required for the Board of Regents to acquire a county technical institute and convert the institute to a public college. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-9.

The Board of Regents may be classified as a governmental unit of this state for purposes of funding under the National Highway Safety Act of 1966, 23 U.S.C. § 401. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-161.

The Board of Regents cannot contract debts or obligations on behalf of the state in violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Paras. I through V) of the Constitution. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 141.

The Board of Regents cannot pledge the credit or property of the state to any individual, company, corporation, or association, nor shall the state "become a joint owner or stockholder in or with, any individual, company, association or corporation," in violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. VIII). 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 141.

Legal ability of board to incur debt by issuing revenue obligations is doubtful. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 88-21.

Members of the board are public officials and are subject to all limitations and restrictions of law to the same extent as other public officials of this state; the members of the Board of Regents are constitutional officers. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 235.

State university is authorized to purchase a vehicle to transport students to and from woodlands off campus for the purpose of research in wildlife conservation. 1950-51 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 288.

Veterinary school. — The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia is authorized to control and manage the university system which includes the veterinary school; if the board determines that it is necessary to maintain an ambulatory clinic in order to carry out the duties and responsibilities of the veterinary school, then there is no reason why proper equipment should not be purchased by the state for this project. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 146.

Georgia Athletic Association may incorporate and borrow money as a private corporation to finance its activities but must operate under the supervision of the Board of Regents. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 141.

Board of Regents has jurisdiction over misappropriation of funds by University of Georgia students from the sale of football tickets. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 143.

Board of Regents may lease lands in return for the endowment of a research chair if the endowment is equal to the fair market value of the lease and the term of the lease is reasonable. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 95-25.

SECTION V.

LOCAL SCHOOL SYSTEMS

Paragraph

- I. School systems continued; consolidation of school systems authorized; new independent school systems prohibited.
- II. Boards of education.
- III. School superintendents.
- IV. [Reserved].

Paragraph

- V. Power of boards to contract with each other.
- VI. Power of boards to accept bequests, donations, grants, and transfers.
- VII. Special schools.

Proposed amendment. — Amendment of the Georgia Constitution proposed by Ga. L. 2015, p. 1498, § 1/SR 287, if ratified, would revise Article V by adding a new Paragraph VIII, to read as follows: “Paragraph VIII. Opportunity School District. Notwithstanding the provisions of Paragraph II of this section, the General Assembly may provide by general law for the creation of an Opportunity School District and authorize the state to assume the supervision, management, and operation of public elementary and secondary schools which have been determined to be failing through any governance model allowed by law. Such authorization shall include the power to receive, control, and expend state, federal, and local funds appropriated for schools under the current or prior supervision, management, or operation of the Opportunity School District, all in the manner provided by and in accordance with general law.”

Paragraph I. School systems continued; consolidation of school systems authorized; new independent school systems prohibited.

Authority is granted to county and area boards of education to establish and maintain public schools within their limits; provided, however, that the authority provided for in this Paragraph shall not diminish any authority of the General Assembly otherwise granted under this article, including the authority to establish special schools as provided for in Article VIII, Section V, Paragraph VII. Existing county and independent school systems shall be continued, except that the General Assembly may provide by law for the consolidation of two or more county school systems, independent school systems, portions thereof, or any combination thereof into a single county or area school system under the control and management of a county or area board of education, under such terms and conditions as the General Assembly may prescribe; but no such consolidation shall become effective until approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in each separate school system proposed to be consolidated. No independent school system shall hereafter be established. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 8, § 5, Para. 1; Ga. L. 2012, p. 1364, § 2/HR 1162.)

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2012, p. 1364, § 2/HR 1162), which added “; provided, however, that the authority provided for in this Paragraph shall not diminish any authority of the General Assembly otherwise granted under this article, including the authority to establish special schools as provided for in Article VIII, Section V, Paragraph VII” at the end of the first sentence, was ratified at the general election held on November 6, 2012.

As of July 1, 2015, the independent school systems are Atlanta, Bremen, Buford, Calhoun, Carrollton, Cartersville, Chickamauga, Commerce, Dalton, Decatur, Dublin, Gainesville, Jefferson, Marietta, Pelham, Rome, Social Circle, Thomasville, Trion, Valdosta, and Vidalia.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

“Maintain” construed. — Word “maintain” as used in this paragraph does not constitute a constitutional prohibition upon the growth of municipal school systems. Upton County Sch. Dist. v. City of Thomaston, 248 Ga. 98, 281 S.E.2d 537 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Prohibition on “establishment” is prohibition on “creation.” — Prohibition on “establishment” of new independent school systems is a prohibition on their “creation.” Upton County Sch. Dist. v. City of Thomaston, 248 Ga. 98, 281 S.E.2d 537 (1981).

Territorial expansion of existing city school system by annexation of territory into corporate limits of city is not “creation” or “establishment” of independent school system in contravention of this paragraph. Upton County Sch. Dist. v. City of Thomaston, 248 Ga. 98, 281 S.E.2d 537 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Construction of paragraph. — The provision in this paragraph that authority was granted to counties to establish and maintain public schools within their limits, and that each county, exclusive of any independent school system now in existence in a county would be confined to the control and management of a county board of education amounted to complete constitutional vesting of authority to manage and control county schools in the county board of education. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Paragraph does not prescribe exclusive method by which school systems can be merged, but merely establishes procedure by which two school districts or any portions thereof can be combined to create a new entity, an area school district, which is separate and distinct from either of merged school districts. Upton County Sch. Dist. v. City of Thomaston, 248 Ga. 98, 281 S.E.2d 537 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Annexation by municipality also extends city school system limits. — Absent expression of legislative intent clearly to the contrary or a valid agreement between school systems involved, annexation of territory into corporate limits of municipality operating independent school system also extends limits of city school system, so that limits of city school district remain coterminous with city's corporate limits. Upton County Sch. Dist. v. City of Thomaston, 248 Ga. 98, 281 S.E.2d 537 (1981).

Intent. — This provision of the Constitution was intended to do only one thing insofar as independent school systems were concerned, and that was to prohibit the creation of independent systems after adoption of the Constitution, and to preserve those in existence until consolidated or merged as provided by law. Bailey v. County Bd. of Educ., 213 Ga. 308, 99 S.E.2d 124 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Immunity. — School district, as established by Georgia law, was not an arm of the state for purposes of Eleventh Amendment immunity. Lightfoot v. Henry County Sch. Dist., 771 F.3d 764 (11th Cir. 2014).

Control and management of public schools is in the county boards of education, and will not be interfered with by the courts except in cases where that control and management is contrary to law. Colston v. Hutchinson, 208 Ga. 559, 67 S.E.2d 763 (1951).

Other than independent school systems existing in 1945. Colston v. Hutchinson, 208 Ga. 559, 67 S.E.2d 763 (1951).

Local school board power limited. — Local school boards, existing only by virtue of the state Constitution, must be restricted to those powers either expressly granted or necessarily implied by statute, since their composition and function are extensively regulated by the state. Davis v. Griffin-Spalding County Bd. of Educ., 445 F. Supp. 1048 (N.D. Ga. 1975).

In its control and management of schools, the county board of education has broad discretionary powers. Patterson v. Boyd, 211 Ga. 679, 87 S.E.2d 861 (1955).

Effect of board's broad powers. — Since a county board of education has complete control and management of the schools in the county and is empowered to reorganize them and fix the number of grades to be taught in each, action taken by it with respect thereto is not void and of no legal effect, though it may be erroneous. Patterson v. Boyd, 211 Ga. 679, 87 S.E.2d 861 (1955).

Board and School Superintendent authority to contract for employment of teachers settled. — The right and power of the county boards of education and the county superintendents of education to operate the schools of the counties and to make contracts of employment with teachers is settled by the Constitution and laws of this state, as construed by this court. Jones v. Ellis, 182 Ga. 380, 185 S.E. 510 (1936).

It is the board of education and not a court which is empowered by law to manage a county school system, and it is their duty to hire and fire teachers as necessary. To this end, the law grants the board and its Superintendent broad discretion. The orderly operation of the schools depends upon their expertise and not upon whatever skills a judge may possess in the area of school administration. The board's discretion, though, is not unbounded. Standards which they use in the evaluation of prospective teachers must be reasonably related to teaching competency and effectiveness. Their standards must be applied in a uniform fashion so that no group of prospective teachers is singled out for greater scrutiny than other prospective teachers and employment cannot be conditioned upon factors which infringe upon the free exercise of constitutionally protected rights. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

Exercise of constitutional rights does not prohibit termination of teacher. — The constitutional guarantees of free speech, free association, and free exercise of religion do not mean that a school board has no control over the activities or actions of its teachers. A school board may fire, refuse to rehire, or refuse to hire a teacher who has exercised constitutionally protected rights in such a manner as to seriously impair or destroy the teacher's effectiveness as a teacher. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

In an action against the State Board of Education for discriminatory hiring practices, the burden of proof is on the state to prove justification of its actions once a plaintiff has shown that the state action stemmed from the plaintiff's exercise of constitutionally protected rights. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

Finality of board's decision. — When sitting as a court to hear and determine an issue over which it has jurisdiction, decision of school board is final unless an appeal therefrom is taken. Patterson v. Boyd, 211 Ga. 679, 87 S.E.2d 861 (1955).

Limited interference by courts. — Unless the board violates some law, or its action is such a gross abuse of discretion as amounts to a violation of law, courts should not and cannot interfere. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956).

Judicial intervention requires gross abuse of discretion that must be such as of itself amounts to a violation of law. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956).

Necessary showing for equity jurisdiction. — In the absence of a showing of the inadequacy of the remedy of appeal to the State Board of Education equity would not take jurisdiction and grant relief in a school matter contrary to former Code 1933, § 37-120 (see now O.C.G.A. § 23-1-4). Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956) (case decided under former § 32-414 re: appeals).

Equity will not interfere with the management of schools unless it clearly appears that the board has acted without authority of law. Patterson v. Boyd, 211 Ga. 679, 87 S.E.2d 861 (1955).

Provision for equitable relief construed. — Statement that decisions of the boards of education will not be interfered with by courts of equity unless they amount to a violation of law or are a gross abuse of discretion must be read and considered along with the rule of law that remedies at law, if adequate, must be exhausted before resort to equity will be allowed; when thus construed they mean simply that, when the remedy by appeal has failed to eliminate the law violation or gross abuse of discretion which is its equivalent, equity will grant relief or, as is permissible in all cases to prevent irreparable injury, or where equity alone can grant adequate relief, exhaustion of the statutory remedy of appeal is not a prerequisite to relief in equity. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956).

Court must balance exercise of rights with effectiveness of schools. — A court must balance the individual's interest in free exercise of the individual's rights with the government's need to maintain appropriate order and effectiveness in the operation of schools. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

Rule governing review by Court of Appeals. — The Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to decide questions of law that involve application, in a general sense, of unquestioned and unambiguous provisions of the Constitution to a given state of facts, and that do not involve construction of some constitutional provision directly in question and doubtful either under its own terms or under decisions of the Supreme Court of the state or of the United States, and that do not involve the constitutionality of any law of the state or of the United States or any treaty. Under this rule, the Supreme Court and not the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction where a surety seeks to be held free of liability on grounds of constitutional provisions which made obligation unenforceable against school system as principal. Franklin v. Mobley, 202 Ga. 212, 42 S.E.2d 755 (1947).

Legislative intent by enactment of § 20-3-59. — Conditions affecting schools and the operation of them frequently change materially and it was unquestionably the intention of the legislature, by former Code 1933, § 32-933 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-3-59), to give county boards of education power to so deal with their schools whenever, in their opinion, the welfare of the schools and the best interests of the pupils require it. Patterson v. Boyd, 211 Ga. 679, 87 S.E.2d 861 (1955).

Liability of county education board members. — Members of the county boards of education are not individually liable for the negligent performance of their official duties unless it is shown that their negligence amounts to malicious, or willful and wanton misconduct. Krasner v. Harper, 90 Ga. App. 128, 82 S.E.2d 267 (1954).

Under this paragraph, there is no prima facie authority existing in any school district in this state to levy a district school tax. To state a prima facie case that shows a duty upon the defendants to levy a district school tax, the petition for mandamus must show that such tax levy has been authorized as required by this constitutional provision. In the absence of such averments, a petition shows neither the authority nor duty of the secretary and treasurer and county superintendent of schools to levy a district tax. Wrightsville Consol. Sch. Dist. v. Selig Co., 195 Ga. 408, 24 S.E.2d 306 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Effect of mandamus proceeding requiring levy of tax to pay judgment obtained against district school. — A local school district is a body corporate or legal entity subject to be sued for any liability which it may lawfully incur, but the judgment rendered in such suit does not adjudicate the authority to levy a local tax for the purpose of paying the claim upon which the judgment is based; and in a mandamus proceeding to require levy of a district tax for purpose of paying such a judgment, the court will look behind the judgment and determine whether or not the claim upon which it is based is one for which a tax may be levied; and if it is not, the writ of mandamus will be denied. Wrightsville Consol. Sch. Dist. v. Selig Co., 195 Ga. 408, 24 S.E.2d 306 (1943).

Contract for continuance of school cannot arise by implication. — In the absence of any constitutional or statutory provision authorizing contracts for continuance of a school, as opposed to consolidation with another school, for an indefinite period of time, a contract for continuance may not arise by implication because citizens and patrons of the school have been generous and have donated good facilities for the use and benefit of the children of the school district. Crawford v. Irwin, 211 Ga. 241, 85 S.E.2d 8 (1954).

Inappropriate division of authority. — A town cannot be marked off inside a school district, and granted power to exercise all municipal functions and the school district none. Neal v. McWhorter, 122 Ga. 431, 50 S.E. 381 (1905).

Exercise of eminent domain by municipality for enlargement of school grounds. — The provision of the municipal charter of the City of Edison is sufficiently broad to authorize exercise of the power of eminent domain by the municipality for enlargement of school grounds maintained by the city for public schools. Sheppard v. City of Edison, 166 Ga. 111, 142 S.E. 535 (1928).

High schools. — The board of education of any county has the right to establish one or more necessary high schools or junior high schools. Smith v. Tolbert, 160 Ga. 268, 127 S.E. 868 (1925).

County board of education is not prohibited by law from contracting with a city board for education of children residing within its jurisdiction. Walton County Bd. of Educ. v. Academy of Social Circle, 229 Ga. 114, 189 S.E.2d 690 (1972).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Constitutional amendment is not necessary to achieve merger of two school systems. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-40.

Former Code 1933, § 32-1201 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-370) was not superseded or repealed by this paragraph. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 67 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Constitution manifests General Assembly's and peoples intent to create two political subdivisions for handling schools. — Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I) and this paragraph indicate that it was the intention of the General Assembly proposing the new Constitution, and of the people in adopting same, that there should be two political subdivisions for handling school affairs: first, the county district composed of the territory lying outside of the independent system, which territory should be under the control and management of a county board of education and, secondly, independent systems operated by municipal corporations. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 115 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Requirements governing election of candidates to county boards of education. — Candidates for election to county boards of education must comply with the requirements of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II), concerning qualification of candidates except that they must qualify within the time specified by former Code 1933, § 34-1904 (see now O.C.G.A. § 21-2-132). 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-128 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

County boards of education are county offices. — County boards of education, even though appointive and created by statute prior to and existent at the time of adoption of the Constitution of 1877, have consistently been held by appellate courts to be county offices. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 58.

Control and management of public schools of a county school district is confined to the county board of education, including the assignment of pupils to a particular school within a county. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 135.

This paragraph seems to imply that no more independent school systems other than those now in existence shall be established; it would appear, therefore, that a military reservation could not be a part of the state in such manner as to be a part of or constitute a local unit of administration of the state public school system. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 516 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Effect of discontinuance of independent school system prior to 1945. — If a city's discontinuance of its independent school system was accomplished under provisions of former Code 1933, Ch. 32-11, prior to 1945, then it would not have had an existing independent school system as contemplated by this paragraph and thus would not be able to reactivate, maintain, or preserve a city system. 1950-51 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 49 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

County-wide school districts as successors to local school districts can incur bonded indebtedness independently of county indebtedness. — Former local school districts have been recognized as separate political divisions of the state, such as were entitled to incur a bonded indebtedness independently of county bonded obligations; upon merger by the General Assembly of local school districts, in harmony with the provisions of this paragraph into county-wide school districts, the new county-wide district would likewise constitute a separate political entity under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. III (see Ga. Code 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I), and could do as a unit that which its previous component parts could have done separately, and could therefore incur a bonded indebtedness independently of any indebtedness for general authorized county purposes. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 123 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Restriction on consolidation by local school districts. — Local school districts may not consolidate under this paragraph so as to make the consolidated district liable for the bonded indebtedness of any one of the districts consolidated, unless approved by voters in each district affected. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 127 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Restriction on consolidation of local school districts by county board of education. — A county board of education cannot consolidate local school districts for the purpose of making a nonbonded district liable for bonds of a bonded district unless there had been separate elections in each district. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 126.

Contracting between local education boards. — Local boards of education may contract with each other for care, education, and transportation of pupils, but not for joint management, operation, and control of school facilities. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-32.

Where county board of education and independent system contract with each other for education, transportation and care of pupils under this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II), this does not give residents of independent system the right to vote in election held to select county school superintendent, nor may such right be given by contract; such a contract does not amount to merger. Where election requirements were set out by former statute neither individuals nor groups could alter such legislative intent by contract. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 216 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Paragraph grants local school systems broad managerial authority. —

Power granted under this paragraph is construed as granting local school systems broad authority to manage and control their own programs and affairs, absent some constitutional or statutory prohibition. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-2 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Management and control of local school systems are vested at the local level in this state, specifically in the boards of education of the various county and independent city school systems, and this very broad power includes, subject to minimum standards as may be established by the State Board of Education as a condition of continued state fiscal assistance, the right to decide upon educational programs, curricula, course offerings, and general educational opportunities. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-60.

Authority of State Board of Education to preempt local education boards from promoting students invalid. — Inasmuch as former Code 1933 §§ 32-901, 32-1101, 32-907, and 32-912 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-50, 20-2-57, and 20-2-59) Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Paras. II, IV), and this paragraph have been judicially endorsed numerous times, and in consideration of the fact that the State Board of Education has no express authority to preempt local boards in decisions concerning promotion of individual students, it would appear that the state board could not directly stop an individual student from passing to the next grade level should the county board feel the child is reading sufficiently. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-63 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Implementation of reading requirements as prerequisite to grade passage permissible. — Although the State Board of Education does not have explicit authority to directly preclude a student in a local school district from progressing from one grade level to another if the child is not capable of reading in the higher grade level, the board may, as a condition of continued state fiscal assistance, require local boards of education to implement state board established reading requirements to be imposed on public school students for passage to the next grade level. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-63.

Attendance outside of school district. — The school laws of the State of Georgia do not prohibit a child from receiving an education in a school system other than that in which the child resides; however, if a child desires to enter a school in any other territory, it is permissible to charge such child tuition for the privilege. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-70.

Place county board of education members selected from. — It was clear from this paragraph, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I) and former Code 1933, §§ 32-901 and 32-1101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-50) that members of the county board of education should be selected from that portion of the county not embraced within the territory of an independent school district. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 510 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

County board of education can determine where a pupil may attend school and can deny a pupil, in their discretion, the right to attend a school of the pupil's choice; where, however, it can be shown that the county board of education was abusing the discretion vested in it, then the aggrieved party could take proper action as provided by law. 1950-51 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 273.

County board of education authority to divide county into attendance area and require mandatory attendance. — A county board of education may not divide the county into school districts, but by the authority of this paragraph and former Code 1933, §§ 32-901 and 32-1101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-50) it appears that a county board does have the power to divide the county into attendance areas and require that persons of school age living in a certain area attend the school in that area. 1950-51 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 41 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Failure of United States Justice Department to approve change in election procedures leaves prior law in effect. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-14.

General Consideration

Effect on existing independent school systems. — This paragraph does not give county school districts constitutional status superior to existing independent school systems. Upson County Sch. Dist. v. City of Thomaston, 248 Ga. 98, 281 S.E.2d 537 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Section 20-2-52 superseded by this paragraph before amendment of 1965. — The provision of former Code 1933, § 32-903 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-52) which declared that the grand jury in selecting the members of the county board of education could not select any two of them from the same militia district or locality was unquestionably superseded by this paragraph. Under the plain and unambiguous provisions of the amendment, the people could elect one, any, or all of the members of the county board of education from any portion of the county which was not embraced within the territory of an independent school district. Garmon v. Crawford, 211 Ga. 682, 87 S.E.2d 844 (1955) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Construction of paragraph. — The provision in this paragraph providing that authority was granted to counties to establish and maintain public schools within their limits, and that each county, exclusive of any independent school system now in existence in a county would be confined to the control and management of a county board of education amounted to complete constitutional vesting of authority to manage and control county schools in the county board of education. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Effect of Ga. Const., 1945 on school laws. — The Ga. Const., 1945 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. III) did not purport to disturb the state's comprehensive code of statutory school laws other than to make the offices of county school superintendent and county boards of education constitutional offices rather than statutory offices. A member of the board of education, whose term had not expired at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, was entitled to hold office until the member's successor was elected and qualified. Powell v. Price, 201 Ga. 833, 41 S.E.2d 539 (1947).

This paragraph and Art. 3, Ch. 2, T. 20 not conflicting. — This paragraph created a constitutional board of education for each county and also made provision for the number, method of appointment, and terms of the members of such board; but since it made no provision as to the qualification of such members, there was therefore, no conflict between the statutory requirements already in existence when the Constitution was adopted, and former Code 1933, § 32-901 et seq., (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 2, T. 20), insofar as they pertain to qualifications of board members and provisions of this Constitution. Estes v. Jones, 203 Ga. 686, 48 S.E.2d 99 (1948).

Constitutional provisions evidence no intent for repeal of statutory requirements on qualifications of board members. — Construing this paragraph and former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II) together, there is no evident intent that the statutory requirements as to qualifications of members of county boards of education be repealed by the Constitution. McCollum v. Bass, 201 Ga. 537, 40 S.E.2d 650 (1946) (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. III; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Court intervened in school affairs improperly. — The trial court ordered the school board to repair the schools slated for closure, construct any new buildings needed at those sites, and apply for and take all appropriate measures to receive and utilize state outlay capital funds to so renovate, modernize, and replace the schools; in entering such an order, the trial court made decisions involving the management and control of the county schools, matters that the Georgia Constitution has delegated to the local board of education, not the courts. In the absence of evidence that the board of education's decisions violated law or were such a gross abuse of discretion as to be a violation of law, the trial court erred when it intervened in the affairs of the school system by ordering the local board to take

Trial court's order requiring a student's reinstatement as a student and a member of a university's varsity football team was reversed due to a lack of a justiciable controversy as: (1) Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II clearly manifested an intent to entrust the schools to supervising authorities rather than the courts; (2) the student admitted that the suspension arose from a telephone call the student made to facilitate a drug sale and it was not clearly erroneous or arbitrary and capricious for lack of evidence; (3) the student suffered no deprivation of constitutional or statutory rights as there was no right to participate in extracurricular sports; and (4) the suspension did not prejudice the student's substantial rights as the suspension was tailored to permit the student's eventual re-enrollment to complete the student's degree requirements, did not render the student ineligible for a scholarship, and was not a deprivation of major proportion warranting judicial intervention. Bd. of Regents of the Univ. Sys. of Ga. v. Houston, 282 Ga. App. 412, 638 S.E.2d 750 (2006).

Persons eligible for board election by grand jury. — As electors and in exercise of their constitutional power as such, the members of a grand jury could elect any person, except one who was a member of the electing grand jury, who possessed the qualifications prescribed by former Code 1933, § 32-903 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-52). Hobbs v. Peavy, 210 Ga. 671, 82 S.E.2d 224 (1954).

Annexation by municipality also extends city school system limits. — Absent an expression of legislative intent clearly to the contrary or a valid agreement between the school systems involved, annexation of territory into the corporate limits of a municipality operating an independent school system also extends the limits of the city school system, so that the limits of the city school district remain coterminous with the city's corporate limits. Upton County Sch. Dist. v. City of Thomaston, 248 Ga. 98, 281 S.E.2d 537 (1981).

County-wide School Districts

County-wide school districts as successors to local school districts can incur bonded indebtedness independently of county indebtedness. — Upon the merger by the General Assembly of local school districts, in harmony with the provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I), into county-wide school districts, the new county-wide district would likewise constitute a separate political entity and could do as a unit that which its previous component parts could have done separately, and could therefore incur a bonded indebtedness independent of any indebtedness for general authorized county purposes. Pinion v. Walker County Sch. Dist., 203 Ga. 99, 45 S.E.2d 405 (1947).

A consolidated county school district is a separate political division of this state such as is authorized to incur a bonded indebtedness up to seven percent of the assessed valuation of its taxable property, independent of and in addition to any outstanding bonded indebtedness incurred by any of its component former local school districts prior to their merger into a county-wide school district. Pinion v. Walker County Sch. Dist., 203 Ga. 99, 45 S.E.2d 405 (1947).

Contract for continuance of school cannot arise by implication. — In the absence of any constitutional or statutory provision authorizing contracts for the continuance of a school, as opposed to consolidation with another school, for an indefinite period of time, a contract for continuance may not arise by implication because citizens and patrons of the school have been generous and have donated good facilities for the use and benefit of the children of the school district. Crawford v. Irwin, 211 Ga. 241, 85 S.E.2d 8 (1954).

County Education Boards1. Control and Management Authority

Each county of the state is made a school district, and management and control of the schools of the county is confided in the county board of education. Pass v. Pickens, 204 Ga. 629, 51 S.E.2d 405 (1949); Burton v. Kearse, 204 Ga. 765, 51 S.E.2d 796 (1949).

Control and management of public schools must be left largely to discretion of the county board of education; and when this discretion is exercised within the limits of their jurisdiction, there is no ground for complaint. Pearce v. Wisdom, 175 Ga. 663, 165 S.E. 574 (1932).

Paragraph does not take away power. — This paragraph did not operate to take away from the county school district powers as were exercised by the former local school districts such as those powers enumerated in former Code 1933, §§ 32-113, 32-115, and 32-1104 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-437 and 20-3-51). Nelms v. Stephens County Sch. Dist., 201 Ga. 274, 39 S.E.2d 651 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Effect of merger of the local school districts into one county school district is to transfer the basis for the authorized debt from a percentage of the assessed valuation of the taxable property located within the separate local school districts to a percentage of the assessed valuation of the taxable property within the consolidated county school district as a whole. No larger debt is rendered possible by the merger of the local school districts into one county school district. Nelms v. Stephens County Sch. Dist., 201 Ga. 274, 39 S.E.2d 651 (1946).

Action involving parents organization and school authorities regarding the reassignment of high schools in a county to another region for purposes of interscholastic athletic competition did not present a justiciable controversy. Parents Against Realignment v. Georgia High School Association, 271 Ga. 114, 515 S.E.2d 528 (1999).

Right to determine what is best for school pupils is vested in the board of education. Deriso v. Cooper, 246 Ga. 540, 272 S.E.2d 274 (1980).

Courts should not determine what is best for pupils. — Authority to manage and control county schools is vested by this paragraph in the county board of education, and any challenge of acts of county board relating to control and operation of schools must be weighed in the light of this sweeping power, which clearly manifests an intent to entrust the schools to the boards of education rather than the courts. Deriso v. Cooper, 246 Ga. 540, 272 S.E.2d 274 (1980) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Exclusive control by county board of education. — By the Constitution, the control and management of the public schools, other than independent school systems existing in 1945, is placed under the exclusive control and management of the county boards of education. Colston v. Hutchinson, 208 Ga. 559, 67 S.E.2d 763 (1951).

Limited judicial interference. — Control and management of public schools will not be interfered with by the courts except where that control and management is contrary to law. Colston v. Hutchinson, 208 Ga. 559, 67 S.E.2d 763 (1951).

Funding for start-up charter schools. — Pursuant to the plain language of O.C.G.A. § 20-2-2068.1(c), a school system and school board had no authority or discretion to deduct the system's unfunded pension expense of $ 38.6 million from their calculation of local revenue to be distributed to start-up charter schools; the start-up charter schools were entitled to mandamus relief. Atlanta Indep. Sch. Sys. v. Atlanta Neighborhood Charter Sch., 293 Ga. 629, 748 S.E.2d 884 (2013).

County residents' challenge to a school board candidate's residency qualification under O.C.G.A. § 45-2-1(1) and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II, was barred by res judicata because another challenger had raised the same challenge, and the challenge had been resolved against the challenger by the county's board of elections. Lilly v. Heard, 295 Ga. 399, 761 S.E.2d 46 (2014).

2. Election or Appointment

Subsection (b) of this paragraph is permissive as it relates to the requirement that local laws affecting school boards be approved by referendum. Williamson v. Schmid, 237 Ga. 630, 229 S.E.2d 400 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983,

County Education Boards (Cont'd)
2. Election or Appointment (Cont'd)

Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Subsection (b) does not restrict authority of the General Assembly to enact local laws pertaining to school boards under authority of prior amendments to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I). Williamson v. Schmid, 237 Ga. 630, 229 S.E.2d 400 (1976).

The grand jury is an appropriate vehicle for the selection of county board members. Wallis v. Blue, 263 F. Supp. 965 (N.D. Ga. 1967).

Failure of official to give notice of election not sufficient to invalidate election. — A constitutional amendment, duly ratified by the people (Ga. L. 1955, pp. 711, 714), creating election of the six members of the Board of Education of Wheeler County by militia districts, having provided by law for the time of regular election, the notice of election to be given by the judge of the probate court is directory, and the judge's failure to perform this duty does not invalidate the election thus held on that date. McNair v. Achord, 215 Ga. 540, 111 S.E.2d 236 (1959).

Construction and interpretation of local election amendment. — Where a local amendment to the Constitution provided that Ware County "Elections for members of the board of education shall be held and conducted in the same manner as elections for other county officials are held," there was a clearly disclosed legislative intent to provide for removal from office of members of the board and replacement by the procedure stated in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VIII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III), which applied to county officials in general, and not by the procedure stated in former Code 1933, § 32-905 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-53) and this paragraph, which applied to boards of education specifically. Thigpen v. State, 229 Ga. 820, 194 S.E.2d 423 (1972).

Terms of school board members. — Term limitations of Telfair County Tenure Law, 1963 Ga. Laws 705, do not apply to school board members because the Tenure Law amends Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX and not Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII; thus, a member who was serving a third consecutive term was not subject to the Tenure Law. Dyal v. Pope, 283 Ga. 463, 660 S.E.2d 725 (2008).

O.C.G.A. § 20-2-52 did not limit terms school board member could serve under the Telfair County Tenure Law, 1963 Ga. Laws 705; although the Telfair County Tenure Law is a constitutional amendment, it is not a constitutional amendment that applies to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII and school board members. Dyal v. Pope, 283 Ga. 463, 660 S.E.2d 725 (2008).

Use of quo warranto to oust board members. — Where the plaintiff contends the defendants are illegally holding office because of the alleged unconstitutionality of this paragraph of the Georgia Constitution providing for the means of their selection, quo warranto would be an adequate remedy. Boatright v. Brown, 222 Ga. 497, 150 S.E.2d 680 (1966) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Removal of county board of education members. — Superior court erred in denying the county board of education members' request to reverse the governor's order removing the members from office under O.C.G.A. § 45-10-4 for violating O.C.G.A. § 45-10-3; O.C.G.A. § 45-10-3 does not embrace entities created by the Constitution of Georgia, and county school boards are creations of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II. Roberts v. Deal, 290 Ga. 705, 723 S.E.2d 901 (2012).

Whether characterized as setting a qualification for continued service on the local board in the extraordinary circumstance of an imminent loss of accreditation, or whether characterized as providing for removal for malfeasance, misfeasance, or nonfeasance in office, O.C.G.A. § 20-2-73 was held by the Georgia Supreme Court to be a permissible exercise of the legislative power to provide for the removal for cause of members of local boards. DeKalb County Sch. Dist. v. Ga. State Bd. of Educ., 294 Ga. 349, 751 S.E.2d 827 (2013).

Georgia Supreme Court held that the removal of local school board members under O.C.G.A. § 20-2-73 was not an unconstitutional infringement upon the governing authority of local school boards, nor was it a violation of any other constitutional provision or right. DeKalb County Sch. Dist. v. Ga. State Bd. of Educ., 294 Ga. 349, 751 S.E.2d 827 (2013).

3. Equal Protection and Elections

Limitation of school board membership to freeholders violates the equal protection clause of the fourteenth amendment. Turner v. Fouche, 396 U.S. 346, 90 S. Ct. 532, 24 L. Ed. 2d 567 (1970).

Scheme for selecting board members not unfair. — The state's constitutional and statutory scheme for selecting its grand juries and boards of education is not inherently unfair, or necessarily incapable of administration without regard to race; the federal courts are not powerless to remedy unconstitutional departures from Georgia law by declaratory and injunctive relief. Turner v. Fouche, 396 U.S. 346, 90 S. Ct. 532, 24 L. Ed. 2d 567 (1970).

Employment by other school boards of different method to control quality of education evince no denial of equal protection. — Since the Georgia Constitution and Code provide local school boards with sweeping authority in the governing of local school systems, the fact that other school boards may choose to employ other methods to control the quality of education in their systems does not evince a denial of equal protection. Wells v. Banks, 153 Ga. App. 581, 266 S.E.2d 270 (1980).

4. Duty to Hire and Fire Teachers

It is the Board of Education's duty to hire and fire teachers as necessary. To this end, the law grants the board and its Superintendent broad discretion. The orderly operation of the schools depends upon their expertise and not upon whatever skills a judge may possess in the area of school administration. The Board's discretion, though, is not unbounded. Standards which they use in the evaluation of prospective teachers must be reasonably related to teaching competency and effectiveness. Their standards must be applied in a uniform fashion so that no group of prospective teachers is singled out for greater scrutiny than other prospective teachers and employment cannot be conditioned upon factors which infringe upon the free exercise of constitutionally protected rights. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

The law vests full power and authority for operation of schools in county boards of education. Trustees may recommend, but the power to employ teachers is exclusively in the county board of education. Contracts made by school trustees under powers conferred by this section are subject to approval by the county board of education. Fordham v. Harrell, 197 Ga. 135, 28 S.E.2d 463 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Termination of teachers for exercise of constitutional rights. — Constitutional guarantees of free speech, free association, and free exercise of religion do not mean that a school board has no control over activities or actions of its teachers. A school board may fire, refuse to rehire, or refuse to hire a teacher who has exercised constitutionally protected rights in such a manner as to seriously impair or destroy the teacher's effectiveness as a teacher. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

Balance between constitutional rights and school order. — A court must balance the individual's interest in the free exercise of the individual's rights with the government's need to maintain appropriate order and effectiveness in operation of schools. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

In an action against State Board of Education for discriminatory hiring practices the burden of proof is on the state to prove justification of its actions once a plaintiff has shown that the state action stemmed from the plaintiff's exercise of constitutionally protected rights. Doherty v. Wilson, 356 F. Supp. 35 (M.D. Ga. 1973).

5. Proof Requirement for Court Interference

Degree of discretionary abuse needed to justify interference by court. — Unless the act of a board violates some law, or is such a gross abuse of discretion as amounts to a violation of law, courts should not and cannot interfere. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956).

County Education Boards (Cont'd)

5. Proof Requirement for Court Interference (Cont'd)

Abuse of discretion must violate law to justify judicial intervention. — A gross abuse of discretion by the county board of education which will authorize resort to courts must be such as of itself amounts to a violation of the law. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956).

Provision for equitable relief construed. — Statement that decisions of the boards of education will not be interfered with by courts of equity unless they amount to a violation of law or are a gross abuse of discretion must be read and considered along with the rule of law that remedies at law, if adequate, must be exhausted before resort to equity will be allowed; when thus construed they mean simply that, when the remedy by appeal has failed to eliminate the law violation or gross abuse of discretion which is its equivalent, equity will grant relief or, as is permissible in all cases to prevent irreparable injury, or where equity alone can grant adequate relief, exhaustion of the statutory remedy of appeal is not a prerequisite to relief in equity. Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956).

Equity will not interfere with management of a county board of education unless the board has acted without authority of law. Burton v. Kearse, 204 Ga. 765, 51 S.E.2d 796 (1949).

In absence of a showing of the inadequacy of appeal to State Board of Education, equity would not take jurisdiction and grant relief in a school matter contrary to former Code 1933, § 37-120 (see now O.C.G.A. § 23-1-4). Bedingfield v. Parkerson, 212 Ga. 654, 94 S.E.2d 714 (1956).

County School Superintendent

Office of county school superintendent is a constitutional office. The county superintendent is to be elected by the voters of the district, the superintendent's district being the county of the superintendent's residence exclusive of any independent school system in existence in such county. Kemp v. Mitchell County Democratic Executive Comm., 216 Ga. 276, 116 S.E.2d 321 (1960).

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

General Consideration

Constitutional language required reorganization and rearrangement of board members' terms. — It was the intention of the framers of the Constitution to provide for a reorganization of all county boards of education, and the words "the first election of board members under this Constitution shall be for such terms that will provide for the expiration of the term of one member ... each year" clearly imply that the grand juries of the counties were required to reorganize and rearrange the terms of the members in accordance with the scheme set out in this paragraph, at the first board election after the Constitution took effect. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 103 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Paragraph (c) construed on manner of election of board members. — The first sentence of this paragraph permits the residence requirements to be changed by local legislation upon referendum, and the second sentence of this paragraph provides for “further qualifications as may be provided by law”; however, this provision as to general qualifications to be provided by law was construed to mean by general law, such as that contained in former Code 1933, §§ 32-907, 23-908, 32-909, 32-910, and 32-912 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-57, 20-2-58, 20-2-520, and 20-2-1160); if an attempt were made to enlarge the qualification requirements, other than residence requirements, by local law, there would be a violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), which prohibits special legislation in cases where provision has been made by existing general law. 1972 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U72-103.

Applicable to local school board members. — School board members selected by the local governing body are appointed boards within the meaning of the 1992 amendment to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II, which provided for elected boards of education. 1992 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 92-34.

County Boards of Education

1. Appointment of Members

To the extent that provisions of Ga. L. 1953, Nov.Dec. Sess., p. 334, § 1 and former Code 1933, § 32-903 §§ 20-2-51 and 20-2-52 conflict with this paragraph, the latter constitutional provision controls, but such conflict does not otherwise render other provisions contained in said sections invalid. 1960-61 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 151 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

Ga. L. 1953, Nov.-Dec. Sess., p. 334, § 1 and former Code 1933, § 32-903 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-51 and 20-2-52) must be read in conjunction with and pursuant to the constitutional provision. 1960-61 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 155.

This paragraph means that the grand jury is the appointing power of the members of the county board of education and that if they are in session at the time a vacancy occurs, it would be the duty of the grand jury at that time to fill the vacancy. 1948-49 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 502.

Absent any local constitutional amendment, county school board members were not elected by voters, but were appointed by the grand jury under this paragraph; within the meaning of former Code 1933 § 89-103 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-2-2), it may be that a member of a county board of education was not a “county officer.” 1958-59 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 146 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I).

“Hold office until.” — The words “hold office until” indicate that the individual elected by the board has no right to serve beyond the time of the appointment by the grand jury. Undoubtedly, the board is given such authority because of the fact that in many counties in Georgia there will be a considerable lapse of time between terms of court. For this reason, a grand jury is not bound to appoint the same successor elected by the board. 1957 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 104.

The grand jury may not select two members of the county board of education from the same militia district or locality. 1945-47 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 143.

If a county had less than five militia districts, the application of former Code 1933, § 32-903 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-52) was in conflict with this paragraph which provided for a five-member county board of education and when there was only four militia districts in a county, two members of the board of education may come from one district. 1954-56 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 176 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

When a county has only four militia districts, one member of the county board of education should be selected from the county at large. 1945-47 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 146.

Procedure for filling vacancies on school board. — Since this paragraph superseded that portion of former Code § 32-905 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-53) giving judges of superior courts power to fill vacancies on a county board of education, the Constitution meant that the grand jury was the appointing power of the members of the county board of education and that if they were in session at the time a vacancy occurred, it would be the duty of the grand jury at that time to fill the vacancy; if a vacancy occurred at a time when the grand jury was not in session and when it cannot make the appointment, there should be no vacancy between that time and the convening of the grand jury and, therefore, in such a case this paragraph provided that members of the county board of education by secret ballot shall elect a person to hold office until the grand jury convened, so that the grand jury can make the appointment for the unexpired term as contemplated by the Constitution. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 502; 1950-51 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 38 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

The "next grand jury" refers to the succeeding grand jury which convenes on the fourth Monday in October. Also, failure of the board of education to elect would in no way affect the right of the grand jury to appoint the successor. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 104.

County boards held county offices by appellate courts. — County boards of education, even though appointive and created by statute prior to and existent at the time of adoption of the Constitution of 1877, have consistently been held by the appellate courts to be county offices. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 58.

Term of office of members elected by grand jury prescribed by law. — There is no provision in the law whereby a county grand jury can elect a member to the county board of education, commencing with the expiration of a preceding member's term of office, for a period of time either greater or less than that prescribed by law. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 155.

Grand jury may fix first term. — The grand jury of the county is clothed with power to fix beginning and ending of term of the first appointees made after adoption of the state Constitution and thereafter all subsequent terms are to conform with the beginning of the term of the first appointee. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 155.

Local school district trustees selected under statute remain in office under the Constitution. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 178.

Appointment of local school board members not controlled by § 15-12-67 regarding secrecy of meetings. — Responsibility of grand jury to appoint members of local school board under this paragraph was not controlled by former Code 1933, §§ 59-208 and 59-210 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-12-67) relating to secrecy of meetings of that body. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-44 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

2. Election of Members

Changing methods of electing board members. — Selection of a county board of education can be changed from an appointive method to an elective one by complying with this paragraph; where this is done, the "one-man, one-vote" principle of the U.S. Const., amend. 14, is not violated by requirement that members reside in particular militia districts, so long as their election is on a county-wide basis. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-14.1 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Requirements. — Candidates for election to county boards of education must comply with the requirements of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I), and this paragraph concerning the qualification of candidates except that they must qualify within the time specified by former Code 1933, § 34-1904 (see now O.C.G.A. § 21-2-132). 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-128 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Residency requirements for the election of local school board members cannot be established by board bylaws. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U97-25.

Holding over in office. — A member of a county board of education may hold over in office until the member's successor is elected and qualified. 1993 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U93-16.

Failure of a person elected as a member of the county board of education to accept the member's commission creates a vacancy in the office.

1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 144.

Chairman of a county board of education may vote to make or break a tie on some issue before the board. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 104.

Failure of United States Justice Department to approve change in election procedures leaves prior law in effect. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-14.

Members of the county board of education are public officers, and their election, term of office, and method of filling vacancies are determined by the state Constitution. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 144.

Effect of constitutional provisions on statutory school laws. — This paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Paras. III and IV) simply made constitutional Arts. 9 through 11 and 25, Ch. 2, T. 20, Part 3, Art. 16, Ch. 2, T. 20, Part 9, Art. 17, T. 20, and § 20-2-1074 thereby creating a constitutional board of education for the counties; they did not purport to disturb the comprehensive code of statutory school laws other than to make the offices of county school superintendent and county boards of education constitutional rather than statutory offices. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 143 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Independent school system not given right to vote for county school superintendent by contract with county board of education. — Where the county board of education and the independent system contract with each other for the education, transportation, and care of pupils under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I), and this paragraph, this does not give residents of the independent system the right to vote in election held to select county school superintendent, nor may such right be given by contract; such a contract does not amount to merger. Where election requirements were set out by statute in former Code 1933, § 32-1002 (former § 20-2-101) neither individuals nor groups could alter such legislative intent by contract. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 216 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II).

Independent school district can participate in selection of board members. — A citizen resident of an independent school district is not disqualified from participating in selection of a member of a county board of education by a grand jury of which the citizen is a member. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 151.

Residential qualifications. — Where members of board resided in portion of county not embraced within territory of independent school district at the time of their selection, they met qualifications and acquired legal title to offices. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 101.

Quo warranto proceedings necessary for removal of board members serving unlawfully. — Members of a county board of education who because of extension of corporate limits of a city, find themselves residing within territorial boundaries of an independent public school district, do not lose their membership on such board; they continue to hold office until removed by quo warranto proceedings. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 101.

3. Control and Management Authority

The county board of education is a political subdivision of the state and serves as the agency through which the county acts in school matters. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 99.

Management and control of local school systems are vested at the local level in Georgia, specifically in the boards of education of the various county and independent city school systems, and this very broad power includes, subject to such minimum standards as may be established by the State Board of Education as a condition of continued state fiscal assistance, the right to decide upon educational programs, curricula, course offerings, and general educational opportunities. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-60.

Local school board assigns students to a particular school within a county. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 135; 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 142.

Charging a fee for school transcripts is a local matter within the discretion of the county board of education. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 97.

County Boards of Education (Cont'd)
3. Control and Management
Authority (Cont'd)

Transfer of a teacher from one school to another notwithstanding objections of School Superintendent. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 152.

Minimum age necessary for a student to enroll in public schools of Georgia is an administrative question to be decided by each county or city board of education. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 274.

Constitutional power to contract limited. — The constitutional powers to contract in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. IV, and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V, and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I) are limited by this constitutional provision which states that control and management of county schools shall be confined to the county board of education; the power to exercise judgment and discretion cannot be delegated by a county board of education. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 116.

Law vests full power and authority for the operation of schools in the county board of education. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 137.

Minimum and maximum ages of children who may be taught in public schools is a matter which addresses itself to the local boards of education. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-10.

Assignment of pupils. — A local board of education has the authority to designate which school within its school district shall be attended by a particular pupil, i.e., assignment of pupils in the public schools. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 137.

Local boards cannot contract for joint management. — Local boards of education may contract with each other for care, education, and transportation of pupils, but not for joint management, operation, and control of school facilities. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-32.

County board of education and school superintendent official relationship. — The power to manage and control county school systems in Georgia rests in the county board of education; the county school superintendent is obliged to comply with and carry out all rules, regulations, and instructions of the county board of education. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-65.

Superintendent's duty to run system upon recall of board. — The county school superintendent is charged with the duty of continuing to effectuate and enforce the rules, regulations, and instructions of the county board of education and continuing to operate the county school system during the period of time between the successful recall of all or a majority of the county board of education and the filling of the vacancies on the county board of education by special election. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-43.

Contracts between neighboring boards of education for services. — A contract between a local Board of Education and neighboring Board of Education to provide education and related services for all of its students is specifically contemplated in the Constitution of Georgia and would be authorized unless a particular provision of the contract or a related service was otherwise illegal. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. 89-41.

Authority to employ counsel implied from board's management and responsibility power. — It is inconceivable that the intent of the framers of the Constitution or the members of the General Assembly in giving these boards control, management, and responsibility as to local schools did not imply authority to employ adequate counsel to represent the board in litigation and give legal advice as to the administration of school laws. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 99.

County board of education has authority to expend public school funds for employing attorneys to represent members of a county board of education where the controversy involves the power of a local board of education (local school district) or an officer and the validity of the exercise of such power. The local board of education has no power to employ counsel for a purpose outside its proper function, nor may counsel be employed at public expense to prosecute or defend actions by or against such board members in their individual capacities. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 99.

Charges for lost or damaged books. — Local school boards are authorized to assess charges against students for lost and unnecessarily damaged text books or library materials but local school boards may not withhold transferring a student's record to another school system when there are unpaid charges or student fees. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 90-29.

4. Unauthorized Acts

Private audit of funds unauthorized. — County board of education cannot expend county education funds for private audit of funds derived from extracurricular school activities; such an expenditure of education funds is not an expenditure for an "educational purpose" within the meaning of such term. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 155.

Even though maintaining custody and control of funds in their custody is a proper matter for regulation by local boards of education, and regulation, supervision and control includes maintenance of records pertaining thereto and audit of funds derived therefrom; should a local board of education desire a private audit of such funds, the expense of obtaining such audit must be paid out of funds derived from such activities. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 155.

A county board of education may not pay insurance premiums for protection of school buildings owned by a municipality. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 144.

Incorporation by school boards or membership in nonprofit corporations prohibited. — While county boards of education are vested with broad powers respecting management and control of the school systems they administer under former Code 1933, § 32-909 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-520), including the right to contract with each other under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V), the general laws pertaining to creation of nonprofit corporations appear to exclude the possibility of school boards incorporating or being members of nonprofit corporations as a county board of education is not a corporation, partnership, association, or other "person." 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-4.

State Board of Education

Authority of State Board of Education to preempt local education boards from promoting students invalid. — Inasmuch as former Code 1933, §§ 32-901, 32-907, 32-912 and 32-1101 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-50, 20-2-57, and 20-2-59), this paragraph, and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I) have been judicially endorsed, and in consideration of the fact that State Board of Education had no express authority to preempt local boards in decisions concerning promotion of individual students, it would appear that the state board could not directly stop an individual student from passing to the next grade level should the county board feel the child was reading sufficiently. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-63.

Implementation of reading requirements as prerequisite to grade promotion permissible. — Although the State Board of Education does not have explicit authority to directly preclude a student in a local school district from progressing from one grade level to another if the child is not capable of reading in the higher grade level, the board may, as a condition of continued state fiscal assistance, require local boards of education to implement state board established reading requirements to be imposed on public school students for passage to the next grade level. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-63.

1976 Constitution. — Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V.

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1991, p. 2032, § 2) which revised Paragraph III to provide for appointment of school superintendents and to provide that elected superintendents in office on January 1, 1993, shall serve out their terms and be replaced by appointed superintendents at the expiration of such terms was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 3, 1992.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Office of county school superintendent is a constitutional office. The county superintendent is to be elected by the voters of the superintendent's district, the superintendent's district being the county of his residence exclusive of any independent school system in existence in such county. Kemp v. Mitchell County Democratic Executive Comm., 216 Ga. 276, 116 S.E.2d 321 (1960).

Effect of Ga. Const., 1945 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. III) on school laws. — Georgia Const., 1945 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. III) did not purport to disturb the state's comprehensive code of statutory school laws other than to make the offices of county school superintendent and county boards of education constitutional offices rather than statutory offices. A member of the board of education, whose term had not expired at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, was entitled to hold office until the member's successor was elected and qualified. Saxon v. Bell, 201 Ga. 797, 41 S.E.2d 536 (1947); Powell v. Price, 201 Ga. 833, 41 S.E.2d 539 (1947).

Office of county school superintendent was not abolished by the Constitution of 1945; it was simply changed from a statutory office to a constitutional one (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. III). Saxon v. Bell, 201 Ga. 797, 41 S.E.2d 536 (1947).

Local constitutional amendment. — A local constitutional amendment which prohibits "county officers" from succeeding themselves after two successive terms in office does not govern the qualifications or eligibility for the office of superintendent of the Telfair County School District. Bradfield v. Wells, 262 Ga. 198, 415 S.E.2d 638 (1992).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Procedure to permit elected superintendent of one county to serve as appointed superintendent of another county. — Because of uncertainty as to how courts would interpret former Code 1933, §§ 32-1004 and 89-101 (see former O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-102 and 45-2-1, respectively), the safer route to take, should it be desired to permit an elected superintendent of one county to serve as the appointed superintendent of another county, would have been to proceed through the enactment of local legislation conditioned upon voter approval under this paragraph, and not to attempt to rely upon the authorization contained in former Code 1933, § 89-101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-2-1). 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-11.

Voters residing in an independent school system are not entitled to vote for the county school superintendent who is an officer of that part of the county which lies outside of independent school systems. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 115.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Changes in selection method for Muscogee County Board of Education. — Any changes by local law in the method of selection of members of the Muscogee County Board of Education must be conditioned upon approval by a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in the school system and must be precleared pursuant to § 5 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, as amended (42 U.S.C. § 1973c), before being implemented. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U87-1.

Paragraph V. Power of boards to contract with each other.

(a) Any two or more boards of education may contract with each other for the care, education, and transportation of pupils and for such other activities as they may be authorized by law to perform.

(b) The General Assembly may provide by law for the sharing of facilities or services by and between local boards of education under such joint administrative authority as may be authorized.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Equal authority is conferred upon both county boards of education and local school districts to make contracts. Downer v. Stevens, 194 Ga. 598, 22 S.E.2d 139 (1942).

Relationship between county boards and local school district trustees not altered. — This paragraph was not intended to and did not have the effect of changing or altering the relationship of county boards of education and the trustees of the school districts. Downer v. Stevens, 194 Ga. 598, 22 S.E.2d 139 (1942) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V).

Contracts must be in conformity with existing law. — Local school district contracts must be executed in conformity with the existing law. Downer v. Stevens, 194 Ga. 598, 22 S.E.2d 139 (1942).

County board's approval required for acts of school district trustees. — Since supreme authority for operation of the schools is vested in the county board of education, all acts upon the part of the trustees of the school districts must have the approval of the county board. Downer v. Stevens, 194 Ga. 598, 22 S.E.2d 139 (1942).

County may contract state funds to city district. — Under a contract entered into between a city school district and a county, pursuant to which the district agrees to educate all school children residing in certain designated areas of the county outside the city limits, and which provides that the district shall receive from the State Board of Education all funds which would ordinarily go to the county board of education for those pupils from the county attending the district public schools, tax rebate funds under the former Tax Rebate Act, former O.C.G.A. § 20-2-330, should be distributed to the district. Cowen v. Snellgrove, 169 Ga. App. 271, 312 S.E.2d 623 (1983).

Judgment for reasonable cost not error. — Where there is an agreement between school boards for the education of certain students and the agreed cost is not shown, it is not error for the court to render judgment for the reasonable cost thereof. Walton County Bd. of Educ. v. Academy of Social Circle, 229 Ga. 114, 189 S.E.2d 690 (1972).

Due process or equal protection of law not denied. — A court order which requires a county to pay county school taxes to the city for education of children from its district does not deny citizens and taxpayers of the county due process or equal protection of the law. Walton County Bd. of Educ. v. Academy of Social Circle, 229 Ga. 114, 189 S.E.2d 690 (1972).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Out of state contracts prohibited. — School laws of this state do not authorize local boards of education to enter into contracts with out-of-state school systems for education of pupils residing in this state. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-98.

Joint management between local boards prohibited. — Local boards of education may contract with each other for the care, education, and transportation of pupils, but not for joint management, operation, and control of school facilities. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-32.

Independent school systems may contract with county boards for the purpose of receiving greater allotment of state-paid teachers than would normally be received. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 514.

County board of education can contract to pay county school funds to an independent school system in consideration for the latter educating certain school children of the former; this authority would include all the funds necessary to educate these children including capital outlay, i.e., funds for school buildings and additions thereto of the independent school district. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 116.

Constitutional powers to contract in this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I), are limited by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II), which states that control and management of county schools shall be confined to the county board of education; the power to exercise judgment and discretion cannot be delegated by a county board of education. 1958-59 Op.

Att'y Gen. p. 116 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V).

Agent for disbursing state allotted money. — If two local school districts enter into contract with respect to who shall receive state money allotted for education of a child, the Department of Education should disburse the money in accordance with the terms of the contract. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 124.

Incorporation or membership in nonprofit corporation by school boards prohibited. — While county boards of education were vested with broad powers respecting the management and control of school systems they administer under former Code 1933, § 32-908 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-520), including the right to contract with each other under this paragraph, the general laws pertaining to the creation of nonprofit corporations, (see now O.C.G.A. § 14-3-601 and § 14-3-201, respectively) appear to exclude the possibility of school boards incorporating or being members of nonprofit corporations as a county board of education was not a corporation, partnership, association, or other "person." 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-4 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V).

Donation of county taxation funds not authorized. — When the applicable revenue statutes, former Civil Code 1910, §§ 339, 400, 504, 506, and 513 (see

O.C.G.A. §§ 36-9-5, 48-5-220, and former 48-5-223, 48-5-225, and 48-5-227 (see § 48-5-220)), were construed together with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const., 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I) and this paragraph, it was held that they did not confer power or authority on a county board of commissioners to donate county funds derived from taxation or from other sources to a chamber of commerce, freight, bureau or convention and tourist bureau even if such donations were intended to accomplish a lawful purpose. Atlanta Chamber of Commerce v. McRae, 174 Ga. 590, 163 S.E. 701 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. VI).

Paragraph VII. Special schools.

(a) The General Assembly may provide by law for the creation of special schools in such areas as may require them and may provide for the participation of local boards of education in the establishment of such schools under such terms and conditions as it may provide; but no bonded indebtedness may be incurred nor a school tax levied for the support of special schools without the approval of the local board of education and a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in each of the systems affected. Any special schools shall be operated in conformity with regulations of the State Board of Education pursuant to provisions of law. Special schools may include state charter schools; provided, however, that special schools shall only be public schools. A state charter school under this section shall mean a public school that operates under the terms of a charter between the State Board of Education and a charter petitioner; provided, however, that such state charter schools shall not include private, sectarian, religious, or for profit schools or private educational institutions; provided, further, that this Paragraph shall not be construed to prohibit a local board of education from establishing a local charter school pursuant to Article VIII, Section V, Paragraph I. The state is authorized to expend state funds for the support and maintenance of special schools in such amount and manner as may be provided by law; provided, however, no deduction shall be made to any state funding which a local school system is otherwise authorized to receive pursuant to general law as a direct result or consequence of the enrollment in a state charter school of a specific student or students who reside within the geographic boundaries of the local school system.

(b) Nothing contained herein shall be construed to affect the authority of local boards of education or of the state to support and maintain special schools created prior to June 30, 1983. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 8, § 5, Para. 7; Ga. L. 2012, p. 1364, § 3/HR 1162.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutional amendment prevails when conflicts with previous provisions. — If a constitutional amendment duly adopted dealing with the establishment of area schools necessarily conflicts with some previous provision, the amendment, being the latest expression of the sovereign will of the people, will prevail as an implied modification pro tanto of the former provision. Cason v. State, 217 Ga. 339, 122 S.E.2d 232 (1961).

Amendment not violative of Constitution. — A constitutional amendment, adopted by voters in a general election, that deals with only one subject matter, the establishment of area schools, which under the amendment can be established only by contract between counties, or municipalities, or a county and a municipality, or combination thereof, is germane to the provisions of the Constitution, pertaining to the contractual powers of counties and municipalities, and does not violate the Constitution. Cason v. State, 217 Ga. 339, 122 S.E.2d 232 (1961).

State Charter School Act conflicts with provision. — Georgia Charter Schools Commission Act, O.C.G.A. § 20-2-2081 et seq., violated the special schools provision of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. VII(a) by authorizing a state commission to establish competing state-created general K-12 schools under the guise of being special schools. The special schools authorized by the constitution were not competitors with locally controlled schools in regard to the education of general K-12 students; rather, the constitutionally significant matters that made a school “special” were directly related to the school itself, the school’s student body, and the school’s curriculum. Gwinnett County Sch. Dist. v. Cox, 289 Ga. 265, 710 S.E.2d 773 (2011).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

School serving multi-district area. — The General Assembly may create a statutory mechanism by which one school could serve a multi-district area and provide for its governance by a governing board appointed by the local boards of the affected systems. 1998 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U98-2.

Taxing for support of vocational schools. — The governing authorities of counties or municipalities desiring to establish and maintain area vocational trade schools are authorized to levy a tax for such purposes; the circumstances under which the tax could be levied would be where the participating subdivisions have entered into an agreement for the establishment and maintenance of an area vocational trade school. 1967 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 67-153.

State charter schools. — A local school board has constitutional authority to manage and control schools within its system, but its authority is limited by the constitutional provision; therefore, the General Assembly may mandate additional requirements for state charter schools. 2001 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 2001-9.

Out-of-state contracts prohibited. — The general school laws of this state do not authorize local boards of education to enter into contracts with out-of-state school systems for the education of pupils residing in this state. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 74-98.

LOCAL TAXATION FOR EDUCATION

Paragraph

- I. Local taxation for education.
- II. Increasing or removing tax rate.
- III. School tax collection reimbursement.

Paragraph

- IV. Sales tax for educational purposes.

Paragraph I. Local taxation for education.

(a) The board of education of each school system shall annually certify to its fiscal authority or authorities a school tax not greater than 20 mills per dollar for the support and maintenance of education. Said fiscal authority or authorities shall annually levy said tax upon the assessed value of all taxable property within the territory served by said school system, provided that the levy made by an area board of education, which levy shall not be greater than 20 mills per dollar, shall be in such amount and within such limits as may be prescribed by local law applicable thereto.

(b) School tax funds shall be expended only for the support and maintenance of public schools, public vocational-technical schools, public education, and activities necessary or incidental thereto, including school lunch purposes.

(c) The 20 mill limitation provided for in subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph shall not apply to those school systems which are authorized on June 30, 1983, to levy a school tax in excess thereof.

(d) The method of certification and levy of the school tax provided for in subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph shall not apply to those systems that are authorized on June 30, 1983, to utilize a different method of certification and levy of such tax; but the General Assembly may by law require that such systems be brought into conformity with the method of certification and levy herein provided.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Ga. L. 1956, p. 2764 is unconstitutional and void as being in violation of this paragraph. Harrison v. May, 228 Ga. 684, 187 S.E.2d 673 (1972) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. D).

Property subject to tax levy. — The taxes provided for by this paragraph can only be levied upon “all taxable property of the county outside of independent local (school) systems” for the support of county schools under the control of county boards of education. Almand v. Board of Educ., 161 Ga. 911, 131 S.E. 897 (1926) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. D).

Exclusive financing method. — Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I establishes an exclusive financing method such that a school system is prohibited from receiving funds from any local tax source other than ad valorem taxes levied in accordance therewith. Atlanta Indep. Sch. Sys v. Lane, 266 Ga. 657, 469 S.E.2d 22 (1996).

An agreement between a city and school system whereby the system received an amount equal to 30% of the city's local option sales tax receipts was not valid since it was in violation of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I. Atlanta Indep. Sch. Sys v. Lane, 266 Ga. 657, 469 S.E.2d 22 (1996).

Authority over finances and taxing. — The board of county commissioners, and not the board of tax assessors, has jurisdiction over county finances and levying and collection of taxes for county purposes. Green v. Calhoun, 204 Ga. 550, 50 S.E.2d 209 (1948).

The board of commissioners has no discretion in levying taxes; its action is ministerial. The amount of the levy is discretionary with the board of education, within limits fixed by the Constitution or statute, and when duly determined it is mandatory. Rosser v. Meriwether County, 125 Ga. App. 239, 186 S.E.2d 788 (1971).

Mandatory on county board of commissioners to follow county boards of education recommendation on levying taxes. — Under this provision of the Constitution, it is mandatory upon county boards of commissioners, or other fiscal authorities levying taxes for the county, to follow the recommendation of county boards of education as to the tax levy to be made for the support of education where such recommendation is within the limitation defined by the Constitution. County Bd. of Educ. v. Board of Comm'rs of Rds. & Revenues, 201 Ga. 815, 41 S.E.2d 398 (1947).

The limitation of this paragraph is not imposed upon independent school systems. Ingram v. Payton, 222 Ga. 503, 150 S.E.2d 825 (1966) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. D).

School system within the grandfather clause of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I was authorized to levy school taxes in excess of 20 mills. Lane v. City of Atlanta, 267 Ga. 843, 483 S.E.2d 575 (1997).

Georgia Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I) applies only to elections for bonds, and not to elections authorizing levy of an additional educational tax in local school districts. Crye v. Pearce, 175 Ga. 85, 165 S.E. 121 (1932).

Illegality of providing additional revenue for education purposes by unlawful scheme. — The evidence was sufficient to authorize the court to find that the increase of 25 percent on the valuations of realty on the returns of the petitioners and other taxpayers was not a process of equalizing such valuations, but was an unlawful and arbitrary attempt to provide additional revenue for educational purposes, and to grant an interlocutory injunction against the defendants from making up, compiling, or listing any report or digest incorporating or including therein any increased assessment or changes or alterations in the returns of the taxpayers of the county, and enjoining the tax receiver of the county, from transmitting to the State Department of Revenue or the Comptroller General or the tax collector of the county or any tax authorities of the county or state any report, list, or other compilation or digest including or incorporating therein any increase or change or alteration in the return filed with the tax receiver by any taxpayer thereof. Green v. Calhoun, 204 Ga. 550, 50 S.E.2d 209 (1948).

The provisions of this paragraph are not intended to suffice for all phases of educational expenditures, but are separate from the power to levy a tax for the payment of bonded indebtedness for the erection of school buildings. Nelms v. Stephens County Sch. Dist., 201 Ga. 274, 39 S.E.2d 651 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Delegation of power without authorization prohibited. — Without specific legislative authorization, a school board has no authority, by contract or otherwise, to delegate to others the duties placed on the board by the Constitution and laws of Georgia. Chatham Ass'n of Educators v. Board of Pub. Educ., 231 Ga. 806, 204 S.E.2d 138 (1974).

Necessary qualities for additional revenue amendment to comply with due process and equal protection. — A proposed amendment allowing a school district to receive additional revenues from municipalities for school purposes had to be drafted to include all areas within the county school districts and ratified by the voters of each school district therein on a consolidated basis in order to comply with the due process and equal protection of law under the state and federal Constitution. City of Lithonia v. DeKalb County Bd. of Educ., 231 Ga. 150, 200 S.E.2d 698 (1973).

"Assessed value" defined. — The words "assessed value" in this constitutional provision means the correctly assessed value, i.e., the assessed value approved by the revenue commissioner, not an incorrectly assessed value. Board of Comm'rs v. Allgood, 234 Ga. 9, 214 S.E.2d 522 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I).

"Assessed value" is the correctly assessed fair market value. Benson-Corwin, Inc. v. Cobb County Sch. Dist., 239 Ga. 199, 236 S.E.2d 361 (1977).

To freeze the assessed value of property at an amount below its fair market value would obfuscate application of this paragraph. Benson-Corwin, Inc. v. Cobb County Sch. Dist., 239 Ga. 199, 236 S.E.2d 361 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Return of funds based on excessive tax assessment. — Where city received more tax revenue from taxpayers than they lawfully owed, which error resulted in the city remitting more tax funds to the school board than it was entitled to receive, the school board was required to refund its pro-rata share of the taxes, penalties, and interest due the taxpayers because of the improper assessment. The city was effectively acting as an agent for the school board. Atlanta Bd. of Educ. v. City of Atlanta, 262 Ga. 15, 413 S.E.2d 716 (1992).

Payment for garbage disposal associated with school lunch program proper. — Garbage disposal resulting from the school lunch program is incidental to that program which is assigned to the school district by the Constitution and “the county boards of education shall have the power to ... make all arrangements necessary to the efficient operation of the schools”; accordingly, the school districts have the authority and obligation to contract and pay for the service provided by the county in disposing of garbage resulting from the operation of the school lunch program. Fletcher v. Russell, 151 Ga. App. 229, 259 S.E.2d 212, rev’d on other grounds, 244 Ga. 854, 262 S.E.2d 138 (1979).

School district being an independent political entity may provide and compensate school crossing guards. Russell v. Fletcher, 244 Ga. 854, 262 S.E.2d 138 (1979).

Payment for county road improvements not authorized. — Improvements to a county public road leading to a school were the responsibility of the county because such improvements were not “necessary and incidental” to public education. Any representation by the school district supervisor of construction to the contrary did not bind the district to pay for the improvements. DeKalb County Sch. Dist. v. DeKalb County, 263 Ga. 879, 440 S.E.2d 185 (1994).

The use of school taxes to finance a redevelopment plan along 22 miles of historical rail segments violated Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I(b) because it was not “necessary or incidental” to public schools or public education. The plan benefitted all citizens and had little if any nexus to the actual operation of public schools. Woodham v. City of Atlanta, 283 Ga. 95, 657 S.E.2d 528 (2008).

Use of local school taxes for redevelopment. — School system, development authority, and others were properly granted summary judgment in a suit challenging the allocation of school taxes because the 2008 amendments to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VII(b) and O.C.G.A. § 36-44-9(g), governing tax allocation districts, changed the law and retroactively allowed use of local school taxes for general redevelopment purposes.

Sherman v. Atlanta Indep. Sch. Sys., 293 Ga. 268, 744 S.E.2d 26 (2013).

Instance of county children paying fee to attend city school not applicable. — Where a city school used funds raised from a county-wide tax and from federal and state funds based in part on students not in the city, children from the county could attend city schools without paying a charge or matriculation fee. Peak v. Board of Educ., 177 Ga. 476, 170 S.E. 488 (1933).

Homestead exemption did not violate this paragraph. — Court rejected a taxpayer’s contention that a school tax homestead exemption violated Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I, which required that school taxes be imposed on correctly assessed values, because the school taxes would be imposed on correctly assessed values, but the values of certain properties would then be reduced by the homestead exemption. Blevins v. Dade County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 288 Ga. 113, 702 S.E.2d 145 (2010).

Rule governing jurisdiction of Court of Appeals and Supreme Court. — The Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to decide questions of law that involve application, in a general sense, of unquestioned and unambiguous provisions of the Constitution to a given state of facts, and that do not involve construction of some constitutional provision directly in question and doubtful either under its own terms or under the decisions of the Supreme Court of the state or of the United States, and that do not involve the constitutionality of any law of the state or of the United States or of any treaty. Under this rule, the Supreme Court and not the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction where surety seeks to be held free of liability on grounds of constitutional provisions which made obligation unenforceable against school system as principal. Franklin v. Mobley, 202 Ga. 212, 42 S.E.2d 755 (1947).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Constitution manifests General Assembly's and people's intent to create two political subdivisions for handling schools. — This paragraph, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I), and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I) indicate that it was the intention of the General Assembly proposing the new Constitution, and of the people in adopting the new constitution, that there should be two political subdivisions for handling school affairs; first, the county district composed of the territory lying outside of the independent system, which territory should be under the control and management of a county board of education, and secondly, independent systems operated by municipal corporations. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 115 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I).

County boards of education have authority to recommend to county boards of commissioners the tax to be levied for school purposes. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 96.

Board of education must recommend the new rate to the taxing authority of the county. Their recommendation must precede the setting of the new tax levy by the taxing authorities. No specific date may be stated or recommended as the latest for the election. The date to be decided upon depends upon local conditions, but the constitutional provision must be complied with as to the method of removal and the determination of the new rate. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 44.

County fiscal authorities must levy taxes for education as recommended by county board of education. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 184.

Board of commissioners of a county has no discretion to refuse to levy any portion of the school tax recommended by the county board of education, so long as the amount of the recommended levy falls within the limits prescribed by law. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-22.

It is mandatory upon the fiscal authorities of a county levying taxes to follow recommendation of the county board of education as to tax levy to be made for support of education where such recommendation is within the limits defined by the Constitution; in effect, the action of the county board of commissioners is purely ministerial and they have no choice other than to make the tax levy recommended by the county board of education. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 37.

Tax limitation could be removed effective same year election is held for removal. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 44.

County board of education may not levy a county-wide school tax on property located in an independent school district. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 148.

Exclusive use of tax for purpose specified. — Interest earned on education taxes and in special county taxes becomes part of the tax proceeds in the account fund, which fund is required to be used exclusively for the purpose(s) specified in the resolution or ordinance calling for the imposition of the tax. 2001 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2001-3.

Establishment of a separate digest for school purposes would violate the spirit and intention of this paragraph. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 69 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Tax assessors may not lawfully create a separate tax digest or arbitrarily increase county tax digest for the purpose of providing additional revenue for educational purposes. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 69.

Term of contractual employment limited. — This paragraph, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II), and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V), impliedly limit the term of contractual employment of employees by county boards of education to one school year. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 79 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I).

A bonded indebtedness created by a subdistrict is not the debt of a county board of education but the debt of the political subdivision known as the school district. The county board of education would not have the right or power to levy special bond tax on all of the property of the county outside of independent school systems for the purpose of providing a sinking fund to pay the principal and interest of a debt created by one of the districts. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 170.

A county board of education may use surplus county school funds to retire matured bonds issued by a local school district prior to the 1945 Constitution for the erection of schoolhouses, title to which has vested in the county board of education. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 170.

County maintained roads. — Board of education may not use its funds for laying out, altering, maintaining and improving a public, county maintained road even though school transportation would be facilitated thereby; it is the sole duty and responsibility of the local officials in charge of county matters to lay out, alter, maintain, and improve the subject road in the manner they deem best suited to the needs of the county. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 189.

Items of a personal nature such as military uniforms are probably not legal expenditures for a local board of education; if a court subsequently held otherwise, the local superintendent would be held personally liable on the superintendent's bond for any such illegal expenditures. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 114.

The general arrangement for financing of independent school systems by a municipality is intended to be carried out upon a year to year basis upon the annual recommendations of the board of education to the municipality as to the rate of tax levy to be made by the municipal corporation, and upon such taxes as levied and collected for support of such independent school systems as appropriated when collected by the governing authority of the municipality to the board of education. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 186.

School funds cannot be used by a local school system to purchase billboard space for the display of public relations advertisements. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-85.

Charges for school meals sold to employees. — From a viewpoint of state law, since there are no longer any apparent state constitutional restrictions (as opposed to statutory and regulatory authorizations and restraints) respecting charges for school meals, in determining the sum it will charge teachers and other school employees for school meals, a local school system may properly exclude those indirect costs which the school system would have to bear whether or not the meals were sold to teachers and employees as well as to students; it would be permissible for a local school system to calculate the sum to be charged to the teacher or other employee based upon direct costs only. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 85-23.

Local school funds may not be used to pay chamber of commerce membership dues of the county school superintendent. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-3.

Lease of vehicles for students' extracurricular use. — A local board of education may not provide transportation to students for extracurricular activities by leasing vehicles for that use. 1995 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 95-2.

Sharing of services between boards of education unauthorized. — Georgia boards of education are not empowered to share services by creating and utilizing a nonprofit corporation such as the Consortium for Adequate School Funding in Georgia, Inc., for the purpose of challenging state school funding by litigation or otherwise. 2009 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 2009-3.

Constitutional referendum requirement implied in statute authorizing tax levy in excess of limit. — Where a local statute authorizes a school tax levy in excess of the constitutional limit without also requiring the constitutionally mandated referendum on the increase, the statute must be interpreted to include the constitutional referendum requirement. Atlantic C.L.R.R. v. City of Bainbridge, 175 Ga. 160, 165 S.E. 107 (1932).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Reducing limitation. — The procedures afforded by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. II may not be used to reduce a school millage limitation in effect on June 30, 1983. 1984 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U84-40.

Paragraph III. School tax collection reimbursement.

The General Assembly may by general law require local boards of education to reimburse the appropriate governing authority for the collection of school taxes, provided that any rate established may be reduced by local act.

Paragraph IV. Sales tax for educational purposes.

(a) The board of education of each school district in a county in which no independent school district is located may by resolution and the board of education of each county school district and the board of education of each independent school district located within such county may by concurrent resolutions impose, levy, and collect a sales and use tax for educational purposes of such school districts conditioned upon approval by a majority of the qualified voters residing within the limits of the local taxing jurisdiction voting in a referendum thereon. This tax shall be at the rate of 1 percent and shall be imposed for a period of time not to exceed five years, but in all other respects, except as otherwise provided in this Paragraph, shall correspond to and be levied in the same manner as the tax provided for by Article 3 of Chapter 8 of Title 48 of the Official Code of Georgia Annotated, relating to the special county 1 percent sales and use tax, as now or hereafter amended. Proceedings for the reimposition of such tax shall be in the same manner as proceedings for the initial imposition of the tax, but the newly authorized tax shall not be imposed until the expiration of the tax then in effect.

(b) The purpose or purposes for which the proceeds of the tax are to be used and may be expended include:

(1) Capital outlay projects for educational purposes;

(2) The retirement of previously incurred general obligation debt with respect only to capital outlay projects of the school system; provided, however, that the tax authorized under this Paragraph shall only be expended for the purpose authorized under this subparagraph (b)(2) if all ad valorem property taxes levied or scheduled to be levied prior to the maturity of any such then outstanding general obligation debt to be retired by the proceeds of the tax imposed under this Paragraph shall be reduced by a total amount equal to the total amount of proceeds of the tax imposed under this Paragraph to be applied to retire such bonded indebtedness. In the event of failure to comply with the requirements of this subparagraph (b)(2), as certified by the Department of Revenue, no further funds shall be expended under this subparagraph (b)(2) by such county or independent board of education and all such funds shall be maintained in a separate, restricted account and held solely for the expenditure for future capital outlay projects for educational purposes; or

(3) A combination of the foregoing.

(c) The resolution calling for the imposition of the tax and the ballot question shall each describe:

(1) The specific capital outlay projects to be funded, or the specific debt to be retired, or both, if applicable;

(2) The maximum cost of such project or projects and, if applicable, the maximum amount of debt to be retired, which cost and amount of debt shall also be the maximum amount of net proceeds to be raised by the tax; and

(3) The maximum period of time, to be stated in calendar years or calendar quarters and not to exceed five years.

(d) Nothing in this Paragraph shall prohibit a county and those municipalities located in such county from imposing as additional taxes local sales and use taxes authorized by general law.

(e) The tax imposed pursuant to this Paragraph shall not be subject to and shall not count with respect to any general law limitation regarding the maximum amount of local sales and use taxes which may be levied in any jurisdiction in this state.

(f) The tax imposed pursuant to this Paragraph shall not be subject to any sales and use tax exemption with respect to the sale or use of food and beverages which is imposed by law.

(g) The net proceeds of the tax shall be distributed between the county school district and the independent school districts, or portion thereof, located in such county according to the ratio the student enrollment in each school district, or portion thereof, bears to the total student enrollment of all school districts in the county or upon such other formula for distribution as may be authorized by local law. For purposes of this subparagraph, student enrollment shall be based on the latest FTE count prior to the referendum on imposing the tax.

(h) Excess proceeds of the tax which remain following expenditure of proceeds for authorized projects or purposes for education shall be used solely for the purpose of reducing any indebtedness of the school system. In the event there is no indebtedness, such excess proceeds shall be used by such school system for the purpose of reducing its millage rate in an amount equivalent to the amount of such excess proceeds.

(i) The tax authorized by this Paragraph may be imposed, levied, and collected as provided in this Paragraph without further action by the General Assembly, but the General Assembly shall be authorized by general law to further define and implement its provisions including, but not limited to, the authority to specify the percentage of net proceeds to be allocated among the projects and purposes for which the tax was levied.

(j)(1) Notwithstanding any provision of any constitutional amendment continued in force and effect pursuant to Article XI, Section I, Paragraph IV(a) and except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (j)(2) of this Paragraph, any political subdivision whose ad valorem taxing powers are restricted pursuant to such a constitutional amendment may receive the proceeds of the tax authorized under this Paragraph or of any local sales and use tax authorized by general law, or any combination of such taxes, without any corresponding limitation of its ad valorem taxing powers which would otherwise be required under such constitutional amendment.

(2) The restriction on and limitation of ad valorem taxing powers described in subparagraph (j)(1) of this Paragraph shall remain applicable with respect to proceeds received from the levy of a local sales and use tax specifically authorized by a constitutional amendment in force and effect pursuant to Article XI, Section I, Paragraph IV(a), as opposed to a local sales and use tax authorized by this Paragraph or by general law. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 8, § 6, Para. 4, approved by Ga. L. 1996, p. 1668, § 1/HR 728.)

1976 Constitution. — There were no similar provisions in the 1976 Constitution.

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1996, p. 1668, § 1) which enacted this paragraph was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 5, 1996.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Term "capital outlay projects for educational purposes" in subsection (b)(1) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. IV includes school buses and equipment with an extended useful life. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 97-7.

Referendum required. — A referendum is required before a school board may borrow money for a term longer than 12 calendar months where the loan is to be repaid from expected sales tax for educational purposes. A school board may, without such referendum, borrow money for a term of one calendar year or less, if certain legal requirements are met. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 97-30.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Use of proceeds for unspecified projects. — School board had no authority, under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. IV(a) to use the proceeds of a special purpose local option sales tax to provide middle and high school students with lap top computers because: (1) the board was bound by projects detailed in promotional literature prior to adoption of the tax; (2) the board's desired use was not the functional equivalent of a specified project to "restore obsolete work stations," as it only gave computers to middle and high school students, but the literature said the tax was to update computer laboratory workstations used by all students; and (3) the board could not abandon the original initiatives the tax was to fund, which were still feasible, so it was appropriate to issue a writ of mandamus to enjoin the board from using the proceeds for other uses. Johnstone v. Thompson, 280 Ga. 611, 631 S.E.2d 650 (2006).

Local school board had discretion, under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. IV(a) to make decisions that fell within the authorization of a special purpose local option sales tax referendum as long as any alteration in its plans did not contravene the terms of the referendum or otherwise violate the law. Johnstone v. Thompson, 280 Ga. 611, 631 S.E.2d 650 (2006).

No excess proceeds to refund. — Trial court properly denied a taxpayer's writ of mandamus filed under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. IV(h) against a school district seeking the return of excess proceeds collected pursuant to an educational sales and use tax approved by referendum because there was no excess to refund. Marsh v. Clarke County Sch. Dist., 292 Ga. 28, 732 S.E.2d 443 (2012).

SECTION VII.

EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE

Paragraph

- I. Educational assistance programs authorized.
- II. Guaranteed revenue debt.

Paragraph

- III. Public authorities.
- IV. Waiver of tuition.

Paragraph I. Educational assistance programs authorized.

(a) Pursuant to laws now or hereafter enacted by the General Assembly, public funds may be expended for any of the following purposes:

(1) To provide grants, scholarships, loans, or other assistance to students and to parents of students for educational purposes.

(2) To provide for a program of guaranteed loans to students and to parents of students for educational purposes and to pay interest, interest subsidies, and fees to lenders on such loans. The General Assembly is authorized to provide such tax exemptions to lenders as shall be deemed advisable in connection with such program.

(3) To match funds now or hereafter available for student assistance pursuant to any federal law.

(4) To provide grants, scholarships, loans, or other assistance to public employees for educational purposes.

(5) To provide for the purchase of loans made to students for educational purposes who have completed a program of study in a field in which critical shortages exist and for cancellation of repayment of such loans, interest, and charges thereon.

(b) Contributions made in support of any educational assistance program now or hereafter established under provisions of this section may be deductible for state income tax purposes as now or hereafter provided by law.

(c) The General Assembly shall be authorized by general law to provide for an education trust fund to assist students and parents of students in financing postsecondary education and to provide for contracts between the fund and purchasers for the advance payment of tuition by each purchaser for a qualified beneficiary to attend a state institution of higher education. Such general law shall provide for such terms, conditions, and limitations as the General Assembly shall deem necessary for the implementation of this subparagraph. Notwithstanding any provision of this Constitution to the contrary, the General Assembly shall be authorized to provide for the guarantee of such contracts with state revenues. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 8, § 7, Para. 1; Ga. L. 1990, p. 2433, § 1/HR 763.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Fiscal resources of Georgia Agricultural Commodity Commission for milk may not be expended to fund student scholarships in the dairy science curricula at the University of Georgia or to participate in funding a private scholarship foundation for students matriculating in such curricula. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-115.

Constitutional prohibition on gratuities, Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI), does not apply to state grants for educational purposes. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-147.

Georgia Forest Research Council may make educational grants only if the General Assembly has first appropriated funds to it for use in obtaining federal funds for scholarships and the combined state and federal funds are used for purposes authorized by the federal government. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-268.

An applicant must be a citizen of the United States in order to qualify for a medical education scholarship loan under this paragraph. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-68 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II).

State funds cannot be used for payment of interest on loans to noncitizens of Georgia. — Georgia Higher Education Assistance Corporation is authorized to establish and administer a program of guaranteed educational loans to eligible parents, but guarantee of and payment of interest on loans to parents who are not Georgia citizens must be by private, not state appropriated, funds. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-153.

College courses should presumptively be considered beyond the scope of the ordinary training agencies may provide employees in state government, although, in certain narrow circumstances, agencies may train employees in college courses which provide job-specific instruction. 1998 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 98-16.

A state department or agency may implement a doctoral-level training program for employees, provided that it does so using regularly appropriated funds to obtain federal matching funds. 1973 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 73-154.

Federal education assistance program prerequisite to grants to board’s employees. — This paragraph would not authorize legislation, let alone board of education regulations, which would permit grants to the state board’s employees independently of a federal education assistance program. 1963-65 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 758 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VII, Para. I).

Delinquent state teachers’ scholarships. — Constitutional provisions require that any money which is collected by the State Board of Education from delinquent state teachers’ scholarships must be paid into the general fund of the state treasury and cannot be used in making future scholarship commitments by the State Board of Education. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 71-126.

Grants to extant teachers prohibited. — The phrase “interested in becoming teachers” would not be construed by the courts as authorizing grants to persons who already are teachers. 1963-65 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 758 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. II).

Funds used to pay scholarships may be paid directly to colleges where students are attending; the board of education has authority to prescribe the terms and the conditions of the scholarships granted and this is an entirely reasonable and proper regulation to require for the receipt of scholarship aid. 1958-59 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 142.

Condition for Board of Regents’ scholarships. — Current statutory law relating to Board of Regents’ “scholarships” requires that the award of such scholarships continue to be conditioned upon the current “service of Georgia” requirement. 1986 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 86-25.

Compliance with Fair and Open Grants Act in administering scholarships. — It was not the intent of the General Assembly that the Georgia Student Finance Commission comply with the Fair and Open Grants Act, O.C.G.A. § 28-5-120 et seq., in administering the HOPE Scholarship, Hope Grant, and other state scholarship and grant programs. 2002 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 2002-2.

Guaranteed revenue debt may be incurred to provide funds to make loans to students and to parents of students for educational purposes, to purchase loans made to students and to parents of students for educational purposes, or to lend or make deposits of such funds with lenders which shall be secured by loans made to students and to parents of students for educational purposes. tion resulting from investment of the three foregoing classifications of funds and from reinvestment of prior investment-earned income with federal savings and loan associations and with state-chartered building and loan associations which are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. 1969 Op. Body Corporate

1. General Consideration

This paragraph is self-executing. Arnett v. Board of Comm’rs, 75 Ga. 782 (1885) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. D).

For definition of a county, see Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 36 L.R.A. (n.s.) 77 (1911).

2. Powers

Counties can exercise only such powers as are conferred on them by law, and a county can exercise no powers except such as are expressly given or necessarily implied from express grant of other powers. DeKalb County v. Atlanta Gas Light Co., 228 Ga. 512, 186 S.E.2d 732 (1972).

This section confers no power on a county to contest the validity of a constitutional amendment. Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 36 L.R.A. (n.s.) 77 (1911) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Under this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III), there is nothing illegal or unconstitutional nor is it an abuse of discretion for a governing body of a county to seek advice and recommendations from various department heads, advisory committees, and the general public prior to taking official action. Lindsey v. Guhl, 237 Ga. 567, 229 S.E.2d 354 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Right of a county to levy a tax must be clear. Bowers v. Hanks, 152 Ga. 659, 111 S.E. 38 (1922).

Liquor permits. — Section of DeKalb County Code requiring all employees of an establishment holding a license for consumption of beer or wine, except busboys, cooks, and dishwashers, to have permits was not unconstitutional and did not exceed the county's powers of home rule. Kariuki v. DeKalb County, 253 Ga. 713, 324 S.E.2d 450 (1985), overruled on other grounds, Russell v. City of E. Point, 261 Ga. 213, 403 S.E.2d 50 (1991).

3. Liability

Acts of board of education. — A county acts through its officers and agents. In matters pertaining to education, it acts through its board of education. When the board of education acts upon matters lawfully within its jurisdiction, it is the county acting through its corporate authority, and a county is not liable to suit for any cause of action unless made so by statute. But when the board of education, through its members, acts beyond the scope of its lawful jurisdiction and commits an actionable wrong, the act so committed is not "county action," and in such a case a suit may be maintained in the courts of this state against the wrongdoers. Duffee v. Jones, 208 Ga. 639, 68 S.E.2d 699 (1952).

Liability of county to suit generally.

— This paragraph subjects the counties of this state to suit, but not to suits upon all causes of action. It does not make them generally liable to suits, like individuals or as municipal corporations. Being political subdivisions of the state, they cannot be sued unless made subject to suit expressly or by necessary implication. Decatur County v. Praytor, Howton & Wood Contracting Co., 163 Ga. 929, 137 S.E. 247 (1927) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

County liability based on Constitution or statute. — The constitutional provision that a county is a body corporate and the statutory provision that a county, as a body corporate, may be sued in any court, do not authorize a suit against a county for damages where the county is not made liable for such damages by the Constitution or by statute. Revels v. Tift County, 235 Ga. 333, 219 S.E.2d 445 (1975).

County is not liable on an implied contract. Smith v. Baker County, 142 Ga. 168, 82 S.E. 557 (1914); Decatur County v. Roberts, 159 Ga. 528, 126 S.E. 460 (1925).

Requirements to enjoin county board action. — In order to enjoin a county board's action in selecting a solid waste disposal site, plaintiffs are required to show an abuse of discretion or a constitutional violation. Lindsey v. Guhl, 237 Ga. 567, 229 S.E.2d 354 (1976).

4. Actions

Suit must name county as corporate body to proceed against county with suit. — Where a suit is brought against the board of county commissioners alleging that the building of a certain road has injured the plaintiff, the suit is intended as one against the county, and where the petition does not name as a defendant the county as a corporate body but instead only names the board of commissioners, who are its agents, the petition cannot be amended and must be dismissed. Merritt v. Dixon, 222 Ga. 432, 150 S.E.2d 644 (1966).

An action must be brought in name of the county. Smith v. Fuller, 135 Ga. 271, 69 S.E. 177, 1912A Ann. Cas. 70

Injunction against county governing officials proper. — Though suits by and against a county are properly brought in the name of the county, an injunction may be sought in a court of equity in an action which is brought against the governing officials of the county. Olley Valley Estates, Inc. v. Fussell, 232 Ga. 779, 208 S.E.2d 801 (1974).

Legislature can designate the ordinary (now judge of probate court) as the county official to whom bond of a sole commissioner should be made payable, and can provide that the ordinary should sue on the bond in the event of default. Ordinarily, the sole commissioner would be the person who would institute suits in the name of the county, but this is not such a case. This is not a suit by the county, but is one by the ordinary for the use of the county. The bond was a contract between the ordinary, and the sole commissioner and the surety. McRae v. Sears, 183 Ga. 133, 187 S.E. 664 (1936).

County can bring action to collect delinquent payments due county facility. — Where county had the legislative authority, by implication, to maintain a hospital for the benefit of paupers and incidentally make charges for the use thereof by persons able to pay in order to help bear the expenses of maintaining said hospital and in accord with a plain and single rule of natural right and justice, such county could bring an action for said charges; such suit was properly brought in the name of the county. Oliver v. Hall County Mem. Hosp., 62 Ga. App. 95, 8 S.E.2d 138 (1940).

County Government

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I and antecedent provisions, which provided that the General Assembly could create tribunals and officers for the transaction of county matters subject to uniformity throughout the state, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Ga. L. 1919 p. 288, § 147 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-101) is not violative of this paragraph. Olliff v. Hendrix, 172 Ga. 497, 158 S.E. 11 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

This paragraph was not violated when term of clerk of city court shortened. Collins v. Russell, 107 Ga. 423, 33 S.E. 444 (1899) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Creation of County Commissioners of Ware County did not violate this paragraph. Crawley v. State, 150 Ga. 86, 102 S.E. 898 (1920); Smith v. Duggan, 153 Ga. 463, 112 S.E. 458 (1922); Rhodes v. Jernigan, 155 Ga. 523, 117 S.E. 432 (1923), overruled on other grounds, Lucas v. Woodward, 240 Ga. 770, 243 S.E.2d 28 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Former Code 1933, Ch. 23-25, making treasurer ex-officio officer of commission did not violate this paragraph. McFarlin v. Board of Drainage Comm'rs, 153 Ga. 766, 113 S.E. 447 (1922) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

For an invalid Act appointing a county treasurer for an unexpired term, see McCants v. Layfield, 149 Ga. 231, 99 S.E. 877 (1919).

This paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I) must be construed together. They confer upon the General Assembly power to create boards of commissioners with such powers as the General Assembly may grant, without regard to uniformity in the powers conferred; and the constitutional prohibition under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. IV, Para. IV), which declares that no special law shall be enacted in any case for which provision has been made by an existing general law, is not violated by the creation of such boards. Sanders v. Wilkinson County, 69 Ga. App. 676, 26 S.E.2d 467 (1943); Bowen v. Lewis, 201 Ga. 487, 40 S.E.2d 80 (1946); Robert v. Steed, 207 Ga. 41, 60 S.E.2d 134 (1950) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), regarding special laws, has been construed together with Ga.

County Government (Cont'd)

Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I), and this paragraph, to impose little restriction on the General Assembly in creating and defining duties of county commissioners by special Act. The General Assembly has the power to pass separate and distinct laws creating county commissioners for every county in Georgia; and the provisions of general laws enacted by the legislature do not apply to such officers, unless made so by the special laws creating them. Smith v. Abercrombie, 235 Ga. 741, 221 S.E.2d 802 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Constitutional requirement of uniformity is not applicable to law relating to the powers and duties of county commissioners. Deason v. DeKalb County, 222 Ga. 63, 148 S.E.2d 414 (1966).

Legislation enacted by General Assembly with respect to creation of tribunals or offices for transaction of county matters must be uniform throughout the state. Such tribunals or offices must be of the same name, jurisdiction, and remedies. Toole v. Anderson, 177 Ga. 814, 171 S.E. 714 (1933).

Different political subdivisions and processes. — There is nothing that prohibits a state from creating different kinds of political subdivisions and providing a different process for selecting and removing officials in those subdivisions. Smith v. Abercrombie, 235 Ga. 741, 221 S.E.2d 802 (1975).

General Assembly has power to pass separate and distinct laws creating county commissioners for every county in Georgia; and the provisions of general laws enacted by the legislature do not apply to such officers, unless made so by the special laws creating them. Humthlett v. Reeves, 211 Ga. 210, 85 S.E.2d 25 (1954).

Effect of joint construction of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV). — There is no general law in this state regulating the creating of county commissioners and fixing their jurisdiction, powers, and duties, but all such Acts are special laws; and construing together Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), and this paragraph, as they must be construed, there is no limitation or restriction upon the General Assembly in the creation of such commissioners, and in fixing their jurisdiction, powers, and duties. Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Different construction sometimes warranted. — There is good reason to construe the provision found in this paragraph as being separate and distinct in its requirements from the provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), prohibiting the passing of special laws where there was already an existing general law. Toole v. Anderson, 177 Ga. 814, 171 S.E. 714 (1933) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

The provisions of this paragraph are more nearly akin to those in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. I), than Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV). Toole v. Anderson, 177 Ga. 814, 171 S.E. 714 (1933) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Setting compensation for county officers. — This paragraph allows nonuniformity when the legislature fixes compensation of county treasurers. McCall v. Wilkins, 145 Ga. 342, 89 S.E. 219 (1916); Clayton County v. Worsham, 239 Ga. 135, 236 S.E.2d 80 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

The General Assembly is not governed by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV) in fixing the compensation of tax commissioners. Clayton County v. Worsham, 239 Ga. 135, 236 S.E.2d 80 (1977).

This paragraph applies to a grand jury inasmuch as it is a tribunal created for transacting county business and considering county matters. Bussell v. Youngblood, 239 Ga. 553, 238 S.E.2d 89 (1977) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Special laws for discharging county employees. — Even though a general law provides a manner for discharging county police by county commissioners, a special law relating to the subject is valid. Deason v. DeKalb County, 222 Ga. 63, 148 S.E.2d 414 (1966).

County administrator has authority, previously vested in county commissioners, to hire and fire. Spell v. Blalock, 243 Ga. 459, 254 S.E.2d 842 (1979).

General Assembly may confer upon county commissioner power and authority to contract for a cadastral survey, and if commissioner may contract for such a survey under the authority of the General Assembly, the same authority may provide a method whereby revenue will be provided to pay any reasonable cost thereof. Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952).

Diversity in operation between counties. — The general rule is that laws of a general nature shall have uniform operation throughout the state; however, the Constitution made an exception as to county commissioners, which sanctions the utmost diversity consistent with the needs of the particular county that may require them. Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952).

Rationale for constitutionality of §§ 48-5-297, 48-5-299, and 48-5-306. — Former Code 1933, §§ 92-6911 and 92-6913 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 48-5-297, 48-5-299, and 48-5-306), providing for a cadastral survey in certain counties, would not have been unconstitutional, illegal, and void, as contended, even had such Acts named a certain county rather than having fixed a classification based on population, since the purpose of such Acts was to confer upon the proper governing authority of counties falling within the classification fixed additional powers and duties. Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952).

Local law violated Constitution. — An Act which created the office of chief tax assessor and the board of tax assessors review in the City of Augusta and Richmond County was not authorized by Ga. L. 1956, pp. 453-456, a local amendment to this paragraph, and was in violation of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV). Dobson v. Brown, 225 Ga. 73, 166 S.E.2d 22 (1969) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

School board members. — Term limitations of Telfair County Tenure Law, 1963 Ga. Laws 705, do not apply to school board members because the Tenure Law amends Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX and not Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII; thus, a member who was serving a third consecutive term was not subject to the Tenure Law. Dyal v. Pope, 283 Ga. 463, 660 S.E.2d 725 (2008).

Right to bring suit. — Contention that it was right of ordinary (now judge of probate court), rather than board of county commissioners, to bring suit to recover money allegedly paid illegally to sheriff was without merit. Sanders v. Wilkinson County, 69 Ga. App. 676, 26 S.E.2d 467 (1943).

County Commissioners

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VII and antecedent provisions, which provided that the General Assembly had the power to create and define the duties of county commissioners, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

This paragraph should be construed in connection with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I). Sanders v. Wilkinson County, 69 Ga. App. 676, 26 S.E.2d 467 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

This paragraph confers upon the General Assembly the power to create boards of commissioners with such powers as the General Assembly may grant, without regard to uniformity in the powers conferred; and that the constitutional prohibition under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), which declares that no special law shall be enacted in any case for which provision has been made by an existing general law, is not violated by the creation of such boards. Robert v. Steed, 207 Ga. 41, 60 S.E.2d 134 (1950) (see Ga. Const. 1983,

County Commissioners (Cont'd)

Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Restrictions on General Assembly in defining county commissioner's role. — This constitutional power to create commissioners and define their duties, does not serve in anyway or manner to abrogate the inhibition against delegation of legislative authority. By analogy, the General Assembly may be constitutionally authorized to set up and create various state boards, departments, bureaus and the like, but this authority standing alone will not permit the General Assembly to delegate its legislative authority to such lawfully constituted authorities. Bibb County v. Garrett, 204 Ga. 817, 51 S.E.2d 658 (1949) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), regarding special laws, has been construed together with this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VI, to impose little restriction on the General Assembly in creating and defining the duties of county commissioners by special Act. The General Assembly has the power to pass separate and distinct laws creating county commissioners for every county in Georgia; and the provisions of general laws enacted by the legislature do not apply to such officers, unless made so by the special laws creating them. Smith v. Abercrombie, 235 Ga. 741, 221 S.E.2d 802 (1975) (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Granting administrative power to regulate and control. — The prohibition against delegation of legislative powers does not preclude the General Assembly from vesting in some other authority administrative power to regulate and control. Bibb County v. Garrett, 204 Ga. 817, 51 S.E.2d 658 (1949).

Purpose of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV) is to ordain the uniform operation throughout the state of all general laws; but the Constitution made an exception as to county commissioners in this paragraph, which sanctions utmost diversity content with needs of the particular county that "may require them." Bradford v. Hammond, 179 Ga. 40, 175 S.E. 18 (1934).

This paragraph and § 36-1-4 subject to qualification by special Act. — Under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VI, this paragraph, and former Code 1933, §§ 23-1713 and 23-1714 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-1-14), so far as they refer to county commissioners, are subject to qualification by special Acts, and the special Acts need not be uniform. Moore v. Whaley, 189 Ga. 647, 7 S.E.2d 394 (1940) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Instance of section being unconstitutional as special law unwarranted.

— Act relating to the board of county commissioners of a named county, which provided that county commissioners should not "purchase directly or indirectly materials, livestock, supplies or other articles for any department of the county, from himself or from any copartnership in which he may be interested directly or indirectly, nor from any person directly or indirectly, in his employ in any capacity whatsoever," that if on prescribed investigation any commissioner was found guilty of having violated such provisions the commissioner should be removed from office by written order of the judge or ordinary (now judge of probate court), trying such charges, was not unconstitutional on the ground that it was a special law enacted in a case for which provision had been made by an existing general law, to-wit former Code 1933, §§ 23-1713 and 23-1714 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-1-14), relating to purchases in behalf of counties by county commissioners and removal for violation of the inhibition therein declared. Robitzsch v. State, 189 Ga. 637, 7 S.E.2d 387 (1940).

This provision was contained in the Constitution of 1877 and the Constitution of 1868, as well as that of 1945. Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Legislature has power to pass separate and distinct Acts for any counties which require county commissioners, and does not require these Acts to be uniform in operation. Bradford v.

Art. 9, § 1, ¶ 1 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 1, ¶ 1

Hammond, 179 Ga. 40, 175 S.E. 18 (1934); Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952).

Uniform law not required. — This paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VI, do not require passage of a general uniform law defining the duties of county commissioners. Pulaski County v. Pollock, 83 Ga. 270, 9 S.E. 1065 (1889); Sayer v. Brown, 119 Ga. 539, 46 S.E. 649 (1904); Deason v. DeKalb County, 222 Ga. 63, 148 S.E.2d 414 (1966) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Different grants of power. — The General Assembly may grant to and define powers of county board of commissioners that are different from and contrary to a general statutory grant of powers to county governing authorities. SCA Servs. of Ga., Inc. v. Fulton County, 238 Ga. 154, 231 S.E.2d 774 (1977).

Intimation to contrary regarding granting of power in Conley v. Poole, 67 Ga. 254 (1884) was obiter. — Smith v. Duggan, 153 Ga. 463, 112 S.E. 458 (1922); Rhodes v. Jernigan, 155 Ga. 523, 117 S.E. 432 (1923), overruled on other grounds, 240 Ga. 770, 243 S.E.2d 28 (1978).

It has been said that there is no limit to the power of the General Assembly to define the powers of the county board of commissioners. Decatur County v. Roberts, 159 Ga. 528, 126 S.E. 460 (1925); Bowen v. Lewis, 201 Ga. 487, 40 S.E.2d 80 (1946); Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952).

In defining the power, other provisions of the state Constitution must not be violated. Board of Comm'rs v. Mayor of Americus, 141 Ga. 542, 81 S.E. 435 (1914).

Method of laying out public roads in a county prescribed by former Code 1933, Ch. 95-2 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 4, T. 32) was passed by virtue of this paragraph. Commissioners of Decatur County v. Curry, 154 Ga. 378, 114 S.E. 341 (1922) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Commissioners legally authorized to exercise municipal powers. Churchill v. Walker, 68 Ga. 681 (1882).

Contracts. — An implied power is conferred by a statute granting jurisdiction to county authorities to contract in regard to the details. Wright v. Floyd County, 1 Ga. App. 582, 58 S.E. 72 (1907).

Contract with a citizen to investigate unreturned taxable property is void. Decatur County v. Roberts, 159 Ga. 528, 126 S.E. 460, answer conformed to, 33 Ga. App. 437, 126 S.E. 557 (1925).

Act creating board of county commissioners not infringement on power of probate court judge. — Since the General Assembly has constitutional authority to create a board of county commissioners, and since the ordinary (now judge of probate court) is given jurisdiction over county matters only when such a board has not been created, a contention that an Act creating such a board unconstitutionally infringes upon and restricts power and authority of an ordinary, a duly elected, qualified, commissioned and acting county official during the official's term of office is without merit. Bleckley v. Vickers, 225 Ga. 593, 170 S.E.2d 695 (1969).

Ordinary (now judge of probate court) sits for county purposes only in those counties where jurisdiction over county matters and county affairs has not been granted by legislative Act to a county commissioner or board of county commissioners. Bleckley v. Vickers, 225 Ga. 593, 170 S.E.2d 695 (1969).

Power to prescribe powers includes power to limit. — The authority of the General Assembly to prescribe powers of the ordinary (now judge of probate court) over county affairs necessarily includes authority to increase or diminish such powers. Bleckley v. Vickers, 225 Ga. 593, 170 S.E.2d 695 (1969).

Mode of choosing county officer's legislature's discretion. — There is no limit on this power. Nor does the Constitution point out how these officers shall be chosen. It leaves the whole matter to the discretion of the legislature. In other words, the people have not seen fit to restrict themselves to the mode of the choice of such officers. Bleckley v. Vickers, 225 Ga. 593, 170 S.E.2d 695 (1969).

General Assembly may confer upon county commissioner power and authority to contract for a cadastral survey, and if the commissioner may contract for such a survey under the authority of the General Assembly, the same authority may provide a method whereby revenue will be provided to pay any reasonable cost thereof. Hutchins v. Candler, 209 Ga. 415, 73 S.E.2d 191 (1952).

Specificity of amending Act sufficient for validation. — The description of an Act to be amended as an Act to amend an Act creating a board of county commissioners for a specific county, so as to provide for commissioner districts, etc., unmistakably identifies the law to be amended, reveals the legislative intent, and is valid. Stembridge v. Newton, 213 Ga. 304, 99 S.E.2d 133 (1957).

County has no right, in the absence of special or local legislation granting such right, to operate an ambulance service. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-176.

Municipal corporations engaging in traditional private business. — In absence of special circumstances, it is not within the constitutional power of the legislature to authorize a municipal corporation (county) to engage in a business which can be and ordinarily is carried on by private enterprise merely for the purpose of obtaining an income or deriving a profit therefrom, but it should be allowed to go into business only on the theory that thereby the public welfare will be subserved. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-176 (decided under former §§ 2-5801, 2-6201 and 2-6501).

County Government

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VI and antecedent provisions, which provided that the General Assembly could create tribunals and officers for county matters subject to uniformity throughout the state, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Distinction between constitutional provisions in invalidation of special laws. — A "special" law is invalidated by the second clause of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV) only where a general law covering the subject already exists, while the first clause of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Paras. I, II) and this paragraph, invalidate any special legislation, even where general laws dealing with their respective subject matters exist. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 375 (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Mingling of county police and sheriff's department. — When county police department is established and law enforcement functions of sheriff are transferred to such department, the sheriff or the sheriff's deputies may not become members of the police department so as to exercise the police power. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-28.

County Commissioners

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VII and antecedent provisions, which provided that the General Assembly had the power to create and define the duties of county commissioners, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Uniformity not required. — This paragraph authorizes the General Assembly to provide for boards of commissioners for counties and defines their duties with no requirement of uniformity, so the General Assembly can grant to and define powers of the county board of commissioners different from and contrary to a general statutory grant of powers to county governing authorities since Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV) does not apply to statutes defining the powers of a county governing authority. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-11 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Payment of taxes not required for political candidates. — Construing Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. V, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VIII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III), and this paragraph, the payment of taxes is not required of any candidate for a state office except that members of the General Assembly may not be seated if in default for taxes; whether candidates for county offices are eligible to run where they are behind with payment of taxes depends upon the office and the legislative Acts relating to that office or officer. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 311 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I).

Grants of power to counties and municipalities strictly construed. — Counties and municipal corporations can only exercise such powers as are conferred by law, and grants of such powers must be strictly construed. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-25.

New Counties

New counties occupy same position as old counties. Fordham v. Sikes, 141 Ga. 469, 81 S.E. 208 (1914).

Facts insufficient to void Act creating new county. — The facts that: (1) county line not fixed according to agreement of citizens; or (2) election of county officers by Act was void; or (3) that change of county line affected school districts were not sufficient to declare an Act creating a new county void. Clements v. Powell, 155 Ga. 278, 116 S.E. 624 (1923).

Act creating county valid. Moore v. Smith, 140 Ga. 854, 79 S.E. 1116 (1913); Fordham v. Sikes, 141 Ga. 469, 81 S.E. 208 (1914).

Boundary Changes

Act to change county lines cannot result in leaving a county without a county site. County of DeKalb v. City of Atlanta, 132 Ga. 727, 65 S.E. 72 (1909).

Valid change of county line. — This paragraph was not violated by former Ga. L. 1909, p. 152, permitting change of county lines within the limits of incorporated towns and cities. Manson v. City of College Park, 131 Ga. 429, 62 S.E. 278 (1908) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Ga. L. 1911, p. 183, authorizing change of county lines between contiguous counties of a certain population, was void. Worth County v. Crisp County, 139 Ga. 117, 76 S.E. 747 (1912).

Valid Acts changing county lines, see County of DeKalb v. City of Atlanta, 132 Ga. 727, 65 S.E. 72 (1909); Aultman v. Hodge, 147 Ga. 626, 95 S.E. 297 (1918).

Procedure

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. V and antecedent provisions, which provided that no county site could be changed or removed except upon two-thirds vote of the county electorate and majority vote of the General Assembly, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Purpose of paragraph and sections. — This paragraph, and former Civil Code 1910, §§ 468-471 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 36-3-1 through 36-3-4), enacted in pursuance thereof, were designated to prevent the transfer of a few acres, or residences from one county to another by legislative Act. Aultman v. Hodge, 147 Ga. 626, 95 S.E. 297 (1918); Aultman v. Hodge, 150 Ga. 370, 104 S.E. 1 (1920) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Does not apply to administrative facilities. — This paragraph relates to change or removal from such site of the courthouse, courts, and the places of transacting official business of the county, but not to administrative facilities such as jails. Jackson v. Gasses, 230 Ga. 712, 198 S.E.2d 657 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Amount of land to be transferred is within the discretion of the officers, subject to the limitations to this paragraph. Aultman v. Hodge, 147 Ga. 626, 95 S.E. 297 (1918) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Work of changing county lines is political or legislative rather than judicial in nature. Aultman v. Hodge, 147 Ga. 626, 95 S.E. 297 (1918).

Paragraph violated. — This paragraph was violated by an Act which provided that the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters of the county shall be necessary to authorize the removal of a county site. Wells v. Ragsdale, 102 Ga. 53, 29 S.E. 165 (1897) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Art. 9, § 1, ¶ 2 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 1, ¶ 2

Paragraph not violated. — Ga. L. 1923, p. 218, which removed the site of Camden County, did not violate this paragraph. Bachlott v. Buie, 158 Ga. 705, 124 S.E. 339 (1924); Clements v. Bostwick, 158 Ga. 906, 124 S.E. 719 (1924) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Ga. L. 1923, p. 216, which provided for removal of a named county site from one town to another one, did not violate this paragraph. Orr v. James, 159 Ga. 237, 125 S.E. 468 (1924) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Presumption arises that the election favored a change before the Act was passed. Cutcher v. Crawford, 105 Ga. 180, 31 S.E. 139 (1898); Barrett v. Ashmore, 137 Ga. 545, 73 S.E. 825 (1912); Vornberg v. Dunn, 143 Ga. 111, 84 S.E. 370 (1915).

County board of commissioners is authorized to locate administrative offices and facilities outside county seat. Brewster v. Houston County, 235 Ga. 68, 218 S.E.2d 748 (1975).

There is no statutory prohibition against the sheriff maintaining offices in the county outside of the county site so long as the sheriff complies with the statute which requires the sheriff to maintain an office in the county site. Brewster v. Houston County, 235 Ga. 68, 218 S.E.2d 748 (1975).

Deliberation and voting on any issue must be conducted in the county site and citizens of the county must be afforded an opportunity to be heard at the county site as to any issue of county business. Brewster v. Houston County, 235 Ga. 68, 218 S.E.2d 748 (1975).

Consolidation, Merger, Division

Editor's notes. — Some of the cases appearing under this heading were decided under the 1976 Constitution (Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. XI) and antecedent provisions, which set out the procedure for consolidation, merger, or division of counties.

Voting requirements for merger. — This paragraph of the Constitution provides that any county may be merged with a contiguous county by a two-thirds (now majority) vote of qualified electors of the merged county, voting at an election held for that purpose; it does not require that voters of a county in which another county is merged should ratify the act of merger. Hines v. Etheridge, 173 Ga. 870, 162 S.E. 113 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Provisions of the Constitution of this state must be construed together and as a whole; and must be so construed as not to render one provision void because of another provision; in construing Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XVI, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. VII), and this paragraph, their meaning is that the legislature cannot abolish constitutional courts and constitutional officers where the purpose of the Act is to accomplish this alone; but, where the Constitution grants to the legislature the power to merge contiguous counties, which is done in conformity to the power, and where the merging Act has the incidental effect of superseding certain courts existing in the merged county by those of the county into which the merged county is absorbed, and of abolishing certain offices held under general provisions of the Constitution in the county absorbed, such merger Act is not unconstitutional and void because it is in conflict with the provision of the Constitution inhibiting the abolition of constitutional courts and officers. Hines v. Etheridge, 173 Ga. 870, 162 S.E. 113 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. II).

Merger of counties effective notwithstanding incidental effect of superseding constitutional courts. — It is the duty of the court to construe the constitutional provision providing for the merger of counties as conferring, by necessary implication, upon the legislature the power of enacting legislation for the merging of contiguous counties, although the incidental effect of such Acts may be to supersede constitutional courts and abolish constitutional officers existing in the counties merged at the dates when the merger Acts become effective. Hines v. Etheridge, 173 Ga. 870, 162 S.E. 113 (1931).

General Consideration

Legislature cannot legislate out of office any constitutional officer if purpose of the Act is to accomplish this alone; but, where the power is granted to the legislature by the Constitution to legislate upon any specific subject matter, and in strict conformity to the power the legislature passes an Act, the incidental effect of which is to abolish certain officeholders, such Act does not violate the general constitutional principle that the legislature cannot abolish constitutional offices. Hines v. Etheridge, 173 Ga. 870, 162 S.E. 113 (1931).

Inherent authority of state official.

— A duly elected, constitutional officer must have the inherent authority to implement certain public safety policies. One such public safety policy is the random drug screening of personnel who are authorized to carry weapons. The state has a compelling reason for randomly drug testing law enforcement employees because drug use by them undermines public confidence in the integrity of law enforcement and poses a danger to fellow employees, prison inmates, and the public at large. Mayo v. Fulton County, 220 Ga. App. 825, 470 S.E.2d 258 (1996).

County Officers

1. In General

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VIII and antecedent provisions, which used the phrase “county officers” without setting out specific examples, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

This paragraph defines a county officer. Andrews v. Butts County, 29 Ga. App. 302, 114 S.E. 912 (1922) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

This paragraph refers only to such county offices as were in existence at the time of its adoption, and does not apply to offices thereafter created by statute. Marshall v. Walker, 183 Ga. 44, 187 S.E. 81 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Members of board of county tax assessors are not county officers within this paragraph. Barnes v. Watson, 148 Ga. 822, 98 S.E. 500 (1919) (see Ga.

County Officers (Cont'd)1. In General (Cont'd)

Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Office of county commissioner is a county office governed by constitutional provisions of this paragraph. Lucas v. Woodward, 240 Ga. 770, 243 S.E.2d 28 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

An incumbent in office as a member of the board of county commissioners as provided for in Ga. L. 1929, p. 568, is a county officer. Sweat v. Barnhill, 171 Ga. 294, 155 S.E. 18 (1930).

An incumbent in office as ordinary (now judge of probate court) is a county officer within the meaning of this paragraph. Lee v. Byrd, 169 Ga. 622, 151 S.E. 28 (1929) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Office of county school superintendent is a constitutional office. — Thus, the superintendent is to be elected by the voters of the superintendent's district, the superintendent's district being the county of the superintendent's residence exclusive of any independent school system in existence in such county. Kemp v. Mitchell County Democratic Executive Comm., 216 Ga. 276, 116 S.E.2d 321 (1960).

Deputy sheriffs are not "county officers" within the meaning of this paragraph. Employees Retirement Sys. v. Lewis, 109 Ga. App. 476, 136 S.E.2d 518 (1964), overruled on other grounds, Lucas v. Woodward, 240 Ga. 770, 243 S.E.2d 28 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Sheriff is a county officer. — Sheriff, pursuant to the state constitution, was a county officer and was not an employee of the county commission; however, as a county officer, the sheriff's budget and accounts were subject to the authority of the county commission, which could cut the sheriff's budget, but the trial court erred in granting the sheriff's petition for writ of mandamus and injunctive relief after concluding that the county commission's adopted budget that delineated specific functions within the sheriff's department improperly dictated to the sheriff how to operate the sheriff's office, as the real issue was whether the budget it adopted reasonably and adequately allowed the sheriff to perform the sheriff's duties. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Saba, 278 Ga. 176, 598 S.E.2d 437 (2004).

Trial court's determination that a county sheriff was not also a State of Georgia employee for workers compensation purposes under O.C.G.A. § 34-9-11(a), the exclusive remedy provision, was proper, as sheriffs were only authorized to act within their county, they were defined as county officers under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III, and sheriffs' salaries were subject to change. Freeman v. Barnes, 282 Ga. App. 895, 640 S.E.2d 611 (2006).

The Georgia Tort Claims Act did not apply to a wrongful death suit brought against a county, a sheriff, and a deputy; under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III(a), sheriffs are county officers and O.C.G.A. § 50-21-22(5) excludes counties from the Act, and moreover the county paid the salaries and employee benefits of the sheriff and the sheriff's employees and funded the sheriff's department. Nichols v. Prather, 286 Ga. App. 889, 650 S.E.2d 380 (2007), cert. denied, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 766 (Ga. 2007).

Trial court properly denied a sheriff's motion to dismiss the negligence suit brought against the sheriff and eight other employees of the sheriff's department arising from the death of a court reporter as the sheriff was an elected official and was not a county employee; therefore, the exclusive remedy provision of the Workers' Compensation Act, O.C.G.A. § 34-9-11(a), did not bar the suit. Freeman v. Brandau, 292 Ga. App. 300, 664 S.E.2d 299 (2008).

County sheriff's office was not a proper defendant in plaintiff's injury action because the sheriff's office was not an entity capable of being sued under Fed. R. Civ. P. 17 in that the sheriff was a constitutionally created office under both Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III(a), and Fla. Const. Art. 8, Sec. 1, and employees acted in the name of the sheriff and not as an employee of the sheriff's office under O.C.G.A. § 15-16-23 and Fla. Stat. § 30.07. Harris v. Lawson, No. 7:08-CV-70 (HL), 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 78808 (M.D. Ga. Aug. 27, 2008).

Trial court did not err in dismissing a sheriff's deputy's widow's claims against the sheriff and the deputy's fellow deputies on the basis that the Worker's Compensation Act, O.C.G.A. § 34-9-1 et seq., provided her exclusive remedy under O.C.G.A. § 34-9-11(a). The sheriff was the deputy's "employer" under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III(a), and O.C.G.A. § 34-9-1(3). Teasley v. Freeman, 305 Ga. App. 1, 699 S.E.2d 39 (2010).

Sheriff has no authority over commissions generated by use of county jail. — County sheriff was not entitled to keep commissions received from a company that provided telephone services to county jail inmates as revenue generated using county property or facilities—such as the jail—was itself county property and therefore subject to county authority under O.C.G.A. § 36-5-22.1. Although a sheriff could collect certain fees, such as fees for attending court, O.C.G.A. § 15-16-21 provided that such fees had to be turned over to the county's treasurer or fiscal officer. Lawson v. Lincoln County, 292 Ga. App. 527, 664 S.E.2d 900 (2008), cert. denied, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 899 (Ga. 2008).

Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 45-2-2, a deputy sheriff could not serve as a school board member for the same county. Black v. Catoosa County Sch. Dist., 213 Ga. App. 534, 445 S.E.2d 340 (1994).

Emphasis of the Constitution dealing with membership of newly created county offices is upon election, and appointments to fill such offices are authorized only when there is a vacancy in an existing office. Lance v. Stepp, 232 Ga. 675, 208 S.E.2d 559 (1974).

To be termed and classified as a county officer within the provisions of this paragraph, a person must be: (1) elected by qualified voters of the county; (2) hold office for four years; (3) be a resident of the county for two years; and (4) be a qualified voter. Houlihan v. Saussy, 206 Ga. 1, 55 S.E.2d 557 (1949); Employees Retirement Sys. v. Lewis, 109 Ga. App. 476, 136 S.E.2d 518 (1964), overruled on other grounds, Lucas v. Woodward, 240 Ga. 770, 243 S.E.2d 28 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Office of school superintendent. — Although a county school superintendent is a "county officer" for several purposes, the office of school superintendent is not always a county office. Bradfield v. Wells, 262 Ga. 198, 415 S.E.2d 638 (1992).

A local constitutional amendment which prohibits "county officers" from succeeding themselves after two successive terms in office does not govern the qualifications or eligibility for the office of superintendent of the Telfair County School District. Bradfield v. Wells, 262 Ga. 198, 415 S.E.2d 638 (1992).

Authority of officers over expenditures. — Since county commissioners approved a budget for the office of the superior court clerk that included a miscellaneous line item for a specified amount of money for certain years, the item had already been budgeted to the clerk by the commission in the exercise of its authority over the clerk's budget; thus, the decision of how to spend this money fell solely to the clerk in the exercise of the clerk's duties, and not to the commission. Griffies v. Coweta County, 272 Ga. 506, 530 S.E.2d 718 (2000).

Tax commissioner's personnel decisions not state functions. — Madison County Tax Commissioner was not acting as an arm of the state for purposes of the eleventh amendment to the United States Constitution when making the decision to terminate an employee; although the Tax Commissioner was an elected state constitutional officer pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III, and the Tax Commissioner's Office was not a division of Madison County or its governing authority pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I, since the Tax Commissioner's duties included both state functions and county functions to be performed within Madison County and, with regard to personnel administration, the state distinguished between employees of the county and employees of elected county officials, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I(c)(1), and so the Tax Commissioner, and not the county, defined certain work regulations for the Tax Commissioner's employees, a fact that did not transform the Tax Commissioner's administration of personnel into a state function, however, because, although state law provided the Tax Commissioner with the authority to manage office personnel, the state exercised little control over the use of that authority. Epps v. Watson, No. 3:05-CV-68(CDL), 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33318 (M.D. Ga. May 25, 2006), aff'd, 492 F.3d 1240 (11th Cir. 2007).

As for funding, O.C.G.A. § 48-5-183 provided that the county, not the state, funded the Tax Commissioner's office expenses, including personnel expenses, and gave the Tax Commissioner the authority to set employee salaries, limited to the budget provided by the county; based on these considerations, the court found that the Madison County Tax Commissioner did not wear a "state hat" when making personnel decisions for the Tax Commissioner's office. Epps v. Watson, No. 3:05-CV-68(CDL), 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33318 (M.D. Ga. May 25, 2006), aff'd, 492 F.3d 1240 (11th Cir. 2007).

Tax Commissioner's Office separate entity from county. — Plaintiff could not dispute that the Tax Commissioner's Office (TCO) was a separate entity from Madison County. Plaintiff did not submit evidence sufficient for a reasonable jury to conclude that plaintiff was an employee of the county, not the TCO. Epps v. Watson, No. 3:05-CV-68 (CDL), 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 87814 (M.D. Ga. Oct. 30, 2008).

2. Compensation

There is no conflict between subsection (b) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III and O.C.G.A. § 40-2-33(c)(2) which simply constitutes a statutory exception to those fees which otherwise may comprise the compensation paid to a county tax commissioner. Weldon v. Board of Comm'rs, 212 Ga. App. 885, 443 S.E.2d 513 (1994).

A salary is salary and nothing more, but compensation may be in part salary and in part fees or commissions, all of which is consistent with this constitutional provision. Bruce v. County of Troup, 92 Ga. App. 786, 90 S.E.2d 60 (1955), disapproved sub nom. Laurens

County v. Keen, 214 Ga. 32, 102 S.E.2d 697 (1958).

Modification of requirement of uniformity by allowing different salaries for county officers. — The provision, "County officers may be on a fee basis, salary basis, or fee basis supplemented by salary, in such manner as may be directed by law," which was not contained in the Constitution of 1877, could have no other purpose than to modify the requirement as to uniformity of laws to the extent of allowing the General Assembly to fix different salaries for officers in the counties of this state. Houlihan v. Saussy, 206 Ga. 1, 55 S.E.2d 557 (1949).

Georgia Laws, 1958, p. 2362, abolishing the fee system and placing county sheriff on a salary, is not violative of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. IV (no comparable provision in Ga. Const. 1983), since that provision of the Constitution refers only to salaries set forth in the Constitution, and does not refer to county officers, who, under this paragraph of the Constitution "may be on a fee basis, salary basis, or fee basis supplemented by salary, in such manner as may be directed by law," which may be changed by the General Assembly to apply to county officers then in commission. Barnett v. Boling, 214 Ga. 401, 105 S.E.2d 312 (1958). (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. IV; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Grand jury initially authorized to recommend county officers' salaries. — It was the intention of the framers of the Constitution to authorize fiscal authorities of counties to increase or diminish salary of all county officers, at any time on recommendation of two successive grand juries, whenever the circumstances required such change, and to authorize such change without respect to their terms of office. Houlihan v. Saussy, 206 Ga. 1, 55 S.E.2d 557 (1949).

Prior to the amendments to the Constitution adopted in 1945, county officers' salaries were subject to change in the discretion of the General Assembly, and it was the intent of the amendments to the Constitution, adopted in 1945 — since they did not require a referendum of the people of the locality to change compensation of county officers, and because the amendment of 1945 stated that the compensation of county officers may be fixed as may be directed by law — that the compensation of county officers would be left solely to the discretion of legislative control and enactment without restriction, except that they would be placed on a fee basis, salary basis, or fee basis supplemented by salary as deemed proper by the General Assembly. Houlihan v. Saussy, 206 Ga. 1, 55 S.E.2d 557 (1949).

General Assembly intended for compensation of county officers to be fixed from time to time by legislative enactment as circumstances might in its discretion require. Houlihan v. Saussy, 206 Ga. 1, 55 S.E.2d 557 (1949).

Counties responsible for salaries or fee of county officers. — As such county officer, a person is not an executive officer of the state as specifically named in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. V, Sec. III, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. V, Sec. III, Para. III). While county officers have been referred to as constitutional officers, nevertheless, they are not “elective officers” within the meaning of the Constitution of 1945 where it is declared that no change in salary “shall affect the officers then in commission.” This is true for reason that the Constitution merely prescribes manner of election of county officers and the term of office, and then requires that county offices shall be uniform in name throughout the state. The compensation of county officers is not provided for in the Constitution, and the state makes no contribution thereto. The county officers are paid solely and exclusively from funds out of the treasury of the county. Houlihan v. Saussy, 206 Ga. 1, 55 S.E.2d 557 (1949).

Counties are not subject to grand jury recommendation. — The General Assembly, while recognizing desirability of providing for either increasing or diminishing salary of county officers without regard to their terms of office, deemed it wise not to subject compensation of such officers to recommendation of grand juries, and instead took upon itself right to prescribe compensation for county officers when it declared in its recommendation, which was ratified by the people of this state, that “county officers may be on a fee basis, salary basis, or fee basis supplemented by salary, in such manner as may be directed by law.” Houlihan v. Saussy, 206 Ga. 1, 55 S.E.2d 557 (1949).

Calhoun County probate judge’s compensation. — Pursuant to constitutional authority, the General Assembly enacted a special law placing the probate judge of Calhoun County on a salary. This law, Georgia Laws 1971, p. 2914, provides that the probate judge of Calhoun County shall collect “all fees ... formerly allowed as compensation in any capacity in his office ...,” and pay the same into the county treasury ...,” but fees collected by a probate judge for services rendered as a local custodian of vital records cannot be said to be fees collected “in his office” as probate judge. Porter v. Calhoun County, 250 Ga. 566, 300 S.E.2d 143 (1983).

Supplementation of compensation for Madison County officials. — An act of the General Assembly in 1965 (Ga. Laws 1965, 2667 et seq.) creating the board of commissioners of roads and revenues of Madison County, and giving the board “complete power, authority, and control relative to county matters,” constituted a legislative delegation to the county commission of the power to supplement the minimum compensation of the four elected county officials by paying from county funds premiums on group health and life insurance. Hart v. Madden, 256 Ga. 497, 349 S.E.2d 737 (1986).

3. Qualifications and Requirements

Editor’s notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VIII and antecedent provisions, which provided that a person was eligible to be a county officer only if the person was a qualified voter and resident of the county for two years, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Pardoned felon may be barred from running for office of sheriff. — Paragraph authorizes General Assembly to prohibit convicted felon from running for office of sheriff even if the felon obtained a full pardon. Georgia Peace Officer Stds. & Training Council v. Mullis, 248 Ga. 67, 281 S.E.2d 569 (1981) (decided under Ga.

County Officers (Cont'd)3. Qualifications and Requirements (Cont'd)

Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. IX; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Constitutional prescription in area preempts General Assembly action. — Where the Constitution has prescribed the qualifications which allow and prevent eligibility to a public office, the General Assembly cannot by statute add to or take from those conditions of eligibility. Lucas v. Woodward, 240 Ga. 770, 243 S.E.2d 28 (1978); Griggers v. Moye, 246 Ga. 578, 272 S.E.2d 262 (1980).

Residency requirement. — Both this paragraph and paragraph (7) of former Code 1933, § 89-101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-2-1) require that candidates reside in the county for two years immediately preceding election to county office. Griggers v. Moye, 246 Ga. 578, 272 S.E.2d 262 (1980) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

County attorney is not a county elected official, but rather is a county employee, so the residency requirement of O.C.G.A. § 45-2-1(1) does not apply to the county attorney under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III and O.C.G.A. § 45-2-5; a county attorney is entitled to sovereign immunity as a county employee. Wallace v. Greene County, 274 Ga. App. 776, 618 S.E.2d 642 (2005).

This constitutional provision is reasonable and not a denial of equal protection under U.S. Const., amend. 14. Griggers v. Moye, 246 Ga. 578, 272 S.E.2d 262 (1980) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

It is a necessary requirement that a person be a qualified voter before a person is eligible to be a county officer. — A commissioner of roads and revenues (now county commissioner), is a county officer. Hulgan v. Thornton, 205 Ga. 753, 55 S.E.2d 115 (1949).

Qualified voter. — An ordinary (now judge of probate court), being a county officer, within meaning of requirement for holding office, is not eligible to office unless the officer is a "qualified voter." Lee v. Byrd, 169 Ga. 622, 151 S.E. 28 (1929); Cloud v. Maxey, 195 Ga. 90, 23 S.E.2d 668 (1942).

Nonpayment of taxes renders person ineligible for county office. — A person who, at the time of election or appointment to a county office, has not paid that person's taxes as provided by the Constitution, is not a qualified voter and is not eligible to that office. Sweat v. Barnhill, 171 Ga. 294, 155 S.E. 18 (1930).

Removal For Malpractice

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VIII and antecedent provisions, which provided for removal of county officers upon conviction for malpractice in office, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Removal provision of this paragraph is mandatory rather than limiting. — It specifies that malpractice in office requires automatic removal of the officeholder. It does not otherwise deal with removal and does not prohibit the General Assembly from enacting otherwise valid removal statutes. Smith v. Abercrombie, 235 Ga. 741, 221 S.E.2d 802 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Malpractice provision of this paragraph is not deficient for vagueness and is self-executing. Beauchamp v. Smith, 250 Ga. 16, 295 S.E.2d 97 (1982) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Malpractice is not condition precedent to removal. — Conviction in a criminal prosecution against county officer for malpractice in office is not a condition precedent to the officer's removal from office. A different ruling would render the removal provision of the Constitution meaningless since malpractice in office by the officer is not a penal offense. Cole v. Holland, 219 Ga. 227, 132 S.E.2d 657 (1963).

Procedure for removal of county officials applicable to local education board. — Where a local amendment to the Constitution provided a county that, "elections for members of the board of education shall be held and conducted in the same manner as elections for other county officials are held," there is a disclosed legislative intent to provide for reremoval from office of members of the board and replacement by the procedure stated in this paragraph, which applies to county officials in general, and not by the procedure stated in former O.C.G.A. § 20-2-53 and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II), which apply to boards of education specifically. Thigpen v. State, 229 Ga. 820, 194 S.E.2d 423 (1972) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Ineligibility for office ab initio curable by constitutional amendment. — Although a person may be ineligible to hold public office at the time of election, if the person is nevertheless elected and inducted into office, and while holding the office the person's ineligibility is removed by constitutional amendment, the courts will not thereafter remove the person solely on account of the person's ineligibility which existed at the time of the person's election. Cooper v. Lewis, 177 Ga. 229, 170 S.E. 68 (1933).

Applicability of other statutes regarding removal. — The provision of this paragraph regarding removal of county officers for malpractice in office does not preempt O.C.G.A. § 36-1-14, which prohibits use of county funds by county commissioners for purchases of goods or property in which they have an interest. Palmer v. Wilkins, 163 Ga. App. 104, 294 S.E.2d 355 (1982).

Fact that there now exists a number of specific statutes authorizing removal for malpractice in office, one or more of which may cover facts of case, does not demand conclusion that such statutes are in exclusion of this general constitutional provision. Beauchamp v. Smith, 250 Ga. 16, 295 S.E.2d 97 (1982).

COUNTY OFFICERS
QUALIFICATIONS
COMPENSATION

County Officers

In a technical sense, the term "county officers" includes only "county officers" referred to in this paragraph, i.e., those who are elected by the qualified voters of their respective counties and hold office for four years. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 146 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Definition of county officer expanded. — The definition of "county officer", which ordinarily, would mean the clerk of superior court, judge of the probate court, sheriff, tax receiver, tax collector, or tax commissioner, has been expanded by case law. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U86-2.

Member of a municipal or county planning commission would be a "public officer." 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-488.

County boards of education county offices. — County boards of education, even though appointive and created by statute prior to and existent at the time of adoption of the Constitution of 1877 have consistently been held by the appellate courts to be county offices. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 58.

Members of a county board of education are subject to the two-year residence requirements of this paragraph. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-85 (decided under former § 2-7901; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

A sheriff is a constitutional county officer as contemplated by this paragraph. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-36 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Authority over chief deputy sheriff. — The Baldwin County Board of Commissioners would not have the authority to set a mandatory retirement age for the chief deputy of the Baldwin County sheriff's department or to otherwise discharge the deputy from employment. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-76 (but see O.C.G.A. § 36-1-20).

Historically, judges serving in the state judicial system have not been considered county officers under this paragraph or former Code 1933, § 89-101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-2-1). 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-8 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

County attorney not county officer.

— The courts of this state would hold that a county attorney, although being a “public officer,” did not hold a “county office” within the meaning of former Code 1933, § 92-6902 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-292) and that a member of a county board of tax assessors would not be ineligible simultaneously to occupy the position of county attorney. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-454.

Tax assessor cannot at the same time hold office of county commissioner. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 62.

Office of county treasurer can only be abolished by an Act of the General Assembly and such an Act would have the effect of abolishing this office as of the date so specified in the Act. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-94.

Election to fill county offices. — The 1986 November general election, in which there will be an election to fill the offices of judge of Superior Court, judge of Magistrate Court, and members of county board of education, will be an election to fill county offices. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U86-2.

Probate judge may not employ an attorney to prosecute criminal cases in probate court. 1999 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U99-6.

Qualifications

Payment of taxes. — Construing Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. V, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. II, Para. IV), this paragraph, and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I), payment of taxes is not required of any candidate for a state office except that members of the General Assembly may not be seated if in default for taxes; whether candidates for county offices are eligible to run where they are behind with payment of taxes depends upon the office and the legislative Acts relating to that office or officer. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 311 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Must be qualified voter. — To be eligible to hold office of judge of probate court there must not only be full compliance with constitutional and statutory residency requirements but also the person must meet the requirements of a qualified voter. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-368.

Evidence sufficient proof of intent to maintain original domicile. —

Where an individual formally maintained the individual's home in one county and exhibited all other attributes of domicile in that county, subsequently moved to a second county to accept employment in that county and utilized on-premises living quarters furnished to that individual in connection with the individual's employment in that second county, where that individual retained the individual's home in the first county, continued to pay ad valorem taxes, purchase tags for the individual's automobile, and consequently pay ad valorem tax thereon, maintained the individual's voter registration, and voted in the first county, and further professes that the individual has continuously maintained an intent not to change the individual's domicile from the first county and the individual has repeatedly publicly avowed this intent, the trier of fact would unquestionably be authorized, and in the absence of any contrary evidence would probably be compelled, as a matter of law, to determine that the individual has been successful in preserving the first county as the individual's domicile for purposes of offering for election to the office of sheriff of that county. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-5.

Residency requirements for candidates for board of commissioners. —

The provisions of the local Act establishing a requirement that candidates for the Board of Commissioners of Clay County be residents of the commissioner districts from which they are seeking election for a period of at least five years immediately preceding the date of the election is unenforceable as being a local Act in derogation of general law. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-31.

Compensation

This paragraph clearly places within General Assembly the authority to provide compensation of county officers as the General Assembly may provide within the constitutional limitations. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 64 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

It is the intent of this paragraph to permit the legislature to place officials of any particular county on any basis of compensation which the legislature so desires. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 455 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

In order to carry this paragraph into effect, it would be necessary to pass a local or special bill for such purpose. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 37.

Local legislation can be used to supplement fees of the ordinary (now judge of probate court), and sheriff of a particular county by salary. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 24.

Bill to change compensation of county officers from fee to salary basis would not be repugnant to this paragraph and would be subject to attack only if change affected officers then in commission. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 455 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Salary of an elective county officer may not be changed during term of office, but fees provided for an elective county officer may be changed or supplemented with a salary during the officer's term. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 66 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III).

Salary supplementation for employees paid on a fee basis. — County commissioners, in the absence of statute, may not supplement with a salary the compensation of county officers who are on a fee basis. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 67.

Salary of a sheriff may be supplemented by the General Assembly through local law or by the board of commissioners when the board has been delegated that authority through local law enacted by the General Assembly. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U97-19.

Sheriff's office under personnel system. — County personnel system was not void as against public policy to the extent it attempts to restrain the sheriff's power to appoint and discharge the sheriff's employees. Wayne County v. Herrin, 210 Ga. App. 747, 437 S.E.2d 793 (1993).

Termination of employee. — Employee who was hired by a county solicitor general under O.C.G.A. § 15-18-71 was not an employee of the county, and the solicitor general did not bring the employee into the county's civil service system under O.C.G.A. § 36-1-21(b). Therefore, the employee lacked a protected property interest in the job and could be terminated without cause and without a hearing. Thomas v. Lee, 286 Ga. 860, 691 S.E.2d 845 (2010).

Law reviews. — For annual survey article discussing local government law, see 51 Mercer L. Rev. 397 (1999).

Paragraph I. Home rule for counties.

(a) The governing authority of each county shall have legislative power to adopt clearly reasonable ordinances, resolutions, or regulations relating to its property, affairs, and local government for which no provision has been made by general law and which is not inconsistent with this Constitution or any local law applicable thereto. Any such local law shall remain in force and effect until amended or repealed as provided in subparagraph (b). This, however, shall not restrict the authority of the General Assembly by general law to further define this power or to broaden, limit, or otherwise regulate the exercise thereof. The General Assembly shall not pass any local law to repeal, modify, or supersede any action taken by a county governing authority under this section except as authorized under subparagraph (c) hereof.

(b) Except as provided in subparagraph (c), a county may, as an incident of its home rule power, amend or repeal the local acts applicable to its governing authority by following either of the procedures hereinafter set forth:

- (1) Such local acts may be amended or repealed by a resolution or ordinance duly adopted at two regular consecutive meetings of the county governing authority not less than seven nor more than 60 days apart. A notice containing a synopsis of the proposed amendment or repeal shall be published in the official county organ once a week for three weeks within a period of 60 days immediately preceding its final adoption. Such notice shall state that a copy of the proposed amendment or repeal is on file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county for the purpose of examination and inspection by the public. The clerk of the superior court shall furnish anyone, upon written request, a copy of the proposed amendment or repeal. No amendment or repeal hereunder shall be valid to change or repeal an amendment adopted pursuant to a referendum as provided in (2) of this subparagraph or to change or repeal a local act of the General Assembly ratified in a referendum by the electors of such county unless at least 12 months have elapsed after such referendum. No amendment hereunder shall be valid if inconsistent with any provision of this Constitution or if provision has been made therefor by general law.

(2) Amendments to or repeals of such local acts or ordinances, resolutions, or regulations adopted pursuant to subparagraph (a) hereof may be initiated by a petition filed with the judge of the probate court of the county containing, in cases of counties with a population of 5,000 or less, the signatures of at least 25 percent of the electors registered to vote in the last general election; in cases of counties with a population of more than 5,000 but not more than 50,000, at least 20 percent of the electors registered to vote in the last general election; and, in cases of a county with a population of more than 50,000, at least 10 percent of the electors registered to vote in the last general election, which petition shall specifically set forth the exact language of the proposed amendment or repeal. The judge of the probate court shall determine the validity of such petition within 60 days of its being filed with the judge of the probate court. In the event the judge of the probate court determines that such petition is valid, it shall be his duty to issue the call for an election for the purpose of submitting such amendment or repeal to the registered electors of the county for their approval or rejection. Such call shall be issued not less than ten nor more than 60 days after the date of the filing of the petition. He shall set the date of such election for a day not less than 60 nor more than 90 days after the date of such filing. The judge of the probate court shall cause a notice of the date of said election to be published in the official organ of the county once a week for three weeks immediately preceding such date. Said notice shall also contain a synopsis of the proposed amendment or repeal and shall state that a copy thereof is on file in the office of the judge of the probate court of the county for the purpose of examination and inspection by the public. The judge of the probate court shall furnish anyone, upon written request, a copy of the proposed amendment or repeal. If more than one-half of the votes cast on such question are for approval of the amendment or repeal, it shall become of full force and effect; otherwise, it shall be void and of no force and effect. The expense of such election shall be borne by the county, and it shall be the duty of the judge of the probate court to hold and conduct such election. Such election shall be held under the same laws and rules and regulations as govern special elections, except as otherwise provided herein. It shall be the duty of the judge of the probate court to canvass the returns and declare and certify the result of the election. It shall be his further duty to certify the result thereof to the Secretary of State in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph (g) of this Paragraph. A referendum on any such amendment or repeal shall not be held more often than once each year. No amendment hereunder shall be valid if inconsistent with any provision of this Constitution or if provision has been made therefor by general law.

In the event that the judge of the probate court determines that such petition was not valid, he shall cause to be published in explicit detail the reasons why such petition is not valid; provided, however, that, in any proceeding in which the validity of the petition is at issue, the tribunal considering such issue shall not be limited by the reasons assigned. Such publication shall be in the official organ of the county in the week immediately following the date on which such petition is declared to be not valid.

(c) The power granted to counties in subparagraphs (a) and (b) above shall not be construed to extend to the following matters or any other matters which the General Assembly by general law has preempted or may hereafter preempt, but such matters shall be the subject of general law or the subject of local acts of the General Assembly to the extent that the enactment of such local acts is otherwise permitted under this Constitution:

(1) Action affecting any elective county office, the salaries thereof, or the personnel thereof, except the personnel subject to the jurisdiction of the county governing authority.

(2) Action affecting the composition, form, procedure for election or appointment, compensation, and expenses and allowances in the nature of compensation of the county governing authority.

(3) Action defining any criminal offense or providing for criminal punishment.

(4) Action adopting any form of taxation beyond that authorized by law or by this Constitution.

(5) Action extending the power of regulation over any business activity regulated by the Georgia Public Service Commission beyond that authorized by local or general law or by this Constitution.

(6) Action affecting the exercise of the power of eminent domain.

(7) Action affecting any court or the personnel thereof.

(8) Action affecting any public school system.

(d) The power granted in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this Paragraph shall not include the power to take any action affecting the private or civil law governing private or civil relationships, except as is incident to the exercise of an independent governmental power.

(e) Nothing in subparagraphs (a), (b), (c), or (d) shall affect the provisions of subparagraph (f) of this Paragraph.

(f) The governing authority of each county is authorized to fix the salary, compensation, and expenses of those employed by such governing authority and to establish and maintain retirement or pension systems, insurance, workers' compensation, and hospitalization benefits for said employees.

(g) No amendment or revision of any local act made pursuant to subparagraph (b) of this section shall become effective until a copy of such amendment or revision, a copy of the required notice of publication, and an affidavit of a duly authorized representative of the newspaper in which such notice was published to the effect that said notice has been published as provided in said subparagraph has been filed with the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State shall provide for the publication and distribution of all such amendments and revisions at least annually.

General Consideration

Constitutionality. — O.C.G.A. § 36-5-22, which permits a county board of commissioners to create the office of county manager, is constitutional. Gray v. Dixon, 249 Ga. 159, 289 S.E.2d 237 (1982).

When section applicable. — Provisions of this section apply only when county attempts to amend or repeal local Acts applicable to its governing authority. Local 189 Int'l Union of Police Ass'ns v. Barrett, 524 F. Supp. 760 (N.D. Ga. 1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Powers of county commissioners are strictly limited by law, and they can do nothing except under authority of law. Mobley v. Polk County, 242 Ga. 798, 251 S.E.2d 538 (1979).

Neither the counties of this state nor their officers can do any act, make any contract, nor incur any liability not authorized by some legislative Act applicable thereto. Mobley v. Polk County, 242 Ga. 798, 251 S.E.2d 538 (1979).

County governing authority only has the powers given to it by the legislature. McCray v. Cobb County, 251 Ga. 24, 302 S.E.2d 563 (1983).

If there is reasonable doubt of existence of a particular power of a county, the doubt is to be resolved in the negative. Mobley v. Polk County, 242 Ga. 798, 251 S.E.2d 538 (1979).

Transfer of chairperson's power to county board constitutional. — The Constitution did not prevent the county board from passing resolutions which effectively transferred much of the power of the county chairperson to the county board. Krieger v. Walton County Bd. of Comm'rs, 269 Ga. 678, 506 S.E.2d 366 (1998).

County governing authority powers. — Any attempt by the board of commissioners to confer "executive powers" on the office of county manager would be an "action affecting the ... form ... of the county governing authority" in violation of subsection (c)(2) of this paragraph. Gray v. Dixon, 249 Ga. 159, 289 S.E.2d 237 (1982) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

An ordinance creating the office of county manager which tracked the language of O.C.G.A. § 36-5-22 and which vested in that office certain administrative functions, and did not attempt to confer the executive powers reserved for the chairman, was consistent with the county's home rule authority and did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I. Krieger v. Walton County Bd. of Comm'rs, 271 Ga. 791, 524 S.E.2d 461 (1999).

County's method of counting abstentions. — A county's method of not counting abstentions by county commissioners, and therefore not considering abstentions either affirmative or negative votes, was within the county's authority; as a result, a citizen challenging the method of counting votes was not entitled to declaratory relief. Merry v. Williams, 281 Ga. 571, 642 S.E.2d 46 (2007).

Fee for utility use of rights of way. — County was not entitled to extract from power company a tax, franchise fee, rental fee, or other charge in return for permission to use county's road rights of way outside of municipalities for erection, maintenance, and use of power transmission lines. DeKalb County v. Georgia Power Co., 249 Ga. 704, 292 S.E.2d 709 (1982).

County cannot prohibit electric lines. — Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 46-3-201(b)(9), the electric corporation, which had to condemn property in order to effectuate its project, did not have to demonstrate to the county the necessity or the appropriateness of its proposed project; thus, the county ordinance prohibiting the electric lines for three years was unconstitutional. Rabun County v. Ga. Transmission Corp., 276 Ga. 81, 575 S.E.2d 474 (2003).

Home rule ordinances enacted in compliance with this paragraph would supersede specified provisions of a local Act. Guhl v. Williams, 237 Ga. 586, 229 S.E.2d 382 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Cannot interfere with provisions of general law. — The “home rule” provision of this paragraph explicitly disallows any attempt by a local governing authority to change or to interfere with operation of provisions of general law. Commissioners of Wayne County v. Smith, 240 Ga. 540, 242 S.E.2d 47 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

The Constitution limits legislative action by the board of commissioners to matters for which no provision has been made by general law. — Furthermore, the “home rule” powers of the board of commissioners do not extend to any matters which the General Assembly by general law has preempted. Commissioners of Wayne County v. Smith, 240 Ga. 540, 242 S.E.2d 47 (1978).

Section 31-7-72. — The language of former Code 1933, § 88-1802 (see now O.C.G.A. § 31-7-72), providing for appointment of members of the boards of hospital authorities, was not subject to change by exercise of the home rule powers contained in this paragraph. Commissioners of Wayne County v. Smith, 240 Ga. 540, 242 S.E.2d 47 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Proof of facts needed to show county created public authority not extension of county. — Where an act of a political subdivision of the state creates a public facilities authority with provisions which shows that the authority shall be separate from the county governing authority in membership, powers, and duties, and that revenue bonds of the authority shall bear a notation that they are not a debt of the county nor has the county any obligation whatever for the authority, then the authority is not an extension of the county, and the act creating the authority is not a “local Act ... applicable to the county’s governing authority ...” which may be amended by the county commissioners under this paragraph. Wood v. Gwinnett County, 243 Ga. 833, 257 S.E.2d 258 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

County business must be conducted at county site. — Deliberation and voting on any issue must be conducted at county site and citizens of the county must be afforded an opportunity to be heard at the county site on any issue of county business. Brewster v. Houston County, 235 Ga. 68, 218 S.E.2d 748 (1975).

Contracts for distribution of public records. — A contract between a county and a company to allow the company to obtain copies of certain public indices and records and make them available for a fee is not invalid under subparagraph (c)(7) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I because it is not an act of legislation and because it does not affect the manner in which the clerk of the county court performs the clerk’s duties. Price v. Fulton County Comm’n, 170 Ga. App. 736, 318 S.E.2d 153 (1984).

Act may require that judges of courts of limited jurisdiction must devote minimum time to official duties to be entitled to be paid for those duties. McCray v. Cobb County, 251 Ga. 24, 302 S.E.2d 563 (1983).

Minority business enterprise program. — Home rule charter did not authorize county to enact a 1982 minority business enterprise program where provision had been made by general law for the letting of public works contracts and the program conflicted with that general law. S.J. Groves & Sons Co. v. Fulton County, 920 F.2d 752 (11th Cir.), cert. denied, 500 U.S. 959, 111 S. Ct. 2274, 114 L. Ed. 2d 725, 501 U.S. 1252, 111 S. Ct. 2893, 115 L. Ed. 2d 1057 (1991).

Employment of counsel. — A county governing authority has the implicit power to employ counsel for county officers. Stephenson v. Board of Comm’rs, 261 Ga. 399, 405 S.E.2d 488 (1991).

County governing authority’s employment of counsel to represent a superior court clerk did not violate subparagraphs

(c)(1) and (c)(7) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I. Stephenson v. Board of Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 399, 405 S.E.2d 488 (1991).

Sheriff is not county policymaker for purposes of county's liability under 42 U.S.C. § 1983; Georgia's Constitution created the sheriff's office as a separate constitutionally protected entity independent from the county. Grech v. Clayton County, 335 F.3d 1326 (11th Cir. 2003).

Redistricting legislation for the counties. — In Georgia, the General Assembly is the only legislative body with the power to enact redistricting legislation for the counties; therefore, where the General Assembly failed to enact reapportionment legislation for a certain county, although it was entitled to consideration as an expression of county policy, a reapportionment plan proposed by a county was not a legislatively enacted plan requiring deferential treatment and the district court was required to fashion a reapportionment plan. Bodker v. Taylor, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27447 (N.D. Ga. June 5, 2002).

Ordinance covering payment of garbage collection fees. — The state constitution, statutes, and case law permit a county to enact an ordinance making property owners responsible for the payment of garbage collection fees for their rental property. Board of Comm'rs v. Guthrie, 273 Ga. 1, 537 S.E.2d 329 (2000).

Ordinance constitutional. — Trial court erred in declaring Miller County, Ga., Ordinance No. 10-01, § 2 unconstitutional because the ordinance did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I(c)(2) by affecting the composition or form of the Board of Commissioners of Miller County but conferred only administrative, rather than executive, authority on the chair of the Board's finance committee; pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I(b), the county had authority, as an incident of the county's home rule power, to amend Ga. L. 1983, p. 4594, § 14. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Callan, 290 Ga. 327, 720 S.E.2d 608 (2012).

Trial court erred in declaring Miller County, Ga., Ordinance No. 10-01, § 3 unconstitutional because the ordinance did not constitute an action affecting the elective office of commissioner in violation of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I(c)(1); section 3 did not, by itself, negatively impact on the ability of the commissioners to carry out the commissioners' duties, but instead, § 3 gave the Commissioners of Miller County an additional option, similar to that given by general law to many other county governing authorities, for purchasing goods, property, or services. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Callan, 290 Ga. 327, 720 S.E.2d 608 (2012).

It could not be said that a county's method of providing solid waste collection services by contracting with private solid waste collection companies, and paying for those services through the property tax bill procedure, was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious; it had real and substantial relation to the provision of those services, and the county's solid waste ordinance was valid. Mesteller v. Gwinnett County, 292 Ga. 675, 740 S.E.2d 605 (2013).

Legislation bodies governed by establishment clause for evaluating legislative prayer. — Under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I, a county commission and a county planning commission are legislative bodies governed by the U.S. Supreme Court's Marsh standard for evaluating legislative prayer under the establishment clause of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Pelphrey v. Cobb County, 547 F.3d 1263 (11th Cir. 2008).

Taxes and Business Licenses

Counties and municipalities may appropriate and expend for public purposes connected with administration of local government. — Under Constitution and state statutes, both county governments and municipalities may levy taxes for public purposes connected with administration of county and city governments; as a corollary to this principle, it follows that counties and municipalities may appropriate and expend money for such public purpose. Peacock v. Georgia Mun. Ass'n, 247 Ga. 740, 279 S.E.2d 434 (1981).

Permit fees allocated to education prohibition. — This provision does not give a county authority to impose a tax or charge in addition to all charges currently imposed for building permits where those funds are allocated directly to the board of education. DeKalb County v. Brown Bldrs. Co., 227 Ga. 777, 183 S.E.2d 367 (1971) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Instead of granting authority, this paragraph specifically denies authority to impose taxes and declares that such authority must be found elsewhere in the laws or the Constitution. Richmond County Bus. Ass'n v. Richmond County, 224 Ga. 854, 165 S.E.2d 293 (1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Ordinance imposing tax void. — A trial court does not err in granting an injunction against implementation of an ordinance which purports to impose regulatory license fees, but which, in fact, imposes taxes and is null and void for lack of statutory or constitutional authority. Richmond County v. Richmond County Bus. Ass'n, 225 Ga. 568, 170 S.E.2d 246 (1969).

One criteria for a licensing ordinance is that it have a primarily regulatory intention. Richmond County v. Richmond County Bus. Ass'n, 225 Ga. 568, 170 S.E.2d 246 (1969).

Municipal bylaws and ordinances undertaking to regulate useful business enterprises are subject to investigation in the courts with a view to determining whether they are a lawful exercise of police power, or whether, under the guise of enforcing police regulation, there has been an unwarranted and arbitrary interference with the constitutional right to carry on a lawful business or use and enjoy property. Borough of Atlanta v. Kirk, 175 Ga. 395, 165 S.E. 69 (1932).

Ordinance levying occupation tax must have statutory authority. — Because levying of an occupation or business tax, although called a license fee for regulatory purposes under the police power, is a tax within the purview of subsection (c)(4) of this paragraph, the enactment of an ordinance for this purpose must be preceded and authorized by statutory or constitutional authority. Richmond County v. Richmond County Bus. Ass'n, 225 Ga. 568, 170 S.E.2d 246 (1969) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Court should not void ordinance on whim. — If the facts and evidence before the municipal body at time of passing the ordinance would authorize the exercise by that body of discretion in passing or refusing to pass the ordinance, then a court should not declare the ordinance unreasonable, arbitrary, and void merely because the court should take the view that it would be best for the public that the ordinance should not be enforced. Borough of Atlanta v. Kirk, 175 Ga. 395, 165 S.E. 69 (1932).

Reasonable necessity required for regulating business. — Regulation of a lawful business is dependent upon some reasonable necessity for protection of public health, safety, morality, or other phase of the general welfare. Richmond County v. Richmond County Bus. Ass'n, 225 Ga. 568, 170 S.E.2d 246 (1969).

Liquor permits. — Section of DeKalb County Code requiring all employees of an establishment holding a license for consumption of beer or wine, except busboys, cooks, and dishwashers, to have permits was not unconstitutional and did not exceed the county's powers of home rule. Kariuki v. DeKalb County, 253 Ga. 713, 324 S.E.2d 450 (1985), overruled on other grounds, Russell v. City of E. Point, 261 Ga. 213, 403 S.E.2d 50 (1991).

Zoning Laws

General Assembly has no authority to grant a county the authority to enact zoning and planning laws except by constitutional provision. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

Power over zoning granted to county authorities. — The authority to amend or repeal existing planning and zoning laws or to enact new planning and zoning laws with respect to unincorporated areas has been granted to the county authorities. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

This paragraph does not enlarge or diminish the power of a county to zone as set forth in the Constitution. It merely eliminates the necessity for prior authorization by the General Assembly to use the power conferred by the Constitution for counties to zone. Gifford-Hill & Co. v. Harrison, 229 Ga. 260, 191 S.E.2d 85 (1972) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Legislature no longer has authority to enact local laws concerning planning and zoning for unincorporated areas. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

Instance of unauthorized exercise of power. — The General Assembly had no authority in 1968 to pass an amendment to the 1956 zoning and planning Act for an unincorporated area in DeKalb County, and its attempt to amend the 1956 local Act with Ga. L. 1968, p. 3406 was wholly beyond its power and without legal effect. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

Zoning Procedures Law. — The Zoning Procedures Law, O.C.G.A. § 36-66-1 et seq., preempted the provisions in a city charter for the purposes of the adoption and amendment of zoning ordinances. Little v. City of Lawrenceville, 272 Ga. 340, 528 S.E.2d 515 (2000).

Location of County Offices

Locating offices outside of county seat. — Administrative facilities and services such as jails, correctional camps, health clinics, hospitals, public housing and the like can be located outside the county seat. Jackson v. Gasses, 230 Ga. 712, 198 S.E.2d 657 (1973).

County board of commissioners is authorized to locate administrative offices and facilities outside county seat. Brewster v. Houston County, 235 Ga. 68, 218 S.E.2d 748 (1975).

County board of commissioners is granted authority to enact ordinances pertaining to civil service boards affecting that county, rather than the General Assembly. Forbes v. Lovett, 227 Ga. 772, 183 S.E.2d 371 (1971).

Sheriff's offices. — There is no statutory prohibition against sheriff maintaining offices in county outside of county site so long as the sheriff complies with the statute which requires the sheriff to maintain an office in the county site. Brewster v. Houston County, 235 Ga. 68, 218 S.E.2d 748 (1975).

Employees

Board of county commissioners is granted authority to enact ordinances pertaining to civil service boards affecting that county, rather than the General Assembly. Forbes v. Lovett, 227 Ga. 772, 183 S.E.2d 371 (1971).

Defendant county manager did not have final authority over decisions that resulted in termination of a plaintiff's employment with the county, as such authority rested with the board of commissioners under Georgia's home rule provisions. Lightsey v. Miles, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15735 (S.D. Ga. July 26, 2005).

Paragraph divested General Assembly of authority to enact county retirement system. — This paragraph vested sole authority over compensation, retirement, and other benefits of employees of county governing authorities, in the county governing authorities, and thus divested the General Assembly for authority to enact a retirement Act for a county. Richmond County v. Pierce, 234 Ga. 274, 215 S.E.2d 665 (1975).

Court clerk not subject to county merit system. — A county merit board can take no action affecting the clerk of the superior court and the clerk's employees unless the clerk of the superior court has asked that the clerk's office be subject to the merit system and the county has provided for such coverage through an appropriate resolution or ordinance. Gwinnett County v. Yates, 265 Ga. 504, 458 S.E.2d 791 (1995).

The clerk of the Superior Court of Gwinnett County is not subject to the Gwinnett County Merit System. Gwinnett County v. Yates, 265 Ga. 504, 458 S.E.2d 791 (1995).

Tax commissioner's personnel decisions not state functions. — Madison County Tax Commissioner was not acting as an arm of the state for purposes of the eleventh amendment to the United States Constitution when making the decision to terminate an employee; although the Tax Commissioner was an elected state constitutional officer pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. III, and the Tax Commissioner's Office was not a division of Madison County or its governing authority pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I, since the Tax Commissioner's duties included both state functions and county functions to be performed within Madison County and, with regard to personnel administration, the state distinguished between employees of the county and employees of elected county officials, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I(c)(1), and so the Tax Commissioner, and not the county, defined certain work regulations for the Tax Commissioner's employees, a fact that did not transform the Tax Commissioner's administration of personnel into a state function, however, because, although state law provided the Tax Commissioner with the authority to manage office personnel, the state exercised little control over the use of that authority. Epps v. Watson, No. 3:05-CV-68(CDL), 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33318 (M.D. Ga. May 25, 2006), aff'd, 492 F.3d 1240 (11th Cir. 2007).

As for funding, O.C.G.A. § 48-5-183 provided that the county, not the state, funded the Tax Commissioner's office expenses, including personnel expenses, and gave the Tax Commissioner the authority to set employee salaries, limited to the budget provided by the county; based on these considerations, the court found that the Madison County Tax Commissioner did not wear a "state hat" when making personnel decisions for the Tax Commissioner's office. Epps v. Watson, No. 3:05-CV-68(CDL), 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33318 (M.D. Ga. May 25, 2006), aff'd, 492 F.3d 1240 (11th Cir. 2007).

Plaintiff could not dispute that the Tax Commissioner's Office (TCO) was a separate entity from Madison County. Plaintiff did not submit evidence sufficient for a reasonable jury to conclude that plaintiff was an employee of the county, not the TCO. Epps v. Watson, No. 3:05-CV-68(CDL), 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 87814 (M.D. Ga. Oct. 30, 2008).

Exceptions to County Powers

Deputy sheriffs are personnel of the sheriff as contemplated by subsection (c) (1) of this paragraph. Warren v. Walton, 231 Ga. 495, 202 S.E.2d 405 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

County commissioners not empowered to fix salaries of sheriff and deputies. — This paragraph, which authorizes the governing authority of each county "to fix the salary, compensation and expenses of those employed by such governing authority," does not empower the county commissioners to fix the salaries and expenses of the sheriff and the sheriff's deputies without other legislation empowering the commissioners to employ the sheriff and deputies. Warren v. Walton, 231 Ga. 495, 202 S.E.2d 405 (1973).

County could not infringe on utility's eminent domain power. — Forsyth County, Ga., Unified Development Code §§ 21-6.1 and 21-6.5 were defective because they required a utility to successfully comply with the ordinance's procedures, and authorized the county to deny "any or all" portions of an application; as such, they were unconstitutional infringements on the utility's legislatively-delegated power of eminent domain. Forsyth County v. Ga. Transmission Corp., 280 Ga. 664, 632 S.E.2d 101 (2006).

Generally

Services which counties may provide individually or jointly subject to this paragraph. — Georgia Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III) was intended to supplement and enumerate services which counties and municipalities may provide, and to permit them to combine to provide the services, but the ordinances which counties may enact to provide these services are subject to the general terms and restrictions of this paragraph, including the prohibition against the enactment of criminal sanctions by counties. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-96 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Charter consolidating governments of a city and a county should set out the desired powers of the consolidated government in an enumerated and specific manner. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-413.

County cannot impose a tax upon retail sales of beer. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-6.

Federal funds for housing. — A county may, in certain circumstances, apply to the federal government for funds to be used for urban redevelopment and for public housing within the county. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-35.

Governing authority of an affected municipality or county has authority to control boxing events in its jurisdiction. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-167.

Commissioners of a county can pass a resolution on the subject of dogs running unattended and which apparently are unowned. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-151.

This paragraph prohibits passing of an ordinance which provides criminal punishment for operating a business without a license; with no authority to enforce any ordinances enacted with criminal sanctions, a county could not effectively enforce the regulations of business establishments which it desires to control. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-295 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

By general law, the General Assembly has preempted the field of county business licenses so that the counties may not provide for the issuance of such licenses under the home rule amendment. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. 67-295.

County precluded from creating new probation system without legislative authority. — Subsection (c) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I would appear to preclude a county from taking any action to create a new system of probation, private or otherwise, without specific legislative authority. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-8.

There is no general authority for counties to enact criminal ordinances. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-15.

Amendment of zoning restrictions. — Under the home rule power of a county, electors may petition the probate judge to hold an election to amend zoning resolutions passed by the governing authority. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-2.

Creation of county fire districts. — County fire districts can be created only by action of the General Assembly or by action of the county governing authority and may not be established by petition and referendum pursuant to the home rule provisions of the Constitution. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 85-54.

Qualifications of persons signing petitions. — Persons signing a petition pursuant to the provisions of this Article must be persons who are currently registered to vote in the county and who were registered to vote in the county during the last general election. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-40.

Petitions in Murray County under the home rule provisions of the constitution should be filed with the judge of the probate court, rather than with the board of elections. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-15.

Traffic control ordinances. — Counties may enact ordinances regarding enforcement of traffic control devices by the use of cameras. 2000 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U00-12.

Employees

Required stipulation for participation by county in retirement annuity for employees. — A county can participate in a retirement annuity for its employees contracted through an insurance company with the understanding that payments for public school teachers and personnel, their dependents and survivors, shall be paid from education funds. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-474; 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-37.

County cannot establish retirement plan for elected officials. — A county board of commissioners may not, by ordinance, resolution, or regulation, institute a retirement or pension program for the elected officials of that county; such a program must, under the Georgia Constitution, be created by local or general Act of the General Assembly. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-40.

County authorization of insurance and retirement benefits unauthorized. — An authorization by county commissioners of retirement and insurance benefits for elected officials without specific authorization of the General Assembly would not be legal. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-77.

General act required to establish retirement program for elected official. — Under this paragraph, a county's retirement plan cannot constitutionally apply to employees of the county sheriff, nor to other employees of elected county officers who are not subject to the jurisdiction of the board of commissioners; retirement plans or programs for these employees may only be instituted by general or local Act of the General Assembly. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-37 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Where compensation of deputy sheriff is fixed by a local Act, the county commissioners have no authority to increase it. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-64.

The governing authority may increase salary of personnel employed by it, but not the personnel of any other county elective office. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-68 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. XV, Sec. II, Para. I(c)(1) and Art. XV, Sec. II, Para. II).

Clerks are court personnel, as shown by their inclusion in former Code 1933 (see now O.C.G.A. Title 15), and are included under this paragraph. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-4 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I).

Under home rule, the salary of a clerk of the county commissioners may be raised. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-143 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. XV, Sec. II, Para. I (c)(1) and Art. XV, Sec. II, Para. II).

County employees who work for elected officials may be included in county pension plans without the need for general or local legislation enacted by the General Assembly. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-8.

ANALYSIS

SELF-GOVERNMENT

1. IN GENERAL
2. DELEGATION OF LEGISLATIVE POWERS
3. MUNICIPALITIES

General Consideration

Uniform Beer Tax Act (Ga. L. 1974, p. 1447) was not violative of this paragraph. State v. Golia, 235 Ga. 791, 222 S.E.2d 27 (1976).

This paragraph gave General Assembly authority to delegate. — As the Constitution stood, before it contained this paragraph, all legislative power reposed in the General Assembly, and could not constitutionally be delegated by the General Assembly. Phillips v. City of Atlanta, 210 Ga. 72, 77 S.E.2d 723 (1953).

Under this paragraph and Ga. L. 1973, p. 778, § 3 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-35-6), cities do not have power to adopt entirely new charters changing their form of government, so that a new charter created by the state legislature by a special law does not contravene Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV), which forbids the state legislature from adopting a special law covering subject matter dealt with by existing general law. Jackson v. Inman, 232 Ga. 566, 207 S.E.2d 475 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Cited in Barge v. Camp, 209 Ga. 38, 70 S.E.2d 360 (1952); Cook v. Sikes, 210 Ga. 722, 82 S.E.2d 641 (1954); Gordon v. Green, 228 Ga. 505, 186 S.E.2d 719 (1972); Thigpen v. State, 229 Ga. 820, 194 S.E.2d 423 (1972); Bruck v. City of Temple, 240 Ga. 411, 240 S.E.2d 876 (1977); Lucas v. Woodward, 240 Ga. 770, 243 S.E.2d 28 (1978); City of Mt. View v. Clayton County, 242 Ga. 163, 249 S.E.2d 541 (1978); City of Brookhaven v. City of Chamblee, 329 Ga. App. 346, 765 S.E.2d 33 (2014).

Self-Government

1. In General

Phrase “self-government” in this paragraph is not an expression of limitation confining delegation of legislative powers to strictly intramural affairs. Plantation Pipe Line Co. v. City of Bremen, 227 Ga. 1, 178 S.E.2d 868 (1970), commented on in 5 Ga. L. Rev. 499 (1971) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Local decision on local affairs is “self-government.” Plantation Pipe Line Co. v. City of Bremen, 227 Ga. 1, 178 S.E.2d 868 (1970), commented on in 5 Ga. L. Rev. 499 (1971).

State-imposed tax for local purposes violates no municipality’s right to govern itself even if it denies the municipality discretion to determine whether a tax on malt beverages is necessary to provide for the public need of its citizens. State v. Golia, 235 Ga. 791, 222 S.E.2d 27 (1976).

Annexation comes within purview of this constitutional paragraph and the purview of “self-government” as expressed therein. Plantation Pipe Line Co. v. City of Bremen, 227 Ga. 1, 178 S.E.2d 868 (1970), commented on in discussing the evolution of municipal annexation law in Georgia, see 5 Ga. L. Rev. 499 (1971) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

2. Delegation of Legislative Powers

Express provision for performance impliedly prohibits different performance. — A constitutional provision which expressly prescribes the manner of doing a particular thing is exclusive in that regard and impliedly prohibits performance in a substantially different manner. However, this paragraph does not come within this principle so as to impliedly restrict the General Assembly in directing local taxation because this paragraph is permissive, and because it relates to the delegation of power and not to the exercise of power. Blackmon v. Golia, 231 Ga. 381, 202 S.E.2d 186 (1973), commented on in 16 Ga. B.J. 343 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

This paragraph is not in derogation of legislative power and it does not conflict with it. State v. Golia, 235 Ga. 791, 222 S.E.2d 27 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Legislative power of the General Assembly is in no way impaired by this paragraph. — The legislative power of the General Assembly is in no way impaired by this paragraph and municipalities can receive and retain only such legislative power as that body determines from time to time they should exercise.

Self-Government (Cont'd)2. Delegation of Legislative Powers (Cont'd)

Plantation Pipe Line Co. v. City of Bremen, 227 Ga. 1, 178 S.E.2d 868 (1970), commented on in 5 Ga. L. Rev. 499 (1971) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Municipalities can receive and retain only such legislative power of the General Assembly as that body determines from time to time they should exercise. State v. Golia, 235 Ga. 791, 222 S.E.2d 27 (1976).

This paragraph does not grant legislative powers to municipalities directly and independently of the General Assembly. It authorizes the General Assembly to delegate its legislative powers to municipalities. State v. Golia, 235 Ga. 791, 222 S.E.2d 27 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Paragraph authorizes delegation of power. — This paragraph does not function as a limitation on the power of the legislature but rather grants to the General Assembly additional authority “to delegate its power so that matters pertaining to municipalities upon which, prior to the ratification of this paragraph, it was necessary for the General Assembly to act, may be dealt with without the necessity of action by the General Assembly.” State v. Golia, 235 Ga. 791, 222 S.E.2d 27 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

3. Municipalities

Reason for unconstitutionality of prior municipal Home Rule Law. — The attempt to confer legislative authority by Ga. L. 1951, p. 116, as amended by Ga. L. 1952, p. 46 (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 35, T. 36) was unconstitutional and void because it was not embraced in enactments by the General Assembly of uniform systems of government. Phillips v. City of Atlanta, 210 Ga. 72, 77 S.E.2d 723 (1953), commented on in 16 Ga. B.J. 343 (1954).

This paragraph unquestionably authorizes the General Assembly to delegate legislative power to municipalities by embodying initiative, referendum, and recall in some of the systems of government which this paragraph directs the legislature to provide. Phillips v. City of Atlanta, 210 Ga. 72, 77 S.E.2d 723 (1953), commented on in 16 Ga. B.J. 343 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Delegation of power does not prohibit legislative action. — Fact that General Assembly may have delegated to municipalities certain authority pursuant to this paragraph does not raise constitutional bar prohibiting General Assembly from legislating directly in the same area at a later date. State v. Golia, 235 Ga. 791, 222 S.E.2d 27 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Uniformity in municipal charters not required. — Since the language of this paragraph does not provide a uniformity requirement for new municipal charters, the General Assembly is constitutionally free to exercise its reserved legislative power on a nonuniform basis when it enacts a new charter for a municipality. Jackson v. Inman, 232 Ga. 566, 207 S.E.2d 475 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Method of delegating power by General Assembly. — The only procedure by which power to legislate — and this includes extending corporate limits of municipalities — can be delegated by the General Assembly under this paragraph is by incorporating such delegated power in systems of government enacted by the General Assembly. Systems of government and municipal charters are synonymous. Each confer and define powers and provide for machinery to operate the government. Phillips v. City of Atlanta, 210 Ga. 72, 77 S.E.2d 723 (1953), commented on in 16 Ga. B.J. 343 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. II).

Requiring wrecker services to accept checks and credit cards. — A city code section which makes it unlawful for a wrecker service to refuse to accept checks and major credit cards is constitutional, and is not ultra vires the home rule powers conferred by O.C.G.A. § 36-35-6(a). Upton v. City of Atlanta, 260 Ga. 250, 392 S.E.2d 244 (1990).

City ordinance increasing pension plan contribution rate. — Trial court properly granted the city defendants summary judgment on the city employees' claims of breach of contract and unconstitutional impairment of contract regarding an ordinance increasing their pension plan contribution rate because the Georgia General Assembly expressly contemplated that a municipal corporation's provision for employee retirement or pension benefits would be subject to being supplemented by local law. Borders v. City of Atlanta, 298 Ga. 188, 779 S.E.2d 279 (2015).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Constitutional provisions pertaining to home rule are permissive in nature, and require affirmative enabling legislation. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 488.

Appellate courts recognize county boards of education as county offices. — County boards of education, even though appointive and created by statute prior to and existing at the time of adoption of the Constitution of 1877, have consistently been held by the appellate courts to be county offices. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 58.

City may establish a personnel department and a merit board without necessity of special Acts of the General Assembly. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-310.

County application for federal housing funds. — A county may, in certain circumstances, apply to the federal government for funds to be used for urban redevelopment and for public housing within the county. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-35.

Cooperative financial endeavor between city and county legal. — Assuming that a city possesses legal authority to borrow funds via a 20-year loan for purpose of constructing a library building, it would be legal for city and county to enter into the proposed agreement whereunder the building would be leased to the county for the term of the loan at an annual rental sufficient to meet loan payments; it would also be legal for the county to levy taxes for the purpose of making the rental payments. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-120.

Municipal contributions to day care center. — Unless a provision in the city charter allows such an expenditure, a city may not contribute to a day care center. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-14.

General Consideration

Municipalities and counties have authority to levy taxes to carry out powers granted. — Counties and municipalities are given authority to enact reasonable ordinances and to contract and combine with each other to effectuate and carry out extensive supplementary powers granted; as a corollary, it is necessary that municipalities and counties have authority to levy taxes to carry out powers given. Peacock v. Georgia Mun. Ass’n, 247 Ga. 740, 279 S.E.2d 434 (1981).

City met active municipality requirements despite services contract with county. — City’s contract with county under which the county provided law enforcement, street construction and maintenance, solid waste collection, and recreational services in consideration of the county’s receipt of sales taxes was valid and showed that the city met the requirements of an active municipality. Sherrer v. City of Pulaski, 228 Ga. App. 78, 491 S.E.2d 129 (1997).

Counties and municipalities may appropriate and expend for public purposes connected with administration of local government. — Under Constitution and state statutes, both county governments and municipalities may levy taxes for public purposes connected with administration of county and city governments; as a corollary to this principle, it follows that counties and municipalities may appropriate and expend money for such public purpose. Peacock v. Georgia Mun. Ass’n, 247 Ga. 740, 279 S.E.2d 434 (1981).

Ambiguity as to whether local amendment to paragraph creates exemption from taxation is construed against taxpayer or, stated otherwise, exemption from taxation must be created expressly and distinctly and will not arise by implication. DeKalb County v. City of Decatur, 247 Ga. 695, 279 S.E.2d 427 (1981).

Differential tax rollback void. — This paragraph did not authorize differential tax rollback mandated by subsections (i) and (j) of Ga. L. 1978, p. 1695 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-8-91); thus, differential rollback was void. Martin v. Ellis, 242 Ga.

340, 249 S.E.2d 23 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

Constitutionality of Metropolitan River Protection Act. — The Metropolitan River Protection Act, Ga. L. 1978, p. 128 (see now O.C.G.A. § 12-5-440 et seq.), does not constitute zoning within the definition set out in the Georgia Constitution, but instead falls within the reserved powers of the state to act, along with the local governing authorities, with regard to the water system, as is set out in the purpose of the Act, and is, therefore, constitutional. Pope v. City of Atlanta, 240 Ga. 177, 240 S.E.2d 241 (1977), cert. denied, 440 U.S. 936, 99 S. Ct. 1281, 59 L. Ed. 2d 494 (1979).

Not illegal for county governing body to seek outside advice before officially acting. — Under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I), and this paragraph there is nothing illegal or unconstitutional nor is it an abuse of discretion for a governing body of a county to seek advice and recommendations from various department heads, advisory committees, and the general public prior to taking official action. Lindsey v. Guhl, 237 Ga. 567, 229 S.E.2d 354 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

Political subdivisions. — This paragraph of the state Constitution specifically categorizes counties and municipalities as “political subdivisions” for purposes of achieving self-government. King v. State, 246 Ga. 386, 271 S.E.2d 630 (1980) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

General Assembly still empowered to create and dissolve municipal corporations. — This paragraph provides uniformity of certain powers of municipalities, not autonomy. The General Assembly may not remove these powers in a random fashion. However, this paragraph does not operate to abolish the General Assembly’s plenary power to create and dissolve municipal corporations. City of Mt. View v. Clayton County, 242 Ga. 163, 249 S.E.2d 541 (1978), appeal dismissed, 440 U.S. 902, 99 S. Ct. 1205, 59 L. Ed. 2d 450 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

Annexation ordinances are not void because they violate this paragraph, which prohibits cities and counties from providing water and sewer service inside each other’s service areas except by contract with each other. City of Cartersville v. Bartow County School Dist., 145 Ga. App. 129, 243 S.E.2d 293 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

Construction of annexation resolution. — Where a service district covering unincorporated areas is created under this paragraph, and a portion is subsequently annexed to the city, the resolution should not be construed according to the intent of the drafters, but should be construed against duplication of services and double taxation and in favor of municipal annexation, unless the contrary clearly appears. Cobb County v. Allen, 236 Ga. 910, 226 S.E.2d 57 (1976).

City’s authority to regulate county’s building projects within city limits. — A county government is exempt from all municipal regulation of construction projects undertaken by the county with respect to county-owned property located within the city and used for governmental purposes, but they are subject to other municipal regulations as indicated by the Georgia General Assembly such as fire safety standards, O.C.G.A. § 25-2-12, or compliance with the Erosion and Sedimentation Act, O.C.G.A. § 12-7-1 et seq. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 256 Ga. App. 46, 567 S.E.2d 376 (2002).

County was required to maintain easements it owned within a city; no contract required. — County, as owner of easements over cemetery property in the City of Sandy Springs even after the city was incorporated, was required to maintain and repair a dam and ponds that the county built on the easements for so long as the county retained ownership of the easements. Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III, requiring an intergovernmental contract before a county could perform services in a city, did not apply because the county owned the easements. Fulton County v. City of Sandy Springs, 295 Ga. 16, 757 S.E.2d 123 (2014).

Instance of payment by county not unconstitutional. — Where a resolution of the General Assembly directing county authorities to reimburse a surety on the sum paid by the surety on the criminal recognizance under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI) and where the surety's principal had been apprehended and placed in the custody of the proper officers and the principal had been punished as prescribed by law, such resolution is not violative of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI) which forbids the General Assembly to grant any donation or gratuity in favor of any firm, person, or association, nor is such a resolution in violation of this paragraph. Stewart v. Davis, 175 Ga. 545, 165 S.E. 598 (1932) (decided under Ga. Const. 1877, Art. VII, Sec. VI, Para. II; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

Employment of counsel. — A county governing authority has the implicit power to employ counsel for county officers. Stephenson v. Board of Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 399, 405 S.E.2d 488 (1991).

Immunity from federal antitrust liability. — A city's anticompetitive operation of a waterworks is protected from federal antitrust liability by the state action immunity doctrine under Parker v. Brown, 317 U.S. 341, 63 S. Ct. 307, 87 L. Ed. 315 (1943), and its progeny. McCallum v. City of Athens, 976 F.2d 649 (11th Cir. 1992).

Zoning. — Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III does not constitute authorization for a municipality to exercise any zoning powers. Century Ctr. at Braselton, LLC v. Town of Braselton, 285 Ga. 380, 677 S.E.2d 106 (2009).

Ordinance restricting waste disposal services upheld. — Georgia trial court erred by denying injunctive relief to a county and its chosen waste disposal company wherein it sought to prohibit an unauthorized waste company from providing services in the county against an ordinance because the ordinance served a legitimate public purpose by providing a comprehensive solid waste management plan as it was required to do under O.C.G.A. § 12-8-31.1. Advanced Disposal Servs. Middle Ga., LLC v. Deep S. Sanitation, LLC, 296 Ga. 103, 765 S.E.2d 364 (Sept. 22, 2014).

City ordinance increasing pension plan contribution rate.

— Trial court properly granted the city defendants summary judgment on the city employees' claims of breach of contract and unconstitutional impairment of contract regarding an ordinance increasing their pension plan contribution rate because the Georgia General Assembly expressly contemplated that a municipal corporation's provision for employee retirement or pension benefits would be subject to being supplemented by local law. Borders v. City of Atlanta, 298 Ga. 188, 779 S.E.2d 279 (2015).

Police and Fire Protection

This paragraph not construable to prevent use of city property for necessary governmental purpose. — This paragraph will not be given a construction which will prevent the city from erecting a fire station, which is a necessary governmental use of property, in any area of the city, though it may be zoned for other and different uses; to construe them so as to prevent the city's use of any property for a necessary governmental purpose would offend that provision of the Constitution which declares that the right of eminent domain shall not be abridged. Mayor of Savannah v. Collins, 211 Ga. 191, 84 S.E.2d 454 (1954).

Counties are authorized to do whatever necessary to carry out the goal of providing fire protection. Georgia Ass'n of Am. Inst. of Architects v. Gwinnett County, 238 Ga. 277, 233 S.E.2d 142 (1977).

Counties are authorized to enter contracts to provide fire protection, even though that particular contractual power is not expressly conferred. Smith v. Board of Comm'rs of Rds. & Revenues, 244 Ga. 133, 259 S.E.2d 74 (1979).

Use of purchased property for necessary governmental property valid. — Since a municipality unquestionably has the right to condemn private property for a necessary governmental use, though it may be located in an area which has been zoned for other and different uses, it necessarily follows that it may likewise use property for a necessary governmental use which it has acquired previously by purchase. Mayor of Savannah v. Collins, 211 Ga. 191, 84 S.E.2d 454 (1954).

This paragraph authorizes a county to decide to provide its citizens with fire protection services, and then to implement that decision; in implementing that decision, counties are "authorized to do whatever [is] necessary to carry out this goal." Smith v. Board of Comm'rs of Rds. & Revenues, 244 Ga. 133, 259 S.E.2d 74 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

Implied authority and discretion to handle details. — Because where "jurisdiction over a subject matter is conferred upon county authorities . . . , the further power to contract in regard to that subject matter is to be implied; . . ." a part of this implicit power is the authority to use discretion as to the details of such contracts, subject only to the limitations imposed by the statutes or public policy of the state. Smith v. Board of Comm'rs of Rds. & Revenues, 244 Ga. 133, 259 S.E.2d 74 (1979).

Court cannot decide whether the governing authority made the correct decision, but only whether it was a lawful one; the discretion to choose among lawful means is given by law to the local government, not to the court. Smith v. Board of Comm'rs of Rds. & Revenues, 244 Ga. 133, 259 S.E.2d 74 (1979).

Providing full-time, paid fire personnel constitutional. — A proposed municipal charter amendment which would require provision of fire protection and that such fire protection be provided by a city fire department, with full-time, paid personnel employed by the city, does not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III. Sadler v. Nijem, 251 Ga. 375, 306 S.E.2d 257 (1983).

Jurisdiction of peace officers was restricted but an exception to the general rule was allowed for police officers to arrest persons for traffic offenses in other jurisdictions. State v. Heredia, 252 Ga. App. 89, 555 S.E.2d 91 (2001).

Authority to arrest for traffic violations. — A Henry County police officer was authorized to stop the defendant in Spalding County after an off-duty Henry County police officer reported seeing the defendant's vehicle weaving in and out of the defendant's lane and nearly hitting an abandoned vehicle. Under O.C.G.A. §§ 17-4-23 and 40-13-30, county police officers were authorized to arrest persons for traffic offenses in other jurisdictions.

Police and Fire Protection (Cont'd)

No authority to arrest outside of territorial jurisdiction. — Arrest warrants issued by a Georgia court did not insulate a payee or a county deputy from liability under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for causing a businesswoman who had given the payee postdated checks for merchandise to be arrested on bad check charges because the warrants were executed in Florida, outside the issuing court's territorial jurisdiction as set forth in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III(b). Brown v. Camden County, 583 F. Supp. 2d 1358 (S.D. Ga. 2008).

Authority to arrest outside of jurisdiction. — Trial court did not err in granting police officers summary judgment in a citizen's action alleging false imprisonment, assault and battery, and intentional infliction of emotional distress in connection with the defendant's arrest because the arrest was lawful under O.C.G.A. § 17-4-20 since obstruction occurred in the officers' presence; even if the officers did not have probable cause to arrest the defendant, the officers had the authority and discretion to arrest outside the officers' jurisdiction for offenses committed in the officers' presence and, therefore, the officers' immunity could not be defeated by the officers' decision to arrest outside of the officers' jurisdiction. Taylor v. Waldo, 309 Ga. App. 108, 709 S.E.2d 278 (2011).

Garbage and Solid Waste Disposal

County's sanitary landfill and fee schedules are authorized under this paragraph. City of Covington v. Newton County, 243 Ga. 476, 254 S.E.2d 855 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III).

Must demonstrate abuse of discretion or constitutional violation. — In order to enjoin a county board's action in selecting a solid waste disposal site, plaintiffs are required to show an abuse of discretion or a constitutional violation. Lindsey v. Guhl, 237 Ga. 567, 229 S.E.2d 354 (1976).

County ordinance requiring a fence and buffer space around all open storage and junkyard businesses is constitutional. Rockdale County v. Mitchell's Used Auto Parts, Inc., 243 Ga. 465, 254 S.E.2d 846 (1979).

County contract with private solid waste collection companies. — In choosing the option of contracting with private solid waste collection companies, a county was, through that method, providing solid waste collection services to county property owners within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 12-8-39.3(a); the fact that the individuals performing that service were not county employees, but employees of private contractors, was of no moment, insofar as it related to a property owner's constitutional challenge to the county's solid waste ordinance. Mesteller v. Gwinnett County, 292 Ga. 675, 740 S.E.2d 605 (2013).

Ordinance covering payment of garbage collection fees. — The state constitution, statutes, and case law permit a county to enact an ordinance making property owners responsible for the payment of garbage collection fees for their rental property. Board of Comm'rs v. Guthrie, 273 Ga. 1, 537 S.E.2d 329 (2000).

Regulations must be reasonable and means must relate to objective. — The Constitution requires that regulations not be unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious, and that means adopted regulations must have some real and substantial relation to the object to be attained. Rockdale County v. Mitchell's Used Auto Parts, Inc., 243 Ga. 465, 254 S.E.2d 846 (1979).

State cannot authorize violation of commerce clause. — A state cannot authorize activity which violates the commerce clause; thus, if the Georgia statute enabling authorities to enter agreements for exclusive rights with respect to solid waste disposal is interpreted to exclude competition from the solid waste disposal market, then it would conflict with the commerce clause, and, accordingly, conduct of authorities pursuant to the statute would not be entitled to state action immunity. Pine Ridge Recycling, Inc. v. Butts County, 855 F. Supp. 1264 (M.D. Ga. 1994).

Water Supply

Authority to supply water. — Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III did not require a contract between Coweta County and the City of Newnan's Water, Sewerage and Light Commission in order for the commission to supply water in the county because such authority is provided by local law. Coweta County v. City of Newnan, 253 Ga. 457, 320 S.E.2d 747 (1984).

Installation of competing water system by county. — A county that installs a competing water system is not required to compensate a private water system owner for property loss of its business with customers under the taking clause of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. III, Para. I when the owner has neither an exclusive franchise to supply water nor a non-compete agreement with the county. Amos Plumbing & Elec. Co. v. Bennett, 261 Ga. 810, 411 S.E.2d 490 (1992).

Local laws. — A local amendment to Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II of the 1945 Georgia Constitution, authorizing a county to levy a tax for water and sewerage purposes, was not repealed by ratification of a later amendment giving counties direct authority to create special taxing districts for water and sewerage services, and to tax for those services only within the special district. Copeland v. State, 268 Ga. 375, 490 S.E.2d 68 (1997).

Power to exercise the right of eminent domain outside the city limits to establish a city sewer system under the Revenue Bond Law, O.C.G.A. § 36-82-62, and the requirement under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III(b)(2) that the city must have a contract with the county to provide sewer services to county residents are not mutually exclusive. Kelley v. City of Griffin, 257 Ga. 407, 359 S.E.2d 644 (1987).

Storm water utility charges. — Trial court properly concluded that a storm water utility charge which Columbia County (Georgia) imposed on property owners was not an invalid tax and that the county's method of apportioning costs of storm water services was not arbitrary. McLeod v. Columbia County, 278 Ga. 242, 599 S.E.2d 152 (2004).

City subject to antitrust restraints in providing water services.

— The Georgia legislation, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III, and O.C.G.A. § 36-34-5, contemplates that political subdivisions, in their provision of water services, will contract amongst themselves to divide markets in the provision of waters and that such political subdivisions may establish and maintain monopolies in this area, but even a lawful monopolist may be subject to antitrust restraint when it seeks to extend or exploit its monopoly in a manner not contemplated by its authorization. Wall v. City of Athens, 663 F. Supp. 747 (M.D. Ga. 1987), aff'd sub nom., McCallum v. Athens, 976 F.2d 649 (11th Cir. 1992).

Grant of extra-territorial powers of eminent domain. — Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III(b)(1) did not apply when a governmental entity was given a specific, extraterritorial power by general or local law; therefore, because O.C.G.A. § 36-82-62 explicitly granted Henry County Water and Sewerage Authority extra-territorial powers of eminent domain, the authority was not required to obtain Butts County's agreement before instituting a condemnation action. Ware v. Henry County Water & Sewerage Auth., 258 Ga. App. 778, 575 S.E.2d 654 (2002).

Taxation

There is no constitutional requirement that local option sales tax revenues be used for educational purposes. Salem v. Tattnall County, 250 Ga. 881, 302 S.E.2d 99 (1983).

Use of local option sales tax proceeds. — Where a county creates a special service tax district which consists of the unincorporated area of the county, and it levies a special service district tax on property located therein, it may use its proceeds from the local option sales tax (O.C.G.A. § 48-8-80 et seq.) to reduce the millage rate of the general maintenance and operation tax which is levied countywide (i.e., is levied on property located in municipalities in the county and in the unincorporated area) and not just to reduce the millage rate in the special service tax district. Nielubowicz v.

Taxation (Cont'd)

Chatham County, 252 Ga. 330, 312 S.E.2d 802 (1984).

2010 amendment to the Local Option Sales Tax Act, O.C.G.A. § 48-8-89(d)(4), violates separation of powers doctrine. — To the extent the 2010 amendment to the Local Option Sales Tax Act (LOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-89(d)(4), permits judicial resolution of the issue of whether LOST should be renewed and the governing bodies of the special district should be required to levy and collect the tax, the amendment violates the separation of powers doctrine of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III. Turner County v. City of Ashburn, 293 Ga. 739, 749 S.E.2d 685 (2013).

Special district for health services proper. — County Board of Commissioners was authorized to create the special taxation district for the purpose of providing health services, as Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI allowed the special districts, and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III allowed the county to provide public health services. Greene County Bd. of Comm'rs v. Higdon, 277 Ga. App. 350, 626 S.E.2d 541 (2006).

Libraries

Agreement purporting to transfer control of library system from city to county is invalid where there is a failure to include the library's trustees as parties pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 20-5-40, which statutory requirement was not superseded and nullified by Ga. Const. 1945, Art. XI, Sec. III, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III). Dougherty County v. Burt, 168 Ga. App. 166, 308 S.E.2d 395 (1983).

Parks

County may condemn private property for public purpose of creating recreational park. Williams Bros. Lumber Co. v. Gwinnett County, 258 Ga. 243, 368 S.E.2d 310 (1988).

Public Housing

No city housing authority may exercise public housing powers or provide public housing services outside its boundaries except by contract with city or county affected, unless otherwise provided by any local or special law. Brown v. Housing Auth., 240 Ga. 647, 242 S.E.2d 143 (1978).

Public Transportation

Statute limiting the use of tax revenue is one means of regulating power of local governments to provide transportation services. City of Atlanta v. Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Auth., 636 F.2d 1084 (5th Cir. 1981).

Airport facility. — Even though, under a contract between the county and an airport authority for use by the county of an expanded airport facility, the consideration to be paid by the county was not expressed in terms of a definite dollar amount, it was not an unconstitutional "new debt". The contract was a valid intergovernmental contract and the consideration represented the authority's lawful "revenue pledged to the payment of" the bonds. Clayton County Airport Auth. v. State, 265 Ga. 24, 453 S.E.2d 8 (1995).

Contract between the county and the airport authority, which managed the airport, qualified as an enforceable intergovernmental agreement (IGA) that did not violate the Debt Clause in the Georgia Constitution because the IGA was between appropriate governmental entities; its term did not exceed 50 years; the agreement related to both the provision of services and the joint use of facilities as the airport authority agreed to manage and maintain the expanded taxiway, and the county, in return, agreed to provide funding and manage the debt required to be incurred to complete the expansion; and the agreement dealt with services and facilities about which the county had the authority to enter contracts. Avery v. State of Ga., 295 Ga. 630, 761 S.E.2d 56 (2014).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Amendment intended to enumerate services county and municipality may provide. — The constitutional amendment set forth in this paragraph was intended to supplement and enumerate services which counties and municipalities may provide, and to permit them to combine to provide the services, but the ordinances which counties may enact to provide these services are subject to the general terms and restrictions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. I, Para. I), including the prohibition against the enactment of criminal sanctions by counties. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U74-96.

General Assembly has authority to regulate, restrict, or limit exercise of these powers by general law. 1980 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 80-102.

Municipality cannot expend municipal funds for “straw vote” on issue of local importance absent local law authorizing such referendum. 1981 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 81-72.

Funding of “straw vote” prohibited. — The expenditure of public funds for a county wide “straw vote” or public opinion referendum, absent some statutory or constitutional premise, is prohibited. 1990 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U90-20.

Assessing fee for services to Board of Regents. — While a municipality cannot “tax” the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia on its property or operations, this does not preclude the municipality from charging a fee for optional services furnished to the Board of Regents or its various educational institutions. 1979 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 79-75.

Municipalities are not prohibited by Georgia’s Constitution or laws from enacting ordinances regarding enforcement of traffic control devices by the use of cameras. 2000 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U2000-7.

Municipality may legally place parking meters within its limits on streets which are a part of the State Highway System. 1952-53 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 261.

Municipal contributions to day care center. — Unless a provision in the city charter allows such an expenditure, a city may not contribute to a day care center. 1984 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U84-14.

Local regulation of air pollutants. — While local governments are not preempted from regulating in the area of air quality control, any ordinance in this area which contradicts or detracts from the Georgia Air Quality Act, O.C.G.A. § 12-9-1 et seq., would be unconstitutional and void. 1986 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U86-22.

Municipal home rule power not violated by World Congress Center’s regulations. — O.C.G.A. § 10-9-14, empowering the Geo. L. Smith II Georgia World Congress Center Authority to regulate activities on the sidewalks and streets immediately adjacent to the World Congress Center’s projects during an event period, does not violate the City of Atlanta's home rule power under the Georgia constitution and O.C.G.A. § 36-35-3(a). 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-4.

JUDICIARY'S ROLE

REZONING

General Consideration

Municipal governments, not courts, have power to rezone property. Jackson v. Goodman, 247 Ga. 683, 279 S.E.2d 438 (1981).

Zoning Act of 1927. — Power to zone, rezone, and make changes for use was clearly conferred upon cities by §§ 4 and 5 of the Zoning Act of 1927, Ga. L. 1927, p. 929, and such power is unquestionably in harmony with this paragraph. Brown v. City of Brunswick, 210 Ga. 738, 83 S.E.2d 12 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Zoning Procedures Law. — The Zoning Procedures Law, O.C.G.A. § 36-66-1 et seq., preempted the provisions in a city charter for the purposes of the adoption and amendment of zoning ordinances. Little v. City of Lawrenceville, 272 Ga. 340, 528 S.E.2d 515 (2000).

Power to zone unquestionable. — The power and necessity for state legislatures and municipal governments to impose restrictions through zoning laws and ordinances is no longer subject to question. 106 Forsyth Corp. v. Bishop, 362 F. Supp. 1389 (M.D. Ga. 1972), aff'd, 482 F.2d 280 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 422 U.S. 1044, 95 S. Ct. 2660, 45 L. Ed. 2d 696 (1975).

Authority to create and restrict use of geographical zones. — A county governing authority can create geographical areas within the boundaries of a county which are called zones; the governing authority can declare that the land in a zone can be used only for specified purposes or uses and that all other specified purposes or uses of the land in that zone are prohibited. Matthews v. Fayette County, 233 Ga. 220, 210 S.E.2d 758 (1974).

Extent of authority to zone or district. — The authority to zone or district as conferred under this paragraph is limited to creation or establishment of zones or districts in the first instance, and contains no authority either express or implied to thereafter make any exception with respect to the status of the particular district as already zoned, by amending or repealing in whole or in part the zoning ordinance enacted in accordance with the authority delegated by statute. The statutory authority given to a particular class of counties as differs from that granted various other counties and that given municipalities where the statute specifically authorized the governing body either through the creation of a board of zoning appeals, or other similar body, to make changes and exceptions, or to amend or modify the classifications of areas already zoned; and in so doing a well defined procedure is established to effect such ends. Barton v. Hardin, 204 Ga. 108, 48 S.E.2d 882 (1948) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Authority to control building's particular use not authorized by this paragraph. — Georgia Laws 1939, p. 245 which, under authority of the amendment to the Constitution of 1877 proposed by Ga. L. 1937, p. 1135, ratified by the people on June 8, 1937, and applicable to Richmond County, and substantially similar to this paragraph, authorizes the county authorities to adopt zoning ordinances for stated purposes, does not grant authority to control the use to which a particular building may be devoted, and an ordinance which sought to prohibit the operation of a grocery store in zoned territory was in that respect ultra vires and invalid when tested by the Act of 1939. Lanier v. Richmond County, 203 Ga. 39, 45 S.E.2d 415 (1947) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Rule governing county response to court declaration of unconstitutionality of zoning regulations. — Once the zoning regulations applicable to a particular tract of land have been declared unconstitutional and void by the judiciary, before the judiciary can require further mandatory action, the governing authority must be given a reasonable time for the rezoning of the tract to a use classification that is constitutional. But if the governing authority does not accomplish this purpose within a reasonable time after the current zoning has been declared unconstitutional and void, then the judiciary, as a last resort toward obtaining compliance with its judgment, may declare such tract unzoned and free from all municipal or county zoning restrictions. City of Atlanta v. McLennan, 237 Ga. 25, 226 S.E.2d 732 (1976).

Trial court's declaration that property was "unzoned and free from all Cobb County Zoning restrictions" was a perilous condition to inflict upon adjoining landowners, since it might cause them severe inconvenience or irreparable harm. A safer alternative would be the trial court's use of its power to order the local zoning authority to rezone the property to a classification that is constitutional. Cobb County v. Wilson, 259 Ga. 685, 386 S.E.2d 128 (1989).

Moratorium on zoning permits impermissible. — That a county may have been given increased authority to zone under the 1983 Constitution does not enable it to defeat property owners by a moratorium placed on permits, after the property owners applied for a permit, made substantial expenditures, and received assurances from zoning officials. Cannon v. Clayton County, 255 Ga. 63, 335 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Rezoning may not infringe on vested property rights. — Even if a county's zoning power has been broadened by the enactment of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV, the county may not use its zoning power to defeat the vested property interest of a property owner to use the owner's land as zoned. Cannon v. Clayton County, 255 Ga. 63, 335 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Nonprofit corporation is not immune from local zoning regulations even if the corporation is performing services which are governmental in nature, at least in the absence of clear legislative intent that such immunity be extended. Macon Ass'n for Retarded Citizens v. Macon-Bibb County Planning & Zoning Comm'n, 252 Ga. 484, 314 S.E.2d 218, appeal dismissed, 469 U.S. 802, 105 S. Ct. 57, 83 L. Ed. 2d 8 (1984).

Former "Steinberg Act," former O.C.G.A. § 36-67-1 et seq., providing for zoning proposal review procedures in urbanized counties, did not unconstitutionally bind the local government in any way nor infringe on the local government's ability to exercise the power of zoning. Northridge Community Ass'n v. Fulton County, 257 Ga. 722, 363 S.E.2d 251 (1988).

By Municipalities and Counties

General Assembly has power to grant to municipalities and counties authority to pass zoning and planning laws. Birdsey v. Wesleyan College, 211 Ga. 583, 87 S.E.2d 378 (1955).

Direct authority has been granted to the counties to enact planning and zoning laws for unincorporated areas. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

Legislature no longer has authority to enact local laws concerning planning and zoning for unincorporated areas. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

County authorities control zoning. — Authority to amend or repeal existing planning and zoning laws or to enact new planning and zoning laws with respect to unincorporated areas has been granted to the county authorities. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

The General Assembly has no authority to grant a county the authority to enact zoning and planning laws except by constitutional provision. Johnston v. Hicks, 225 Ga. 576, 170 S.E.2d 410 (1969).

Legislature not empowered to zone property. — Georgia Laws 1953, p. 2788, eliminating from jurisdiction of a county planning board certain property and providing that this property be zoned for cemetery purposes, was unconstitutional under provision declaring that the legislature has authority to delegate to counties and municipalities the right to zone property. Neither under this provision of the Constitution, nor under any other provision of the Constitution or laws, has the legislature itself the right to zone property. Herrod v. O'Beirne, 210 Ga. 476, 80 S.E.2d 684 (1954).

The legislature has power to pass outdoor advertising zoning laws. — The 1983 Constitution carried forward power held exclusively in the counties and municipalities from Paragraph II of Section VIII of Article IV of the Georgia Constitution of 1976, (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. 11, Paras. VI, IV, VI, and VII); the Outdoor Advertising Act does not conflict with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV. Patrick v. Head, 262 Ga. 654, 424 S.E.2d 615 (1993).

Zoning regulations enacted by a municipality pursuant to constitutional and legislative authority are valid and cannot be held unconstitutional on contention that constitutional authority to zone conflicts with other provisions of the Constitution, or upon the contention that rights guaranteed by the Constitution are denied as a result of the zoning regulations. Palmer v. Tomlinson, 217 Ga. 399, 122 S.E.2d 578 (1961).

Under the Constitution of this state, a city has broad authority as to zoning. Galfas v. Ailor, 81 Ga. App. 13, 57 S.E.2d 834 (1950).

This paragraph is a broad grant of direct constitutional authority to counties to enact zoning ordinances. Matthews v. Fayette County, 233 Ga. 220, 210 S.E.2d 758 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Only authorities empowered by the Constitution to zone can zone, and the legislature is powerless to provide otherwise. Hunt v. McCollum, 214 Ga. 809, 108 S.E.2d 275 (1959).

Legislature was authorized to grant to the governing authorities of named cities "authority to pass zoning and planning laws whereby such cities may be zoned or districted for various uses and other or different uses prohibited therein, and regulating the use for which said zones or districts may be set apart, and regulating the plans for development and improvement of real estate therein." Brown v. City of Brunswick, 210 Ga. 738, 83 S.E.2d 12 (1954).

Restriction on state power. — Ga. L. 1957, p. 420, § 10, as amended, requiring submission of zoning ordinance amendments to a municipal planning commission, was inconsistent with the provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Paras. III, IV, VI, and VII), prohibiting the General Assembly from restricting the power of a municipality to plan and zone; and that statutory provision was properly omitted from the O.C.G.A. by the codifiers. Warshaw v. City of Atlanta, 250 Ga. 535, 299 S.E.2d 552 (1983).

Due process not violated. — The state Constitution contains both a due process clause and a zoning provision. They must be construed together. Accordingly, it can no longer be held that a zoning statute, which authorizes a city embraced within it to pass a zoning and planning ordinance, is per se unconstitutional and void because it deprives the owner of real estate and property without due process of law since this paragraph supersedes the decisions of the Supreme Court which declared zoning statutes unconstitutional and void because they denied due process of law to the owners of real estate embraced in zoning districts. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV).

A zoning statute is not per se unconstitutional and void because it deprives the owner of the owner's property without due process of law. Matthews v. Fayette County, 233 Ga. 220, 210 S.E.2d 758 (1974).

Zoning ordinance must not infringe constitutional guaranties by invading personal or property rights unnecessarily or unreasonably; and if the application of a zoning ordinance has the effect of completely depriving an owner of the beneficial use of the owner's property by precluding all uses, or the only use to which it is reasonably adapted, an attack upon the validity of the regulation, as applied to the particular property involved, will be sustained. Humthlett v. Reeves, 212 Ga. 8, 90 S.E.2d 14 (1955).

A zoning statute or ordinance should not be declared unconstitutional unless its provisions are clearly arbitrary and unreasonable, having no substantial relation to the public health, safety, morals, or general welfare. The exercise of police power in this regard must be upheld if any state of facts either known or which could be reasonably assumed affords support for it. 106 Forsyth Corp. v. Bishop, 362 F. Supp. 1389 (M.D. Ga. 1972), aff'd, 482 F.2d 280 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 422 U.S. 1044, 95 S. Ct. 2660, 45 L. Ed. 2d 696 (1975).

under police power and for welfare of the community. 106 Forsyth Corp. v. Bishop, 362 F. Supp. 1389 (M.D. Ga. 1972), aff'd, 482 F.2d 280 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 422 U.S. 1044, 95 S. Ct. 2660, 45 L. Ed. 2d 696 (1975).

Motion picture theaters, like filling stations and whiskey stores, are not immune from regulation under the police power. 106 Forsyth Corp. v. Bishop, 362 F. Supp. 1389 (M.D. Ga. 1972), aff'd, 482 F.2d 280 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 422 U.S. 1044, 95 S. Ct. 2660, 45 L. Ed. 2d 696 (1975).

Where restraint is relatively minor and the public interest to be protected is substantial, the regulation will be upheld. 106 Forsyth Corp. v. Bishop, 362 F. Supp. 1389 (M.D. Ga. 1972), aff'd, 482 F.2d 280 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 422 U.S. 1044, 95 S. Ct. 2660, 45 L. Ed. 2d 696 (1975).

Right to disseminate motion pictures is not absolute. — It does not mean that any motion picture can be distributed at any time, at any place, and under any circumstances. 106 Forsyth Corp. v. Bishop, 362 F. Supp. 1389 (M.D. Ga. 1972), aff'd, 482 F.2d 280 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 422 U.S. 1044, 95 S. Ct. 2660, 45 L. Ed. 2d 696 (1975).

Regulation affecting only one business party valid. — Fact that only one party operating a business is affected by a regulation designed to localize operation of such business in a certain district does not show arbitrary and unreasonable or unjust discrimination in violation of organic rights. 106 Forsyth Corp. v. Bishop, 362 F. Supp. 1389 (M.D. Ga. 1972), aff'd, 482 F.2d 280 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 422 U.S. 1044, 95 S. Ct. 2660, 45 L. Ed. 2d 696 (1975).

Circumstances under which zoning ordinances have been held invalid, as applied to certain specific property, fall into three general classes: (1) where a small parcel of property is zoned for residential purposes, when it is entirely surrounded by commercial or business enterprises; (2) where property zoned for residential use is entirely unsuited for residential purposes; or (3) where the purpose of the ordinance is not to protect the public health, safety, morals, or general welfare. Humthlett v. Reeves, 212 Ga. 8, 90 S.E.2d 14 (1955).

Zoning laws sustainable. — Unless regulations enacted by a local governing body are so unreasonable and extravagant that the property and personal rights of the citizen are unnecessarily, and in a manner wholly arbitrary, interfered with or destroyed without due process of law, they do not exceed the limits of the police power of the governing body to enact the regulations. Kirkpatrick v. Candler, 205 Ga. 449, 53 S.E.2d 889 (1949).

There is no violation of due process by a zoning ordinance that eliminates use of the property in any of the permissible ways. Riddle v. Waller, 127 Ga. App. 399, 193 S.E.2d 895 (1972).

Validity of a city zoning ordinance depends upon facts existing at time validity is questioned, and confiscatory character of the ordinance can be proven by conditions then existing. Humthlett v. Reeves, 212 Ga. 8, 90 S.E.2d 14 (1955).

Valid ordinance may result in confiscation of particular properties. — Because a zoning ordinance may in general be valid, and yet, as to a particular state of facts involving a particular parcel of real estate, be so arbitrary and unreasonable as to result in confiscation, thereby justifying the interposition of a court of equity to restrain its enforcement. Humthlett v. Reeves, 212 Ga. 8, 90 S.E.2d 14 (1955).

Requirements for enforcement of zoning ordinances. — Zoning ordinances must not only be nondiscriminatory and reasonable but also must be applied in a nondiscriminatory and reasonable manner in order to be enforceable. Whether an ordinance is uniformly enforced by the authorities is a question of fact. Matthews v. Fayette County, 233 Ga. 220, 210 S.E.2d 758 (1974).

Effect of changed conditions and uses of adjacent property since passage of zoning ordinance. — Evidence as to change of condition and circumstances since passage of ordinance zoning defendants' property for residential and agricultural purposes because of uses of property adjacent to or near defendants' property, was sufficient to warrant conclusion that to apply the provisions of the ordinance to the property of the defendants would render such ordinance arbitrary and unreasonable. Humthlett v. Reeves, 212 Ga. 8, 90 S.E.2d 14 (1955).

Owner bears burden of proof of arbitrariness and unreasonableness of ordinance. — Where it is claimed that a zoning ordinance is unreasonable as to a particular tract of property, or that a change of conditions has rendered the ordinance unreasonable when applied to the particular property, the burden is on the owner of such property to produce sufficient evidence from which the court can make findings of fact and law such as would justify a holding as a matter of law that the ordinance is arbitrary and unreasonable; there must be a showing of an abuse of discretion on the part of the zoning authority, and that there has been an unreasonable and unwarranted exercise of the police power. Humthlett v. Reeves, 212 Ga. 8, 90 S.E.2d 14 (1955).

Ultra vires act by legislature invalidates subsequent enactments by commission. — In 1943 and 1949 the governing authority of a county was the commissioner of roads and revenues (now county commissioners); the legislature exceeded its authority under this paragraph when it created a planning commission with authority to enact zoning laws and regulations for a county, and therefore the commission was wholly without any power to promulgate an ordinance zoning the defendants' property for any purpose. Humthlett v. Reeves, 212 Ga. 8, 90 S.E.2d 14 (1955) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, § II, Para. IV).

Burden is on applicant. — The burden is on the applicant to show that practical difficulties or undue hardship to the owner requires the allowance of the variance. International Funeral Servs., Inc. v. DeKalb County, 244 Ga. 707, 261 S.E.2d 625 (1979).

Delegation of discretion in zoning matters is unconstitutional. — The "governing authority," under this provision, strictly refers to such city or county board as has the authority to exercise general and not limited powers. Delegation of legislative discretion in zoning matters would thus prove to be an unconstitutional act. Button Gwinnett Landfill, Inc. v. Gwinnett County, 256 Ga. 818, 353 S.E.2d 328 (1987).

Authority to grant special exceptions is constitutional. — A county commission delegates no legislative power to the zoning board of appeals where the zoning board of appeals simply determines whether an applicant's property strictly complies with the conditions that the governing authority has specified and if the property complies, the special exception is granted, but if the property does not, the exception is denied. Button Gwinnett Landfill, Inc. v. Gwinnett County, 256 Ga. 818, 353 S.E.2d 328 (1987).

A board of zoning adjustment's power to decide special exceptions was not in contravention of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV. The board's discretion was tightly controlled by an ordinance, which dictated whether or not the board could grant the special exception. If the property complied with the conditions set out by the governing authority, the special exception was to be granted, but if it did not comply, the special exception was not to be granted. LaFave v. City of Atlanta, 258 Ga. 631, 373 S.E.2d 212 (1988).

No zoning power over property outside town's territorial limits. — With regard to the landowners' declaratory judgment, mandamus, and injunctive relief suit seeking damages against a town and its officials alleging the unconstitutionality and invalidity of an overlay zoning district, the trial court erred by denying the landowners' motion for partial summary judgment with regard to the landowners' claim that the town did not have any legal authority to impose the requirements of the overlay zoning ordinance for right-of-way improvements on the state route abutting the property since the property at issue was outside the territorial boundaries of the town, therefore, the requirements of the overlay zoning ordinance were invalid as to the property since the town had no zoning authority over the same. Century Ctr. at Braselton, LLC v. Town of Braselton, 285 Ga. 380, 677 S.E.2d 106 (2009).

By Municipalities and Counties (Cont'd)

City's authority to regulate county's building projects within city limits. — A county government is exempt from all municipal regulation of construction projects undertaken by the county with respect to county-owned property located within the city and used for governmental purposes, but that they are subject to other municipal regulations as indicated by the Georgia legislature such as fire safety standards, O.C.G.A. § 25-2-12, or compliance with the Erosion and Sedimentation Act, O.C.G.A. § 12-7-1 et seq. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 256 Ga. App. 46, 567 S.E.2d 376 (2002).

Owner had to be in compliance with then existing sign ordinance. — Property owner did not have a vested right to erect a sign because it had not been erected in accordance with zoning regulations in force when the owner applied for the permit; accordingly, the owner's failure to comply with the permit rendered the owner outside of the scope of protection afforded by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV. Although the Outdoor Advertising Control Act, O.C.G.A. § 32-6-70, also afforded protections, such protection was again not applicable to the property owner because the owner had not erected the owner's sign in compliance with the legal requirements of the existing ordinances; accordingly, the owner had no property rights in the sign. DeKalb County v. DRS Invs., Inc., 260 Ga. App. 225, 581 S.E.2d 573 (2003).

Permitting for signs. — Void county sign ordinance could not be used as the basis for the denial of sign companies' applications for permits to construct billboards, and the invalidity of the ordinance resulted in there being no valid restriction on the construction of billboards in the county. Accordingly, the sign companies obtained vested rights in the issuance of the permits which the companies sought and the constitutional authority of cities that were subsequently formed to plan and zone within the cities' jurisdictions was not violated. Fulton County v. Action Outdoor Adver., JV, LLC, 289 Ga. 347, 711 S.E.2d 682 (2011).

Judiciary's Role

Passage of an ordinance is a legislative act, and no change can be made in such an ordinance except by passage of another, qualifying, repealing, or modifying its terms. Alewine v. City Council, 505 F. Supp. 880 (S.D. Ga. 1981), aff'd in part and reversed in part, 699 F.2d 1060 (11th Cir. 1983), cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1027, 105 S. Ct. 1391, 84 L. Ed. 2d 781 (1985).

Claim alleging violation of a right created by city ordinance is cognizable as a cause of action under state law. Alewine v. City Council, 505 F. Supp. 880 (S.D. Ga. 1981), aff'd in part and reversed in part, 699 F.2d 1060 (11th Cir. 1983), cert. denied, 470 U.S. 1027, 105 S. Ct. 1391, 84 L. Ed. 2d 781 (1985).

Judicial restraint required. — Because judicial restraint in the zoning area is implicitly required by this paragraph, the judiciary, only as a last resort, should declare a tract of land free from zoning regulations that are imposed and that may be only imposed by local governing authorities. City of Atlanta v. McLennan, 237 Ga. 25, 226 S.E.2d 732 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV).

Municipal ordinance based on a general power in a charter of a city must be reasonable. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941).

Ordinance may be unreasonable or arbitrary, and if it is unreasonable or arbitrary, it will be declared void and unenforceable. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941).

Reasonableness or unreasonableness of a city zoning and planning ordinance is a question of law for the court to decide, unless it depends on the existence of particular facts which are disputed, when it may become in part a question for a jury. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941).

Local government in best position to decide needs of own community. — A county or municipality or any combination thereof ordinarily should be in a better position to understand the needs of their own communities; and where once these public bodies are given power to put restraint on the use of property in populous areas, courts will not interfere with the exercise of it unless it appears that the rights of a citizen have been violated. It is not the business of the courts to regulate these governing bodies as to matters within their discretion. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941).

Legislature and city council best qualified to determine need for regulation. — State legislatures and city councils, who deal with the situation from a practical standpoint, are better qualified than courts to determine the necessity, character, and degree of regulation required; and their conclusions should not be disturbed by the courts, unless clearly arbitrary and unreasonable. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941).

Once the decision is made that the governing body possesses the power to zone and restrict use of property, then the acts of such body in exercise of such power will not be disturbed by the courts unless they are clearly arbitrary and unreasonable. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941); Matthews v. Fayette County, 233 Ga. 220, 210 S.E.2d 758 (1974).

Limitations of power of city council are not to be measured by the more extensive powers of the state legislature. Schofield v. Bishop, 192 Ga. 732, 16 S.E.2d 714 (1941).

Trial court is authorized to review a variance decision to determine whether a board or county exceeded its authority, abused its discretion, or acted arbitrarily or capriciously with regard to an applicant's constitutional rights. International Funeral Servs., Inc. v. DeKalb County, 244 Ga. 707, 261 S.E.2d 625 (1979).

Due Process and Equal Protection

Party must have due and legal notice of the hearing on the matter of rezoning before the county governing authority, the body which can rezone land and thereby deprive a party of property rights. F.P. Plaza, Inc. v. Waite, 230 Ga. 161, 196 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 414 U.S. 825, 94 S. Ct. 129, 38 L. Ed. 2d 59 (1973).

Lack of notice did not violate constitutional rights. — Defective notice or lack of notice of preliminary hearing before the planning commission was not violative of procedural due process or equal protection. F.P. Plaza, Inc. v. Waite, 230 Ga. 161, 196 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 414 U.S. 825, 94 S. Ct. 129, 38 L. Ed. 2d 59 (1973).

Notice by publication of a rezoning hearing is proper and adequate insofar as the requirements of procedural due process and equal protection are concerned. F.P. Plaza, Inc. v. Waite, 230 Ga. 161, 196 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 414 U.S. 825, 94 S. Ct. 129, 38 L. Ed. 2d 59 (1973).

Rezoning

Authority to rezone necessary implication authority to zone. — The authority of the General Assembly to grant to the governing authorities of any county authority to pass zoning and planning laws whereby such counties may be zoned or districted for various uses, and other or different uses prohibited therein, and to regulate the use for which said zones or districts may be set apart and to regulate the plans for development and improvement of real estate therein, necessarily includes the authority of the General Assembly to grant to the county authorities the right to rezone property which had already been zoned. Kirkpatrick v. Candler, 205 Ga. 449, 53 S.E.2d 889 (1949).

Power to zone contained in the Constitution of 1945, and authority granted to specific cities by the amendment of 1948, fully authorize rezoning of property, and such rezoning does not violate the due process clause of the Constitution. Birdsey v. Wesleyan College, 211 Ga. 583, 87 S.E.2d 378 (1955).

Rezoning legislation presumed valid. — Where the governing authority rezones property, the authority need not enter findings and conclusions justifying the rezoning decision because it is acting in a legislative capacity. Like other legislative action, rezoning legislation, when duly adopted, is presumed to be valid until the contestant shows otherwise. Hall Paving Co. v. Hall County, 237 Ga. 14, 226 S.E.2d 728 (1976).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Former Code 1933, Chapter 69-8 and Chapter 69-12. — The provision of this paragraph prohibiting the legislature's enactment of any further legislation concerning planning and zoning apparently invalidates former Code 1933, Chapter 69-8 and Chapter 69-12 since they clearly regulate the zoning and planning power of cities and counties by establishing uniform procedural mechanisms for implementation of that power. However, the invalidation of these chapters does not rescind all those city and county ordinances that have been enacted pursuant to these chapters; they will remain effective until the city or county expressly changes them. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-5. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IV).

City or county can now adopt whatever system it desires for planning and zoning, so long as that system is not arbitrary — i.e., so long as it meets minimal due process standards. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-5.

Necessity for enabling Act. — This provision authorizing zoning and planning laws for municipalities is not self-executing and the General Assembly must pass an enabling Act authorizing officials of the municipality to pass zoning and planning laws. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 416.

Zoning powers are vested. — Zoning powers of county government are constitutionally vested and cannot be limited, restricted or interfered with by any legislative enactment, general or local, of the General Assembly; however, insofar as municipal government is concerned the zoning powers which they have been authorized by the General Assembly to exercise can be withdrawn by the General Assembly, although in such event these zoning powers are not capable of being placed elsewhere by the General Assembly, and can be subjected to such limitations and procedural requisites as the General Assembly may reasonably think proper. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-9.

"Local" constitutional amendments. — A "local" constitutional amendment may repeal or change, or authorize the General Assembly by local Act to repeal or change, a planning or zoning ordinance adopted by local governmental authority. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-9 (decided under former § 2-1923).

General Assembly cannot require a municipality to engage in zoning activities if it does not want to; however, the General Assembly does have power to prescribe the procedure a municipality must follow if the municipality chooses to exercise its zoning powers. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-9.

Governmental body authorized to exercise zoning powers. — The only governmental bodies which may be authorized to exercise zoning powers are governing authorities of the municipalities and counties of this state. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-9.

Extent of governing authorities powers. — The governing authorities of each municipality and each county in the state may adopt by ordinance or resolution the general law zoning and planning statutes and form separate or joint city-county zoning and planning commissions without the necessity of the General Assembly enacting additional local legislation. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 342.

Procedure constituting area planning commissions. — If the county governing authorities and the governing authorities of the county seat of each of the counties involved adopted resolutions and ordinances to effectuate the same, the resulting area planning commission would be legally constituted. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 670 (decided under former Code 1933, § 2-1923).

Municipal building ordinance is ultra vires insofar as it affects the state because a municipality is a creature of the state and possesses only such power as the state may delegate to it; the presumption would be that the state in authorizing a municipality to enforce zoning and inspection ordinances did not intend to include state property in such inspections. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 219.

Paragraph V. Eminent domain.

The governing authority of each county and of each municipality may exercise the power of eminent domain for any public purpose subject to any limitations on the exercise of such power as may be provided by general law. Notwithstanding the provisions of any local amendment to the Constitution continued in effect pursuant to Article XI, Section I, Paragraph IV or any existing general law, each exercise of eminent domain by a nonelected housing or development authority shall be first approved by the elected governing authority of the county or municipality within which the property is located. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Extraterritorial exercise of right of eminent domain. — Where the condemning authority seeks to exercise the power of eminent domain within the territorial limits of another governing body, a restriction has been held to apply. The extraterritorial exercise of the right of eminent domain as an "implied" power is authorized only if it is "reasonably necessary" to a condemnor's successful completion of an undertaking initiated pursuant to its express grant of authority over a subject matter within its jurisdiction. Dougherty County v. Burt, 168 Ga. App. 166, 308 S.E.2d 395 (1983).

County may condemn private property for public purpose of creating recreational park. Williams Bros. Lumber Co. v. Gwinnett County, 258 Ga. 243, 368 S.E.2d 310 (1988).

City has power of eminent domain for drainage and flood control and does not have to institute condemnation proceedings or compensate property owners as a prerequisite to entering land to conduct a preliminary survey. Walker v. City of Warner Robins, 262 Ga. 551, 422 S.E.2d 555 (1992).

Pre-condemnation survey and appraisal. — In a declaratory judgment action by a city seeking access to property in order to conduct a pre-condemnation survey and appraisal, the necessity for the contemplated taking was not a proper subject of inquiry and the trial court did not err in refusing to consider the issue. Aponte v. City of Columbus, 246 Ga. App. 646, 540 S.E.2d 617 (2000).

County was authorized to exercise its right of eminent domain in connection with the expansion of a detention center because the county had jurisdiction over the maintenance of jails in the county under O.C.G.A. § 36-9-5(a), the operation of a jail constituted a public purpose pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. V, and the property owner did not identify any general law limiting the right of the county to exercise its power of eminent domain; the condemnation of the owner's property was "reasonably necessary" to maintain the jail system within the county because concerns regarding security, costs, and duplication of effort were cited in support of expanding the facility, and strong evidence was presented that the expansion posed a viable and logical solution. Brunswick Landing, LLC v. Glynn County, 301 Ga. App. 288, 687 S.E.2d 271 (2009), cert. denied, No. S10C0558, 2010 Ga. LEXIS 246 (Ga. 2010).

creates an independent districting mechanism and does not limit constitutional authority of cities and counties. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-45. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. V).

Paragraph VI. Special districts.

As hereinafter provided in this Paragraph, special districts may be created for the provision of local government services within such districts; and fees, assessments, and taxes may be levied and collected within such districts to pay, wholly or partially, the cost of providing such services therein and to construct and maintain facilities therefor. Such special districts may be created and fees, assessments, or taxes may be levied and collected therein by any one or more of the following methods:

(a) By general law which directly creates the districts.

(b) By general law which requires the creation of districts under conditions specified by such general law.

(c) By municipal or county ordinance or resolution, except that no such ordinance or resolution may supersede a law enacted by the General Assembly pursuant to subparagraphs (a) or (b) of this Paragraph.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Authorization of this paragraph contemplated creation of special districts for providing services, not special districts for taxing same services at different rates. Martin v. Ellis, 242 Ga. 340, 249 S.E.2d 23 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Special districts may be created for the provision of local government services within special districts; and fees, assessments, and taxes may be levied and collected within such district to pay, wholly or partially, the cost of providing such services therein and to construct and maintain facilities therefor. The special district clause of the constitution limits the expenditure of revenue derived from the special district tax to the provision of local governmental services within the special district. Wells v. City of Baldwin, 275 Ga. 228, 565 S.E.2d 439 (2002).

This paragraph contemplates a link between service provided and method of financing service; therefore, charges and fees are to be made for such services in the abstract. Similarly, the exercise of the power to tax and assess is specifically tied to the purpose of providing such services. Accordingly, it is proper to levy a tax within a part of a city or county to pay for special service provided to that part and not to the remainder of the city or county. However, it is not proper simply to decide that property owners in one part of a city or county will pay more than their fair share for services provided equally throughout the taxing jurisdiction. Martin v. Ellis, 242 Ga. 340, 249 S.E.2d 23 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI).

Statute creating special districts for the purpose of implementing a hotel/motel tax did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI.

Youngblood v. State, 259 Ga. 864, 388 S.E.2d 671 (1990).

Roll back of millage rate for county residents unauthorized. — City ordinance violated the Joint County and Municipal Sales and Use Tax Act, O.C.G.A. § 48-8-66 et seq., by authorizing the city to use its pro rata share of revenue generated by another county's local option sales tax (LOST) to roll back the millage rate for county residents. Wells v. City of Baldwin, 275 Ga. 228, 565 S.E.2d 439 (2002).

Homestead Option Sales Tax. — The Homestead Option Sales Tax (HOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., implements a district tax under the "special district" provision of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI; intergovernmental contracts which are authorized under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I cannot be limited by HOST. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 277 Ga. 292, 589 S.E.2d 561 (2003).

Court of Appeals erred in finding that the Homestead Option Sales Tax Act (HOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., did not allow a county to disburse funds to various cities in order to facilitate the capital outlay requirement under O.C.G.A. § 48-8-104(c)(2)(A), as HOST was implemented under the "special district" provision of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI, and as it was not a "county tax," it was subject to such an arrangement; however, the intergovernmental agreement between the county and cities had to be authorized under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I in order to be valid. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 277 Ga. 292, 589 S.E.2d 561 (2003).

Ga. L. 2007, p. 598, § 1 et seq., which amended the Homestead Option Sales and Use Tax (HOST) Act, O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., did not change the purpose of the HOST approved by county voters when it provided for the distribution of HOST proceeds to the governing authority of each qualified municipality located in the special district; the tax for which it sought voter approval was within the special district within the county, and that was because the HOST was not a “county tax” but a district tax levied to provide for services within that special district pursuant to the authority granted by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI. DeKalb County v. Perdue, 286 Ga. 793, 692 S.E.2d 331 (2010).

Trial court did not err by holding that Ga. L. 2007, p. 598, § 1 et seq., which amended the Homestead Option Sales and Use Tax (HOST) Act, O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI, because although a tax levied and collected within a special district pursuant to Para. VI could only be used for the cost of providing services within that district, Para. VI did not require that the entity levying the special district tax be the same one providing the services within the district, such that funds emanating from the HOST could be used for services in that part of the county that was within the corporate borders of the qualified municipality only when the county and the city jointly so agreed; the Paragraph contains no language identifying any particular entity as the exclusive provider of local government services. DeKalb County v. Perdue, 286 Ga. 793, 692 S.E.2d 331 (2010).

2010 amendment to the Local Option Sales Tax Act, O.C.G.A.

§ 48-8-89(d)(4), violates separation of powers doctrine. — To the extent the 2010 amendment to the Local Option Sales Tax Act (LOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-89(d)(4), permits judicial resolution of the issue of whether LOST should be renewed and the governing bodies of the special district should be required to levy and collect the tax, the amendment violates the separation of powers doctrine of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III. Turner County v. City of Ashburn, 293 Ga. 739, 749 S.E.2d 685 (2013).

Special district for health services.

— County Board of Commissioners was authorized to create the special taxation district for the purpose of providing health services, as Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI allowed the special districts, and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III allowed the county to provide public health services. Greene County Bd. of Comm’rs v. Higdon, 277 Ga. App. 350, 626 S.E.2d 541 (2006).

Concurrent authority of general assembly and counties. — O.C.G.A. § 36-31-12(b) did not violate the Georgia Constitution by encroaching on a county’s exclusive authority, derived from a local constitutional amendment (Ga.1972, p. 1482, § 1), over the collection and expenditure of revenues collected within its special taxing and spending district; the amendment granted concurrent authority to the county and the general assembly over these matters. Fulton County v. Perdue, 280 Ga. 807, 631 S.E.2d 362 (2006).

Paragraph VII. Community redevelopment.

(a) Each condemnation of privately held property for redevelopment purposes must be approved by vote of the elected governing authority of the city within which the property is located, if any, or otherwise by the governing authority of the county within which the property is located. The power of eminent domain shall not be used for redevelopment purposes by any entity, except for public use, as defined by general law.

(a.1) The General Assembly may authorize any county, municipality, or housing authority to undertake and carry out community redevelopment.

(b) The General Assembly is also authorized to grant to counties or municipalities for redevelopment purposes and in connection with redevelopment programs, as such purposes and programs are defined by general law, the power to issue tax allocation bonds, as defined by such law, and the power to incur other obligations, without either such bonds or obligations constituting debt within the meaning of Section V of this article, and the power to enter into contracts for any period not exceeding 30 years with private persons, firms, corporations, and business entities. Such general law may authorize the use of county, municipal, and school tax funds, or any combination thereof, to fund such redevelopment purposes and programs, including the payment of debt service on tax allocation bonds, notwithstanding Section VI of Article VIII or any other provision of this Constitution and regardless of whether any county, municipality, or local board of education approved the use of such tax funds for such purposes and programs before January 1, 2009. No county, municipal, or school tax funds may be used for such purposes and programs without the approval by resolution of the applicable governing body of the county, municipality, or local board of education. No school tax funds may be used for such purposes and programs except as authorized by general law after January 1, 2009; provided, however, that any school tax funds pledged for the repayment of tax allocation bonds which have been judicially validated pursuant to general law shall continue to be used for such purposes and programs. Notwithstanding the grant of these powers pursuant to general law, no county or municipality may exercise these powers unless so authorized by local law and unless such powers are exercised in conformity with those terms and conditions for such exercise as established by that local law. The provisions of any such local law shall conform to those requirements established by general law regarding such powers. No such local law, or any amendment thereto, shall become effective unless approved in a referendum by a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in the county or municipality directly affected by that local law.

(c) The General Assembly is authorized to provide by general law for the creation of enterprise zones by counties or municipalities, or both. Such law may provide for exemptions, credits, or reductions of any tax or taxes levied within such zones by the state, a county, a municipality, or any combination thereof. Such exemptions shall be available only to such persons, firms, or corporations which create job opportunities within the enterprise zone for unemployed, low, and moderate income persons in accordance with the standards set forth in such general law. Such general law shall further define enterprise zones so as to limit such tax exemptions, credits, or reductions to persons and geographic areas which are determined to be underdeveloped as evidenced by the unemployment rate and the average personal income in the area when compared to the remainder of the state. The General Assembly may by general law further define areas qualified for creation of enterprise zones and may provide for all matters relative to the creation, approval, and termination of such zones.

(d) The existence in a community of real property which is maintained in a blighted condition increases the burdens of state and local government by increasing the need for governmental services, including but not limited to social services, public safety services, and code enforcement services. Rehabilitation of blighted property decreases the need for such governmental services. In recognition of such service needs and in order to encourage community redevelopment, the counties and municipalities of this state are authorized to establish community redevelopment tax incentive programs as authorized in this subparagraph. A community redevelopment tax incentive program shall be established by ordinance of the county or municipality. Any such program and ordinance shall include the following elements:

(1) The ordinance shall specify ascertainable standards which shall be applied in determining whether property is maintained in a blighted condition. The ordinance shall provide that property shall not be subject to official identification as maintained in a blighted condition and shall not be subject to increased taxation if the property is a dwelling house which is being used as the primary residence of one or more persons; and

(2) The ordinance shall establish a procedure for the official identification of real property in the county or municipality which is maintained in a blighted condition. Such procedure shall include notice to the property owner and the opportunity for a hearing with respect to such determination.

(3) The ordinance shall specify an increased rate of ad valorem taxation to be applied to property which has been officially identified as maintained in a blighted condition. Such increase in the rate of taxation shall be accomplished through application of a factor to the millage rate applied to the property, so that such property shall be taxed at a higher millage rate than the millage rate generally applied in the county or municipality, or otherwise as may be provided by general law.

(4) The ordinance may, but shall not be required to, segregate revenues arising from any increased rate of ad valorem taxation and provide for use of such revenues only for community redevelopment purposes;

(5) The ordinance shall specify ascertainable standards for rehabilitation through remedial actions or redevelopment with which the owner of property may comply in order to have the property removed from identification as maintained in a blighted condition. As used herein, the term "blighted condition" shall include, at a minimum, property that constitutes endangerment to public health or safety;

(6) The ordinance shall specify a decreased rate of ad valorem taxation to be applied for a specified period of time after the county or municipality has accepted a plan submitted by the owner for remedial action or redevelopment of the blighted property and the owner is in compliance with the terms of the plan. Such decrease in the rate of taxation shall be accomplished through application of a factor to the millage rate applied to the property, so that such property shall be taxed at a lower millage rate than the millage rate generally applied in the county or municipality, or otherwise as may be provided by general law.

(7) The ordinance may contain such other matters as are consistent with the intent and provisions of this subparagraph and general law.

Variations in rate of taxation as authorized under this subparagraph shall be a permissible variation in the uniformity of taxation otherwise required. The increase or decrease in rate of taxation accomplished through a change in the otherwise applicable millage rate shall affect only the general millage rate for county or municipal maintenance and operations. A county and one or more municipalities in the county may, but shall not be required to, establish a joint community redevelopment tax incentive program through the adoption of concurrent ordinances. No Act of the General Assembly shall be required for counties and municipalities to establish community redevelopment tax incentive programs. However, the General Assembly may by general law regulate, restrict, or limit the powers granted to counties and municipalities under this subparagraph. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, Sec. 2, Para. 7; Ga. L. 1984, p. 1709, § 1/HR 444; Ga. L. 1996, p. 1666, § 1/SR 64; Ga. L. 2002, p. 1497, § 1/HR 391; Ga. L. 2006, p. 1111, § 1/HR 1306; Ga. L. 2008, p. 1211, § 1/SR 996.)

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1996, p. 1666, § 1), which added subparagraph (c), was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 5, 1996.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2002, p. 1497, § 1), which revised this Paragraph to provide that counties and municipalities may establish community redevelopment tax incentive programs under which increased taxation shall apply to properties maintained in a blighted condition and decreased taxation shall apply for a time to formerly blighted property which has been rehabilitated, was approved by a majority of the voters voting in the general election held November 5, 2002.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2006, p. 1111, § 1) which substituted the present provisions of subparagraph (a) for the former provisions which read: “The General Assembly may authorize any county, municipality, or housing authority to undertake and carry out community redevelopment, which may include the sale or other disposition of property acquired by eminent domain to private enterprise for private uses.” and which substituted “The” for “In addition to the authority granted by subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, the” at the beginning of the first sentence in subparagraph (b), was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 7, 2006.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2008, p. 1211, § 1), which added subparagraph (a.1); and, in subparagraph (b), inserted “also” near the beginning of the first sentence, and added the present second, third, and fourth sentences, was ratified at the general election held on November 4, 2008.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Authorization and constitutionality of Ch. 61, T. 36. — Chapter 61, T. 36, is expressly authorized by the Constitution as amended, and the acts proposed to be taken thereunder, and in conformity therewith, are not unconstitutional for any reason assigned. Bailey v. Housing Auth., 214 Ga. 790, 107 S.E.2d 812 (1959).

Taking of private property for public purpose. — By this paragraph and Ch. 61, T. 36, the people of this state have declared that the taking of private property may be permitted for a “public purpose,” and that powers of taxation and eminent domain may be exercised and public funds expended in furtherance thereof, and by that the courts are bound. Bailey v. Housing Auth., 214 Ga. 790, 107 S.E.2d 812 (1959) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VII).

Forest land not construable as slum or housing project. — The terms “slum” and “housing project” cannot be construed to include property of the condemnee sought to be taken, since such property is forest land, and to construe the terms “slum area” and “housing project,” to include this property would be contrary to this paragraph. Howard v. Housing Auth., 220 Ga. 640, 140 S.E.2d 880 (1965) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VII).

Terms “blighted areas” and “redevelopment project” as defined in O.C.G.A. § 8-4-3 cannot be construed to include forest land, and to construe such terms as applying to the property is contrary to this paragraph. Howard v. Housing Auth., 220 Ga. 640, 140 S.E.2d 880 (1965) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VII).

Public use not necessary before sale. — Private property may be acquired for the purpose of selling it to private persons without being put to a public use prior to the sale. Nations v. Downtown Dev. Auth., 255 Ga. 324, 338 S.E.2d 240 (1985).

Use of local school taxes for redevelopment. — School system, development authority, and others were properly granted summary judgment in a suit challenging the allocation of school taxes because 2008 amendments to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VII(b) and O.C.G.A. § 36-44-9(g), governing tax allocation districts, changed the law and retroactively allowed use of local school taxes for general redevelopment purposes. Sherman v. Atlanta Indep. Sch. Sys., 293 Ga. 268, 744 S.E.2d 26 (2013).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Worker's compensation law (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 9, T. 34), insofar as it applies to municipal corporations, is not unconstitutional as authorizing municipal corporations to appropriate money for an association for noncharitable purposes in violation of this paragraph. City of Atlanta v. Pickens, 176 Ga. 833, 169 S.E. 99 (1933) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Insofar as it imposes liability without fault upon employers, and includes municipal corporations within the classification of employers, the worker's compensation law (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 9, T. 34) is not in conflict with this paragraph. City of Macon v. Benson, 175 Ga. 502, 166 S.E. 26 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Worker's compensation law (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 9, Title 34), is not unconstitutional because it requires an appropriation of money for an injured employee without consideration, and is not for any charitable purpose. City of Macon v. Benson, 175 Ga. 502, 166 S.E. 26 (1932).

O.C.G.A. § 34-9-121. — Former Code 1933, § 114-602 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-9-121) was not in violation of this paragraph because it required a municipality to appropriate and donate money to a corporation to insure the municipality against loss caused by injury, and also required that a municipal corporation become a stockholder in a mutual insurance association, and to lend its credit to the municipal corporation or insurance association. City of Macon v. Benson, 175 Ga. 502, 166 S.E. 26 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Ga. L. 1975, p. 107 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 3, T. 46) is not a violation of this paragraph since the authority is not a county, municipal corporation, or political subdivision of this state. Thompson v. Municipal Elec. Auth., 238 Ga. 19, 231 S.E.2d 720 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Municipality contracting to lease land to corporation provided lessee supply medical and surgical treatment to city's indigents not unconstitutional. — A contract between a municipality and another corporation for a lease, for a term of 35 years, of land owned by the municipality, in consideration of care of the poor of the city by the lessee to the extent of supplying specified medical and surgical treatment in a clinic or hospital existing on such land, is not unlawful as violating any of the provisions of the Constitution. Aven v. Steiner Cancer Hosp., 189 Ga. 126, 5 S.E.2d 356 (1939).

Road contract valid. — Contract between State Highway Board (now State Transportation Board) and county commissioners for grading of portion of a state-aid road lying within county is not unconstitutional upon the ground that it involves a loan of the credit of the county to the State Highway Board in violation of this paragraph. Spain v. Hall County, 175 Ga. 600, 165 S.E. 612 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Allowing use of certain properties as partial consideration for promise to provide fire protection is not deemed credit. Smith v. Board of Comm'rs of Rds. & Revenues, 244 Ga. 133, 259 S.E.2d 74 (1979).

Contract between county and airport authority valid. — Trial court did not err by rejecting the claim that the bond issuance violated the Lending Clause of the Georgia Constitution because the bond resolution and the intergovernmental agreement between the county and the airport authority required the county to extend the county's credit for the county's own purposes, namely the benefit of the taxiway expansion, and the agreement between the airport authority and a commercial aviation company did not alter that as, under that agreement, the commercial aviation company was, at best, extending the company's credit to the county. Avery v. State of Ga., 295 Ga. 630, 761 S.E.2d 56 (2014).

Intergovernmental Agreement did not violate the lending clause because the county was not paying, with appropriated funds or credit, for anything to be owned by the baseball parties, the stadium and stadium site would be owned by the Cobb-Marietta Coliseum and Exhibit Hall Authority, with the baseball team paying license fees to the Authority, for at least 30 years, at which time the bonds would be fully redeemed. Savage v. State of Ga., 297 Ga. 627, 774 S.E.2d 624 (2015).

Article 2, Ch. 3, T. 8, payment provision not unconstitutional. — The provision of Ga. L. 1937, p. 697 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 3, T. 8), which provides that the city shall, out of any money in its treasury not otherwise appropriated, appropriate to the authority an amount of money necessary to cover the administrative expense and overhead during the first year, and Act further declaring that said money so appropriated shall be paid as a donation, is not violative of this paragraph which, among other things, provides that the General Assembly shall not authorize any municipality to appropriate money to any corporation except for purely charitable purposes. Williamson v. Housing Auth., 186 Ga. 673, 199 S.E. 43 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Instance of city ordinance unconstitutional due to unconscionable result. — If a city ordinance can be taken and construed as meaning that the owner of any improved or vacant premises of whatever character and size, within the limits of the city, becomes instantly liable for injuries to third persons on account of and from the moment any trash, banana peeling, ice, snow, or what not falls upon the abutting sidewalk, without fault or knowledge on the part of such owner, it would manifestly be a rule so harsh and unconscionable as would render such municipal ordinance unconstitutional and void as violative of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. I). Ellis v. Southern Grocery Stores, Inc., 46 Ga. App. 254, 167 S.E. 324 (1933).

Use of county funds to procure passage, defeat, or influence vote approval of constitutional amendment not authorized. — The authority of county governments to expend public funds is enumerated in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II). Expenditure of county funds to procure passage or defeat of constitutional amendments is not specifically permitted. Further, the Supreme Court has decided that an advertising campaign to influence vote approval of a constitutional amendment is not authorized as a facet of administration of county government. McKinney v. Brown, 242 Ga. 456, 249 S.E.2d 247 (1978).

Purpose of this paragraph is to prevent extravagant outlays, making resort to taxing power necessary. Mayor of Athens v. Camak, 75 Ga. 429 (1885) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Compensating citizens who have paid money over to a corporation falls within purview of this paragraph. Town of Adel v. Woodall, 122 Ga. 535, 50 S.E. 481 (1905) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Contract to secure a right of way for a railroad falls within the purview of this paragraph. Covington & M.R.R. v. Mayor of Athens, 85 Ga. 367, 11 S.E. 663 (1890) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

This paragraph does not forbid assignment by a contractor of a future city debt. Mayor of Albany v. Cameron & Barkley Co., 121 Ga. 794, 49 S.E. 798 (1905) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Extension of territorial limits of a city is not prohibited by this paragraph. White v. City of Atlanta, 134 Ga. 532, 68 S.E. 103 (1910) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Costs of street improvements may be assessed in installments. City of Valdosta v. Harris, 156 Ga. 490, 119 S.E. 625 (1923).

Unless there is something in the charter of a municipal corporation which forbids building school houses, the city may do so. Mayor of Cartersville v. Baker, 73 Ga. 686 (1884).

Power of city to purchase right of way. — A city has the right, under this provision, to expand its funds for purpose of purchasing rights of way within city limits for the State Highway Department (now Department of Transportation), if the purpose of the project is for improvement of the streets of the city, and thereby to procure work done on its street without any expense to it except in providing for the rights of way; it is immaterial whether the title to the rights of way is taken in the name of the city or in the State Highway Department. Jackson v. City of Rome, 182 Ga. 848, 187 S.E. 386 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Local tax for water and sewage valid. — A local amendment to Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II of the 1945 Georgia Constitution, authorizing a county to levy a tax for water and sewerage purposes, was valid despite any conflict with the provision prohibiting gratuities on the part of counties. Copeland v. State, 268 Ga. 375, 490 S.E.2d 68 (1997).

Hospital authority is not a “county, municipal corporation or political division of this state.” Bradfield v. Hospital Auth., 226 Ga. 575, 176 S.E.2d 92 (1970).

Garbage collection contract valid. — There was no merit in a resident’s arguments that the provision in a contract in which a county agreed to reimburse a private enterprise for a percentage of uncollected fees for garbage collection services prior to the county’s recovery of those fees from residents by means provided by O.C.G.A. § 12-8-39.3 violated Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII, prohibiting legislation to authorize any county to lend its credit to any person or nonpublic corporation. Strykr v. Long County Bd. of Comm’rs, 277 Ga. 624, 593 S.E.2d 348 (2004).

Consideration paid to private contractors for solid waste collection services proper. — Because a county was authorized to provide solid waste collection services, and to enter into contracts with private parties to do so, paying consideration to the contractors for that service before the associated fees were collected did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII. Mesteller v. Gwinnett County, 292 Ga. 675, 740 S.E.2d 605 (2013).

Allocation of a portion of the fines and forfeitures collected in this state to the Peace Officers’ Annuity and Benefit Fund is not an appropriation in violation of this paragraph. Cole v. Foster, 207 Ga. 416, 61 S.E.2d 814 (1950) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Use of taxing power to pay rents under intergovernmental contract valid. — City’s pledge of its taxing power to make up any deficit in the rents it is obligated to pay under a valid intergovernmental contract is permissible under the intergovernmental contracts clause and does not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII. Nations v. Downtown Dev. Auth., 256 Ga. 158, 345 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

Bond guarantee by city-lessor violates paragraph. — Lease provision whereby a city-lessor agreed to guarantee the bond payments of a development authority-lessee did not come within the intergovernmental contracts clause in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I and, therefore, was barred by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII. Nations v. Downtown Dev. Auth., 255 Ga. 324, 338 S.E.2d 240 (1985).

Local laws not violative of this paragraph are Section 7 of Ga. L. 1920, pp. 741, 744, which provides for issuing executions to enforce assessments for paving sidewalks against abutting lots or owners thereof in the city of Bainbridge, the levy of such executions, and sales thereunder, as in cases of sales for city taxes, does not violate this paragraph. Bower v. City of Bainbridge, 168 Ga. 616, 148 S.E. 517 (1929) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Ga. L. 1901, p. 620 does not violate this paragraph. — Since under the provisions of Ga. L. 1901, p. 620, creating a dispensary neither the city of Rome nor the county of Floyd can incur any debt or liability, hence the law does not violate this paragraph or Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV). Chamlee v. Davis, 115 Ga. 266, 41 S.E. 691 (1902).

Ga. L. 1913, p. 145, to create a municipal court for the city of Atlanta, did not violate this paragraph. McWilliams v. Smith, 142 Ga. 209, 82 S.E. 569 (1914) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Paragraph implicitly empowers General Assembly to authorize county to appropriate money for institution for purely charitable purposes. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-43 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Paragraph cannot be construed as self-executing authorization to counties and municipal corporations to make contributions, or to form corporations for purely charitable purposes. Rather, this section permits the General Assembly to authorize counties and municipal corporations to take such action. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-25 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

General Assembly may not authorize a municipal corporation to provide a group insurance plan to its employees free of charge, as such would be an illegal use of public revenue. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 496.

County hospital authority, established and operated pursuant to Ga. L. 1964, p. 499 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 4, Ch. 7, T. 31), would come within the definition of an operation for "purely charitable purposes." 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-280.

Public fall-out shelters on private property. — Municipal bond money cannot be legally spent on improvement or conversion of existing building located on private property for construction of public fall-out shelters. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 332.

City has no authority to appropriate public moneys to its Chamber of Commerce. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-32.

County may not, absent legislative authority, make a contribution to an entity organized for purely charitable purposes. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-24.

Donation prohibited, but joint venture permitted. — While a county may not legally donate funds to assist a city in constructing a swimming pool, the county and city may jointly provide, establish, maintain, and conduct such a system. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 289.

Ga. L. 1960, p. 289, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 33-14-67), membership in mutuals, cannot be construed to alter or change restrictions imposed by this paragraph. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 383. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

Actions rendering private ambulance service noncharitable. — A private ambulance service which collects fees from its patients in addition to a monthly subsidy it receives and makes the resulting profits available for distribution as income or personal gain to its owners is not "a charitable purpose" under the requirements of the Georgia Constitution. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-434.

Municipal contributions to day care center. — Unless a provision in the city charter allows such an expenditure, a city may not contribute to a day care center. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-14.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality of statutory scheme for waiver of immunity by state and counties. — The statutory scheme under which plaintiffs having tort claims against the state have the benefit of the broad waiver of sovereign immunity afforded by the Georgia Tort Claims Act, O.C.G.A. § 50-21-20 et seq., which does not extend to counties, whereas a county’s waiver of immunity is allowed only to the extent of insurance purchased for negligence arising from the use of a motor vehicle, results in unequal treatment; however, it does not violate due process or equal protection. Woodard v. Laurens County, 265 Ga. 404, 456 S.E.2d 581 (1995).

Municipal corporation is without authority to waive its immunity from liability for damages arising out of exercise of governmental functions. Boone v. City of Columbus, 87 Ga. App. 701, 75 S.E.2d 338 (1953).

No conflict between statute of limitations and this paragraph. — There is no conflict between statute of limitation applicable to insurance suits against municipalities and constitutional and statutory provisions relating to waiver of immunity. Cobb v. Board of Comm’rs of Rds. & Revenue, 151 Ga. App. 472, 260 S.E.2d 496 (1979).

Statute of limitation of action not inconsistent with this paragraph. — Former Code 1933, § 23-1602 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-11-1), providing that “[a]ll claims against counties must be presented within 12 months after they accrue or become payable, or the same are barred,” is not inconsistent with this paragraph. Cobb v. Board of Comm’rs of Rds. & Revenue, 151 Ga. App. 472, 260 S.E.2d 496 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IX).

Construction of duplicative constitutional grants of sovereign immunity. — Since the authority to waive the sovereign immunity of the state, and concomitantly that of the counties of the state, is given to the General Assembly by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IX, it was not necessary for the people to give an identical authority of waiver to the General Assembly by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IX. However, this duplicative grant does not render the two provisions inconsistent and does not indicate an intent that the Article I provision would not reserve sovereign immunity to counties. Toombs County v. O’Neal, 254 Ga. 390, 330 S.E.2d 95 (1985).

The 1991 amendment of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IX, extending sovereign immunity to all state departments and agencies regardless of any insurance, did not divest the General Assembly of authority under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IX to waive the immunity of counties based on motor vehicle liability insurance; therefore, the amendment did not abrogate the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 33-24-51 and a county’s governmental immunity was waived to the extent of liability insurance purchased. Daniels v. Decatur County, 212 Ga. App. 378, 441 S.E.2d 790 (1994).

Application to counties. — In a negligence action against a county, the county’s motion for summary judgment was granted on the basis of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IX and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IX (waiver of sovereign immunity to the extent of liability insurance coverage) not applying to counties. Bliss v. Cobb County, 599 F. Supp. 233 (N.D. Ga. 1984).

Employee was not entitled to damages arising out of a violation of O.C.G.A. § 9-11-65(b) in obtaining a temporary restraining order (TRO) against the employee as the county had sovereign immunity and the county manager and the county attorney had sovereign immunity in their official capacities; the county manager and the county attorney had official immunity in their individual capacities as obtaining the TRO was a discretionary action that they undertook to protect the public and workplace safety after they were advised of the employee’s actions. Even though the attorney acted negligently in obtaining the TRO, the attorney did not act with actual malice. Wallace v. Greene County, 274 Ga. App. 776, 618 S.E.2d 642 (2005).

Recreational Property Act did not waive official immunities. — Although finding that official immunity shielded a county employee from liability for injuries suffered by a child when that child fell from a swing on county property that the employee previously inspected, and that sovereign immunity shielded the county, the trial court nonetheless erred in concluding that the Recreational Property Act, O.C.G.A. § 51-3-20 et seq., waived these immunities, as: (1) implied waivers of governmental immunity were not to be favored; (2) the employee was entitled to official or qualified immunity, which could not be waived; and (3) even assuming a partial waiver of sovereign and official immunity through enactment of the Act, no evidence was presented that the employee acted wilfully and the defect complained about by the child’s mother was apparent to those using the property. Norton v. Cobb, 284 Ga. App. 303, 643 S.E.2d 803 (2007), cert. denied, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 634 (Ga. 2007).

Application to city. — Trial court properly granted summary judgment to a city on a parent’s negligence claim against the city stemming from a child’s serious automobile accident at a known dangerous intersection that was inappropriately signaled because the city was immune from suit as the issue of whether to install a traffic signal at the intersection was a discretionary act, entitling the city to sovereign immunity; further, a successful tax referendum to fund a new traffic light did not create a duty to install a traffic light at the intersection before completing other projects. Riggins v. City of St. Marys, 264 Ga. App. 95, 589 S.E.2d 691 (2003).

In a tort action for personal injuries and property damage arising from an auto collision filed against a city and its police officer, the trial court erred in granting a city summary judgment, as: (1) O.C.G.A. § 40-6-6(d)(2) did not apply; and (2) the city waived its sovereign immunity to the extent that it purchased liability coverage to cover the officer's actions in operating that officer's police car. But, the trial court properly granted summary judgment to the officer, given that the officer was engaged in a discretionary function of responding to an emergency situation at the time the accident at issue occurred. Weaver v. City of Statesboro, 288 Ga. App. 32, 653 S.E.2d 765 (2007), cert. denied, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 221 (Ga. 2008).

Surety sued a city for money had and received stemming from the forfeiture of a cash bond; however, this claim was properly dismissed as Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. IX conferred sovereign immunity on the city. Watts v. City of Dillard, 294 Ga. App. 861, 670 S.E.2d 442 (2008).

Court of appeals correctly determined that no statute required that a city's agreement with the Georgia Interlocal Risk Management Agency (GIRMA) had to meet the uninsured and underinsured motorist coverage requirements that an insurance policy issued by an insurer had to meet pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 33-7-11 because the General Assembly explicitly declared that GIRMA was not an insurer; GIRMA and its liability coverage contracts, and the requirements imposed thereon by statute, exist solely in the context of sovereign immunity, and the statutory waiver thereof. Godfrey v. Ga. Interlocal Risk Mgmt. Agency, 290 Ga. 211, 719 S.E.2d 412 (2011).

City was not entitled to sovereign immunity because the city's "Public Officials Errors and Omissions" insurance policy covered the wrongful termination claims brought by city employees; therefore, consistent with O.C.G.A. § 36-33-1(a), the city was deemed to have waived sovereign immunity to the extent of the limits of the city's insurance policy covering those claims. Owens v. City of Greenville, 290 Ga. 557, 722 S.E.2d 755 (2012).

Trial court erred in not granting a city's motion to dismiss the negligence claims against the city because the city was exercising a governmental function when the city demolished an abandoned house claimed a nuisance; therefore, the city was entitled to sovereign immunity on those claims. City of Atlanta v. Durham, 324 Ga. App. 563, 751 S.E.2d 172 (2013).

In a correction officer's negligence suit against the city alleging a failure to inspect the inmate transport bus and to maintain the brake lines, the trial court erred in denying the city's motion for summary judgment because sovereign immunity was not waived, and because, without any evidence that the city failed to follow a specific rule, procedure, or law, or that it otherwise deviated from some clear standard for performing its inspection of the bus and its brake lines, the city's act in inspecting the brake lines was a discretionary one. City of Milledgeville v. Primus, 325 Ga. App. 553, 753 S.E.2d 146 (2013).

City liability for police officer's actions. — When officers arrested a decedent who died shortly after the arrest, a city which employed one of the officers could not be held liable because: (1) the city was immune from claims involving police work unless the city waived that immunity; and (2) it was not shown that the city waived immunity. Hoyt v. Bacon County, No. 509-026, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7330 (S.D. Ga. Jan. 26, 2011).

City immune for action of issuing a business license. — Suit by parents against a city alleging that the city negligently issued a day care business license to a day care, which had left their child in a hot car, resulting in the child's death, was barred by sovereign immunity because the issuance of a license was a government function. Calloway v. City of Warner Robins, 783 S.E.2d 175, No. A15A2081, 2016 Ga. App. LEXIS 154 (2016).

Applicability to diversity actions. — In a diversity action against a Georgia city arising out of an accident in South Carolina involving a city garbage truck, even though the city would not be entitled to sovereign immunity under South Carolina law, immunity enjoyed by the city under Georgia law would be extended as a matter of comity. Davis v. City of Augusta, 942 F. Supp. 577 (S.D. Ga. 1996).

School officials sued in their official capacity or for acting in areas where they were vested with discretion will not be liable unless they acted wilfully, wantonly, or outside the scope of their authority; otherwise, their actions are protected by the doctrine of governmental immunity. McClendon v. Norwood, 179 Ga. App. 176, 346 S.E.2d 1 (1986).

Immunity if acts done within scope of authority and without wilfulness, fraud, malice or corruption. — Under sovereign immunity principles, a public officer or employee acting within the scope of his or her authority and engaged in discretionary as opposed to ministerial functions is entitled to immunity from suit, provided the acts complained of are done within the scope of the officer's authority and without wilfulness, fraud, malice, or corruption. Hendon v. DeKalb County, 203 Ga. App. 750, 417 S.E.2d 705, cert. denied, 203 Ga. App. 906, 417 S.E.2d 705 (1992).

Appellate court erred by affirming a trial court's denial of a city's motion to dismiss an inmate's complaint because the care of inmates in the custody of a municipal corporation is a governmental function for which sovereign immunity has not been waived; therefore, the inmate was precluded from pursuing negligence claims. City of Atlanta v. Mitcham, 296 Ga. 576, 769 S.E.2d 320 (2015).

Care of inmates. — Georgia Supreme Court finds that the care of inmates in the custody of a municipal corporation is a governmental function for which sovereign immunity has not been waived. City of Atlanta v. Mitcham, 296 Ga. 576, 769 S.E.2d 320 (2015).

Nuisance exception. — Trial court properly denied a city's motion to dismiss based on sovereign immunity because the landowners asserted that the damage from the city's drainage system amounted to an unlawful taking of their property for which sovereign immunity has been waived. City of Greensboro v. Rowland, 334 Ga. App. 148, 778 S.E.2d 409 (2015), cert. denied, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 154 (Ga. 2016).

SECTION III.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

Paragraph

- I. Intergovernmental contracts.
- II. Local government reorganization.

Law reviews. — For article, "Local Government Litigation: Some Pivotal Principles," see 55 Mercer L. Rev. 1 (2003).

Paragraph I. Intergovernmental contracts.

(a) The state, or any institution, department, or other agency thereof, and any county, municipality, school district, or other political subdivision of the state may contract for any period not exceeding 50 years with each other or with any other public agency, public corporation, or public authority for joint services, for the provision of services, or for the joint or separate use of facilities or equipment; but such contracts must deal with activities, services, or facilities which the contracting parties are authorized by law to undertake or provide. By way of specific instance and not limitation, a mutual undertaking by a local government entity to borrow and an undertaking by the state or a state authority to lend funds from and to one another for water or sewerage facilities or systems or for regional or multijurisdictional solid waste recycling or solid waste facilities or systems pursuant to law shall be a provision for services and an activity within the meaning of this Paragraph.

Art. 9, § 3, ¶ 1 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 3, ¶ 1

(b) Subject to such limitations as may be provided by general law, any county, municipality, or political subdivision thereof may, in connection with any contracts authorized in this Paragraph, convey any existing facilities or equipment to the state or to any public agency, public corporation, or public authority.

(c) Any county, municipality, or any combination thereof, may contract with any public agency, public corporation, or public authority for the care, maintenance, and hospitalization of its indigent sick and may as a part of such contract agree to pay for the cost of acquisition, construction, modernization, or repairs of necessary land, buildings, and facilities by such public agency, public corporation, or public authority and provide for the payment of such services and the cost to such public agency, public corporation, or public authority of acquisition, construction, modernization, or repair of land, buildings, and facilities from revenues realized by such county, municipality, or any combination thereof from any taxes authorized by this Constitution or revenues derived from any other source. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 3, Para. 1; Ga. L. 1986, p. 1612, § 3/HR 363; Ga. L. 1992, p. 3329, § 4/HR 732.)

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1992, p. 3329, § 4) which revised subparagraph (a) to add provisions as to regional or multi-jurisdictional solid waste recycling or solid waste facilities or systems was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 3, 1992.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

This paragraph and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I being in pari materia must be construed together. — Georgia Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art.

VII, Sec. IV, Para. I), and subparagraph (a) of this paragraph were each in the Constitution of 1945 when it was adopted. They deal with the same subject matter, namely, finance, taxation, and public debt.

They are of equal dignity and to give full force and effect to the will of the people, as thus expressed, they must be construed together, being in pari materia. The latter lifts out of the former any inhibition against the creation of a debt insofar as the creation of a debt is authorized by the latter clause. Any other construction would render one of them meaningless and the Supreme Court will not ascribe to the people an intention to adopt a Constitution containing inconsistent provisions. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Authority to contract necessarily confers power to pay for use of contracted facilities. — By this paragraph, and in addition to other contracts which may be constitutionally made pursuant thereto, the people authorized the state and state institutions — which includes, of course, the State Highway Department (now Department of Transportation) — to contract for a period not exceeding 50 years with an authority then or thereafter created for the use of its facilities or services, but the power to so contract was limited to such activities and transactions as the state or a state institution is by law authorized to undertake. The power to so contract for the use of such facilities or services as thus conferred carries with it, by necessary implication, authority to pay for the use of such facilities or services during the contract period. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Department of Transportation authorized to rent bridge facilities from Georgia Highway Authority. — When so construed, authority is found in the Constitution for those provisions of Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32, which authorize the State Highway Department (now Department of Transportation) to expend appropriated tax funds for renting bridge facilities from the State Bridge Building Authority (now Georgia Highway Authority) for state highway uses. McLucas v. State Bridge Bldg. Auth., 210 Ga. 1, 77 S.E.2d 531 (1953).

Proper interpretation and construction of this paragraph. — This provision of the Constitution does not empower the legislature to authorize the state and its institutions and subdivisions to enter into any and every contract which they might in their discretion deem advisable. It simply means that the state and its agencies and subdivisions may contract with each other with reference to facilities and services theretofore authorized by the Constitution. This provision does not supersede all other provisions of the Constitution with reference to the limitations on and powers of the state, its agencies and subdivisions and authorize them to undertake to maintain and provide additional facilities and services which are prohibited under other provisions of the Constitution, except to undertake to contract with reference to facilities and services authorized by other provisions of the Constitution. Mulkey v. Quillian, 213 Ga. 507, 100 S.E.2d 268 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Purpose of this paragraph was to authorize counties and municipalities to create an organization which could carry out and make more workable the duty which the state owed to its indigent sick; and therefore the court should construe it most liberally. DeJarnette v. Hospital Auth., 195 Ga. 189, 23 S.E.2d 716 (1942) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Parties. — This paragraph relates to and deals only with contracts and conveyances which are authorized between parties who are empowered to contract with each other for services which one of the contracting parties is authorized to render for the other. McKelvey v. Logan, 220 Ga. 197, 137 S.E.2d 651 (1964) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Limited applicability of clause. — This clause has reference only to corporations and authorities created by the state of Georgia, and does not include any public authorities created by another state or country. State v. Blasingame, 212 Ga. 222, 91 S.E.2d 341 (1956).

General term “any” given restricted construction. — Although the general term “any” is employed, it is given a restricted construction that excludes corporations of foreign states and countries.

This clause contemplates performance within this state of services that are essentially governmental and therefore constitutes the exercise of the powers of the sovereign. State v. Blasingame, 212 Ga. 222, 91 S.E.2d 341 (1956).

Constitutional amendment prevails over previous constitutional provision when conflict arises. — If a constitutional amendment duly adopted dealing with the establishment of area schools necessarily conflicts with some previous provision, the amendment, being the last expression of the sovereign will of the people, will prevail as an implied modification pro tanto of the former provision. Cason v. State, 217 Ga. 339, 122 S.E.2d 232 (1961).

Constitutional amendment on area schools germane to constitutional provisions. — A constitutional amendment, adopted by the voters in a general election, that deals with only one subject matter, the establishment of area schools, which under the amendment can be established only by contract between counties, or municipalities, or a county and a municipality, or combination thereof, is germane to the provisions of the Constitution, pertaining to the contractual powers of counties and municipalities, and does not violate the Constitution. Cason v. State, 217 Ga. 339, 122 S.E.2d 232 (1961).

Contract between county and cities. — Court of Appeals erred in finding that the Homestead Option Sales Tax Act (HOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., did not allow a county to disburse funds to various cities in order to facilitate the capital outlay requirement under O.C.G.A. § 48-8-104(c)(2)(A), as HOST was implemented under the “special district” provision of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI, and as it was not a “county tax,” it was subject to such an arrangement; however, the intergovernmental agreement between the county and cities had to be authorized under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I in order to be valid. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 277 Ga. 292, 589 S.E.2d 561 (2003).

Intermediate appellate court erred in holding that because an agreement between a county and cities did not pertain to the provision of services for purposes of the Intergovernmental Contracts Clause, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. 1(a), but was a tax-sharing agreement, it was constitutionally invalid. The court lacked appellate jurisdiction to construe the meaning of “services” as used in the Intergovernmental Contracts Clause, because that term had not previously been construed by the Georgia Supreme Court. DeKalb County v. City of Decatur, 297 Ga. App. 322, 677 S.E.2d 391 (2009).

Trial court did not err in granting a county summary judgment in cities’ action for breach of an intergovernmental agreement (IGA) the parties entered into pursuant to the Homestead Option Sales and Use Tax Act (HOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., because the IGA was not a valid intergovernmental contract under the Intergovernmental Contracts Clause of the Georgia Constitution, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. 1(a), since the focus and clear purpose of the IGA was to provide a formula for the distribution of the HOST revenues, and the IGA could not be deemed an agreement for the provision of authorized “services”; the IGA was an agreement about how to divide and distribute HOST revenues between the county and the cities, with the cities agreeing to expend the monies disbursed solely for capital outlay projects to be located within the geographical boundaries of the county and to be owned, operated, or both either by the county, one or more cities or any combination thereof, and the fact that the IGA required the cities to expend the tax proceeds in accordance with the mandates of the Homestead Option Sales and Use Tax Act, O.C.G.A. § 48-8-102, did not transform it into either a contract for services or one for the use of facilities. City of Decatur v. Dekalb County, 289 Ga. 612, 713 S.E.2d 846 (2011).

Contracts between counties. — Although this paragraph does not expressly authorize a county board of education to enter into a contract with a county board of education of another county, contracts made by a county board of education are corporate actions of the county. Therefore, this constitutional authority given to counties includes county boards of education. Walker v. McKenzie, 209 Ga. 653, 74 S.E.2d 870, later appeal, 210 Ga. 189, 78 S.E.2d 486 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Counties authority to enter rental contracts mechanism for rental agreements by Georgia Education Authority (Schools). — Although the constitutional provision upon which Ga. L. 1949, p. 1009, (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 5, Ch. 3, T. 20), and all proceedings taken thereunder are based does not expressly authorize a county board of education as such to enter rental contracts, it does expressly authorize counties to do so, and, under repeated rulings of the Georgia Supreme Court, such contracts by the county boards of education are the corporate actions of the counties. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952).

Entire plan of securing school buildings under Ga. L. 1949, p. 1009 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 5, Ch. 3, T. 20) is bottomed upon this paragraph. — There the Constitution plainly and unmistakably empowers the state, state institutions, municipalities, and counties to contract for any period not exceeding 50 years with each other or with any public agency, public corporation, or authority “for the use by such subdivisions or the residents thereof of any facilities or services” of the state, state institution, municipalities, counties, public agency, public corporation, or authority, provided such contract deals with activities which such subdivisions are by law authorized to undertake. Municipalities and counties are empowered in connection with such contracts to convey existing facilities to public agencies, public corporations, or authorities operated by such municipalities, and counties for the benefit of the residents thereof, provided such facilities are to be used by such grantee for the same purposes. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Legislature cannot limit power. — Full power being vested under the Constitution in the county boards of education to make contracts, the legislature has no authority to limit this power. Walker v. McKenzie, 209 Ga. 653, 74 S.E.2d 870, later appeal, 210 Ga. 189, 78 S.E.2d 486 (1953).

Contract between the county and the airport authority, which managed the airport, qualified as an enforceable intergovernmental agreement (IGA) that did not violate the Debt Clause in the Georgia Constitution because the IGA was between appropriate governmental entities; the agreement’s term did not exceed 50 years; the agreement related to both the provision of services and the joint use of facilities as the airport authority agreed to manage and maintain the expanded taxiway, and the county, in return, agreed to provide funding and manage the debt required to be incurred to complete the expansion; and the agreement dealt with services and facilities about which the county had the authority to enter contracts. Avery v. State of Ga., 295 Ga. 630, 761 S.E.2d 56 (2014).

Limitations on indebtedness. — This paragraph does not operate to relax in any degree the existing limitation as to indebtedness, or as to the exclusive manner in which it may be incurred. DeJarnette v. Hospital Auth., 195 Ga. 189, 23 S.E.2d 716 (1942) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Effect of creation and activation of authority before November 8, 1960. — Where a state agency known as an authority was created prior to 1960 and activated to deal with a part of a particular subject matter, amendatory Act of 1961 which merely changed its name and expanded its power to operate upon the whole of the same subject matter did not change the authority’s identity; such authority was properly “created and activated” before November 8, 1960, and came within this provision. Weeks v. Georgia State Hwy. Auth., 217 Ga. 14, 120 S.E.2d 620 (1961).

Office building used and operated as provided in Ga. L. 1973, p. 190, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 31-7-71) is for a public purpose and that section is constitutional. Petty v. Hospital Auth., 233 Ga. 109, 210 S.E.2d 317 (1974).

Contract for sewer project. — After a trial court required two intervenors to post a bond of $625,000 with regard to their challenge to the public improvement bond approved by a city's building authority for a sewer project, the trial court properly validated the bond by following all necessary procedural requirements and the bond did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I(a) since the city's payment for the use of the sewer project was a debt specifically authorized under the constitution pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I(a). Berry v. City of E. Point, 277 Ga. App. 649, 627 S.E.2d 391 (2006).

Loaning of money to political subdivisions of this state or authorities controlled by them is not a permitted purpose for which public funds may be used under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I), and, therefore, it is not a facility or service of the state within the meaning of that term in this paragraph. Mulkey v. Quillian, 213 Ga. 507, 100 S.E.2d 268 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

City contracts with Department of Transportation for building and repairing city streets valid. — The authority of the city of Carrollton under its charter, Ga. L. 1891, p. 474, to build and repair streets within its incorporate limits does not require actual supervision by the mayor and council, but this may be done by contract with the State Highway Department of Georgia (now Department of Transportation) under the provisions of the Constitution. City of Carrollton v. Walker, 215 Ga. 505, 111 S.E.2d 79 (1959).

City and county not authorized to operate joint tax receiving or assessing program. — City and county could not close their books prior to April 1 because neither Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I nor provisions of the city charter satisfied the requirement of former subsection (e) of O.C.G.A. § 48-5-18 pertaining to the operation of a joint tax receiving or assessing program. Board of Tax Assessors v. Tom's Foods, Inc., 264 Ga. 309, 444 S.E.2d 771 (1994).

Contract between county and airport authority. — Even though, under a contract between the county and an airport authority for use by the county of an expanded airport facility, the consideration to be paid by the county was not expressed in terms of a definite dollar amount, it was not an unconstitutional "new debt." The contract was a valid intergovernmental contract and the consideration represented the authority's lawful "revenue pledged to the payment of" the bonds. Clayton County Airport Auth. v. State, 265 Ga. 24, 453 S.E.2d 8 (1995).

Contracts with Municipal Electric Authority of Georgia. — The political subdivisions have authority under subparagraph (a) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I to enter into contracts with the Municipal Electric Authority of Georgia and to pledge their full faith and credit and levy taxes to meet their contractual obligations pursuant to the law of contracts. Thompson v. Municipal Elec. Auth., 238 Ga. 19, 231 S.E.2d 720 (1976).

Where two different proposed changes to a power sales contract between a city and the Municipal Electric Authority of Georgia did not result in the city being contractually bound for more than 50 years, both proposals passed muster under the intergovernmental contracts clause, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I(a). City of Cartersville v. Mun. Elec. Auth. of Ga., 277 Ga. 575, 592 S.E.2d 677 (2004).

Agreement for use of hotel/motel taxes. — Consistent with the Intergovernmental Contracts Clause, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I (a), a Hotel/Motel Tax Operation and Maintenance Agreement was solely between two governmental entities, a city and the Congress Center Authority; the agreement did not exceed 50 years; the agreement involved the provision of services or the joint or separate use of facilities or equipment; and the agreement dealt with a facility (domed stadium) which the contracting parties were authorized to provide. Cottrell v. Atlanta Dev. Auth., 297 Ga. 1, 770 S.E.2d 616 (2015).

Georgia Hospital Authorities Law, O.C.G.A. Art. 4, Ch. 7, T. 31, is constitutional. Cheely v. State, 251 Ga. 685, 309 S.E.2d 128 (1983).

Contracts for provision of water service. — City did not impermissibly cede away its legislative authority to establish water rates by entering into a written contract for a 40-year period whereby an adjoining county agreed to provide water service to the city at a specified rate. City of Fayetteville v. Fayette County, 171 Ga. App. 13, 318 S.E.2d 757 (1984).

Contract for new stadium. — Intergovernmental Agreement was valid under the intergovernmental contracts clause, as it was a contract between political subdivisions, was not for a period exceeding 50 years, the services provided by the Cobb-Marietta Coliseum and Exhibit Hall Authority were proper subjects for such a contract, and the Authority and the county were authorized to provide the stadium, which would provide the citizens recreational benefit and promote tourism and the economy. Savage v. State of Ga., 297 Ga. 627, 774 S.E.2d 624 (2015).

Authorization to contract with “public foreign corporations.” — Section 3 of the 1982 amendment to the County Building Authority Act, which authorized a county building authority to enter into contracts with “public foreign corporations,” meant “public” in the sense of nondomestic corporations whose shares are traded over the counter and not governmental corporations of foreign states and nations and, therefore, does not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I. Building Auth. v. State, 253 Ga. 242, 321 S.E.2d 97 (1984).

Taxing power available to pay rent under contract. — City’s pledge of its taxing power to make up any deficit in the rents it is obligated to pay under a valid intergovernmental contract is permissible under the intergovernmental contracts clause and does not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII. Nations v. Downtown Dev. Auth., 256 Ga. 158, 345 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

Downtown Development Authorities Law, O.C.G.A. Ch. 42, T. 36, is solely based upon development authorities provision, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. III, and not Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I. Odom v. Union City Downtown Dev. Auth., 251 Ga. 248, 305 S.E.2d 110 (1983).

Bond guarantee by city-lessor not an intergovernmental contract. — Lease provision whereby a city-lessor agreed to guarantee the bond payments of a development authority-lessee did not come within the intergovernmental contracts clause in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I and, therefore, was barred by the debt clause in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VIII. Nations v. Downtown Dev. Auth., 255 Ga. 324, 338 S.E.2d 240 (1985).

Lease for 50 years, with option to extend, violates paragraph. — Lease which allowed for an initial period of 50 years plus an option to extend the duration of the lease for an additional 25 years was the equivalent of a 75 year contract and therefore exceeded the authority given in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I. Nations v. Downtown Dev. Auth., 255 Ga. 324, 338 S.E.2d 240 (1985).

“Stadium Funding Agreement” for construction of a domed facility, entered into by a city, a county, and a stadium authority, was authorized by the intergovernmental contracts clause of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I., and therefore did not violate the special district debt clause of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II. Youngblood v. State, 259 Ga. 864, 388 S.E.2d 671 (1990).

Contracts for industrial park. — Contracts between counties and a joint development authority for the development of trade and industry through the acquisition of an industrial park were valid intergovernmental contracts authorized by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I. Hay v. Newton County, 246 Ga. App. 44, 538 S.E.2d 181 (2000).

Homestead Option Sales Tax. — The Homestead Option Sales Tax (HOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., implements a district tax under the “special district” provision of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VI; intergovernmental contracts which are authorized under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I cannot be limited by HOST. City of Decatur v. DeKalb County, 277 Ga. 292, 589 S.E.2d 561 (2003).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Paragraph's limited applicability. — This paragraph applies only to contracts for the use of public facilities and in no way restricts the general contractual powers of the Georgia Ports Authority set out in Ga. L. 1945, p. 464, (see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 2, T. 52). 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 8 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

This paragraph permits public bodies created by the General Assembly to contract for use of public facilities with other public bodies only; it does not give agencies of the state the right to contract with private concerns for the use of public facilities. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 8 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Indian tribe not public entity. — The Georgia Tribe of Eastern Cherokee Indians is not a "public agency, public corporation, or public authority" as the phrase is used in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-21.

Environmental loans exempt from debt limitations. — Loans made by the Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority to local governments pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I., the Intergovernmental Contracts Clause, are not subject to the debt limitations of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-6.

Public facilities contracts are not extended to private corporations or associations. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 341.

Transfer of property by city. — City may not transfer real property by deed of gift to a county recreation department for recreational use, but may transfer real property pursuant to a valid intergovernmental contract. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-12.

Cooperative agreements between counties and municipalities for purchase and use of riot control equipment valid. — All counties and those municipalities having requisite charter authority may enter into cooperative agreements with one another for the purchase and use of equipment to be employed in jointly administered riot control programs. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-141.

Authority to the counties includes county boards of education; the same reasoning would apply to cities including city boards of education. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 116.

This paragraph applies to boards of education and their authority to contract. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 168 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Limitation on delegation of contractual power. — The constitutional powers to contract in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V), and this paragraph are limited by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II), which states that control and management of county schools shall be confined to the county board of education; the power to exercise judgment and discretion cannot be delegated by a county board of education. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 116 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

State cannot issue general obligation debt with the contemplation that title to the financed facility will be given to the county, municipality, or school district because of the constitutional limitation on the purposes for which general obligation debt can be issued. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-51.

Financing construction of environmental facilities. — The Georgia Development Authority may enter into contracts with local governments, including local water and sewer authorities, for any period not to exceed 50 years to provide funds to finance the construction of environmental facilities by local governments and for related services. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 85-29.

The (State) Department of Public Health has authority to contract direct with hospital authorities for construction of hospitals. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 340.

Public health authorities have authority to contract with local hospital authorities for construction of hospitals. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 340.

County's subsidizing hospital authority ambulance service permissible. — An agreement by a county with a hospital authority in the nature of a contract in which the county agrees to subsidize an ambulance service operated by a hospital authority would not violate any of the provisions of the Georgia Constitution and the county would be authorized to pay sums of money to the hospital authority for this service. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-280.

Retirement system for county hospital employees. — A county should not execute a guaranty contract guaranteeing primary obligation of a county hospital authority to contribute to a retirement system for its employees; by appropriate contract with the authority, a county may compute such contributions in arriving at the costs necessary to provide for the continued maintenance and use of the facilities of the authority and this sum can be paid by the county to the county hospital authority under the law of this state. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-211.

Contract with state for work on state property permitted. — The state may contract with county for installation by county of pump and tank on property of a state hospital where facilities are to be used by both. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 284.

Receipt and disbursement of federal funds to private nonprofit hospital associations prohibited. — In view of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. XII (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. VI), the State treasurer (now director of the Office of Treasury and Fiscal Services) and the (State) Department of Public Health are without authority to receive and disburse federal funds under the provisions of the Hill-Burton Act (Hospital Survey and Construction Act, 42 U.S.C., § 291 et seq.) to private nonprofit hospital associations or corporations. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 341 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Restriction on Department of Community Affairs authority to apply for federal grants. — Where the funds are not sought to create a planning service or to provide technical assistance, information or advice in accordance with the purposes of Title II of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. § 5301 et seq.), the Bureau (now Department) of Community Affairs does not have the requisite statutory authority to apply for, receive, or administer federal grants under Section 8 housing assistance payments program for existing units established pursuant to the Act. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-15.

State departments and agencies can contract with each other with reference to facilities and services, with limitations that such contracts may not exceed 50 years duration, and that contracts deal only with such activities and transactions as the agencies are authorized by law to undertake. 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-9.

Department of Transportation and Department of Human Resources have general constitutional authority to contract with each other for services which deal with activities that they are authorized by law to undertake. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-23.

Department of Transportation contracting with financial backing from State Road and Tollway Authority. — The Department of Transportation may enter into transportation construction contracts with all or a portion of the financial backing for the contracts coming from a contractual promise from the State Road and Tollway Authority to borrow and provide money to DOT as and when needed to expend on projects that are the subjects of the construction contracts. 2001 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2001-10.

Contracting permitted between Department of Agriculture and University of Georgia for disease eradication program services to livestock owners. — Georgia Department of Agriculture may contract with Department of Veterinary Medicine at University of Georgia to provide certain veterinary services to livestock owners in conjunction with brucellosis and tuberculosis testing and eradication programs. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-62.

Length of time municipalities permitted to bond by contract. — Municipalities may enter into a valid and binding contract to provide a system of water supply mutual to all for a period not to exceed 50 years; further, municipalities may not bind themselves by any agreement respecting the sewage system or regulation of the rates of water or sewage for a period longer than the life of the council. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 126.

Cities and counties may work through a single joint hospital authority. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 272.

There is no statutory limitation upon the percentage of total investments which a bank may have in bonds of public authorities which are obligations of the state. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 19.

County cannot make donations to a water and sewerage authority, but it can enter into contracts with such an authority. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-225.

Action of county tax commissioner collecting city taxes not facially illegal. — By contract, a county tax commissioner could add a city's tax notices to the county commissioner's computerized tax cards and collect taxes for the city, and, further, such a contract could be drawn without special legislation; however, while the plan is not facially illegal under the general law, special clarifying legislation is recommended. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U72-120.

Construction of library building by city for lease to county legal. — Assuming that a city possesses legal authority to borrow funds via a 20-year loan for the purpose of constructing a library building, it would be legal for the city and county to enter into the proposed agreement whereunder the building would be leased to the county for the term of the loan at an annual rental sufficient to meet the loan payments; it would also be legal for the county to levy taxes for the purpose of making the rental payments. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-120.

Valid use of county board of education funds. — The expenditure of public school funds by a county board of education to run sewer lines from its schools to city sewer lines on nearby city streets, and to purchase sewage disposal services from the city, would not violate any constitutional or statutory provision of the state. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-85.

County board of education authorized to construct facility on property of Georgia Education Authority (Schools). — Since a board of education can expend money to construct a facility and then convey that facility to a public authority, a county board of education is constitutionally authorized to expend funds on a facility that will be located on property owned by the Georgia Education Authority (Schools) since the legal and practical effect is no different; the specific authority in any particular situation will be governed by any local law that might exist. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-51.

County and municipal school system may provide by contract for continued operation of school by and for county school system. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-7.

Agreements between counties and school districts for lease of property. — Counties and school districts have authority under O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-520 and 36-9-3(c) to enter into intergovernmental contracts in which the county leases real property to the school board for use as a site for a public school or other educational purpose. 1998 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 98-13.

Permissible for county board of education to contract with independent school system for educating certain county school children. — Under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. V), a county board of education can contract to pay county school funds to an independent school system in consideration for the latter educating certain school children of the former; this authority would include all the funds necessary to educate these children including capital outlay, i.e., funds for school buildings and additions thereto of the independent school district. 1958-59 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 116.

Contract with out-of-state school system void. — The general school laws of Georgia do not authorize local boards of education to enter into contracts with out-of-state school systems for the education of pupils residing in this state. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 74-98.

Transfer of school buildings following annexation. — In the absence of an express intent on part of the legislature to the contrary, or, in absence of an agreement to the contrary on the part of interested parties, annexation of property containing buildings and school facilities of a county school system by a municipality having an independent school system results in a transfer of the ownership and control of such building and facilities to the municipal school system; however, it would be possible for such school buildings and facilities to continue to be operated or owned by the county school system either where the legislature so provides in the annexation legislation, or, where the interested parties, i.e., the county and municipal school systems, so agree. 1967 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 67-7.

Unit of the university system may enter into contract with a county or city for paving of a small area on campus, the county or city to perform this service on a fixed cost or reimbursable cost basis. 1965-66 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 65-71.

Contract between Department of Transportation and Jekyll Island State Park Authority for airport improvements legal. — The Department of Transportation by definition is the state; therefore, by virtue of this paragraph, the Department of Transportation may contract with an authority if the particular authority is otherwise authorized by law to enter into such a contract; the Jekyll Island Authority may contract for airport construction through power granted in subsection (d) of former Code 1933, § 43-606 (see now O.C.G.A. § 12-3-235(5)); therefore, the Department of Transportation may legally enter into an airport contract with the Jekyll Island State Park Authority covering improvements to the Jekyll Island Airport. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 71-195 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

State Board of Corrections may contract with a county to furnish water to prison camp. 1957 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 239.

While power to contract is not conferred upon Economic Development Council by Ch. 8, T. 10, contracts with other state agencies with respect to payroll, procurement, budgeting, and accounting are authorized by virtue of this paragraph; therefore, such council may enter into a contract with another department whereby that department will perform payroll, procurement, budgeting, and accounting functions for the council. 1978 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 78-23 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

County participating in watershed project. — A county participating in a watershed project could pay the cost of condemning necessary easements and land rights upon entry into an appropriate contract or agreement with the participating Soil and Water Conservation District. 1967 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 67-108.

Collection of child support. — In the absence of express authority empowering the Department of Offender Rehabilitation (now Department of Corrections) to collect child support recovery unit money, a contractual agreement between the Department of Human Resources and the Department of Offender Rehabilitation (now Department of Corrections) regarding a proposed arrangement between these agencies for such collections would not meet the requirements of this provision pertaining to contracts between state agencies that the contracts deal “with such activities and transactions as such subdivisions are by law authorized to undertake.” 1982 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 82-99 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I).

Loans by Department of Natural Resources and Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority. — Loans by the Department of Natural Resources pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 12-5-38.1 and loans by the Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 50-23-1 et seq. do not cause a city or county to incur debt in accordance with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I. The constitutional underpinning of these programs is in the intergovernmental contract clause, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I(a). Thus, the procedural requirements in O.C.G.A. § 48-8-111 for submitting a debt question are not triggered where proceeds derived from the sales tax are to be applied to repayment of the loans by Department of Natural Resources or the Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority. 1990 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U90-7.

Authority of Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority and city of Atlanta regarding loans. — The Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority is statutorily empowered to make the administrative and policy determinations requiring the city of Atlanta to pledge its full faith and credit as security for a loan from the Authority, there are no constitutional prohibitions upon the city pledging its full faith and credit for such a loan, and a referendum is not required prior to the city making the pledge. 2004 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 2004-8.

Intergovernmental agreements for probation services are legal in instances in which the contracting parties are authorized by law to provide probation services. Also, when providing probation services for a judicial circuit, a probation entity must be authorized to provide the service and must enter into separate agreements with the court of each county that composes that judicial circuit. 2012 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 12-7.

Paragraph II. Local government reorganization.

(a) The General Assembly may provide by law for any matters necessary or convenient to authorize the consolidation of the governmental and corporate powers and functions vested in municipalities with the governmental and corporate powers and functions vested in a county or counties in which such municipalities are located; provided, however, that no such consolidation shall become effective unless separately approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the county or each of the counties and of the municipality or each of the municipalities located within such county or counties containing at least 10 percent of the population of the county in which located voting thereon in such manner as may be prescribed in such law. Such law may provide procedures and requirements for the establishment of charter commissions to draft proposed charters for the consolidated government, and the General Assembly is expressly authorized to delegate its powers to such charter commissions for such purposes so that the governmental consolidation proposed by a charter commission may become effective without the necessity of further action by the General Assembly; or such law may require that the recommendation of any such charter commission be implemented by a subsequent local law.

(b) The General Assembly may provide by general law for alternatives other than governmental consolidation as authorized in subparagraph (a) above for the reorganization of county and municipal governments, including, but not limited to, procedures to establish a single governing body as the governing authority of a county and a municipality or municipalities located within such county or for the redistribution of powers between a county and a municipality or municipalities located within the county. Such law may require the form of governmental reorganization authorized by such law to be approved by the qualified voters directly affected thereby voting in such manner as may be required in such law.

(c) Nothing in this Paragraph shall be construed to limit the authority of the General Assembly to repeal municipal charters without a referendum.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

A county governing authority can create geographical areas within boundaries of a county which are called zones; the governing authority can declare that the land in a zone can be used only for specified purposes or uses and that all other specified purposes or uses of the land in that zone are prohibited; and only after the uses that are permitted on the land in a zone have been declared may reasonable regulations regulating those permitted uses be applied and enforced by the governing authority. Gifford-Hill & Co. v. Harrison, 229 Ga. 260, 191 S.E.2d 85 (1972).

Effect of rezoning renders land nonconforming use. — The owner of land, or one in contractual relationship with the owner, has a right to be issued authorization to use the land for the purpose for which it is zoned at the time the owner makes an application for such authorization; the governing authority can thereafter rezone the land to prohibit a use previously permitted, and by such rezoning the previous use thereby becomes a nonconforming use which under the rezoning can be required to terminate within a reasonable time; but a governing authority cannot deny or postpone authorization for a permitted use with a view toward rezoning said land in the future so as to prohibit by rezoning a use that was permitted at the time the application was either denied or postponed. Gifford-Hill & Co. v. Harrison, 229 Ga. 260, 191 S.E.2d 85 (1972).

New political entity. — The political subdivision resulting from this paragraph is neither a city nor a county in a strict sense, but is a new type of political entity. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U71-35 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. II).

Cities located in more than one county may be consolidated with a county government; however, in the absence of a change in county lines or some additional general legislation to provide for consolidating governments of a city and more than one county, the city would have to give up some of its territory. 1998 Op. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this Paragraph, the governing authority of any county, municipality, or combination thereof may exercise the power of taxation as authorized by this Constitution or by general law.

(b) In the absence of a general law:

(1) County governing authorities may be authorized by local law to levy and collect business and occupational license taxes and license fees only in the unincorporated areas of the counties. The General Assembly may provide that the revenues raised by such tax or fee be spent for the provision of services only in the unincorporated areas of the county.

(c) The General Assembly may provide by law for the taxation of insurance companies on the basis of gross direct premiums received from insurance policies within the unincorporated areas of counties. General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarities of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Paras. I and II and antecedent provisions, which set forth specific purposes for which taxation by counties and municipalities was authorized, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Purpose of paragraph. — This paragraph was designed by the members of the constitutional convention to limit legislative power to authorize indiscriminate levies of taxes and prevent indebtedness, except as provided by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I). Butts v. Little, 68 Ga. 272 (1881); Adair v. Ellis, 83

Ga. 464, 10 S.E. 117 (1889) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

There is no limitation upon the taxing power of a county in regard to the amounts to be levied for the authorized purposes by this paragraph. Commissioners of Habersham County v. Porter Mfg. Co., 103 Ga. 613, 30 S.E. 547 (1898) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Tick Eradication Act (see now O.C.G.A. Part 4, Art. 1, Ch. 4, T. 4) valid. Townsend v. Smith, 144 Ga. 792, 87 S.E. 1039 (1916); Rowland v. Morris, 152 Ga. 842, 111 S.E. 389 (1923). See also Avera v. Clyatt, 152 Ga. 280, 109 S.E. 665 (1921).

This paragraph was not violated by Ga. L. 1913, p. 145, establishing the Municipal Court of Atlanta. McWilliams v. Smith, 142 Ga. 209, 82 S.E. 569 (1914) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Tax Equalization Law of 1913, § 48-5-311 does not violate this paragraph. McGregor v. Hogan, 153 Ga. 473, 112 S.E. 471 (1922), aff'd, 263 U.S. 234, 44 S. Ct. 50, 68 L. Ed. 282 (1923) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Tax for educational purposes is dependent upon approval of voters pursuant to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I). Richter v. Bacon, 145 Ga. 408, 89 S.E. 367 (1916).

This paragraph is restriction on power of General Assembly to delegate to county certain rights to levy tax and has no application to a constitutional amendment. McLennan v. Aldredge, 223 Ga. 879, 159 S.E.2d 682 (1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

This paragraph does not impose any limitation upon power of state to levy taxes. It imposes limitation upon power of legislature to authorize counties to levy taxes. It in no way interferes with the general power of the state to impose taxes. Wright v. Fulton County, 169 Ga. 354, 150 S.E. 262 (1929) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Significance of Art. 4, Ch. 5, T. 3. — Uniform Beer Tax Act, Ga. L. 1974, p. 1447, does not impose a state tax for state purposes, which would invoke Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III); instead, it imposes a state tax for local purposes, and the counties' adherence to the tests of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV) delineating the allowable scope of county purposes of taxation is all that is required. Chanin v. Bibb County, 234 Ga. 282, 216 S.E.2d 250 (1975).

Legislature has implied power to provide the machinery for levy and collection of taxes. Abbott v. Commis- sioners of Fulton County, 160 Ga. 657, 129 S.E. 38 (1925).

Georgia Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV) covers same purposes expressed in this paragraph. Richter v. Bacon, 145 Ga. 408, 89 S.E. 367 (1916) (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV)).

For a distinction between taxes and assessments, see Hayden v. City of Atlanta, 70 Ga. 817 (1883); Jones v. Sligh, 75 Ga. 7 (1885); Goolsby v. Board of Drainage Comm'rs, 156 Ga. 213, 119 S.E. 644 (1923).

Coroners. — Fees of coroners are fixed by Ga. Penal Code 1895, § 1112 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-16-9). Davis v. County of Bibb, 116 Ga. 23, 42 S.E. 403 (1902).

General Assembly does not need constitutional authorization to levy a tax or to authorize levy of a tax by a county. Board of Comm'rs v. Cooper, 245 Ga. 251, 264 S.E.2d 193 (1980) (But see City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979)).

Local option tax is not per se an impermissible delegation of legislative authority. Board of Comm'rs v. Cooper, 245 Ga. 251, 264 S.E.2d 193 (1980).

County power of taxation limited. — A county can only exercise the power of taxation as conferred upon it either directly by the Constitution or by the General Assembly when authorized by the Constitution. If there is any doubt as to the power of the county to tax in a particular instance, it must be resolved in the negative. Commissioners of Chatham County v. Savannah Elec. & Power Co., 215 Ga. 636, 112 S.E.2d 655 (1960).

List of purposes for which the state may tax in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I), and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. III) is the only purposes of taxation the state may validly delegate to its creatures' power to tax. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Though the purposes listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) are capable of delegation, the right of the state to tax to grant funds to municipalities is not capable of delegation to counties or to any other subdivision of the state. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

State may not grant to counties the right to tax and to give part of the proceeds to municipalities, and consequently this may not be “such other public purpose[s] as may be authorized by the General Assembly” within the meaning of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I), or the similar language of this paragraph. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

It can never be a valid county purpose to provide revenue to a municipality because municipalities are not citizens of nor creatures of counties — they are an entirely different form of government. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Authority to collect occupation tax. — Because a second city provided by local ordinance for the levy, assessment, and collection of an occupation tax on businesses and practitioners operating within that city’s limits, the second city had the general authority to collect such a tax under O.C.G.A. § 48-13-6(b), and only the second city was authorized to levy, assess, and collect an occupation tax from businesses and practitioners at the airport that were located within the second city’s limits to the extent consistent with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I, O.C.G.A. § 48-13-6(b), other applicable statutes, and that city’s own charter, ordinances, and regulations; Atlanta, Ga., Charter, § 7-105(f) is ineffective to the extent it purports to divest College Park, Georgia of the authority to levy, assess, and collect an occupation tax on those businesses and practitioners operating at the airport and within the city limits of College Park. City of Atlanta v. City of College Park, 311 Ga. App. 62, 715 S.E.2d 158 (2011).

Reason General Assembly not prohibited from performing constitutional services differently. — A constitutional provision which expressly prescribes the manner of doing a particular thing is exclusive in that regard and impliedly prohibits performance in a substantially different manner, however this paragraph does not come within this principle so as to impliedly restrict the General Assembly in directing local taxation because this paragraph is permissive, and because it relates to delegation of power and not to exercise of power. Blackmon v. Golia, 231 Ga. 381, 202 S.E.2d 186 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

Action not within state Supreme Court jurisdiction. — The Supreme Court does not have jurisdiction to review a judgment sustaining a demurrer (now motion to dismiss for failure ...) to a petition against a county seeking a judgment, because of personal injuries, nor does the fact that the plaintiff in error excepts to such judgment upon ground that it offends Ga. Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. III (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. II), and this paragraph of the Constitution which confer jurisdiction upon the Supreme Court. Ayers v. Franklin County, 199 Ga. 835, 35 S.E.2d 455 (1945) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

County treasurer carries burden of proof of county’s inability to become obligated on debt. — Where a county treasurer in a mandamus suit to compel payment of a warrant issued by the county raises the issue of an attempt, to create a debt as inhibited by the Constitution, on the basis of insufficient funds on hand or inability to levy lawful tax during the year to raise funds for payment of the contract price of the machinery purchased with the warrant, the burden of proof is on the treasurer. Marion County v. First Nat’l Bank, 193 Ga. 263, 18 S.E.2d 475 (1942).

Provision of former Rural Roads Authority Act (now Georgia Highway Authority, O.C.G.A. Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32) that required county authorities to maintain roads did not violate state constitutional provisions dealing with creation of debts, since counties are granted authority to build and maintain roads and to levy taxes for such purposes. State v. Georgia Rural Rds. Auth., 211 Ga. 808, 89 S.E.2d 204 (1955).

City not a local authority. — In a declaration suit, a city was properly determined not to be a local authority as that term is used in O.C.G.A. § 48-13-13(5) and, thus, was subject to the levy of occupation taxes by another municipality for the city's proprietary operations at its airport, which was in the other municipality's city limits, because the terms local authority and municipality were not the same under the statute. City of Atlanta v. City of College Park, 292 Ga. 741, 741 S.E.2d 147 (2013).

Public Purposes Counties Empowered to Tax For

1. General Consideration

Editor's notes. — For decisions regarding legislative power to impose occupation taxes, see the annotations under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. I, Para. III.

Worker's compensation. — Trial court properly determined that a county could not provide workers compensation coverage to Georgia superior court judges, as the judges were not county employees; counties were specifically authorized by Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 48-5-220 to provide workers compensation to "county officials," such as a sheriff, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 34-9-1, but judges were deemed state employees. Freeman v. Barnes, 282 Ga. App. 895, 640 S.E.2d 611 (2006).

2. County Government Administration Expenses

County tax cannot be levied for purpose of raising money to pay pensions to Confederate soldiers, and widows of Confederate soldiers. Elder v. Collier, 100 Ga. 342, 28 S.E. 116 (1897); Verdery v. Walton, 137 Ga. 213, 73 S.E. 390 (1911); Clark v. Walton, 137 Ga. 277, 73 S.E. 392 (1911).

3. Acquisition of Public Buildings and Bridges

Construction of bridges. — This paragraph broadens taxing power which the legislature may confer upon counties sufficiently to embrace all expenses for constructing and maintaining bridges and roads. Smith v. Floyd County, 85 Ga. 420, 11 S.E. 850 (1890), distinguishing Smith v. Wilkes & McDuffie Counties, 79 Ga. 125, 4 S.E. 20 (1887), and Monroe County v.

Flint, 80 Ga. 489, 6 S.E. 173 (1888) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

This paragraph broadens the taxing power of counties to include taxation to pay a judgment for personal injuries caused by unrepaired bridge. Dearing v. Shepherd, 78 Ga. 28 (1886) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

There is no limitation on amount of taxes which may be assessed and collected within the year for building and repairing bridges within counties of this state, excepting the cost of erecting the bridges. Settle v. Howell, 174 Ga. 792, 164 S.E. 189 (1932).

4. Roads

Extent of legislature's powers in building or locating public roads. — This provision does not deny the right of counties to build and maintain public roads, nor is the power of the legislature limited by this or other provisions of the Constitution in the matter of building or locating public roads, or their width or character; but all such matters are left to the wisdom of the legislature and are proper subject matters for legislation. This provision is only a limitation as to the purposes for which taxes may be levied. Swoger v. Glynn County, 179 Ga. 768, 177 S.E. 723 (1934) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

5. Support of Paupers

Legislature is empowered to delegate to counties "the right to levy a tax to support paupers." — In pursuance of such authority, the General Assembly has granted counties the right to levy taxes for support of paupers of the county, the right to provide medical or other care and hospitalization for the indigent sick of the county, and the authority thus conferred is not limited "to personal administration by officers or agents" of the governing authority, but such authority "may, except as otherwise limited by law, enter into contract with a corporation having appropriate charter power, under terms of which the latter corporation will care for the poor in the matter of medical and surgical treatment." Brock v. Chappell, 196 Ga. 567, 27 S.E.2d 38 (1943).

Invalid Purposes of County Taxes

List of purposes for which the state may tax in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. III) is the only purposes of taxation the state may validly delegate to its creatures power to tax. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979) (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

Though the purposes listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) are capable of delegation, the right of the state to tax to grant funds to municipalities is not capable of delegation to counties or to any other subdivision of the state. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979) (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I).

State may not grant to counties the right to tax and to give part of the proceeds to municipalities, and consequently this may not be "such other public purpose[s] as may be authorized by the General Assembly" within the meaning of this paragraph or the similar language of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I). City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Purposes for which a county may tax are listed in this paragraph, and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I), and taxation by counties for the purpose of sharing the resulting revenue with cities does not appear in that list. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Authority of municipality to collect occupation tax. — First city lacked authority to collect an occupation tax on professional or business activities within a second city's limits because the first city did not identify any constitutional provision or general law that authorized the first city to levy, assess, and collect an occupation tax on businesses and practitioners that were not located in that city's limits, and to the extent an agreement between the cities purported to vest in the first city the authority to collect an occupation tax on businesses located within the second city's limits, the contract was unenforceable; a contract between municipalities, however, is not a general law. City of Atlanta v. City of College Park, 311 Ga. App. 62, 715 S.E.2d 158 (2011).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

No conflict in taxing powers. — There is no conflict between taxing powers of a county as set forth in this paragraph with the authority contained in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. III). 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 39 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I).

General Assembly's residuum constitutional powers. — If the General Assembly has the right to delegate power of taxation to political subdivisions, the General Assembly has within its residuum of constitutional powers right to exercise such power for benefit of political subdivisions. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 189.

Legislature not empowered to authorize municipal corporation to engage in ordinarily private enterprise. — In absence of special circumstances, it is not within constitutional power of a legislature to authorize a municipal corporation (county) to engage in a business which can be and ordinarily is carried on by private enterprise for purpose of obtaining an income or deriving a profit therefrom, but it should be allowed to go into business only on the theory that thereby the public welfare will be subserved. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-176.

It is proper to levy and collect county school tax without deduction as payment for preparation of a separate school digest. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-62.

A county and municipal school system may provide by contract for continued operation of such school by and for the county school system. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-7.

Transfer of county property upon annexation. — In the absence of an express intent on part of the legislature to the contrary, or, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary on the part of the interested parties, the annexation of property containing buildings and school facilities of a county school system by a municipality having an independent school system results in a transfer of ownership and control of such building and facilities to the municipal school system; however, it would be possible for such school buildings and facilities to continue to be operated or owned by the county school system either where the legislature so provides in the annexation legislation, or, where the interested parties, i.e. the county and municipal school systems, so agree. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-7.

Georgia Regional Hospital at Atlanta is not subject to DeKalb County property taxation because it is owned by the state. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-205.

Cooperative financial endeavor between city and county legal. — Assuming that a city possesses legal authority to borrow funds via a 20-year loan for the purpose of constructing a library building, it would be legal for the city and county to enter into the proposed agreement whereunder the building would be leased to the county for the term of the loan at an annual rental sufficient to meet the loan payments; it would also be legal for the county to levy taxes for the purpose of making the rental payments. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-120.

Tax for vocational trade schools. — Governing authorities of counties or municipalities desiring to establish and maintain area vocational trade schools are authorized to levy a tax for such purposes; the circumstances under which the tax could be levied would be where the participating subdivisions have entered into an agreement for establishment and maintenance of an area vocational trade school. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-153.

Absent any appropriate legislation, a county cannot levy a tax for general

Art. 9, § 4, ¶ 1 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 4, ¶ 2

fire protection. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U71-100.

County cannot impose a tax for industrial development. 1970 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U70-13.

County is not authorized to levy a tax to repair a building used by the public, but owned by private individuals. 1954-56 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 575.

Imposition of municipal business license fee on businesses operating at State Farmer’s Market. 1987 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 87-36.

INVALID USES OF COUNTY TAXES

General Consideration

Initially, county officials could not bind the county by the creation of a debt for payment of which it had no power to levy a tax. Thus, county officials were not authorized to purchase vaccine matter for inoculation of persons against smallpox. Daniel v. Putnam County, 113 Ga. 570, 38 S.E. 980, 54 L.R.A. 292 (1901).

Equity will grant an injunction if county exceeds taxing ability. Mitchell v. Lasseter, 114 Ga. 275, 40 S.E. 287 (1901); DeVaughn v. Booten, 146 Ga. 836, 92 S.E. 629 (1917).

Right of county citizens and taxpayers to enjoin unlawful distribution of public funds. — Citizens and taxpayers of counties have such an interest as will authorize them to maintain actions to enjoin the unlawful distribution of public funds of counties or to recover county funds which were allegedly illegally disbursed. Nelson v. Wainwright, 224 Ga. 693, 164 S.E.2d 147 (1968).

Mandamus. — Before the writ of mandamus will issue to compel county commissioners to issue their warrant upon county treasurer to pay a debt, it must appear that the debt comes within the classes provided in this paragraph. Brunson v. Caskie, 127 Ga. 501, 56 S.E. 621, 9 L.R.A. (n.s.) 1002 (1907); Barksdale v. Hayes, 134 Ga. 348, 67 S.E. 852 (1910); Clark v. Reynolds, 136 Ga. 817, 72 S.E. 254 (1911); Daniel v. Hutchinson, 169 Ga. 492, 150 S.E. 681 (1929) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

All county employers covered by workers' compensation. — Since a county is declared to be an "employer" under Ch. 9, T. 34, and has constitutional authority to raise funds therefor, the conclusion is demanded that all county employees in all counties are covered by workers' compensation. Rosser v. Meriwether County, 125 Ga. App. 239, 186 S.E.2d 788 (1971).

Public Purposes Counties
Empowered to Tax For

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II and antecedent provisions, which set forth specific purposes for which county and municipal expenditures were authorized, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

1. County Government
Administration Expenses

County authorities have no power to make a contract with a bank, constituting it the fiscal agent of the county, regarding the payments of warrants on the county treasurer. Lettice v. American Nat'l Bank, 133 Ga. 874, 67 S.E. 187 (1910).

County not obligated to pay surveyor. — Where suit was brought by a surveyor, who was appointed by the Governor to run a disputed line between two counties under Ga. L. 1908, p. 96 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 3, T. 36), to recover from one of such counties one-half of the charge for such survey, there was no error in dismissing the suit on general demurrer (now motion to dismiss). Robert v. Wilkinson County, 137 Ga. 601, 73 S.E. 838 (1912); Smith v. Baker County, 142 Ga. 168, 82 S.E. 557 (1914).

Costs of publication of annual statement of the county treasurer not valid expense of county. Howard v. Early County, 104 Ga. 669, 30 S.E. 880 (1898).

2. Acquisition of Public Buildings and Bridges

Construction of bridges. — This paragraph broadens the taxing power which the legislature may confer upon counties sufficiently to embrace all expenses for constructing and maintaining bridges and roads. Smith v. Floyd County, 85 Ga. 420, 11 S.E. 850 (1890) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Taxation to pay a judgment for personal injuries caused by unrepaired bridge permitted. Dearing v. Shepherd, 78 Ga. 28 (1886).

There is no limitation on amount of taxes which may be assessed and collected within the year for building and repairing bridges within counties of this state, excepting the cost of erecting the bridges. Settle v. Howell, 174 Ga. 792, 164 S.E. 189 (1932).

3. Education

Supplementing county agents' salaries by counties permissible. — The board of regents, through the college of agriculture, controls the general scope of the agricultural extension work and is empowered to employ and discharge county agents, while the counties may, if they choose to levy the tax therefor, supplement the salaries of the county agents. Royal Indem. Co. v. Humphries, 90 Ga. App. 567, 83 S.E.2d 565 (1954).

Payment of salaries with county funds. — County commissioners can expend county funds for limited purpose of paying salary of personnel to aid and assist in administration of county government. Whatley v. Taylor County, 224 Ga. 669, 164 S.E.2d 121 (1968).

County commissioners imbued with large discretion in expending money for specified purposes. — While county commissioners cannot expend public money beyond the specified purposes enumerated in the Constitution, large discretion is vested in the county commissioners in the expenditure of public money within the specified purposes enumerated in the Constitution. Whatley v. Taylor County, 224 Ga. 669, 164 S.E.2d 121 (1968).

Supreme Court will not interfere with the discretionary action of county commissioners within the sphere of their legally delegated powers, unless such action amounts to an abuse of discretion. Whatley v. Taylor County, 224 Ga. 669, 164 S.E.2d 121 (1968).

Payment of retirement benefits to school employees is not an expenditure for an "educational purpose." — Rather, payment of retirement benefits for county school employees from general county funds is authorized by this paragraph and by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III), as it represents a separate and distinct public purpose. Lomax v. McBrayer, 248 Ga. 753, 286 S.E.2d 35 (1982) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

4. Roads

By implication, counties authorized to develop asphalt production facilities. — Given the general and broad powers of counties authorized by this paragraph and Ga. L. 1973, p. 947, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 32-4-41) to levy taxes and expend funds for the construction and maintenance of roads, it is reasonable to imply authority to develop facilities for production of asphalt for use in the county road system. Ledbetter Bros. v. Floyd County, 237 Ga. 22, 226 S.E.2d 730 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

5. Airports

Uniform Airport Act is not void as violative of this paragraph of the Constitution. Swoger v. Glynn County, 179 Ga. 768, 177 S.E. 723 (1934) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

6. Mass Transit System Facilities

This paragraph does not limit use of tax proceeds to providing "facilities" for a transit system. Camp v. Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Auth., 229 Ga. 35, 189 S.E.2d 56 (1972) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

7. Operation of Courts

Expenses of Court. — Salaries of judges of the city courts may be properly classed as expenses of court within the meaning of this paragraph. Clark v. Eve, 134 Ga. 788, 68 S.E. 598 (1910) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Salaries of judges of the superior courts cannot be classed as expenses of the court. Clark v. Hammond, 134 Ga. 792, 68 S.E. 600 (1910).

Costs of publishing the general presentments of the grand jury are not expenses of court. Houston County v. Kersh & Wynne, 82 Ga. 252, 10 S.E. 199 (1899).

A superior court judge cannot appoint and pay a detective, or employ a special officer to detect an escaped prisoner. Maxwell v. Cumming, 58 Ga. 384 (1877).

8. County Litigation

Litigation. — The term "litigation" does not include litigation arising out of violations of a prohibitory liquor law. Koger v. Hunter, 102 Ga. 76, 29 S.E. 141 (1897).

Litigation does not include engagement of counsel to resist legislative action. DeVaughn v. Booten, 146 Ga. 836, 92 S.E. 629 (1917).

Litigation does not include a proceeding before the state prison commission (now Board of Corrections) for removal of the warden in charge of the convicts in a given county, instituted by a majority of the commissioners of roads and revenues (board of county commissioners) of such county. Humber v. Dixon, 147 Ga. 480, 94 S.E. 565 (1917).

Action by public official questioning validity of repealed Voters Registration Act was constitutionally valid litigation payable from county funds.

— Where it was the right and, therefore, the duty of a public official to, in good faith, raise the question as to the validity of the "Voters Registration Act," former Ga. L. 1949, p. 1204 (now Art. 6, Ch. 2, T. 21), the official need not do so at the official's own expense, since it is the county's funds sought to be protected and not the official's own funds. The Constitution, when enumerating the purposes for which counties could levy and collect taxes, used the word "litigation" and that language was intended to cover just such a situation as is here presented. Richmond County v. Harper, 206 Ga. 517, 57 S.E.2d 595 (1950).

9. Medical Care and Hospitalization For Indigent Sick

Contract with hospital for indigent sick. — Contract by county with a hospital in the county, to provide a ward for hospitalization and medical treatment of indigent sick, is neither gratuity nor otherwise prohibited unless in violation of statutory limitations on the levy of taxes to support such a contract. Brock v. Chappell, 196 Ga. 567, 27 S.E.2d 38 (1943).

Invalid Uses of County Taxes

It can never be a valid county purpose to provide revenue to a municipality because municipalities are not citizens of nor creatures of counties — they are an entirely different form of government. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

General Assembly must have express constitutional authorization for allowing a county to impose a tax for a particular purpose. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Art. 9, § 4, ¶ 2 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 4, ¶ 2

List of purposes for which the state may tax in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I and Para. II) is the only purposes of taxation the state may validly delegate to its creatures power to tax. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

Though the purposes listed in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I) are capable of delegation, the right of the state to tax to grant funds to municipalities is not capable of delegation to counties or to any other subdivision of the state. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979).

State may not grant to counties the right to tax and to give part of the proceeds to municipalities, and consequently this may not be “such other public purpose[s] as may be authorized by the General Assembly” within the meaning of this paragraph or the similar language of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV). City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Purposes for which a county may tax are listed in this paragraph, and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV) and taxation by counties for the purpose of sharing the resulting revenue with cities does not appear in that list. City Council v. Mangelly, 243 Ga. 358, 254 S.E.2d 315 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Use of county funds to procure passage, defeat, or influence vote approval of constitutional amendment not authorized. — The authority of county governments to expend public funds is enumerated in this paragraph. Expenditure of county funds to procure passage or defeat of constitutional amendments is not specifically permitted. Further, the Supreme Court has decided that an advertising campaign to influence vote approval of a constitutional amendment is not authorized as a facet of administration of county government. McKinney v. Brown, 242 Ga. 456, 249 S.E.2d 247 (1978) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

INVALID USES OF COUNTY TAXES

General Consideration

No conflict in taxing powers. — There is no conflict between the taxing powers of a county as set forth in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV) with the authority contained in this paragraph. 1958-59 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 39. (see Ga.

Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Express powers of a county to levy taxes must be used for prescribed purposes and none other; thus, taxes levied by a county for any one of the enumerated purposes cannot be used for any of the other enumerated purposes. 1958-59 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 125.

Fourteen purposes listed in this paragraph are exclusive, and any attempt to use county funds except for these purposes would be null and void. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-123. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Test of the "public nature" of the expenditure should be judged by the tangible benefits accruing to the county. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-34.

Provision for county fire protection. — This paragraph authorizes the legislature, by a local bill to district the territory of a county for fire protection purposes and to authorize such county to levy a tax upon the taxable property within such district for the purpose of providing and maintaining such fire protection, provided the limits or boundaries of such fire protection district are clearly set forth in the local bill. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 39. (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Cooperative counties agreement for purchase and use of riot control equipment. — All counties and those municipalities having the requisite charter authority may enter into cooperative agreements with one another for the purchase and use of equipment to be employed in jointly administered riot control programs. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-141.

"Straw vote" or public opinion referendum. — The expenditure of public funds for a county wide "straw vote" or public opinion referendum, absent some statutory or constitutional premise, is prohibited. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-20.

Public Purposes Counties
Empowered to Tax For

1. County Government
Administration Expenses

Expenditure of tax funds by the county to secure reports, recommendations, plans, or surveys would not violate this paragraph, inasmuch as the information required as a result of the contemplated agreements would be a proper expense incurred in the administration of the county government. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 273.

2. Construction of Roads

Funds for acquisition of right of way. — If a county desires funds for acquisition of a right of way, the first source for this money is from tax moneys collected for this particular purpose; if a county has made no provision in its levy of taxes for acquisition and construction of roads or if all taxes collected pursuant to a levy for this purpose have been expended, then the county must derive its funds from either surplus funds derived from taxes levied for other purposes, if there is a residue, or from funds arising from sources other than taxation. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-231.

Laws of this state do not authorize setting aside of moneys in a "special fund" to purchase a right of way for county roads. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-231.

Use of residue leftover funds raised for specific purpose converted to general funds permissible. — In those cases in which moneys have been raised for a specific purpose and all demands and debts properly chargeable to the particular fund have been paid, a surplus from such fund then becomes a general fund; this residue may be lawfully applied to payments of any legitimate liabilities against the county. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-231.

County may apply funds arising from other sources than taxation to defray expenses for any authorized public purpose; the only exception to this principle is that these funds derived from other sources, such as fees and costs, must not be earmarked by statute to be applied in some other particular direction. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-231.

3. Public Health and Sanitation Programs

Sewerage installation for private nursing by county invalid in absence of legislation. — Insofar as it were a tax supported function, provision by the county of sewerage facilities to a private nursing home would be an invalid exercise of power in the absence of enabling legislation. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 77.

4. County Agricultural and Home Demonstration Agents

County responsible for expenses and salaries of county home demonstration agents. — Where county taxes are levied under this paragraph and under paragraph (10) of former Code 1933, § 92-3701 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-220), the expenses and salaries of the county and home demonstration agent would be paid by the general governing body of the county, i.e., usually the board of county commissioners (of roads and revenues). 1958-59 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 127 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

5. Welfare Benefits

Authority for provision of welfare benefits. — The expenditure of funds for coverage of state or local employees of public hospitals and institutions of higher learning by unemployment compensation would be authorized by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. II, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I), and subparagraphs (7) and (8) of this paragraph to provide necessary welfare benefits as specified by the General Assembly. 1971 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 71-35 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

County support of private day care center limited. — Since the Constitution limits county taxation and expenditures to welfare programs as provided by law, and the only welfare provided by law which may include this type of day care services is the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, there would be no authority for a county to appropriate money for private day care center which is not operated as a service for eligible children. 1975 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U75-1.

6. Conservation of Natural Resources

County is authorized to use county equipment and to expend county funds in maintenance of watershed improvement structures where such projects are in furtherance of the county’s authorization to conserve natural resources, serve a flood prevention need, and provide additional public benefits. 1975 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 75-29.

7. Employees Insurance and Other Benefits

Required stipulation for participation by county in retirement annuity for employees. — A county can participate in a retirement annuity for its employees contracted through an insurance company with the understanding that payments for public school teachers and personnel, their dependents and survivors, shall be paid from education funds. 1969 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 69-474; 1975 Op. Att’y Gen. No. U75-37.

8. Support and Maintenance of Public Schools

Some permissible and nonpermissible uses of school funds. — Neither the State Board of Education nor local boards of education can lawfully use school funds for room and board (other than school lunches) or for medical (including psychiatric) treatment or services beyond such evaluation as is necessary to placement and the determination of the proper educational program for a given child. 1979 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 79-1.

Construction of “for educational purpose.” — The expression “for educational purpose” is to be given the broadest significance; the expression is “... broad enough to cover all things necessary or incidental to the furtherance of education ...,” but the scope of the expression does not extend to any measure that might incidentally prove to be of assistance to a program of education. 1975 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 75-33.

Valid expenditure of school funds by county school board. — The expenditure of public school funds by a county board of education to run sewer lines from its schools to city sewer lines on nearby city streets, and to purchase sewage disposal services from the city, would not violate any constitutional or statutory provision of the State of Georgia. 1967 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 67-85.

It is illegal for a county school board to expend school funds to help defray tax collection expenses of county tax commissioner. 1965-66 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 65-3.

School funds may not legally be used to purchase uniforms for school

8. Support and Maintenance of Public Schools (Cont'd)

lunch personnel. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-182.

Use of school funds for private audit of noneducational funds unconstitutional. — The language “books, records, and accounts of the public school system over which any such board has jurisdiction” is broad enough to lead a school board to conclude that it could utilize public school funds to procure a private audit not only of educational funds, but also of all noneducational funds under the board’s jurisdiction however, such use would be unconstitutional by this paragraph. 1963-65 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 731 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. II).

Medical services may or may not be for school purposes. — Answering of the question of whether a given expenditure can be said to be an expenditure “for school purposes” is exceedingly difficult and an area as broad as “medical services” is not one which can be said to be either wholly within or wholly without the outer limits of a lawful expenditure “for school purposes.” 1977 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-52.

Payment for medical service with school funds. — Some forms of medical service have such direct and substantial relationship to the educational process as to render it unlikely a court would not authorize expenditure of school funds for such service at least where arguably authorized by statute. 1976 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 76-44.

School funds cannot lawfully be expended to provide pupils with full medical care. 1976 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 76-44.

Common school funds can lawfully be used for support of “community school program,” which programs are ordinarily conducted after normal school hours and consist of various activities of an educational nature provided for the general citizenry without violating constitutional prohibitions of the expenditure of school funds for purposes other than “school” or “educational” purposes. 1977

Op. Att’y Gen. No. 77-60.

Local school boards may spend state and local tax funds to maintain debate program; these expenditures may include payment of debate meet registration fees for individuals and schools. 1981 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 81-20.

Room and board for students attending debate meets may be paid with local tax funds. — Individual and school registration fees and costs for student room and board while they are away from home at centrally located debate meets are necessary and incidental to the educational process and may be paid with funds derived from local taxation. 1981 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 81-20.

Expenditure of school funds for construction of public library facilities educational purpose. — In view of the inherent nature of library facilities as a learning tool and the pervasive relationship between educational authorities and library systems on both state and local governmental levels, together with the stated legislative policy that establishment of a public library service is to be part of the provisions for public education in this state, the use of common school funds for construction of public library facilities is an expenditure for educational purposes. 1975 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 75-33.

Reward offered with school funds. — Expenditure of school funds for payment of rewards offered for information concerning damage to and destruction of school property is not an expenditure for educational purposes, and therefore not a lawful use of general school funds. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 74-122.

School lunch programs. — Neither state nor local school funds may be used to provide lunches for children not enrolled in the public school program. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 74-155.

No direct provision of law prohibits a local school system from providing school lunches for children not enrolled in the public school program, assuming full reimbursement is made to the school system for expenses incurred in the providing of such service. 1974 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 74-155.

Improper use of school funds. — Expenditures for an annual physical examination of the School Superintendent, for a faculty banquet, and for payment of insurance premiums for members of a high school football team would be improper objects for the expenditure of common school funds. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-12.

Art. 9, § 4, ¶ 2 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 4, ¶ 3

Invalid Uses of County Taxes

County may not lawfully expend county funds to reimburse sheriff's surety for payments made to satisfy judgment against sheriff. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-22.

Use of public funds for distribution of electorate sample ballots doubtful.

— The ordinary (now judge of probate court) does not have the authority needed to distribute electorate sample ballots prior to the next general election; even if such authority were contained in Ch. 2, T. 21, it is extremely doubtful whether public funds could be used. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-4.

But see Board of Comm'rs v. Cooper, 245 Ga. 251, 264 S.E.2d 193 (1980) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. III).

Allocation of county revenue for expenditure in a particular area of the county is not allocation for "any particular purpose" within the meaning of this paragraph. Richmond County Bus. Ass'n v. Richmond County, 232 Ga. 462, 207 S.E.2d 450 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. III).

Additional charge for building permits prohibited. — This provision does not give a county authority to impose a tax or charge in addition to all charges currently imposed for building permits where those funds are allocated directly to the board of education. DeKalb County v. Brown Bldrs. Co., 227 Ga. 777, 183 S.E.2d 367 (1971) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. III).

Using tax funds to improve private corporate property prohibited. — Expenditure of tax funds to build or improve facilities upon the property of a private corporation is not among the enumerated powers of this paragraph. Nelson v. Wainwright, 224 Ga. 693, 164 S.E.2d 147 (1968) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. III).

Paragraph IV. Tax allocation; regional facilities.

As used in this Paragraph, the term “regional facilities” means industrial parks, business parks, conference centers, convention centers, airports, athletic facilities, recreation facilities, jails or correctional facilities, or other similar or related economic development parks, centers, or facilities or any combination thereof. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Constitution, a county or municipality is authorized to enter into contracts with: (1) any county which is contiguous to such county or the county in which such municipality is located; (2) any municipality located in such a contiguous county or the same county; or (3) any combination thereof. Any such contract may be for the purpose of allocating the proceeds of ad valorem taxes assessed and collected on real property located in such county or municipality with such other counties or municipalities with which the assessing county or municipality has entered into agreements for the development of one or more regional facilities and the allocation of other revenues generated from such regional facilities. Any such regional facility may be publicly or privately initiated. The allocation of such tax proceeds and other revenues shall be determined by contract between the affected local governments. Such contract shall provide for the manner of development, operation, and management of the regional facility and the sharing of expenses among the contracting local governments and shall specify the percentage of ad valorem taxes and other revenues to be allocated and the method of allocation to each contracting local government. Unless otherwise provided by law, such a regional facility will qualify for the greatest dollar amount of income tax credits which may be provided for by general law for any of the counties or municipalities which have entered into an agreement for the development of the regional facility, regardless of the county or municipality in which the business is physically located. The authority granted to counties and municipalities under this Paragraph shall be subject to any conditions, limitations, and restrictions which may be imposed by general law. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 4, Para. 4; Ga. L. 1994, p. 2025, § 1/SR 203.)

Editor’s notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1994, p. 2025, § 1) authorizing counties and municipalities to enter into contracts for sharing proceeds of ad valorem taxes assessed and collected on real property located in such counties

Art. 9, § 4, ¶ 4 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 5, ¶ 1

or municipalities with certain other neighboring counties and municipal corporations with which the assessing county or municipality has contracted for the purpose of development of regional facilities by such counties or municipalities was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 8, 1994.

SECTION V.

LIMITATION ON LOCAL DEBT

Paragraph

- I. Debt limitations of counties, municipalities, and other political subdivisions.
- II. Special district debt.
- III. Refunding of outstanding indebtedness.

Paragraph

- IV. Exceptions to debt limitations.
- V. Temporary loans authorized.
- VI. Levy of taxes to pay bonds; sinking fund required.
- VII. Validity of prior bond issues.

Paragraph I. Debt limitations of counties, municipalities, and other political subdivisions.

(a) The debt incurred by any county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state, including debt incurred on behalf of any special district, shall never exceed 10 percent of the assessed value of all taxable property within such county, municipality, or political subdivision; and no such county, municipality, or other political subdivision shall incur any new debt without the assent of a majority of the qualified voters of such county, municipality, or political subdivision voting in an election held for that purpose as provided by law.

(b) Notwithstanding subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, all local school systems which are authorized by law on June 30, 1983, to incur debt in excess of 10 percent of the assessed value of all taxable property therein shall continue to be authorized to incur such debt.

1976 Constitution. — Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I.

Cross references. — Elections to incur or retire bonded debts, § 20-2-430 et seq., § 36-80-10 et seq., and § 36-82-1 et seq. Power to incur or retire public debt, §§ 36-34-6 and 36-80-13. Computing public indebtedness, § 36-82-8.

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment proposed in Ga. L. 1987, p. 1598, § 1, which would have added subparagraph (c) authorizing any municipality of the State of Georgia having a population of 400,000 or more to incur an additional $8 million per annum in bonded indebtedness without the necessity of a referendum, was defeated in the general election on November 8, 1988.

General Consideration

This paragraph must be strictly construed. Berrien County v. Paulk, 150 Ga. 829, 105 S.E. 491 (1920); Miles v. State, 96 Ga. App. 610, 101 S.E.2d 173 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

This paragraph cannot be eroded by an illegal bond issue. Mayor of Macon v. Jones, 122 Ga. 455, 50 S.E. 340 (1905); Lippitt v. City of Albany, 131 Ga. 629, 63 S.E. 33 (1908) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

In order for a municipal corporation to issue bonds and incur bonded indebtedness there must be compliance with essential provisions of the law. State v. Carswell, 78 Ga. App. 84, 50 S.E.2d 621 (1948).

Local amendment levying tax valid. — A local amendment to Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II of the 1945 Georgia Constitution, authorizing a county to levy a tax for water and sewerage purposes, was valid despite any conflict with the debt limitations clause. Copeland v. State, 268 Ga. 375, 490 S.E.2d 68 (1997).

Paragraph limits operation of former Civil Code 1910, § 442 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-82-3), and that section must be construed consistently with this paragraph. Chapman v. Sumner Consol. Sch. Dist., 152 Ga. 450, 109 S.E. 129 (1921); Cowart v. City of Waycross, 159 Ga. 589, 126 S.E. 476 (1925) (see Ga.

Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

This paragraph does not operate as a limitation upon taxing power of a municipality. Commissioners of Habersham County v. Porter Mfg. Co., 103 Ga. 613, 30 S.E. 547 (1898); City of Waycross v. Tomberlin, 146 Ga. 504, 91 S.E. 560 (1917) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

This paragraph applies to elections for bonds, and not to elections authorizing levy of an additional educational tax in local school districts under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I). Crye v. Pearce, 175 Ga. 85, 165 S.E. 121 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Purpose of Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36. — The Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), is designed to provide for self-liquidating projects and the revenue certificates contemplated are not to be a charge against the general credit of the county or municipality. The liability is to be satisfied only from revenues produced by the undertaking, and under specific terms of the statute the political division will never be required to aid in its retirement with funds derived from any other source, and is in fact prohibited from doing so. The article is not unconstitutional by virtue of violating the constitutional limitation on municipal debts. Miller v. Head, 186 Ga. 694, 198 S.E. 680

(1938), commented on in 1 Ga. B.J. 40 (1939).

Debts under Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36 not debts of political subdivision. — Revenue anticipation certificates issued under the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), do not subject the political subdivision of this state issuing the same to any pecuniary liability thereon and are therefore not debts against such political subdivision within the meaning of the constitutional provision limiting such indebtedness. Fort Oglethorpe v. Catoosa County, 80 Ga. App. 188, 55 S.E.2d 752 (1949).

Debt not regulated by this clause. — County's promise to pay for the stadium project bonds was not a debt regulated by the Georgia Constitution's debt limitation clause as the promise was made as part of a constitutionally valid intergovernmental contract. Savage v. State of Ga., 297 Ga. 627, 774 S.E.2d 624 (2015).

Taxpayers right to injunction. — Taxpayers of the city have such an interest in the municipal funds arising from taxation that they may enjoin the creation of illegal debts by the corporation, or their payment. Hudson v. Mayor of Marietta, 64 Ga. 287 (1879), overruled on other grounds, City Council v. Dawson Waterworks Co., 106 Ga. 719, 32 S.E. 916 (1899); Renfroe v. City of Atlanta, 140 Ga. 81, 78 S.E. 449, 45 L.R.A. (n.s.) 1173 (1913).

Construction of paragraph's exception clause. — The following words, "except as in this Constitution provided for," lift out of the restrictions and limitations provided in this paragraph the full content of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I), as the constitutional authorization of debt not prohibited by the limitation and inhibition contained in this paragraph. Sheffield v. State Sch. Bldg. Auth., 208 Ga. 575, 68 S.E.2d 590 (1952) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

The County Building Authority Act did not violate Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I) as the Act and agreements entered into pursuant to it, in regard to the acquisition and construction of certain county buildings, were validated by the intergovernmental contracts provision, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I. Building Auth. v. State, 253 Ga. 242, 321 S.E.2d 97 (1984).

Import of 1927 constitutional amendment. — The constitutional amendment of 1927 is not merely an addition to the "casual deficiency" provision of this paragraph, but it confers upon the counties the right to borrow money in an amount not exceeding the fixed limitation, to be used for any lawful county purpose, and not merely to supply casual deficiencies of revenue. Atlanta Distrib. Terms., Inc. v. Board of Comm'rs, 177 Ga. 250, 170 S.E. 52 (1933) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

"Casual deficiency" defined. — The phrase, "casual deficiency" means some unforeseen or unexpected deficiency, or an insufficiency of funds to meet some unforeseen and necessary expense. Lewis v. Lofley, 92 Ga. 804, 19 S.E. 57 (1894); Hall v. County of Greene, 119 Ga. 253, 46 S.E. 69 (1903); Williams v. Sumter County, 21 Ga. App. 716, 94 S.E. 913, cert. denied, 21 Ga. App. 825 (1918); Citizens Bank v. Rockdale County, 152 Ga. 711, 111 S.E. 434 (1922); Atlanta Distrib. Terms., Inc. v. Board of Comm'rs, 177 Ga. 250, 170 S.E. 52 (1933).

Paragraph not self-executing. — Since this paragraph, concerning the incurring of debts by a municipality is not self-executing, the General Assembly passed an enabling Act, former Code 1933, § 87-201 et seq., putting this provision into operation. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

O.C.G.A. § 36-82-3. — Former Code 1933, § 87-203 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-82-3), providing for elections to approve issue of bonds must be given effect, subject to change as made by this paragraph in reference to the proportion of qualified voters necessary to authorize a bond issue; and no further enabling Act is necessary. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946).

Former Code 1933, § 87-203 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-82-3) should be construed consistently with this paragraph as to the number of eligible voters required to approve the issuance of bonds. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Contract between county and cities. — Trial court did not err in granting a county summary judgment in cities' action for breach of an intergovernmental agreement (IGA) the parties entered into pursuant to the Homestead Option Sales and Use Tax Act (HOST), O.C.G.A. § 48-8-100 et seq., because the IGA was not a valid intergovernmental contract under the Intergovernmental Contracts Clause of the Georgia Constitution, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I(a) since the focus and clear purpose of the IGA was to provide a formula for the distribution of the HOST revenues, and the IGA could not be deemed an agreement for the provision of authorized "services"; the IGA was an agreement about how to divide and distribute HOST revenues between the county and the cities, with the cities agreeing to expend the monies disbursed solely for capital outlay projects to be located within the geographical boundaries of the county and to be owned, operated, or both either by the county, one or more cities or any combination thereof, and the fact that the IGA required the cities to expend the tax proceeds in accordance with the mandates of the Homestead Option Sales and Use Tax Act, O.C.G.A. § 48-8-102, did not transform it into either a contract for services or one for the use of facilities. City of Decatur v. Dekalb County, 289 Ga. 612, 713 S.E.2d 846 (2011).

Creation of Debt1. In General

State authorities, lawfully created, are not subject to the restrictions of this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VIII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I). Thompson v. Municipal Elec. Auth., 238 Ga. 19, 231 S.E.2d 720 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Replication insufficient to prevent liability for debt. — Where it is alleged that an undertaking would violate this paragraph it is not sufficient to reply that the project will be a self-liquidating one and none of the money borrowed will ever be paid from the public treasury or from taxation. City of Valdosta v. Singleton, 197 Ga. 194, 28 S.E.2d 759 (1944).

Instance of nonapplicability of case. — Lettice v. American Nat'l Bank, 133 Ga. 874, 67 S.E. 187 (1910) is fundamentally sound, but not applicable to the question of allowing interest on a lawful liquidated demand. Marion County v. First Nat'l Bank, 193 Ga. 263, 18 S.E.2d 475 (1942).

Payment of past-due legal indebtedness. — County commissioners may lawfully apply any part of the money borrowed under this paragraph to payment of past-due legal indebtedness of the county represented by outstanding and unpaid warrants issued prior to the year in which the loan is obtained. Atlanta Distrib. Terms., Inc. v. Board of Comm'rs, 177 Ga. 250, 170 S.E. 52 (1933) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Donation of county funds to nonpublic organizations prohibited. — When the applicable revenue statutes were construed together with this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. VI), it was held that they did not confer power or authority on a county board of commissioners to donate county funds derived from taxation or from other sources to a chamber of commerce, freight bureau, or convention and tourist bureau even if such donations were intended to accomplish a lawful purpose. Atlanta Chamber of Commerce v. McRae, 174 Ga. 590, 163 S.E. 701 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

City's disavowal of cash transaction not countenanced by court. — Direction of verdict against defendant city in a suit by architect and engineer for services rendered where municipality claimed that account sued on was not within its power to enter into, or to create a debt, was proper where there was no indication that the transactions in question were other than cash transactions. Mayor of Butler v. Duncan, 56 Ga. App. 539, 193 S.E. 365 (1937).

County must plan its entire school program so as not to overreach constitutionally mandated debt ceiling, but such a requirement does not forbid a contract to accept and teach children from other counties. Wilson v. Strange, 235 Ga. 156, 219 S.E.2d 88 (1975).

Cause for declaring election void and illegal. — A bond election in a municipality located in a county where former Code 1933, §§ 34-1914 through 34-1917 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 21-2-576 through 21-2-579) had been adopted, which election totally disregarded provisions of the Secret Ballot Law, could not be treated as a mere irregularity or noncompliance, but must be held to be cause for declaring the election void and illegal. State v. Carswell, 78 Ga. App. 84, 50 S.E.2d 621 (1945).

Debt created against municipality in absence of liability. — Principle that a debt may be created against a municipal corporation even though no liability is placed upon the municipality which may be enforced in the future by the compulsory levy of taxes was applied. Cartledge v. City Council, 183 Ga. 414, 188 S.E. 675 (1936).

Contract between the county and the airport authority, which managed the airport, qualified as an enforceable intergovernmental agreement (IGA) that did not violate the Debt Clause in the Georgia Constitution because the IGA was between appropriate governmental entities; the agreement's term did not exceed 50 years; the agreement related to both the provision of services and the joint use of facilities as the airport authority agreed to manage and maintain the expanded taxiway, and the county, in return, agreed to provide funding and manage the debt required to be incurred to complete the expansion; and the agreement dealt with services and facilities about which the county had the authority to enter contracts. Avery v. State of Ga., 295 Ga. 630, 761 S.E.2d 56 (2014).

Expenditures for county pension fund. — County's inclusion of the sheriff in its pension plan with county funds did not create a debt without the consent of the voters in violation of this paragraph. Malcom v. Newton County, 244 Ga. App. 464, 535 S.E.2d 824 (2000) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Creation of Debt (Cont'd)1. In General (Cont'd)

Contractor's services approved by voters. — Multi-year contract a school district entered into with a contractor was enforceable and constitutionally valid because the contractor's breach of contract complaint alleged that the contractor's services under the contract were for projects that the county's voters had approved in a referendum for Educational Local Option Sales Tax funding. Greene County Sch. Dist. v. Circle Y Constr., Inc., 308 Ga. App. 837, 708 S.E.2d 692 (2011).

2. Authority To Borrow

Borrowing power absolute grant. — The exercise of the borrowing power is not conditioned upon there being a casual deficiency of revenue, but it is an absolute grant of power. Mayer v. Adams, 182 Ga. 524, 186 S.E. 420 (1936).

Difference in money owed. — There is a difference between borrowing money to meet present or anticipated current expense, and discharging by tax levy liabilities for necessary past current expense, no matter how the liability arose. Southern Ry. v. Fulton County, 170 Ga. 248, 152 S.E. 567 (1930).

3. Registered Voters' Approval

Majority required of actual voters. — When this provision is viewed in the light of its background, it seems perfectly clear that it was intended to require only a majority of those actually voting, and not a majority of all the qualified voters of the county or municipality. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Voters ratification clause interpreted. — The provision that no county, municipality, or division shall incur any new debt except for a temporary loan, "without the assent of a majority of the qualified voters of the county, municipality or other political subdivision voting in an election for that purpose to be held as prescribed by law," requires only that in order to authorize a proposed bond issue, a majority of those actually voting shall vote in favor thereof. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946).

Result in each case must be determined by a count of the ballots cast, and not by an inquiry as to the number not cast. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946).

Non-voters must abide by will of majority of voters. — The general rule as to popular elections is that those who abstain from exercising the franchise are not regarded in declaring the results. By staying away from the polls, they virtually agree to abide by the will of the majority of those who attend and vote. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946).

Such are the plain words of it, and doubtless that was its true intent and meaning; otherwise, it would have said a majority of all of the qualified voters of such town or city, instead of saying, after a majority of the qualified voters of such town or city voting at an election held for the purpose. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946).

Proper test of the number of persons entitled to vote is the result of the election as determined by the ballot box. The courts will not go outside of that to inquire whether there were other persons entitled to vote who did not do so. McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946).

Necessary determination in response to election fraud. — Under former Code 1933, § 34-3101 (now O.C.G.A. § 21-2-522), providing that no election should be defeated for noncompliance with the requirements of the law, if held at the proper time and place by persons qualified to hold it, unless it was shown that, by such noncompliance, the result was different from what it would have been had there been proper compliance, and where it was not contended that the result of the election would have been different, it was unnecessary to determine whether an unspecified number of persons, whose names did not appear on the voters list for the last general election, were properly or improperly denied the right to vote in an election held for the purpose of authorizing a bond issue within a county school district. Pinion v. Walker County Sch. Dist., 203 Ga. 99, 45 S.E.2d 405 (1947).

Evidence insufficient to invalidate otherwise valid election. — Where the election is regularly called and regularly held, and the voters freely and voluntarily exercise their right to vote, the election will not be invalidated simply because some of them may have been misled by someone interested in the result of the election. Burns v. Decatur County, 178 Ga. 275, 173 S.E. 127 (1934).

Bond election unaffected by allegations. — Where there was submitted to the voters of a county the proposition of “issuing $500,000 bonds for paving,” and an election properly called for the purpose of voting upon this question resulted in an approval by the voters of the issuance of these bonds, when there was not included in the submission any condition, or any assurance as to how the money should be spent, excepting it should be spent for paving the roads of the county, the people did not condition their support of the bond issue upon any representation contained in the submission, and any aliunde statement by members of the Board of Roads and Revenues (now County Commissioners) in no wise affected the validity of the vote for bonds, nor did the assurances of such board afford any ground of relief against the use of the bonds for the purpose stated in the submission, after the election had carried. Burns v. Decatur County, 178 Ga. 275, 173 S.E. 127 (1934).

Effect of contract not sanctioned by voters. — A municipal water supply contract, not sanctioned by popular vote, is operative from year to year so long as neither party renounces or repudiates it. City Council v. Dawson Waterworks Co., 106 Ga. 696, 32 S.E. 907 (1899); Renfroe v. City of Atlanta, 140 Ga. 81, 78 S.E. 449, 45 L.R.A. (n.s.) 1173 (1913); McCrary Co. v. City of Glennville, 149 Ga. 431, 100 S.E. 362 (1919).

School districts are political divisions of the state, and therefore this paragraph is applicable to bond elections in school districts. There can be no valid state election, or any county or school district election for bonds, without registration. Terrell v. Forest Park Consol.

Sch. Dist., 175 Ga. 88, 165 S.E. 122, answer conformed to, Terrell v. Forest Park Consol. Sch. Dist., 45 Ga. App. 713, 165 S.E. 757, and Yaeger v. Valley Point Consol. Sch. Dist., 45 Ga. App. 717, 165 S.E. 759 (1932) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Qualified voters having been ascertained under law, the constitution is mandatory that two-thirds (now majority) of them shall assent. Kacoonis v. City of Mt. View, 224 Ga. 151, 160 S.E.2d 364 (1968).

“Registered voter” defined. — A registered voter under this paragraph is one who had been lawfully registered and who has the present right to vote. Persons merely entitled to be registered or those lawfully registered who have been disqualified to vote are not included. Daniel v. City of Claxton, 35 Ga. App. 107, 132 S.E. 411 (1926) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Unearned interest is not included. Epping v. City of Columbus, 117 Ga. 263, 43 S.E. 803 (1903), overruled on other grounds, Harrell v. Town of Whigham, 141 Ga. 322, 80 S.E. 1010 (1914).

Facts rendering contract void from inception. — Where the continued existence of a contract is based upon the continued approval of the public authority making the contract, then such a contract does not clash with constitutional and statutory authority; but where the effect of the contract results in creating a debt, other than to supply casual deficiencies, without the approval of the voters and binds the future governing authorities, the contract is void from its inception. McElmurray v. Richmond County, 223 Ga. 47, 153 S.E.2d 427 (1967).

Voters’ approval required for new debt. — Agreement, which arranged a loan from the contractor to the city for funds necessary to construct a road, created a new debt which the city was obligated to repay regardless of whether the city had sufficient impact fees to reimburse the contractor and, thus, the unpaid debt obligation constituted a “new debt” which extended beyond the fiscal year and required voter approval. Fairgreen Capital, LLC v. City of Canton, 335 Ga. App. 719, 782 S.E.2d 46 (2016).

Creation of Debt (Cont'd)4. Methods of Repayment

All presumptions are in favor of the legality and validity of a tax. Blalock v. Adams, 154 Ga. 326, 114 S.E. 345 (1922).

Where a note is given for a casual deficiency in expenses, and the county cannot show that the limitation of one-fifth of one percent was exceeded, it is not presumed legally valid. Citizens Bank v. Rockdale County, 156 Ga. 500, 119 S.E. 322 (1923).

As to effect of recital in note for debt that laws were complied with, see Citizens Bank v. Town of Ludowici, 24 Ga. App. 201, 100 S.E. 229 (1919); National Park Bank v. City of Marietta, 29 Ga. App. 29, 113 S.E. 96 (1922).

Municipal contract for property valuation. — Paragraph is not violated by municipal contract for special services in valuing property for taxation. Such contract was held not to constitute a debt within the meaning of the section. Tietjen v. Mayor of Savannah, 161 Ga. 125, 129 S.E. 653 (1925) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Illegal diversion of bond money to purpose other than that specified, restrained. City of Fayetteville v. Huddleston, 165 Ga. 899, 142 S.E. 280 (1928). See Mathews v. Darby, 165 Ga. 509, 141 S.E. 304 (1928).

Issuance of notes in excess of limit. — An issue of notes in excess of the limit allowed by this paragraph is void since the tax digest of the county will show the assessed valuation. The county cannot make recitals which will estop it from denying that the loan is in excess of the limit. Baker v. Rockdale County, 161 Ga. 245, 130 S.E. 814 (1925) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Anticipated income to be received by a county from the State Highway Board (now State Transportation Board) is not a tax of the character contemplated by this paragraph. Taylor v. Lovett, 184 Ga. 295, 191 S.E. 113 (1937) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

5. Legally Valid Debt

If a debt is legal and legally incurred, and is not paid at time when it falls due, it remains a legal debt. Southern Ry. v. Fulton County, 170 Ga. 248, 152 S.E. 567 (1930).

Debt held created. — Upon a proper construction of the proposed contract, giving due consideration to its substance and looking to the intention of the parties as revealed from the paper in its entirety, the obligations of the city would amount to the creation of a debt within the meaning of this paragraph. Byars v. City of Griffin, 168 Ga. 41, 147 S.E. 66 (1929) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Circumstance rendering sale of electric equipment debt of city. — Where the proposed contract contemplates the sale of electric service, and the sale and installation by the company of electrical equipment, the electric service to be paid for monthly and the price of the equipment and installation with interest thereon to be paid monthly by the city giving credit each month on the franchise taxes due by the company, the sale of the equipment and its installation at a time when “the city has no surplus funds with which to pay and has not levied any tax for such purpose” would create a debt by the city within the meaning of this paragraph. Morton v. City of Waycross, 173 Ga. 298, 160 S.E. 330 (1931) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Contract between county and airport authority. — Even though, under a contract between the county and an airport authority for use by the county of an expanded airport facility, the consideration to be paid by the county was not expressed in terms of a definite dollar amount, it was not an unconstitutional “new debt”. The contract was a valid intergovernmental contract and the consideration represented the authority’s lawful “revenue pledged to the payment of” the bonds. Clayton County Airport Auth. v. State, 265 Ga. 24, 453 S.E.2d 8 (1995).

Contract for construction of municipal lighting plant, payable by series of annual notes creates a debt. McCrary Co. v. City of Glennville, 149 Ga. 431, 100 S.E. 362 (1919); Dobbs v. Brumby, 150 Ga. 599, 104 S.E. 440 (1920).

Debt created. — A contract by the governing officials of a county to purchase property for the county and to pay therefor with interest-bearing warrants falling due for several years in the future is a debt within the meaning of this paragraph. Dancer v. Shingler, 147 Ga. 82, 92 S.E. 935 (1917) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Debt created by implied promise. — A cash contract for current supplies to carry on a legitimate business of a city may be enforced upon theory of an implied promise. Town of Whigham v. Gulf Ref. Co., 20 Ga. App. 427, 93 S.E. 238 (1917).

O.C.G.A. § 36-60-13, which authorizes municipalities to enter into multiyear lease purchase contracts for the acquisition of goods so long as the contract provides that it shall terminate absolutely and without further obligation at the close of the calendar year unless renewed, is constitutional. Barkley v. City of Rome, 259 Ga. 355, 381 S.E.2d 34 (1989).

Short term loan valid. — Short term loan from bank was a valid exercise of the city's temporary borrowing powers under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. V, Para. V since none of the enumerated limitations on the constitutional authority of a municipality to engage in temporary borrowing precluded the city from executing the tax anticipation note as security for the loan from the bank, and since the city certified in the loan package that loan proceeds would be used to pay its then current expenses. City of Bremen v. Regions Bank, 274 Ga. 733, 559 S.E.2d 440 (2002).

Sewer project. — After a trial court required two intervenors to post a bond of $625,000 with regard to their challenge to the public improvement bond approved by a city's building authority for a sewer project, the trial court properly validated the bond by following all necessary procedural requirements and the bond did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I(a) since the city's payment for the use of the sewer project was a debt specifically authorized under the constitution pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I(a). Berry v. City of E. Point, 277 Ga. App. 649, 627 S.E.2d 391 (2006).

6. Nondebts

County treasurer carries burden of proof of county's inability to become obligated on debt. — Where a county treasurer in a mandamus suit to compel payment of a warrant issued by the county raises the issue of an attempt, to create a debt as inhibited by the Constitution, on the basis of insufficient funds on hand or inability to levy lawful tax during the year to raise funds for payment of the contract price of the machinery purchased with the warrant, the burden of proof is on the treasurer. Marion County v. First Nat'l Bank, 193 Ga. 263, 18 S.E.2d 475 (1942).

Legitimate expenses. — An expense may be incurred without creating a debt provided there are sufficient funds in the treasury, or the current tax will produce that amount. Butts County v. Jackson Banking Co., 129 Ga. 801, 60 S.E. 149, 121 Am. St. R. 244, 15 L.R.A. (n.s.) 567 (1907); Tate v. Elberton, 136 Ga. 301, 71 S.E. 420 (1911); City of Jeffersonville v. Cotton States Belting & Supply Co., 30 Ga. App. 470, 118 S.E. 442 (1923); Rawls v. City of Jonesboro, 212 Ga. 734, 95 S.E.2d 657 (1956).

Nonallegation of dischargeable debt out of taxes for year in which liability incurred results in nonviolation of paragraph. — Where it is not alleged anywhere in the petition that the liability created by the contracts cannot be discharged in full out of taxes which could be lawfully levied and collected by the defendant city during the current year in which the liability was incurred, there is no violation of this paragraph. Rawls v. City of Jonesboro, 212 Ga. 734, 95 S.E.2d 657 (1956) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Prohibited debt not created. — No prohibited debt is created if obligation of county can be met during year either by money on hand which can lawfully be used, or by levy of sufficient tax for the purpose, the tax being one which the county itself may levy, calculated to raise a definite sum, and uncertain only in the possible failure to collect. Austin-Western Rd. Mach. Co. v. Fayette County, 99 F.2d 565 (5th Cir. 1938).

Money cannot be borrowed on ground that other sources of revenue exist. Tate v. Elberton, 136 Ga. 301, 71 S.E. 420 (1911).

Contracting debt with anticipated non-tax revenues prohibited. —

Creation of Debt (Cont'd)6. Nondebts (Cont'd)

County officers have no right to contract a debt on the ground that anticipated revenues from sources other than taxation can be used to discharge such indebtedness. Vincent v. MacNeill, 186 Ga. 427, 198 S.E. 68 (1938).

Note given for money borrowed in anticipation of taxes is not enforceable against a county. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Wilcox County, 284 F. 856 (S.D. Ga. 1922), aff'd, 287 F. 809 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 262 U.S. 755, 43 S. Ct. 703, 67 L. Ed. 1217 (1923).

Incurring debt for construction of public roads. — County commissioners may incur a debt, when too late to levy a tax, for purchase of necessary tools or implements to aid in construction of a public road. Pennington v. Gammon, 67 Ga. 456 (1881); Garrison v. Perkins, 137 Ga. 744, 74 S.E. 541 (1912).

County authorities have power to install telephones or to cause them to be installed at courthouses, jails, or pauper farms. Wright v. Floyd County, 1 Ga. App. 582, 58 S.E. 72 (1907); Wood v. Vienna Tel. Co., 8 Ga. App. 209, 68 S.E. 872 (1910).

County may, without being said to create a debt, contract for materials and machinery for necessary improvement of public roads to be paid for out of the available funds in the hands of the treasurer, or out of the proceeds of taxes that have been, or may be lawfully levied during the year in which the contract is made. Taylor v. Lovett, 184 Ga. 295, 191 S.E. 113 (1937).

Former Rural Roads Authority Acts. — Provision of former Rural Roads Authority Act (now Georgia Highway Authority Act, O.C.G.A. Art. 1, Ch. 10, T. 32) that required county authorities to maintain roads did not violate this paragraph dealing with the creation of debts, since counties are granted authority to build and maintain roads and to levy taxes for such purposes. State v. Georgia Rural Rds. Auth., 211 Ga. 808, 89 S.E.2d 204 (1955) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

A contract by city made in pursuance of Ga. L. 1937, p. 697, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 3, T. 8) does not create a debt within the meaning of this paragraph which prevents a municipality, except under certain conditions, from incurring a debt. Williamson v. Housing Auth., 186 Ga. 673, 199 S.E. 43 (1938) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Contract does not necessarily constitute incurring a debt within the meaning of the debt limitation provision of the Constitution, even if the contract calls for the rendering of service beyond the year in which the contract is made. Macon Ambulance Serv., Inc. v. Snow Properties, Inc., 218 Ga. 262, 127 S.E.2d 598 (1962).

Available proceeds of bond issue at time of contract sufficient to prevent debt. — Where a contract for construction of power dam was within the powers of a county power commission as prescribed in a local constitutional amendment, and at the time of its making the commission had available the entire proceeds of a bond issue authorized for the construction, the contract created no debt against the county in the sense of the Constitution. Crisp County v. S.J. Grove & Sons Co., 73 F.2d 327 (5th Cir. 1934) (decided under Ga. Const., Art. VII, Sec. VII, Para. I of Const. of 1877).

Municipality liable under the common honesty rule. — Where it appears that a municipality was authorized to contract with a power company to furnish water services for the benefit of the municipality, but no valid, express contract was entered into between the parties, although the municipality over a period of years received such services for which it was authorized to contract, the municipality is liable for the reasonable value of such services so received for a period of years, next preceding the filing of the suit, not barred by the statute of limitations. In such event, under what is generally known as "the common honesty rule" the law implies a promise to pay for the reasonable value of the services received. City of Eastman v. Georgia Power Co., 69 Ga. App. 182, 25 S.E.2d 47 (1943).

Municipality liability based on new promise to pay old debt. — Where a city and a power company attempted to extend a yearly contract for electrical service over a period of years and neither party repudiated the contract, but the power company furnished the electricity for street lighting purposes and the municipality accepted and used the services, the municipality is liable for the value, the contract price, for each year the current was received and used. The execution and delivery of a warrant covering the value of the amount so used over a period of years, while having some elements of accord and satisfaction, was not the creation of a debt prohibited by this paragraph, but a new promise to pay the same old debt. City of Eastman v. Georgia Power Co., 69 Ga. App. 182, 25 S.E.2d 47 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. D).

Assets or indebtedness due a municipality cannot be deducted from its bonded indebtedness and taken into consideration in computing its total bonded indebtedness under this paragraph limiting such bonded indebtedness to 7 percent of the assessed value of the taxable property within the municipality. Miles v. State, 96 Ga. App. 610, 101 S.E.2d 173 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. D).

Rule governing total bonded indebtedness of school district. — In computing total bonded indebtedness of a school district for determining whether it exceeds the limitation imposed by this paragraph, outstanding bonded indebtedness cannot be reduced by the amount credited against it in a sinking fund for the purpose of redeeming outstanding bonds, but which has not actually been used for that purpose. Miles v. State, 96 Ga. App. 610, 101 S.E.2d 173 (1957).

County-wide school districts as successors to local school districts can incur bonded indebtedness independently. — Upon the merger by the General Assembly of local school districts, in harmony with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. I) into county-wide school districts, the new county-wide district would likewise constitute a separate political entity and could do so as a unit that which its previous component parts could have done separately, and could therefore incur a bonded indebtedness independent of any indebtedness for general authorized county purposes. Pinion v. Walker County Sch. Dist., 203 Ga. 99, 45 S.E.2d 405 (1947).

Consolidated county school district is a separate political division of this state such as is authorized to incur a bonded indebtedness up to 7 percent of the assessed valuation of its taxable property, independent of and in addition to any outstanding bonded indebtedness incurred by any of its component former local school districts prior to their merger into a county-wide school district. Pinion v. Walker County Sch. Dist., 203 Ga. 99, 45 S.E.2d 405 (1947).

Construction of percentage of assessed valuation of taxable property ceiling. — While the Constitution does not specifically say so, yet the frequently applied construction of this provision is that each separate political division of the state which has authority to issue bonds is authorized to incur an indebtedness up to 7 percent (10 percent) of the assessed valuation of its taxable property independently of any existing indebtedness of another district and separate municipality or other political body whose territory might be coextensive in whole or in part with that of its own. Pinion v. Walker County Sch. Dist., 203 Ga. 99, 45 S.E.2d 405 (1947).

County-wide school district in computing amount of indebtedness authorized to incur not required to consider former local districts' ceilings.

— Since it was not contended that county school district incurred the bonded indebtedness of its former local school districts, and in the absence of specific legal statutory or constitutional provision requiring the new county-wide school district to assume payment of any outstanding bonded indebtedness of its former local school districts, it follows that the county school district was not required to take into account any indebtedness of its former local school districts in computing the amount of indebtedness which it was authorized to incur, and as an independent political entity, it could incur indebtedness independent of and in addition to that outstanding in its former local school districts. Pinion v. Walker County Sch.

Dist., 203 Ga. 99, 45 S.E.2d 405 (1947).

Payment to competing company to cease operation not debt. — Georgia Laws 1906, p. 846 did not authorize the board, after it had built and equipped an electric-light and waterworks plant, to pay $15,000.00 to a competing company to “quit operating its electric-light plant in the city.” Brumby v. Board of Lights & Waterworks, 147 Ga. 592, 95 S.E. 7 (1918).

Payment for city street paving not debt. — Under the allegations of the petition as amended, the city did not create a debt in providing for the payment of the cost of paving the streets in violation of this paragraph. City Council v. Thomas, 159 Ga. 435, 126 S.E. 144, 39 A.L.R. 1317 (1924); Faver v. Mayor of Washington, 159 Ga. 568, 126 S.E. 464 (1925). See also Citizens Bank v. Rockdale County, 152 Ga. 711, 111 S.E. 434 (1922) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Lease purchase agreement to finance new courthouse not a debt. — There is no distinction in O.C.G.A. § 36-60-13 between real and personal property and the strictures on leases for each class of property are the same; similarly, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I(a), providing for popular vote on the assumption of debt, makes no distinction between the two classes of property. Therefore, a county’s decision to enter a lease purchase agreement with the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia to finance and construct a new courthouse was not a debt requiring a vote under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I(a) and was in compliance with O.C.G.A. § 36-60-13 because it did not require future county commissioners to renew the contract, it allowed the county to terminate its financial obligations at the end of each calendar year, and it would never require the county to expend more than would be legally available under O.C.G.A. § 36-60-13. Bauerband v. Jackson County, 278 Ga. 222, 598 S.E.2d 444 (2004).

Implied debt not raised upon void contract. — When property is received by a municipality or its commission under a contract which is void and unenforceable, by reason of a violation of this paragraph, the law does not raise an implied undertaking to pay therefor. Board of Lights & Waterworks v. Niller, 155 Ga. 296, 116 S.E. 835 (1923); A.L. Greenburg Iron Co. v. City of Abbeville, 2 F.2d 559 (5th Cir. 1924). Compare Butts County v. Jackson Banking Co., 129 Ga. 801, 60 S.E. 149, 121 Am. St. R. 244, 15 L.R.A. (n.s.) 567 (1907) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Instance of no debt created by expending county funds. — A county may, without being said to create a debt within the meaning of the Constitution, contract for materials, consisting of machinery, for use in the necessary improvement of a public road, to be paid for out of available funds in the hands of the treasurer, or out of the proceeds of taxes that have been or may be lawfully levied during the year in which the contract is made. Neal & Son v. Burch, 173 Ga. 840, 162 S.E. 135 (1931); Marion County v. First Nat’l Bank, 193 Ga. 263, 18 S.E.2d 475 (1942).

Interest accruable on county warrant issued to vendor incidental and not debt. — Where purchase price of machinery for necessary improvement of public roads becomes a liquidated demand, as by issuance of a county warrant drawn on the county treasurer by the county commissioners, payable to the vendor for the purchase price, interest which may thereafter lawfully accrue upon the warrant is incidental, and is not to be counted as part of the debt for which the warrant was issued. Marion County v. First Nat’l Bank, 193 Ga. 263, 18 S.E.2d 475 (1942).

Southwest Georgia Regional Housing Authority was not a county, municipality, or political division within meaning of this paragraph, and, therefore, its obligations would not be debts of a county, municipality, or political division within the purview of that provision. Stegall v. Southwest Ga. Regional Hous. Auth., 197 Ga. 571, 30 S.E.2d 196 (1944) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Municipality not liable for indebtedness contracted pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I and Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36. — Liability against a municipality arising out of and by virtue of any contract made by such municipality with an engineering company, entered into pursuant to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VIII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I) and the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), is not an indebtedness of the municipality which can be paid and satisfied out of the general tax fund or other general funds of the municipality. City of Royston v. Littrell Eng'g Co., 87 Ga. App. 903, 75 S.E.2d 678 (1953).

Municipality not liable under non-existent community improvement district. — Municipality was not liable in a three-party arrangement among itself, a bank, and a land developer for breach of a mere agreement to create a community improvement district where the municipality had never been officially designated by the legislature as its administrative body, and where in any event, no such improvement plan existed. Circle H Dev., Inc. v. City of Woodstock, 206 Ga. App. 473, 425 S.E.2d 891 (1992).

This paragraph was not violated by Ga. L. 1905, p. 100, increasing salary of city judge. Clark v. Eve, 134 Ga. 788, 68 S.E. 598 (1910) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Former Code 1933, Ch. 23-25, authorizing creation of drainage districts, did not violate this paragraph. Almand v. Pate, 143 Ga. 711, 85 S.E. 909 (1915) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Ga. L. 1921, p. 676, extending city limits of Atlanta, did not violate this paragraph. Davidson v. Town of Kirkwood, 152 Ga. 357, 110 S.E. 154 (1921) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Ga. L. 1919, p. 821, authorizing issuance of street improvement bonds, did not violate this paragraph. City of Valdosta v. Harris, 156 Ga. 490, 119 S.E. 625 (1923); Walthour v. City of Atlanta, 157 Ga. 24, 120 S.E. 613 (1925) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Executions for paving assessments valid. — Because under the law the city was authorized to issue executions for paving assessments due and payable in installments upon installments becoming due and unpaid, and was not authorized or required to issue executions to enforce the collection of such installments before they became in default; and the general statutes relating to dormancy of executions not having application until arrival of the time for issuance of executions on such assessments, and the executions in the instant case having been issued and levied, and the injunction suit brought to restrain their enforcement, within seven years from the arrival of the time for the issuance of such executions, they are not dormant, but are of full force and effect. Webb v. City of Atlanta, 186 Ga. 430, 198 S.E. 50 (1938).

Municipality contracting to lease land to corporation provided lessee supply medical and surgical treatment to city's indigents not unconstitutional. — A contract between a municipality and another corporation for a lease, for a term of 35 years, of land owned by the municipality, in consideration of care of the poor of the city by the lessee to the extent of supplying specified medical and surgical treatment in a clinic or hospital existing on such land, is not unlawful as violating any of the provisions of the Constitution. Aven v. Steiner Cancer Hosp., 189 Ga. 126, 5 S.E.2d 356 (1939).

City's multiyear lease purchase contract for equipment did not constitute a "debt" within the meaning of this paragraph and, therefore, did not require voter approval. Barkley v. City of Rome, 259 Ga. 355, 381 S.E.2d 34 (1989) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Property owners not due abatement on street improvement contract accepted by city because of defect in repair. — Where repaving is done on city streets, and the city accepts the repaving, and by reason of a "latent" defect the paving becomes broken and cracked, and the contractor repairs the pavement under the contract guaranteeing the pavement for five years, and the city accepts the pavement as repaired, such acceptance, in the absence of fraud, is binding upon the property owners; and the presence of such defects in the paving will not be cause for abatement of the balance of ground that the property owners have paid all that the repaving is worth. Webb v. City of Atlanta, 186 Ga. 430, 198 S.E. 50 (1938).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

ANALYSIS

 ELECTION REQUIREMENTS
 DEBT INCURMENT

General Consideration

This paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. III (no comparable 1983 provision) constitute entirely separate methods of incurring debt and even though a political subdivision has incurred debts which have reached the limitation of 10 percent imposed by this paragraph, a political subdivision may still utilize the provisions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. III, to incur an additional debt of up to 3 percent of the assessed value of all taxable property located in the political subdivision. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-13 (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. III) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

This paragraph has been construed strictly and taxes cannot be levied to pay any claim for any purpose other than the enumerated purposes. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 632 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Debt limitation provisions fully applicable to school boards. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-160.

Construction of school administration, maintenance, and storage facilities. — Proceeds of general obligation bonds issued under O.C.G.A. §§ 20-2-430 and 20-2-431 may not be used for school administration, maintenance, and storage facilities, but bonds may be issued for such purposes upon compliance by the county school board with the notice and purpose requirements set forth in O.C.G.A. § 36-82-1 et seq. 1998 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 98-12.

"Debt" defined. — Debt, as used in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VII, Sec. III, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. I) and this paragraph, which forms the basis of the restriction upon public debt, means incurring of a fiscal liability not to be discharged by taxes levied within the year in which the liability is undertaken. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-19 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Revenue anticipation obligations are not subject to debt limitation clause in this paragraph. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-54.

Word "casual" means that which happens by accident or is brought about by an unknown cause; the framers of the Constitution, in using this language, meant some unforeseen or unexpected deficiency, or an insufficiency of funds to meet some unforeseen and necessary expense. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 138 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I).

Creation of pension and retirement plans as prior service obligations of cities and counties is constitutional; a prior obligation of a municipality does or does not constitute a "debt" within the debt limitation placed upon municipalities under this paragraph. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 355.

Environmental loans exempt from debt limitations. — Loans made by the Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority to local governments pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I(a), the Intergovernmental Contracts Clause, are not subject to the debt limitations of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-6.

Election Requirements

Chapter 2, T. 21 does not provide for special registration, but rather for general registration from which a list is compiled to vote in special elections; therefore, any person who has registered to vote by the close of the fifth day (excluding Sundays or holidays) after the call of a bond election is entitled to vote in that election. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-73.

Debts cannot be secured for periods exceeding one year. — A county or other political subdivision may not legally incur ordinary indebtedness, secured or unsecured, for periods exceeding one year, without assent of a majority of the qualified voters of the county or other political subdivision voting in an election for that purpose to be held as prescribed by law. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-160.

School bond election called by a county board of education may be held concurrently with the general election. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-9.

Counties and municipalities may incur debts, including bank loans, if approved by a majority of the qualified voters. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-51.

Approval of majority of qualified voters participating in election is required to incur debt, rather than approval of majority of all qualified voters. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 491.

"Special" and "general" registration defined. — The Supreme Court of this state has defined special registration in the following terms: "... A special registration as distinguished from a general registration is one designed for a particular election and which becomes functus officio when the election under which it was held has been had, that is to say, when the registration cannot be used for any other purpose. A general registration is one made up under general rules" 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 217.

Debt Incurment

Contract entered into by a political subdivision of the state for longer than one year creates a "debt" subject to the prohibitions and limitations of this paragraph. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 77-51.

Any contract which obligates a county board of education to make payments for a period of more than one year is prohibited by this paragraph, any statute to the contrary notwithstanding. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-33.

Four year contract created debt. — A city cannot legally enter into a contract with the Superintendent of Schools for a period or term of four years without creating a debt of the municipality in violation of this paragraph; however, a city may enter into a contract with the Superintendent for a period of one year, provided that at the time there is a sufficient sum in the treasury which may be lawfully used to pay the liability incurred, or if a sufficient amount to discharge the liability can be raised by taxation during the current year. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 186.

Single year lease payable from anticipated income not debt. — A lease agreement for a term of a single year involving nothing more than expenditure of income anticipated during the year from taxes and appropriations would not under this paragraph create a "debt." 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-33 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I).

Rental payments grossly in excess of reasonably considered fair rental value indicative of disguised conditional sale. — A lease agreement whereunder a county school board leases school buses for a single year is not on its face illegal because such agreement also gives the school board three one-year renewal options coupled with a purchase option exercisable at the end of the final renewal period; such an agreement might be subject to attack, however, the yearly "rental payments" are so grossly in excess of what reasonably could be considered to be the "fair rental value" of the buses as to lead to a conclusion that the transaction, while disguised as a lease plus purchase option, is essentially a "conditional sale." 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-33.

Extending payment beyond fiscal year. — Area Vocational-Technical School Board may not borrow money to be repaid to lender over period of time extending beyond fiscal year in which loan was made. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-19.

City governing authorities cannot obligate city for equipment in an amount in excess of their annual an-

Anticipated revenue. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 492.

Inclusion of personal property in assessing value of taxable property. — In computing the assessed value of taxable property for the purpose of determining the amount of bonds a municipal corporation may issue, personal property above the $300.00 exemption should be included. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 411.

"The assessed value of all the taxable property therein" refers to net digest of county or other political subdivision and not to gross digest minus personal property exemptions. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-54.

Limitations on total debt. — This paragraph through Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. IV (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V) create limitations on total debt which may be incurred by any county, and no debt may be incurred which exceeds those limitations. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-12 (decided under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Paras. I through IV; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. D).

Loans by Department of Natural Resources and Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority. — Loans by the Department of Natural Resources pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 12-5-38.1 and loans by the Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 50-23-1 et seq. do not cause a city or county to incur debt in accordance with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I. The constitutional underpinning of these programs is in the intergovernmental contract clause, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I(a). Thus, the procedural requirements in O.C.G.A. § 48-8-111 for submitting a debt question are not triggered where proceeds derived from the sales tax are to be applied to repayment of the loans by the Department of Natural Resources or Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-7.

Authority of Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority and city of Atlanta regarding loans. — The Georgia Environmental Facilities Authority is statutorily empowered to make the administrative and policy determinations requiring the city of Atlanta to pledge its full faith and credit as security for a loan from the Authority, there are no constitutional prohibitions upon the city pledging its full faith and credit for such a loan, and a referendum is not required prior to the city making the pledge. 2004 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2004-8.

Paragraph II. Special district debt.

Any county, municipality, or political subdivision of this state may incur debt on behalf of any special district created pursuant to Paragraph VI of Section II of this article. Such debt may be incurred on behalf of such special district where the county, municipality, or other political subdivision shall have, at or before the time of incurring such debt, provided for the assessment and collection of an annual tax within the special district sufficient in amount to pay the principal of and interest on such debt within 30 years from the incurrence thereof; and no such county, municipality, or other political subdivision shall incur any debt on behalf of such special district without the assent of a majority of the qualified voters of such special district voting in an election held for that purpose as provided by law. No such county, municipality, or other political subdivision shall incur any debt on behalf of such special district in an amount which, when taken together with all other debt outstanding incurred by such county, municipality, or political subdivision and on behalf of any such special district, exceeds 10 percent of the assessed value of all taxable property within such county, municipality, or political subdivision. The proceeds of the tax collected as provided herein shall be placed in a sinking fund to be held on behalf of such special district and used exclusively to pay off the principal of and interest on such debt thereafter maturing. Such moneys shall be held and kept separate and apart from all other “Stadium Funding Agreement” for construction of a domed facility, entered into by a city, a county, and a stadium authority, was authorized by the intergovernmental contracts clause of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I, and therefore did not violate the special district debt clause of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. II. Youngblood v. State, 259 Ga. 864, 388 S.E.2d 671 (1990).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Paragraph III. Refunding of outstanding indebtedness.

The governing authority of any county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state may provide for the refunding of outstanding bonded indebtedness without the necessity of a referendum being held therefor, provided that neither the term of the original debt is extended nor the interest rate of the original debt is increased. The principal amount of any debt issued in connection with such refunding may exceed the principal amount being refunded in order to reduce the total principal and interest payment requirements over the remaining term of the original issue. The proceeds of the refunding issue shall be used solely to retire the original debt. The original debt refunded shall not constitute debt within the meaning of Paragraph I of this section; but the refunding issue shall constitute a debt such as will count against the limitation on debt measured by 10 percent of assessed value of taxable property as expressed in Paragraph I of this section.

1976 Constitution. — Art. IX, Sec. VIII, Paras. III, IV.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Intent. — The intention of the framers of the Constitution was that this paragraph should apply to those instances where the bonds are subject to call, or where the bondholders are willing to surrender these outstanding obligations. 1945-47 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 519 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VII, Sec. VII, Para. VI; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. III).

With reference to issuing of refunding bonds to pay outstanding bond issues of cities and counties, this paragraph may not be construed to require surrender of outstanding issues which are not subject to call. 1945-47 Op. Att’y Gen. p. 519 (decided under Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VII, Sec. VII, Para. VI; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. III).

Use of bond proceeds and savings generated by bond refundings. — The Georgia Constitution and Georgia statutes do not provide any latitude to use bond proceeds for additional capital expenditures whether or not they are spent on projects which may have been approved by the voters at the time of the original bond referendum. Accordingly, all proceeds generated at closing of the refunding issue should be spent on costs of the refunding or used to pay principal, interest, and premiums on the refunded debt. Furthermore, a new tax levy appropriately sized to retire the new refunding bonds should be provided for prior to issuance of the refunding bonds. If any excess proceeds result from the new tax levy, such excess proceeds shall not be available for transfer to capital projects until all refunding bonds are repaid. 1994 Op. Att’y Gen. No. 94-8.

Paragraph IV. Exceptions to debt limitations.

Notwithstanding the debt limitations provided in Paragraph I of this section and without the necessity for a referendum being held therefor, the governing authority of any county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state may, subject to the conditions and limitations as may be provided by general law:

(1) Accept and use funds granted by and obtain loans from the federal government or any agency thereof pursuant to conditions imposed by federal law.

(2) Incur debt, by way of borrowing from any person, corporation, or association as well as from the state, to pay in whole or in part the cost of property valuation and equalization programs for ad valorem tax purposes.

Municipality not liable for indebtedness contracted pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. each year to pay expenses. The aggregate amount of all such loans shall not exceed 75 percent of the total gross income from taxes collected in the last preceding year. Such loans shall be payable on or before December 31 of the calendar year in which such loan is made. No such loan may be obtained when there is a loan then unpaid obtained in any prior year. No such county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state shall incur in any one calendar year an aggregate of such temporary loans or other contracts, notes, warrants, or obligations for current expenses in excess of the total anticipated revenue for such calendar year.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

This paragraph has reference to temporary loans and such indebtedness does not include bonded indebtedness, as this paragraph provides only for temporary loans and states that all of such loans shall not exceed 75 percentum of the total gross income of such county. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 641 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Under this paragraph, counties do have authority to negotiate temporary loans in order to defray current county expenses. — There are, of course, conditions and limitations placed on such loans; this power to borrow money for county purposes may be exercised by county commissioners. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 69 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Gasoline tax allocation not included in gross income. — In view of the fact that this paragraph provides that the amount of temporary loans may not exceed 75 percent of the total gross income of the county from taxes collected by such county, the last preceding year, the gasoline tax allocation should not be included in the gross income, as these taxes are collected by the state and not by the county as required by this paragraph, to arrive at the maximum amount of temporary loans that may be procured. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 641 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Debt cannot exceed one year without voter approval. — A county or other political subdivision may not legally incur ordinary indebtedness, secured or unsecured, for periods exceeding one year, without assent of a majority of the qualified voters of the county or other political subdivision voting in an election for that purpose to be held as prescribed by law. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-160.

Payment of insurance premiums with county funds. — Use by county of public funds for payment of group life and hospitalization insurance premiums of its employees violates this paragraph and Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VIII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I). 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-25 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Debt limitation provisions fully applicable to school boards. See 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-160.

Contractual employment term limited. — Georgia Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. VI, Para. I), Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. IV, Para. I), and this paragraph impliedly limit term of contractual employment of employees by county boards of education to one school year. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 79 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

This paragraph indirectly affects county boards of education. — Inasmuch as a county board of education is not authorized to levy taxes, this paragraph does not apply to such boards, but this paragraph does apply to counties, and when a county makes a temporary loan for educational purposes this paragraph must be complied with, and therefore, it might be said that this paragraph indirectly affects the county boards of education. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 113 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

State funds as collateral for a loan. — This constitutional limitation on amount which a county board may borrow applies to loans for which state funds are pledged as collateral, and therefore, a county board may not exceed the constitutional limitation when pledging anticipated state funds as collateral for a loan. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 107.

This paragraph limiting amounts county boards may borrow is still in effect. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 105 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Former Code 1933, § 32-921 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-390) was controlled by provisions of this paragraph, restricting amount of debt which may be incurred by a county board of education. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 97 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Referendum required. — A referendum is required before a school board may borrow money for a term longer than 12 calendar months where the loan is to be repaid from expected sales tax for educational purposes. A school board may, without such referendum, borrow money for a term of one calendar year or less, if certain legal requirements are met. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 97-30.

Loans limited to total anticipated revenue. — This provision expressly limits aggregate of all temporary loans “and other contracts or obligations for current expenses” to total anticipated revenue of county board of education for the calendar year, and would indicate all contractual obligations of the county board of education such as teacher contracts, etc.; it has reference to revenue from all sources including state funds. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 97 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Anticipated revenues cannot include grants from state. — The provision in this paragraph that the aggregate amount of all temporary loans of a county board of education outstanding at any one time shall not exceed 75 percent of the total gross income of such county board of education from taxes collected by such county means “local county taxes”; it cannot include anticipated revenues from the State Board of Education, which money is merely a grant from the state. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 97 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Borrowing by local school system for school construction projects of less than $200,000.00 legally permissible. — When allotted funds from the State Board of Education for school construction result in construction projects of less than $200,000.00, the Georgia Education Authority (Schools) does not directly supervise construction but requires the local school system to construct the project itself and then be reimbursed by the authority; this procedure often makes it necessary for the local school system to borrow a substantial part of the construction costs for a period of nine months to a year; such borrowing is within the legal power of local school systems. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-18.

Rental payments grossly in excess of reasonably considered fair rental value indicative of disguised conditional sale. — A lease agreement

Art. 9, § 5, ¶ 5 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 5, ¶ 6

whereunder a county school board leases school buses for a single year is not on its face illegal merely because such agreement also gives the school board three one-year renewal options coupled with a purchase option exercisable at the end of the final renewal period; such an agreement might be subject to attack, however, if the yearly "rental payments" are so grossly in excess of what reasonably could be considered to be the "fair rental value" of the buses as to lead to a conclusion that the transaction, while disguised as a lease plus purchase option, is essentially a "conditional sale." 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-33.

County hospital authority not subject to this paragraph. — A county hospital authority is neither a county, municipality, political subdivision of the state authorized to levy taxes, or county board of education so as to come within the provisions of this paragraph. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-9 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Tax anticipation notes improper collateral for state deposits. — Tax anticipation notes used to cover temporary loans for expenses to Georgia's cities and counties during the current year would not be proper collateral for state deposits since tax anticipation notes were not included in former Code 1933, § 100-108 (see now O.C.G.A. § 50-17-59) as proper collateral. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-3.

Homestead realty exception from declared exemption and taxable to pay interest and retire bonded indebtedness. — The language "except to pay interest on and retire bonded indebtedness" as used in this paragraph considered within the context of the provisions of the Constitution exempting homesteads from taxation should be construed as granting an exception from the declared exemption and that the realty classified as a homestead would be subject to taxation to pay interest on and retire bonded indebtedness created after the ratification of the 1945 Constitution. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 560 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Revenues received under Joint County and Municipal Sales and Use Tax Act (O.C.G.A. § 48-8-80 et seq.) may be included as part of the "total gross income from taxes collected in the last preceding year" for purposes of this Paragraph. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-19 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. V).

Any county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state shall at or before the time of incurring bonded indebtedness provide for the assessment and collection of an annual tax sufficient in amount to pay the principal and interest of said debt within 30 years from the incurring of such bonded indebtedness. The proceeds of this tax, together with any other moneys collected for this purpose, shall be placed in a sinking fund to be used exclusively for paying the principal of and interest on such bonded debt. Such moneys shall be held and kept separate and apart from all other revenues collected and may be invested and reinvested as provided by law.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Assessment precedes bond issuance; but this must be done before issuance of the bonds. Oliver v. City of Elberton, 124 Ga. 64, 52 S.E. 15 (1905).

Both principal and interest must be provided for. Smith v. Mayor of Dublin, 113 Ga. 833, 39 S.E. 327 (1910).

This paragraph is a check on extravagance. Sheffield v. Chancy, 138 Ga. 677, 75 S.E. 1112 (1912) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. VI).

Interest not collectible until all bonds sold. — An annual tax may be levied, though all of the bonds are not sold, but interest on such bonds should not be collected. Mitchell County v. Phillips, 152 Ga. 787, 111 S.E. 374 (1922); Jones v. Coleman, 152 Ga. 795, 111 S.E. 377 (1922).

Where an ordinance complies with this paragraph, it is not void because provision is made for payment from other sources. Epping v. City of Columbus, 117 Ga. 263, 43 S.E. 803 (1903), overruled on other grounds, Harrell v. Town of Whigham, 141 Ga. 322, 80 S.E. 1010 (1914). See also Sewell v. City of Tallapoosa, 145 Ga. 19, 88 S.E. 577 (1916) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. VI).

Omission of the word “annual” in the ordinance is immaterial. Thomas v. City of Blakely, 141 Ga. 488, 81 S.E. 218 (1914).

Paragraph not violated by drainage law, former Code 1933, Ch. 23-25, which authorizes assessments against property specially benefited by the improvement, and after such assessments to issue bonds payable only from the proceeds of such assessments, does not violate this paragraph. Almand v. Pate, 143 Ga. 711, 85 S.E. 909 (1915) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. VI).

Installment bonds. — Nothing in this paragraph is inconsistent with the authorization of an issue of bonds in installments and the levy of the tax for the payment of each installment in the year of its issue. Brady v. City of Atlanta, 17 F.2d 764 (5th Cir. 1927) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. VI).

Presumption not valid. — It cannot be presumed that in issuance of bonds in this case provision for payment of the indebtedness had not been made before the addition of the territory embraced in the specified district. That question was concluded by the judgment of validation. Towns v. Workmore Pub. Sch. Dist., 166 Ga. 393, 142 S.E. 877 (1928).

Proceeds from sale of bonded properties need not be applied to redemption of specific securities. — The fact that the light plant and the city hall were built with the proceeds of bonds sold by the city does not require that the proceeds of the sales of these properties should be applied to the redemption of these securities, these properties being in no way pledged by the city to the payment of these bonds, and the Constitution of this state requiring that the city should, at or before the time of issuing said bonds, provide for the assessment and collection of an annual tax sufficient in amount to pay the principal and interest of any bonded indebtedness within 30 years from the date of the incurring of the debt. Mathews v. Darby, 165 Ga. 509, 141 S.E. 304 (1928).

Municipality not liable for indebtedness. — Liability against a municipality arising out of and by virtue of any contract made by such municipality with an engineering company, entered into pursuant to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VIII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I), and the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), is not an indebtedness of the municipality which can be paid and satisfied out of the general tax fund or other general funds of said municipality. City of Royston v. Littrell Eng'g Co., 87 Ga. App. 903, 75 S.E.2d 678 (1953).

Debts under Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36 not debts of political subdivision. — Revenue anticipation certificates issued under the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36) do not subject the political subdivision of this state issuing the certificates to any pecuniary liability thereon and are therefore not debts against such political subdivision within meaning of the constitutional provision limiting such indebtedness. Fort Oglethorpe v. Catoosa County, 80 Ga. App. 188, 55 S.E.2d 753 (1949).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Effect of construing this paragraph and § 20-2-438 together. — Construing this paragraph and former Code 1933, § 32-1402 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-438) together, it was the intention of the people in the adoption of the Constitution, and the General Assembly in the adoption of legislation, to provide that funds raised by taxation to pay the principal and interest on bonds should be set aside by the officials of the political division and kept separate from other funds to be used for the sole purpose of paying the indebtedness and none other until the debts against the bond had been fully liquidated, but the Constitution or statutes did not contemplate that after the payment of the debts against such specific fund that the fund could not be legally used for other legitimate purposes for which the authorities could levy a tax. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 163.

Different uses of tax surplus depends on tax designation. — Where tax is expressly designated as being for retirement of a particular bond issue, any surplus in the sinking fund for that issue may be transferred to the general accounts when the principal and interest of that issue have been fully paid; where, however, a tax is for retirement of multiple issues and put in a joint sinking fund for such multiple issues, it can only be transferred to the general account when all of the issues have been paid off in full. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-447.

Funds raised by bond tax levy may not be used to pay exchange or agent's expenses for handling collections of bonds. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 165.

Upon retirement of school bonds, surplus remaining in debt retirement account becomes a part of the general school fund and is properly transferred to the general fund account. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-116.

REVENUE BONDS

Paragraph

I. Revenue bonds; general limitations.

II. Revenue bonds; special limitations.

Paragraph

III. Development authorities.

IV. Validation.

V. Validity of prior revenue bond issues.

Paragraph I. Revenue bonds; general limitations.

Any county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state may issue revenue bonds as provided by general law. The obligation represented by revenue bonds shall be repayable only out of the revenue derived from the project and shall not be deemed to be a debt of the issuing political subdivision. No such issuing political subdivision shall exercise the power of taxation for the purpose of paying any part of the principal or interest of any such revenue bonds.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Revenue Certificate Law and Constitution part of every municipality’s charter. — When the Revenue Certificate Law of 1937, the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), and the Constitution of 1945 were adopted, provisions of each as to revenue certificates became a part of the charter of every municipality of this state. Lipscomb v. Cumming, 211 Ga. 55, 84 S.E.2d 3 (1954); Carter v. State, 93 Ga. App. 12, 90 S.E.2d 672 (1955).

Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36. — Any Acts of General Assembly tending to restrict power of a municipality to exercise rights granted under the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), are inoperative. Carter v. State, 93 Ga. App. 12, 90 S.E.2d 672 (1955).

This paragraph authorizes grant of broad powers to municipalities as are contained in the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), and by that courts are bound and have nothing to do with the reasonableness, wisdom, policy, or expediency of the law. Lipscomb v. Cumming, 211 Ga. 55, 84 S.E.2d 3 (1954) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Electric utilities can be regulated. — But neither alone, nor construed in conjunction with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. IX (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. V), does this provision prohibit General Assembly from regulating municipally owned or operated electric utilities. City of Calhoun v. North Ga. Elec. Membership Corp., 233 Ga. 759, 213 S.E.2d 596 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Local amendments. — A local amendment to Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II of the 1945 Georgia Constitution, authorizing a county to levy a tax for water and sewerage purposes, was valid despite any conflict with the general bond provision. Copeland v. State, 268 Ga. 375, 490 S.E.2d 68 (1997).

Local legislation no hindrance to municipality proceeding under Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36, and Constitution. — The General Assembly intended that every municipality in the state should have exactly the same power to do all of the acts authorized by the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), as adopted by this paragraph, and the constitutional provisions being a part of the charter of a municipality it necessarily follows that it has authority to proceed thereunder regardless of other and alternate, or even contradictory, plans which might have been contained in local legislation. Carter v. State, 93 Ga. App. 12, 90 S.E.2d 672 (1955) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Municipality not liable for indebtedness. — Liability against a municipality arising out of and by virtue of any contract made by such municipality with an engineering company, entered into pursuant to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VIII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I) and the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), is not an indebtedness of the municipality which can be paid and satisfied out of the general tax fund or other general funds of said municipality. City of Royston v. Littrell Eng’g Co., 87 Ga. App. 903, 75 S.E.2d 678 (1953).

This paragraph enumerates projects or facilities which may be financed with funds derived from issuance and sale of revenue bonds. Smith

v. Hayes, 217 Ga. 94, 121 S.E.2d 113 (1961) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Combining sewer and water systems. — This paragraph confers upon municipalities express constitutional authority to combine sewer and waterworks systems for purpose of operating the two as one. Reed v. City of Smyrna, 201 Ga. 228, 39 S.E.2d 668 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Petition which sought to enjoin city from constructing a water line and furnishing water to customers because they were located outside the corporate limits of the city failed to state a cause of action. Lipscomb v. Cumming, 211 Ga. 55, 84 S.E.2d 3 (1954).

Disproportionate rates between resident and nonresident users not violative of federal and state Constitutions equal protection clause. — Where the city has the right under its charter to furnish water to resident and nonresident users, and to classify rates for such service, an ordinance, increasing rates and fixing rates for nonresident users higher than for resident users, is not violative of the due process and equal protection clauses of the federal and state Constitutions. Messenheimer v. Windt, 211 Ga. 575, 87 S.E.2d 402 (1955).

Nonresident users of city supplied water without standing. — Nonresident users of water supplied by a city are not in a position to challenge the validity of amendments to the charter of the city and an amendment to the Constitution of Georgia, authorizing the city to appropriate its surplus water funds to the support of its municipal hospital. Messenheimer v. Windt, 211 Ga. 575, 87 S.E.2d 402 (1955).

Procedure to extend existing system of municipal improvements. — Under the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), and the constitutional sanction of this paragraph, revenue anticipation certificates may be issued by a municipality to extend an existing system of municipal improvements by pledging the entire revenue of the whole system to the payment thereof, subject to rights of holders of prior issues, without prorating the values of the existing and the new facilities and pledging only the revenue of such new facilities according to their proportion to the total value. Carter v. State, 93 Ga. App. 12, 90 S.E.2d 672 (1955) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Revenue anticipation certificates validly issued. — Where it appeared that revenue anticipation certificates were to be issued by the town for improvement of water works under the authority and in accordance with the method prescribed by the Constitution and the laws incorporated therein by reference thereto, the proposed issuance of revenue anticipation certificates, the proceeding for validation, and judgment of validation were not contrary to any of the provisions of the Constitution cited in the intervention. Thigpen v. Town of Davisboro, 81 Ga. App. 610, 59 S.E.2d 522 (1950).

This paragraph applies to counties, municipalities, or other political subdivisions of the state, and not to the state or state authorities. Daughtrey v. State, 226 Ga. 758, 177 S.E.2d 670 (1970) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

State authorities, lawfully created, are not subject to restrictions of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I), and this paragraph. Thompson v. Municipal Elec. Auth., 238 Ga. 19, 231 S.E.2d 720 (1976) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Application of paragraph's limitation for purposes for issuance revenue certificates. — This paragraph limiting the purposes for which revenue certificates may be issued to those specifically authorized by the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), applies only to counties, municipalities, or other political subdivisions of the state, and not to the state or state authority such as here involved, or the state school building (now Georgia Education Authority (Schools)), bridge building (now Georgia Highway Authority), toll bridge (now State Tollway Authority), rural roads (Georgia Highway Authority), or hospital authorities. Sigman v. Brunswick Port Auth., 214 Ga. 332, 104 S.E.2d 467 (1958) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Effect of Ga. L. 1939, pp. 362 and 365 on municipalities use of revenue from existing and improved facilities.

— Georgia Laws 1939, pp. 362 and 365 set up a method whereby revenues from existing facilities could be eliminated, but instead of the provisions of Ga. L. 1939 being mandatory, it provided that it shall not be construed to restrict or limit the powers granted in paragraph (a)(5) of Ga. L. 1939, p. 362, § 2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-82-62). It is clear from this that if a municipality desires, it may still pledge the entire revenue of existing facilities, along with the revenues from improvements made thereon with funds secured by the issuance of revenue anticipation certificates, to the payment of these certificates and the interest thereon, or it may value the existing facilities, and by following the formula provided in Ga. L. 1939 eliminate from the revenue pledged for payment of the certificates that revenue derived from existing facilities on which improvements, etc., were made; and by express terms of this paragraph, the acts of a municipality under the above provisions of law are authorized and contravene no provisions of the Constitution. Dade County v. State, 77 Ga. App. 139, 48 S.E.2d 144 (1948) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

County not authorized to issue revenue certificates for acquisition or construction of general storage warehouses. — Under the restrictive provisions of this paragraph in the Constitution of 1945, that governmental subdivisions of the state shall issue revenue anticipation certificates only to provide funds for such facilities and undertakings as are “specifically authorized and enumerated” by the Acts of the General Assembly there referred to, a county is not authorized to issue such revenue certificates for the acquisition or construction and equipping of warehouses to be used in the conduct of a general storage warehouse business, which is ordinarily carried on by private enterprise, such an undertaking not being properly included within the definition of the word “terminal” as used in the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art.

3, Ch. 82, T. 36), and not being “specifically authorized and enumerated” therein. Beazley v. De Kalb County, 210 Ga. 41, 77 S.E.2d 740 (1953) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

County Building Authority Act a general law. — The County Building Authority Act, Ga. L. 1980, p. 4488, being applicable to all counties having a population of 550,000 or more according to the 1970 or any future U.S. census (and thereby being applicable only to Fulton County at the present time), was not a special law or population bill and was not unconstitutional under either the 1976 or 1983 Constitutions (see Ga. Const., 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV); therefore, the Fulton County Building Authority was authorized to issue bonds to finance the acquisition and construction of mental retardation training centers and to finance studies, services, and reports incidental to preparing plans for a county office building, because such projects were within the scope of the Act, which was a “general law,” as referred to in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I. Building Auth. v. State, 253 Ga. 242, 321 S.E.2d 97 (1984).

Development authority not required to own or operate project to issue bonds. — Proposed bond transaction did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 36-82-66 of the Revenue Bond Law merely because the development authority would not own or operate the proposed stadium; the development authority could use bond proceeds for paying all or part of the cost of any project (O.C.G.A. § 36-62-6(a)(13)), not only those projects the authority developed, and the authority could pay the costs of another government entity’s project pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 36-62-9. *Cottrell v. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL Revenue anticipation obligations are not subject to the debt limitation clause in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I). 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-54.

Payment of insurance premiums with state funds. — Use by a county of public funds for payment of group life and hospitalization insurance premiums of its employees violates Ga. Const. 1976, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. V, Para. I) and this paragraph. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-25 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Principal on revenue anticipation bonds may not be paid out of a county's general revenues or with revenue sharing funds. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-98.

Paying operating expenses for county water system. — A county water system can, if proper ordinances are in effect, be operated using general revenues of the county and, at least in part, the operating expenses may be paid with federal revenue sharing funds. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-98.

Two distinct and separate conditions must exist before utility property owned by a municipality is taxable: first, the municipality must purchase, construct or operate the gas utility plant from the proceeds of revenue certificates; second, the municipality must extend its services beyond limits of county in which municipality is located; it is immaterial that gas lines outside county may have been constructed from funds other than proceeds of the revenue certificates provided the gas utility plant was constructed with proceeds from such certificates. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-46.

Mandatory use of funds for revenue-producing facility. — While an "undertaking" is said to include buildings constructed for educational purposes under paragraph (4) of Ga. L. 1953, Jan.-Feb. sess., p. 489 (see now O.C.G.A. § 36-82-61), both this paragraph and Georgia law require that the funds must be for a revenue-producing facility and that the obligations be paid only from revenue produced by this revenue-producing facility. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 222 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Publicly owned utilities subject to paragraph's regulations as would private utilities. — The manifest purpose of the language "as are privately owned and operated utilities" in this paragraph is that if private gas and electric utilities are ever subjected to regulation, publicly owned utilities operated under the prescribed conditions, shall likewise be subject to regulation in the same manner. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 500 (decided under former Code 1933, § 2-6005; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Art. 2, Ch. 4, T. 46. — Since Ga. L. 1956, p. 104 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 4, T. 46) requires gas utilities to obtain certificates of public convenience and necessity, and since this paragraph classifies publicly owned systems in foreign counties for regulatory purposes as privately owned and operated utilities, it follows that such publicly owned gas systems are subject to Ga. L. 1956, p. 104 with respect to all extensions beyond the limits of their home county and which are financed by revenue certificates. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 500 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

If a city is located within a county, its gas facility located in the county is not subject to ad valorem taxation by the county. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-191.

Legislature not empowered to authorize municipal corporation to engage in ordinarily private enterprise. — In the absence of special circumstances, it is not within the constitutional power of a legislature to authorize a municipal corporation (county) to engage in a business which can be and ordinarily is carried on by private enterprise for purpose of obtaining an income or deriving a profit therefrom, but it should be allowed to go into business only on theory that thereby the public welfare will be subserved. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-176.

County has no right, in the absence of special or local legislation granting such right, to operate an ambulance service. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-176.

Paragraph not self-executing. — This provision authorizing municipalities to issue revenue certificates to buy, construct, extend, operate, and maintain gas and electric generating and distribution systems is not self-executing. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 416 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. I).

Where revenue bonds are issued by any county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state in order to buy, construct, extend, operate, or maintain gas or electric generating or distribution systems and necessary appurtenances thereof and the gas or electric generating or distribution system extends beyond the limits of the county in which the municipality or other political subdivision is located, then its services rendered and property located outside said county shall be subject to taxation and regulation in the same manner as are privately owned and operated utilities.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Legislature can regulate utilities. — Neither alone, nor construed in conjunction with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. III, Sec. VIII, Para. IX (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. V), does this provision prohibit the General Assembly from regulating municipally owned or operated electric utilities. City of Calhoun v. North Ga. Elec. Membership Corp., 233 Ga. 759, 213 S.E.2d 596 (1975) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. II).

Applicability where revenue bonds issued prior to ratification of 1983 Constitution. — This Paragraph applied to a municipality's ownership interests in power plants and other facilities that were located outside of the surrounding county, even though the revenue bonds used to purchase the facilities were issued before the ratification of the 1983 Constitution. Collins v. City of Dalton ex rel. Bd. of Water, Light & Sinking Fund Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 584, 408 S.E.2d 106 (1991) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. II).

Disproportionate rates between resident and nonresident water users constitutional. — Where the city has the right under its charter to furnish water to resident and nonresident users, and to classify rates for such service, an ordinance, increasing rates and fixing rates for nonresident users higher than for resident users, is not violative of the due process and equal protection clauses of the federal and state Constitutions. Messenheimer v. Windt, 211 Ga. 575, 87 S.E.2d 402 (1955).

Nonresident users of city supplied water without standing. — Nonresident users of water supplied by a city are not in a position to challenge the validity of amendments to the charter of the city and an amendment to the Constitution of Georgia, authorizing the city to appropriate its surplus water funds to the support of its municipal hospital. Messenheimer v. Windt, 211 Ga. 575, 87 S.E.2d 402 (1955).

Procedure to extend existing system of municipal improvements. — Under the Revenue Bond Law, Ga. L. 1937, p. 761 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 3, Ch. 82, T. 36), and the constitutional sanction of this paragraph, revenue anticipation certificates may be issued by a municipality to extend an existing system of municipal improvements by pledging the entire revenue of the whole system to the payment thereof, subject to rights of holders of prior issues, without prorating the values of the existing and the new facilities and pledging only the revenue of such new facilities according to their proportion to the total value. Carter v. State, 93 Ga. App. 12, 90 S.E.2d 672 (1955) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. II).

Art. 2, Ch. 4, T. 46. — Since Ga. L. 1956, p. 104 (see now O.C.G.A. Art. 2, Ch. 4, T. 46) requires gas utilities to obtain certificates of public convenience and necessity, and since this paragraph classifies publicly owned systems in foreign counties for regulatory purposes as privately owned and operated utilities, it follows that such publicly owned gas systems are subject to Ga. If a city is located within a county, its gas facility located in the county is not subject to ad valorem taxation by the county. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-191.

Jurisdiction of Public Service Commission. — The Public Service Commission maintains its jurisdiction over the services and property of that portion of a municipally-owned, revenue bond-financed natural gas distribution system which has been extended beyond the boundaries of the county in which the municipality is located even if the revenue bonds have been paid off by the municipality. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 85-39.

The Public Service Commission has no jurisdiction over the services and property of a natural gas distribution system owned and operated by and within a municipality. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 85-39.

The Public Service Commission has no jurisdiction over master-metered customers so long as the activities of said customers do not constitute furnishing service to the public. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 85-39.

Paragraph III. Development authorities.

The development of trade, commerce, industry, and employment opportunities being a public purpose vital to the welfare of the people of this state, the General Assembly may create development authorities to promote and further such purposes or may authorize the creation of such an authority by any county or municipality or combination thereof under such uniform terms and conditions as it may deem necessary. The General Assembly may exempt from taxation development authority obligations, properties, activities, or income and may authorize the issuance of revenue bonds by such authorities which shall not constitute an indebtedness of the state within the meaning of Section V of this article.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Health care need not be listed in the Constitution as a public purpose on its own for nursing homes to be a proper project under the development authorities law. Development Auth. v. Beverly Enters., 247 Ga. 64, 274 S.E.2d 324 (1981).

Subparagraph (6)(K) of O.C.G.A. § 36-62-2 is not contrary on its face to this paragraph. Development Auth. v. Beverly Enters., 247 Ga. 64, 274 S.E.2d 324 (1981) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Downtown Development Authorities Law, O.C.G.A. Ch. 42, T. 36, is solely based upon this paragraph and not Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. III, Para. I concerning intergovernmental contracts. Odom v. Union City Downtown Dev. Auth., 251 Ga. 248, 305 S.E.2d 110 (1983) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VI, Para. III).

Unconstitutional to finance street and building improvements based upon statute. — A municipality's attempt to use the Downtown Development Authorities Law, O.C.G.A. Ch. 42, T. 36, to finance street improvements and construction and refurbishing of governmental buildings is unconstitutional. Odom v. Union City Downtown Dev. Auth., 251 Ga. 248, 305 S.E.2d 110 (1983).

Unconstitutional to develop golf course. — A golf course proposed to be constructed by a development authority violated both this paragraph and the Development Authority Law, O.C.G.A. Ch. 42, T. 36, because it was neither a sports facility nor for the public purpose of developing trade, commerce, and industry. *Haney v. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Action not barred as collateral attack. — Taxpayer’s petition seeking a declaration that the valuation method a county board of assessors and the development authority of the county used for leasehold estates arising from a local development authority sale-leaseback bond transaction was illegal was not barred for being a collateral attack on concluded bond validation proceedings because the challenge to the memoranda of agreement that set forth the tax assessment formula at issue would only constitute a prohibited collateral attack on a concluded bond validation proceeding if the memoranda were specifically adjudicated in the proceedings and held valid by the bond judgment, and the board and authority had to put forth evidence that the applicable bond validation orders did in fact expressly rule upon each memorandum of agreement; even if the taxpayer was barred from challenging the tax agreements on concluded bond transactions, the taxpayer also sought an injunction to prohibit the use of the formula in future bond agreements. Sherman v. Fulton County Bd. of Assessors, 288 Ga. 88, 701 S.E.2d 472 (2010).

Use of local school taxes for redevelopment. — School system, development authority, and others were properly granted summary judgment in a suit challenging the allocation of school taxes because the 2008 amendments to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. VII(b) and O.C.G.A. § 36-44-9(g), governing tax allocation districts, changed the law and retroactively allowed use of local school taxes for general redevelopment purposes. *Sherman v. COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT DISTRICTS

- V. Cooperation with local governments.
- VI. Regulation by general law.

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1984, p. 1703, § 1) which added this Section was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 6, 1984.

Paragraph I. Creation.

The General Assembly may by local law create one or more community improvement districts for any county or municipality or provide for the creation of one or more community improvement districts by any county or municipality. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 7, Para. I, approved by Ga. L. 1984, p. 1703, § 1/HR 733.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Unauthorized community improvement district invalid. — An agreement of a municipality, by itself, to create a community improvement district was, like an agreement to incur debt without a voter referendum, ultra vires, because under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VII, only the legislature may create such a district unless it delegates that power specifically to a local governing body. Circle H Dev., Inc. v. City of Woodstock, 206 Ga. App. 473, 425 S.E.2d 891 (1992).

Relationship to other sources of law. — Nothing in Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. VII, Para. I indicates that its provisions are exclusive or that its purpose is to limit the Home Rule section of the Georgia Constitution, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. III. McLeod v. Columbia County, 278 Ga. 242, 599 S.E.2d 152 (2004).

Paragraph II. Purposes.

The purpose of a community improvement district shall be the provision of any one or more of the following governmental services and facilities:

(1) Street and road construction and maintenance, including curbs, sidewalks, street lights, and devices to control the flow of traffic on streets and roads.

(2) Parks and recreational areas and facilities.

(3) Storm water and sewage collection and disposal systems.

(4) Development, storage, treatment, purification, and distribution of water.

(5) Public transportation.

(6) Terminal and dock facilities and parking facilities.

(7) Such other services and facilities as may be provided for by general law. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 7, Para. 2, approved by Ga. L. 1984, p. 1703, § 1/HR 733.)

Paragraph III. Administration.

(a) Any law creating or providing for the creation of a community improvement district shall designate the governing authority of the municipality or county for which the community improvement district is created as the administrative body or otherwise shall provide for the establishment and membership of an administrative body for the community improvement district. Any such law creating or providing for the creation of an administrative body for the community improvement district other than the municipal or county governing authority shall provide for representation of the governing authority of each county and municipality within which the community improvement district is wholly or partially located on the administrative body of the community improvement district.

(b) Any law creating or providing for the creation of a community improvement district shall provide that the creation of the community improvement district shall be conditioned upon:

(1) The adoption of a resolution consenting to the creation of the community improvement district by:

(A) The governing authority of the county if the community improvement district is located wholly within the unincorporated area of a county;

(B) The governing authority of the municipality if the community improvement district is located wholly within the incorporated area of a municipality; or

(C) The governing authorities of the county and the municipality if the community improvement district is located partially within

Art. 9, § 7, ¶ 3 COUNTIES AND MUNICIPALITIES Art. 9, § 7, ¶ 3

the unincorporated area of a county and partially within the incorporated area of a municipality; and

(2) Written consent to the creation of the community improvement district by:

(A) A majority of the owners of real property within the community improvement district which will be subject to taxes, fees, and assessments levied by the administrative body of the community improvement district; and

(B) The owners of real property within the community improvement district which constitutes at least 75 percent by value of all real property within the community improvement district which will be subject to taxes, fees, and assessments levied by the administrative body of the community improvement district; and for this purpose value shall be determined by the most recent approved county ad valorem tax digest.

(c) The administrative body of each community improvement district may be authorized to levy taxes, fees, and assessments within the community improvement district only on real property used nonresidentially, specifically excluding all property used for residential, agricultural, or forestry purposes and specifically excluding tangible personal property and intangible property. Any tax, fee, or assessment so levied shall not exceed 2 1/2 percent of the assessed value of the real property or such lower limit as may be established by law. The law creating or providing for the creation of a community improvement district shall provide that taxes, fees, and assessments levied by the administrative body of the community improvement district shall be equitably apportioned among the properties subject to such taxes, fees, and assessments according to the need for governmental services and facilities created by the degree of density of development of each such property. The law creating or providing for the creation of a community improvement district shall provide that the proceeds of taxes, fees, and assessments levied by the administrative body of the community improvement district shall be used only for the purpose of providing governmental services and facilities which are specially required by the degree of density of development within the community improvement district and not for the purpose of providing those governmental services and facilities provided to the county or municipality as a whole. Any tax, fee, or assessment so levied shall be collected by the county or municipality for which the community improvement district is created in the same manner as taxes, fees, and assessments levied by such county or municipality. The proceeds of taxes, fees, and assessments so levied, less such fee to cover the costs of collection as may be specified by law, shall be transmitted by the collecting county or municipality to the administrative body of the community improvement district and shall be expended by the administrative body of the community improvement district only for the purposes authorized by this Section. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 7, Para. 3, approved by Ga. L. 1984, p. 1703, § 1/HR 733.)

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Paragraph IV. Debt.

The administrative body of a community improvement district may incur debt, as authorized by law, without regard to the requirements of Section V of this Article, which debt shall be backed by the full faith, credit, and taxing power of the community improvement district but shall not be an obligation of the State of Georgia or any other unit of government of the State of Georgia other than the community improvement district. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 7, Para. 4, approved by Ga. L. 1984, p. 1703, § 1/HR 733.)

Paragraph V. Cooperation with local governments.

The services and facilities provided pursuant to this Section shall be provided for in a cooperation agreement executed jointly by the administrative body and the governing authority of the county or municipality for which the community improvement district is created. The provisions of this section shall in no way limit the authority of any county or municipality to provide services or facilities within any community improvement district; and any county or municipality shall retain full and complete authority and control over any of its facilities located within a community improvement district. Said control shall include but not be limited to the modification of, access to, and degree and type of services provided through or by facilities of the municipality or county. Nothing contained in this Section shall be construed to limit or preempt the application of any governmental laws, ordinances, resolutions, or regulations to any community improvement district or the services or facilities provided therein. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 7, Para. 5, approved by Ga. L. 1984, p. 1703, § 1/HR 733.)

Paragraph VI. Regulation by general law.

The General Assembly by general law may regulate, restrict, and limit the creation of community improvement districts and the exercise of the powers of administrative bodies of community improvement districts. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 9, § 7, Para. 6, approved by Ga. L. 1984, p. 1703, § 1/HR 733.)

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1988, p. 2104, § 1) which would have added Paragraph VII was defeated at the general election on November 8, 1988. As added, this Paragraph would have created a commission and authorized it to renumber, redesign-nate, and rearrange articles, sections, Paragraphs, or provisions of the Constitution and to correct cross-references within the Constitution.

Law reviews. — For article, "An Overview of the New Georgia Constitution," see 35 Mercer L. Rev. 1 (1983).

Amendments to this Constitution or a new Constitution may be proposed by the General Assembly or by a constitutional convention, as provided in this article. Only amendments which are of general and uniform applicability throughout the state shall be proposed, passed, or submitted to the people.

1976 Constitution. — Art. XII, Sec. I, Para. I.

Editor's notes. — For cases and opinions decided and rendered under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. XII, Sec. I, Para. I and antecedent provisions, see the annotations under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Local amendments. — The 1983 Georgia Constitution does not authorize a constitutional amendment which is limited in applicability to political subdivisions based on population. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-5.

There is no longer any authority for the amendments. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. future passage of local constitutional U90-5.

Paragraph II. Proposals by the General Assembly; submission to the people.

A proposal by the General Assembly to amend this Constitution or to provide for a new Constitution shall originate as a resolution in either the Senate or the House of Representatives and, if approved by two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled in a roll-call vote entered on their respective journals, shall be submitted to the electors of the entire state at the next general election which is held in the even-numbered years. A summary of such proposal shall be prepared by the Attorney General, the Legislative Counsel, and the Secretary of State and shall be published in the official organ of each county and, if deemed advisable by the "Constitutional Amendments Publication Board," in not more than 20 other newspapers in the state designated by such board which meet the qualifications for being selected as the official organ of a county. Said board shall be composed of the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. Such summary shall be published once each week for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding the day of the general election at which such proposal is to be submitted. The language to be used in submitting a proposed amendment or a new Constitution shall be in such words as the General Assembly may provide in the resolution or, in the absence thereof, in such language as the Governor may prescribe. A copy of the entire proposed amendment or of a new Constitution shall be filed in the office of the judge of the probate court of each county and shall be available for public inspection; and the summary of the proposal shall so indicate. The General Assembly is hereby authorized to provide by law for additional matters relative to the publication and distribution of proposed amendments and summaries not in conflict with the provisions of this Paragraph.

If such proposal is ratified by a majority of the electors qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly voting thereon in such general election, such proposal shall become a part of this Constitution or shall become a new Constitution, as the case may be. Any proposal so approved shall take effect as provided in Paragraph VI of this article. When more than one amendment is submitted at the same time, they shall be so submitted as to enable the electors to vote on each amendment separately, provided that one or more new articles or related changes in one or more articles may be submitted as a single amendment.

1976 Constitution. — Art. XII, Sec. I, Para. I.

Editor's notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1988, p. 2116, § 2)

Art. 10, § 1, ¶ 2 AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION Art. 10, § 1, ¶ 2

which would have revised this Paragraph to remove the Attorney General from the committee which prepares the official summary of all proposed constitutional amendments was defeated at the general election on November 8, 1988.

PROVISION FOR NEW CONSTITUTION

PROVISION FOR AMENDING CONSTITUTION

1. IN GENERAL
2. GENERAL AMENDMENT
3. ADVERTISEMENT OF AMENDMENT
4. SUBMISSION TO VOTERS

General Consideration

Prerequisite to submission of constitutional change to voters. — No question concerning a change in the Constitution, or the creation of a new Constitution, shall ever be placed upon a ballot for submission to the people until the General Assembly has by a two-thirds vote authorized the placing of the proposition on the ballot. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

Judiciary will not interfere during the formative stage of a constitutional amendment, from the time of the introduction of the proposing Act until the electors have acted. Gaskins v. Dorsey, 150 Ga. 638, 104 S.E. 433 (1920).

It is a judicial question whether the proposed amendment was properly adopted. Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 38 L.R.A. (n.s.) 77 (1911); Houser v. Hartley, 157 Ga. 137, 120 S.E. 622 (1923).

A proclamation by the Governor declaring that an amendment was adopted is not conclusive, and courts can inquire into this question. Where it appears that the amendment was not ratified in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, it must be judicially declared of no force and effect, in that it never became a part of the Constitution. Towns v. Suttles, 208 Ga. 838, 69 S.E.2d 742 (1952).

Interpreting ballot language of proposed amendment permits court to interject value judgment on voters. — Though ballot language is not a proper subject for more than minimal judicial review, to the extent to which the legislature describes proposed amendments in any way other than through the most objective and brief terms, or perhaps by number as is done in at least one other state, it exposes itself to the temptation to interject its own value judgments concerning the amendments into the ballot language and thus to propagandize the voters in the very voting booth in denigration of the integrity of the ballot. Sears v. State, 232 Ga. 547, 208 S.E.2d 93 (1974).

Distribution of the house journals before election is not required. Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 38 L.R.A. (n.s.) 71 (1911).

Requirement of publication does not need to be strictly complied with. Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 38 L.R.A. (n.s.) 77 (1911).

683, 482 S.E.2d 347 (1997).

Acts need not specify the manner of submission of an amendment to voters. Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 38 L.R.A. (n.s.) 77 (1911); Clements v. Powell, 155 Ga. 278, 116 S.E. 624 (1923).

Necessary qualities for additional revenue amendment to comply with due process and equal protection. — A proposed amendment allowing a school district to receive additional revenues from municipalities for school purposes had to be drafted to include all areas within the county school districts and ratified by the voters of each school district therein on a consolidated basis in order to comply with the due process and equal protection of law requirements under the state and federal Constitutions. City of Lithonia v. DeKalb County Bd. of Educ., 231 Ga. 150, 200 S.E.2d 698 (1973).

Same-sex unions. — Prohibition against recognizing same-sex unions as entitled to the benefits of marriage was not “dissimilar and discordant” to the objective of reserving the status of marriage and its attendant benefits exclusively to unions of man and woman; Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. IV, Para. I did not violate the multiple-subject matter rule. Perdue v. O’Kelley, 280 Ga. 732, 632 S.E.2d 110 (2006).

Cited in Madronah Sales Co. v. Wilburn, 180 Ga. 837, 181 S.E. 173 (1935); Brackett v. Etheridge, 190 Ga. 216, 9 S.E.2d 275 (1940); McKnight v. City of Decatur, 200 Ga. 611, 37 S.E.2d 915 (1946); Houlihan v. Atkinson, 205 Ga. 720, 55 S.E.2d 233 (1949); Smith v. Hayes, 217 Ga. 94, 121 S.E.2d 113 (1961); Seago v. Richmond County, 218 Ga. 151, 126 S.E.2d 657 (1962); Henson v. Georgia Indus. Realty Co., 220 Ga. 857, 142 S.E.2d 219 (1965); Bedingfield v. Adams, 221 Ga. 69, 142 S.E.2d 915 (1965); Wilson v. Sanders, 222 Ga. 681, 151 S.E.2d 703 (1966); Richmond County v. Richmond County Bus. Ass’n, 228 Ga. 281, 185 S.E.2d 399 (1971); *Camp v. Provision for New Constitution Procedure validating new Constitution. — Where a new Constitution of the State of Georgia was passed by a two-thirds vote of each branch of the General Assembly, duly advertised and submitted to a vote of the people at a general election, ratified by a majority of the electors at the general election, and duly issued by the Governor in a proclamation, it is a valid and legal expression of the will of the people and has duly and legally been proclaimed the Constitution of Georgia. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

Resolution not amendment but new Constitution. — Where first paragraph of a resolution of the General Assembly pursuant to this paragraph repeals in its entirety the old Constitution, and then proceeds to create a new Constitution, but the resolution refers to “one single amendment,” the resolution is not an amendment to the Constitution; but on the contrary it is a completely revised or new Constitution. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

Provision for Amending Constitution1. In General

Constitutional amendment will supersede other inconsistent parts of that instrument. McWilliams v. Smith, 142 Ga. 209, 82 S.E. 569 (1914).

The two important, vital, elements in any constitutional amendment are: the assent of two-thirds of the legislature and a majority of the popular vote; beyond these, other provisions are mere machinery and forms, they may not be disregarded, because by them certainty as to the essentials is secured, but they are not themselves the essentials. Mayer v. Adams, 182 Ga. 524, 186 S.E. 420 (1936).

Since substance is more important than form, and the will of the legislature lawfully expressed in proposing an amendment, and the will of the people expressed at the proper time and in the proper manner at the ballot box in ratifying such amendment, they ought not to be lightly disregarded and set at naught, even if an executive or ministerial officer should not strictly comply with the officer's duty in connection with matters of detail, regarding the publication or the like, and which do not appear to have substantially affected the result. Mayer v. Adams, 182 Ga. 524, 186 S.E. 420 (1936).

Art. 10, § 1, ¶ 2 AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION Art. 10, § 1, ¶ 2

No limitations are placed by this paragraph on the power of the General Assembly to draft ballot language. Sears v. State, 232 Ga. 547, 208 S.E.2d 93 (1974) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II).

Voter's must know what they are voting on. — Paragraph's operative limitation on legislature's control of ballot language is requirement that language be adequate to enable the voters to ascertain on which amendment they are voting. Sears v. State, 232 Ga. 547, 208 S.E.2d 93 (1974); Donaldson v. DOT, 262 Ga. 49, 414 S.E.2d 638 (1992).

Entire amendment need not be printed on the ballot. Goolsby v. Stephens, 155 Ga. 529, 117 S.E. 439 (1923). See also Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 36 L.R.A. (n.s.) 77 (1911).

Reference to proposed amendment sufficient to inform voters. — A reference on the ballots to proposed amendment is to inform voters what they are voting for as an amendment to the Constitution; and such reference is sufficient when it contains enough to enable the voters to ascertain for what amendment they are voting. Pye v. State Hwy. Dep't, 226 Ga. 389, 175 S.E.2d 510, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 400 U.S. 913, 91 S.Ct. 173, 27 L. Ed. 2d 152 (1970).

Amendment may contain legislative Acts previously held invalid. Hammond v. Clark, 136 Ga. 313, 71 S.E. 479, 38 L.R.A. (n.s.) 71 (1911).

Inoperative amendment. — Amendment to the Constitution of 1877, Ga. L. 1945, p. 101, which was ratified and proclaimed on the same dates as was the Constitution of 1945, never became operative either as an amendment to the Constitution of 1877 or as an amendment to the Constitution of 1945. Fulton County v. Lockhart, 202 Ga. 878, 45 S.E.2d 220 (1947).

2. General Amendment

Elections for members of Congress and presidential electors, required by law to be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, is a general election within the meaning of this paragraph. Moore v. Smith, 140 Ga. 854, 79 S.E. 1116 (1913) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II).

State-wide general election for specified purposes established. — Proposed amendment to the Constitution as set forth in Ga. L. 1937, p. 13, authorizing the City of Atlanta to issue specified re-funding bonds, which was submitted for ratification and duly ratified at a general election provided for in former Ga. L. 1937, p. 712, establishing a state-wide general election each June for specified purposes, including the ratification of constitutional amendments, became effective as part of the Constitution. Aycock v. State ex rel. Boykin, 184 Ga. 709, 193 S.E. 580 (1937).

Test determining violation of multiple subject matter rule. — The test of whether an Act or a constitutional amendment violates the multiple subject matter rule is whether all of the parts of the Act or of the constitutional amendment are germane to the accomplishment of a single objective; if so, it does not violate the rule; otherwise, it does. Carter v. Burson, 230 Ga. 511, 198 S.E.2d 151 (1973); Sears v. State, 232 Ga. 547, 208 S.E.2d 93 (1974); Goldrush II v. City of Marietta, 267 Ga. 683, 482 S.E.2d 347 (1997), cert. denied, 522 U.S. 818, 118 S. Ct. 70, 139 L. Ed. 2d 31 (1997); Perdue v. O'Kelley, 280 Ga. 732, 632 S.E.2d 110 (2006).

Breakdown of amendment not required. — The legislature is not required to break each general objective down into the smallest component elements and submit each separately to the voters for their acceptance or rejection. Were this done, it would be almost impossible to change many constitutional provisions by a single amendment, and such an amendment could not be submitted as a whole, but would have to be broken up into fragments, and submitted in disjointed propositions. Sears v. State, 232 Ga. 547, 208 S.E.2d 93 (1974).

Provision for AmendingConstitution (Cont'd)*2. General Amendment (Cont'd)

Amendment saved from unconstitutionality because germane to subject of Constitution being amended.

— A constitutional amendment, adopted by the voters in a general election, that deals with only one subject matter, the establishment of area schools, which under the amendment can be established only by contract between counties, or municipalities, or a county and a municipality, or combination thereof, is germane to the provisions of the Constitution, pertaining to the contractual powers of counties and municipalities, and does not violate the Constitution. Cason v. State, 217 Ga. 339, 122 S.E.2d 232 (1961).

Georgia Laws 1972, p. 1015, had but a single subject matter, governmental reorganization, and all its parts were germane to a single purpose and therefore not unconstitutional under this paragraph. Carter v. Burson, 230 Ga. 511, 198 S.E.2d 151 (1973) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II).

3. Advertisement of Amendment

Publication in newspapers. — Publication of proposed amendments in their entirety in designated newspapers of general circulation prior to election is method by which voters should inform themselves of the contents and merits of proposed amendments. Sears v. State, 232 Ga. 547, 208 S.E.2d 93 (1974).

Duties of legislative branch. — The legislative branch of the government is charged with the duty of providing manner of holding elections and providing for the ballot, and what shall go on the ballot — of course subject to the limitations contained in the Constitution. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

Every reasonable presumption, both of law and fact, is to be indulged in favor of the validity of a Constitution when it is attacked after its ratification by the people. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

Liberal interpretation of advertising requirements applies rather to manner of compliance with constitutional requirements in regard to amendments than to a total omission or disregard of such a requirement. Mayer v. Adams, 182 Ga. 524, 186 S.E. 420 (1936).

Law imposes no duty upon the Secretary of State with regard to publication or advertisement of a proposed amendment to the Constitution. Horrigan v. Rivers, 183 Ga. 141, 187 S.E. 836 (1936).

This paragraph refers to the General Assembly as a whole; it has no reference to the Speaker of the House of Representatives or the President of the Senate in their individual capacities. Horrigan v. Rivers, 183 Ga. 141, 187 S.E. 836 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II).

Absence imposition of duty legislative officers not bound to submit amendment to voters. — Where it appears that no specific legislative action was taken by the General Assembly imposing a duty upon either the President of the Senate or Speaker of the House of Representatives to procure the proper submission to the people of a proposed constitutional amendment, there is no duty resting upon either of these officers to bring about such submission, and a writ of mandamus would not lie against them to compel action in the premises. Horrigan v. Rivers, 183 Ga. 141, 187 S.E. 836 (1936).

Distinguishing Constitution between legal and revolutionary one. — If a Constitution is to be a legal one, as distinguished from a revolutionary Constitution, it must be adopted by the people by compliance with the legal machinery in operation at the time of its adoption in order to obtain a legal expression of the will of the people. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

Brief and concise summary of amendment need not be published. — An amendment to the Constitution of this state, duly proposed by the General Assembly and published for 60 days before the election in one or more papers in each congressional district, will not be declared by the courts to have been illegally submitted to the people because a brief and concise summary thereof was not published in a newspaper carrying the sheriff's advertisements in a certain county. Cartledge v. City Council, 189 Ga. 267, 5 S.E.2d 661 (1939).

Failure of three counties out of 159 to open polls on day when a constitutional amendment is being voted upon would not affect the validity of its submission to the people or of the election itself. Cartledge v. City Council, 189 Ga. 267, 5 S.E.2d 661 (1939).

Substantial compliance sufficient to uphold validity of amendment. — Where there is substantial compliance with this paragraph, and the irregularities complained of were not such as could be said to affect the result, the validity of the ratification of a proposed amendment must be upheld. Mayer v. Adams, 182 Ga. 524, 186 S.E. 420 (1936) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II).

4. Submission to Voters

Amendment becomes a part of the Constitution when ratified by a majority of the electors qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly voting thereon. McCullers v. Williamson, 221 Ga. 358, 144 S.E.2d 911 (1965).

An amendment can by its own terms defer its "effective" or "operative" date to a time subsequent to the date when it becomes a part of the Constitution and this is not altered by the fact that the Constitution provides that an amendment becomes a part of the Constitution when it is ratified. McCullers v. Williamson, 221 Ga. 358, 144 S.E.2d 911 (1965).

1990 amendment upheld. — The ratification of the 1990 amendment to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IX was not invalid on the grounds that the ballot language was inaccurate, affirmatively misleading, not complete enough, or did not include enough of the history of the amendment. Donaldson v. DOT, 262 Ga. 49, 414 S.E.2d 638 (1992).

ANALYSIS

PROVISION FOR AMENDMENT

1. ADVERTISEMENT OF AMENDMENT
2. SUBMISSION TO VOTERS

General Consideration

Establishment of Constitutional Amendments Publication Board. — This paragraph does not establish the Constitutional Amendments Publication Board; however, the General Assembly was authorized to establish the board since this paragraph states that amendments shall be published "as provided by law." 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-127 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II).

Executive and legislative branch members eligible for service on board. — Contracting for publication of proposed amendments is not an executive function, since no existing law is being executed by the Governor or other executive officers but rather an amendment to the fundamental legislation, the Constitution, is being proposed to the people; therefore, the presence of the Speaker of the House on the Constitutional Amendments Publication Board does not conflict with the separation of powers requirement of the Constitution of Georgia because the unique and sole function of the Constitutional Amendments Publication Board is to submit constitutional amendments to the people, by proper publication; and, furthermore, members of both the executive and legislative branches may serve on the board. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-127.

It would require the vote of 137 of the 205 members of the House (House now consists of 180 members) to pass a constitutional amendment, notwithstanding that there exist vacancies in the House, in that the reference to the two-thirds of the members elected would obviously refer to two-thirds of the total membership of the House; the existence of a vacancy for whatever reason would not be the basis for the reduction of the requisite number of votes of the total membership of the House to adopt a constitutional amendment. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 259.

Provision for Amendment1. Advertisement of Amendment

County newspaper may be selected by Constitutional Amendments Publication Board, so long as this newspaper is designated as "official organ of that County," for the publishing of general constitutional amendments as provided in this paragraph. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-71 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. II).

Phrase "newspaper of general circulation" has unanimously been interpreted to refer to the character of the newspaper and of its circulation rather than to the mere number of its readers. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-71.

Two criteria for general circulation are: (1) publication of news of general interest, such as national, state, and local news; and (2) circulation among the general public either by subscription or from newsstands. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-127.

"One" must be construed to mean "only one" and the Constitutional Amendments Publication Board is therefore authorized to place advertisements for general amendments in only one newspaper in each congressional district; the newspaper chosen must be published, as well as circulated, within the congressional district; one newspaper of general circulation should be selected in each congressional district for publication of general amendments. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-127.

Constitutional Amendments Publication Board in its discretion may contract to pay rates in excess of rate authorized by former Code 1933, § 39-1105 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-13-143) where reasonably necessary to provide notice to the people of the proposed amendments. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-127.

Minimum advertising time. — Any constitutional amendment must be passed and submitted by General Assembly in sufficient time prior to general election to be advertised once a week for three weeks prior thereto. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 258.

Method of advertisement legally permissible. — General Assembly could legally convene and submit to electorate proposed constitutional amendments after democratic primary but in sufficient time prior to general election to be properly advertised. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 258.

2. Submission to Voters

Majority vote sufficient to pass a constitutional amendment is a majority of votes cast and need not be a majority of the total electors entitled to vote. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 197.

Paragraph III. Repeal or amendment of proposal.

Any proposal by the General Assembly to amend this Constitution or for a new Constitution may be amended or repealed by the same General Assembly which adopted such proposal by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members to which each house is entitled in a roll-call vote entered on their respective journals, if such action is taken at least two months prior to the date of the election at which such proposal is to be submitted to the people.

Paragraph IV. Constitutional convention; how called.

No convention of the people shall be called by the General Assembly to amend this Constitution or to propose a new Constitution, unless by the concurrence of two-thirds of the members to which each house of the General Assembly is entitled. The representation in said convention shall be based on population as near as practicable. A proposal by the convention to amend this Constitution or for a new Constitution shall be advertised, submitted to, and ratified by the people in the same manner provided for advertisement, submission, and ratification of proposals to amend the Constitution by the General Assembly. The General Assembly is hereby authorized to provide the procedure by which a convention is to be called and under which such convention shall operate and for other matters relative to such constitutional convention.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Effect of paragraph. — This paragraph purports to do nothing more than place limitations upon the legislative branch of government as to the manner in which a convention can be called by this branch of the government. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. X, Sec. I, Para. IV).

Effect of adopting new Constitution by convention only. — To say that the sovereign people can adopt a new Constitution by convention method only would by implication be writing into the Constitution a limitation on the sovereign power of the people, which would be an unauthorized exercise of sovereign power by the Supreme Court. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Legislature is proper body to call a constitutional convention and to prescribe time and place it is to be held as well as the manner in which the delegates shall be elected by the people. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-269.

Vote of the people essential. — With respect to ratification of the Constitution proposed by the convention, a vote of the people approving revision is essential. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-269.

Election of delegates to a constitutional convention by the people rather than any other body is a prerequisite to a legal or constitutional as opposed to irregular, extra-legal, or revolutionary convention. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-269.

Product of an illegally called or conducted convention may ultimately become valid as fundamental law through adoption by the electoral body, according to forms of existing laws or even by acquiescence of the sovereign society. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-269.

Approval by people ultimate test for Constitution. — While many practical obstacles exist where a Constitution is drafted by an irregular, extra-legal or revolutionary convention, in the event an irregularly drafted Constitution did manage to see itself placed on the ballot and ratified by the people, it would be valid whether or not the procedures set forth in the prior Constitution were followed; the ultimate test is whether the proposed Constitution is approved by the people as sovereign. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-269.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, decisions under former Ga. Const. 1976, Art. X, Sec. II, Para. III and antecedent provisions, which provided for the creation and powers of the State Medical Education Board, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

Decision of the State Medical Education Board to cancel a loan pursuant to this paragraph is not within regulatory scope of Ga. L. 1964, p. 338

Art. 11, § 1, ¶ 1 MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS Art. 11, § 1, ¶ 1

(see now O.C.G.A. Ch. 13, T. 50). Williams v. State Medical Educ. Bd., 149 Ga. App. 444, 254 S.E.2d 450, rev'd on other grounds, 244 Ga. 401, 260 S.E.2d 304 (1979).

Allowing doctor to establish practice in area other than as specified defeats purpose of scholarship loan program. — Purpose of the medical scholarship loan program is to enable deserving students to obtain state financial assistance to permit them to attend medical school and become doctors by agreeing to provide medical services in sparsely populated areas where such services are needed; to allow such a doctor to set up practice outside a city which city does not meet the requirements of the law and claim that the doctor is in a rural community defeats the purpose of the statute creating scholarship loans. State Medical Educ. Bd. v. Williams, 244 Ga. 401, 260 S.E.2d 304 (1979).

Summary judgment for board not justified. — Where loan issued pursuant to this paragraph provided that one-fifth of the total scholarship together with the interest thereon would be credited to the applicant for each year of practice when the applicant had practiced the profession for three years in a community of 15,000 or less according to the United States 1960 (1970) census, the board had authority to cancel this contract at any time upon cause deemed sufficient by the board; and where the board exercised its power to cancel the loan and accelerate the indebtedness following the board's refusal to approve Smyrna, Georgia, as an area qualifying for the service/repayment provision of the loan contract due to the proximity of Smyrna to Atlanta, these facts and the evidence as developed on trial justified summary judgment for the board. Williams v. State Medical Educ. Bd., 244 Ga. 401, 260 S.E.2d 304, rev'g 149 Ga. App. 444, 254 S.E.2d 450 (1979) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. I).

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the provisions, opinions under for Ga. Const. 1976, Art. X, Sec. II, Para. III and antecedent provisions, relating to the creation and powers of the State Medical Education Board, are included in the annotations for this paragraph.

State Medical Education Board may legally grant scholarships to qualified applicants in the field of osteopathy. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-121.

Permissible to charge communities participating in medical fair registration fee. — The concept of a "Medical Fair," the purpose of which is to introduce scholarship recipients to community representatives who are actively seeking physicians for their communities, is consistent with the basic purposes of the financial assistance program; therefore, the State Medical Education Board may properly charge a registration fee to communities desiring to participate in this fair. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-28.

Raise of loan ceiling permitted by agreement between parties. — If both the student recipient and the State Medical Education Board agree to do so, an existing medical scholarship agreement may be amended so as to increase the maximum grant available to $15,000. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-127.

Payment of scholarships to recipients. — There is no indication as to time and manner in which scholarships granted under this paragraph are to be paid to the recipients except that the board has the authority to make such a determination; based on this language, the board can provide for payments for any sum and at any interval it deems proper so long as the total does not exceed $15,000. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-129 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. I).

Exemption applicable to students not physicians. — The exemption which the Constitution gives to the board from its debt or gratuity proscriptions is by its express terms limited to students and, consequently, the State Medical Education Board would not be authorized to make cash grants to physicians in exchange for their agreement to practice in specified localities. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-31.

Constable may not continue to serve if the constable does not meet eligibility requirements under the Magistrate Act. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

Uncertified justice of peace did not become magistrate. — A justice of the peace in office on June 30, 1983, who was not certified under the former Georgia Justice Courts Training Council Act as of that date, did not become a magistrate of the successor court on July 1, 1983. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

Citizenship Requirement

Applicant must be a citizen of the United States in order to qualify for a medical education scholarship loan under this paragraph. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-68 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. I).

Specifically, an applicant must be a citizen of the United States at the time the applicant submits an application to the Medical Education Board. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-68.

Qualified School

Required length of attendance is not determinative. — Provisions of this paragraph that applicant must attend a four-year medical college does not set forth number of years over which the applicant is to receive scholarship payments; this is simply a limiting factor as to the qualifications of the school that the recipient attends; the instigation of a three-year accelerated program does not alter the four-year status of a medical college. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-129 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. I).

Community Size

Defining community. — The meaning of the term "community" of 15,000 population or less is determined first by its identification as a community by the census. In the absence of such census identification, the board has some discretion in defining the boundaries of a "community," giving due consideration to the location of political boundary lines, demographic patterns, and the like. Once a geographic area is defined by any of the foregoing means, and provided that its population is 15,000 or less, the board has the further discretion of determining, on a reasonable factual basis and in a nonarbitrary manner, which of those geographic areas of 15,000 population or less it will "approve." 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-30.

Community size tied into census. — The size of the communities within which a physician may repay a State Medical Education Board loan or scholarship by practicing the physician's profession is tied to the 1970 or any "subsequent" decennial census; a community cannot be treated as being eligible under the 15,000 cut-off based upon any census earlier than 1970. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-47.

Practice in community of less than specified size possible. — If both student recipient and the State Medical Education Board agree to do so, an existing medical scholarship agreement may be amended so as to permit the recipient's repayment obligation to be satisfied by practicing in a community having a population of 15,000 or less rather than 10,000 or less. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-127.

Designation of eligible community by board not forever binding. — Although it is not proper for the State Medical Education Board of Georgia to approve an eligible community for one doctor and disapprove the same community for another doctor on an arbitrary basis, this does not mean that an approval of an eligible community, having once been made, is binding forever. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-30.

Regarding credit claims against outstanding scholarship loans, this paragraph does not cover a situation where a doctor serves patients from communities of a specified population who must still journey to the doctor's office in another city or community of population greater than that specified. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-75 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. I).

Chargeable Interest

Vested contractual obligations not altered. — This paragraph which changes conditions, limits, and interest rates of medical scholarship loans awarded by the State Medical Education Board does not alter vested contractual obligations under scholarship agreements entered into prior to the effective date of the amendment. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-127 (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. I).

Constitutional amendment increasing loan interest not applicable to previously disbursed and contractually disbursed loans. — Unless both parties to an existing medical scholarship agreement agree to amend the agreement so as to increase the interest obligation of the recipient from four percent per annum, the obligations and rights which became vested under the existing agreement with respect to interest would continue notwithstanding the constitutional amendment; this would apply to both those scholarship funds which have already been disbursed and to those funds which while not yet disbursed are contractually obligated by the existing medical scholarship agreements. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-127.

Paragraph II. Preservation of existing laws; judicial review.

All laws in force and effect on June 30, 1983, not inconsistent with this Constitution shall remain in force and effect; but such laws may be amended or repealed and shall be subject to judicial decision as to their validity when passed and to any limitations imposed by their own terms.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Effect of paragraph. — This paragraph renders of force the principles and doctrines of the common law unless expressly repealed by statute. Head v. State, 68 Ga. App. 759, 24 S.E.2d 145 (1943) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. II).

Common and statute law of England, of force in this state on May 14, 1776, remains of force, so far as it is not incompatible with the federal or state Constitution or has not been modified by statute. Grimmett v. Barnwell, 184 Ga. 461, 192 S.E. 191 (1937); Trustees of Jesse Parker Williams Hosp. v. Nisbet, 189 Ga. 807, 7 S.E.2d 737 (1940); Brooks v. Ready Mix Concrete Co., 94 Ga. App. 791, 96 S.E.2d 213 (1956); Dooley v. Berkner, 113 Ga. App. 162, 147 S.E.2d 685 (1966), overruled on other grounds, Holmes v. Worthey, 159 Ga. App. 262, 282 S.E.2d 919 (1981).

Common law recognition of specialty bond still in force. — The rule of the common law, recognizing as a specialty a bond or like instrument accompanied by a seal and formal delivery, and therefore dispensing with the necessity for any consideration, not having been varied by statute or by construction in any contrary decision, remains in force. Trustees of Jesse Parker Williams Hosp. v. Nisbet, 189 Ga. 807, 7 S.E.2d 737 (1940).

Constitutional provisions evidence no intent for repeal of statutory requirements on qualifications of board members. — Construing Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II) and this paragraph, together, it must be held that there is no evident intent that the statutory requirements as to qualifications of members of county boards of education be repealed by the Constitution. McCollum v. Bass, 201 Ga. 537, 40 S.E.2d 650 (1946) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. II).

Use of affidavits in habeas corpus proceedings not sanctioned. — The court is not required by common law, by decisions of other jurisdictions, by textbooks, or by Georgia statute to sanction use of affidavits in habeas corpus proceedings. Camp v. Camp, 213 Ga. 65, 97 S.E.2d 125 (1957).

Affidavits use excluded upon adoption of common law. — In view of the caution taken in the Constitution to preserve liberty by setting standards for trials openly and fairly, if necessary the court would hold that this paragraph, adopting the common law, excluded the portion permitting such ex parte affidavits by adopting only such of the common law as was practicable and suitable to a growing republic. Camp v. Camp, 213 Ga. 65, 97 S.E.2d 125 (1957) (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. II).

Section 20-2-52 superseded by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VIII, Sec. V, Para. II), before amendment of 1965.

— The provision of former Code 1933, § 32-903 (see now O.C.G.A. § 20-2-52), that no two members of a county board of education could be selected from the same militia district, was entirely consistent with the provisions found in the Constitution, and it could not be held that the people in the adoption of the Constitution intended to repeal statutory requirements as to the qualifications of the members of such boards. McCollum v. Bass, 201 Ga. 537, 40 S.E.2d 650 (1946).

Paragraph IV. Continuation of certain constitutional amendments for a period of four years.

(a) The following amendments to the Constitutions of 1877, 1945, and 1976 shall continue in force and effect as part of this Constitution until July 1, 1987, at which time said amendments shall be repealed and shall be deleted as a part of this Constitution unless any such amendment shall be specifically continued in force and effect without amendment either by a local law enacted prior to July 1, 1987, with or without a referendum as provided by law, or by an ordinance or resolution duly adopted prior to July 1, 1987, by the local governing authority in the manner provided for the adoption of home rule amendments to its charter or local Act: (1) amendments to the Constitution of 1877 and the Constitution of 1945 which were continued in force and effect as a part of the Constitution of 1976 pursuant to the provisions of Article XIII, Section I, Paragraph II of the Constitution of 1976 which are in force and effect on the effective date of this Constitution; (2) amendments to the Constitution of 1976 which were ratified as general amendments but which by their terms applied principally to a particular political subdivision or subdivisions which are in force and effect on the effective date of this Constitution; (3) amendments to the Constitution of 1976 which were ratified not as general amendments which are in force and effect on the effective date of this Constitution; and (4) amendments to the Constitution of 1976 of the type provided for in the immediately preceding two subparagraphs (2) and (3) of this Paragraph which were ratified at the same time this Constitution was ratified.

(b) Any amendment which is continued in force and effect after July 1, 1987, pursuant to the provisions of subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph shall be continued in force and effect as a part of this Constitution, except that such amendment may thereafter be repealed but may not be amended. The repeal of any such amendment shall be accomplished by local Act of the General Assembly, the effectiveness of which shall be conditioned on its approval by a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in each of the particular political subdivisions affected by the amendment.

(c) All laws enacted pursuant to those amendments to the Constitution which are not continued in force and effect pursuant to subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph shall be repealed on July 1, 1987. All laws validly enacted on, before, or after July 1, 1987, and pursuant to the specific authorization of an amendment continued in force and effect pursuant to the provisions of subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph shall be legal, valid, and constitutional under this Constitution. Nothing in this subparagraph (c) shall be construed to revive any law not in force and effect on June 30, 1987.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraphs (a) and (b), the following amendments to the Constitutions of 1877 and 1945 shall be continued in force as a part of this Constitution: amendments to the Constitution of 1877 and the Constitution of 1945 which created or authorized the creation of metropolitan rapid transit authorities, port authorities, and industrial areas and which were continued in force as a part of the Constitution of 1976 pursuant to the provisions of Article XIII, Section I, Paragraph II of the Constitution of 1976 and which are in force on the effective date of this Constitution.

(e) Any person owning property in an industrial area described in subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph may voluntarily remove the property from the industrial area by filing a certificate to that effect with the clerk of the superior court for the county in which the property is located. Once the certificate is filed, the property described in the certificate, together with all public streets and public rights of way within the property, abutting the property, or connecting the property to property outside the industrial area, shall no longer be in the industrial area and shall upon the filing of the certificate be annexed to the city which provides water service to the property, or if no city provides water service shall be annexed to the city providing fire service as provided under the constitutional amendments that created such industrial areas described in subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph. The filing of a certificate shall be irrevocable and shall bind the owners, their heirs, and their assigns. The term “owner” includes anyone with a legal or equitable ownership in property but does not include a beneficiary of any trust or a partner in any partnership owning an interest in the property or anyone owning an easement right in the property. (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. 11, § 1, Para. 4; Ga. L. 1991, p. 2031, § 1/HR 16; Ga. L. 1992, p. 3335, § 1/HR 997; Ga. L. 1996, p. 1667, § 1/SR 228; Ga. L. 2010, p. 1259, § 1/HR 136.)

1976 Constitution. — Art. IX, Sec. VIII, Para. I; Art. XIII, Sec. I, Para. II.

Editor’s notes. — The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1988, p. 2112, § 1) which would have added a subparagraph allowing owners of real property located in an industrial area on an island by virtue of this Paragraph to irrevocably remove such property and adjacent public rights of way from the industrial area was defeated at the general election on November 8, 1988.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1990, p. 2429, § 1) which would have authorized the General Assembly to provide that a political subdivision whose ad valorem taxing powers are restricted by constitutional amendment may impose a local sales and use tax without a corresponding limitation of its ad valorem taxing powers was defeated at the general election on November 6, 1990.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1991, p. 2031, § 1) as amended by (Ga. L. 1992, p. 3335, § 1) which revised Paragraph IV to provide that the General Assembly may by local Act repeal certain constitutional amendments, which local Acts must be approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in the particular political subdivision(s) affected by the amendment was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 3, 1992.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 1996, p. 1667, § 1) which added subparagraph (e) was approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting at the general election held on November 5, 1996.

The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2010, p. 1259, § 1), which, in subparagraph (e), in the first sentence, inserted “of this Paragraph” near the middle, and deleted “, but only if the property is located on an island” from the end; in the second sentence, substituted “, shall no longer be in the industrial area and shall upon the filing of the certificate be annexed to the city which provides water service to the property, or if no city provides water service shall be annexed to the city providing fire service as provided under the constitutional amendments that created such industrial areas described in subparagraph (d) of this Paragraph” for “will no longer be in the industrial area and may be annexed by an adjacent city”; and, in the third sentence, substituted “shall” for “will” twice, was ratified at the general election held on November 2, 2010.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Application of subsection (a). — A local amendment to Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. II of the 1945 Georgia Constitution, authorizing a county to levy a tax for water and sewerage purposes, was carried forward pursuant to subsection (a) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. IV. Copeland v. State, 268 Ga. 375, 490 S.E.2d 68 (1997).

Inoperative amendment. — Amendment to the Constitution of 1877, Ga. L. 1945, p. 101, which was ratified and proclaimed on the same dates as was the Constitution of 1945, never became operative either as an amendment to the Constitution of 1877 or as an amendment to the Constitution of 1945. Fulton County v. Lockhart, 202 Ga. 878, 45 S.E.2d 220 (1947).

Effect of population bill carried forward from 1945 constitution. — A 1952 amendment to the 1945 constitution, allowing the establishment of a joint board of tax assessors in a population category applying only to Fulton County and the City of Atlanta, was carried forward in the present constitution, and neither the amendment nor a 1952 implementing statute was unconstitutional. However, subsequent amendments which attempted to establish by local act any appeal system other than that specified in the 1952 amendment, and other amendments that attempted to change the population category affected by the 1952 amendment, were unconstitutional and void. Lomax v. Lee, 261 Ga. 575, 408 S.E.2d 788 (1991).

Effect of amendment creating special taxing districts. — A local amendment to Art. VII, Sec. IV, Para. IV of the 1945 Georgia Constitution, authorizing a county to levy a tax for water and sewerage purposes, was not repealed by ratification of a later amendment giving counties direct authority to create special taxing districts for water and sewerage services and to tax for those services only within the special district. Copeland v. State, 268 Ga. 375, 490 S.E.2d 68 (1997).

City Court of Atlanta. — The fact that the City Court of Atlanta remained a city court under Ga. L. 1996, p. 627 refuted the defendant's contention that it was outside the constitutional confines of the Georgia Constitution and the 1967 and 1986 constitutional amendments under which the City Court existed prior to 1996. Wickham v. State, 273 Ga. 563, 544 S.E.2d 439 (2001).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Local amendments no longer authorized. — There is no longer any authority for the future passage of local constitutional amendments. 1990 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U90-5.

Reenactment of amendments creating county school district. — The constitutional amendments creating the Clarke County School District and Board of Education will be automatically repealed unless they are reenacted by local Act prior to July 1, 1987. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-4.

Reenactment of constitutional amendments creating the Clarke County School District and Board of Education can be accomplished by an Act which references the constitutional amendments so long as those references are sufficient to inform interested parties as to the subject matter of the Act. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-4.

Any change in constitutional amendments creating the Clarke County School District and Board of Education would prevent their reenactment by local law and would require approval by the Justice Department. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-4.

Paragraph V. Special commission created.

Amendments to the Constitution of 1976 which were determined to be general and which were submitted to and ratified by the people of the entire state at the same time this Constitution was ratified shall be incorporated and made a part of this Constitution as provided in this Paragraph. There is hereby created a commission to be composed of the Governor, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Attorney General, and the Legislative Counsel, which is hereby authorized and directed to incorporate such amendments into this Constitution at the places deemed most appropriate to the commission. The commission shall make only such changes in the language of this Constitution and of such amendments as are necessary to incorporate properly such amendments into this Constitution and shall complete its duties prior to July 1, 1983. The commission shall deliver to the Secretary of State this Constitution with those amendments incorporated therein, and such document shall be the Constitution of the State of Georgia. In order that the commission may perform its duties, this Paragraph shall become effective as soon as it has been officially determined that this Constitution has been ratified. The commission shall stand abolished upon the completion of its duties.

1976 Constitution. — Art. XIII, Sec. I, Para. III.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Sovereign immunity amendment properly substituted. — The sovereign immunity amendment to the 1976 Constitution, Ga. L. 1982, p. 2546, was properly substituted as Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IX in the 1983 Constitution. Pollard v. Board of Regents, 260 Ga. 885, 401 S.E.2d 272 (1991).

Paragraph VI. Effective date.

Except as provided in Paragraph V of this section, this Constitution shall become effective on July 1, 1983; and, except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, all previous Constitutions and all amendments thereto shall thereupon stand repealed.

1976 Constitution. — Art. XIII, Sec. I, Para. IV.

CONTINUATION OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS OF LOCAL APPLICATION

This appendix lists those locally applicable amendments to the Constitution of Georgia which have been specifically continued by local law, ordinance, or resolution pursuant to Article XI, Section I, Paragraph IV of the Constitution of Georgia of 1983. Each continued amendment is listed by year of Constitution (1976, 1945, or 1877), by constitutional citation, and alphabetically by locality. The parentheses indicate the Georgia Laws citation of the local law, ordinance, or resolution which continues the local amendment appearing before the parenthetical citation. In those cases where an Act specifically continues not only a local amendment but also an Act based upon the local amendment, both the continued local amendment and the continued Act are listed. (See subsection (c) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para. IV for provisions regarding laws enacted pursuant to local constitutional amendments.) A complete listing of those local constitutional amendments which were continued by the 1983 Constitution may be found in Appendices One, Two, and Three in this volume. Except as otherwise provided in subsection (d) of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. XI, Sec. I, Para.
