(b) If the Commissioner finds that the order is in the public interest and subsection (d) of this Code section authorizes the action, an order issued under this chapter may revoke, suspend, condition, or limit the registration of a registrant and if the registrant is a broker-dealer or investment adviser, any partner, officer, or director, any person having a similar status or performing similar functions, or any person directly or indirectly controlling the broker-dealer or investment adviser. However, the Commissioner:

(1) May not institute a revocation or suspension proceeding under this subsection based on an order issued by another state that is reported to the Commissioner later than one year after the date of the order on which it is based; and

(2) Under subparagraphs (d)(5)(A) and (d)(5)(B) of this Code section may not issue an order on the basis of an order under the state securities act of another state unless the other order was based on conduct for which subsection (d) of this Code section would authorize the action had the conduct occurred in this state.

(c) If the Commissioner finds that the order is in the public interest and paragraphs (1) through (6) and (8) through (13) of subsection (d) of this Code section authorize the action, an order under this chapter may censure, impose a bar, or impose a civil penalty in an amount not to exceed a maximum of $50,000.00 for a single violation or $500,000.00 for several violations on a registrant and if the registrant is a broker-dealer or investment adviser, any partner, officer, or director, any person having similar functions or any person directly or indirectly controlling the broker-dealer or investment adviser.

(d) A person may be disciplined under subsections (a) through (c) of this Code section if the person:

(1) Has filed an application for registration in this state under this chapter or the predecessor Act within the previous ten years, which, as of the effective date of registration or as of any date after filing in the case of an order denying effectiveness, was incomplete in any material respect or contained a statement that, in light of the circumstances under which it was made, was false or misleading with respect to a material fact;

(2) Willfully violated or willfully failed to comply with this chapter or the predecessor Act or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter or the predecessor Act within the previous ten years;

(3) Has been convicted of a felony or within the previous ten years has been convicted of a misdemeanor involving a security, a commodity future or option contract, or an aspect of a business involving securities, commodities, investments, franchises, insurance, banking, or finance;

(4) Is enjoined or restrained by a court of competent jurisdiction in an action instituted by the Commissioner under this chapter or the predecessor Act, a state, the Securities and Exchange Commission, or the United States from engaging in or continuing an act, practice, or course of business involving an aspect of a business involving securities, commodities, investments, franchises, insurance, banking, or finance;

(5) Is the subject of an order, issued after notice and opportunity for hearing by:

(A) The securities, depository institution, insurance, or other financial services administrator of a state or by the Securities and Exchange Commission or other federal agency denying, revoking, barring, or suspending registration as a broker-dealer, agent, investment adviser, federal covered investment adviser, or investment adviser representative;

(B) The securities administrator of a state or by the Securities and Exchange Commission against a broker-dealer, agent, investment adviser, investment adviser representative, or federal covered investment adviser;

(C) The Securities and Exchange Commission or by a self-regulatory organization suspending or expelling the registrant from membership in the self-regulatory organization;

(D) A court adjudicating a United States Postal Service fraud order;

(E) The insurance regulator of a state denying, suspending, or revoking the registration of an insurance agent; or

(F) A depository institution regulator suspending or barring a person from the depository institution business;

(6) Is the subject of an adjudication or determination, after notice and opportunity for hearing, by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, a federal depository institution regulator, or a depository institution, insurance, or other financial services administrator of a state that the person willfully violated the Securities Act of 1933, 15 U.S.C. Section 77a, et seq., the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, 15 U.S.C. Section 78a, et seq., the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, 15 U.S.C. Section 80b-1, et seq., the Investment Company Act of 1940, 15 U.S.C. Section 80a-1, et seq., or the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. Section 1, et seq., the securities or commodities law of a state, or a federal or state law under which a business involving investments, franchises, insurance, banking, or finance is regulated;

(7) Is insolvent, either because the person's liabilities exceed the person's assets or because the person cannot meet the person's obligations as they mature, but the Commissioner may not enter an order against an applicant or registrant under this paragraph without a finding of insolvency as to the applicant or registrant;

(8) Refuses to allow or otherwise impedes the Commissioner from conducting an audit or inspection under subsection (d) of Code Section 10-5-40 or refuses access to a registrant's office to conduct an audit or inspection under subsection (d) of Code Section 10-5-40;

(9) Has failed to reasonably supervise an agent, investment adviser representative, or other individual, if the agent, investment adviser representative, or other individual was subject to the person's supervision and committed a violation of this chapter or the predecessor Act or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter or the predecessor Act within the previous ten years;

(10) Has not paid the proper filing fee within 30 days after having been notified by the Commissioner of a deficiency, but the Commissioner shall vacate an order under this paragraph when the deficiency is corrected;

(11) After notice and opportunity for a hearing, has been found within the previous ten years:

(A) By a court of competent jurisdiction to have willfully violated the laws of a foreign jurisdiction under which the business of securities, commodities, investment, franchises, insurance, banking, or finance is regulated;

(B) To have been the subject of an order of a securities administrator of a foreign jurisdiction denying, revoking, or suspending the right to engage in the business of securities as a broker-dealer, agent, investment adviser, investment adviser representative, or similar person; or

(C) To have been suspended or expelled from membership by or participation in a securities exchange or securities association operating under the securities laws of a foreign jurisdiction;

(12) Is the subject of a cease and desist order issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission or issued under the securities, commodities, investment, franchise, banking, finance, or insurance laws of a state;

(13) Has engaged in dishonest or unethical practices in the securities, commodities, investment, franchise, banking, finance, or insurance business within the previous ten years; or

(14) Is not qualified on the basis of factors such as training, experience, and knowledge of the securities business. However, in the case of an application by an agent for a broker-dealer that is a member of a self-regulatory organization or by an individual for registration as an investment adviser representative, a denial order may not be based on this paragraph if the individual has successfully completed all examinations required by subsection (e) of this Code section. The Commissioner may require an applicant for registration under Code Section 10-5-31 or 10-5-33 who has not been registered in a state within the two years preceding the filing of an application in this state to successfully complete an examination.

(e) A rule adopted or order issued under this chapter may require that an examination, including an examination developed or approved by an organization of securities regulators, be successfully completed by a class of individuals or all individuals. An order issued under this chapter may waive, in whole or in part, an examination as to an individual and a rule adopted under this chapter may waive, in whole or in part, an examination as to a class of individuals if the Commissioner determines that the examination is not necessary or appropriate in the public interest and for the protection of investors.

(f) The Commissioner may suspend or deny an application summarily; restrict, condition, limit, or suspend a registration; or censure, bar, or impose a civil penalty on a registrant before final determination of an administrative proceeding. Upon the issuance of an order, the Commissioner shall promptly notify each person subject to the order that the order has been issued, the reasons for the action, and that within 30 days after the receipt of a request in a record from the person the matter will be scheduled for a hearing. If a hearing is not requested and none is ordered by the Commissioner within 30 days after the date of service of the order, the order becomes final by operation of law. If a hearing is requested or ordered, the Commissioner, after notice of and opportunity for hearing to each person subject to the order, may modify or vacate the order or extend the order until final determination.

(g) Except under subsection (f) of this Code section, an order may not be issued under this Code section without:

(1) Appropriate notice to the applicant or registrant;

(2) Opportunity for hearing; and

(3) Findings of fact and conclusions of law in a record in accordance with Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act."

(h) A person that controls, directly or indirectly, a person not in compliance with this Code section may be disciplined by order of the Commissioner under subsections (a) through (c) of this Code section to the same extent as the noncomplying person, unless the controlling person did not know, and in the exercise of reasonable care could not have known, of the existence of conduct that is a ground for discipline under this Code section.

(i) The Commissioner may not institute a proceeding under subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this Code section based solely on material facts actually known by the Commissioner unless an investigation or the proceeding is instituted within one year after the Commissioner actually acquires knowledge of the material facts.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, former Code 1933, §§ 97-112, 97-113, 97-114, and former O.C.G.A. §§ 10-5-12, 10-5-13, and 10-5-14, as amended, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this article, are included in the annotations for this article.

Section resembles federal regulation. — Although the defenses available may differ between this section and federal Rule 10(b)-5, the resemblance goes beyond each requiring an element of culpability, as this section bears a close resemblance to Rule 10(b)-5 and shares a commonality of purpose with that rule. Osterneck v. E.T. Barwick Indus., Inc., 79 F.R.D. 47, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17822 (N.D. Ga. 1978) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

As there was no dispute that agreements and notes defendant provided the victims in exchange for money were investments and that the victims relied on defendant to manage the investments and to provide a return on the investments, the instruments were "securities" within the meaning of Georgia's blue sky law; that the amount of expected return was fixed was immaterial. Rasch v. State, 260 Ga. App. 379, 579 S.E.2d 817, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 390 (2003) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Standing. — Because plaintiff's injuries did not flow directly from the commission of predicate acts by defendant, the plaintiff did not have standing to bring a RICO action. Longino v. Bank of Ellijay, 228 Ga. App. 37, 491 S.E.2d 81 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

State limitation period applies in federal action for securities fraud. — Two-year statute of limitations was applicable to an action alleging violations of 15 U.S.C. §§ 78j(b) and 78g, 17 C.F.R. 240.10b-5, and the common law of Georgia, in that plaintiffs were induced to trade their stock in a corporation for stock in another by misrepresentations in the latter's financial statements. Osterneck v. E.T. Barwick Indus., Inc., 79 F.R.D. 47, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17822 (N.D. Ga. 1978) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Georgia Blue Sky Law are most analogous to § 10(b) of the federal Securities Exchange Act, and federal Rule 10b-5, and thus the two-year statute of limitations applies to § 10(b) and Rule 10b-5 claims. Friedlander v. Troutman, Sanders, Lockerman & Ashmore, 788 F.2d 1500, 1986 U.S. App. LEXIS 25076 (11th Cir. 1986) (decided under former O.C.G.A. §§ 10-5-12 and 10-5-14).

Limitation period for federal action by defrauded seller. — Since under the securities law defrauded sellers have no remedy, the applicable statute of limitations for federal 10b-5 cases brought in Georgia by allegedly defrauded sellers is the four-year limitation associated with Georgia's fraud remedy (see O.C.G.A. §§ 9-3-31, 51-6-1 et seq.) and not the two-year period found in the securities law. Kirk v. First Nat'l Bank, 439 F. Supp. 1141, 1977 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13358 (M.D. Ga. 1977) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Limitation period for action against broker for churning, margin violations. — Four-year period of limitations applicable to actions under Georgia's general fraud statute (see O.C.G.A. §§ 9-3-31, 51-6-1 et seq.), and not the two-year limitation applicable to actions brought under former Code 1933, § 97-114, was applicable to causes of action alleged under both 15 U.S.C. § 78j(b) and 15 U.S.C. § 78g. McNeal v.

Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc., 598 F.2d 888, 1979 U.S. App. LEXIS 13305 (5th Cir. 1979) (Action not against principal in securities transaction for rescission; decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

State limitation period applied as existed when action accrued. — In a federal security case, the state statute of limitations was looked to as it existed when the cause of action accrued, for example, when the alleged churning by a broker took place. McNeal v. Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc., 598 F.2d 888, 1979 U.S. App. LEXIS 13305 (5th Cir. 1979) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

State need only prove date within period of limitations. — Defendant's conviction for misstating a material fact to a victim in connection with the sale of a security for an indictment dated December 22, 2004, was properly proven by the state to have occurred within the four year statute of limitations period by the state establishing that the victim invested in the stock by two checks, dated November 28 and December 13, 2001, and the victim testified that the investment was made based on conversations with defendant during the months of October and November of 2001; as a result, the evidence was sufficient to show that defendant's violative acts as to the sale of securities occurred within the period provided by the statute of limitations. Haupt v. State, 290 Ga. App. 616, 660 S.E.2d 383, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 250 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Shares of stock are "securities" which it is unlawful to sell in violation of subsection (a) of former Code 1933, § 97-103 and former Code 1933, § 97-112. DeBoard v. Schulhofer, 156 Ga. App. 158, 273 S.E.2d 907, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2923 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-112).

Demand promissory note and option to purchase shares of corporation given in exchange for checks for $12,500,000 was a transaction to which requirements of subsection (a) of former Code 1933, § 97-112 and former Code 1933, § 97-103 applied. DeBoard v. Schulhofer, 156 Ga. App. 158, 273 S.E.2d 907, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2923 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-112).

Cause of action is expressly provided by former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14(a) in favor of purchasers for the violation of paragraph (a)(2) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12. Diamond v. Lamotte, 709 F.2d 1419, 1983 U.S. App. LEXIS 25755 (11th Cir. 1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Intent not element of crime under subsection (b). — Under counts charging the defendants with representations to the effect that the securities commissioner had passed upon the merits of the stock, an intent to deceive is not an essential element of the crime charged; the criminal act is complete upon the making of the representation. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Scienter is element under subsection (a). — Trial court did not err in charging a jury that scienter was an element of securities fraud under former O.C.G.A. §§ 10-5-12(a)(2) and 10-5-14(a); further, the trial court properly charged the jury that justified reliance was an element of securities fraud. Keogler v. Krasnoff, 268 Ga. App. 250, 601 S.E.2d 788, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 886 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1876, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 106 (Ga. Jan. 24, 2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Two types of crimes are prohibited by this section: (1) the making of an intentional representation that by the filing of a registration statement, the commissioner of securities had passed upon the merits of the security and (2) the use of a device, scheme, or artifice to defraud, or the commission of any act, practice, or course of business which would operate as a fraud on the purchaser. In the former instance the making of the representation completes the criminal act, whereas in the latter instance an intent to defraud has to be shown. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App.

Physical presence unnecessary for venue of conspiracy. — If the jury finds defendants conspired to sell stock by means of practices and misrepresentations inhibited by this section, and pursuant to such conspiracy stock was in fact offered and the misrepresentations made in Hall County, the fact that the defendants were not physically present in the county at the time their agents put the scheme into operation does not operate to relieve the agents from being tried and convicted in such county. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Transaction held as not taking place in Georgia. — When a plaintiff, a Georgia resident, and a defendant, a Tennessee resident, discussed by telephone an arrangement whereby the defendant's company would serve as plaintiff's investment advisor in trading of commodity futures, and the defendant mailed to the plaintiff two letter agreements setting out the contract terms, and the plaintiff signed the letters and returned the letters for signature of the other party, under Georgia law the transaction did not take place in Georgia. Rasmussen v. Thomson & McKinnon Auchincloss Kohlmeyer, Inc., 608 F.2d 175, 1979 U.S. App. LEXIS 9744 (5th Cir. 1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-112).

Transaction held as taking place in Georgia. — With regard to defendant's convictions on two counts of making an untrue material statement of fact and omitting other material facts in selling stock, the state unequivocally proved venue in Chatham County, Georgia, by establishing, via a victim's testimony, that the offense occurred within the Chatham County area and the evidence otherwise showed that the victim executed a relevant stock purchase agreement that included the language in the "State of Georgia, County of Chatham." Haupt v. State, 290 Ga. App. 616, 660 S.E.2d 383, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 250 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Burden on controlling officer seeking to escape liability under subsection (a). — Former Code 1933, § 97-114 imposed liability upon controlling officer of corporation for transaction executed by corporate treasurer administering affairs in the officer's absence, which transaction violated subsection (a) of former Code 1933, § 97-112 and former Code 1933, § 97-103, if the officer directly or indirectly controlled treasurer, unless the officer sustained burden of proof that the officer did not know, and in exercise of reasonable care could not have known, of existence of facts by reason of which liability was alleged to exist. DeBoard v. Schulhofer, 156 Ga. App. 158, 273 S.E.2d 907, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2923 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-112).

To hold an individual to be an agent who has participated or aided in making sales of securities, the court must find that the individual was so entangled in the actual sale of securities that the individual's activities were at least a substantial factor in the purchaser's decision to buy the security and that the individual's activities were either authorized or ratified by the issuer. In re N. Am. Acceptance Corp. Sec. Cases, 513 F. Supp. 608, 1981 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18595 (N.D. Ga. 1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Civil liability for pre-1974 violations of anti-fraud provisions. — While Ga. L. 1973, p. 1202 now provides for express civil liability for anyone who violates its general anti-fraud provisions, former Code 1933, §§ 97-104, 97-112, 97-114, which apply to transactions occurring before April 1, 1974, provide for civil liability only as provided for in former Code 1933, § 97-114. In re N. Am. Acceptance Corp. Sec. Cases, 513 F. Supp. 608, 1981 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18595 (N.D. Ga. 1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Prosecution did not abate due to the 1986 repeal and reenactment of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12 since the conduct with which the defendant was charged and convicted was not decriminalized at any time during the various redefinitions of the statute. Greenhill v. State, 199 Ga. App. 218, 404 S.E.2d 577, 1991 Ga. App. LEXIS 469 (1991), cert. denied, No. S91C0894, 1991 Ga. LEXIS 706 (Ga. May 15, 1991) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Federal equitable tolling principles inapplicable. — As a claim under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12 could not be characterized as a federally created remedy, federal equitable tolling principles did not apply, and such a claim, brought over two years after the purchase of stock, was time-barred by former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14. Wilkinson v. Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc., 585 F. Supp. 23, 1983 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18251 (N.D. Ga. 1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Complaint not showing intent to defraud dismissed. — Motion to dismiss a complaint alleging violations of the Georgia Securities Act, the Uniform Limited Partnership Act, and common-law fraud was granted on the ground that the complaint did not show an intent to defraud. Currie v. Cayman Resources Corp., 595 F. Supp. 1364, 1984 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23274 (N.D. Ga. 1984), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 835 F.2d 780, 1988 U.S. App. LEXIS 217 (11th Cir. 1988) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Evidence of fraud possibly sufficient. — Trial court erred in granting the defendant broker's motion to dismiss plaintiff's claim of securities fraud for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted because a statement of the broker made in connection with the sale of stock was possibly sufficient to warrant a grant of the relief sought. GCA Strategic Inv. Fund, Ltd. v. Joseph Charles & Assocs., 245 Ga. App. 460, 537 S.E.2d 677, 2000 Ga. App. LEXIS 922 (2000) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

No claim where profits dependent on purchaser's efforts. — When the return to be expected from the purchase of securities depended in part upon the purchaser's own efforts and not solely from the efforts of others, the purchaser has no claim under subsections (a)(2) or (d)(1) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12. Nicholson v. Harris, 179 Ga. App. 35, 345 S.E.2d 63, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 1817 (1986) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Theft by taking did not merge with securities violation. — Defendant's convictions for theft by taking under O.C.G.A. § 16-8-2 and for violating the Georgia Securities Act of 1973, former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12 et seq., did not merge for sentencing purposes because the language of the statutes indicated that the offenses were separate offenses as a matter of law and because while theft required that the victim sustain a loss, a securities violation did not. Branan v. State, 285 Ga. App. 717, 647 S.E.2d 606, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 628 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Requested jury instruction properly refused. — Trial court did not err by failing to charge the jury that the reckless representation of facts as true without knowledge was actionable as a species of fraud without scienter; the proposed charge was an incorrect statement of law because it obviated the necessity to prove that the party making the alleged reckless misrepresentation intended to deceive the party relying thereon and the proposed charge was not precisely tailored or adjusted to the evidence. Keogler v. Krasnoff, 268 Ga. App. 250, 601 S.E.2d 788, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 886 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1876, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 106 (Ga. Jan. 24, 2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Court had no duty to charge jury on definition of "security." — Trial court did not err, with regard to the defendant's convictions on two counts of making an untrue material statement of fact and omitting other material facts in selling stock, by failing to sua sponte charge the jury on the statutory definition of the word "security" and other specifics as the record showed that the trial court properly charged the jury that the term security meant any stock or share or any other instrument commonly known as a security, which was in consonance with the evidence and the Georgia Securities Act of 1973, former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12(a)(1) and (2)(B); further, since the defendant made no request to charge, the trial court had no sua sponte duty to give a charge. Haupt v. State, 290 Ga. App. 616, 660 S.E.2d 383, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 250 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Scienter contemplates intent to deceive. — Scienter, for purposes of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12(a)(2), even if based on a reckless misrepresentation, contemplates the intent to deceive. Keogler v. Krasnoff, 268 Ga. App. 250, 601 S.E.2d 788, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 886 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1876, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 106 (Ga. Jan. 24, 2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

It is not essential that criminal proceedings be instituted, but the commissioner has the right to issue an order to prohibit sales people from continuing the sale of questionable securities and also to apply for an injunction to restrain such acts and, further, to turn over any evidence to the district attorney, who may institute the necessary criminal proceedings. Cohen v. State, 101 Ga. App. 23, 112 S.E.2d 672, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 775 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Provisions for initiating criminal proceedings not exclusive. — This section is permissive in character and provides for a manner of initiating criminal proceedings through the commissioner and Attorney General, but the statute is by no means intended to be exclusive, and the fact that the district attorney rather than the Attorney General appears before the grand jury, or that warrants are sworn out in the first instance and prior to the grand jury proceedings by affidavit of the individual prosecutors, in no way renders the indictment illegal. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

"Willfully." — Court of Appeals of Georgia, First Division, concludes that the term "willfully" in former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13(a)(1)(A)(iv) has the same meaning that it has been construed to have in former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-24. Before any of the civil penalties of up to $50,000 for single violations and up to $500,000 for multiple violations can be imposed under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13(a)(1)(A)(iv), there must be a knowing and intentional violation of the Georgia Securities Act of 1973, former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-1 et seq. Garvin v. Sec'y of State, 266 Ga. App. 66, 596 S.E.2d 166, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 171 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1027, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 517 (Ga. June 7, 2004), rev'd sub nom. Cox v. Garvin, 278 Ga. 903, 607 S.E.2d 549, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 15 (2005), vacated in part, 272 Ga. App. 860, 614 S.E.2d 93, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13).

Civil fines and cease and desist order. — Seller of investment contracts, whereby the seller sold an investment venture of payphones to a purchaser, who then leased back the phones for an expected fixed monthly return, was not properly sanctioned with a fine by the Commissioner of Securities pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13(a)(1)(A)(iv) since it was found that the seller had acted willfully, but there was no showing that the seller had acted in knowing and intentional violation of the Georgia Securities Act of 1973, former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-1 et seq.; the Commissioner's issuance of a cease and desist order which was not limited solely to the willful acts of the seller was proper under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13(a)(1). Garvin v. Sec'y of State, 266 Ga. App. 66, 596 S.E.2d 166, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 171 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1027, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 517 (Ga. June 7, 2004), rev'd sub nom. Cox v. Garvin, 278 Ga. 903, 607 S.E.2d 549, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 15 (2005), vacated in part, 272 Ga. App. 860, 614 S.E.2d 93, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13).

Construction with O.C.G.A. § 13-6-11. — Ancillary award of attorney fees and expenses in favor of a seller was ordered struck, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-12-8, as: (1) the jury failed to find the buyers liable on the seller's underlying substantive claims; (2) the award was based on O.C.G.A. § 13-6-11, not former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14; and, as a result, (3) the lack of a damages award in favor of the seller did not support the award. Davis v. Johnson, 280 Ga. App. 318, 634 S.E.2d 108, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 846 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Remedy afforded by section is not sole remedy which a purchaser of securities is entitled to pursue. Turpin v. Wilson, 133 Ga. App. 239, 211 S.E.2d 316, 1974 Ga. App. LEXIS 1031 (1974) (noting subsection (e) of former Code 1933, § 97-114 preserves former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, § 13(c)).

Although former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14 prevented a purchaser of unregistered securities from pursuing civil damages arising from their sale, this statute of limitation did not otherwise prevent the purchaser from arguing that the contract remained unlawful and unenforceable because the passage of two years did not erase the unlawful nature of the underlying contract, but merely limited the remedies available. Carter v. Moody, 236 Ga. App. 262, 511 S.E.2d 520 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Cause of action is expressly provided by subsection (a) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14 in favor of purchasers for the violation of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12(a)(2). Diamond v. Lamotte, 709 F.2d 1419, 1983 U.S. App. LEXIS 25755 (11th Cir. 1983) (considering sales made before April 1, 1974, the effective date of this chapter, but noting two-year limitation appears in both Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, § 13(a), and subsection (c) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Remedy limited to buyer. — This section limits the civil remedy to the buyer of a security. Kirk v. First Nat'l Bank, 439 F. Supp. 1141, 1977 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13358 (M.D. Ga. 1977) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

It is clear that only buyers of security shall have a remedy for fraud. Kirk v. First Nat'l Bank, 439 F. Supp. 1141, 1977 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13358 (M.D. Ga. 1977) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Party who was both attorney for the transfer and a transferee of the stock was a purchaser and had standing to sue the sellers under subsection (a) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14. Bell v. Sasser, 238 Ga. App. 843, 520 S.E.2d 287, 1999 Ga. App. LEXIS 966 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Right of action against any transferor. — Legislative intent under the securities laws has been to give the right of action against the party transferring the title to the unregistered stock, whether the title was transferred by the original issuance of the stock or a transfer of stock already issued. Such an intent provides protection for different transferees who might have paid various prices for the stock. Utzman v. Caribbean & S.E. Dev. Corp., 107 Ga. App. 56, 129 S.E.2d 62, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 568 (1962) (decided under Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Any sale violating securities law voidable by purchaser. — This section provides that any sale of securities in violation of the securities law shall be voidable at the election only of the purchaser. Collins v. Norton, 136 Ga. App. 105, 220 S.E.2d 279, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 1262 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

No action for violation of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12(d). — Although the Georgia Securities Act does have a provision tracking the language of Securities and Exchange Rule 10b-5, former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12(d), no cause of action was expressly provided for its violation. Diamond v. Lamotte, 709 F.2d 1419, 1983 U.S. App. LEXIS 25755 (11th Cir. 1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. §§ 10-5-12 and 10-5-14).

Right of rescission. — Purchaser of securities sold without compliance with the prescribed regulations, who is not in pari delicto with the seller, may, within a specified or reasonable time, rescind the transaction and recover the money or other compensation paid therefore. Nash v. Jones, 224 Ga. 372, 162 S.E.2d 392, 1968 Ga. LEXIS 785 (1968) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Purported offers of rescission, stating that "you have the opportunity to rescind your subscription ... by letter notice to us within 72 hours after receipt of this letter," did not meet the specific requirements of paragraph (d)(1) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14 in that they did not (1) offer repayment of consideration; (2) within 30 days from the date of acceptance with (3) accrued interest thereon. Binder v. Gordian Sec., Inc., 742 F. Supp. 663, 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8915 (N.D. Ga. 1990) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Action for money had and received is substitute for suit in equity and, while founded on causes of action arising out of application of equitable principles, is an action at law by reason of its origin as a mode of action in the common-law courts. Turpin v. Wilson, 133 Ga. App. 239, 211 S.E.2d 316, 1974 Ga. App. LEXIS 1031 (1974) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Securities not delivered, refund refused. — It is not inappropriate for a purchaser to pursue recovery on a theory of assumpsit or money had and received when the defendant fails to deliver the securities contracted for and refuses to refund the moneys received from the purchaser. Turpin v. Wilson, 133 Ga. App. 239, 211 S.E.2d 316, 1974 Ga. App. LEXIS 1031 (1974) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Trial court did not err in charging a jury that scienter is an element of securities fraud under former O.C.G.A. §§ 10-5-12(a)(2) and 10-5-14(a); further, the trial court properly charged the jury that justified reliance is an element of securities fraud. Keogler v. Krasnoff, 268 Ga. App. 250, 601 S.E.2d 788, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 886 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1876, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 106 (Ga. Jan. 24, 2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Tender of security into court is sufficient tender, even though no other tender has been made. Rushing v. Williams, 125 Ga. App. 601, 188 S.E.2d 437, 1972 Ga. App. LEXIS 1421 (1972) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Purchaser was not required to tender the original stock certificates when the purchaser tendered certificates equal to the number of shares purchased. Bell v. Sasser, 238 Ga. App. 843, 520 S.E.2d 287, 1999 Ga. App. LEXIS 966 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Purchaser's issuance of additional shares of stock to new investors following the sale did not affect the purchaser's entitlement to the repurchase remedy. Bell v. Sasser, 238 Ga. App. 843, 520 S.E.2d 287, 1999 Ga. App. LEXIS 966 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Attorney's fees. — Purchaser of securities who became director and key employee of corporation had no claim for attorney's fees in an abortive action for violation of the Securities Act. Nicholson v. Harris, 179 Ga. App. 35, 345 S.E.2d 63, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 1817 (1986) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-114 did not permit recovery of all attorney fees in a multicount action; only fees attributable to claims under the Georgia Securities Act are recoverable. Huggins v. Chapin, 233 Ga. App. 109, 503 S.E.2d 356.

Schemes to Defraud

Editor's notes. — Subsection (d) was added to former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12 by Ga. L. 1975, p. 928, § 24, and amended by Ga. L. 1979, p. 1296, § 8. As amended, it was now similar to the last paragraph of former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, § 11, which was repealed by Ga. L. 1973, p. 1202, § 26. Most of the cases cited below were decided under the 1957 Act, as indicated.

What constitutes "securities." — For purposes of a criminal conviction under the Georgia Securities Act of 1973, former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12 et seq., a scheme whereby the defendant convinced the victims to invest in boat docks, slips, or storage docks with a return on the victims' investment in a year involved "securities" because there was an investment and a reasonable expectation of profits and the victims relied on the defendant to bring about the profits. Branan v. State, 285 Ga. App. 717, 647 S.E.2d 606, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 628 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Only buyers have remedy. — Only buyers of security shall have a remedy for fraud. Kirk v. First Nat'l Bank, 439 F. Supp. 1141, 1977 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13358 (M.D. Ga. 1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-112).

Inhibits use of scheme with intent to defraud. — Existence of the scheme, device, or artifice, and its use with an intent to defraud, regardless of outcome, constitutes the inhibited act. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134); Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Whether fraud results or not. — Under this section, which penalizes any device, scheme or artifice to defraud, it is necessary only to prove the false statement and that the statement was made with an intent to defraud, whether fraud resulted or not. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

This section makes it a penal offense to do certain acts which would operate as a fraud regardless of whether a fraud was in fact successfully perpetrated or not. Cohen v. State, 101 Ga. App. 23, 112 S.E.2d 672, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 775 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

This section does not require the accomplished overt act of defrauding a person, but it is the use of the scheme, trick, or artifice with an intent to deceive which is prohibited. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Intent, not loss, subject matter of crime. — Scheme to defraud is such a scheme as is initiated by the perpetrator with an intent to defraud another and cause the other to suffer a pecuniary loss, but the intent, not the loss, is the subject matter of the crime. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134); Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Intent to defraud is the gist of an offense under that portion of this section which prohibits the use of a device, scheme, or artifice to defraud. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Victim's reaction to fraudulent practice is not essential element before a conviction is authorized. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Defrauding in fact need not be alleged. — It is not necessary in an indictment to allege that the victim was in fact defrauded. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Purpose of this section, making it unlawful in any transaction involving an offer to sell or buy securities to employ any scheme or device to defraud or engage in any act which would operate as a fraud upon a purchaser or seller, is to prevent practices in connection with the purchase or sale of such securities which are carried on with intent to defraud. An indictment alleging such a scheme or transaction is not subject to general demurrer (now motion to dismiss) although it fails to allege that the victim was in fact defrauded, since the only criminal intent necessary to be proved is the intent to defraud in the commission of the act or acts denounced by the statute. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Section also punishes scheme that operates or would operate as fraud. — While this section penalizes a false statement made with intent to defraud, whether loss is sustained or not, it also provides for punishment of a scheme or artifice which "operates or would operate" as a fraud, and thus subjects the offender to punishment (a) in the event the scheme to defraud actually operates as a fraud or (b) would, if successfully consummated according to the intentions of the perpetrator, be a fraud on the purchaser, even though it did not in fact so result. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109

If operation alleged as fraud, allegations must support conclusion. — When it is alleged that a certain act, practice, or transaction operated as a fraud and the indictment sets out the facts on which the state relies to prove this allegation, it is necessary, as against appropriate special demurrer, that the facts alleged sustain the conclusion that the transaction did in fact operate as a fraud against the named purchaser of stock. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

If operation alleged as fraud, pecuniary loss must be alleged. — Indictment is defective which alleges that a certain scheme did operate as a fraud upon the person who purchased the stocks, but does not also allege that the person defrauded also suffered a pecuniary loss. Curtis v. State, 99 Ga. App. 732, 109 S.E.2d 868, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1959) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Each count of defrauding separate person charges separate offense. — When each count of the indictment charges the accused with defrauding a separate and distinct person in a separate and distinct transaction of a stated amount of money, each count therefore charges the commission of a separate and distinct offense, which is clearly authorized. Strauss v. Stynchcombe, 224 Ga. 859, 165 S.E.2d 302, 1968 Ga. LEXIS 977 (1968) (decided under Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Defrauding in fact must be proved. — When a completed fraud is alleged, it is necessary to show the elements thereof, that is, that some person was in fact defrauded. Cohen v. State, 101 Ga. App. 23, 112 S.E.2d 672, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 775 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Fact that misrepresentations are occasional and isolated will not constitute defense so long as defendants direct the misrepresentations to be made, the misrepresentations are falsely made, the misrepresentations are made with intent to defraud, and are such as would operate as a fraud on the purchaser. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Jury may consider activities during formation of corporation. — Activities occurring during the formation of the corporation, including the sale of the stock, from which transaction the alleged violation of the securities law occurred, are properly considered by the jury when determining the defendants' intentions. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Isolated transaction might or might not be sufficient evidence of scheme to defraud, and it cannot be said that such is not contemplated by the law. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Evidence sufficient to prove scheme to defraud. — Considering the victim's testimony concerning representations made by defendant and the statements in the defendant's proposal regarding profitable investment portfolio applications of the victim's funds, the evidence was sufficient to prove a scheme in violation of subsection (h) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12. Moss v. State, 209 Ga. App. 486, 433 S.E.2d 692, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 902 (1993), cert. denied, No. S93C1612, 1993 Ga. LEXIS 899 (Ga. Oct. 5, 1993) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Evidence was sufficient to support the defendant's convictions on those securities fraud counts in which the state proved the defendant made misrepresentations to the defendant's victims that the defendant would invest the money the victims gave the defendant; but on those counts when no such evidence was presented, the defendant's convictions were reversed. Rasch v. State, 260 Ga. App. 379, 579 S.E.2d 817, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 390 (2003) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Evidence held sufficient to support conspiracy convictions. — When the evidence discloses that sales people were instructed by the defendants to make certain representations, which were ultimately shown to be false, for the purpose of securing purchasers of stock in the corporation, a finding that an unlawful scheme was entered into by and between the defendants and was perpetrated to defraud the investors is authorized, and supports conspiracy convictions. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

Instruction on right to rely on statements properly refused. — It is not error for the trial court to refuse a requested charge based on the theory that without a relationship of trust or fiduciary relationship a purchaser has no right blindly to rely on general statements and must exercise precaution to ascertain their basis of fact. Curtis v. State, 102 Ga. App. 790, 118 S.E.2d 264, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 752 (1960) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134).

No cause of action for violation of subsection (d). — Although the Georgia Securities Act does have a provision tracking the language of Securities and Exchange Rule 10b-5, subsection (d) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12, no cause of action was expressly provided for subsection (d)'s violation. Diamond v. Lamotte, 709 F.2d 1419, 1983 U.S. App. LEXIS 25755 (11th Cir. 1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12).

Liability of Controlling Persons, Partners, Executive Officers, and Directors

Liability under former subsection (b) was predicated on control of agent, and habit and course of dealing may be considered in determining agency. DeBoard v. Schulhofer, 156 Ga. App. 158, 273 S.E.2d 907, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2923 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

Director or officer not liable absent participation. — Director or officer of a corporation is not liable, merely because of the director's official character, for the fraud or false representations of the other officers or agents of the corporation or for fraud attributable to the corporation itself, if such director or officer is not personally connected with the wrong and does not participate in the wrong. Hamilton Bank & Trust Co. v. Holliday, 469 F. Supp. 1229, 1979 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12582 (N.D. Ga. 1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

Outside directors exercising reasonable care deemed exempt. — Outside directors of a corporation — i.e., those who are not full-time employees of the corporation — who exercise reasonable care in carrying out their duties are exempt from liability as controlling persons. Hamilton Bank & Trust Co. v. Holliday, 469 F. Supp. 1229, 1979 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12582 (N.D. Ga. 1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

Burden of establishing defendant as "controlling person". — Plaintiff bears the burden of establishing that a given defendant is a "controlling person" under the provisions of subsection (c) of former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14. Such defendant, however, may then assert the so-called "good faith" affirmative defense to "controlling person" liability. Binder v. Gordian Sec., Inc., 742 F. Supp. 663, 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8915 (N.D. Ga. 1990) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Controlling officer estopped from asserting lack of responsibility. — In action seeking to impose liability under former subsection (c) of this section upon controlling officer of corporation, when there was evidence from which inference is authorized that sums from transaction were deposited in accounts controlled by such officer, the officer's failure to offer to return these amounts, if the jury believed the officer had in fact received them, estops the officer from asserting any lack of responsibility for the transaction. DeBoard v. Schulhofer, 156 Ga. App. 158, 273 S.E.2d 907, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2923 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

Assumption of risks inferred from affirmation of unauthorized act. — Under former subsection (c) of this section, when one becomes aware of facts sufficient to put one on notice of an unauthorized act and affirms the act without further investigation, there may be an inference of willingness to assume concomitant risks. DeBoard v. Schulhofer, 156 Ga. App. 158, 273 S.E.2d 907, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2923 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

Purchaser who was given power of attorney to record the transfer of stock on the books of the corporation at the time of the sale was not thereby rendered jointly and severally liable for the sale of unregistered securities. Bell v. Sasser, 238 Ga. App. 843, 520 S.E.2d 287, 1999 Ga. App. LEXIS 966 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Statute of Limitations

Common-law fraud. — Common-law fraud claim, governed by four-year statute of limitations, was not reduced to the two-year period applicable to violations of securities laws simply because the alleged fraud involved the sale of stock. Stricker v. Epstein, 213 Ga. App. 226, 444 S.E.2d 91, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 524 (1994), cert. denied, No. S94C1353, 1994 Ga. LEXIS 927 (Ga. Sept. 8, 1994) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Federal equitable tolling principles inapplicable. — As a claim under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12 could not be characterized as a federally created remedy, federal equitable tolling principles did not apply, and such a claim, brought over two years after the purchase of stock, was time-barred. Wilkinson v. Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc., 585 F. Supp. 23, 1983 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18251 (N.D. Ga. 1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Action for gross negligence. — Cause of action for gross negligence in failing to discover and communicate the true facts and circumstances surrounding a corporation could arise solely by virtue of the securities laws as the laws exist at the time of the sales involved. No action to recover the purchase price of a security in violation of the securities law can be brought after two years from the date of such sale or contract for sale. Dehler v. Setliff, 143 Ga. App. 430, 238 S.E.2d 723, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2349 (1977) (considering sales made before April 1, 1974, but noting two-year limitation appears in both Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, § 13(a), and subsection (c) of former Code 1933, § 97-114; decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

Section 10(b) and Rule 10(b)(5) claims. — Applicable statute of limitations to be applied with respect to claims brought pursuant to § 10(b) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 and SEC Rule 10(b)(5) is the two-year limitations period found in former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14. Pidcock v. Sunnyland Am., Inc., 682 F. Supp. 1563, 1987 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10703 (S.D. Ga. 1987), rev'd, 854 F.2d 443, 1988 U.S. App. LEXIS 12138 (11th Cir. 1988) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

For purposes of a suit brought pursuant to § 10(b) of the federal Securities Exchange Act and Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder, against the actual sellers of the securities in question, Georgia's two-year statute of limitations applies. Currie v. Cayman Resources Corp., 595 F. Supp. 1364, 1984 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23274 (N.D. Ga. 1984), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 835 F.2d 780, 1988 U.S. App. LEXIS 217 (11th Cir. 1988) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Federal action for securities fraud. — Two-year limitation period in this section, rather than the four-year limitation period pertinent to common-law fraud actions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 9-3-31 and 51-6-1 et seq.), is applicable to federal security cases, as the state security law more nearly effectuates the goals of the federal securities laws. Osterneck v. E.T. Barwick Indus., Inc., 79 F.R.D. 47, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17822 (N.D. Ga. 1978) (plaintiffs allegedly induced to trade stock by misrepresentations in financial statements; decided under former Code 1933, § 97-114).

Federal churning claims. — Two-year state limitation applies to federal churning claims asserted under § 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and Rule 10b-5 of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Miller v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., 572

F. Supp. 1180, 1983 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13018 (N.D. Ga. 1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

When limitations period begins to run. — Two-year period under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14 begins to run at the moment plaintiff actually discovered, or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered the alleged federal securities law violation. Pidcock v. Sunnyland Am., Inc., 682 F. Supp. 1563, 1987 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10703 (S.D. Ga. 1987), rev'd, 854 F.2d 443, 1988 U.S. App. LEXIS 12138 (11th Cir. 1988) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Federal law determines when period begins to run. — When a state limitation period is applied in an action for violating federal securities law, federal law determines when the limitation period begins to run. Osterneck v. E.T. Barwick Indus., Inc., 79 F.R.D. 47, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17822 (N.D. Ga. 1978) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

Statute of limitations in an action under § 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and Rule 10b-5 is taken from the state law remedy which bears the closest resemblance since the federal securities laws do not establish a specific time period in which an action must be filed, but the time at which the action accrues and the statute begins to run is a question of federal law. Kennedy v. Tallant, 710 F.2d 711, 1983 U.S. App. LEXIS 25431 (11th Cir. 1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Tolling of limitations by fraudulent concealment. — Statements made to investors to the effect that counsel were working to recover misappropriated assets, which would be used to repay the investors, were essentially opinions that did not support fraudulent concealment so as to toll the two-year limitation of subsection (d). Barton v. Peterson, 733 F. Supp. 1482, 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3727 (N.D. Ga. 1990) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

Tolling of limitations in federal action for securities fraud. — Former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14 applied in an action brought under § 10(b) of the federal Securities and Exchange Act of 1934. Though the statute of limitations is borrowed from state law, tolling is governed by federal law. Leonard v. Stuart-James Co., 742 F. Supp. 653, 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8497 (N.D. Ga. 1990) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-14).

10-5-50. Unlawful practices with offer, sale, or purchase of security.

It is unlawful for a person, in connection with the offer, sale, or purchase of a security, directly or indirectly:

(1) To employ a device, scheme, or artifice to defraud;

(2) To make an untrue statement of a material fact or to omit to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statement made, in the light of the circumstances under which it is made, not misleading; or

(3) To engage in an act, practice, or course of business that operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon another person.

History.
Code 1981, § 10-5-50, enacted by Ga. L. 2008, p. 381, § 1/SB 358.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Scienter not sufficiently pled. — Investors' reliance on the defendants' positions as directors and officers, their attendance at meetings, and access to internal documents and reports was insufficient to allege a strong inference of scienter to support their securities fraud claims under O.C.G.A. § 10-5-12(a)(2), 15 U.S.C. § 78j(b), and 15 U.S.C. § 78u-4. Patel v. Patel, 761 F. Supp. 2d 1375, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7081 (N.D. Ga. 2011).

No intent to defraud found. — Borrowers did not commit fraud upon a lender; the borrowers advised the lender that the $150,000 the borrowers sought would fund the corporation for a few months until the borrowers secured a total of $1.5 million to build the necessary greenhouses, and the payment of salaries to themselves of $600 per week each was not inconsistent with the borrowers stated purpose. Because there was no intent to defraud, the borrowers were not liable for securities fraud under O.C.G.A. § 10-5-50. Sims v. Natural Prods. of Ga., LLC, 337 Ga. App. 20, 785 S.E.2d 659, 2016 Ga. App. LEXIS 248 (2016).

10-5-51. Fraud or deceit unlawful; adoption of rule.

(a) It is unlawful for a person that advises others for compensation, either directly or indirectly, or through publications or writings, as to the value of securities or the advisability of investing in, purchasing, or selling securities or that, for compensation and as part of a regular business, issues or promulgates analyses or reports relating to securities:

(1) To employ a device, scheme, or artifice to defraud another person; or

(2) To engage in an act, practice, or course of business that operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon another person.

(b) A rule adopted under this chapter may define an act, practice, or course of business of an investment adviser or an investment adviser representative, other than a supervised person of a federal covered investment adviser, as fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative and prescribe means reasonably designed to prevent investment advisers and investment adviser representatives, other than supervised persons of a federal covered investment adviser, from engaging in acts, practices, and courses of business defined as fraudulent, deceptive, or manipulative.

(c) A rule adopted under this chapter may specify the contents of an investment advisory contract entered into, extended, or renewed by an investment adviser.

History.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Subscription agreement's disclosure barred recovery. — Summary judgment for corporation, the corporation's chief executive officer (CEO), and the corporation's chief financial officer on an investor's claims pursuant to the Securities Act was proper; although the investor claimed that the investor had been misled by the CEO's promise that the investor would receive one-third of the corporation's stock in return for the investment, it was undisputed that a subscription agreement which the investor admittedly received and executed did not provide for the interest the investor claimed the investor was orally promised by the CEO, but rather, stated that the investor was receiving, at most, 8.16 percent of the outstanding common stock. Given that the subscription agreement so starkly contradicted the CEO's alleged promise, the investor knew that the latter was untrue, and the investor was not entitled to recover for the alleged violation of the Securities Act. Fernandez v. WebSingularity, Inc., 299 Ga. App. 11, 681 S.E.2d 717, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 829 (2009).

Failure to show fraud. — Guarantor of a bank loan could not show securities fraud by a bank based upon a consultant's representations as to the proposed imminent purchase of another bank in which the guarantor's company owned stock because the guarantor could not show either actionable misrepresentations or justifiable reliance regarding the consultant's representations. Furthermore, the consultant was not associated with the bank which made the loan to the guarantor's company. Griffin v. State Bank, 312 Ga. App. 87, 718 S.E.2d 35, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 899 (2011).

(a) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (b) of this Code section, a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter may require the filing of a prospectus, pamphlet, circular, form letter, advertisement, sales literature, or other advertising record relating to a security or investment advice, addressed or intended for distribution to prospective investors, including clients or prospective clients of a person registered or required to be registered as an investment adviser under this chapter.

(b) This Code section does not apply to sales and advertising literature specified in subsection (a) of this Code section which relates to a federal covered security, a federal covered investment adviser, or a security or transaction exempted by Code Sections 10-5-10 through 10-5-12, except as required pursuant to paragraph (7) of Code Section 10-5-10.

10-5-54. Unlawful to make false or misleading statements.

It is unlawful for a person to make or cause to be made, in a record that is used in an action or proceeding or filed under this chapter, a statement that, at the time and in the light of the circumstances under which it is made, is false or misleading in a material respect, or, in connection with the statement, to omit to state a material fact necessary to make the statement made, in the light of the circumstances under which it was made, not false or misleading.

The filing of an application for registration, a registration statement, a notice filing under this chapter, the registration of a person, the notice filing by a person, or the registration of a security under this chapter does not constitute a finding by the Commissioner that a record filed under this chapter is true, complete, and not misleading. The filing or registration or the availability of an exemption, exception, preemption, or exclusion for a security or a transaction does not mean that the Commissioner has passed upon the merits or qualifications of, or recommended or given approval to, a person, security, or transaction. It is unlawful to make, or cause to be made, to a purchaser, customer, client, or prospective customer or client a representation inconsistent with this Code section.

(a) A person that willfully violates this chapter, or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter, except Code Section 10-5-53 or the notice filing requirements of Code Section 10-5-21 or 10-5-34, or that willfully violates Code Section 10-5-54 knowing the statement made to be false or misleading in a material respect, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $500,000.00 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both. An individual convicted of violating a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter may be fined but may not be imprisoned if the individual did not have knowledge of the rule or order.

(b) The Attorney General or the proper prosecuting attorney with or without a reference from the Commissioner may institute criminal proceedings under this chapter.

(c) This chapter does not limit the power of this state to punish a person for conduct that constitutes a crime under other laws of this state.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134 and former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-24, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Punishment not jury issue. — Trial court's failure to submit the issue of punishment to the jury does not deny the defendant a substantial right. Bowler v. State, 145 Ga. App. 633, 244 S.E.2d 142, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2072 (1978) (decided under former Ga. L. 1957, p. 134, as amended).

"Willfully." — Court of Appeals of Georgia, First Division, concludes that the term "willfully" in former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13(a)(1)(A)(iv) had the same meaning that it had been construed to have in former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-24. Before any of the civil penalties of up to $50,000 for single violations and up to $500,000 for multiple violations can be imposed under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-13(a)(1)(A)(iv), there must be a knowing and intentional violation of the Georgia Securities Act of 1973, former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-1 et seq. Garvin v. Sec'y of State, 266 Ga. App. 66, 596 S.E.2d 166, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 171 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1027, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 517 (Ga. June 7, 2004), rev'd sub nom. Cox v. Garvin, 278 Ga. 903, 607 S.E.2d 549, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 15 (2005), vacated in part, 272 Ga. App. 860, 614 S.E.2d 93, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-24).

10-5-58. Enforcement of civil liability; damages.

(a) Enforcement of civil liability under this Code section is subject to the Securities Litigation Uniform Standards Act of 1998, 112 Stat. 3227.

(b) A person is liable to the purchaser if the person sells a security in violation of Code Section 10-5-20, or, by means of an untrue statement of a material fact or an omission to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statement made, in light of the circumstances under which it is made, not misleading, the purchaser not knowing the untruth or omission and the seller not sustaining the burden of proof that the seller did not know and, in the exercise of reasonable care, could not have known of the untruth or omission. An action under this subsection is governed by the following:

(1) The purchaser may maintain an action to recover the consideration paid for the security, less the amount of any income received on the security, and interest at the legal rate of interest from the date of the purchase, costs, and reasonable attorney fees determined by the court upon the tender of the security or for actual damages as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection;

(2) The tender referred to in paragraph (1) of this subsection may be made any time before entry of judgment. Tender requires only notice in a record of ownership of the security and willingness to exchange the security for the amount specified. A purchaser that no longer owns the security may recover actual damages as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection; and

(3) Actual damages in an action arising under this subsection are the amount that would be recoverable upon a tender less the value of the security when the purchaser disposed of it and interest at the legal rate of interest from the date of the purchase, costs, and reasonable attorney fees determined by the court.

(c) A person is liable to the seller if the person buys a security by means of an untrue statement of a material fact or omission to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statement made, in light of the circumstances under which it is made, not misleading, the seller not knowing of the untruth or omission, and the purchaser not sustaining the burden of proof that the purchaser did not know, and in the exercise of reasonable care, could not have known of the untruth or omission. An action under this subsection is governed by the following:

(1) The seller may maintain an action to recover the security and any income received on the security, costs, and reasonable attorney fees determined by the court upon the tender of the purchase price or for actual damages as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection;

(2) The tender referred to in paragraph (1) of this subsection may be made any time before entry of judgment. Tender requires only notice in a record of the present ability to pay the amount tendered and willingness to take delivery of the security for the amount specified. If the purchaser no longer owns the security, the seller may recover actual damages as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection; and

(3) Actual damages in an action arising under this subsection are the difference between the price at which the security was sold and the value the security would have had at the time of the sale in the absence of the purchaser's conduct causing liability and interest at the legal rate of interest from the date of the sale of the security, costs, and reasonable attorney fees determined by the court.

(d) A person acting as a broker-dealer or agent that sells or buys a security in violation of subsection (a) of Code Section 10-5-30, subsection (a) of Code Section 10-5-31, or Code Section 10-5-55 is liable to the customer. The customer, if a purchaser, may maintain an action for recovery of actual damages as specified in subsection (b) of this Code section, or, if a seller, for a remedy as specified in subsection (c) of this Code section.

(e) A person acting as an investment adviser or investment adviser representative that provides investment advice for compensation in violation of subsection (a) of Code Section 10-5-32, subsection (a) of Code Section 10-5-33, or Code Section 10-5-55 is liable to the client. The client may maintain an action to recover the consideration paid for the advice, interest from the date of payment, costs, and reasonable attorney fees determined by the court.

(f) A person that receives directly or indirectly any consideration for providing investment advice to another person and that employs a device, scheme, or artifice to defraud the other person or engages in an act, practice, or course of business that operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit on the other person is liable to the other person. An action under this subsection is governed by the following:

(1) The person defrauded may maintain an action to recover the consideration paid for the advice and the amount of any actual damages caused by the fraudulent conduct, interest from the date of the fraudulent conduct, costs, and reasonable attorney fees determined by the court, less the amount of any income received as a result of the fraudulent conduct; and

(2) This subsection does not apply to a broker-dealer or its agents if the investment advice provided is solely incidental to transacting business as a broker-dealer and no special compensation is received for the investment advice.

(g) The following persons are liable jointly and severally with and to the same extent as persons liable under subsections (b) through (f) of this Code section:

(1) A person that directly or indirectly controls a person liable under subsections (b) through (f) of this Code section, unless the controlling person sustains the burden of proof that the person did not know, and in the exercise of reasonable care could not have known, of the existence of conduct by reason of which the liability is alleged to exist;

(2) An individual who is a managing partner, executive officer, or director of a person liable under subsections (b) through (f) of this Code section, including an individual having a similar status or performing similar functions, unless the individual sustains the burden of proof that the individual did not know and, in the exercise of reasonable care could not have known, of the existence of conduct by reason of which the liability is alleged to exist;

(3) An individual who is an employee of or associated with a person liable under subsections (b) through (f) of this Code section and who materially aids the conduct giving rise to the liability, unless the individual sustains the burden of proof that the individual did not know and, in the exercise of reasonable care could not have known, of the existence of conduct by reason of which the liability is alleged to exist; and

(4) A person that is a broker-dealer, agent, investment adviser, or investment adviser representative that materially aids the conduct giving rise to the liability under subsections (b) through (f) of this Code section, unless the person sustains the burden of proof that the person did not know and, in the exercise of reasonable care could not have known, of the existence of conduct by reason of which liability is alleged to exist.

(h) A person liable under this Code section has a right of contribution as in cases of contract against any other person liable under this Code section for the same conduct.

(i) A cause of action under this Code section survives the death of an individual who might have been a plaintiff or defendant.

(j) A person may not obtain relief under subsection (b) of this Code section:

(1) For a violation of Code Section 10-5-20 or for a violation of subsection (d) or (e) of this Code section, unless the action is instituted within two years after the violation occurred; or

(2) Other than for a violation of Code Section 10-5-20 or for a violation of subsection (c) or (f) of this Code section, unless the action is instituted within the earlier of two years after discovery of the facts constituting the violation or five years after the violation occurred.

(k) A person that has made or has engaged in the performance of a contract in violation of this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter or that has acquired a purported right under the contract with knowledge of conduct by reason of which its making or performance was in violation of this chapter may not base an action on the contract.

(l) A condition, stipulation, or provision binding a person purchasing or selling a security or receiving investment advice to waive compliance with this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter is void.

(m) The rights and remedies provided by this chapter are in addition to any other rights or remedies that may exist, but this chapter does not create a cause of action not specified in this Code section or subsection (e) of Code Section 10-5-40.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Material aid or participation. — Unpublished decision: Custodian did not materially aid or participate in the sale because the investors alleged no facts tending to show that the custodian contributed to the fraudulent transactions in any way other than by fulfilling its contractual duties to act as custodian because the custodian executed the transactions on behalf of the parties, but did not procure the investments for the investors or recommend them; the custodian reported values of the securities to the investors, but expressly disclaimed any investigation; and the custodian held the securities on behalf of the investors, but undertook no duty to scrutinize the financial health of the investment funds. Curry v. TD Ameritrade, Inc., 662 Fed. Appx. 769, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 18996 (11th Cir. 2016).

Control person liability. — Unpublished decision: Investors' federal and state control person liability claims were properly dismissed because, while the investors alleged that the investment advisor committed and pled guilty to numerous violations of the securities laws, the custodian did not control the advisor, and there were no factual allegations tending to show that the custodian controlled the general business affairs of the advisor, much less had the power to direct the specific policies resulting in the fraud. Curry v. TD Ameritrade, Inc., 662 Fed. Appx. 769, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 18996 (11th Cir. 2016).

10-5-59. Exemptions to liability.

A purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice may not maintain an action under Code Section 10-5-58 if:

(1) The purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice receives in a record, before the action is instituted:

(A) An offer stating the respect in which liability under Code Section 10-5-58 may have arisen and fairly advising the purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice of that person's rights in connection with the offer and any financial or other information necessary to correct all material misrepresentations or omissions in the information that was required by this chapter to be furnished to that person at the time of the purchase, sale, or investment advice;

(B) If the basis for relief may have been a violation of subsection (b) of Code Section 10-5-58, an offer to repurchase the security for cash, payable on delivery of the security, equal to the consideration paid and interest from the date of the purchase, less the amount of any income received on the security; or, if the purchaser no longer owns the security, an offer to pay the purchaser upon acceptance of the offer damages in an amount that would be recoverable upon a tender, less the value of the security when the purchaser disposed of it and interest from the date of the purchase in cash equal to the damages computed in the manner provided in this subparagraph;

(C) If the basis for relief may have been a violation of subsection (c) of Code Section 10-5-58, an offer to tender the security on payment by the seller of an amount equal to the purchase price paid, less income received on the security by the purchaser, and interest from the date of the sale; or, if the purchaser no longer owns the security, an offer to pay the seller upon acceptance of the offer, in cash, damages in the amount of the difference between the price at which the security was purchased and the value the security would have had at the time of the purchase in the absence of the purchaser's conduct that may have caused liability and interest from the date of the sale;

(D) If the basis for relief may have been a violation of subsection (d) of Code Section 10-5-58 and if the customer is a purchaser, an offer to pay as specified in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph; or, if the customer is a seller, an offer to tender or to pay as specified in subparagraph (C) of this paragraph;

(E) If the basis for relief may have been a violation of subsection (e) of Code Section 10-5-58, an offer to reimburse in cash the consideration paid for the advice and interest from the date of payment; or

(F) If the basis for relief may have been a violation of subsection (f) of Code Section 10-5-58, an offer to reimburse in cash the consideration paid for the advice, the amount of any actual damages that may have been caused by the conduct, and interest from the date of the violation causing the loss;

(2) The offer under paragraph (1) of this Code section states that it must be accepted by the purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice within 30 days after the date of its receipt by the purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice or any shorter period, of not less than three days, that the Commissioner, by order, specifies;

(3) The offeror has the present ability to pay the amount offered or to tender the security under paragraph (1) of this Code section;

(4) The offer under paragraph (1) of this Code section is delivered to the purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice or sent in a manner that ensures receipt by the purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice; and

(5) The purchaser, seller, or recipient of investment advice that accepts the offer under paragraph (1) of this Code section in a record within the period specified under paragraph (2) of this Code section is paid in accordance with the terms of the offer.

ADMINISTRATION

Law reviews.
For article, "Securities Investigations Under the Georgia Securities Act," see 17 Ga. St. B. J. 14 (1980).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-11, which was subsequently repealed but was succeeded by provisions in this article, are included in the annotations for this article.

Privilege against incrimination. — Generally, corporate books and records cannot be insulated from reasonable demands by governmental authorities by claim of personal privilege as the privilege only applies to private property of a person claiming a privilege; thus, a corporate officer may not withhold testimony or documents on the ground that the corporation would be incriminated, nor may the custodian of corporate books or records withhold the books or records on the ground that the custodian personally might be incriminated by their production. Jacobs v. State, 157 Ga. App. 466, 278 S.E.2d 21, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1870 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-11).

Custodian of corporate or association books, by accepting custodianship, voluntarily assumes duty which overrides a claim of privilege with respect to production of records themselves, but does not waive a constitutional privilege as to oral testimony; therefore, a corporate officer who is a custodian of records may not resist production of corporate books in response to a subpoena even though such books may tend to incriminate the officer as an individual. Jacobs v. State, 157 Ga. App. 466, 278 S.E.2d 21, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1870 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-11).

Custodian must produce and identify records. — Custodian of corporate records must produce records if the custodian has the records and the custodian may also be required to identify the records. Jacobs v. State, 157 Ga. App. 466, 278 S.E.2d 21, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1870 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-11).

Disclosure of whereabouts of records or who has possession. — Custodian of corporate records may not be required to disclose whereabouts of such records or who has possession of the records if the custodian claims personal privilege of refusing to answer on ground that to do so would tend to incriminate the custodian. Jacobs v. State, 157 Ga. App. 466, 278 S.E.2d 21, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1870 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-11).

10-5-70. Administration of chapter; Commissioner of Securities; authority.

(a) The administration of this chapter shall be vested in the Secretary of State, who is designated as the Commissioner of Securities.

(b) The Commissioner shall have the authority to administer oaths in and to prescribe forms for all matters arising under this chapter. The Commissioner shall cooperate with the administrators of the securities laws of other states and of the United States with a view to assisting those administrators in the enforcement of their securities and investment adviser laws and to achieving maximum uniformity in the interpretation of like provisions of the laws administered by them and in the forms which are required to be filed under such laws.

(c) The Commissioner shall have authority to employ examiners, clerks and stenographers, and other employees as the administration of this chapter may require. The Commissioner shall also have authority to appoint and employ investigators who shall have, in any case that there is reason to believe a violation of this chapter has occurred or is about to occur, the right and power to serve subpoenas and to swear out and execute search warrants and arrest warrants.

(d) The Commissioner shall have the power to make such rules and regulations from time to time as he or she may deem necessary and proper for the enforcement of this chapter. Such rules and regulations shall be adopted, promulgated, and contested as provided in Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act."

(e) The Commissioner or any persons employed by the Commissioner shall be paid, in addition to their regular compensation, the transportation fare, board, lodging, and other traveling expenses necessary and actually incurred by each of them in the performance of their duties under this chapter.

(f) The Commissioner shall appoint, with the approval of the Governor, a person as assistant Commissioner and delegate such powers and duties under this chapter to such assistant Commissioner as he or she desires.

(g) To encourage uniform interpretation and administration of this chapter and effective securities regulation and enforcement, the Commissioner may cooperate with the securities agencies or administrators of one or more states, Canadian provinces or territories, another country, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Securities Investor Protection Corporation, any self-regulatory organization, any national or international organization, securities officials or agencies, or any governmental law enforcement or regulatory agency. The cooperation authorized may include, but is not limited to, participation in a central registration depository under this chapter for documents or records required or allowed to be maintained under this chapter and the designation of any such system as an agent for registration or receipt.

(h) Neither the Commissioner, the assistant Commissioner, nor any employee of the Commissioner may use for personal gain or benefit information filed with or obtained by the Commissioner which is not public information nor may the Commissioner, assistant Commissioner, or any employee of the Commissioner conduct securities dealings based upon information filed with or obtained by the Commissioner, even though such information is known to the public, if there has not been a sufficient period for the securities markets to assimilate the information.

(i) This chapter does not create or diminish a privilege or exemption that exists at common law, by statute or rule, or otherwise.

(j) The Commissioner may develop and implement investor education initiatives to inform the public about investing in securities, with particular emphasis on the prevention and detection of securities fraud. In developing and implementing these initiatives, the Commissioner may collaborate with public and nonprofit organizations with an interest in investor education. This subsection does not authorize the Commissioner to require participation or monetary contributions of a registrant in an investor education program.

Constitutionality. — Former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-21 was not unconstitutional for precluding counterclaims against the state Commissioner of Securities because immunity from suit is a legislative prerogative, and the legislature prescribed the terms and conditions upon which the state agreed to be sued. Womack v. State, 270 Ga. 56, 507 S.E.2d 425, 1998 Ga. LEXIS 801 (1998) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 10-5-21).

fees. — Fees collected by the Secretary of State as the commissioner of securities must be paid to the Fiscal Division of the Department of Administrative Services (now the Office of Treasury and Fiscal Services), and such fees may not be retained by the office of Secretary of State as reimbursements for the expenses of that office. 1969 Op. 10-5-71. Powers of Commissioner.

(a) The Commissioner may:

(1) Conduct public or private investigations inside or outside this state which the Commissioner considers necessary or appropriate to determine whether a person has violated, is violating, or is about to violate this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter or to aid in the enforcement of this chapter or in the adoption of rules and forms under this chapter;

(2) Require or permit a person to testify, file a statement, or produce a record, under oath or otherwise as the Commissioner determines, as to all the facts and circumstances concerning a matter to be investigated or about which an action or proceeding is to be instituted; and

(3) Publish in print or electronically a record concerning an action, proceeding, or investigation under or a violation of this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter if the Commissioner determines it is necessary or appropriate in the public interest and for the protection of investors.

(b) For the purpose of an investigation under this chapter, the Commissioner or his or her designated officer may administer oaths and affirmations, subpoena witnesses, seek compulsion of attendance, take evidence, require the filing of statements, and require the production of any records that the Commissioner considers relevant or material to the investigation.

(c) If a person does not appear or refuses to testify, file a statement, produce records, or otherwise does not obey a subpoena as required by the Commissioner under this chapter, the Commissioner may refer the matter to the Attorney General or the proper district attorney, who may apply to the superior court or a court of another state to enforce compliance. The court may:

(1) Hold the person in contempt;

(2) Order the person to appear before the Commissioner;

(3) Order the person to testify about the matter under investigation or in question;

(4) Order the production of records;

(5) Grant injunctive relief, including restricting or prohibiting the offer or sale of securities or the providing of investment advice;

(6) Impose a civil penalty of not less than $5,000.00 and not greater than $50,000.00 for each violation; and

(7) Grant any other necessary or appropriate relief.

(d) This Code section does not preclude a person from applying to superior court or a court of another state for relief from a request to appear, testify, file a statement, produce records, or obey a subpoena.

(e) An individual is not excused from attending, testifying, filing a statement, producing a record or other evidence, or obeying a subpoena of the Commissioner under this chapter or in an action or proceeding instituted by the Commissioner under this chapter on the ground that the required testimony, statement, record, or other evidence, directly or indirectly, may tend to incriminate the individual or subject the individual to a criminal fine, penalty, or forfeiture. If the individual refuses to testify, file a statement, or produce a record or other evidence on the basis of the individual's privilege against self-incrimination, the Commissioner may apply to superior court to compel the testimony, the filing of the statement, the production of the record, or the giving of other evidence. The testimony, record, or other evidence compelled under such an order may not be used, directly or indirectly, against the individual in a criminal case, except in a prosecution for perjury or contempt or otherwise failing to comply with the order.

(f) At the request of the securities administrator of another state or a foreign jurisdiction, the Commissioner may provide assistance if the requesting administrator states that it is conducting an investigation to determine whether a person has violated, is violating, or is about to violate a law or rule of the other state or foreign jurisdiction relating to securities matters that the requesting administrator regulates or enforces. The Commissioner may provide the assistance by using the authority to investigate and the powers conferred by this Code section as the Commissioner determines is necessary or appropriate. The assistance may be provided without regard to whether the conduct described in the request would also constitute a violation of this chapter or other law of this state if occurring in this state. In deciding whether to provide the assistance, the Commissioner may consider whether the requesting administrator is permitted and has agreed to provide assistance reciprocally within its state or foreign jurisdiction to the Commissioner on securities matters when requested; whether compliance with the request would violate or prejudice the public policy of this state; and the availability of resources and employees of the Commissioner to carry out the request for assistance.

(g) In the case of any investigation conducted under this Code section, the Commissioner may appoint an investigative agent who shall have the same investigative powers and authority as the Commissioner. The agent shall possess such qualifications as the Commissioner may require.

Amendments.
The 2024 amendment, effective July 1, 2024, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, substituted "or investigation" for "or an investigation" in paragraph (a)(3).

10-5-72. Violations; remedies and penalties.

(a) If the Commissioner believes that a person has engaged, is engaging, or is about to engage in an act, practice, or course of business constituting a violation of this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter or that a person has, is, or is about to engage in an act, practice, or course of business that materially aids a violation of this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter, the Commissioner may maintain an action in the superior court to enjoin the act, practice, or course of business and to enforce compliance with this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter.

(b) In an action under this Code section and on a proper showing, the court may:

(1) Issue a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order, or declaratory judgment;

(2) Order other appropriate or ancillary relief, which may include:

(C) Imposing a civil penalty up to $50,000.00 for a single violation or up to $500,000.00 for more than one violation; an order of rescission, restitution, or disgorgement directed to a person that has engaged in an act, practice, or course of business constituting a violation of this chapter or the predecessor Act or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter or the predecessor Act; and

(D) Ordering the payment of prejudgment and postjudgment interest; or

(3) Order such other relief as the court considers appropriate.

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2008, this Code section, which was enacted as Code Section 10-5-67, was redesignated as Code Section 10-5-72.

10-5-73. Cease and desist orders; denying, revoking, or conditioning exemptions for broker-dealers; civil penalties.

(a) If the Commissioner determines that a person has engaged, is engaging, or is about to engage in an act, practice, or course of business constituting a violation of this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter or that a person has materially aided, is materially aiding, or is about to materially aid an act, practice, or course of business constituting a violation of this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter, the Commissioner may:

(1) Issue an order directing the person to cease and desist from engaging in the act, practice, or course of business or to take other action necessary or appropriate to comply with this chapter;

(2) Issue an order denying, suspending, revoking, or conditioning the exemptions for a broker-dealer under subparagraph (b)(1)(D) or (b)(1)(F) of Code Section 10-5-30 or an investment adviser under subparagraph (b)(1)(C) of Code Section 10-5-32; or

(3) Issue an order under Code Section 10-5-13.

(b) An order under subsection (a) of this Code section is effective on the date of issuance. Upon issuance of the order, the Commissioner shall promptly serve each person subject to the order with a copy of the order and a notice that the order has been entered. The order must include a statement whether the Commissioner will seek a civil penalty or costs of the investigation, a statement of the reasons for the order, and notice that, within 30 days after receipt of a request in a record from the person, the matter will be scheduled for a hearing. If a person subject to the order does not request a hearing and none is ordered by the Commissioner within 30 days after the date of service of the order, the order becomes final as to that person by operation of law. If a hearing is requested or ordered, the Commissioner, after notice of and opportunity for hearing to each person subject to the order, may modify or vacate the order or extend it until final determination.

(c) If a hearing is requested or ordered pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, a hearing must be held pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act" and this chapter. A final order may not be issued unless the Commissioner makes findings of fact and conclusions of law in a record. The final order may make final, vacate, or modify the order issued under subsection (a) of this Code section.

(d) In a final order under subsection (c) of this Code section, the Commissioner may impose a civil penalty up to $50,000.00 for a single violation or up to $500,000.00 for more than one violation.

(e) In a final order under subsection (c) of this Code section, the Commissioner may charge the actual cost of an investigation or proceeding for a violation of this chapter or a rule adopted or order issued under this chapter.

(f) If a petition for judicial review of a final order is not filed in accordance with Code Section 10-5-78, the Commissioner may file a certified copy of the final order with the clerk of a court of competent jurisdiction. The order so filed has the same effect as a judgment of the court and may be recorded, enforced, or satisfied in the same manner as a judgment of the court.

(g) If a person does not comply with an order under this Code section, the Commissioner may petition a court of competent jurisdiction to enforce the order. The court may not require the Commissioner to post a bond in an action or proceeding under this Code section. If the court finds, after service and opportunity for hearing, that the person was not in compliance with the order, the court may adjudge the person in civil contempt of the order. The court may impose a further civil penalty against the person for contempt in an amount not less than $5,000.00 but not greater than $50,000.00 for each violation and may grant any other relief the court determines is just and proper in the circumstances.

(c) For the purpose of this Code section, an offer to sell or to purchase a security is made in this state, whether or not either party is then present in this state, if the offer:

(1) Originates from within this state; or

(2) Is directed by the offeror to a place in this state and received at the place to which it is directed.

(d) For the purpose of this Code section, an offer to purchase or to sell is accepted in this state, whether or not either party is then present in this state, if the acceptance:

(b)(1) For the purpose of conducting any investigation as provided in this Code section, the Commissioner shall have the power to administer oaths, to call any party to testify under oath at such investigations, to require the attendance of witnesses, to require the production of books, records, and papers, and to take the depositions of witnesses; and for such purposes the Commissioner is authorized to issue a subpoena for any witness or a subpoena for the production of documentary evidence. Such subpoenas may be served by registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, to the addressee's business mailing address or by investigators appointed by the Commissioner or shall be directed for service to the sheriff of the county where such witness resides or is found or where the person in custody of any books, records, or papers resides or is found. The fees and mileage of the sheriff, witness, or person shall be paid from the funds in the state treasury for the use of the Commissioner in the same manner that other expenses of the Commissioner are paid.

(2) The Commissioner may issue and apply to enforce subpoenas in this state at the request of a securities agency or commissioner of another state if the activities constituting an alleged violation for which the information is sought would be a violation of this chapter if the activities had occurred in this state.

The notice of intent or summary order may be entered without notice, without opportunity for hearing, and need not be supported by findings of fact or conclusions of law, but must be in writing.

(b) Upon entry of a notice of intent or summary order, the Commissioner shall promptly notify all interested parties that the notice or summary order has been entered and the reasons therefor. If the proceeding is pursuant to a notice of intent, the Commissioner shall inform all interested parties of the date, time, and place set for the hearing on the notice. If the proceeding is pursuant to a summary order, the Commissioner shall inform all interested parties that they have 30 business days from the entry of the order to file a written request for a hearing on the matter with the Commissioner and that the hearing will be scheduled to commence within 30 business days after the receipt of the written request.

(e) If a hearing is requested or ordered, the Commissioner, after notice of, and opportunity for, hearing to all interested persons, may modify or vacate the order or extend it until final determination.

(f) No final order or order after hearing may be returned without:

(a) Any person aggrieved by a final order of the Commissioner may obtain a review of the order in a superior court of appropriate jurisdiction by filing in court, within 60 days after the entry of the order, a written petition praying that the order be modified or set aside in whole or in part. A copy of the petition for review shall be served upon the Commissioner.

(b) Upon the filing of a petition for review, except where the taking of additional evidence is ordered by the court pursuant to subsection (e) or (f) of this Code section, the court shall have exclusive jurisdiction of the matter, and the Commissioner may not modify or set aside the order, in whole or in part.

(c) The filing of a petition for review under subsection (a) of this Code section does not, unless specifically ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the Commissioner's order, and the Commissioner may enforce or ask the court to enforce the order pending the outcome of the review proceedings.

(d) Upon receipt of the petition for review, the Commissioner shall certify and file in the court a copy of the order and the transcript or record of the evidence upon which it was based. If the order became final by operation of law under subsection (d) of Code Section 10-5A-28, the Commissioner shall certify and file in court the summary order and evidence of its service upon the parties to it and an affidavit certifying that no hearing has been held and that the order became final pursuant to subsection (d) of Code Section 10-5A-28.

(e) If either the aggrieved party or the Commissioner applies to the court for leave to adduce additional evidence and shows to the satisfaction of the court that there were reasonable grounds for failure to adduce the evidence in the hearing before the Commissioner or other good cause, the court may order the additional evidence to be taken by the Commissioner under such conditions as the court considers proper.

(f) If new evidence is ordered taken by the court, the Commissioner may modify the findings and order by reason of the additional evidence and shall file in the court the additional evidence together with any modified or new findings or order.

(g) The court shall review the petition based upon the original record before the Commissioner as amended under subsections (e) and (f) of this Code section. The findings of the Commissioner as to the facts, if supported by competent, material, and substantive evidence, are conclusive. Based upon this review, the court may affirm, modify, enforce, or set aside the order, in whole or in part.

General Consideration

"Agency". — "Agency" is the relationship which results from the manifestation of consent by one person to another that the other shall act on one's behalf and subject to one's control, and consent by the other so to act. Smith v. Merck, 206 Ga. 361, 57 S.E.2d 326, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 354 (1950); Aetna Ins. Co. v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 453 F.2d 687, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 11693 (5th Cir. 1972); Flournoy v. City Fin. of Columbus, Inc., 679 F.2d 821, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18438 (11th Cir. 1982).

Word "agency" may refer to that relationship created by express or implied contract or by law, whereby one party delegates the transaction of some lawful business with more or less discretionary power to another, who undertakes to manage the affair and to render an account thereof. Smith v. Merck, 206 Ga. 361, 57 S.E.2d 326, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 354 (1950).

Consent essential for liability for other's act. — Relationship of master and servant cannot be imposed upon a person without the person's consent, express or implied; hence, the defendant was free to select the defendant's own servant, and was responsible for the acts of the defendant's servant within the scope of the defendant's employment, but the defendant was not responsible for the act of an assistant permitted, without the defendant's authority, to act for the defendant. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

No liability beyond scope of agency. — Beyond the scope of agency, a principal is not bound by the acts of the agent. Abercrombie v. Ford Motor Co., 81 Ga. App. 690, 59 S.E.2d 664, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 973, rev'd, 207 Ga. 464, 62 S.E.2d 209, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 636 (1950).

Agency relationship may arise by implication as well as by express authority. Greenbaum v. Brooks, 110 Ga. App. 661, 139 S.E.2d 432, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 730 (1964).

Agent or servant is frequently employed by contract or express agreement, but this is not necessary to establish the relationship, which may arise by implication as well as expressly. Griffin v. Russell, 144 Ga. 275, 87 S.E. 10, 1915 Ga. LEXIS 167 (1915).

Confidential relationship rising to agency. — Confidential relationship between employer and employee may rise to agency dimensions when a showing is made of a relationship which in fact justifies the reposing of confidence in one party by another. Remediation Servs., Inc. v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 209 Ga. App. 427, 433 S.E.2d 631, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 907 (1993), cert. denied, No. S93C1657, 1993 Ga. LEXIS 1005 (Ga. Oct. 22, 1993).

Law of agency is not confined to business transactions. Hubert v. Harpe, 181 Ga. 168, 182 S.E. 167, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 52 (1935).

Manual service. — "Agency" relates to business transactions, while the work of a servant relates to manual service. Headrick v. Fordham, 154 Ga. App. 415, 268 S.E.2d 753, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2203 (1980).

Contractual relationships. — Relationship between a gas station and the company that leased property and sold gas to the station was a purely contractual one between two independent businesses, not an agency or joint venture. Wells v. Vi-Mac, Inc., 226 Ga. App. 261, 486 S.E.2d 400, 1997 Ga. App. LEXIS 592 (1997), cert. denied, No. S97C1353, 1997 Ga. LEXIS 856 (Ga. Oct. 3, 1997).

Trial court erred in granting a rental company summary judgment in a car owner's action alleging that the company breached a settlement agreement because the company was obligated to pay any settlement amounts negotiated by the company's agent, an independent third party administrator, and issues of fact remained as to whether the company issued payment according to the terms of the settlement agreement, which were also disputed. Hearn v. Dollar Rent A Car, Inc., 315 Ga. App. 164, 726 S.E.2d 661, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 338 (2012).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in denying a temporary staffing agency's motion for a new trial based on the failure of a widow and a hospital to spontaneously disclose their litigation agreement because there was nothing in the record to show that the agency's ignorance of the litigation agreement rendered the trial fundamentally unfair; even if the widow benefitted from the hospital's efforts to enforce the hospital's right to indemnity, such incidental benefit did not make the hospital the widow's agent. Med. Staffing Network, Inc. v. Connors, 313 Ga. App. 645, 722 S.E.2d 370, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 46 (2012), cert. denied, No. S12C0940, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 533 (Ga. May 29, 2012).

Trial court did not err by finding that the surgeons were not vicariously liable for the medical student's negligence as a matter of law under agency principles because there was no agency or employment relationship between the parties, as the agreement between the medical school and the host agency specified that the medical student was not considered an employee or agent of the practice nor was the agreement intended to create any agency, employer/employee, or fiduciary relationship between the parties. Statham v. Quang, 371 Ga. App. 55, 899 S.E.2d 275, 2024 Ga. App. LEXIS 82 (2024).

Agency held not created by business relationship. — Trial court erred by denying summary judgment to a subcontractor on the contractor's breach of fiduciary claim because the evidence did not raise an issue of fact regarding the existence of a special agency or any other confidential relationship between the parties as the business relationship was an arms-length one and even adversarial. UWork.com, Inc. v. Paragon Techs., Inc., 321 Ga. App. 584, 740 S.E.2d 887, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 355 (2013), cert. denied, No. S13C1277, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 823 (Ga. Oct. 7, 2013).

Control by employer determines agency relationship. — Test to be applied in determining whether the relationship of the parties constitutes an agency is whether the contract gives, or the employer assumes, the right to control the time and manner of executing the work, as distinguished from the right merely to require results in conformity to the contract. Greenbaum v. Brooks, 110 Ga. App. 661, 139 S.E.2d 432, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 730 (1964); McMullan v. Georgia Girl Fashions, Inc., 180 Ga. App. 228, 348 S.E.2d 748, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 2093 (1986).

Agent creates obligations on behalf of principal. — An employee performs work for the master, but an agent, within the ambit of the employee's authority, represents the employee's principal in some business dealing and is vested with authority, real or ostensible, to create obligations on behalf of the employee's principal, bringing third parties into contractual relations with the principal. Lagerstrom v. Beers Constr. Co., 157 Ga. App. 396, 277 S.E.2d 765, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1837 (1981).

Apparent authority to do act is created as to a third person when the statements or conduct of the alleged principal reasonably cause the third person to believe that the principal consents to have the act done on the principal's behalf by the purported agent. Hinely v. Barrow, 169 Ga. App. 529, 313 S.E.2d 739, 1984 Ga. App. LEXIS 1625 (1984).

Apparent authority to offer stock in a company did not arise from the fact that the person making the offer was a part owner of the company and a company officer, particularly as a promise of transfer of company stock was not ordinary company business. Reindel v. Mobile Content Network Co., LLC, 652 F. Supp. 2d 1278, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 73044 (N.D. Ga. 2009).

No principal/agent relation exists if employee has no delegated authority to act for the business except to pay bills in the absence of the owner and if the employee has no authority to purchase, to contract, to hire or fire, or even supervise other personnel. Commercial Union Ins. Co. v. Taylor, 169 Ga. App. 177, 312 S.E.2d 177, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 3016 (1983).

Dual agent. — Acts of an individual in procuring liability insurance for a company, of which the individual was the chairperson, and issuing liability insurance policies on behalf of an insurer of which the individual was the president, had been occurring and recurring for more than 30 years with the knowledge and consent of all parties, and made the individual a dual agent. The individual's misconduct in procuring a policy which did not cover certain acts of employees could not be imputed to either of the principals, who were not actually at fault. Edwards-Warren Tire Co. v. Cole, Sanford & Whitmire, 188 Ga. App. 395, 373 S.E.2d 83, 1988 Ga. App. LEXIS 1048 (1988).

Liability for subagent's acts. — Unless a primary agent, expressly or impliedly authorized by the principal as owner of an automobile to drive the automobile on the business of the owner, is personally expressly or impliedly authorized to appoint a subagent for that purpose, the owner will not be liable for the negligence of the latter. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

Liability when employment of subagent is ratified. — If a servant who is employed to do certain work for a master employs another person to assist the master, the master is liable for the negligence of the assistant only when the servant had authority, express or implied, to employ the assistant, or when the act of employment is ratified by the master. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

If one who is employed to drive a motor vehicle, without the consent of and against specific instructions of the master, engages a substitute driver, the master is not liable for the negligence of the substitute driver unless the act of the servant employing the substitute driver is ratified by the master. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444

(1953); Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Raley, 104 Ga. App. 717, 123 S.E.2d 272, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 780 (1961).

Independent contractor may also be agent; thus, a person may be an independent contractor and at the same time act as an agent for a particular purpose. National Home Life Assurance Co. v. Hawkins, 151 Ga. App. 60, 258 S.E.2d 913, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2423 (1979).

Existence of agency relationship must be determined from all facts and circumstances. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 453 F.2d 687, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 11693 (5th Cir. 1972).

Contract of agency signed by both parties is not essential to the creation of the principal-agent relationship. Clyde Chester Realty Co. v. Stansell, 151 Ga. App. 357, 259 S.E.2d 639, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2595 (1979).

Payment of compensation is not necessary ingredient of principal and agent. Carmichael v. Silvers, 90 Ga. App. 804, 84 S.E.2d 668, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 819 (1954).

Payment of compensation does not alone create agency. — If landowners entered into a contract of sale with a prospective purchaser, conditioned upon furnishing satisfactory title, designating a certain firm of brokers as the owners' agent, and stipulating that, in the event the sale was consummated, the purchaser would pay such brokers' commission, the mere fact that the purchaser undertook to pay such commission did not of itself alone create the relation of principal and agent between the purchaser and the brokers under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3569 and 3574. Richardson v. DuPree, 32 Ga. App. 3, 122 S.E. 707, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 211 (1924).

Contracts of agency involve assuming legal rights and duties. — Contracts of agency, to be cognizable in law, must, like other agreements, have reference to the assumption of legal rights and duties, as opposed to engagements of a mere civic or social character, or of such other nature as to exclude monetary values. Huckeby v. Smith, 42 Ga. App. 719, 157 S.E. 234, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 119 (1931).

Obligations imposed on agent as soon as agency created. — At the very moment a property owner accepts the offer of a corporation engaged in the real estate business to sell the property, the latter becomes the owner's agent, and thereupon all the obligations of an agent to a principal become operative. Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

Sales of securities. — To hold an individual to be an agent who has participated or aided in making sales of securities, the court must find that the individual was so entangled in the actual sale of the security that the individual's activities were at least a substantial factor in the purchaser's decision to buy the security and that the individual's activities were either authorized or ratified by the issuer. In re N. Am. Acceptance Corp. Sec. Cases, 513 F. Supp. 608, 1981 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18595 (N.D. Ga. 1981).

Creating agency under franchise agreement. — Franchise contract under which one operates a type of business on a royalty basis does not create an agency or a partnership relationship. Whitco Produce Co. v. Bonanza Int'l, Inc., 154 Ga. App. 92, 267 S.E.2d 627, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2051 (1980).

Franchise agreement giving no control, or right of control, over the methods or details of doing the work of the franchisee does not create an agency relationship. Holiday Inns, Inc. v. Newton, 157 Ga. App. 436, 278 S.E.2d 85, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1859 (1981).

When indicia of agency were missing from a franchise agreement, the trial court did not err in granting summary judgment to the franchisor in a suit for false imprisonment based on actions of the franchisee and the franchisee's employees. McMullan v. Georgia Girl Fashions, Inc., 180 Ga. App. 228, 348 S.E.2d 748, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 2093 (1986).

No agency relationship created by franchise agreement. — Franchisor's motion for j.n.o.v. on the real estate investment company's negligence claim was improperly denied as there was no evidence that the franchisee was an actual agent of the franchisor for purposes of vicarious liability because the franchise agreement contained no provisions giving the franchisor supervisory control over the day-to-day activities of the franchisee; the franchisor did not exercise supervisory control over the franchisee's escrow account; and the owner of the franchisee clarified that individual franchisees could get help and advice, but that franchisees had their own decisions to make, and that the franchisor did not have to approve individual real estate deals before the franchisee could accept the deals. New Star Realty, Inc. v. Jungang PRI USA, LLC, 346 Ga. App. 548, 816 S.E.2d 501, 2018 Ga. App. LEXIS 415 (2018), cert. denied, No. S18C1532, 2019 Ga. LEXIS 167 (Ga. Mar. 4, 2019).

Ineffective agreement to modify sublease did not create agency relationship between the plaintiff (sublessee) and the lessee whereby the plaintiff had the right to exercise a lease renewal option as the lessee's agent, since the agreement by the agreement's terms purported to grant the plaintiff the same rights as held by the lessee and did not purport to authorize the plaintiff to assert those rights on behalf of the lessee. Regional Pacesetters, Inc. v. Halpern Enters., Inc., 165 Ga. App. 777, 300 S.E.2d 180, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2016 (1983).

Nurse is agent of hospital rather than a patient's attending psychiatrist as the nurse works for the hospital and not a particular psychiatrist, taking only such orders from hospital psychiatrists as are indicated on a patient's chart. Myers v. State, 251 Ga. 883, 310 S.E.2d 504, 1984 Ga. LEXIS 533 (1984).

Liability for child's tort. — Relationship of principal and agent must appear in order to create liability on the father for the tort of the minor child. Lacey v. Forehand, 27 Ga. App. 344, 108 S.E. 247, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 886 (1921).

Principal/agency relationship may exist between husband and wife as to establishment of a boundary line. Barron v. Chamblee, 199 Ga. 591, 34 S.E.2d 828, 1945 Ga. LEXIS 412 (1945).

Services performed by spouse for another. — When a husband and wife are living together, the husband is entitled to the services of the wife, and any valuable services which she may render to another are rendered by the husband, by and through the instrumentality of the wife as his agent. Cooper v. Cooper, 59 Ga. App. 832, 2 S.E.2d 145, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 417 (1939).

Where an aged father comes to live in the home of his son, and, while living there, the father becomes ill and is cared for by the son's wife during his sickness, and his wants are ministered to by her, and the son and his wife are living together, the services thus rendered to the father are rendered by the son, through the agency of the wife. If the husband then agrees with his wife that she perform the services and shall herself be entitled to compensation therefor from the father, such agreement is in the nature only of an assignment by the husband to the wife of the husband's right of title and interest in any chose in action which he may have against the father to recover for the services rendered, which are rendered by the husband through the agency and instrumentality of the wife. Such an agreement, even if it confers on the wife the right to her earnings under the alleged contract, creates no contract where none existed and confers upon her no right which the husband did not possess to recover of the father's estate. Cooper v. Cooper, 59 Ga. App. 832, 2 S.E.2d 145, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 417 (1939).

Husband permitted to manage wife's property. — If a wife permitted her husband to manage and control her property or allowed him so to deal with it as to induce others to believe that it was his property or that he was acting as her authorized agent, such facts were sufficient to establish the agency in favor of persons who dealt with him in such belief, when she knew that her husband was so managing and controlling her property and made no objection thereto. Aronoff v. Woodard, 47 Ga. App. 725, 171 S.E. 404, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 627 (1933).

Foreclosure sale valid when no duties violated. — Foreclosure sale was valid because there was no defect in the assignment of the power of sale from the nominee to the lender when the security deed did not lack any essential terms regarding the nominee's role, rights, or duties under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1 and no consideration was needed under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-64(a). The lender did not violate the automatic stay of 11 U.S.C. § 362(a) by recording the sale post-petition because the Chapter 13 debtor retained no interest in the property after the sale. Bishop v. GMAC Mortg., LLC (In re Bishop), 470 B.R. 633, 2011 Bankr. LEXIS 5123 (Bankr. M.D. Ga. 2011).

No express or implied consent to sign arbitration agreement. — Nursing home was not entitled to compel arbitration of a wrongful death suit because the plaintiff, the decedent's child, did not have the decedent's power of attorney or the decedent's express or implied consent to sign the arbitration agreement on the decedent's behalf; the child, by signing the agreement, did not express an intent to surrender any of the child's own rights; and the child was not estopped by signing it from pursuing a wrongful death claim in the child's individual capacity. Hogsett v. Parkwood Nursing & Rehab. Ctr., Inc., 997 F. Supp. 2d 1318, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19436 (N.D. Ga. 2014).

Upon admitting a parent to a nursing home, an adult child's signature on an arbitration agreement did not bind the parent because the child was not the parent's agent by virtue of being the child and there was no evidence that the parent had authorized the child to act for the parent as required by O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1. McKean v. GGNSC Atlanta, LLC, 329 Ga. App. 507, 765 S.E.2d 681, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 725 (2014).

Motion to enforce an arbitration agreement was properly denied as a valid and enforceable arbitration agreement did not exist because, although the decedent's daughter signed a nursing home admission agreement and an arbitration agreement, the decedent did not personally assent to the arbitration agreement; and the daughter did not have express or implied authority to sign the arbitration agreement on the decedent's behalf as the decedent did not execute any written document expressly authorizing the daughter to act for the decedent, and none of the words or conduct of the decedent could have caused the nursing home to believe that the decedent consented to having the arbitration agreement signed on the decedent's behalf by the daughter. United Health Servs. of Ga., Inc. v. Alexander, 342 Ga. App. 1, 802 S.E.2d 314, 2017 Ga. App. LEXIS 302 (2017), cert. denied, No. S17C1926, 2017 Ga. LEXIS 1020 (Ga. Dec. 11, 2017).

Nursing home patient's authorization of the patient's brother-in-law (BIL) to act as the patient's agent for health care decisions allowed the BIL to sign an admission agreement for a nursing facility, but it did not encompass signing a voluntary arbitration agreement that was not a precondition to admission or the furnishing of services at the facility. Coleman v. United Health Servs. of Ga., 344 Ga. App. 682, 812 S.E.2d 24, 2018 Ga. App. LEXIS 122 (2018).

Agency held created. — Landlord's agent having authority generally to look after the landlord's farming business in a certain community, whose conduct in respect to the agent's dealings with one of the landlord's tenants will, in the language of the landlord, be "satisfactory" to the landlord, is an agent, having such general authority that it may be inferred that the agent possesses authority to bind the landlord in the purchase of supplies such as fertilizer furnished to the tenant which is necessary in the farming operations. Jolly v. Chattahoochee Fertilizer Co., 28 Ga. App. 194, 110 S.E. 639, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 381 (1922).

If a corporation receives funds from a bank with direction to place them on call loan for the bank and the corporation undertakes to place the funds on call loan, a fiduciary relationship of principal and agent arises between the parties. Bank of Dania v. Farmers' & Traders' Bank, 169 Ga. 846, 151 S.E. 803, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 46 (1930).

When, in order to secure an unpaid balance on the purchase price of an automobile, the defendant executed a retention of title note to a third-party motor company, payable in installments in certain definite amounts on various consecutive dates, and, before the payment and maturity of any of the installments, the third-party motor company, without the defendant's knowledge, transferred the note to the plaintiff bank, and the defendant thereafter continued to pay to the motor company certain installments as they fell due, which payments the motor company transmitted to the bank, which accepted the same in payment of the installments due, such a course of dealing was sufficient to authorize the inference that the bank had constituted the motor company its secret agent in dealing with the defendant to collect the installments as they fell due, despite the fact that the defendant had found out from the bank that it held the note, the defendant asking the bank at that time if the motor company had remitted the payments to it and the bank informing the defendant that it had, and that the defendant had continued to make payments to the motor company. Powell v. Bank of Manchester, 46 Ga. App. 264, 167 S.E. 343, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 22 (1933).

When for some time alleged agent of the defendant purchased agricultural products for the defendant with drafts drawn upon the defendant, on which drafts the plaintiff bank advanced to the defendant's agent the cash, the defendant was bound by such acts of the agent and estopped to deny that such person was acting as the defendant's agent or set up that the defendant was not liable for the amount of the plaintiff's money advanced on such unpaid drafts for the purchase of the farm products for the defendant which the defendant received and retained. Rowland v. Farmers Bank, 52 Ga. App. 50, 182 S.E. 81, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 28 (1935).

Evidence supported findings that a stepchild, who bought a salvage business from a stepparent, had a legal right to control its operation and the stepchild created a relation of principal and agent by telling the stepparent that the stepparent could continue as operator. Vessell v. Walker, 231 Ga. App. 713, 499 S.E.2d 688, 1998 Ga. App. LEXIS 331 (1998).

Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1, a verbal authorization from a decedent was sufficient to create a valid agency relationship between the decedent and a brother and a wife so as to allow them to withdraw money for the decedent from the accounts on a periodic basis; the equal dignity rule did not apply in this case because the instruments at issue were not subject to the statute of frauds. Rowland v. Rowland, No. 1:04-CV-2068-TWT, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30296 (N.D. Ga. Nov. 16, 2005).

Trial court properly determined that a police officer who did moonlighting as a security guard for an apartment complex was acting as an agent, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1, for the owners of the complex when the officer retrieved a rape kit and held it for a period of time, as there was no police purpose for having done so, nor was there any purpose from a police standpoint to have the kit processed, as the police case was closed; the officer's order to have the rape kit destroyed, even though the rape victim's lawyer had asked that the evidence relevant to the rape be preserved, constituted spoliation of evidence that was attributable to the owners, and sanctions against the owners for that conduct were proper. Bouve & Mohr, LLC v. Banks, 274 Ga. App. 758, 618 S.E.2d 650, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 772 (2005), cert. denied, No. S05C2015, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 877 (Ga. Nov. 18, 2005).

Joint insured clause of a fidelity bond that gave a holding company the right to "act for" the company's subsidiary, a bank, created an agency relationship and did not entitle the trustee in the holding company's bankruptcy case to pursue a breach of contract action based on the insurer's failure to pay the bank's claim; the cause of action was not part of the bankruptcy estate. Lubin v. Cincinnati Ins. Co., 677 F.3d 1039, 2012 U.S. App. LEXIS 2276 (11th Cir. 2012).

In a breach of fiduciary duty and fraud action wherein an investment company obtained a jury verdict in the company's favor as against a site manager, the manager's spouse, and others, the trial evidence supported the conclusion that a fiduciary relationship arose between the site manager and the investment company as the investment company entrusted significant financial responsibility and authority to the site manager, who engaged in a financial kickback scheme diverting thousands of dollars from the investment company. Wright v. Apt. Inv. & Mgmt. Co., 315 Ga. App. 587, 726 S.E.2d 779, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 367 (2012), cert. denied, No. S12C1410, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 915 (Ga. Oct. 29, 2012).

Agency held not created. — By using intermediaries as channels of transmission for papers, relying upon the intermediaries inspection of property and examination of titles, made at the borrower's instance, and forwarding the money through the intermediaries also at the borrower's instance, the lender does not constitute such intermediaries as agents to make the loan and is not chargeable with the consequences of dealings between the intermediaries and the borrower, whether those dealings be public or private, known or unknown. Davis v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 196 Ga. 304, 26 S.E.2d 618, 1943 Ga. LEXIS 350 (1943).

When, in an action by a landowner for the negligent burning of an outbuilding, pasture land, and personal property thereon, the evidence showed that the defendant's fiancé went to his property, which adjoined that of the plaintiff's, to clean up around the house and while so doing started a trash fire which she allowed to spread, causing the damage sued for, that she did this while the defendant was at work, and that the defendant had no notice of her actions until he was notified of the fire, the evidence was insufficient to show the relationship of principal and agent between the defendant and his fiancé so as to charge the defendant with her negligence in the burning of the plaintiff's property, notwithstanding the fact that the defendant testified that though he did not know at that time that his fiancé was out at his place, had he known it, it would have been all right with him. Basinger v. Huff, 98 Ga. App. 288, 105 S.E.2d 362, 1958 Ga. App. LEXIS 568 (1958).

Chief underwriter of an insurance company who was authorized under a reinsurance treaty to cede a portion of insurance risks to reinsurers, who were, in the normal course of business, liable from the moment the reinsurance was ceded to the reinsurers, was not an agent of the reinsurers, because the reinsurers had no right to regulate the underwriter's conduct, the reinsurers obligations would not have been affected by the underwriter's death, retirement, or replacement, and the reinsurers were liable under the treaty regardless of the identity of the underwriter. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 453 F.2d 687, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 11693 (5th Cir. 1972).

Since the evidence simply showed that the plaintiff was solicited by A as A's "working partner"; that plaintiff did not meet or converse with B before entering into an agreement with A to become a partner; that plaintiff gave A a check for "half dealership partnership investment"; and that plaintiff and A, as partners, signed a "Dealership Agreement" with B, there was no showing of an agency relationship between A and B. McCulley v. Dunson, 149 Ga. App. 551, 254 S.E.2d 877, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 1927 (1979).

Leasing director who was an at-will employee of a real estate broker was not an agent of the broker because the director was not authorized to obligate the broker by entering into contracts on its behalf. Atlanta Mkt. Ctr. Mgt. Co. v. McLane, 269 Ga. 604, 503 S.E.2d 278 (reversing McLane v. Atlanta Mkt. Ctr. Mgt. Co., 225 Ga. App. 818, 486 S.E.2d 30 (1997)).

Real estate broker was not acting as an agent for its real estate director, an at-will employee, in negotiations with a client regarding the payment of commissions when the director had not authorized the broker to create obligations on the director's behalf during the negotiations. Atlanta Mkt. Ctr. Mgt. Co. v. McLane, 269 Ga. 604, 503 S.E.2d 278 (reversing McLane v. Atlanta Mkt. Ctr. Mgt. Co., 225 Ga. App. 818, 486 S.E.2d 30 (1997)).

No agency was created since there was no evidence showing that employees could create obligations on behalf of their employer or bring third parties into contractual relations with their employer. The employees were not agents owing a fiduciary duty to the employer. Physician Specialists in Anesthesia, P.C. v. Wildmon,

When the homeowners contracted with a home builder independent of any dealing with the developer and the realtor, and that contract failed to contain any evidence that an agency was established between the developer, realtor, and the homebuilder, the developer and realtor were entitled to a directed verdict on the homeowners' breach of contract and fraudulent conversion claims; further, since those two claims provided the only basis for a verdict, the homeowners were not entitled to recover litigation expenses. Fountainhead Dev. Corp. v. Dailey, 263 Ga. App. 677, 588 S.E.2d 768, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 1205 (2003), cert. denied, No. S04C0405, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 232 (Ga. Mar. 1, 2004).

Because no evidence was presented that a lessee's child acted as an agent for the lessee when the lease on the rented premises was entered into, and the lessee never ratified the child's actions on the lease, the lessee was not liable for unpaid rents on the leased premises; as a result, since such was the basis for the lessor's counterclaim, an award of attorney's fees under O.C.G.A. § 13-6-11 was reversed. Ellis v. Fuller, 282 Ga. App. 307, 638 S.E.2d 433, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 1375 (2006).

Mobile home dealer failed to show that a debtor which resold loans to a bank was acting as the bank's agent; actual authority had not been shown as there was no evidence that the bank had the right to control the time, manner, and method of the debtor's work, and the facts that the debtor earned money from the loans it sold to the bank and that the bank required that the loans it purchased meet certain criteria did not show such control. Satisfaction & Serv. Hous., Inc. v. SouthTrust Bank, Inc., 283 Ga. App. 711, 642 S.E.2d 364, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 163 (2007).

Mobile home dealer failed to show that a debtor which resold loans to a bank had apparent authority to act as the bank's agent; the dealer had not provided any evidence that the bank engaged in any conduct that caused the dealer to believe that the debtor was the bank's agent. Satisfaction & Serv. Hous., Inc. v. SouthTrust Bank, Inc., 283 Ga. App. 711, 642 S.E.2d 364, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 163 (2007).

Because a decedent patient's husband did not have the actual or apparent authority to bind the decedent to an arbitration agreement, which was part of the documents the husband signed for the decedent to be cared for by a nursing home, the agreement was not enforceable against the decedent or the decedent's estate; thus, the trial court properly denied the nursing home's motion to compel arbitration of the wrongful death claims filed by the decedent's administrator. Ashburn Health Care Ctr., Inc. v. Poole, 286 Ga. App. 24, 648 S.E.2d 430, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (2007), cert. denied, No. S07C1614, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 611 (Ga. Sept. 10, 2007).

Because: (1) evidence demonstrating an agency relationship between the grantees and the grantor of a security deed was lacking, and (2) the mere lapse of time was insufficient to establish the affirmative defense of laches, partial summary judgment was properly entered in the trustee's favor on that claim based on mutual mistake as well as an order invalidating the foreclosure sale upon that deed. Thus, any testimony as to the intent of the parties upon entering into the security deed was immaterial. Harvey v. Bank One, N.A., 290 Ga. App. 55, 658 S.E.2d 824, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 244 (2008).

Jury issue as to agency determination. — In a disputed commodities transaction, there was at least a jury issue regarding which party or parties the merchants' broker represented in brokering the sale at issue and in signing and sending the confirmation of sale order. Brooks Peanut Co. v. Great S. Peanut, LLC, 322 Ga. App. 801, 746 S.E.2d 272, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 618 (2013).

Agency by Ratification

Ratification creates agency. — One acts as agent for another whenever the principal ratifies the acts done on the principal's behalf. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Ansley, 111 Ga. App. 784, 143 S.E.2d 422, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 1097 (1965).

Agency by Ratification (Cont'd)

Unauthorized agent. — Act of one holding oneself out as an agent in consummating a sale for one's principal may be ratified by the principal, even if the agent was unauthorized in the first place to make the sale. Harris v. Underwood, 208 Ga. 247, 66 S.E.2d 332, 1951 Ga. LEXIS 341 (1951).

Principal bound. — Unauthorized act of an agent, when subsequently ratified, will bind the principal. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Blount, 33 Ga. App. 642, 127 S.E. 892, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 660 (1925).

Ratification of particular act is co-extensive with act, and only makes the person who performed the act a special agent pro hac vice. Merchants' Bank v. Rawls, 7 Ga. 191, 1849 Ga. LEXIS 124 (1849).

Acceptance of benefits flowing from acts of agent is "implied ratification," whether the principal intends to ratify the agency or not. Lewis v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 139 Ga. App. 855, 229 S.E.2d 765, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2021 (1976).

Action against principal who benefitted from act. — If the principal has obtained the benefits of a transaction in which a draft was given by the agent, the injured party may bring an action on the original transaction against the principal. Rowland v. Farmers Bank, 52 Ga. App. 50, 182 S.E. 81, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 28 (1935).

Knowledge of act required. — Unauthorized act of an agent, done in the principal's behalf, cannot be ratified without actual knowledge of the act. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Blount, 165 Ga. 193, 140 S.E. 496, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 351 (1927).

Knowledge of all material facts required. — In order to allege a good cause of action as to ratification, it must be shown that the ratifying body, such as a city council, had full knowledge of all material facts in connection with the transaction in question. City of Atlanta v. Smith, 84 Ga. App. 815, 67 S.E.2d 480, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 803 (1951).

Ratification presumed unless act repudiated. — If a principal is informed by an agent of what the agent has done, unless the principal repudiates the act promptly or within a reasonable time, a ratification will be presumed. Harris v. Underwood, 208 Ga. 247, 66 S.E.2d 332, 1951 Ga. LEXIS 341 (1951).

By accepting the benefits of a pest treatment contract, by making payments on the contract, and by filing an earlier suit claiming breach of the contract, a customer and the customer's spouse ratified the contract even if the signature on the contract was irregular, and were bound by the contract's arbitration clause. Lankford v. Orkin Exterminating Co., 266 Ga. App. 228, 597 S.E.2d 470, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 351 (2004).

Mere act of pleading stranger's act as satisfaction is of itself ratification. Jordan v. Belvin, 57 Ga. App. 719, 196 S.E. 132, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 373 (1938).

Knowingly accepting notes to principal's order. — When certain foreign bills of exchange were drawn by the defendants as shipping agents and factors of the plaintiff, payable to the plaintiff's order, though not signed by the defendants as agents, but drawn so as to enable the plaintiff to receive the proceeds thereof, according to the usage and custom of the cotton trade, and the plaintiff received such bills, without objection and with full knowledge of such facts, it amounts to ratification, and the defendants are not individually liable to the principal as the drawers of the bills. Jones v. J.W. Lathrop & Co., 44 Ga. 398, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 393 (1871).

Expressing regret, offering to pay for damage, not ratification. — Action of the defendant and the defendant's spouse a few days after a fire caused by the spouse, in going to the plaintiff and expressing regret for the damage and offering to pay for the damage, was not such a ratification of the spouses's acts as would charge the defendant with the spouse's negligence as the defendant's agent. Basinger v. Huff, 98 Ga. App. 288, 105 S.E.2d 362, 1958 Ga. App. LEXIS 568 (1958).

Nightclub not liable for injuries inflicted by patron. — Doctrine of ratification was inapplicable in an action for injuries at defendant's nightclub from actions of a patron since the evidence showed that the unidentified patron acted in an individual capacity and not as one holding oneself out as acting in the name of or under the authority of the defendant. Ginn v. Renaldo, Inc., 183 Ga. App. 618, 359 S.E.2d 390, 1987 Ga. App. LEXIS 2023 (1987).

Knowledge, acquiescence, obtaining benefits was ratification of lease agreement. — Company was liable for rent due on a lease that was assigned to the company's subsidiary, although permission had only been obtained to assign the lease directly to the company, under a piercing the corporate veil theory; it was found that the company ratified the original tenant's conduct in having the lease assigned to it, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1, since the company was aware of the tenant's assignment, acquiesced therein, and obtained the benefits from such assignment. Multi-Media Holdings, Inc. v. Piedmont Ctr., 15 LLC, 262 Ga. App. 283, 583 S.E.2d 262, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 714 (2003).

Evidence of spouse's actual or apparent authority insufficient. — Although it was undisputed that the patient did not sign the arbitration agreement personally, the operator asserted that the patient's spouse was the patient's agent and, therefore, had the authority to bind the patient to the agreement by signing the spouse's name; in Georgia, an agency relationship was created whenever one person, expressly or by implication, authorized another to act for the person or subsequently ratified the acts of another in the person's behalf, O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1, and because the operator had not proven, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the patient expressly authorized the operator to act on the patient's behalf in signing the arbitration agreement, an agency relationship was created, if at all, by implication. Under Georgia law, the agent's authority shall be construed to include all necessary and usual means for effectually executing it; even assuming that the version of events put forth by the operator's witnesses was true, the operator failed to meet the operator's burden of proving that the patient's spouse had actual or apparent authority to bind the patient by signing the arbitration agreement; accordingly, the arbitration agreement was not enforceable against the patient pursuant to 9 U.S.C. § 4, and the operator's motion to compel arbitration and stay discovery was denied. Gentry v. Beverly Enterprises-Georgia Inc., 714 F. Supp. 2d 1225, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 127194 (S.D. Ga. 2009).

Plausible that jury concluded account owner ratified by adding beneficiary's name. — Trial court properly denied the challenger's motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict because there was evidence to support the jury's special verdict that the named beneficiary owned the IRA account at issue since it was plausible that the jury concluded that the owner ratified the act of placing the beneficiary's name on the account. Lucas v. Charles Schwab & Co., 354 Ga. App. 522, 841 S.E.2d 150, 2020 Ga. App. LEXIS 201 (2020).

Franchisors. — Plaintiffs did not plausibly allege that the franchisors had "full knowledge of all the material facts" regarding the franchise employees' actions in assisting and facilitating sex trafficking. Accordingly, the plaintiffs did not plausibly allege that the franchisors ratified the franchise employees' actions, and the district court did not err in dismissing the negligence claims. Doe v. Red Roof Inns, Inc., 21 F.4th 714, 2021 U.S. App. LEXIS 38060 (11th Cir. 2021).

Operation of Automobile

Parent liable when child operates car with consent. — When a mother keeps an automobile to be used for the comfort and pleasure of her family, including her minor son as a member thereof, his driving the car for the comfort and pleasure of himself and his friends, allegedly with her knowledge and consent and as her agent and chauffeur, is her business or affair within the meaning of the rule of law that the master is liable for the negligence of a servant acting within the scope of the servant's employment and in regard to the master's business. Griffin v. Russell, 144 Ga. 275, 87 S.E. 10, 1915 Ga. LEXIS 167 (1915).

Use of vehicle solely for owner's benefit. — It is not necessary to show a true master-servant relationship or the payment of compensation, but if the owner of a vehicle expressly procures another to do something solely for the owner's benefit, an agency relationship exists, regardless of whether the direction is couched as a request or as a demand, and regardless of whether the agent receives monetary compensation. Walker Hall, Inc. v. Fincher, 120 Ga. App. 193, 169 S.E.2d 745, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 713 (1969); Reese v. Sanders, 153 Ga. App. 654, 266 S.E.2d 313, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1936 (1980).

Bailment where vehicle furnished as accommodation. — If the furnishing of an automobile is within what may be said to be a "business" of the owner, one to whom the car is entrusted for such purpose is not a bailee, as in a case of lending, but is a servant or agent; if on the other hand, the car is furnished by the owner merely as an accommodation to the other, with no interest or concern in the purpose for which the other will use it, then its use, whether for recreation or otherwise, is not within the business of the owner, and the transaction is a mere bailment. Hubert v. Harpe, 181 Ga. 168, 182 S.E. 167, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 52 (1935).

"Loaner" arrangement between car dealers and mechanics and their customers is a bailment, not an agency. Stallings v. Sylvania Ford-Mercury, Inc., 242 Ga. App. 731, 533 S.E.2d 731, 2000 Ga. App. LEXIS 321 (2000).

Family purpose doctrine. — When the evidence shows that the driver's operation of the car was not on appellee's behalf, agency principles other than the family purpose doctrine do not apply to establish that the driver was appellee's agent in driving the car. Chambers v. Scarboro, 149 Ga. App. 172, 253 S.E.2d 798, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 1773 (1979).

Hirer of rented automobile not owner's agent. — If a person rents or hires an automobile from the automobile's owner under a contract by which the hirer or an employee, and none other, is to operate the automobile, and, after a stipulated period of time, return it to the owner, and when it does not appear that the hirer, when using the automobile pursuant to this contract, is on the business of the owner and therefore acting as the owner's agent, the relationship between the parties as established by the contract is not alone sufficient to establish the relationship of principal and agent between the owner of the automobile and the hirer or the latter's employee, when the hirer or the hirer's employee afterwards operates the automobile pursuant to the terms of the contract. Cantrell v. Hertz Drivurself Stations, 40 Ga. App. 840, 151 S.E. 694, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 726 (1930).

Spouse driving family car deemed agent. — When a person maintained an automobile for use by the person's family, including the person's spouse, and which was at the disposal of the spouse to use at any time and was kept for that purpose, and since the spouse, with the person's consent, used the automobile for the purpose of going on a trip, the spouse, in taking and operating the car while on the trip, did so as the authorized agent of the person, and any negligence on the spouse's part in the operation of the automobile pursuant to the purpose for which the spouse was using it was imputable to the person. Petway v. McLeod, 47 Ga. App. 647, 171 S.E. 225, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 588 (1933).

Procedure

1. Pleading

Allegation of agency tested by facts alleged. — If the pleader in seeking to allege an agency relationship sets out the facts as the facts really exist or are deemed to exist, the allegations that the parties are principal and agent is a legal conclusion which must be tested by the facts as alleged. Powell v. Kitchens, 84 Ga. App. 701, 67 S.E.2d 203, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 770 (1951).

Agency sufficiently alleged. — Simple direct allegation that the operator of an automobile, in driving the defendant's family to a designated point in the defendant's automobile, was acting as the defendant's agent, is a sufficient allegation of agency. Garnto v. Henson, 88 Ga. App. 320, 76 S.E.2d 636, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1074 (1953).

Since it was alleged that at the defendant's special request an individual was using the defendant's vehicle for the purpose of looking after the needs of the defendant's aged parents and the defendant's sister, two of whom were ill; that the individual had been spending several nights at their home and carrying them groceries and medicines; that the individual was at the time of a collision proceeding toward their home to attend to their needs during the night; that all of these acts were at the defendant's request and for the defendant's benefit; and that this was the purpose for which the car had been entrusted to the individual, which purpose the individual was actually attempting to effectuate at the time of the collision, it could not be said as a matter of law that the plaintiff's pleading failed on its face to show an agency relationship. Powell v. Kitchens, 84 Ga. App. 701, 67 S.E.2d 203, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 770 (1951).

Plaintiff did not sufficiently allege any actual agency relationship between an insurer and either defendant; the complaint alleged no facts as to the level of control, did not elaborate on the nature of control, and made no allegations about any express agency agreement or other facts to suggest that the insurer was a defendant's agent. Moreover, the allegations did not plausibly suggest that the plaintiff justifiably relied on the care or skill of the alleged agent based upon the alleged principal's representation. CHIS, LLC v. Liberty Mut. Holding Co., No., No. 5:14-CV-277, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90175 (M.D. Ga. July 13, 2015).

Debtor failed to allege any facts from which the court could reasonably conclude that anyone other than the manager and sole owner of an LLC had the power to authorize others to act on behalf of the LLC in negotiating a settlement agreement. Nor did the debtor allege any course of dealings or special circumstances from which the court could reasonably infer that any other defendants, their employees, or their attorneys were acting with apparent authority. Rohrig Invs., LP v. Knuckle P'ship, LLLP (In re Rohrig Invs., LP), 584 B.R. 382, 2018 Bankr. LEXIS 1004 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2018).

2. Evidence

Circumstantial evidence. — Proof of agency may be made by showing circumstances, apparent relations, and the conduct of the parties. Nichols v. Lindsey, 45 Ga. App. 648, 165 S.E. 868, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 641 (1932); Ross v. Durrence, 181 Ga. 52, 181 S.E. 581, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 20 (1935); Larkins v. Boyd, 205 Ga. 69, 52 S.E.2d 307, 1949 Ga. LEXIS 514 (1949); Southern Mills, Inc. v. App. 126, 243 S.E.2d 281, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1889 (1978); Clyde Chester Realty Co. v. Stansell, 151 Ga. App. 357, 259 S.E.2d 639, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2595 (1979); Hadden v. Owens, 154 Ga. App. 467, 268 S.E.2d 760, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2230 (1980); Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980); Collins v. Martin, 157 Ga. App. 45, 276 S.E.2d 102, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1691 (1981).

A claim of agency may be proved, as any other fact, by circumstantial evidence. Greenbaum v. Brooks, 110 Ga. App. 661, 139 S.E.2d 432, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 730 (1964); Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Agency may be proved by circumstantial evidence alone. Fordham v. Garrett-Schwartz Motor Co., 121 Ga. App. 237, 173 S.E.2d 450, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS

Procedure (Cont'd)

1184 (1970); Bearlund v. Webb, 127 Ga. App. 555, 194 S.E.2d 328, 1972 Ga. App. LEXIS 948 (1972).

Way to show agency. — Proof of agency and of the nature of the agency may be made by showing circumstances, apparent relations, and the conduct of the parties; for the relation of principal and agent arises when one, by implication, authorizes another to act for that one. Martin & Hicks v. Bridges & Jelks Co., 18 Ga. App. 24, 88 S.E. 747, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 87 (1916).

Breach of fiduciary duty claim survived summary judgment because the plaintiff employer asserted that the defendant, a former employee, was the employer's agent while employed as a plant engineer. The undisputed evidence showed that the employee was intimately involved in the negotiations leading up to and the continuous administration of the contracts with a contractor; and not only was the employee responsible for bringing the contractor to the employer, the employee was charged with supervision and inspection of the contractor's contract work; the employee was authorized to prepare bid documentation and enter into contracts to carry out the employee's work, and the employee was also authorized to oversee contractors, inspect the contractor's work, and verify that the work was completed correctly. GIW Indus. v. JerPeg Contr., Inc., 530 F. Supp. 2d 1323, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2051 (S.D. Ga. 2008).

Declarations of alleged agent. — Declarations of one alleged to be an agent or one assuming to be an agent would not, by themselves, be admissible to prove agency, yet when such declarations of the alleged agent are accompanied by other evidence as to the conduct of the person in the character of agent and an acceptance by the alleged principal of the fruits of the agency, such declarations are admissible in evidence as a part of the res gestae and as such may be considered in the establishment of the agency. Lawhon v. Henshaw, 63 Ga. App. 683, 11 S.E.2d 846, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 528 (1940).

Agency is a fact, and one who is in fact the agent of another is as competent to testify that one is such agent as the principal personally would be to testify to the fact of such agency; yet the fact of an agency cannot be proved by mere unsworn declarations of one assuming to be an agent. Lawhon v. Henshaw, 63 Ga. App. 683, 11 S.E.2d 846, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 528 (1940).

Agency cannot be established by the declarations of the alleged agent alone. Greble v. Morgan, 69 Ga. App. 641, 26 S.E.2d 494, 1943 Ga. App. LEXIS 158 (1943); Carmichael v. Silvers, 90 Ga. App. 804, 84 S.E.2d 668, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 819 (1954); Warnock v. Elliott, 96 Ga. App. 778, 101 S.E.2d 591, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (1957).

Agency cannot be proved by declarations of alleged agent. Davis v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 196 Ga. 304, 26 S.E.2d 618, 1943 Ga. LEXIS 350 (1943).

Declarations of a general agent made while in the employ of the defendant are admissible to prove agency. Carmichael v. Silvers, 90 Ga. App. 804, 84 S.E.2d 668, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 819 (1954).

Fact of an agency may be established by proof of circumstances, apparent relations, the conduct of the parties, and the declarations of the alleged agent, though the declarations of the agent are inadmissible if standing alone; but the declarations become admissible as a part of the res gestae of the transaction and as such may be considered in establishing the fact of agency. Brewer v. Southeastern Fid. Ins. Co., 147 Ga. App. 562, 249 S.E.2d 668, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2775 (1978).

Trial court did not err in precluding a creative designer, who was employed by a game promoter a supermarket hired, from testifying, in a breach of contract action brought by a vendor the designer hired, that the designer was an agent for the supermarket. Process Posters, Inc. v. Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc., 263 Ga. App. 246, 587 S.E.2d 211, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 1103 (2003).

Declarations admissible once agency established. — Once agency is established, declarations and admissions of the person whose agency is shown, within the scope of one's authority, are admissible in evidence. Ross v. Durrence, 181 Ga. 52, 181 S.E. 581, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 20 (1935).

Assertion or denial of agency by stranger. — Bare assertion or denial of the existence of an agency relationship is a statement of fact when made by one of the purported parties to the relationship, but when made by an outsider, bare assertions are merely conclusions of law. Lewis v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 139 Ga. App. 855, 229 S.E.2d 765, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2021 (1976).

Assertion or denial of agency relationship constitutes factual statement when made by purported party to relationship, but such statements, when made by outsiders, constitute mere conclusions of law. Stone v. First Nat'l Bank, 159 Ga. App. 812, 285 S.E.2d 207, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2827 (1981).

Agency cannot be established by general reputation in the community as to such agency. Warnock v. Elliott, 96 Ga. App. 778, 101 S.E.2d 591, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (1957).

Conduct of principal and agent may be used to rebut the denial of the existence of agency and for the purpose of impeaching the testimony and contentions of the principal and agent as to the existence of the agency or the scope of the powers of the agent. Warnock v. Elliott, 96 Ga. App. 778, 101 S.E.2d 591, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (1957).

Only slight evidence needed of husband's agency. — While proof of the relationship of husband and wife, and that work was done and material furnished to improve real estate belonging to the wife, without more, is not sufficient evidence to establish the fact that she is an undisclosed principal and the husband merely her agent, so as to render her liable for contracts made by him with third persons, yet only slight evidence of the husband's agency is required under the law to charge the wife with being the principal. Gibbs v. Carolina Portland Cement Co., 50 Ga. App. 229, 177 S.E. 760, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 714 (1934).

Burden of proof. — If existence of agency is relied upon, burden of proof rests with party asserting relationship. Carter v. Kim, 157 Ga. App. 418, 277 S.E.2d 776, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1851 (1981).

Breach of duty shown. — In a breach of contract suit brought by a taxpayer against the tax service hired to handle real property assessments regarding an office building, a trial court ruling in favor of the tax service for tax year 2002 was reversed since the taxpayer established that the tax service breached a duty to the taxpayer by failing to protect the taxpayer from an upward reassessment of the taxpayer's property, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 48-5-299(c). However, because the taxpayer failed to show any damage or loss for tax year 2003, the trial court's ruling in favor of the tax service for that year was upheld. AT&T Corp. v. Property Tax Servs., 288 Ga. App. 679, 655 S.E.2d 295, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 1275 (2007).

Professional basketball player was not liable to inexperienced business people who invested and lost money by hosting sports event-related parties with two men claiming to act as the player's agents because, under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1, the business people failed to show that the "agents" had express or implied authority to act on the player's behalf. The unrebutted evidence showed that the player had never met the business people prior to being deposed and had no knowledge of the transaction. J'Carpc, LLC v. Wilkins, 545 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15494 (N.D. Ga. 2008).

In a breach of contract suit involving an employment contract, the trial court properly entered a judgment in favor of the former employee after a bench trial as there was sufficient evidence to support the conclusion that even though the person who signed the employment contract was not authorized to execute the employment contract on behalf of the employer, the employer ratified the agreement by failing to ever object to the agreement. In addition, the employer paid the former employee at least two times directly. A & S Group, Inc. v. Murray, 291 Ga. App. 331, 661 S.E.2d 701, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 501 (2008).

No breach of duty shown. — Trial court properly granted summary judgment to a former employee in the former employer's suit asserting breach of contract and breach of the duty of loyalty as the record established that the former employee did not inform the former employer's customers of the resignation from employment, nor did the former employee solicit any business from the former employer's customers, until after the resignation took place. Hanson Staple Co. v. Eckelberry, 297 Ga. App. 356, 677 S.E.2d 321, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 245 (2009).

Evidence held insufficient. — In an action premised on allegations of a breach of a land sales contract between a group of sellers and an investor, because the only evidence showing any authority to act as an agent for the sellers was based on hearsay, and not on a writing, and no exception applied, two of the sellers were entitled to a directed verdict against the investor pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 13-5-30(4). Dunn v. Venture Bldg. Group, Inc., 283 Ga. App. 500, 642 S.E.2d 156, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 93 (2007).

Summary judgment for a neighbor in a negligence suit by landowners arising out of fire damage was proper because a corporation, not the neighbor, owned the land on which the fire was set, and the person performing the burn was employed by the corporation, not the neighbor. There was no showing of agency under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1 or O.C.G.A. § 51-2-1(a) between the neighbor and the employee. Barrs v. Acree, 302 Ga. App. 521, 691 S.E.2d 575, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 170 (2010).

Unpublished decision: Securities broker-dealer firm could not have been held liable for its former employee's tortious conduct because the firm identified clear and unrefuted record evidence showing that the employee lacked authority to promote a stock within the firm and lacked authority to sell away. Owens v. Stifel Nicolaus & Co., 650 Fed. Appx. 764, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 9726 (11th Cir. 2016).

In a case in which the plaintiff was injured when a container of hot soup spilled onto the plaintiff's lap, and the plaintiff sued the defendant for the negligence of its owners, alleging the soup was improperly packaged, summary judgment was properly granted in favor of the defendant as there was insufficient evidence from which a jury could find it liable for negligence under the theory of agency because the plaintiff did not point to any evidence showing that the defendant held the other corporation out to be its agent or that the plaintiff relied on any such representation. Lowery v. Noodle Life, Inc., 363 Ga. App. 1, 869 S.E.2d 600, 2022 Ga. App. LEXIS 117 (2022).

Evidence held sufficient to establish agency relationship between freight forwarder and another common carrier. National Carloading Corp. v. Security Van Lines, 164 Ga. App. 850, 297 S.E.2d 740, 1982 Ga. App. LEXIS 3350 (1982).

3. Instructions

Giving charge under section held proper. — There being evidence sufficient to warrant the jury in finding that the alleged agent had express authority from the plaintiff to collect the note sued upon, and also that the latter had ratified partial collections thereon made by the former, the court did not err in giving the charge to the jury. National Bank v. Burt, 98 Ga. 380, 25 S.E. 502, 1896 Ga. LEXIS 45 (1896).

Correct charge as to execution of instrument. — While, when a person authorizes another to execute a written instrument for the person, in the person's presence, it is not necessary, in order to constitute the act of the person actually signing the instrument the act and deed of the person authorizing him to do so, that the person so authorizing should touch the pen, a charge by the court that when a person authorizes another in the person's presence to sign the instrument for the person and does touch the pen and make the person's mark, the act of the party making the signature is the act and deed of the person so authorizing, states a correct proposition of law. East Point Lumber Co. v. Chandler, 46 Ga. App. 361, 167 S.E. 787, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 70 (1933).

4. Questions of Law and Fact

Nonsuit may be granted when question of agency is one of law for the court. Warnock v. Elliott, 96 Ga. App. 778, 101 S.E.2d 591, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (1957).

Agent's actual or apparent authority to terminate real estate contract was fact question. — In a back-up buyer's action against the buyer and sellers of real property, an issue of fact remained regarding whether the buyer's agent's delivery of a termination letter to the sellers constituted substantial compliance with the termination provisions of the buyer's contract, and whether the agent had actual or apparent authority to terminate the contract under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1. Del Lago Ventures, Inc. v. QuikTrip Corp., 330 Ga. App. 138, 764 S.E.2d 595, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 820 (2014).

Jury questions if evidence shows agency. — If there is any evidence tending to establish the agency, the questions should be submitted to a jury. Warnock v. Elliott, 96 Ga. App. 778, 101 S.E.2d 591, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (1957).

Questions regarding existence of agency and extent of agent's authority are generally for the trier of fact. Renfroe v. Warren-Hawkins Am. Legion Post No. 523, 157 Ga. App. 614, 278 S.E.2d 414, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1935 (1981).

Issue of the relationship between an insurance agent and an insurance applicant must be reserved for jury determination, even though the insurance agent was not an agent of an insurer. Stewart v. Boykin, 165 Ga. App. 868, 303 S.E.2d 50, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2046 (1983).

Trial court erred by granting summary judgment to a private entity operating a county animal control shelter because genuine issues of material fact existed as to whether the shelter could be held liable for the euthanization of a hospitalized patient's dogs based upon the theory of promissory estoppel since while the releases may have authorized the shelter to euthanize the dogs, the shelter was also authorized to subsequently enter into a promise not to do so; thus, the patient, as a principal, would be entitled to damages suffered as a result of representations made to the patient's authorized agent acting on the patient's behalf to protect the well-being of the patient's dogs. Greenway v. Northside Hosp., 317 Ga. App. 371, 730 S.E.2d 742, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 706 (2012), rev'd, 294 Ga. 112, 751 S.E.2d 351, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 951 (2013), vacated in part, 328 Ga. App. 473, 763 S.E.2d 488, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 337 (2014).

Trial court erred in granting summary judgment to a surety because jury questions existed as to whether two subcontractors were the same company, whether an owner acted as an agent on behalf of one of those subcontractors when the owner procured the bonds, and whether the bonds were intentionally written fraudulently based on admissions made by counsel for the surety during the hearing. Choate Constr. Co. v. Auto-Owners Ins. Co., 318 Ga. App. 682, 736 S.E.2d 443, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 977 (2012).

Jury finding that dual agency existed supported by evidence. — Jury did not err by concluding that a representative of the plaintiff was a dual agent for the plaintiff and the defendant with regard to the purchase of a helicopter because there was some evidence to support that finding based on the plaintiff's testimony that the plaintiff exercised control over the representative and the representative went to the location to purchase the helicopter, obtained insurance, and otherwise performed other actions on behalf of the plaintiff. Eagle Jets, LLC v. Atlanta Jet, Inc., 321 Ga. App. 386, 740 S.E.2d 439, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 321 (2013).

No jury question if evidence shows agency beyond dispute. — If the evidence for both the plaintiff and the defendant showed beyond dispute that a certain individual was an agent of the defendant when the defendant assaulted the plaintiff, the court erred in giving charge that the jury should determine whether the defendant was an agent or an independent contractor. Carmichael v. Silvers, 90 Ga. App. 804, 84 S.E.2d 668, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 819 (1954).

Summary judgment improper. — Complaint alleging that an agreement had been reached between the plaintiff's neighbor and a representative of an animal control facility for the safekeeping of the plaintiff's dogs while the plaintiff was hospitalized, set forth a claim for promissory estoppel, O.C.G.A. § 13-3-44(a), and the plaintiff, as a principal, would be entitled to damages suffered as a result of representations made to the plaintiff's neighbor, an authorized agent acting on the plaintiff's behalf, to protect the well-being of the plaintiff's dogs. Thus, a grant of summary judgment in favor of the operator of the animal control facility was reversed. Greenway v. Northside Hosp., 317 Ga. App. 371, 730 S.E.2d 742, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 706 (2012), rev'd, 294 Ga. 112, 751 S.E.2d 351, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 951 (2013), vacated in part, 328 Ga. App. 473, 763 S.E.2d 488, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 337 (2014).

Trial court erred in granting summary judgment on its claims against the buyer and the contingent sellers because there was a genuine issue of material fact regarding whether the agent's delivery of the termination letter constituted substantial compliance with the termination provisions of the real estate sales contract. Del Lago Ventures, Inc. v. QuikTrip Corp., 330 Ga. App. 138, 764 S.E.2d 595, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 820 (2014).

In a fire insurance dispute, issues of fact remained as to whether the agent was a dual agent such that the agent's knowledge that the insured would not be using the covered home as the insured's primary residence was imputable to the insurer. Lee v. Mercury Ins. Co., 343 Ga. App. 729, 808 S.E.2d 116, 2017 Ga. App. LEXIS 562 (2017), cert. denied, No. S18C0518, 2018 Ga. LEXIS 491 (Ga. Aug. 2, 2018).

Trial court erred by granting the independent contractor's motion for summary judgment on its breach of contract claim because questions of fact remained as to the extent of the festival organizer's liability for work performed by the contractor at the festival and whether the organizer agreed to settle the balance due on the contractor's invoices. IMF Entertainment, LLC v. Herc Rentals, Inc., 364 Ga. App. 882, 876 S.E.2d 734, 2022 Ga. App. LEXIS 365 (2022).

10-6-2. Formality necessary to create agency.

Where the exercise or performance of an agency is by written instrument, the agency shall also be created by written instrument; provided, however, unless a contrary intent is expressly set forth therein, any written instrument creating an agency regardless of the formality of its execution shall conclusively be deemed to authorize the execution of instruments with the formalities necessary or appropriate to accomplish the purposes for which the agency was granted. A corporation may create an agent in its usual mode of transacting business and without its corporate seal. Any deed or other instrument executed under seal pursuant to an agency created by an act not under seal, if not otherwise required to be under seal for its validity, shall be binding upon the principal and valid as if an unsealed instrument.

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — Some of the cases cited below were decided prior to the 1991 amendment, which added the last sentence.

Power to execute instrument under seal must be conferred by instrument under seal. Pollard & Co. v. Gibbs, 55 Ga. 45, 1875 Ga. LEXIS 323 (1875); McCalla v. American Freehold Land Mtg. Co., 90 Ga. 113, 15 S.E. 687, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1892); Overman v. Atkinson, 102 Ga. 750, 29 S.E. 758, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 683 (1897); Hayes v. City of Atlanta, 1 Ga. App. 25, 57 S.E. 1087, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 138 (1907); Neely & Co. v. Stevens, 138 Ga. 305, 75 S.E. 159, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 287 (1912); Harris v. Woodard, 144 Ga. 211, 86 S.E. 1097, 1915 Ga. LEXIS 135 (1915).

Changing promissory note into sealed instrument. — Changing of an ordinary promissory note into a sealed instrument is the making of a sealed instrument, and the authority to make this radical change in the paper must be evidenced in the same way that authority to make a sealed instrument in the first instance would have to be shown. Thomason v. Wilson, 127 Ga. 141, 56 S.E. 302, 1906 Ga. LEXIS 775 (1906).

Section not limited to execution of instruments under seal. — There is nothing in this section which confines it to agencies created for the execution of instruments under seal. It lays down a broad and sweeping rule for the creation of all agencies. Byrd v. Piha, 165 Ga. 397, 141 S.E. 48, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 408 (1927).

Authority to execute contract required to be in writing must be in writing. Nalley v. Whitaker, 102 Ga. App. 230, 115 S.E.2d 790, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 594 (1960).

Agency created by writing. — If the law prescribes that the act can be executed by the principal only by writing, then the act creating the agency must be executed with the same formality; that is, the agency must be created by writing. Byrd v. Piha, 165 Ga. 397, 141 S.E. 48, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 408 (1927); Terry v. Kean, 180 Ga. 627, 180 S.E. 135, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 512 (1935); Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

Proper construction of this section is that agencies for the execution of agreements which are required to be made by principals to be in writing must be created by written authority; otherwise the purpose of the statute of frauds, which is to prevent frauds and perjuries, would be virtually done away with. Byrd v. Piha, 165 Ga. 397, 141 S.E. 48, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 408 (1927); Terry v. Kean, 180 Ga. 627, 180 S.E. 135, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 512 (1935); Atlanta Biltmore Hotel Corp. v. Martell, 118 Ga. App. 172, 162 S.E.2d 815, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1342 (1968). But see Hirsh & Co. v. Beverley, 125 Ga. 657, 54 S.E. 678, 1906 Ga. LEXIS 240 (1906) (authority to sell mules and apply proceeds); Wesley v. Boyd, 10 Ga. App. 9, 72 S.E. 514, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 606 (1911); McNamara v. Georgia Cotton Co., 10 Ga. App. 669, 73 S.E. 1092, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 640 (1912) (authority to purchase cotton); Builders Homes of Ga., Inc. v. Wallace Pump & Supply Co., 128 Ga. App. 779, 197 S.E.2d 839, 1973 Ga. App. LEXIS 1615 (1973) (guaranty by agent authorized or principal estopped to deny authority).

Lease of land for seven years being required to be in writing, if the agent signs for the principal, the agent's authority must be in writing. Baxley Hdwe. Co. v. Morris, 165 Ga. 359, 140 S.E. 869, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 394 (1927) (commented on in 1 Ga. L. Rev. No. 3, p. 51 (1927)).

This section applies if a contract which is required to be in writing under the statute of frauds is executed by another as a disclosed agent for the person intended to be bound, and in such case the authority of the principal to the agent to so sign must also be in writing. Spiegel v. Hays, 103 Ga. App. 293, 119 S.E.2d 123, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 930 (1961).

Oral agreements. — If the owner of personal property orally authorizes an agent to lease it to another for a period of three months and orally authorizes the agent to give to the sublessee an option to buy, the option price being more than $50.00, the option so given by the agent is not binding on the owner in the absence of facts sufficient to work an estoppel or show ratification of a completed sale; and, accordingly, if such authority rested in parol, and before the option was exercised by the third person, the owner notified the agent that the giving of such an option was without the owner's authority, repudiated the contract in the contract's entirety, and instructed the agent to retract the agent's proposal, and the agent proceeded to sell the property under the option as the agent's own, the agent was guilty of a conversion and was liable in trover for the property. Collier v. Wilson-Weesner-Wilkinson Co., 58 Ga. App. 44, 197 S.E. 516, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 181 (1938) (decided under former statute of frauds provision as to contracts for sale of goods, repealed by Ga. L. 1962, p. 156, which also enacted § 11-2-201).

Authority of attorney-in-fact to issue a guardianship bond could not be mere apparent authority, but was required to be shown by a writing, i.e., a power of attorney from the insurance company named in the bond. Continental Ins. Co. v. Gazaway, 216 Ga. App. 125, 453 S.E.2d 91, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1433 (1994), cert. denied, No. S95C0742, 1995 Ga. LEXIS 562 (Ga. Apr. 14, 1995).

If agent must have written authority, the agent cannot be orally vested with apparent authority, any more than the agent can be orally vested with a real one. Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

Mere effort to ratify orally will not suffice. — Authority to execute a contract required by the statute of frauds to be in writing must also be in writing, and a mere effort to ratify orally will not suffice. Hubert Realty Co. v. Bland, 79 Ga. App. 321, 53 S.E.2d 691, 1949 Ga. App. LEXIS 645 (1949).

Principal may confer authority on agent merely by course of conduct holding out that person as an agent which induces others to rely on the statements of that agent. Ampex Credit Corp. v. Bateman, 554 F.2d 750, 1977 U.S. App. LEXIS 12721 (5th Cir. 1977).

Estoppel to deny agency. — While a written instrument may have been executed by an agent not having any authority in writing to do so or not having been ratified by an act of comparable dignity, the principal may nevertheless be estopped by the principal's acts from denying the authority of the principal's agent. Atlanta Biltmore Hotel Corp. v. Martell, 118 Ga. App. 172, 162 S.E.2d 815, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1342 (1968).

Authority of an agent in a particular instance need not be proved by an express contract; it may be established by the principal's conduct and course of dealing, and if one holds out another as one's agent, and by one's course of dealing indicates that the agent has certain authority, and thus induces another to deal with one's agent as such, one is estopped to deny that the agent has any authority which, as reasonably deducible from the conduct of the parties, the agent apparently has. Atlanta Biltmore Hotel Corp. v. Martell, 118 Ga. App. 172, 162 S.E.2d 815, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1342 (1968) (see notes to § 10-6-50).

Authority of an agent to lease the land of another must ordinarily be in writing, but the jury might find oral authority sufficient if the principal was estopped by the principal's later conduct from raising the issue. Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

Failure to ascertain if written authority exists deemed negligence. — One who enters into a 15-year-lease with an agent is charged with notice that the agent's authority to execute the lease is required by law to be in writing and is under a duty to inquire and ascertain whether such written authority exists and what the limits of the authority are, and such person is guilty of negligence in failing to make such an inquiry. Nalley v. Whitaker, 102 Ga. App. 230, 115 S.E.2d 790, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 594 (1960); Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

Failure to ascertain if authority exists bars recovery from agent. — One who enters into a 15-year lease with an agent without making due inquiry into the agent's authority is precluded from recovering damages from the agent either on the ground that the agent contractually misrepresented the fact that the agent had authority, either expressly or impliedly, or on the ground that the agent fraudulently misrepresented that the agent had authority to execute the lease as agent. Nalley v. Whitaker, 102 Ga. App. 230, 115 S.E.2d 790, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 594 (1960).

Power of attorney held valid. — Regardless of wife's failure to follow instructions and have husband's signature of the power of attorney properly witnessed, the power of attorney itself was technically valid as regards acts which themselves required no greater formality. Wheeless v. Gelzer, 780 F. Supp. 1373, 1991 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18594 (N.D. Ga. 1991).

Not applicable if statute of frauds does not apply. — Verbal authorization from a decedent was sufficient to create a valid agency relationship between the decedent and a brother and a wife, so as to allow them to withdraw money for the decedent from the accounts on a periodic basis; the equal dignity rule outlined in O.C.G.A. § 10-6-2 did not apply in this case because the instruments at issue were not subject to the statute of frauds. Rowland v. Rowland, No. 1:04-CV-2068-TWT, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30296 (N.D. Ga. Nov. 16, 2005).

Only principal proper party to raise issue. — Construction company's claim that a grocery store owner's representative who signed a contract which contained an agreement to arbitrate lacked the power to sign under the Equal Dignity Rule, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-6-2, as the authority to sign the agreement and the agreement itself, had to be in writing under O.C.G.A. § 9-9-3, lacked merit, as the contract clearly provided that the representative was acting on behalf of the owner, and further, the company was not the proper party to dispute the agent's authority under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-2; rather, that statute was for the principal's use to dispute an agent's authority to act on the principal's behalf. Barron Reed Constr. v. 430, LLC, 275 Ga. App. 884, 622 S.E.2d 83, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 1131 (2005), cert. denied, No. S06C0441, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 232 (Ga. Mar. 27, 2006).

Real Estate Transactions

Authority to execute long-term lease in writing. — Contracts creating the relationship of landlord and tenant, for any time exceeding one year, must be in writing; and when executed by an agent, the authority of the agent to execute the contract must likewise be in writing. Byrd v. Piha, 165 Ga. 397, 141 S.E. 48, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 408 (1927).

One seeking to hold the principal liable for the undertaking of an agent on a lease for over a year must show that the agent had written authority to act for the principal. Garden of Eden, Inc. v. Eastern Sav. Bank, 244 Ga. 63, 257 S.E.2d 897, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 1104 (1979).

When a new partner of a lessee signed an option to renew a lease, a guarantor's emailed explanation regarding the partner's authority did not satisfy the statute of frauds because the email was not a writing in equal dignity to that of the original lease; however, there was a genuine issue of material fact as to the partner's apparent agency. Sage Atlanta Props., Ltd. v. Hawxhurst, 349 Ga. App. 758, 824 S.E.2d 387, 2019 Ga. App. LEXIS 129 (2019).

Authority to execute mortgage must be in writing. Duke v. Culpepper, 72 Ga. 842, 1884 Ga. LEXIS 330 (1884).

Authority of an agent to execute a contract or memorandum for the sale of real estate or for the lease thereof for a period longer than one year must be evidenced by writing. Terry v. Kean, 180 Ga. 627, 180 S.E. 135, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 512 (1935); Deal v. Dickson, 232 Ga. 885, 209 S.E.2d 214, 1974 Ga. LEXIS 1125 (1974); Turnipseed v. Jaje, 267 Ga. 320, 477 S.E.2d 101, 1996 Ga. LEXIS 876 (1996).

Third party seeking to compel a principal to deed real property alleged to have been acquired by written instrument with the agent must show written authority held by the agent empowering the agent to act. Dover v. Burns, 186 Ga. 19, 196 S.E. 785, 1938 Ga. LEXIS 545 (1938).

When the plaintiffs' rights in a suit for breach of contract to sell real estate must stand or fall on the contract set up by it and there was no evidence that the plaintiff-husband had authority in writing to execute the contract, nor that it was ratified in writing, nor that the defendant buyer had notice thereof and by the buyer's subsequent conduct was estopped to deny the validity of the same, the evidence demanded a verdict for the defendant. Hubert Realty Co. v. Bland, 79 Ga. App. 321, 53 S.E.2d 691, 1949 Ga. App. LEXIS 645 (1949).

Written authority to the agent must be shown to support the agent's sale or lease of the principal's lands. Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

This section requires that the agent's power to sell land must be in writing, absent later ratification of the agent's acts or estoppel of the agent's principal to deny the agent's authority. Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

A contract to sell land, as distinguished from authority to execute a deed to land, is not binding upon a principal if there is no written authority given the agent and the contract to sell is oral. Jones v. Sheppard, 231 Ga. 223, 200 S.E.2d 877, 1973 Ga. LEXIS 652 (1973).

Evidence held insufficient. — In an action premised on allegations of a breach of a land sales contract between a group of sellers and an investor, because the only evidence showing any authority to act as an agent for the sellers was based on hearsay, and not on a writing, and no exception applied, two of the sellers were entitled to a directed verdict against the investor pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 13-5-30(4). Dunn v. Venture Bldg. Group, Inc., 283 Ga. App. 500, 642 S.E.2d 156, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 93 (2007).

Authority of agent to execute option contract. — Because the statute of frauds requires that an option contract for the purchase of land be in writing, the authority of an agent to execute such a contract likewise must be in writing. Garrett v. S. Health Corp. of Ellijay, Inc., 320 Ga. App. 176, 739 S.E.2d 661, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 151 (2013).

Unauthorized conveyance of land cannot be ratified except by writing under seal. McCalla v. American Freehold Land Mtg. Co., 90 Ga. 113, 15 S.E. 687, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1892).

No witnesses needed for authority to sell mortgaged property. — Contract whereby mortgagor is authorized to convey mortgaged property by agreement between the mortgagor and the mortgagee is not a power of attorney to the mortgagor to sell land of which the title is in the mortgagee, but only the consent of the lienholder to the release of the lien in case a sale is made, and it is not required by the laws of Georgia to be executed before two witnesses under former Code 1882, § 2690. Woodward v. Jewell, 140 U.S. 247, 11 S. Ct. 784, 35 L. Ed. 478, 1891 U.S. LEXIS 2460 (1891).

Agent cannot execute contract containing provision requiring principal's execution. — A proposed lease agreement negotiated by various representatives of landlord and tenant through conversations and exchanged correspondence did not constitute a binding, written agreement in view of a clause in the agreement providing that the lease would become effective "only upon execution and delivery by Landlord and Tenant." 20/20 Vision Ctr., Inc. v. Hudgens, 256 Ga. 129, 345 S.E.2d 330, 1986 Ga. LEXIS 747 (1986).

Partnership to own real estate. — Partnership formed for the purpose of acquiring interest in tracts of land must be executed in writing. Shivers v. Sexton, 164 Ga. App. 490, 296 S.E.2d 749, 1982 Ga. App. LEXIS 2845 (1982).

Spouse of seller as promisor. — Fact that promisor was seller's husband did not negate the need for a written authorization to convey or promise to convey any interest in the seller's land. Since the promisor had no written authorization and the buyers never asked for one, an agency was not established as a matter of law. East Piedmont 120 Assocs. v. Sheppard, 209 Ga. App. 664, 434 S.E.2d 101, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 950 (1993), cert. denied, No. S93C1797, 1993 Ga. LEXIS 1103 (Ga. Nov. 19, 1993).

Corporate Agents

Common law changed. — Sentence of this section relative to corporations changes the common-law rule. Brandon v. Pritchett, 126 Ga. 286, 55 S.E. 241, 1906 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1906).

Corporations recognized as unique entities. — In codifying the "equal dignity" rule, the legislature apparently recognized that corporations are unique legal entities which must at all times act through corporate agents. Whiteway Neon-Ad, Inc. v. Opportunities Industrialization Ctr. of Atlanta, Inc., 243 Ga. 114, 252 S.E.2d 604, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 824 (1979).

Legislature excepted the creation of corporate agents from the "equal dignity" rule and permitted corporations to create such agents in their usual mode of transacting business, i.e., shareholder action in the adoption of charters, bylaws, resolutions, and similar conduct vesting corporate agents with authority to act. Whiteway Neon-Ad, Inc. v. Opportunities Industrialization Ctr. of Atlanta, Inc., 243 Ga. 114, 252 S.E.2d 604, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 824 (1979).

Creation of corporate agents is excepted from the "equal dignity" rule codified in O.C.G.A. § 10-6-2, which permits corporations to create such agents in their "usual mode of transacting business." Travel Centre, Ltd. v. Starr-Mathews Agency, Inc., 179 Ga. App. 406, 346 S.E.2d 840, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 1929 (1986).

No sealed authority needed to execute sealed instrument. — When empowered by corporate authority, corporate agents are not required to have sealed authorization to enable the agents to execute sealed instruments on behalf of the corporation. Whiteway Neon-Ad, Inc. v. Opportunities Industrialization Ctr. of Atlanta, Inc., 243 Ga. 114, 252 S.E.2d 604, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 824 (1979); Dundon v. Forehand, 152 Ga. App. 749, 263 S.E.2d 687, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 3031 (1979).

No written authority needed for written settlement with debtor. — When a corporation claimed that one who had been the corporation's agent in certain transactions was indebted to it in a certain sum and sent another agent to close up its account with the agent, and the second agent took a note evidencing the amount of the indebtedness, it was competent for the agent thus authorized (there being a dispute between the agent and the debtor as to the actual amount of the debt, the debtor claiming that the debtor had evidence to show that a certain item of indebtedness should not be included in the note) to stipulate in writing, that if this evidence should be discovered, the debtor could use the evidence as against the note given; and it was not necessary to show that the authority to execute such a written agreement was itself in writing. Home Fertilizer & Chem. Co. v. Strickland, 145 Ga. 197, 88 S.E. 820, 1916 Ga. LEXIS 239 (1916).

No written authority needed to fill in blanks on insurance policy for insurer. — Under this section and the insurance laws, it is not essential to the validity of a policy of insurance, which was actually signed by the president and secretary of the company by which it purported to have been issued, that the person who, in behalf of the company, after the policy had been so signed and placed in one's hands, filled blanks therein so as to make it a complete contract, and who then delivered the contract to the insured, should have been clothed with

are authorized to sell and convey property by attorneys in fact in all cases where they may lawfully sell and convey in person.

(b) When a personal representative, guardian, conservator, or trustee exercising the authority conferred by subsection (a) of this Code section appoints an attorney in fact by a power of attorney to which Chapter 6B of this title is applicable under Code Section 10-6B-81, the exercise of fiduciary powers by such attorney in fact under such power of attorney shall be subject to Code Section 10-6B-40.

Written authority needed to sell land. — It would seem that since this section was enacted, if an executor or administrator desires to sell the land of the estate by an agent, the agency must be created in writing since that is the usual mode of appointing attorneys in fact. Scales v. Chambers, 113 Ga. 920, 39 S.E. 396, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 416 (1901).

Mere crier employed by administrator does not control sale but is simply the mouthpiece of the latter, and is in no sense the agent or attorney in fact of the administrator under this section, and cannot, over protest, complete the sale. Scales v. Chambers, 113 Ga. 920, 39 S.E. 396, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 416 (1901).

Power presumed properly exercised. — If a testator gave the testator's executors power to sell property, such power will be held to have been properly exercised, in the absence of proof to the contrary. Webster v. Black, 142 Ga. 806, 83 S.E. 941, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 553 (1914).

Analysis

General Consideration
Delegation of Authority

General Consideration

Scope of authority. — There is conferred upon an agent no greater power than that possessed by the principal. Tippins v. Cobb County Parking Auth., 213 Ga. 685, 100 S.E.2d 893, 1957 Ga. LEXIS 487 (1957).

Agent for sale of personalty has authority only to sell. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 34, 57 S.E.2d 844, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 814 (1950).

Agent may enter credit binding payee. — If payee of a note could make an entry of credit and that act would bind the payee, the payee could make it by an agent and be bound thereby. Green v. Juhan, 66 Ga. 531, 1881 Ga. LEXIS 52 (1881).

Waiver of prepayment of insurance premiums. — An insurance company by the company's proper officers may waive a condition requiring prepayment of the premium, and whatever the company might do itself it would be permitted to do by an agent. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Blount, 33 Ga. App. 642, 127 S.E. 892, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 660 (1925).

Principal may be bound by agent's admission. — Admission made through an agent, during the existence and in pursuance of the agent's power, was no less evidence against the principal than if made by the principal in person, under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3571 and 5779. William-Hester Marble Co. v. Walton, 22 Ga. App. 433, 96 S.E. 269, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 377 (1918).

Wife may appoint husband her general agent. — A married woman may enter into any contract by an agent that the law will permit her to make in person, and she may appoint her husband as her general agent and in such case will be bound by an agreement made in her behalf by the husband acting within the scope of his authority, to the same extent as if the agreement were made by the wife by and for herself independently of such agent. Hutcheson v. May, 40 Ga. App. 746, 151 S.E. 657, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 683 (1930).

Husband may bind wife by contract to purchase execution against husband. — Where a married woman entered into a contract for the purpose of an execution against her husband and executed notes therefor, she could not repudiate the transaction upon the ground that the agreement was an undertaking by her to pay the debt of her husband, and the fact that in all negotiations prior to the final making of the contract the wife was represented by the husband, and that she did not in fact understand the true consideration of the agreement, would not operate to relieve her from liability, where the true intent and purpose was not to bind her for the debt of her husband, but to make a bona fide purchase of the execution and the husband in so representing his wife was acting within the scope of his authority as her agent. Hutcheson v. May, 40 Ga. App. 746, 151 S.E. 657, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 683 (1930).

After a husband, after conveying lands to another to secure a debt, made a second conveyance of the same lands to his wife to secure an additional debt and, while both of these conveyances were outstanding, entered upon the lands and manufactured lumber from timber standing thereon, the husband was not without an apparent interest in the lumber; and where a judgment creditor caused an execution against the husband to be levied upon such lumber as the husband's property, the wife, in order to obtain a release of the property and to protect her interest therein, could purchase the execution; and a contract made by her for that purpose, if free from fraud or undue influence, would be binding upon her. Hutcheson v. May, 40 Ga. App. 746, 151 S.E. 657, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 683 (1930).

Transfer of securities to agent. — The power of attorney conveyed by husband to wife expressly conveyed upon wife the authority to effect the transfer of securities from him to her. Wheeless v. Gelzer, 780 F. Supp. 1373, 1991 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18594 (N.D. Ga. 1991).

When debtor files bankruptcy, control over property passes to court. — Possession of property of debtor by agent for debtor presents no question of jurisdiction over property by bankruptcy court, because upon filing of bankruptcy petition, control which debtor possessed over debtor's property in hands of debtor's agent passes to bankruptcy court and title thereto passes to bankruptcy court and the court's trustee. Scroggins v. Powell, Goldstein, Frazer & Murphy (In re Kaleidoscope, Inc.), 15 B.R. 232, 1981 Bankr. LEXIS 2579 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 1981), rev'd, 25 B.R. 729, 1982 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16133 (N.D. Ga. 1982).

Delegation of Authority

Restriction states common law. — Inhibition against an agent delegating an agent's power as contained in this section is only declaratory of the common law and is but another form of expression for the maxim "delegata potestas non potest delegari." Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Price, 132 Ga. 687, 64 S.E. 1074, 1909 Ga. LEXIS 388 (1909).

"Personal trusts" arise out of fiduciary relation. — "Personal trusts" referred to in this section are those arising out of a fiduciary relation, such as the relation between principal and agent and the like. Council v. Teal, 122 Ga. 61, 49 S.E. 806, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 114 (1905).

To contract to drill artesian well does not involve any personal trust, any more than to contract to dig a ditch or to erect a building, and in the absence of a stipulation to the contrary, the contractor may perform the contract obligations through agents, being accountable, of course, for the manner in which the agents prosecute the work. Council v. Teal, 122 Ga. 61, 49 S.E. 806, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 114 (1905).

Test as to whether contract involves relation of personal confidence is whether the party conferring the rights must necessarily have intended the rights to be exercised only by the individual upon whom the rights were actually conferred. Adair v. Smith, 23 Ga. App. 290, 98 S.E. 224, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 91 (1919).

Parties may agree contract not personal in nature. — Even though the subject matter of a contract might of itself in a sense indicate that it was intended to be personal in the contract's nature, the parties thereto can nevertheless by the express terms of the agreement manifest a different purpose and intent. Adair v. Smith, 23 Ga. App. 290, 98 S.E. 224, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 91 (1919).

Section strictly applied as to public officers. — No agent may delegate authority unless the agent is specially empowered to do so and, for reasons that are entirely obvious, this rule is usually given a very strict, if not a literal, application in the case of public officers. Deariso v. Mobley, 38 Ga. App. 313, 143 S.E. 915, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 206 (1928).

Defendant's claim that an investigator employed by the district attorney was bound by the ethical and legal standards that prohibited the district attorney from testifying before the grand jury was rejected as an agent could not delegate the agent's authority unless specifically empowered to do so and as the discretionary powers conferred upon public agents could not be delegated without authorization; further, an unlicensed individual could not practice law and a witness could not testify to hearsay other than in specified cases. Hall v. State, 273 Ga. App. 203, 614 S.E.2d 844, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 446 (2005).

Section prevents assignment of position. — Agreement between the state and R, whereby R was appointed special tax investigator and was to receive commission on such back ad valorem taxes due the state as should be collected through R's efforts, could not have been assigned. Roberts v. Allen, 31 Ga. App. 660, 122 S.E. 86, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 119 (1924).

Assignability of choses in action. — Former Civil Code 1910, § 3571 is a recognized exception to the rule stated in former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3653 through 3655, namely, that all choses in action arising upon contract and involving property rights may be assigned. Adair v. Smith, 23 Ga. App. 290, 98 S.E. 224, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 91 (1919).

Employment of workers. — This section has no application to the contractual relation existing between the parties to an agreement under the terms of which one of them obligates oneself to accomplish a given task, not alone or in person, but through workers in one's employ. Council v. Teal, 122 Ga. 61, 49 S.E. 806, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 114 (1905).

Insurance company agent may employ clerks. — Agent of an insurance company, fully authorized to make out and issue policies of insurance, has power to employ clerks in the ordinary business of the agency. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Price, 132 Ga. 687, 64 S.E. 1074, 1909 Ga. LEXIS 388 (1909).

Subagents for telegraph operators. — Rule laid down in the case of Central of Ga. Ry. v. Price, 106 Ga. 176, 32 S.E. 77, 71 Am. St. R. 246, 43 L.R.A. 402 (1898), deciding under this section that a conductor would have no authority to employ a subagent to act for the railroad company in caring for a passenger, would certainly apply equally to a telegraph operator in the service of such company. Western & Atl. R.R. v. Jackson, 21 Ga. App. 50, 93 S.E. 547, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 419 (1917).

Station agent may not delegate authority to employ servants to an inferior agent since it involves discretion and judgment. Mathis v. Western & Atl. R.R., 35 Ga. App. 672, 134 S.E. 793, 1926 Ga. App. LEXIS 1076 (1926) (railroad not liable for death of person employed by inferior agent).

Agent may not by indirection delegate authority to operate farms to another, unless specially empowered to do so, under this section. Hargrove v. Armour Fertilizer Works, 31 Ga. App. 465, 120 S.E. 800, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 986 (1923).

Authority to sell article. — An agent, whose authority is limited to the sale of an article, may not delegate this authority to another, without being empowered so to do. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 34, 57 S.E.2d 844, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 814 (1950).

If authority exceeded, no title passes. — If an agent who is authorized to sell trucks but not authorized to delegate such authority to another undertakes to exceed one's authority by delivering a truck to an automobile dealer to sell, the agent was acting without authority and no title to the truck passed. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 34, 57 S.E.2d 844, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 814 (1950).

Owner not estopped by having given possession to agent. — Purchaser of personal property from one who is not the true owner acquires no title against the true owner by reason of the bona fides of purchase, when one purchased from one who is an utter stranger to the title and who can convey no title, except when there may be some statute otherwise, or when the true owner, upon some principle of estoppel, would be precluded from asserting title. However, the mere permission by the owner for the agent to have possession of the truck would not be such an act as would estop the owner. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 34, 57 S.E.2d 844, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 814 (1950).

Relationship of master and servant cannot be imposed upon person without consent, express or implied; hence, the defendant was free to select the defendant's own servant and was responsible for the acts of the defendant's servant within the scope of the defendant's employment, but the defendant was not responsible for the act of an assistant permitted without authority to act for the defendant. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

Liability of principal for acts of subagent. — If a servant, who is employed to do certain work for a master, employs another person to assist the servant, the master is liable for the negligence of the assistant only when the servant had authority, express or implied, to employ the assistant or when the act of employment is ratified by the master. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

Unless a primary agent, expressly or impliedly authorized by the principal as owner of an automobile to drive it on the business of the owner, is personally expressly or impliedly authorized to appoint a subagent for that purpose, the owner will not be liable for the negligence of the latter. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

If one who is employed to drive a motor vehicle, without the consent of and against specific instructions of the master, engages a substitute driver, the master is not liable for the negligence of the substitute driver unless the act of the servant employing the substitute driver is ratified by the master. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953); Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Raley, 104 Ga. App. 717, 123 S.E.2d 272, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 780 (1961).

Family purpose doctrine. — Parent who keeps and maintains an automobile for the use, comfort, pleasure, and convenience of the family is responsible for injuries resulting from the negligence of a third person whom the family member permits to drive, if the family member remains in the automobile and retains control, authority, and direction over the automobile, and if the automobile is being used in furtherance of the purposes of a family car. This liability created by the family car doctrine is applicable notwithstanding the fact that the parent has expressly instructed the family member not to permit third persons to drive the car. Phillips v. Dixon, 236 Ga. 271, 223 S.E.2d 678, 1976 Ga. LEXIS 839 (1976).

10-6-6. Conditional power of attorney.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term "conditional power of attorney" means a written power of attorney stating that it becomes effective at a specified future time or on the occurrence of a specified event or contingency, including, but not limited to, the subsequent incapacity of the principal.

(b) In a conditional power of attorney, the principal may designate one or more persons who, by a written declaration under penalty of false swearing, have the power to determine conclusively that the specified event or contingency has occurred. The principal may designate the attorney in fact or another person to perform this function, either alone or jointly with other persons.

(c) A power of attorney containing the designation described in subsection (b) of this Code section becomes effective when the person or persons designated in the power of attorney execute a written declaration under penalty of false swearing that the specified event or contingency has occurred; and any person may act in reliance on the written declaration without liability to the principal or to any other person, regardless of whether the specified event or contingency has actually occurred.

(d) This Code section shall apply to a power of attorney whether executed before, on, or after July 1, 1993, if the power of attorney contains the designation described in subsection (b) of this Code section.

(e) Subsections (b) and (c) of this Code section do not provide the exclusive method by which a power of attorney may be limited to take effect upon the occurrence of a specified event or contingency.

Scope of agent's power. — There is conferred upon agent no greater power than that possessed by the principal. Tippins v. Cobb County Parking Auth., 213 Ga. 685, 100 S.E.2d 893, 1957 Ga. LEXIS 487 (1957).
There was no merit to a homeowner's argument that a restrictive covenant barring "For Sale" signs in a subdivision did not apply to the homeowner's real estate agent; under O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6-20 and 10-6-25, an agent could do no more than a principal. The agent shall act within the authority granted to him, reasonably interpreted; if he shall exceed or violate his instructions, he does it at his own risk, the principal having the privilege of affirming or dissenting, as his interest may dictate. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Analysis

General Consideration
Power Coupled with Interest
When Principal Bound by Agent's Act
1. Generally
2. Act of Subagent Appointed by Agent

General Consideration

Agent must follow principal's instructions. — When the directions to an agent are clear and well defined, it is the agent's duty to follow the directions faithfully, provided this may be lawfully done; although the agent is, in the absence of instructions, bound to follow the established usage or mode of dealing, yet no custom or usage will authorize a departure from positive instructions; the instructions of the principal make the law by which the agent is governed. J. Day & Co. v. Crawford, 13 Ga. 508, 1853 Ga. LEXIS 121 (1853); McLendon v. Wilson, Callaway & Co., 52 Ga. 41, 1874 Ga. LEXIS 234 (1874); Hatcher & Baldwin v. Comer & Co., 73 Ga. 418, 1884 Ga. LEXIS

140 (1884); Central of Ga. Ry. v. Felton, 110 Ga. 597, 36 S.E. 93, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 595 (1900).

Specific instructions control general authority. — If specific instructions as to a particular matter have been given, the agent is charged with strict compliance with such instructions, no matter how broad the general powers as agent may otherwise have been. Lovejoy v. Lamar, 20 Ga. App. 499, 93 S.E. 153, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 953 (1917).

Power of attorney did not create fiduciary relationship. — Limited power of attorney given by insured to an insurance premium finance company authorizing the company to cancel policies and perform certain other duties related thereto did not create a fiduciary relationship between the insured and the company. Gill Plumbing Co. v. Imperial Premium Fin., Inc., 213 Ga. App. 754, 445 S.E.2d 840, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 702 (1994).

Violation or nonperformance breaches contract and fiduciary obligations. — Violation or nonperformance of instructions may be considered as a breach of two obligations — the consensual obligation set forth in the contract of agency itself and the fiduciary obligation of obedience to the principal's instructions raised by the agency relationship. Cutcliffe v. Chesnut, 122 Ga. App. 195, 176 S.E.2d 607, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 833 (1970).

Conversion. — If personal property has been by the property's owner delivered to an agent with power of attorney in the agent to sell the property and convey title, and a limitation on the terms of sale is placed on the agent, and the agent sells the property in violation of these terms, neither the agent nor a subagent, who sells the property for the agent is guilty of a conversion of the property; and since title and right to possession pass out of the owner, the owner cannot recover in trover. Noras v. McCord, 59 Ga. App. 311, 200 S.E. 513, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 495 (1938).

Rescission remedy for breach of contract obligations. — Rescission of an agency agreement is an available remedy to the principal for the agent's breach or nonperformance of contractual obligations imposed by that agreement whenever and to whatever extent it is authorized by the law of contracts. Cutcliffe v. Chesnut, 122 Ga. App. 195, 176 S.E.2d 607, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 833 (1970).

Agent liable if injury results. — If injury results to the principal from a failure of the agent to observe the principal's instructions, the agent is liable therefor to the principal. J. Day & Co. v. Crawford, 13 Ga. 508, 1853 Ga. LEXIS 121 (1853); Central Ga. Bank v. Cleveland Nat'l Bank, 59 Ga. 667, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 368 (1877); Cason v. Heath, 86 Ga. 438, 12 S.E. 678, 1890 Ga. LEXIS 275 (1890); Georgia Southern & Florida Ry. v. Jossey, 105 Ga. 271, 31 S.E. 179, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 499 (1898); Cave v. Lougee & Zimmer, 134 Ga. 135, 67 S.E. 667, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 134 (1910).

Agent liable regardless of degree of care. — If specific instructions are violated, the agent is responsible in damages for any loss which results from the violation regardless of the degree of care exercised. Cutcliffe v. Chesnut, 122 Ga. App. 195, 176 S.E.2d 607, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 833 (1970).

Intent to benefit principal. — Primary obligation of an agent or factor, whose authority is limited by instructions, is to adhere faithfully to those instructions; for if the agent unnecessarily exceeds the agent's commission or risks the agent's principal's effects without authority, the agent renders oneself responsible to the principal for the consequences of the agent's act; and if loss ensues, it furnishes no defense to the agent that the agent intended the benefit of the principal. Cutcliffe v. Chesnut, 122 Ga. App. 195, 176 S.E.2d 607, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 833 (1970).

Agent not liable if principal ratifies or fails to disapprove. — If an agent deviated from instructions, and forthwith informed the agent's principal, and the principal, with full knowledge of the facts, either ratifies the act, in terms, or fails, within a reasonable time, to disapprove, the agent is not liable for the deviation from the agent's instructions. Bray & Bro.

v. Gunn, 53 Ga. 144, 1874 Ga. LEXIS 424 (1874).

Agent not liable if no actual damage. — If an agent, such as a cotton factor, who has been instructed by the cotton factor's principal to sell cotton belonging to the latter immediately and for the best price obtainable, fails to sell the cotton and thereby violates the contract with the principal, no actual damage is suffered by the principal when the cotton has not decreased in value from the time when the agent in the due exercise of the agent's commission should have sold the cotton and the time when the principal learned of the agent's violation of the agreement to sell and should have affirmed or disapproved of the agent's conduct in failing to sell. Vinson v. Kinney & Co., 30 Ga. App. 731, 119 S.E. 217, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 654 (1923).

No liability if agents' act in accordance with general custom of trade. — If cotton factors sued customers for advances made on cotton consigned to the cotton factors for sale, the customers could not set off damages because of a sale of the cotton for a lower price than the cotton factors had instructed it sold for, when, in accordance with the general custom and usage of the trade at the place of sale, the cotton was sold after the customers had failed to comply with repeated notices from the factors to deposit with them more margins and when, in the opinion of the factors, the cotton was not a sufficient security for the balance due them. Leffler Co. v. Pearson & Son, 17 Ga. App. 57, 86 S.E. 256, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 257 (1915).

Questions of fact. — Questions of the existence and extent of an agent's authority are generally for the triers of fact. Allen & Bean, Inc. v. American Bankers Ins. Co., 153 Ga. App. 617, 266 S.E.2d 295, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1924 (1980); Am. Global Dev. Group v. Sasser & Weatherford, Inc., 249 Ga. App. 479, 548 S.E.2d 465, 2001 Ga. App. LEXIS 533 (2001).

Issues of material fact as to validity of agent's transfer of property. — Genuine issues of material fact existed as to the validity of a property transfer because there was evidence that the actions of the agent in transferring the property were in contravention of the principal's actions and intent and were attempts to benefit the agent's own position. Harris v. Peterson, 318 Ga. App. 382, 734 S.E.2d 93, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 918 (2012).

Abuse of power of attorney in dealing with farm quotas. — In a dispute involving a family farm partnership, the trial court erred by granting summary judgment to the children/grandchildren as to the claim regarding the peanut and tobacco quotas and assignments because certain claims were not untimely since genuine issues of fact existed as to whether a son inappropriately used a power of attorney as to the quotas and assignments and the father/grandfather sought to recover damage to personalty. Godwin v. Mizpah Farms, LLLP, 330 Ga. App. 31, 766 S.E.2d 497, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 808 (2014).

Burden of proving specific instructions. — If the contention of the principal is not that the agent exceeded the scope of the agent's general authority, but that the agent violated specific instructions as to a particular matter, the burden is upon the principal to show that such instructions were given. Lovejoy v. Lamar, 20 Ga. App. 499, 93 S.E. 153, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 953 (1917).

Power Coupled with Interest

Agent may have interest. — That an agent is not prohibited from having an interest is evident from former Code 1933, §§ 4-202 and 3575. Pendley v. Jessee, 134 Ga. App. 138, 213 S.E.2d 496, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 1934 (1975).

Agent who advances purchase price has interest. — Agent to sell becomes an agent with an interest when the agent advances the amount of the purchase price of the goods sold. Southern Trading Corp. v. Benchley Bros., Inc., 34 Ga. App. 625, 130 S.E. 691, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 450 (1925).

Unreasonable instructions may be disregarded. — Ordinarily, an agent must be guided wholly by the wishes or directions expressed by a principal, but in cases of an agency coupled with an interest, unreasonable instruction, detrimental to the agent's interests, may be disregarded. Gordon & Co. v. Cobb, 4 Ga. App. 49, 60 S.E. 821, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 194 (1908).

If an agency is coupled with an interest and the principal gives to the agent unreasonable instructions detrimental to the agent's interest, the agent may disregard the instructions and act for the agent, provided the agent acts in good faith, and the principal would be bound thereby. Southern Trading Corp. v. Benchley Bros., Inc., 34 Ga. App. 625, 130 S.E. 691, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 450 (1925).

Bonded messenger. — If an express company employed a messenger and required the messenger to give bond, which provided that the messenger should "well and truly perform all the duties required of me in any position . . ., and indemnify and save harmless the said company from all liability on account of my fault or neglect," as between the company and the messenger, the messenger's liability was that of an agent and depended on the messenger's diligence or negligence, and it was erroneous to charge the latter part of this section, as the power of this agent to act in this business was not coupled with any interest in the sense of this section. Southern Express Co. v. Frink, 67 Ga. 201, 1881 Ga. LEXIS 153 (1881).

When Principal Bound by Agent's Act

1. Generally

Knowledge that agent exceeded authority. — Principal is not bound by the acts of an agent when those acts are beyond the scope of the agent's authority and the person dealing with the agent knows thereof. Boles v. Hartsfield Co., 50 Ga. App. 442, 178 S.E. 416, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 354 (1935).

Illegal acts. — Unless a borrower shows affirmatively that one who loaned the borrower money at the highest legal rate assented to the exaction of a commission by the latter's agent, it cannot be said that the lender ever understood and agreed that the collateral agreement between the agent and the borrower should be considered and become a part of the contract of loan. The borrower has no right to assume that even a general agent has power to bind a principal by such an agreement; for, the same being illegal and prohibited by law, the borrower is put upon immediate notice that the agent is transcending the agent's general powers and going beyond the legal scope of the agency. Burnett v. Lewis, 40 Ga. App. 525, 150 S.E. 462, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 626 (1929).

Ratification. — Principal is not chargeable with knowledge as to acts of an agent beyond the scope of the latter's authority, nor in anywise bound thereby; but the principal must be shown by the party so alleging to have either tacitly or expressly assented to or ratified such acts on the part of the agent before they can be considered as having any binding effect. Burnett v. Lewis, 40 Ga. App. 525, 150 S.E. 462, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 626 (1929).

Estoppel to deny liability. — Purchaser of personal property from one who is not the true owner acquires no title against the true owner by reason of the bona fides of the purchase, when the purchaser purchased from one who is an utter stranger to the title and who can convey no title, except if there may be some statute otherwise, or if the true owner, upon some principle of estoppel, would be precluded from asserting title. However, the mere permission by the owner for the agent to have possession of the truck would not be such an act as would estop the owner. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 34, 57 S.E.2d 844, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 814 (1950).

Although a principal is not bound by a sealed instrument signed by an agent without authority to execute the instrument under seal, yet, having allowed the opposite party to act upon the instrument in a way to be prejudiced and to one's detriment but to the benefit of the principal, the principal is estopped from denying the validity of the instrument, and the court erred in excluding the instrument from the evidence and in directing the verdict for the plaintiff. Ferguson v.

Liability for tort of driver, injuring driver's guest. — If agent, servant, or employee of defendant, while driving automobile in and about defendant's business and in performance of the services for which the agent was hired or which the agent contracted to perform for the agent's principal or master, invites a third person to ride with the agent as a guest and such third person is injured by reason of the negligence of the driver, no right of action arises in favor of such third person against the owner of the automobile for a tort committed by the driver as the owner's agent, servant, or employee. Beard v. Oliver, 52 Ga. App. 229, 182 S.E. 921, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 118 (1935).

Examination of special agent's authority. — In the case of a special agency for a particular purpose, it is the duty of the one dealing with the agent to examine the agent's authority. Van Arsdale v. Joiner, 44 Ga. 173, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 345 (1871).

Broker is deemed special agent. — Under former Code 1882, §§ 2184, 2194, 2196, a broker was a special agent and derived the broker's power and authority to bind a principal from the instruction given to the agent by a principal. Clark & Nunnally v. Cumming & Co., 77 Ga. 64, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 287 (1886).

Power to borrow must be express. — It was held under former Civil Code 1895, §§ 3004 and 3021, which laid down the rule as to how the principal was bound by the acts of an agent, that authority to borrow money was among the most dangerous powers which a principal can confer upon an agent and must be created by express terms or be necessarily implied from the very nature actually created. Exchange Bank v. Thrower, 118 Ga. 433, 45 S.E. 316, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 580 (1903).

Agency to sell does not necessarily carry with it authority to collect. — Agent must act within the authority granted the agent, and persons dealing with any agent appointed for a particular purpose are bound to inquire as to the extent of the agent's authority. Miles v. Smith, 37 Ga. App. 619, 141 S.E. 314, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 530 (1928).

Power to make restricted endorsement does not authorize general endorsement in blank. Exchange Bank v. Thrower, 118 Ga. 433, 45 S.E. 316, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 580 (1903).

Agent's authority limited by policy ends with cancellation thereof. — If authority of an agent is limited by the terms of the group insurance policy and such policy is cancelled, such agent is without authority to continue such cancelled policy in force, unless such continuation is accepted and agreed to by the officers of the company empowered so to do or there has been an acceptance by the company of payments of premiums made for such purpose, and such agent is without authority to constitute the employer in group insurance policy the agent of the company to receive premiums for the employer. Lancaster v. Travelers Ins. Co., 54 Ga. App. 718, 189 S.E. 79, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 739 (1936).

2. Act of Subagent Appointed by Agent

Acts of unauthorized assistant. — Relationship of master and servant cannot be imposed upon a person without the person's consent, express or implied; hence, the defendant was free to select defendant's own servant and was responsible for the acts of the servant within the scope of employment, but the defendant was not responsible for the act of an assistant permitted without the defendant's authority to act for the defendant. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

Driver appointed by agent. — Unless a primary agent, expressly or impliedly authorized by the principal as owner of an automobile to drive it on the business of the owner, is himself expressly or impliedly authorized to appoint a subagent for that purpose, the owner will not be liable for the negligence of the latter. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

Ratification of act of employment. — If a servant, who is employed to do certain work for a master, employs another person to assist the servant, the master is liable for the negligence of the assistant only when the servant had authority, express or implied, to employ the assistant, or when the act of employment is ratified by the master. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953).

If one who is employed to drive a motor vehicle, without the consent of and against specific instructions of the master engages a substitute driver, the master is not liable for the negligence of the substitute driver unless the act of the servant employing the substitute driver is ratified by the master. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953); Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Raley, 104 Ga. App. 717, 123 S.E.2d 272, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 780 (1961).

Agent not authorized to delegate authority to sell. — Agent for the sale of personal property has only the authority to sell. If an agent, who is authorized to sell trucks but not authorized to delegate such authority to another, undertakes to exceed the agent's authority by delivering a truck to an automobile dealer to sell, the agent was acting without authority and no title to the truck passed. Berger v. Noble, 81 Ga. App. 34, 57 S.E.2d 844, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 814 (1950).

Duty of diligence, loyalty, and absolute good faith implied. — Law implies, as a part of the contract by which every agency arises, that the agent agrees to have and exercise towards the agent's principal diligence, loyalty, and absolute good faith. Render & Hammett v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 Ga. App. 716, 127 S.E. 902, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 702 (1925); Anderson v. Redwal Music Co., 122 Ga. App. 247, 176 S.E.2d 645, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 843 (1970).

Partnership and all partners liable for breach. — If the agent is a partnership, the partnership and all its members may be held liable for a violation of the duty of diligence, loyalty, and absolute good faith by any member as for a breach of contract. Render & Hammett v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 Ga. App. 716, 127 S.E. 902, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 702 (1925).

Delay in notifying principal of service of process. — If the law authorizes service of process upon a principal by service upon the agent, it is the agent's duty, when service is so made, to exercise diligence to notify the principal, and in default thereof, the agent will be liable for such damage as the principal may sustain. Render & Hammett v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 Ga. App. 716, 127 S.E. 902, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 702 (1925).

Money stolen because of failure to exercise ordinary care. — Agent would be liable if money was stolen as a result of the agent's failure to perform some duty with respect to the agent's handling and custody which rested on the agent independently of the instructions under which the agent was acting, if such failure on the agent's part, under the circumstances, amounted to a failure to exercise ordinary care. Cave v. Lougee & Zimmer, 134 Ga. 135, 67 S.E. 667, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 134 (1910).

One undertaking to procure insurance liable for fraud or negligence. — If one undertakes to procure insurance for another and is guilty of fraud or negligence in the undertaking, one is liable for loss or damage to the limit of the agreed policy. Anderson v. Redwal Music Co., 122 Ga. App. 247, 176 S.E.2d 645, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 843 (1970).

A cause of action will lie for breach of contract to procure insurance on behalf of another, and, irrespective of contractual duty, an action in tort may be based upon a misrepresentation that insurance coverage has been effected when no policy or binder has been issued. Anderson v. Redwal Music Co., 122 Ga. App. 247, 176 S.E.2d 645, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 843 (1970).

Creditor selling security must use ordinary diligence. — If a bill of sale is given to secure debt and on maturity of the debt the creditor elects to exercise the right given therein to take possession of the security and to sell the security at private sale as the agent of the debtors, the creditor is acting as agent for the debtors in thus dealing with the security and must exercise ordinary diligence, such as persons of common prudence use in relation to their own affairs, in handling such security, having due regard to the rights of the debtors therein. Goldin v. Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, 50 Ga. App. 790, 179 S.E. 291, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 283 (1935).

Gratuitous agent. — Voluntary agent without reward is only liable for gross neglect in and about the business of the principal. Armstrong, Cator & Co. v. Pease, 66 Ga. 70, 1880 Ga. LEXIS 15 (1880).

Gratuitous agent owes the principal the duty to exercise slight diligence. Summerson v. Blanks, 149 Ga. App. 478, 254 S.E.2d 716, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 1898 (1979).

Rule requiring mutuality of promises inapplicable to voluntary agent. — Rule that when mutual promises furnish the only consideration for a contract the promises must be mutually binding was inapplicable if the case was made to substantially rest on the theory that there was no valuable consideration for the agreement, but that the defendant agreed with the plaintiff to render certain services as the agent of the latter, and that the defendant was liable for gross neglect as a voluntary agent. Barber v. Roland, 143 Ga. 432, 85 S.E. 321, 1915 Ga. LEXIS 475 (1915).

Benefit held sufficient consideration to require ordinary care. — If the jury is authorized to find that the defendant voluntarily solicited control of the plaintiff's money for the purpose of lending the money to defendant's own customers and that the defendant wanted the money for this purpose because of some benefit or advantage which would accrue personally to the defendant by reason of the agency, the evidence upon this question, though circumstantial, authorizes the inference that the contract of agency was supported by a consideration and bound the defendant to ordinary care about the business of the principal. Benton v. Roberts, 41 Ga. App. 189, 152 S.E. 141, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 488 (1930).

Proper appraisal of agent's conduct encompasses knowledge which the agent professes to possess. Summerson v. Blanks, 149 Ga. App. 478, 254 S.E.2d 716, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 1898 (1979) (gratuitous agent).

Charge substantially in the language of section is sufficient. National Pencil Co. v. Pinkerton's Nat'l Detective Agency, 19 Ga. App. 429, 91 S.E. 432, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 136 (1917).

Evidence was sufficient to create an issue for jury determination as to whether real estate agent negligently represented seller by failing to inform the seller that documents executed at closing granted the agent a security interest.

Analysis

General Consideration
Application

General Consideration

Principles set forth in section are generally applicable when the agent is acting or should be acting as such for the agent's principal in dealing with third persons. Smith v. Pennington, 192 Ga. 478, 15 S.E.2d 727, 1941 Ga. LEXIS 517 (1941).

Sale by agent to self. — As a general rule, one employed by an owner of property to sell the property as an agent is not authorized to sell the property to himself or herself alone or with others. Mayor of Macon v. Huff, 60 Ga. 133, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 398 (1878); Mitchell v. Gifford & Co., 133 Ga. 823, 67 S.E. 197, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 73 (1910); Peterson v. Appleby, 31 Ga. App. 286, 120 S.E. 651, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 891 (1923).

Transfer option to purchase by agent personally. — Plaintiffs, a firm of brokers with whom the defendant had listed real estate for sale, were not entitled to recover a commission from the defendant for services in procuring a prospective purchaser, who obtained from the defendant an option for the purchase of the property and transferred the option to one of the plaintiffs. Peterson v. Appleby, 31 Ga. App. 286, 120 S.E. 651, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 891 (1923).

Absence of principal's knowledge and consent. — Agent or attorney employed to sell property cannot directly or indirectly become the purchaser without the principal's knowledge and consent. Reeves v. Callaway, 140 Ga. 101, 78 S.E. 717, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 43 (1913).

Agent who has been engaged to sell real estate for the owner may not, either directly or indirectly, purchase the real estate personally, without the express consent of the principal after full knowledge of all the facts. Dolvin Realty Co. v. Holley, 203 Ga. 618, 48 S.E.2d 109, 1948 Ga. LEXIS 497 (1948).

Agent employed to sell may not purchase the principal's property without the express consent of the latter after a full disclosure of all the facts. Youngblood v. Mock, 143 Ga. App. 320, 238 S.E.2d 250, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2303 (1977).

Sale voidable. — If an agent for the purpose of selling property of the principal purchases the property personally, either directly or through the instrumentality of a third person, the sale is voidable; it will always be set aside at the option of the principal; the amount of consideration, the absence of undue advantage, and other similar features are wholly immaterial; nothing will defeat the principal's right of remedy except the principal's own confirmation, after full knowledge of all the facts. Fraud on the part of the agent or injury to the principal is therefore unessential. Dolvin Realty Co. v. Holley, 203 Ga. 618, 48 S.E.2d 109, 1948 Ga. LEXIS 497 (1948).

Subagents. — Subagent's duties and obligations to the principal are of the same nature and extent as those of the agent, and a sale of the principal's real estate by the subagent to the subagent, without express consent of the principal with full knowledge of all the facts, will likewise be set aside at the option of the principal. Dolvin Realty Co. v. Holley, 203 Ga. 618, 48 S.E.2d 109, 1948 Ga. LEXIS 497 (1948).

Trustees. — Trustee could not buy at the trustee's own lawful sale. For a stronger reason, the trustee could not buy at a sale brought about by the trustee's own unlawful conduct. Bourquin v. Bourquin, 120 Ga. 115, 47 S.E. 639, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 457 (1904).

Sales under which agent assumes all losses and takes all profits. — Agent to sell is not, without the consent of the agent's principal, authorized to make sales in foreign markets under an arrangement whereby the agent should assume all risks and contingencies of loss and take all the profits, as this would amount to a sale by the agent to the agent, and one cannot lawfully do by indirection what one is positively forbidden to do. Atlantic Turpentine & Pine Tar Co. v. Rosin & Turpentine Export Co., 247 F. 618, 1918 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1247 (D. Ga. 1918).

Good faith no defense. — It is no defense for an agent and the agent's associate to show that the agent acted in good faith in selling to the agent in association with another and that the transaction was in fact for the best interest of the principal; the law does not inquire in such a case whether there is any fraud, but gives the principal the absolute right to repudiate the transaction because the law will not allow an agent to take a position which is so inconsistent with the agent's duty to the agent's principal. Reeves v. Callaway, 140 Ga. 101, 78 S.E. 717, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 43 (1913); Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

Agent must account for property purchased and proceeds. — When the principal executes, without reading them, written instruments which have been prepared by the agent in which the agent is named grantee, and the agent thereafter conveys to a third person a part of the property so conveyed to the agent and claims the rest of the property as purchaser under deeds executed by the principal, a court of equity will decree an implied trust upon the proceeds derived from the sale of the property to the third person and upon the property remaining in the agent and will enforce an accounting between the parties. Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

First duty of an agent is that of loyalty to the trust; the agent must not be in relations which are antagonistic to that of the agent's principal; the agent's duty and interest must not be allowed to conflict; the agent cannot deal in the business within the scope of the agent's agency for the agent's own benefit, nor is the agent permitted to compromise the agent's responsibilities by attempting to serve two masters having a contrary interest, unless it be that such contracts of dual agency are known to each of the principals. Arthur v. Georgia Cotton Co., 22 Ga. App. 431, 96 S.E. 232, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 376 (1918); Clyde Chester Realty Co. v. Stansell, 151 Ga. App. 357, 259 S.E.2d 639, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2595 (1979).

Agent cannot have any interest nor do any act adverse to the interest of the agent's principal or incompatible with the application of the agent's best skill, zeal, and diligence to the promotion of that interest. Franco v. Stein Steel & Supply Co., 227 Ga. 92, 179 S.E.2d 88, 1970 Ga. LEXIS 402 (1970), cert. denied, 402 U.S. 973, 91 S. Ct. 1661, 29 L. Ed. 2d 137, 1971 U.S. LEXIS 1982 (1971); Clyde Chester Realty Co. v. Stansell, 151 Ga. App. 357, 259 S.E.2d 639, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2595 (1979).

Antagonism between the agent and principal. — It is contrary to public policy for an agent, without the full knowledge and consent of a principal, to do any act or make any contract in carrying out the business of the agency, the effect of which will be to bring the personal interests of the agent in antagonism with those of the principal. Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

No man can serve two masters. — Former Civil Code 1895, §§ 3010, 3011 and 3014 followed the rule that "no man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other." Gann v. Zettler, 3 Ga. App. 589, 60 S.E. 283, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 380 (1908).

Personal and representative interests must not conflict. — Underlying thought is that an agent should not unite an agent's personal and representative characters in the same transaction; and equity will not permit an agent to be exposed to the temptation or brought into a situation where the agent's own personal interests conflict with the interests of the agent's principal and with the duties which the agent owes to the principal. Dolvin Realty Co. v. Holley, 203 Ga. 618, 48 S.E.2d 109, 1948 Ga. LEXIS 497 (1948).

Principal can rely on agent's representations. — When the relation of principal and agent arises, the utmost fidelity is imposed upon the agent; the principal can in law rely upon the agent's statements and representations without the necessity of establishing their genuineness. Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

Right to presume papers tendered by agent will not give agent adverse interest. — Principal has a right to presume that all papers tendered to the principal are as represented by the agent and not contracts under which the agent can derive an interest in opposition to the principal's own. Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

Decisions requiring party to read unless prevented by fraud are inapplicable. — Cases holding to the effect that a party who can read must read and fraud which will relieve a party who can read must be such as prevents the party from reading have no application when a confidential and fiduciary relationship of principal and agent is involved. Youngblood v. Mock, 143 Ga. App. 320, 238 S.E.2d 250, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2303 (1977) (action by principal against agent for breach of fiduciary duty).

Application

Agent making sale to corporation. — Conveyance by an agent authorized to sell, being made to a corporation of which the agent is president and a stockholder, may be treated as void by the principal. Whitley v. James, 121 Ga. 521, 49 S.E. 600, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 219 (1904); Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

Partner of agent. — When realtor was acting as agent in the sale of property, neither the agent nor the agent's partner could become the purchaser of the property without the express consent of the plaintiffs after full knowledge of all the facts. Kellett v. Boynton, 87 Ga. App. 692, 75 S.E.2d 292, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 830 (1953).

Listing of property at fixed or minimum price. — Rule forbidding an agent or subagent from purchasing the principal's property, without the express consent and knowledge of the principal, is not made inapplicable because the property was listed for sale with the agency at a fixed or minimum price.

Dolvin Realty Co. v. Holley, 203 Ga. 618, 48 S.E.2d 109, 1948 Ga. LEXIS 497 (1948).

Indirect purchase through father-in-law. — Testimony and documents relating to a sales contract wherein an agent's father-in-law was named as the purchaser was admissible to show the initiation by the agent of an undisclosed effort on the agent's part to earn a secret personal profit on the eventual resale of the property by first attempting to purchase the property indirectly through the agent's father-in-law. Johnson Realty, Inc. v. Hand, 189 Ga. App. 706, 377 S.E.2d 176, 1988 Ga. App. LEXIS 1507 (1988).

Mayor may not rent from city. — Mayor of a city while in office cannot contract with the city council to rent a city park. Mayor of Macon v. Huff, 60 Ga. 221, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 427 (1878).

Court-approved investment in stock of trustee-bank. — Money invested in the capital stock of a bank under order of court, when the bank was acting as trustee, was legal as this was in no sense such a case as provided against in this section, and the principal had full knowledge of all the facts, and the sale had the specific authority of judicial sanction. Haddock v. Planters' Bank, 66 Ga. 496, 1881 Ga. LEXIS 43 (1881).

Contractual power of sale in security deed authorizing purchase by grantee. — When a deed to secure a debt provides that the grantee may sell the property upon default and may bid and purchase at such sale, the power of sale is a power coupled with an interest and is absolute for the purposes therein mentioned, without any element of personal confidence in the grantee or limitation as to discretion. The power, being of such character by contract of the parties, is not inhibited by this section. Smith v. Bukofzer, 180 Ga. 209, 178 S.E. 641, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 221 (1935).

Scope of attorney-client relationship. — Relationship of attorney and client is fiduciary in character, but this does not extend beyond the subject matter for which the services of the lawyer have been retained. Jerry Lipps, Inc. v. Postell, 139 Ga. App. 595, 229 S.E.2d 78, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 1900 (1976) (no breach of duty by attorneys).

Insurance agent may not represent company and property owner. — Agent of a fire insurance company, authorized to contract for insurance in its behalf, cannot, without the company's consent, become in the agent's individual character the agent of a property owner who desires to obtain insurance in that company. Ramspeck v. Pattillo, 104 Ga. 772, 30 S.E. 962, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 425 (1898).

Real estate agent may not collect commissions from both parties. — Agent who secretly undertakes to represent both parties to a transaction is not permitted to recover commissions from either of them. This rule applies to real estate agents as well as others. Williams v. Moore-Gaunt Co., 3 Ga. App. 756, 60 S.E. 372, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 424 (1908).

Real estate agent may collect commissions from both parties if all have so agreed. — When it is clearly understood by all the parties that one who is paid commissions to sell cotton is also to charge commissions from the buyer, the transaction is not illegal. Talcott v. Chew, 27 F. 273, 1885 U.S. App. LEXIS 2419 (C.C.D. Ga. 1885).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Real estate broker may not retain the amount received above the net listing, in excess of the broker's usual commission, unless the broker's contract with the seller so provides, and may not conceal from the seller the amount received from the purchaser. 1945-47 Ga. Op. Att'y Gen. 510.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Principles set forth in this section are generally applicable when the agent is acting or should be acting as such for the agent's principal in dealing with third persons. Smith v. Pennington, 192 Ga. 478, 15 S.E.2d 727, 1941 Ga. LEXIS 517 (1941).

Public agents are included under this section. Mayor of Macon v. Huff, 60 Ga. 221, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 427 (1878).

Trustees can never be allowed to derive a personal advantage from the use of the trustee's principal's property. Rogers v. Dickey, 117 Ga. 819, 45 S.E. 71, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 349 (1903).

Duty of agent. — Arthur v. Georgia Cotton Co., 22 Ga. App. 431, 96 S.E. 232, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 376 (1918); Franco v. Stein Steel & Supply Co., 227 Ga. 92, 179 S.E.2d 88, 1970 Ga. LEXIS 402 (1970), cert. denied, 402 U.S. 973, 91 S. Ct. 1661, 29 L. Ed. 2d 137, 1971 U.S. LEXIS 1982 (1971).

Loyalty to the principal is the primary obligation of the agent. Smith v. Merck, 206 Ga. 361, 57 S.E.2d 326, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 354 (1950).

Loyalty and good faith required of agent. — Relationship of principal and agent is confidential and fiduciary and demands of the agent loyalty and good faith to the principal. Kellett v. Boynton, 87 Ga. App. 692, 75 S.E.2d 292, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 830 (1953).

Agent cannot have any interest or do any act adverse to the interest of the agent's principal or which is incompatible with the application of the agent's skill and diligence to the promotion of that interest. Franco v. Stein Steel & Supply Co., 227 Ga. 92, 179 S.E.2d 88, 1970 Ga. LEXIS 402 (1970), cert. denied, 402 U.S. 973, 91 S. Ct. 1661, 29 L. Ed. 2d 137, 1971 U.S. LEXIS 1982 (1971).

Antagonism between agent and principal. — Agent must not put oneself in relations which are antagonistic to that of the agent's principal; the agent's duty and interest must not be allowed to conflict; the agent can not deal in the business within the scope of the agent's agency for the agent's own benefit. Arthur v. Georgia Cotton Co., 22 Ga. App. 431, 96 S.E. 232, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 376 (1918).

Personal benefit to agent. — Agent cannot engage in the business of the agent's principal for the agent's personal benefit and profit within the scope of the agency. Franco v. Stein Steel & Supply Co., 227 Ga. 92, 179 S.E.2d 88, 1970 Ga. LEXIS 402 (1970), cert. denied, 402 U.S. 973, 91 S. Ct. 1661, 29 L. Ed. 2d 137, 1971 U.S. LEXIS 1982 (1971).

Relation of principal and agent is a fiduciary one, and the agent may not make a profit for the agent out of the relationship, or out of knowledge obtained from the relationship, to the injury of the principal. Larkins v. Boyd, 205 Ga. 69, 52 S.E.2d 307, 1949 Ga. LEXIS 514 (1949).

If the fiduciary relationship of principal and agent existed between the petitioner and the defendant, the defendant could not make advantage or profit for the defendant out of the relationship to the injury of the defendant's principal. Harrison v. Harrison, 214 Ga. 393, 105 S.E.2d 214, 1958 Ga. LEXIS 438 (1958).

Scope of agent's power. — There was no merit to a homeowner's argument that a restrictive covenant barring "For Sale" signs in a subdivision did not apply to the homeowner's real estate agent; under O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6-20 and 10-6-25, an agent could do no more than a principal. Godley Park Homeowners Ass'n v. Bowen, 286 Ga. App. 21, 649 S.E.2d 308, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 677 (2007).

Gift or purchase from principal closely scrutinized. — It is for the common security of mankind that gifts procured by agents, and purchases made by the agents, from the agent's principals, should be scrutinized with a close and vigilant suspicion. Harrison v. Harrison, 214 Ga. 393, 105 S.E.2d 214, 1958 Ga. LEXIS 438 (1958).

Breach of faith requirement is fraud in itself. — Relationship of principal and agent, being confidential and fiduciary in character, demands of the agent the utmost loyalty and good faith to the agent's principal, and any breach of this good faith whereby the principal suffers any disadvantage and the agent reaps any benefit is a fraud of such nature as to preclude the agent from taking or retaining the benefit, and also from claiming the agent's commissions. Peevy v. Wilkes, 48 Ga. App. 114, 172 S.E. 108, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 480 (1933); Harrison v. Harrison, 214 Ga. 393, 105 S.E.2d 214, 1958 Ga. LEXIS 438 (1958).

Principal need not show actual or moral fraud. — Under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3582, 3583 and 4628, an agent to buy and resell property for the agent's principals cannot lawfully make a secret profit from the transaction; nor is it necessary to the application of this rule that the principal must show actual or moral fraud. Ausley v. Cummings, 145 Ga. 750, 89 S.E. 1071, 1916 Ga. LEXIS 466 (1916).

Contract obtained by violation is void. — Contract, no matter how solemnly expressed, obtained by an agent from the agent's principal through a violation of the loyalty and good faith imposed by the confidential relation, is void and is not enforceable in law or in equity. Peevy v. Wilkes, 48 Ga. App. 114, 172 S.E. 108, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 480 (1933).

Agent is trustee as to any advantage obtained. — Relation of principal and agent is a fiduciary one, and the latter cannot make advantage and profit for oneself out of the relationship, or out of knowledge thus obtained, to the injury of one's principal; and the agency being established, the agent will be held to be a trustee as to any profits, advantages, rights, or privileges under any contract made and obtained within the scope and by reason of such agency. Peevy v. Wilkes, 48 Ga. App. 114, 172 S.E. 108, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 480 (1933).

Relation of principal and agent is a fiduciary one, and if the agent obtains any advantage or profit out of the relationship to the injury of the principal, one becomes a trustee. Smith v. Merck, 206 Ga. 361, 57 S.E.2d 326, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 354 (1950).

Good faith no defense. — It is no defense for an agent and the agent's associate to show that the agent acted in good faith in selling to the agent in association with another and that the transaction was in fact for the best interest of the principal; the law does not inquire in such a case whether there is any fraud, but gives the principal the absolute right to repudiate the transaction because it will not allow an agent to take a position which is so inconsistent with the agent's duty to the agent's principal. Reeves v. Callaway, 140 Ga. 101, 78 S.E. 717, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 43 (1913); Smith v. Harvey-Given Co., 182 Ga. 410, 185 S.E. 793, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 375 (1936).

Principal may rely on agent's representations. — Because of their fiduciary relationship, a principal is justified in relying upon the representations of the principal's agent and in failing to read and know the contents of the various deeds signed by the principal. Harrison v. Harrison, 214 Ga. 393, 105 S.E.2d 214, 1958 Ga. LEXIS 438 (1958).

Numerous decisions to the effect that a party who can read, must read, and that fraud which will relieve a party who can read must be such as prevents one from reading, apply to situations where the parties are dealing with each other at arms length and have no application to a situation where the confidential and fiduciary relation of principal and agent is involved. Harrison v. Harrison, 214 Ga. 393, 105 S.E.2d 214, 1958 Ga. LEXIS 438 (1958).

Power of attorney. — When the clear and unambiguous purpose of the power of attorney is to serve and benefit only the grantor of the power, there is no authorization for the agent to use such powers on the agent's own behalf, i.e., to secure a personal loan for the agent. First Nat'l Bank v. Cooper, 252 Ga. 215, 312 S.E.2d 607, 1984 Ga. LEXIS 653 (1984).

Duty terminates upon termination of agency. — Principles of agency will not sustain grant of an injunction prohibiting competition after agency relationship is terminated. Pope v. Kem Mfg. Corp., 249 Ga. 868, 295 S.E.2d 290, 1982 Ga. LEXIS 928 (1982).

Agent taking over principal's position with company deemed disloyal. — Agent can do nothing more disloyal to the agent's principal than contacting the agent's principal's employer and taking over the latter's position with the company. Koch v. Cochran, 251 Ga. 559, 307 S.E.2d 918, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 907 (1983).

Breach of duty of loyalty by employee. — Trial court's finding that a former employee breached the duty of loyalty to a former employer was supported by some evidence because competition against the employer by the employer's employees was specifically prohibited by the terms of the employee manual, the employee agreed to abide by the employee manual, and the employee engaged in a rival business while employed by the employer. Sitton v. Print Direction, Inc., 312 Ga. App. 365, 718 S.E.2d 532, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 849 (2011).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Agent cannot dispute principal's title. — One who undertakes to act as the agent of another cannot dispute the right or title of the agent's principal in and to the subject of the agency. Morgan v. Morgan, 160 Ga. 472, 128 S.E. 674, 1925 Ga. LEXIS 188 (1925).

Agent may not attack transfer to principal. — If there was an agreement between J and B that the latter should hold a certificate to secure a debt due B by J, and if J, for the purpose of securing such debt, delivered the certificate to B and the latter delivered the certificate to L for safekeeping, L could not defeat a recovery of the certificate by B on the ground that there was no written assignment of the certificate by J to B. Loveless v. Bridges, 136 Ga. 338, 71 S.E. 166, 1911 Ga. LEXIS 530 (1911).

Denial of authority to sign principal's name. — If a person signs the name of another to a note, purportedly as a joint obligor, one will be estopped to assert, in an action thereon by an innocent holder for value, that one did not have the authority to sign the name of such other party to the note. Williams v. Atlanta Nat'l Bank, 31 Ga. App. 212, 120 S.E. 658, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 856 (1923).

Denial that agent holds money as county agent by showing money was borrowed without authority. — If the authorities in charge of the finances of a county borrowed money for county purposes without authority of law, and the money thus unlawfully borrowed was received by the county treasurer as county funds and kept with the lawful money of the county, one was estopped from denying that one held this borrowed money by virtue of one's office as treasurer, and was liable for the same upon one's official bond. Mason v. Commissioners of Rds. & Revenues, 104 Ga. 35, 30 S.E. 513, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 278 (1898).

Agent's declarations are not admissible to disparage principal's title. — Declarations of an agent, who is in possession of realty merely to manage and care for the realty, are not admissible in evidence against the principal to disparage the principal's title. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 119 Ga. 76, 46 S.E. 76, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 39 (1903).

Principal's title may be defense to subagent. — While an agent cannot dispute one's principal's title except in certain instances, yet if one is in possession of cattle merely by virtue of an employment by an officer of the corporation, one would not because of these facts be estopped from defending upon the ground that the title was in the company. Paschal v. Godley, 34 Ga. App. 321, 129 S.E. 565, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 250 (1925).

Agent may restore note to principal despite another's demand. — One in possession of a promissory note as agent for another is not cut off from restoring the note to one's principal though a demand upon one for the note has been made by another claimant. Wando Phosphate Co. v. Parker, 93 Ga. 414, 21 S.E. 53, 1893 Ga. LEXIS 449 (1893).

Dispute as to possession between principal and agent. — When dispute arises as to right of agent or principal to possession of property in hands of agent, title to that property must, of necessity, be decided. Scroggins v. Powell, Goldstein, Frazer & Murphy (In re Kaleidoscope, Inc.), 15 B.R. 232, 1981 Bankr. LEXIS 2579 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 1981), rev'd, 25 B.R. 729, 1982 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16133 (N.D. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Demand deposit by fiduciary not investment requiring court order. — Deposit in a bank by a fiduciary, such as a guardian, of trust funds in the fiduciary's custody and control, subject to the fiduciary's withdrawal on demand, does not constitute an investment of the funds which can be made only by an order of court. Gross v. Butler, 48 Ga. App. 750, 173 S.E. 866, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 182 (1934).

Guardian not insurer of safety of deposited funds. — Whatever duty may rest upon a guardian to invest the funds of a ward in securities such as the guardian may be legally authorized to invest the funds in, the guardian is not an insurer of the safety of the funds in the guardian's hands and is not liable for the funds' loss, when, in handling the funds, the guardian has acted in good faith and in the exercise of the care and diligence required of an ordinarily prudent person. Gross v. Butler, 48 Ga. App. 750, 173 S.E. 866, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 182 (1934).

Guardian not liable for bank failure when required care was exercised. — When the guardian has, in the guardian's fiduciary capacity, deposited the funds subject to withdrawal by the guardian at any time, in a bank of solvent reputation and which the guardian has no reason to believe is insolvent and the funds, through no fault of the guardian, are lost by the insolvency of the bank, the guardian has thereby exercised the care and diligence required of the guardian in the handling of the funds, and is not liable for their loss. Gross v. Butler, 48 Ga. App. 750, 173 S.E. 866, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 182 (1934).

Deposit must be in name of estate. — It is the duty of a trustee or administrator to deposit money belonging to the estate in the name of the particular estate. Gatewood v. Furlow, 19 Ga. App. 74, 90 S.E. 973, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 51 (1916).

10-6-29. Mingling goods.

An agent, by willfully mingling his own goods with those of his principal, shall not create a tenancy in common; but, if incapable of separation, the whole shall belong to the principal.

History.
Orig. Code 1863, § 2171; Code 1868, § 2167; Code 1873, § 2193; Code 1882, § 2193; Civil Code 1895, § 3020; Civil Code 1910, § 3592; Code 1933, § 4-210.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Agent cannot create tenancy in common by mingling goods. — Special agent, by mingling the agent's own goods with those of the agent's principal, cannot create a tenancy in common. Hall v. Page, 4 Ga. 428, 1848 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1848).

Agent loses agent's property unless confusion was innocent. — By virtue of this section if one fraudulently, willfully, or wrongfully mixes or confuses one's goods with those of another and cannot distinguish one's own, one will lose the goods; but when one does so innocently or by mistake, if one can distinguish them or show their value or their proportion of value to the whole, one ought in equity to be allowed to do so. The question is for the jury. Claflin & Co. v. Continental Jersey Works, 85 Ga. 27, 11 S.E. 721, 1890 Ga. LEXIS 2 (1890).

Agent liable for all mingled funds absent proof as to each source. — When an administrator sold as a unit and for a lump sum four parcels of land, as to only two of which the administrator has obtained an order of court, the administrator in thus causing a confusion of funds brings upon oneself and one's security the burden of showing what proportion of the funds were derived from the sale of the other two parcels, in order to escape liability therefor; and, upon a failure to carry such burden the administrator was held liable for the entire sum. American Sur. Co. v. Pettie, 178 Ga. 26, 171 S.E. 916, 1933 Ga. LEXIS 6 (1933).

Agent must separate agent's own funds to claim the funds. — Factor with whom property has been deposited who, after having made advancements to the owner upon the property, sells a portion of the property during the owner's lifetime and applies the proceeds thereof upon the indebtedness and sells the remainder of the property after the death of the owner, must, when one is entitled to the proceeds of the property sold before the death of the owner, but, by reason of a claim of the widow and minor children of the owner to a year's support, is not entitled to the proceeds of the property sold after the death of the owner, before one can assert one's claim to the proceeds of the property to which one is entitled, separate and distinguish them from the proceeds of the property sold after the death of the owner. Philpot v. Ramsey & Hogan, 47 Ga. App. 635, 171 S.E. 204, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 584 (1933).

10-6-30. Proper accounting required.

It shall be the duty of agents, trustees, administrators, guardians, conservators, receivers, and all other fiduciaries to keep their accounts in a regular manner and to be always ready with them supported by proper vouchers; neglect of this duty shall be ground for charging them with interest on balances on hand and with costs.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Proof of compliance with section. — Burden of proof is upon the agent to show compliance with this section. Dodge v. Hatchett, 118 Ga. 883, 45 S.E. 667, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 752 (1903).

While ordinarily one attacking a return of a guardian has the burden to impeach the correctness thereof, the burden of proof is upon the guardian to show compliance with this section. Pettigrew v. Williams, 65 Ga. App. 576, 16 S.E.2d 120, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 356 (1941).

Supporting claim with vouchers. — When a receiver is called upon for an accounting, the burden is upon the receiver to support the claim for expenditures by proper vouchers or to show some sufficient reason why the receiver cannot do so. Dodge v. Hatchett, 118 Ga. 883, 45 S.E. 667, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 752 (1903); Merritt v. George, 168 Ga. 497, 148 S.E. 334, 1929 Ga. LEXIS 175 (1929).

Proper accounting and payment over by agent is presumed. — There is a legal presumption, in the absence of proof to the contrary, that an agent has performed the agent's duty and paid over and accounted to the agent's principal for moneys collected by the agent in the agent's capacity as agent, and the burden is on the principal to show the contrary. Kelley v. Carolina Life Ins. Co., 48 Ga. App. 106, 171 S.E. 847, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 478 (1933).

Guardian making an annual return should lay the guardian's account before the probate court, plainly setting forth, with sufficient certainty, the guardian's charges against the ward. This account is the case the guardian should prove. Pettigrew v. Williams, 65 Ga. App. 576, 16 S.E.2d 120, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 356 (1941).

Vouchers are the guardian's evidence to support the guardian's account. Pettigrew v. Williams, 65 Ga. App. 576, 16 S.E.2d 120, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 356 (1941).

Vouchers entitled to no weight as evidence. — Vouchers are entitled to no weight as evidence on the score that the probate court allowed the vouchers. Pettigrew v. Williams, 65 Ga. App. 576, 16 S.E.2d 120, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 356 (1941).

Annual returns of a guardian, allowed by the probate court, are only prima facie evidence of the correctness thereof, and in an application for a settlement the returns may be attacked by the ward, the burden being on the ward to impeach the returns. Pettigrew v. Williams, 65 Ga. App. 576, 16 S.E.2d 120, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 356 (1941).

Approval of returns is not final, conclusive judgment. — Approval of returns by the probate court, made when the ward was an infant and unable to question the legality and accuracy of such returns and of the expenditures charged against the estate, is not intended to mean a final, conclusive judgment, but only a conditional judgment contingent upon further needs. Pettigrew v. Williams, 65 Ga. App. 576, 16 S.E.2d 120, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 356 (1941).

Returns may be attacked by ward upon reaching majority. — Purported vouchers or receipts are not alone sufficient to constitute conclusive evidence that such expenditures were made. Their approval by the court being prima facie only, an attack by the ward, upon discovering after reaching majority that such expenditures were not made and that there were not proper vouchers attached to the items of the returns including such expenditures, is not subject to dismissal. Pettigrew v. Williams, 65 Ga. App. 576, 16 S.E.2d 120, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 356 (1941).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

County administrator/county guardian may aggregate the funds of the estates the administrator administers in a single fiduciary account provided that accurate records are maintained separately identifying the monies and disbursements of each estate included in the aggregation. 1982 Op. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Agent impliedly agrees to exercise good faith. — Law implies as a part of the contract by which every agency arises that the agent agrees to have and exercise for and toward a principal loyalty and absolute good faith. Reisman v. Massey, 84 Ga. App. 796, 67 S.E.2d 585, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 800 (1951).

Deception bars benefit to agent. — If the agent practices upon the principal any deception (whether intentional or not) whereby the principal is misled and damaged and the agent would reap any benefit, the transaction is fraudulent, and the courts will not allow the agent to take or retain the benefit. Reisman v. Massey, 84 Ga. App. 796, 67 S.E.2d 585, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 800 (1951).

Agent must act in fiduciary manner for compensation. — Agent is entitled to compensation during the period of time in which the agent acts in a fiduciary manner; the agent forfeits compensation only during the period of time in which the agent fails to act in a fiduciary manner. E.H. Crump Co. v. Millar, 194 Ga. App. 687, 391 S.E.2d 775, 1990 Ga. App. LEXIS 291 (1990), cert. denied, No. S90C0828, 1990 Ga. LEXIS 689 (Ga. Apr. 12, 1990).

Breach of duty of loyalty. — Although the language of O.C.G.A. § 10-6-31 states that if an agent has violated the agent's engagement, the agent shall be entitled to no commission, this provision, by its very terms, can apply only in cases where an employee or agent breaches the duty of loyalty. Crippen v. Outback Steakhouse Int'l, L.P., 321 Ga. App. 167, 741 S.E.2d 280, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 333 (2013).

Agent's breach forfeits right to commissions. — Any breach of the agent's implied contract on the agent's part forfeits the agent's right to commissions. Reisman v. Massey, 84 Ga. App. 796, 67 S.E.2d 585, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 800 (1951).

Agent's fault or lack thereof. — The law requires utmost good faith on the part of an agent with a principal when undertaking to carry out the contract of agency, and if the agent, through no fault of the principal, fails to perform the duties for which the agent has been employed, or when, through the agent's fault, by reason of fraud perpetrated by the agent, a contract which the agent has negotiated for a principal's benefit is unenforceable and is repudiated by the person with whom the agent has contracted, and thus the agent has failed to perform the duties of the agency, the agent is not entitled to compensation from the principal. Rood v. Anchors, 42 Ga. App. 76, 155 S.E. 65, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 237 (1930).

Agent retained right to compensation. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment to a home seller and against a realtor in construing the unambiguous language in the brokerage agreement at issue, which was for a definite term and was not terminable at will; moreover, although a sale was not consummated, the realtor remained entitled to the realtor's six percent commission, and the seller remained obligated to pay that amount, which was the proper measure of damages. Ben Farmer Realty, Inc. v. Owens, 286 Ga. App. 678, 649 S.E.2d 771, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 768 (2007), cert. denied, No. S07C1820, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 81 (Ga. Jan. 7, 2008).

Principal may recover agent's compensation upon discovering failure to perform. — When the principal has paid the agent for services rendered pursuant to the contract of agency and is in ignorance of the fact that the agent has failed in the performance of the agent's duties as agent, the principal has a right, upon a discovery of this fact, to recover the money thus paid to the agent as compensation. Rood v. Anchors, 42 Ga. App. 76, 155 S.E. 65, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 237 (1930).

Trial court incorrectly relied on the law firm's failure to show that the firm incurred a loss or that the former managing member of the law firm obtained a benefit from the former managing member's efforts to market the former managing member's own professional corporation while working for the law firm when it granted summary judgment to the former managing member on the law firm's claim that the former managing member breached the former managing member's fiduciary duty to the law firm through such conduct; and the law firm was entitled to recover compensation the firm paid to the former managing member during the time the former managing member breached the fiduciary duty. Helms & Greene, LLC v. Willis, 333 Ga. App. 396, 773 S.E.2d 491, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 422 (2015), cert. denied, No. S15C1833, 2015 Ga. LEXIS 728 (Ga. Oct. 5, 2015).

Indemnification of agent for expenses. — General rule is that, if one is employed or directed by another to do an act in the other's behalf, the law implies a promise of indemnity by the principal for expenditures incurred as a proximate consequence of the good faith execution of the agency. Dollar v. First Bank, 153 Ga. App. 789, 266 S.E.2d 566, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1982 (1980).

General Consideration

"Owner" defined. — "Owner," as used in this section, is construed to mean "owners," if the property belongs to joint owners. Stallworth v. Martin-Ozburn Realty Co., 17 Ga. App. 689, 87 S.E. 1094, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 858 (1916).

Owner's Right to Sell

Conferring the exclusive right to sell excludes sales by the owners themselves. Barrington v. Dunwody, 35 Ga. App. 517, 134 S.E. 130, 1926 Ga. App. LEXIS 964 (1926).

Owner may sell despite appointment of agent. — Under this section, if there is no express provision to the contrary, the appointment of a real estate agent to sell property does not deprive the owner of the right of selling the property personally without liability to account to the real estate agent for the commission. Humphries & Jackson v. Smith, 5 Ga. App. 340, 63 S.E. 248, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 116 (1908); Ford & Pruett v. Thomason, 11 Ga. App. 359, 75 S.E. 269, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 405 (1912); Floyd & Lee v. Boyd, 16 Ga. App. 43, 84 S.E. 494, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 497 (1915); City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Orr, 39 Ga. App. 217, 146 S.E. 795, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 261 (1929).

If a property owner has authorized a broker to procure a purchaser for the owner's property but has not given the owner an "exclusive agency" to do so, the owner remains free to sell the property personally or to sell it through another broker. Kraft Land Servs., Inc. v. Hart Co., 165 Ga. App. 358, 300 S.E.2d 186, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 1874 (1983).

Exclusive agent. — Though the owner appoints a real estate broker the owner's exclusive agent to sell designated property, in the absence of a contractual provision to the contrary, the owner may sell the owner's own property without incurring liability to the broker for commissions. Bradbury v. Morrison, 93 Ga. App. 704, 92 S.E.2d 607, 1956 Ga. App. LEXIS 838 (1956).

Effect of irrevocable appointment for fixed period. — Owner of real estate, by employing an agent to effect the sale thereof under a written contract under seal, does not preclude the owner from selling the property, provided the owner makes the sale in the utmost good faith, without any purpose to defraud the agent of the agent's right to commissions under the contract. The fact that the contract provides that the agency created thereby is irrevocable for the term of three months is not of itself sufficient to prevent the owner from personally selling the property within that time, if the owner does so to a person with whom the agent has had no prior negotiations relating to the sale or purchase of the property. Moore v. May, 10 Ga. App. 198, 73 S.E. 29, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 712 (1911).

Effect of agreement. — Provision of O.C.G.A. § 10-6-32 that the broker's commissions are earned when the broker procures a buyer ready, willing, and able to buy on terms stipulated by the owner did not apply when the agreement established that the owner was liable for payment of a commission if the property was sold during the term of the agreement, even if the sale was accomplished without the broker's involvement. OTI Shelf, Inc. v. Schair & Assocs., Inc., 238 Ga. App. 12, 517 S.E.2d 542, 1999 Ga. App. LEXIS 702 (1999).

Sale may be to broker's prospect if negotiations have ended. — If the first broker has been unable to sell the prospective purchaser and thereafter negotiations between the two have been entirely broken off, then the owner, or another broker, may thereafter sell without incurring liability to the first agent, even though the sale is made to the initial prospect. Cadranel v. Wildwood Constr. Co., 101 Ga. App. 630, 115 S.E.2d 415, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 965 (1960).

Owner's mere negotiations do not end agent's right to commissions. — Agent cannot be deprived of the agent's commission by negotiations between the owner and a prospective purchaser with whom the owner has not entered into a mutually binding and enforceable contract for the sale of the property. Hawks v. Moore, 27 Ga. App. 555, 109 S.E. 807, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 259 (1921).

Section contemplates binding contract of sale. — Provision of this section reserving to the owner the right of "selling" the property contemplates that the owner and the purchaser have entered into a mutually binding and enforceable contract before the broker produces a duly qualified purchaser. Hawks v. Moore, 27 Ga. App. 555, 109 S.E. 807, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 259 (1921).

Broker's Right to Compensation

"Able" defined. — Word "able," as used in this section, means financially able. Shaw v. Chiles, 9 Ga. App. 460, 71 S.E. 745, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 178 (1911); Howell Realty Co. v. Boggs, 127 Ga. App. 867, 195 S.E.2d 253, 1973 Ga. App. LEXIS 1674 (1973); Rucker v. Corbin, 188 Ga. App. 182, 372 S.E.2d 512, 1988 Ga. App. LEXIS 931 (1988).

Ability to buy, required in a purchaser obtained by a real estate broker as a condition to the broker's right to earn a commission for the broker's services, is the financial ability to meet the required terms of the sale; it does not mean solvency or ability to respond in damages for a breach of the contract. Stewart v. Sink, 29 Ga. App. 17, 114 S.E. 71, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 18 (1922); Reisman v. Massey, 84 Ga. App. 796, 67 S.E.2d 585, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 800 (1951).

Salesperson in employ of broker. — This section has no application when the plaintiff is a real estate salesperson in the employ of the defendant, a real estate broker, and the plaintiff's claim is based entirely upon the written contract of employment with the defendant. Howell Realty Co. v. Boggs, 127 Ga. App. 867, 195 S.E.2d 253, 1973 Ga. App. LEXIS 1674 (1973).

Broker employed to lease. — Provisions of this section apply if property is placed in the hands of a broker for the purpose of procuring a lease thereof. Meinhard v. Stillwell Realty Co., 47 Ga. App. 194, 169 S.E. 732, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 341 (1933).

If an agent is employed by a real estate renting agency to procure rental agreements between lessors and lessees for such renting agency, for a stipulated percentage of the commissions received by such agency for collecting the rents paid by the lessees under such leases, the agent is ordinarily entitled to such compensation if the agent brings the principal and third persons, who are through the agent's efforts willing to enter a lease as to certain property, into communication with the renting agency, and as a result the parties through the renting agency close the transaction by executing the lease, and the renting agency obtains the handling of the rentals accruing under the lease. Johnson v. Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Co., 46 Ga. App. 798, 169 S.E. 266, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 250 (1933).

Broker employed to purchase instead of sell. — By judicial decision, this section has been made applicable to brokers finding property for those principals desiring to purchase. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Lundeen, 145 Ga. App. 672, 244 S.E.2d 622, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2289 (1978), overruled in part, Amend v. 485 Props., 280 Ga. 327, 627 S.E.2d 565, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 167 (2006).

Real estate agent employed to purchase land is as much entitled to be compensated, in accordance with the agent's contract as one employed to sell land in behalf of the owner. Hendrix v. Crosby, 76 Ga. App. 191, 45 S.E.2d 448, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1947); Pierce v. Deich, 81 Ga. App. 717, 59 S.E.2d 755, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 976 (1950).

This section presupposes the existence of an agency between the real estate broker and the property owner before the broker can collect a commission. Galloway v. McKinley, 73 Ga. App. 381, 36 S.E.2d 485, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 466 (1945).

Principal not liable to broker acting without authority. — While an owner of property is bound to pay an authorized broker for the broker's services in procuring a lease of property, if a broker without any authority whatever finds a prospective tenant and induces the tenant to make an offer to lease the property, the owner is not obligated to accept the offer and may accept a later offer, less favorable, from another broker without becoming liable to the broker procuring the first offer, even though the tenant is the same person presented by the first broker. Wilharbla Realty Co. v. Carrington, 62 Ga. App. 778, 9 S.E.2d 842, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 435 (1940).

Utmost good faith must be exercised between the principal and broker; but if there was no agreement or relationship between them with respect to the sale of the property or the procuring of a purchaser therefor, there can be no recovery on the part of the broker. Galloway v. McKinley, 73 Ga. App. 381, 36 S.E.2d 485, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 466 (1945).

Exclusive sales agency in consideration of broker's promise to list is valid. — Grant of an exclusive brokerage sale contract in consideration of the broker's promise to list, offer for sale, endeavor to sell, enlist the organization's best efforts to such end in the ordinary course of business, and advertise in such manner as is deemed advisable is not void as being nudum pactum. Efforts to find prospects, show the prospects the property, and relay purchase offers to the owners is a part performance under these terms. Stone v. Reinhard, 124 Ga. App. 355, 183 S.E.2d 601, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 918 (1971).

Georgia law does not require real estate listings to be reduced to writing, and oral contracts are enforceable. Thomas v. Memory, 154 Ga. App. 756, 270 S.E.2d 24, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2374 (1980).

Oral contracts enforceable. — Agreement employing the plaintiff to obtain a purchaser for certain real estate owned by the defendants, although oral, may be the basis for an action. Hunter v. Benamy, 101 Ga. App. 907, 115 S.E.2d 424, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 1039, aff'd, 216 Ga. 511, 117 S.E.2d 627, 1960 Ga. LEXIS 520 (1960).

Brokerage contract is not within statute of frauds. — Contract amounting to a brokerage contract for the sale of lands, containing no power on the part of the broker to execute a conveyance of the lands, is a contract for services and does not come within the statute of frauds as constituting a contract for the sale of lands. Cantrell v. Johnston, 74 Ga. App. 74, 38 S.E.2d 893, 1946 Ga. App. LEXIS 461 (1946).

Limitations on right to commissions must be embodied in contract. — If the owner of the property desires to limit the owner's liability for commissions in a manner other than that which is governed by the general rule, such as that commissions will be due only in the event of a consummated sale, provision for such limitation of liability must be embodied in the authority to sell. Hall v. Vandiver, 37 Ga. App. 656, 141 S.E. 332, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 556 (1928).

Contract may make right subject to acceptance of title. — Owner may stipulate in the contract of listment that the owner is not to be subject to the payment of brokerage commissions until the actual acceptance of title by the offeror. Kiser Real Estate Co. v. Shippen Hardwood Lumber Co., 34 Ga. App. 308, 129 S.E. 294, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 241 (1925).

Contract may make right subject to payment of purchase price. — Owner may, by the express terms of the owner's agreement with the broker, limit the owner's liability by specifically providing that the commissions shall become earned, due, and payable only as the purchase price shall be actually paid. Such a provision would not, however, affect the broker's rights to commissions in a case when, during the agency, the broker finds a purchaser, ready, able, and willing to buy, and who actually offers to buy on the terms stipulated, but when the owner personally refuses to consummate the trade. Hogan v. Gilbert, 27 Ga. App. 444, 108 S.E. 625, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 954 (1921).

Contract may require broker to procure contract of sale or only able purchaser. — Real estate broker may contract, as a condition precedent to earning a commission, to procure a contract of sale or the broker's undertaking may be simply to procure a purchaser ready, willing, and able to buy, and who offers to buy, upon the terms stipulated by the owner. Knowles v. Haas & Dodd, 70 Ga. App. 715, 29 S.E.2d 312, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 89 (1944).

Contract may require other service than procuring purchaser. — Sometimes, under the broker's employment, the broker's duty is not merely to procure a purchaser, but to perform some other agreed service within a reasonable time, or within a limited time. In such cases the general rule in this section as to what is required of the broker in order to be entitled to commissions is modified accordingly. Phinizy v. Bush, 129 Ga. 479, 59 S.E. 259, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 491 (1907).

This section has no application to a sales agency contract. Chastain v. Allison, 122 Ga. App. 811, 178 S.E.2d 752, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 1044 (1970).

If contract, statutory provisions not relevant. — If the plaintiff and the defendant entered into an express contract creating the relationship of exclusive sales agency, the provisions of this section are not applicable. Ragsdale v. Smith, 110 Ga. App. 485, 138 S.E.2d 916, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 675 (1964).

Broker's right to commissions may be limited to consummated sales. — It is possible for the owner, by the contract of employment, to appoint, not a broker, but an exclusive sales agent, so that the latter will be entitled to commissions only upon consummated sales, and not upon mere executory contracts as contemplated by the provisions of this section. Roberts v. Prater & Forrester, 29 Ga. App. 245, 114 S.E. 645, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 204 (1922).

Mere reference to selling does not limit broker's right. — Mere fact that in a contract between an owner and a broker, listing property for sale, use is made of the words "to sell," does not change the status of the agent thus employed from that of a broker to a sales agent, so as to render inoperative the provision of this section, that the broker's commissions are earned when, during the agency, the broker finds a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy. Roberts v. Prater & Forrester, 29 Ga. App. 245, 114 S.E. 645, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 204 (1922); Wehunt v. Babb, 84 Ga. App. 536, 66 S.E.2d 405, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 720 (1951) ("negotiate the sale" used).

Broker as "procuring cause" of sale. — If a broker can show that the broker was the "procuring cause" of the sale, the broker is entitled to a commission even though the broker has no exclusive agency and even though someone else may actually have consummated the sale. Kraft Land Servs., Inc. v. Hart Co., 165 Ga. App. 358, 300 S.E.2d 186, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 1874 (1983).

In determining whether or not a real estate broker is the procuring cause of a sale if there is no exclusive contract to sell, the broker must show and prove that there were negotiations still pending between the broker and the prospective purchaser and that the owner was aware that negotiations were still pending at the time the broker consummated the sale. Kraft Land Servs., Inc. v. Hart Co., 165 Ga. App. 358, 300 S.E.2d 186, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 1874 (1983); Income Properties v. Glass, 195 Ga. App. 127, 392 S.E.2d 728, 1990 Ga. App. LEXIS 435 (1990), cert. denied, No. S90C1016, 1990 Ga. LEXIS 732 (Ga. May 9, 1990).

If an express contract governs the conditions under which a commission is to be paid, the common law "procuring cause" doctrine does not apply. B&R Realty, Inc. v. Carroll, 245 Ga. App. 44, 537 S.E.2d 183, 2000 Ga. App. LEXIS 902 (2000).

Effect of reference to "other terms acceptable to me". — Under provisions in a broker's contract for sale under the terms stipulated "or any other terms acceptable to me," an offer to buy for a lesser price procured and submitted to the defendants by the plaintiffs would constitute performance. Stone v. Reinhard, 124 Ga. App. 355, 183 S.E.2d 601, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 918 (1971).

Reference to named sales amount "net to him". — Agreement between owner and broker for sale of the owner's property for a named amount "net to him" does not import by implication a contract to allow the broker, as a fee, the excess of the purchase price above the sum so named. Norwood v. Robie, 102 Ga. App. 206, 115 S.E.2d 729, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 588 (1960).

Broker's action is on a contract, not contract of sale. — Action by the broker to recover the broker's commissions alleged to be due is not an action upon the contract of sale which the broker has procured between a principal, the owner of the land, and the customer, the purchaser, but is a suit upon the contract, either express or implied, between the broker and the principal to pay commissions for services performed by the broker in respect to selling or procuring a purchaser for the real estate. Knowles v. Haas & Dodd, 70 Ga. App. 715, 29 S.E.2d 312, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 89 (1944).

Realty company as agent for owner. — If a realty company, as agent for an owner in good faith procured a purchaser who offered in writing to buy certain real estate on the terms and conditions specified by the owner, and the owner accepted the purchaser's tender and executed the contract of sale, a verdict for the realtor for the usual and customary commission would have been authorized; and the realty company was not required to proceed against the purchaser for the company's commission under certain provisions of the sale the contract between the purchaser and owner, as the company did not sign the sales contract, was not a party to the contract, and therefore could not sue the purchaser by virtue of such contract. Cox v. Dolvin Realty Co., 56 Ga. App. 649, 193 S.E. 467, 1937 Ga. App. LEXIS 186 (1937).

Broker's contract may be part of contract of sale with third party. — If the right of action by the plaintiff broker is based upon an agreement to pay a commission contained in an alleged written contract for the sale of the defendant's property which is negotiated by the plaintiff with a third party, the liability of the defendant must be determined by the validity and effect of the written contract. Ragsdale v. Smith, 110 Ga. App. 485, 138 S.E.2d 916, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 675 (1964).

Contract of sale may place limitations on right to commissions. — General rule laid down by this section that a real estate broker's commission is earned when, during the agency, the broker finds a purchaser ready, able, etc., does not apply when an agreement to pay a definite amount as commission is included in a preliminary contract of sale between the owner and the proposed purchaser, by the terms of which a commission "for making the trade" is to be paid only in the event "it is closed"; a verdict in favor of the broker suing for such commission is not demanded when there is evidence that the would-be purchaser declined to complete the sale, upon the ground that the purchaser had been advised that the title to the real estate in question was defective. Nutting & Co. v. Kennedy, 16 Ga. App. 569, 85 S.E. 767, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 129 (1915).

Broker's contract irrevocable during agreed term. — If the owner of land gives to a broker, for a valuable consideration, a written option, for a named number of days, to sell the owner's land at a certain fixed price, the owner cannot lawfully withdraw the option during the life of the contract. The broker's commissions are earned if, during the life of the option, the broker finds a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy, and who actually offers to buy, the land on the terms stipulated by the owner. Cobb v. Jolley, 30 Ga. App. 48, 116 S.E. 553, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 240 (1923).

If not agreed, term is reasonable time. — If no time limit is fixed in a contract authorizing an agent to sell real estate, then, under the law, the agent has a reasonable time within which to do so. Wood v. Planzer, 73 Ga. App. 731, 37 S.E.2d 813, 1946 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1946).

If the agent expends time and effort in endeavoring to effect a sale pursuant to the agent's employment by the owner to obtain a specified commission if a sale is made, the listing ripens into a contract by the agent's furnishing a consideration through the expenditure of the agent's physical and fiscal efforts to find a buyer. When the listing has ripened into such a contract and no time limit has been fixed, the listing's duration is for a reasonable time. Thornton v. Lewis, 106 Ga. App. 328, 126 S.E.2d 869, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 701 (1962).

Owner's right to defeat agent's commission. — When the owner of real estate has authorized a broker to sell the real estate, without setting a time limit, the owner is bound to exercise good faith towards the agent and not captiously withdraw the property for the purpose of defeating the agent's commission about to be earned. Wood v. Planzer, 73 Ga. App. 731, 37 S.E.2d 813, 1946 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1946); Thornton v. Lewis, 106 Ga. App. 328, 126 S.E.2d 869, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 701 (1962).

Right to commission during term of lease extended by extension of lease. — If a contract of lease contains an option to the lessee to purchase the property at a price and on terms as stated "at any time during the time this lease is in effect," with an agreement by the lessor-owner to pay to the broker a commission of 5 percent of the purchase price, "in the event this option is exercised," and when, before the expiration of the lease, the lessor and lessee extend it for an additional six months, within which time the option is exercised and a deed is made, the lessor will still be liable to the broker for the agreed commissions just as if the option had been exercised during the original term of the lease. Odell v.

Wessinger, 54 Ga. App. 838, 189 S.E. 367, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 774 (1936).

If negotiations are successful, broker entitled to commission. — Broker is entitled to a commission whenever negotiations conducted by the broker on behalf of the principal culminate in the purchase of the property by the principal or would have so culminated but for the principal's interference. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Lundeen, 145 Ga. App. 672, 244 S.E.2d 622, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2289 (1978), overruled in part, Amend v. 485 Props., 280 Ga. 327, 627 S.E.2d 565, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 167 (2006).

Securing a binding contract of sale is a prerequisite to recovery. Barnes v. Whatley, 221 Ga. App. 110, 470 S.E.2d 498, 1996 Ga. App. LEXIS 375 (1996).

Consummation of sale entitles broker to commission. — Broker is entitled to commissions when the broker produces a purchaser who consummates the sale on terms satisfactory to the owner. Glassman v. Melrose Constr. Co., 100 Ga. App. 763, 112 S.E.2d 282, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 724 (1959).

Option obtained that is later exercised entitles broker to commission. — This section applies if the purchaser procured by the broker first buys an option to purchase, and subsequently, within the life of the option, exercises the purchaser's option by electing to purchase and gives timely and unconditional notice thereof to the other party. In such a case the broker's right to the broker's commissions does not ripen into a cause of action until the option has been actually exercised. Snead v. Wood, 24 Ga. App. 210, 100 S.E. 714, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 507 (1919); Odell v. Wessinger, 54 Ga. App. 838, 189 S.E. 367, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 774 (1936).

If a real estate sales person procures for a customer only an option to buy and the option is afterwards exercised and a contract of sale thereby results, the broker has consummated the contract and has earned a commission. Mendenhall v. Adair Realty & Loan Co., 67 Ga. App. 154, 19 S.E.2d 740, 1942 Ga. App. LEXIS 347 (1942).

Commission properly refused if contract of sale not affected. — If the essentials necessary for a contract of sale which would have effectuated the intention and agreements of the parties was lacking, the court correctly refused to order the payment of a commission. William L. Thomas Co. v. Kretsos, 115 Ga. App. 550, 155 S.E.2d 453, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 1168 (1967).

Contract of sale need not be carried out if enforceable. — Right of a broker to the broker's commission does not depend upon the carrying out of the contract of sale, but the broker is entitled to the commission when the broker has procured a purchaser and the seller has accepted the purchaser and entered into a binding and enforceable contract of sale. Davis v. Holbrook, 75 Ga. App. 417, 43 S.E.2d 791, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 554 (1947).

Final act of closing the sale is not a condition precedent to the broker's right to a commission, if the broker has secured a binding contract of sale. Northside Realty Assocs. v. MPI Corp., 245 Ga. 321, 265 S.E.2d 11, 1980 Ga. LEXIS 780 (1980).

When vendee sent vendor a written offer to purchase the property and to prorate the taxes for year due and the vendor accepted this offer and executed a written acceptance thereof and turned the same over to the broker, who notified the vendee of such acceptance, a valid contract arose between the parties for the sale of the property on the terms stated in the written offer, and the broker's commission was earned. Smith v. Knight, 75 Ga. App. 178, 42 S.E.2d 570, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 509 (1947).

Sale need not actually occur, in order for the broker to earn a commission, if the parties entered into a binding and enforceable agreement. Carroll v. Harry Norman, Inc., 198 Ga. App. 614, 402 S.E.2d 357, 1991 Ga. App. LEXIS 192 (1991).

Trial court erred in granting summary judgment to a home seller and against a realtor in construing the unambiguous language in the brokerage agreement at issue, which was for a definite term and was not terminable at will; moreover, although a sale was not consummated, the realtor remained entitled to the realtor's six percent commission, and the seller remained obligated to pay that amount, which was the proper measure of damages. Ben Farmer Realty, Inc. v. Owens, 286 Ga. App. 678, 649 S.E.2d 771, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 768 (2007), cert. denied, No. S07C1820, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 81 (Ga. Jan. 7, 2008).

Production of able purchaser during term earns commission. — In view of the testimony of the defendant that the plaintiff, a broker suing for commissions, told the defendant that the would-be purchaser was ready to take the property on the terms stated and that the defendant knew the would-be purchaser was able to pay for the property, which evidence was corroborated by the testimony of the plaintiff and the would-be purchaser, the verdict for the plaintiff cannot be set aside on appeal. Davis v. Davis & Joiner Realty, 23 Ga. App. 577, 99 S.E. 60, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 225 (1919).

If property is placed in the hands of a real estate broker for sale on a commission, the commission is earned when, during the agency, the broker finds a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy, and who actually offers to buy on the terms stipulated by the owner. Ray v. Hutchinson, 27 Ga. App. 448, 108 S.E. 815, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 956 (1921); Wood v. Planzer, 73 Ga. App. 731, 37 S.E.2d 813, 1946 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1946).

When a broker secures a purchaser for lands during the life of the broker's contract of employment who is ready, able, and willing to purchase on the terms stipulated by the owner, the broker has earned the broker's commission agreed upon. Cantrell v. Johnston, 74 Ga. App. 74, 38 S.E.2d 893, 1946 Ga. App. LEXIS 461 (1946).

If real estate brokers present a purchaser ready, willing, and able to complete the sale and close the transaction, unless the purchaser breaches a fiduciary duty, the brokers are entitled to the sales commission provided in the contract. Paredes v. Bud Bailey Corp., 160 Ga. App. 572, 287 S.E.2d 620, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3103 (1981).

Commission without actual consummation of sale. — Real estate agent may earn commissions even when a sale is not actually consummated, but the agent must procure a purchaser who is ready, willing, etc., or else the agent is not entitled to a commission. Floyd & Lee v. Boyd, 16 Ga. App. 43, 84 S.E. 494, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 497 (1915); Rothberg v. Manhattan Coil Co., 84 Ga. App. 528, 66 S.E.2d 390, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 719 (1951) (commented on in 3 Mercer L. Rev. 348).

Commission without binding written contract. — In a suit for commission it is not essential to recovery that there shall have been executed a written contract of sale binding alike on the seller and the purchaser. Pierce v. Deich, 81 Ga. App. 717, 59 S.E.2d 755, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 976 (1950).

Commission when owner agrees to remove lien. — Real estate broker earns the broker's commission when during the agency the broker finds a purchaser ready, able, etc. This is true even though there may exist a lien upon the property, known to the broker, but which the owner in a contract with the purchaser, accepting the offer and binding the sale, agrees to remove. Martin v. Thrower, 28 Ga. App. 270, 110 S.E. 742, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 444 (1922).

Commission when purchaser's offer is contingent on obtaining loan. — Language in a contingency clause in a contract for the sale of real estate stating, "Purchaser agrees within seven days after the date of this contract to make application for such loan and to pursue and seek to obtain such loan diligently and in good faith. Purchaser agrees to accept a commitment and to execute and deliver all documents required to close the loan, if a commitment to make the loan is obtained by Purchaser or by Seller or Broker on behalf of Purchaser," are express promises sufficient to supply mutuality of obligation in exchange for the seller's holding open the offer to sell until the time specified for the closing, and this fulfills the agent's obligation to furnish a ready, able, and willing buyer. Fourteen W. Realty, Inc. v. Screws, 147 Ga. App. 362, 248 S.E.2d 722, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2690 (1978).

Trial court erred in granting a real estate broker's motion for summary judgment on the broker's counterclaim for real estate commissions because a potential buyer was unable to obtain the financing, which prevented sales from closing, and if the exception to the financing contingencies did not apply, then under Georgia law, the buyer's obligation as the non-performing party to pay the commissions never arose, for in those circumstances the commissions were never earned since the sales contracts were neither binding nor enforceable; the broker did not depose or otherwise obtain evidence from a bank as to why the bank denied the buyer's loan, and the broker did not seek the buyer's financial records to determine how much money the buyer had on hand for a closing or ask whether additional investors or sources would provide the buyer with the down payment money. Desmear Sys., Inc. v. Vines, 305 Ga. App. 730, 700 S.E.2d 711, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 804 (2010).

Owner need not be confronted with buyer. — Under this section, the commissions are earned when a purchaser is found and the owner is notified, though the prospective purchaser is not brought into the actual presence of the owner and no contract of sale binding alike on the seller and purchaser has been made. Wilmot & Cosby v. Silverman, 26 Ga. App. 196, 105 S.E. 654, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 61 (1921).

Broker need not have obtained offer if sale completed with fraudulent intent. — If the broker has failed to procure an offer to buy upon the terms stipulated and the owner has not relinquished the owner's right to sell the property personally, to authorize a recovery of commissions it must appear that the owner negotiated the sale directly to the customer procured by the broker with a fraudulent intent to deprive the broker of the broker's commission, in order for the broker to recover the broker's commission. Kuniansky v. Williams, 101 Ga. App. 678, 115 S.E.2d 204, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 977 (1960).

Showing broker was procuring cause of sale is gist of action. — Gist of an action by a broker to recover commissions is the showing that the plaintiff-broker was the procuring or efficient cause of the sale. Woodall v. McEachern, 113 Ga. App. 213, 147 S.E.2d 659, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 1022 (1966); Fields Realty & Ins. Co. v. Smith, 123 Ga. App. 342, 180 S.E.2d 909, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 1217 (1971).

Realty company is not entitled to any brokerage commission since the firm never had any direct contact with the party who bought the property and was not the procuring cause of the sale. King-Williams Realty & Mtg., Inc. v. State Farm Life Ins. Co., 142 Ga. App. 620, 236 S.E.2d 695, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 1424 (1977).

Broker must be shown to be cause of sale whether broker's claim is for breach of contract or in tort. — Whether the claim is in the nature of a breach of a contract between the seller and broker or a claim in tort based on a conspiracy to deprive the broker of a commission, it must appear that the broker's effort was a procuring or efficient cause of the sale. Tidwell & Yarbrough Realty Co. v. Foster, 123 Ga. App. 192, 180 S.E.2d 259, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 1155 (1971).

In the absence of alleging or proving that the plaintiff-broker was the procuring or efficient cause of the sale, there can be no contract breached in the first instance nor a conspiracy coupled with a wrong done in the second. Fields Realty & Ins. Co. v. Smith, 123 Ga. App. 342, 180 S.E.2d 909, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 1217 (1971).

Burden of proof on broker. — In a suit for commissions, the burden of showing all the requirements is on the broker. Carroll v. Harry Norman, Inc., 198 Ga. App. 614, 402 S.E.2d 357, 1991 Ga. App. LEXIS 192 (1991).

Summary judgment for a broker on the broker's suit for recovery of a real estate sales commission was reversed, when the broker did not carry the broker's burden of demonstrating that the purchaser failed to make a reasonable attempt to obtain the loan the purchaser was obliged to seek under the contractual terms, or that the purchaser qualified for such, or that the purchaser agreed to close with an optional loan. Carroll v. Harry Norman, Inc., 198 Ga. App. 614, 402 S.E.2d 357, 1991 Ga. App. LEXIS 192 (1991).

Broker must have sold or procured sale of property. — In order for a broker to earn commission on account of the sale of property, the broker must either have sold the property or been the procuring cause of the sale. Hendrix v. Crosby, 76 Ga. App. 191, 45 S.E.2d 448, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1947); Erwin v. Wender, 78 Ga. App. 94, 50 S.E.2d 244, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 688 (1948); Tidwell & Yarbrough Realty Co. v. Foster, 123 Ga. App. 192, 180 S.E.2d 259, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 1155 (1971); First Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. McNatt, 141 Ga. App. 6, 232 S.E.2d 356, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 1731 (1977); Booth v. Watson, 153 Ga. App. 672, 266 S.E.2d 326, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1941 (1980).

Finding the prospect and attempting to make the sale are not sufficient, in law, to justify payment of commissions to an agent. The sale of the property is what gets results for the owner and for the agent. To earn a commission, one must be the procuring cause. One must, during the agency, find a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy and who actually offers to buy on the terms stipulated by the owner. Jordan v. Dolvin Realty Co., 54 Ga. App. 472, 188 S.E. 304, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 673 (1936).

Broker with whom property is listed for sale does not make out a case of procuring cause by merely showing that the broker first located the ultimate purchaser, if it further appears that without interference by the owner the broker was unsuccessful in bringing about an offer which could be consummated and that the sale was made after the broker had abandoned the broker's effort. Tidwell & Yarbrough Realty Co. v. Foster, 123 Ga. App. 192, 180 S.E.2d 259, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 1155 (1971).

Owner-negotiated sale. — In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, the owner is not deprived of the right to sell the property personally and consequently does not ordinarily become liable to the purchaser for commissions upon a sale negotiated by the owner. City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Orr, 39 Ga. App. 217, 146 S.E. 795, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 261 (1929).

Termination of broker's negotiations. — That commission which it has been agreed a broker will be paid to procure a purchaser is not recoverable from a principal who subsequently made an exchange proposed by the broker by virtue of this section upon the theory that the broker had furnished a purchaser ready, able, etc., when the broker had not been given an exclusive brokerage and there was nothing to indicate that the negotiations between the broker and the purchaser had not been terminated. Drew v. Cone, 19 Ga. App. 704, 91 S.E. 1068, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 315 (1917).

Brokers in whose hands property is placed for sale, in order to earn commissions on account of the sale of such property, must either have sold the property or been the procuring cause of the sale. If the purchaser who was spoken to by the brokers had abandoned all idea of the trade, and the brokers had no influence at all in bringing it about, the brokers would not be entitled to commissions, although the purchaser subsequently may have bought from the owner. Crutchfield v. Western Elec. Co., 66 Ga. App. 161, 17 S.E.2d 246, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 162 (1941).

When an owner lists property for sale with a broker and the broker procures a prospect, but the sale as contemplated is not consummated and the parties in good faith break off negotiations, the broker is not the procuring cause of the ultimate transaction between the same owner and buyer and is not entitled to a commission. Parrish v. Ragsdale Realty Co., 135 Ga. App. 491, 218 S.E.2d 164, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 1711 (1975).

No interference from owner. — If plaintiff brought suit to recover broker's commissions alleged to be due on the sale of a hotel lease and furnishings, but the plaintiff had not produced a customer who was ready, able, and willing to buy and who actually offered to buy on the terms stipulated by the defendant owner, at the time of the sale by the owner through another broker, the negotiations between the plaintiff and the prospective buyer had come to an end, and the owner had not interfered with the efforts of the plaintiff to make a sale to the prospect, the jury was authorized to return a verdict in favor of the defendant. Thompson v. Weeks, 60 Ga. App. 560, 4 S.E.2d 415, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 85 (1939).

Acquiescence in rescission of contract of sale. — Real estate agent is not entitled to commissions for the sale of land, when, prior to the completion of the sale, the parties disagree as to the terms of the sale and it is agreed between the parties that the transaction be considered at an end, if the agent acquiesces in such rescission of the contract of sale, even though the owner of the land subsequently places it in the hands of another agent who sells it on practically the same terms to the purchaser secured by the first agent, unless fraud or bad faith be shown. Girardeau & Saunders v. Gibson, 122 Ga. 313, 50 S.E. 91, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 191 (1905); F.L. Allison & Co. v. McMath Plantation Co., 29 Ga. App. 414, 115 S.E. 916, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 43 (1923).

Offer by proposed purchaser different from terms stipulated by owner. — By virtue of this section, an offer by the proposed purchaser to buy on terms not stipulated by the owner will not entitle the broker to the broker's commissions. Parker v. Stubbs, 139 Ga. 46, 76 S.E. 571, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 520 (1912); Howard v. Sills & Purvis, 154 Ga. 430, 114 S.E. 580, 1922 Ga. LEXIS 384 (1922); Atlanta Realty Co. v. Campion, 94 Ga. App. 136, 93 S.E.2d 781, 1956 Ga. App. LEXIS 486 (1956).

Generally, a broker's commission is earned when, during the agency, the broker finds a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy and who actually offers to buy, on the terms stipulated by the owner, and an offer by the proposed purchaser to buy on terms not stipulated by the owner will not entitle the broker to the broker's commission. Sikes v. Markham, 74 Ga. App. 874, 41 S.E.2d 828, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 722 (1947).

While in every action for broker's commissions proof of acceptance of an offer might not be required, if the action is predicated upon the broker's having procured a buyer ready, willing, and able to buy on terms stipulated by the owner, the proof of an offer by the proposed purchaser to buy on terms not stipulated by the owner will not entitle the plaintiff broker to the broker's commissions. Fourteen W. Realty Inc. v. Lane, 147 Ga. App. 171, 248 S.E.2d 233, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2834 (1978).

In order for the agent to recover the agent's commission, the offer to buy must be in the exact terms stipulated and the offer must be accepted unequivocally and without variance of any sort. Barnett v. Eubanks, 105 Ga. App. 749, 125 S.E.2d 571, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 1026 (1962).

Offer by the proposed purchaser to buy on terms not stipulated by the owner, which is refused, will not entitle the agent to a commission. Even a slight variation will prevent the agent from recovering. Thornton v. Lewis, 106 Ga. App. 328, 126 S.E.2d 869, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 701 (1962).

Proof of an offer by a proposed purchaser to buy on terms not stipulated by the seller will not entitle a broker to the broker's commissions. Clover Realty Co. v. Gouyd, 153 Ga. App. 64, 264 S.E.2d 547, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1675 (1980).

Even a slight variation from the owner's terms will prevent the agent from recovering. Schaffer v. Padgett, 107 Ga. App. 861, 131 S.E.2d 796, 1963 Ga. App. LEXIS 1006 (1963); Bentley Group, Ltd. v. Paces Ferry Anesthesiology Assocs., 180 Ga. App. 818, 350 S.E.2d 826, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 2286 (1986).

Variance may authorize repudiation of contract. — If there was a clear variance between the contract effected by the plaintiff and that which the plaintiff was authorized to make, the owner has the right to repudiate the contract, as there was no acceptance on the terms stipulated by the owner. Huson v. Dawson Naval Stores & Lumber Co., 23 Ga. App. 353, 98 S.E. 186, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 118 (1919).

Agreement may authorize compensation when any terms are accepted by principal. — If the plaintiff's commission, under agreement with the defendant, was to be the difference between the terms acceptable to the defendant and the actual sale price of the business, the plaintiff would be entitled to recover the plaintiff's commission upon proof that the defendant, during the agency, accepted any one of the various sets of terms offered by the purchasers, secured by the plaintiff, who were ready, able, and willing to purchase. Ray v. Thomas McDonald Corp., 90 Ga. App. 872, 84 S.E.2d 705, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 839 (1954).

Broker must fully perform unless principal prevents performance. — If the compensation is to be paid by way of commissions, the whole service or duty must be performed before any right to commissions arises, unless the act of the principal has prevented the performance of it. Hyams v. Miller, 71 Ga. 608, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1883); Craigmiles v. Steyerman, 27 Ga. App. 14, 107 S.E. 386, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 650 (1921).

To entitle a sales agent to commissions when the sale has not been consummated, it must be made to appear that the agent has performed the whole duty or service required of the agent under the agent's contract, except insofar as the agent has been prevented by the conduct of the owner. Roberts v. Prater & Forrester, 29 Ga. App. 245, 114 S.E. 645, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 204 (1922).

Broker cannot recover when owner's offer is conditioned on option that prospect buys and exercises. — Real estate broker's commissions are not earned until the broker's principal, the owner, makes an unconditional offer to sell and the offer is accepted by a purchaser found by the broker; accordingly, if the offer of the owner is conditioned upon an outstanding option not being exercised and the purchaser found by the broker buys the option from its holder, has it transferred to the purchaser, and exercises it by buying the property, the broker cannot recover. Birchmore v. Upchurch, 78 Ga. App. 233, 50 S.E.2d 857, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 715 (1948).

No commission if customer's offer is unacceptable but customer is assigned contract with third party. — Real estate broker is not entitled to a commission from an owner of real estate for sale of the real estate to a customer of the broker who had made an unacceptable offer for the property and with whom the broker was still negotiating, where the sale was made to such customer by virtue of the assignment in good faith of a contract for the purchase of the property from one who was not a customer of the broker. Dolvin Realty Co. v. Jones, 63 Ga. App. 351, 11 S.E.2d 105, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 89 (1940).

Sale after full performance does not cut off broker's right. — If there is such compliance with a broker's contract as to entitle a plaintiff broker to a commission, the fact that the land was sold by the owners or by a third person would not cut off the broker's right to payment. Stone v. Reinhard, 124 Ga. App. 355, 183 S.E.2d 601, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 918 (1971).

Broker, if procuring cause, entitled to compensation although principal closes transaction. — If the agent is the procuring cause of the transaction, the agent is entitled to compensation for effecting the transaction, if the principal closes the transaction itself. Johnson v. Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Co., 46 Ga. App. 798, 169 S.E. 266, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 250 (1933).

If property placed in the hands of a broker for sale is subsequently sold by the owner, the broker is entitled to the commission, if the broker was the procuring cause of the sale, although the sale was actually consummated by the owner. Erwin v. Wender, 78 Ga. App. 94, 50 S.E.2d 244, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 688 (1948); Pierce v. Deich, 81 Ga. App. 717, 59 S.E.2d 755, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 976 (1950).

Sale by owner to purchaser procured by broker. — Under this section, when a broker procures a purchaser ready, able, etc., to buy, the principal cannot defeat the broker's right to commission by completing the sale personally through another broker. Gresham v. Lee, 152 Ga. 829, 111 S.E. 404, 1922 Ga. LEXIS 291 (1922). See also Central of Ga. Ry. v. McKenzie, 125 Ga. 222, 53 S.E. 591, 1906 Ga. LEXIS 95 (1906).

Principal cannot, with knowledge of the negotiations between the purchaser and the agent, and while such negotiations are still pending, defeat the right of the agent to recover such commission by interfering with and the principal completing the sale of which the agent was the procuring cause. Gresham v. Connally, 114 Ga. 906, 41 S.E. 42, 1902 Ga. LEXIS 829 (1902); Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Binns, 23 Ga. App. 46, 97 S.E. 443, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 29 (1918); Brown & Peeples v. Stokes, 25 Ga. App. 254, 103 S.E. 423, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 717 (1920); Washington v. Jordan, 28 Ga. App. 18, 109 S.E. 923, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 462 (1921); City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Orr, 39 Ga. App. 217, 146 S.E. 795, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 261 (1929); Bromberg v. Drake, 91 Ga. App. 118, 85 S.E.2d 160, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 876 (1954).

If the owner of property has listed it with a real estate broker to be sold, and the broker procures a prospective purchaser, and the owner, with knowledge of this fact intervenes or sells the property to the customer or prospective purchaser procured by the broker, an inference is authorized that the broker has earned a commission and can recover the commission from the owner. Mendenhall v. Adair Realty & Loan Co., 67 Ga. App. 154, 19 S.E.2d 740, 1942 Ga. App. LEXIS 347 (1942); Spence v. Walker, 92 Ga. App. 609, 89 S.E.2d 668, 1955 Ga. App. LEXIS 662 (1955).

Owner, or another broker, even though there is no exclusive agency provision in the agreement, cannot, with knowledge of negotiations between a prospect and another broker, interfere and by closing the sale defeat the right of the first agent to the agent's commissions. Cadranel v. Wildwood Constr. Co., 101 Ga. App. 630, 115 S.E.2d 415, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 965 (1960).

Sale at differing terms to purchaser procured by broker. — While even the slightest variation from the terms the owner fixed in the listing with the agent will prevent the recovery of commissions, such a departure does not in all cases prevent the agent from recovering commissions when a sale has been made by the owner to a buyer procured by the agent. The test to be applied is whether the agent was the procuring cause of the sale made to a buyer directly by the owner. Thornton v. Lewis, 106 Ga. App. 328, 126 S.E.2d 869, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 701 (1962).

Sale at less than listed price to purchaser procured by broker. — Owner may sell the property, and if the owner does not use the broker's labor to help in the sale, the owner owes the broker nothing, but if a purchaser procured by the broker buys from the owner, even at a lower price than that given the broker, the owner would be liable for the broker's commission if the broker's effort was the procuring cause of the sale. Hendrix v. Crosby, 76 Ga. App. 191, 45 S.E.2d 448, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1947); Erwin v. Wender, 78 Ga. App. 94, 50 S.E.2d 244, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 688 (1948); Tidwell & Yarbrough Realty Co. v. Foster, 123 Ga. App. 192, 180 S.E.2d 259, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 1155 (1971); Booth v. Watson, 153 Ga. App. 672, 266 S.E.2d 326, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1941 (1980).

If the broker is the procuring cause, the owner is liable for commissions even if the owner sells to the broker's prospect at a price less than that listed with the broker. Glassman v. Melrose Constr. Co., 100 Ga. App. 763, 112 S.E.2d 282, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 724 (1959).

Purchase at higher price than broker authorized to pay. — If the defendant used the plaintiff's labor in getting the price of the property substantially reduced and used the information furnished by the plaintiff in contacting the seller's agent, and the plaintiff's effort was the procuring cause of the sale and culminated in the defendant purchasing the property, defendant could not defeat the broker's right to the broker's commission by purchasing the property directly through the seller's agent, even though the buyer paid a slightly higher price for it than the buyer had authorized the broker to pay, but the broker would be entitled to the broker's commissions for purchasing the property. Hendrix v. Crosby, 76 Ga. App. 191, 45 S.E.2d 448, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1947).

Principal's knowledge of broker was procuring cause. — Rule that renders the owner liable to the agent when the agent was the procuring cause of a sale is subject to the further requirement that the owner have knowledge, at the time of entering into the contract of sale or of selling it without a contract, of the fact that the buyers were procured by the agent. Thornton v. Lewis, 106 Ga. App. 328, 126 S.E.2d 869, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 701 (1962).

Knowledge that negotiations were still pending. — If the owner sells to a buyer who was initially approached by a broker, in determining whether or not the broker was the procuring cause of the sale when there is no exclusive contract to sell, it must be established that: (1) the negotiations were still pending between the broker and the prospective purchaser; and (2) the owner was aware that the negotiations were still pending at the time the owner consummated the sale. Booth v. Watson, 153 Ga. App. 672, 266 S.E.2d 326, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1941 (1980); Gibbs v. Nixon, 154 Ga. App. 463, 268 S.E.2d 670, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2229 (1980); Hodges-Ward Assocs. v. Ecclestone, 156 Ga. App. 59, 273 S.E.2d 872, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2879 (1980).

Mere knowledge of proposed sale does not establish negotiations. — Mere knowledge by the prospective purchaser of the proposed sale as received by it from the broker is totally insufficient to establish negotiations in the purchase of the property. Gibbs v. Nixon, 154 Ga. App. 643, 268 S.E.2d 670 (1980).

Principal cannot defeat claim by pretended intervening sale to third person. — Since the utmost good faith must be exercised between the owner and the broker, the owner cannot defeat the broker's claim for commissions by resorting to any subterfuge, such as a pretended conveyance to a third person while still retaining control of the property, in order that the title may be acquired by the customer procured by the broker through such third person. City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Orr, 39 Ga. App. 217, 146 S.E. 795, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 261 (1929).

Bona fide intervening sale is good defense. — Bona fide intervening sale, if established, would amount to a complete defense to the broker's claim. City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Orr, 39 Ga. App. 217, 146 S.E. 795, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 261 (1929).

Unless principal repurchases and continues to use broker's services. — If the owner, after having made a bona fide sale of the property to a customer procured by the owner and not by the broker, continues to avail himself of the broker's services by encouraging the broker to continue negotiations for the sale of the property to the customer with whom the broker had been negotiating and afterwards accepts the broker's customer and sells the property to the broker's customer upon the terms originally prescribed by the owner, the owner, having in the meantime repurchased the property, cannot avoid liability to the broker for commissions upon the ground of a previous sale of the property by the owner. City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Orr, 42 Ga. App. 807, 157 S.E. 520, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 145 (1931).

Broker need not be sole cause to earn commission. — In determining whether a broker has earned the broker's commission for procuring a purchaser, it is not necessary that the broker's services shall have been the sole cause; but it is enough if the efforts of the broker, acting on the purchaser, are the efficient cause of the offer. Erwin v. Wender, 78 Ga. App. 94, 50 S.E.2d 244, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 688 (1948).

It need not appear that the broker's effort was the sole procuring cause, but it is enough if it appears that it was an efficient cause. Tidwell & Yarbrough Realty Co. v. Foster, 123 Ga. App. 192, 180 S.E.2d 259, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 1155 (1971).

If there were two brokers, question is whose efforts were primary, procuring cause. — When the services of a broker, as well as those of another broker, have conjointly contributed to the successful termination of negotiations resulting in the transfer of real estate for an owner, the question which of the brokers is entitled to commissions from the owner for effecting such transfer depends upon whose efforts were the primary, proximate, and procuring cause of the transfer negotiated. Nestle Co. v. J.H. Ewing & Sons, 153 Ga. App. 328, 265 S.E.2d 61, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1794 (1980), overruled in part, Amend v. 485 Props., 280 Ga. 327, 627 S.E.2d 565, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 167 (2006).

Award may be based on quantum meruit even if broker not procuring cause. — Jury can award damages based on quantum meruit even if the jury determines that the plaintiffs were not the procuring cause of the transfer. Nestle Co. v. J.H. Ewing & Sons, 153 Ga. App. 328, 265 S.E.2d 61, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1794 (1980), overruled in part, Amend v. 485 Props., 280 Ga. 327, 627 S.E.2d 565, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 167 (2006).

Owner liable if real party in interest was procured by broker. — Lessor's liability to pay a broker's commission pursuant to an agreement in a lease containing an option of purchase would not be defeated by the fact that a deed was executed to the spouse of lessee at the lessee's instance, when the lessee was the real party at interest, or was jointly interested with the lessee's spouse, or by the fact that the deed recited a consideration of less than the contract amount, when the lessor, without the consent or knowledge of the broker, completed the transaction by accepting all of the consideration in cash instead of the agreed part cash and part time payments, and the total amount paid actually exceeded the contract price, and even if, as contended, the amount accepted by the lessor had been less than the agreed price, liability would not have been defeated. Odell v. Wessinger, 54 Ga. App. 838, 189 S.E. 367, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 774 (1936).

Principal refusing to effectuate sale liable to broker. — If the owner, without legal excuse, refuses to effectuate the sale, the owner becomes liable for the commissions pursuant to the provision of this section; and after such a refusal, it is generally not necessary that the proposed purchaser shall have made to the owner an actual tender of the purchase price. Hogan v. Gilbert, 27 Ga. App. 444, 108 S.E. 625, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 954 (1921).

Under contracts creating the ordinary relationship of principal and real estate broker and providing commissions for the latter, the principle of this section applies, and the broker has made a sale whenever, through the broker's influence, a person ready, able, and willing to buy on the terms proposed is brought to the principal, though, through the fault or disinclination of the principal, no actual sale is ever consummated. Humphries & Jackson v. Smith, 5 Ga. App. 340, 63 S.E. 248, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 116 (1908); Kesler v. Stults, 15 Ga. App. 735, 84 S.E. 201, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 49 (1915).

If an owner of land authorized a broker to sell the land at a stated price, agreeing to pay the broker a certain sum as commission for making the sale, and the latter procured an offer to be made for the purchase of the land at that price, on stated terms of payment, which offer was accepted by the owner, the broker was entitled to the broker's commission notwithstanding there was a failure to consummate the sale, if the cause of the failure was the refusal of the owner to proceed further with the transaction because the owner was dissatisfied with the terms of payment to which the owner had agreed; if this was the sole ground of objection assigned by the owner at the time of the refusal, other grounds of objection then known to the owner were waived, and would not avail the owner as a defense to an action for the commission. The question of estoppel becomes one for determination of the jury. Broyles v. Haas, 51 Ga. App. 374, 180 S.E. 517, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 702 (1935).

Interference of principal with consummation. — By virtue of this section, the agent would not be deprived of the agent's commissions if it is made to appear that the whole service or duty devolving upon the agent has been performed and that only the refusal or interference of the owner has prevented the consummation of the sale according to the terms authorized in the contract of listment. Roberts v. Prater & Forrester, 29 Ga. App. 245, 114 S.E. 645, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 204 (1922).

This section does not mean that a broker is entitled to the broker's commissions only when the transaction has been closed by a conveyance and payment of the purchase price. A contract for commissions on sales entitles the broker to the specified compensation whenever through the broker's influence a prospective purchaser has been brought to the principal, though by reason of some fault or disinclination of the latter the sale is never completed or is consummated on terms somewhat different from those originally proposed by the principal. Pierce v. Deich, 81 Ga. App. 717, 59 S.E.2d 755, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 976 (1950).

Contention that when a sale is not consummated, the seller is relieved of the seller's obligation to pay the commission, though a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy was produced, is without merit when it appears that the failure to consummate the sale was the seller's fault. Hope v. DeForest Realty, Inc., 144 Ga. App. 269, 241 S.E.2d 49, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2668 (1977).

Broker makes out a prima facie case that the broker was the procuring cause of the completed transaction when the broker shows that negotiations for the sale were set on foot through the broker's efforts, that the broker performed every service required by the employment which it was possible to perform, and that the failure on the broker's part to personally consummate the transaction was due to the interference of the defendant. Nestle Co. v. J.H. Ewing & Sons, 153 Ga. App. 328, 265 S.E.2d 61, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1794 (1980), overruled in part, Amend v. 485 Props., 280 Ga. 327, 627 S.E.2d 565, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 167 (2006).

Refusal of owner to carry out trade. — If a broker has a purchaser ready, willing, and able to buy and who offers to buy on terms stipulated by the owner and the owner refuses to carry out the trade, it is not generally necessary, in order for the broker or agent to recover the commissions, that the proposed purchaser should make to the proposed vendor an actual tender of the purchase price. Smith v. Tatum, 140 Ga. 719, 79 S.E. 775, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 234 (1913); Winter v. Flournoy Realty Co., 27 Ga. App. 87, 107 S.E. 398, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 703 (1921); Carter v. Ray, 70 Ga. App. 419, 28 S.E.2d 361, 1943 Ga. App. LEXIS 323 (1943).

Principal cannot defeat broker's right by having sale made to corporation instead of principal. — Fact that a corporation organized by the defendant for the purpose of purchasing certain property in deed bought the property did not affect the plaintiff's right to recover for the services performed by the plaintiff and accepted by the defendant, as the defendant could not form a corporation and purchase the property through it directly from the owner so as to defeat the plaintiff's right to compensation for the plaintiff's services. Erwin v. Wender, 78 Ga. App. 94, 50 S.E.2d 244, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 688 (1948).

Sale by stockholders does not make corporation liable. — Subsequent actual sale by the several stockholders of the defendant corporation of their individual holdings of corporate stock, being an individual and not a corporate act, could not form the basis of an action for commissions against the corporation. F.L. Allison & Co. v. McMath Plantation Co., 29 Ga. App. 414, 115 S.E. 916, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 43 (1923).

Broker's right to commissions does not depend on performance by purchaser. — Right of a real estate broker to the broker's commissions does not depend upon the carrying out and fully performing of the contract of sale by the purchaser. Payne v. Ponder, 139 Ga. 283, 77 S.E. 32, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 404 (1913).

When an agent employed to sell certain real estate for the owner at a stipulated price procures a purchaser who is accepted by the owner and a contract is entered into between them, the commission of such agent is earned, provided the agent acted in good faith towards the agent's principal in the transaction, although the purchaser later defaults for no reason caused by the agent. Cox v. Dolvin Realty Co., 56 Ga. App. 649, 193 S.E. 467, 1937 Ga. App. LEXIS 186 (1937).

Purchaser's refusal to consummate contract does not prevent recovery by broker. — Agent will not be prevented from recovering commissions for obtaining a purchaser who is accepted in furtherance of which a binding contract is made, though the purchaser deliberately refuses to consummate the contract. Cox v. Dolvin Realty Co., 56 Ga. App. 649, 193 S.E. 467, 1937 Ga. App. LEXIS 186 (1937).

If the purchaser procured by the broker entered into a valid contract with the owner, whereby the purchaser became bound to buy upon the terms stipulated, and the owner became bound to sell, the broker had earned the broker's commission by virtue of such binding and completed contract, even though the purchaser, before the expiration of a reasonable time allowed to the owner to remove the lien, refused to carry out the contract to purchase. Davis v. Holbrook, 75 Ga. App. 417, 43 S.E.2d 791, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 554 (1947).

If the seller accepts the terms of the purchaser's offer by signing a sales contract, the seller has accepted the broker's procurement, and the seller cannot thereafter defeat the broker's right to a commission by refusing to close the transaction. Jones v. Trail Cities Realty, Inc., 160 Ga. App. 533, 287 S.E.2d 588, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3086 (1981).

Purchaser's inability to make title for exchange prevents recovery by broker. — If an agent's customer agreed with the principal upon an exchange of lots and was unable to make title the agent did not earn any commission as the purchaser was not "ready, willing and able" to buy upon the terms agreed upon by the agent with the principal. Harris v. Warmack, 24 Ga. App. 600, 101 S.E. 713, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 959 (1919).

Vendee refusing to perform is liable for commission paid out by vendor. — When vendee refused to comply with the contract to purchase property and vendor paid the broker the commission, the vendor was then entitled to maintain an action against the vendee for damages for a breach of the contract in the amount of the commission so paid by the vendor. Smith v. Knight, 75 Ga. App. 178, 42 S.E.2d 570, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 509 (1947).

Unconsummated sale does not bar commission. — Fact that a sale is never actually consummated does not bar recovery of commissions unless the owner agreed that payment of commissions was contingent upon such, and unless the failure to consummate the sale is not the fault of the owner. Steinemann v. Vaughn & Co., 169 Ga. App. 573, 313 S.E.2d 701, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 3076 (1983).

Broker is not guarantor of purchaser's financial ability or performance. — If the plaintiff occupied the status of broker (as distinguished from a sales agent), and as such procured a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy on terms agreeable to the seller, plaintiff would not, in the absence of a contractual undertaking, become a guarantor either of the financial ability of the purchaser or of the subsequent performance by the purchaser of the offer to buy, especially if the seller actually accepted the offer, and accordingly, the seller was not entitled to a recoupment in suit by broker for commissions on three cars of peanuts actually delivered and accepted by the purchaser, because, on account of a drop in the market price of the commodity, the fourth car in the order was countermanded and refused. Farmers Peanut Co. v. Zimmerman-Alderson Carr Co., 52 Ga. App. 265, 183 S.E. 115, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 135 (1935).

Agent must act in good faith. — Agent is not an insurer of the ability of the purchasers procured by the agent, if the purchasers are accepted as satisfactory by the principal and binding contracts of sale are made by the principal with such purchasers; but the agent is bound to act in good faith towards the principal. Williamson, Inman & Co. v. Thompson, 50 Ga. App. 564, 179 S.E. 289, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 222 (1935).

Agent's bad faith not waived by entering into contract or seeking to enforce it. — Neither entering into contract to sell nor futile attempts to enforce a contract would be such conduct as would waive the seller's right to defend against the agent's suit for commissions on the grounds of the agent's bad faith, if the enforcement of the contract involves a determination of whether the representation of the buyer's financial ability was true or not. Reisman v. Massey, 84 Ga. App. 796, 67 S.E.2d 585, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 800 (1951).

Principal may recover compensation paid if broker obtains contract by fraud and then substitutes purchaser. — If, by the terms of the contract of agency, the agent, as a real estate broker, is to procure a purchaser of property belonging to the principal, and the agent by exceeding the agent's authority and misrepresenting the property perpetrates a fraud upon the purchaser and thereby obtains an unenforceable contract with the purchaser, and on account of the fraud the contract is rescinded by the purchaser, and the agent knowingly, and without the principal's knowledge, substitutes as purchaser one who the principal believes is an agent of the purchaser whom the agent had procured, the agent thereby fails to act in good faith with the principal, and the principal is entitled to recover from the agent compensation for the services which the principal had paid to the agent in ignorance of the fraud of the agent in obtaining the contract, and in ignorance of the purchaser's rescission of the contract. Rood v. Anchors, 42 Ga. App. 76, 155 S.E. 65, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 237 (1930).

Telling owner purchaser must pay commissions does not create dual agency barring recovery. — There was no such dual agency unknown to both principals as would defeat the right of the plaintiff to commission, when the defendant-owner was told that the purchaser of the property in question would have to pay the commissions. Erwin v. Wender, 78 Ga. App. 94, 50 S.E.2d 244, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 688 (1948).

Contract ambiguity. — Grant of summary judgment for the realty company was error since the contract was ambiguous as to whether the real estate commission was refundable once the property sale failed to close, and a question of material fact existed as to the parties' intent on that issue; the issue could not be resolved by application of the rules of contract construction, O.C.G.A. § 13-2-3, nor by parol evidence, O.C.G.A. § 13-2-2. Krogh v. Pargar, LLC, 277 Ga. App. 35, 625 S.E.2d 435, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 1321 (2005), cert. denied, No. S06C0788, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 337 (Ga. Apr. 25, 2006).

Practice and Procedure

1. Pleading

Ability of purchaser should be alleged. — Under this section, the ability to comply, that is that one is solvent and one's compliance can be compelled or the question of one's solvency has been waived, of the purchaser accepted by the principal and afterwards refusing to comply with the contract should be alleged. Harvil v. Wilson Bros., 11 Ga. App. 156, 74 S.E. 845, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 304 (1912); Wilson Bros. v. Verner, 12 Ga. App. 511, 77 S.E. 656, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 617 (1913).

Allegation of what occurred between purchasers and defendants. — Plaintiffs should allege the facts as to what occurred between the defendant and the prospective purchasers upon which the plaintiffs rely in support of the plaintiffs' claim for commissions. McMath Plantation Co. v. F.L. Allison & Co., 26 Ga. App. 744, 107 S.E. 420, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 622 (1921).

Alleging direction to sign contract does not make action one on written contract of sale. — Allegations that clients directed agent to sign a written contract and that client would send a check as earnest money are not necessary to the cause of action whereby a licensed real estate dealer sues for commissions and will not establish the action as a suit upon a written contract to purchase real estate. Pierce v. Deich, 81 Ga. App. 717, 59 S.E.2d 755, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 976 (1950).

Only one count need be sufficient. — In an action against the principal by the broker to recover commissions which was brought in two counts, each for the same amount, one count alleging a contract by which the broker was to procure a contract of sale between the broker's principal and the purchaser and the other count alleging that the plaintiff earned the commission under a brokerage contract by obtaining a customer ready, willing, and able to purchase the property and who actually offered to purchase upon the terms stipulated by the owner, when the verdict found for the plaintiff is sustainable under the second count, it is immaterial that the evidence was insufficient to support a verdict under the first count by reason of the contract of sale necessary to support such verdict being for any reason invalid as by an insufficient description therein of the land purported to be sold. Knowles v. Haas & Dodd, 70 Ga. App. 715, 29 S.E.2d 312, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 89 (1944).

Plaintiff's allegations held sufficient. — See Payne v. Ponder, 139 Ga. 283, 77 S.E. 32, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 404 (1913); McKenzie v. Patterson, 27 Ga. App. 465, 109 S.E. 174, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 217 (1921).

Alleging contract for commission under this section from first payment and a first payment states a cause of action. Luckey v. Daniels, 25 Ga. App. 164, 102 S.E. 902, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 661 (1920).

If the plaintiff specifically alleges the existence and duration of the broker's agency, the property listed for sale, the terms of compensation for the performance of the broker's services, the terms of sale stipulated by the owner and the procurement by the broker of a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy on such terms, and a refusal by the seller to pay the broker's commission in accordance with their contract, the plaintiff's pleading is not subject to dismissal. Norwood v. Robie, 102 Ga. App. 206, 115 S.E.2d 729, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 588 (1960).

Plaintiff's pleading is not subject to dismissal because the pleading seeks to recover on an oral agreement for the performance of services by the broker or because the pleading does not allege that the transaction has been closed by a conveyance and payment of the purchase price. Norwood v. Robie, 102 Ga. App. 206, 115 S.E.2d 729, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 588 (1960).

If a real estate sales contract provides that the broker is made a party thereto to enforce the broker's commission rights and that liability for the commission can be based on the "seller's inability, failure, or refusal to convey" an allegation that the seller "fails and refuses" to close the transaction is sufficient. Nussbaum v. Shaffer, 105 Ga. App. 430, 124 S.E.2d 658, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 945 (1962).

Plaintiff's allegations held insufficient. — By virtue of this section, if an action for a commission on a sale of land is based upon a contract authorizing the plaintiff to sell the land for the defendant for a fixed price per acre within a specified time, and it does not appear from the plaintiff's allegations that the plaintiff procured a purchaser ready, able, and willing to buy at the price stipulated, or that during the life of the contract there was such interference on the part of the defendant as to prevent a sale of the property, or any secret agreement, collusion, or mutual understanding between the defendant and the prospective buyer, while negotiations were pending, to delay the consummation of the trade until after the expiration of the contract, the allegations are insufficient, even though it is alleged that immediately after the expiration of the contract (time being of the essence) the defendant sold the property to one who had been negotiating with the plaintiff. Price v. Cocke, 23 Ga. App. 578, 99 S.E. 47, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 226 (1919).

In a suit to recover commissions alleged to be due under a broker's contract, if the plaintiff's pleading fails to show that the plaintiff produced a purchaser who was ready, able, and willing to buy the property placed in the plaintiff's hands for sale, on the terms prescribed by the owner, the court does not err in dismissing the pleading. Montgomery v. Lester, 25 Ga. App. 660, 104 S.E. 28, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 138 (1920).

Alleging efforts by a broker to sell property and that the broker interested certain persons and by the broker's efforts created a demand for the property, making it possible for the owner to sell to one not alleged to have been interested by the broker, does not state a cause of action. Corker v. Simmons, 26 Ga. App. 515, 106 S.E. 558, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 506 (1921).

Allegation that the "plaintiff was the procuring cause of the sale" is a mere conclusion of the pleader when not sustained by the facts stated by the plaintiff and the court does not err in dismissing the plaintiff's pleading. Craigmiles v. Steyerman, 27 Ga. App. 14, 107 S.E. 386, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 650 (1921).

Cause of action for commissions earned is not alleged if it does not appear that a purchaser was procured who actually offered to buy on the terms stipulated by the owner. Frederick May & Co. v. B. Karpf, Inc., 80 Ga. App. 1, 54 S.E.2d 916, 1949 Ga. App. LEXIS 757 (1949).

Answer alleging defense of broker's bad faith. — Answer alleging that the plaintiff broker misrepresented the financial ability of the buyer, that is, that the buyer was ready, willing, and able to buy on the terms stipulated by the seller, thereby inducing the defendant to accept the buyer's offer and to enter into a contract which the buyer was unable to perform, set out a breach of the broker's duty of exercising the utmost good faith toward the principal, the seller, which was a defense to the broker's action for commissions. Reisman v. Massey, 84 Ga. App. 796, 67 S.E.2d 585, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 800 (1951).

2. Burden of Proof

Burden on broker of showing all requirements of section. — Under the general rule stated in this section, ordinarily the burden of showing all the requirements recited is on the broker in an action for commissions. Phinizy v. Bush, 129 Ga. 479, 59 S.E. 259, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 491 (1907).

Burden of proving defense of purchaser's inability. — If the customer procured by the broker is accepted by the principal, the burden will be upon the latter to show that such purchaser was not able to comply with the contract, if the purchaser relies on that defense. Phinizy v. Bush, 129 Ga. 479, 59 S.E. 259, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 491 (1907).

Proof of conspiracy. — In order to establish that a conspiracy existed to deprive the broker of a real estate broker's commission, a party must show that the commission was earned; that the broker, as the plaintiff-broker, has been the procuring or efficient cause of the ultimate sale; and that there has been a wrongful interference with the broker and the purchaser. Having shown that the broker was the procuring cause of the sale, the plaintiff broker must then demonstrate that the sellers actually knew that the purchaser may have been procured by the broker. Hodges-Ward Assocs. v. Ecclestone, 156 Ga. App. 59, 273 S.E.2d 872, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2879 (1980).

3. Questions for Jury or Court

Whether broker has produced a purchaser during the term of the agency is an issue of fact. Ocean Lake & River Fish Co. v. Dotson, 70 Ga. App. 268, 28 S.E.2d 319, 1943 Ga. App. LEXIS 296 (1943).

Which broker's efforts were procuring cause. — If the services of a broker, as well as those of another broker, have conjointly contributed to the successful termination of negotiations resulting in the sale of real estate for an owner, it becomes a question of fact as to which broker was the proximate, predominating, and procuring cause of the sale. Gresham v. Lee, 152 Ga. 829, 111 S.E. 404, 1922 Ga. LEXIS 291 (1922); Nicholson v. Smith & Son, 29 Ga. App. 376, 115 S.E. 499, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 13 (1923); City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Orr, 39 Ga. App. 217, 146 S.E. 795, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 261 (1929).

Whether contract applied to property is for jury. — Issue whether contract as to commissions applied to goods accepted but not delivered was for jury, not court. Interstate Chem. Corp. v. Slade & Treadwell, 20 Ga. App. 776, 93 S.E. 422, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 1080 (1917).

Reasonable time. — If no time is specified for a real estate agent to procure a ready, willing, and able purchaser, under the agency contract what would be a reasonable time is for the jury to determine under all the facts and circumstances of the case. Wood v. Planzer, 73 Ga. App. 731, 37 S.E.2d 813, 1946 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1946).

If a contract between the owner of real estate and the real estate agent for the sale of property specified no time limit, and the commitment to purchase property by the purchaser was obtained ten days after the contract was made, and the sale was made by the agent on the terms stated less than three months from the date of the owner's contract with the agent, the jury is authorized to find that the agent has earned a commission under the contract. Wood v. Planzer, 73 Ga. App. 731, 37 S.E.2d 813, 1946 Ga. App. LEXIS 402 (1946).

Whether broker made attempt to perform. — Under provisions in a broker's contract for sale under the terms stipulated "or any other terms acceptable to me," a bona fide attempt to procure an offer to buy for a lesser price is sufficient to constitute performance, and whether or not such performance has occurred is a jury question. Stone v. Reinhard, 124 Ga. App. 355, 183 S.E.2d 601, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 918 (1971).

If a promise as stated in a contract is "to list, offer for sale, and endeavor to sell" upon the terms stated in the contract or any other terms acceptable to the owner, and the plaintiff's affidavit shows that there were efforts to find prospects, show the prospects the property, and relay offers to the owner, it is a jury question whether or not there was such compliance with the contract as to entitle the plaintiff to commissions. Stone v. Reinhard, 124 Ga. App. 355, 183 S.E.2d 601, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 918 (1971).

Whether a sales agent breaches a fiduciary duty to the seller by working in concert with the agent's spouse, the purchaser, in the negotiations and execution of the sales contract is a question of fact for the court. Paredes v. Bud Bailey Corp., 160 Ga. App. 572, 287 S.E.2d 620, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3103 (1981).

Verdict for defendant required as matter of law. — If in a suit by a broker for commission it appears that the plaintiff never produced a customer who was ready, able, and willing to buy, and who actually offered to buy on the terms expressly stipulated by the defendant, the owner of the property in question, that prior to the sale of the property by the defendant personally to one who had been introduced to the defendant by the plaintiff's agent as its prospect, the negotiations between such prospect and the plaintiff had come to an end, and that the defendant had not at any time interfered with the efforts of the plaintiff to effect a sale during the agency, a verdict in favor of the defendant was demanded as a matter of law. Landrum v. Lipscomb-Ellis Co., 62 Ga. App. 649, 9 S.E.2d 205, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 392 (1940).

4. Instructions

Owner's right to sell. — Since there was an issue of fact as to whether a broker was employed to sell property or the broker's acts ratified, and it appeared that the owner sold the property personally, without the broker's aid, to a purchaser with whom the broker negotiated, the court should have charged pursuant to this section that placing the property in the hands of a broker did not prevent the owner from selling unless otherwise agreed. Folds v. Lifsey Co., 26 Ga. App. 297, 105 S.E. 854, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 109 (1921).

10-6-33. Method for revocation of agency; damages for unreasonable revocation.

Generally, an agency is revocable at the will of the principal. The appointment of a new agent for the performance of the same act or the death of either principal or agent revokes the power. If, however, the power is coupled with an interest in the agent himself, it is not revocable at will. In all cases the agent may recover from the principal, for an unreasonable revocation, any damages he may have suffered by reason thereof.

Power Coupled with an Interest

General Consideration

Section not intended to be exhaustive. — This section, expressing but one exception to the general rule of revocability of an agency at will, was not intended to be exhaustive of the legal principles controlling revocation. Ray v. Hemphill, 97 Ga. 563, 25 S.E. 485, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 527 (1895); Wheeler v. Pan Am. Petro. Corp., 48 Ga. App. 378, 172 S.E. 826, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1934).

Revocable at will of principal. — Generally, an agency is revocable at the will of the principal. Ray v. Hemphill, 97 Ga. 563, 25 S.E. 485, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 527 (1895); Wheeler v. Pan Am. Petro. Corp., 48 Ga. App. 378, 172 S.E. 826, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1934); Holland v. King, 72 Ga. App. 179, 33 S.E.2d 275, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1945).

If books were merely entrusted to a party as agent of a corporation for the purpose of selling the books with title remaining in the corporation, the corporation was empowered to revoke the agency at will and to take possession of the books by any lawful means. Parks v. Atlanta News Agency, Inc., 115 Ga. App. 842, 156 S.E.2d 137, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 1276 (1967).

Death. — Agency is ipso facto revoked by death. Ray v. Hemphill, 97 Ga. 563, 25 S.E. 485, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 527 (1895).

Agent is not barred from having interest. — That an agent was not prohibited from having an interest was evident from former Code 1933, §§ 4-202 and 4-214. Pendley v. Jessee, 134 Ga. App. 138, 213 S.E.2d 496, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 1934 (1975).

Paying consideration for power is not sufficient. — Power will not survive merely because the donee may have paid a valuable consideration for the power. Turman v. Winecoff, 138 Ga. 726, 75 S.E. 1131, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 670 (1912).

Voluntary agency to settle lawsuit held revocable. — If one, without consideration, entrusted an agent with a sum of money to settle a lawsuit between two others, one has the power of revocation until the settlement is complete, especially if the contract is in writing and it is therein expressly agreed that the terms of the settlement are to be satisfactory to the person in every way, and if not, then the money is to be restored to the person. Phillips v. Howell, 60 Ga. 411, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 486 (1878).

Attorney-client relationship does not come under this section; it is an erroneous legal theory to argue that retention of an attorney is nothing more than creation of an agency, so that under this section death of either the principal or agent revokes the power. Continental Ins. Co. v. Weekes, 140 Ga. App. 791, 232 S.E.2d 80, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 1634 (1976) (attorney-client relationship held not involved).

Power of sale in mortgage held revoked by mortgagor's death. — Power of sale given by mortgage under this section is revoked by the mortgagor's death before the note falls due. Lathrop & Co. v. Brown, 65 Ga. 312, 1880 Ga. LEXIS

Power of sale in mortgage held irrevocable during mortgagor's lifetime. — Power of sale, such as one contained in a mortgage, is irrevocable during the lifetime of the principal when it is given for a valuable consideration, and forms a part of a contract made as security for a debt, and is conferred for the purpose of effectuating the security, even though not coupled with an interest in the thing itself, and this is undoubtedly so if there is an express stipulation that the power shall be irrevocable. Ray v. Hemphill, 97 Ga. 563, 25 S.E. 485, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 527 (1895).

Agency to sell land held not revocable until after reasonable time. — If agents are employed to sell land for a specified commission to be paid when a sale is made and they expend time and effort in endeavoring to effect a sale, the owner cannot, without lawful cause, revoke the contract of agency at one's mere option and before the expiration of a reasonable time for performance. If no time limit is fixed in the contract for the contract's performance, the agents are entitled to a reasonable time. Holland v. King, 72 Ga. App. 179, 33 S.E.2d 275, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1945).

Consummation of sale by owner would not relieve the owner of liability for commission. — Fact that a sale was finally consummated by the owner to a purchaser procured by the agents would not relieve the owner of the owner's liability for the commission. Holland v. King, 72 Ga. App. 179, 33 S.E.2d 275, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1945).

No power to collect additional compensation shown. — In a breach of contract and fraud action for unpaid commissions brought by an independent sales representative against a manufacturer, the trial court properly determined that the independent sales representative could not recover continuing commissions after the agreement expired based on the theory of irrevocable agency as the agreement expressly stated that no additional compensation would be paid for equipment leases. Irvin Int'l, Inc. v. Riverwood Int'l Corp., 299 Ga. App. 633, 683 S.E.2d 158, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 921 (2009).

Agency to collect note owned in part by agent held not revoked by payee's death. — If one lends money for oneself and as agent for others and takes a note so payable, the right and duty of the payee to collect the note for the principals for whom money was loaned is an agency coupled with an interest which is not terminated by the death of the payee of the note; the executrix has the right to proceed to collect the note. Scott v. Cain, 77 Ga. App. 826, 50 S.E.2d 99, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 653 (1948).

Termination by manufacturer of oral agreement for distributorship did not give rise to an action for wrongful termination, even though the distributorship was to be for an indefinite time. Loy's Office Supplies, Inc. v. Steelcase, Inc., 174 Ga. App. 701, 331 S.E.2d 75, 1985 Ga. App. LEXIS 1935 (1985).

Powers of remainderman to manage property until life tenant dies held irrevocable. — When A executed a deed to B, C, and D, for $1.00 and other valuable considerations, providing that the property was conveyed in trust and empowering the grantees to pay insurance, taxes, and maturing loans on the property conveyed, to collect the rents, to sell and reinvest, and to pay the net income to the grantor for life, and providing that at A's death title should vest absolutely in B, C, and D, such deed conveyed the property to grantees subject to a life estate in the grantor, and the powers conferred by the deed were irrevocable. Finn v. Dobbs, 188 Ga. 602, 4 S.E.2d 655, 1939 Ga. LEXIS 610 (1939).

Notice to remit proceeds revokes agency of bank to place proceeds to depositor's credit. — Notice by a depositor given to a bank before the bank has collected checks which have been deposited with the bank as agent to collect, notifying the bank that the proceeds of the checks after being collected are not to be deposited to the depositor's credit, but are to be remitted by the bank to the depositor, is notice to the bank of a revocation by the depositor of the bank's agency to place the proceeds derived from the collection of the checks to the depositor's credit in the bank. Macon Grocery Co. v. Citizens' Bank, 42 Ga. App. 74, 155 S.E. 57, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 236 (1930).

Filing suit to cancel power of attorney and deeds made thereunder revokes agency. — Power of attorney not coupled with an interest is revocable at will; and the mere filing of suit to cancel a power of attorney and two deeds made by the attorney in fact amounts to a revocation thereof with respect to any future action thereunder by the attorney in fact. Thompson v. Thompson, 190 Ga. 264, 9 S.E.2d 80, 1940 Ga. LEXIS 445 (1940).

Right to discharge at will shows employer-employee relationship. — Charge of the court to the jury to the effect that, if a used car lot owner retained the right to direct or control the time or manner of executing the work of a salesperson and had the right to discharge the salesperson and to terminate at any time the arrangement between them, the relationship would be that of employer and employee or that of master and servant, but that, if the dealer did not have these rights, then the relationship between the dealer and the salesperson would be another relationship, "such as the relationship of independent contractor and principal," was an accurate statement of the law. Hamilton v. Pulaski County, 86 Ga. App. 705, 72 S.E.2d 487, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 1036 (1952).

Power of attorney must be strictly construed and strictly pursued; the act done must be legally identical with that authorized to be done. United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

Action lies for wrongful revocation. — If the revocation of an agency is unreasonable and constitutes a breach of contract, whereby the agent sustains injury, the law affords the agent redress in an action for damages. Standard Oil Co. v. Gilbert & Co., 84 Ga. 714, 11 S.E. 491, 1890 Ga. LEXIS 330 (1890); Ray v. Hemphill, 97 Ga. 563, 25 S.E. 485, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 527 (1895).

If no time limit is fixed for performance in a contract employing agents to sell land, the agents are entitled to a reasonable time, and if, before the expiration of such reasonable time, the owner, without lawful cause, revokes the contract, the owner is liable to the agents in damages for so doing. Holland v. King, 72 Ga. App. 179, 33 S.E.2d 275, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1945).

Measure of damages would be determined by the contract of agency. Holland v. King, 72 Ga. App. 179, 33 S.E.2d 275, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1945).

Burden of proving the revocation of an agency is generally upon the party asserting revocation. Holland v. King, 72 Ga. App. 179, 33 S.E.2d 275, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1945).

Power Coupled with an Interest

"Coupled with an interest". — To be "coupled with an interest," the interest of the agent must lie in the subject matter of the agency and not merely in the contract of agency. Cutcliffe v. Chesnut, 126 Ga. App. 378, 190 S.E.2d 800, 1972 Ga. App. LEXIS 1156 (1972).

Interest of the agent that will prevent revocation at the will of the principal, referred to in this section, must lie in the subject matter of the agency and not merely in the profits which are to result from the exercise of the power. Lathrop & Co. v. Brown, 65 Ga. 312, 1880 Ga. LEXIS 185 (1880); Wilkins v. McGehee, 86 Ga. 764, 13 S.E. 84, 1891 Ga. LEXIS 60 (1891); Turman v. Winecoff, 138 Ga. 726, 75 S.E. 1131, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 670 (1912); Adair v. Smith, 23 Ga. App. 290, 98 S.E. 224, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 91 (1919); Wheeler v. Pan Am. Petro. Corp., 48 Ga. App. 378, 172 S.E. 826, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1934).

Agency coupled with an interest is not revocable by death. Gurr v. Gurr, 198 Ga. 493, 32 S.E.2d 507, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 454 (1944).

Death ordinarily terminates an agency, but when the agency is coupled with an interest, the rule does not apply. Scott v. Cain, 77 Ga. App. 826, 50 S.E.2d 99, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 653 (1948).

Exception to normal death rule. — To the rule that an agency is revoked by the death of the principal there is but one exception, and that exists when the power of the agent is coupled with an interest in the subject on which the power is to be exercised and not merely in that which is produced by the exercise of the agency. Ray v. Hemphill, 97 Ga. 563, 25 S.E. 485, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 527 (1895).

Agency coupled with an interest is not revocable at will. Gurr v. Gurr, 198 Ga. 493, 32 S.E.2d 507, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 454 (1944).

If the power is coupled with an interest in the agent personally, the power is not revocable at will. Wheeler v. Pan Am. Petro. Corp., 48 Ga. App. 378, 172 S.E. 826, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1934).

Mere recital that power is coupled with an interest would not of itself make it such an interest. Ray v. Hemphill, 97 Ga. 563, 25 S.E. 485, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 527 (1895).

Giving agent title to instrument makes agency irrevocable. — If the agent has title to the instrument itself, the agent has such an interest as will prevent termination of the agency. Scott v. Cain, 77 Ga. App. 826, 50 S.E.2d 99, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 653 (1948).

Power of attorney to sue under contingent-fee contract. — If an attorney is employed to sue for property under a special contract whereby the attorney's fee is payable out of the proceeds of the suit, such a contract is in the nature of a power with an interest, and such a power is irrevocable. Twiggs v. Chambers, 56 Ga. 279, 1876 Ga. LEXIS 264 (1876).

Right to control of security held not revoked by owner's death. — Agreement between a company, the holder of a security deed, which as such had the right to demand possession of property for the purpose of controlling the property until the net amount from the rents and profits was sufficient to satisfy the debt, which was in arrears, and the owner, whereby the company was given the immediate direction and control of the apartment house, creates a power coupled with an interest, and the agency is not terminated by the death of the owner. Henderson v. Nolting First Mtg. Corp., 184 Ga. 724, 193 S.E. 347, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 637 (1937).

Factor's power of sale held not revoked by principal's death. — Factor's power of sale to reimburse the factor for advances the factor has made to the principal or expense in taking care of such property is coupled with an interest and is not revoked by the death of the principal. Willingham v. Rushing, 105 Ga. 72, 31 S.E. 130, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 452 (1898).

Work and expense of agent to lease held to prevent revocation at will. — Work and expense of an authorized agent in finding a tenant and securing a lease could be taken as sufficient to establish such an interest that will prevent revocation at the will of the principal in the contract of rental. Adair v. Smith, 23 Ga. App. 290, 98 S.E. 224, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 91 (1919) (agent had interest in contract of rental, not just contract of agency).

Distribution agency not made irrevocable by agent's efforts. — In the absence of some contractual provision to the contrary, an agency for a petroleum corporation to distribute the corporation's products in a certain territory for commissions would not be irrevocable as a power coupled with an interest merely because the agent expends time, efforts, and money to increase the business of the agency. Wheeler v. Pan Am. Petro. Corp., 48 Ga. App. 378, 172 S.E. 826, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1934).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

This section is not exhaustive of the exceptions to the general rule that an agency is revocable at will. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Power that is given for consideration as security is irrevocable. — Power which is given to an agent in exchange for valuable consideration is irrevocable should the power form a part of the contractual agreement as a security for the debt. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Power of wage collection given creditor is irrevocable during life-time of employee. — Power of attorney which authorizes the State Employees' Credit Union to collect the unpaid compensation due a state employee in the event of the employee's termination prior to the repayment of the employee's loan is irrevocable during the lifetime of the employee, although it does not constitute a power coupled with an interest within the meaning of this section. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Death of principal revokes power. — General rule is that all powers are revoked by the death of the principal. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Death of principal does not revoke powers which are coupled with an interest in the thing itself. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Without interest, power irrevocable during lifetime does not survive principal. — Although a power is irrevocable during the lifetime of the principal, the power does not survive the death of the principal if the power does not confer a power coupled with an interest. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Reciting interest insufficient. —Recital in the instrument that a power of collection is coupled with an interest is not sufficient to create the necessary interest. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Power to collect wages of terminated state employee may not be honored. — In the absence of a contractual relationship or authorizing legislation, a state agency may not properly honor a power of attorney authorizing collection by the State Employee's Credit Union of the unpaid wages due a terminated state employee in satisfaction of the unpaid balance on the employee's loan. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-18.

Payment may be to spouse or children if employee has died. —Should a terminated state employee die prior to the employee's loan's repayment, the unpaid compensation due the employee, not to exceed $2,500.00, may be paid to the employee's surviving spouse or minor children, as provided in former Code 1933, §§ 66-103 — 66-105. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen.No. 76-18.

10-6-35. Effect of death on power of attorney by member of armed forces, seaman, or person on war service.

(a) No agency created by a power of attorney in writing given by a principal who is at the time of execution or who, after executing the power of attorney, becomes either:

(1) A member of the armed forces of the United States;

(2) A person serving as a merchant seaman outside the limits of the United States; or shall be revoked or terminated by the death of the principal as to the agent or other person who, without actual knowledge or actual notice of the death of the principal, shall have acted or shall act, in good faith, under or in reliance upon such power of attorney or agency; and any action so taken, unless otherwise invalid or unenforceable, shall be binding on the heirs, devisees, legatees, or personal representatives of the principal, provided that it shall be made to appear by proof that the person or persons, firm, or corporation receiving any property by reason of the exercise of the power shall have paid value for the property and the attorney in fact or agent shall make bond for title to purchaser of the property without notice of the death of the principal.

(b) An affidavit, executed by the attorney in fact or agent setting forth that he has not or had not, at the time of doing any act pursuant to the power of attorney, received actual knowledge or actual notice of the revocation or termination of the power of attorney, by death or otherwise, or notice of any facts indicating the same, shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive proof of the nonrevocation or nontermination of the power at such time. If the exercise of the power requires execution and delivery of any instrument which is recordable under the laws of this state, such affidavit, when authenticated for record in the manner prescribed by law, shall likewise be recordable.

(c) No report or listing, either official or otherwise, of "missing" or "missing in action," as such words are used in military parlance, shall constitute or be interpreted as constituting actual knowledge or actual notice of the death of such principal or notice of any facts indicating the same or shall operate to revoke the agency.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Section applies after discharged servant had entered upon duties. — This section applies after the servant had actually entered upon the performance of the duties undertaken and was discharged. Putney v. Swift, Murphy &

Co., 54 Ga. 266, 1875 Ga. LEXIS 149 (1875).

Section inapplicable if servant never permitted to serve. — This section is not applicable if A and B contract that A shall serve B as a clerk for four months at a specified rate per month and B refused, on application of A, to permit A to enter on the work. A has a right to recover, not A's four months' wages, but the damages which have come to A from B's breach of contract. Putney v. Swift, Murphy & Co., 54 Ga. 266, 1875 Ga. LEXIS 149 (1875).

Section inapplicable to permanent tenure. — This section does not deal with an employment when the employee has permanent tenure. City Council v. Hydrick, 126 Ga. App. 611, 191 S.E.2d 563, 1972 Ga. App. LEXIS 1234 (1972).

Action under section is ex contractu. — Employee's suit for damages on account of a breach of contract by discharge is an action ex contractu. Cason v. Tye, 9 Ga. App. 325, 71 S.E. 593, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 535 (1911).

Cognizable agency contracts must refer to legal rights and duties. — Contracts of agency, to be cognizable in law, must, like other agreements, have reference to the assumption of legal rights and duties, as opposed to engagements of a mere civic or social character, or of such other nature as to exclude monetary values. Huckeby v. Smith, 42 Ga. App. 719, 157 S.E. 234, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 119 (1931).

Cognizable agency contracts must have monetary value at law. — In order to constitute a valid contract, the intention of the parties must refer to legal relations, so that the courts may take cognizance of it, and it is generally said that the test of this quality of the contract is that the intention of the parties must relate to something which is of a monetary value in the eye of the law. Huckeby v. Smith, 42 Ga. App. 719, 157 S.E. 234, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 119 (1931).

Accrual of right of action when contract treated as continuing. — If the employee elects to treat the employment contract as continuing after wrongful discharge, the right of action as to the last installment of the employee's salary does not accrue until expiration of the stipulated term of employment. Rosenstock v. Congregation Agudath Achim, 118 Ga. App. 443, 164 S.E.2d 283, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1424 (1968).

Employee has six years to bring action on written contract. — If the employment contract is in writing, the employee has six years after the expiration within which to bring an action. Rosenstock v. Congregation Agudath Achim, 118 Ga. App. 443, 164 S.E.2d 283, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1424 (1968).

Action brought during term may include recovery to end. — Although an action for breach of a contract of employment is brought before the term of hiring has expired, the recovery may embrace all the damages down to the expiration of the term, if the trial is held after the whole of such damages become susceptible of definite proof — that is, after the term expired. Georgia, Fla. & Ala. Ry. v. Parsons, 12 Ga. App. 180, 76 S.E. 1063, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 486 (1913).

Quantum meruit available as remedy. — If there exists a written contract which is broken, one of the remedies for the breach is quantum meruit, that is, in treating the contract as rescinded. Gilbert v. Powell, 165 Ga. App. 504, 301 S.E.2d 683, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 1925 (1983).

Recovery properly limited to quantum meruit. — There being no allegation in the petition and nothing in the evidence to show that the term of service had expired and that the servant was suing to recover the servant's entire damages or that the servant was suing for any special injury for a breach of the contract, the court did not err in treating the plaintiff's case as one based upon quantum meruit and in charging the jury accordingly. Silverthorne v. Arkansas S.E. Ry., 142 Ga. 194, 82 S.E. 551, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 648 (1914).

Measure of damages. — When an offended party sues for the breach of a contract, the measure of the party's recovery is, prima facie, full payment at the contract rate, but the defendant may mitigate the damages by showing that the plaintiff, by the exercise of ordinary care and diligence, could have rendered the next loss less than that amount. Mimms v. Betts Co., 9 Ga. App. 718, 72 S.E. 271, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 305 (1911); J.L. Betts Co. v. Mimms, 14 Ga. App. 786, 82 S.E. 474, 1914 Ga. App. LEXIS 450 (1914).

If there was a contract for the division of commissions between tax investigators and one investigator collected taxes but refused to pay plaintiff the plaintiff's share of the commission, it would appear that the principle controlling is analogous to that found in this section and that the plaintiff is entitled to the third of the remedies provided by this section. Roberts v. Allen, 31 Ga. App. 660, 122 S.E. 86, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 119 (1924).

If an employee is unlawfully discharged before the expiration of the term of employment and, before the expiration of the term, brings suit against the employer for damages sustained by reason of such discharge, the employee's measure of damages is the salary or advancements which the employee was entitled to receive under the terms of the contract for the remainder of the term, subject to reduction by proof at the trial. Fried v. Portis Bros. Hat Co., 41 Ga. App. 30, 152 S.E. 151, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 449 (1930).

Trial court properly granted partial summary judgment pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-56 to an employer on an employee's action alleging breach of an employment contract, holding that the employee could only recover wages payable up to the time of trial; O.C.G.A. § 10-6-37 provided that in all employment contracts for a definite duration, an employee could sue for the value of the services rendered, or could wait until the expiration of the year and sue for and recover the employee's entire wages. In this action the employee elected to affirm the contract and bring an immediate suit for damages based upon the company's alleged breach of the employment contract, and under this option, the employee only had the right to prove, and to recover for, all damages which may have accrued up to the date of the trial. Harvey v. J. H. Harvey Co., 276 Ga. 762, 582 S.E.2d 88, 2003 Ga. LEXIS 542 (2003).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Damages for wrongful discharge subject to reduction. — If an employee is unlawfully discharged before the expiration of the term of employment and, before the expiration of the term, brings suit against the employer for damages sustained by reason of such discharge, the employee's measure of damages is the salary or advancements which the employee was entitled to receive under the terms of the contract for the remainder of the term, subject to reduction by proof at the trial. Profits to agent from discharge. — Regular measure of damages is subject to diminution by any amount which the proof shows the agent profited, or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have profited, by reason of the agent's release from the performance of the service. Realty Co. v. Ellis, 4 Ga. App. 402, 61 S.E. 832, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 314 (1908).

Probable commissions employee required to accept in lieu of salary. — Damages will not be diminished by probable commissions when contract was broken by refusal to let employee continue work unless the employee would accept commissions in lieu of salary. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Continuation of common-law rule. — At common law there could be no recovery against the principal for injuries sustained by an agent from the negligence or misconduct of other agents of the principal, engaged in the same business, and this rule was generally in force in this state by virtue of former Code 1873, § 2202. Apparent authority vanishes in presence of knowledge of agent's powers. — Doctrine of apparent authority rests upon principle that if one of two innocent parties must suffer, the one must bear the burden who places another in a position to cause loss. It necessarily follows that the doctrine may not be invoked by one who knows or has good reason to know the limits and extent of an agent's authority. In such cases the rule is that any apparent authority that might otherwise exist vanishes in presence of person's actual or constructive knowledge of what agent is or is not empowered to do. General Consideration

"General agency" exists if there is a delegation of authority to do all acts in connection with a particular trade or business. Bacon v. Dannenberg Co., 24 Ga. App. 540, 101 S.E. 699, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 909 (1919); Carmichael v. Silvers, 90 Ga. App. 804, 84 S.E.2d 668, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 819 (1954).

"General agent" may either be one clothed with power to do all the principal's business, of every character, or the general agent may be one empowered to do all acts connected with a particular business or employment. First Nat'l Bank v. Charles Nelson & Co., 38 Ga. 391, 1868 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1868).

"General agent" is defined to be one who is employed to transact generally all the business of the principal in regard to which the agent is employed, or in other words to do all acts connected with a particular trade, business, or employment, or to transact all the business of the principal of a particular kind or in a particular place. Raines v. Graham, 85 Ga. App. 815, 70 S.E.2d 125, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 835 (1952).

"General agent" is one who is authorized to do all acts connected with a particular trade, business, or employment. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

"Special agent" is one appointed to do a single act or several specified acts. First Nat'l Bank v. Charles Nelson & Co., 38 Ga. 391, 1868 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1868).

"Special agent" is authorized to do one or more specific acts in pursuance of particular instructions or within restrictions necessarily implied from the act to be done. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

"Special agent" is one to whom there is a delegation to do a single act. Lewis v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 139 Ga. App. 855, 229 S.E.2d 765, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2021 (1976).

Attorney as "special agent." — Attorney is not a general agent for all purposes, but the attorney's authority is limited to the particular purpose for which the attorney was retained and the attorney's authority to do other things must be inquired into; as a special agent, the attorney has no inherent power to dispose of the client's property or legal right, but must obtain special authority. Addley v. Beizer, 205 Ga. App. 714, 423 S.E.2d 398, 1992 Ga. App. LEXIS 1397 (1992).

Third person may presume general agency continues until notice of revocation. — Whenever a general agency has been established for any purpose, all persons who have dealt with the agent have a right to assume that the agent's authority to deal with the third person in behalf of the agent's principal continues, until notice, express or implied, has been conveyed to the third person that the agency has been revoked. Bacon v. Dannenberg Co., 24 Ga. App. 540, 101 S.E. 699, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 909 (1919); Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980).

When acts of dual agent are avoidable. — If an agent attempts to act for two parties, the effect of the agent's acts may be avoided by the principal when such dual agency is without the principal's full knowledge and consent. Abercrombie v. Ford Motor Co., 81 Ga. App. 690, 59 S.E.2d 664, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 973, rev'd, 207 Ga. 464, 62 S.E.2d 209, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 636 (1950).

Agency cannot be proved by evidence of mere declarations of the alleged agent. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Agent's declarations are admissible with other evidence. — When accompanied by other evidence as to the conduct of the person in the character of agent and acceptance by the alleged principal of the fruits of the agency, such declarations are admissible in evidence. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Third person must prove authority for acts beyond those reasonably necessary. — Person dealing with a special agent takes the risk as to any extension of the agent's authority beyond that which is authorized, and the burden rests upon the special agent to show authority from the principal for any acts of the agent other than such usual and ordinary acts as are reasonably necessary to a due performance of the particular purpose of the agency. Wise v. Mohawk Rubber Co., 23 Ga. App. 255, 98 S.E. 100, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 65 (1919).

Authority to release must be proved. — Person relying on a release of the person's contract by an agent must prove authority in the agent to make the release. International Correspondence Sch. v. Wright, 47 Ga. App. 861, 171 S.E. 831, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 698 (1933).

Fact employees were acting within scope of employment must be proved. — Fact that one or more employees were acting within the scope of their employment was a fact to be proved on the trial by competent evidence, if the same was not admitted by the defendants in their answer, and could be proved either by showing specific authority or it might be inferred from all of the facts and circumstances of the case. Duchess Chenilles, Inc. v. Masters, 84 Ga. App. 822, 67 S.E.2d 600, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 805 (1951).

Admission of agency in answer binds defendant. — If the plaintiff alleged that a certain individual was the agent of defendant company, and the answer admitted the agency, and no amendment was made striking that part of the answer, and the trial proceeded on the only issue left, to wit, whether the defendant had complied with the defendant's contract, this admission was binding on the defendant, notwithstanding testimony admitted without objection that the individual bought an option on the property and transferred the option to the defendant. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Existence and extent of authority are questions of fact. — Questions of the existence and extent of an agent's authority are generally for the triers of fact. Allen & Bean, Inc. v. American Bankers Ins. Co., 153 Ga. App. 617, 266 S.E.2d 295, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1924 (1980).

Apparent authority. — Question of the scope and extent of an agency's apparent authority is to be decided from all the facts and circumstances in evidence. All questions of law must be decided by the court, and all questions of fact must be decided by the jury. Warnock v. Elliott, 96 Ga. App. 778, 101 S.E.2d 591, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (1957).

Extent of written authority is for court. — If an agent's authority is conferred and defined in writing, the scope or extent of such authority must be determined from the terms of the writing and is to be determined and construed by the court. Findlay Brick Co. v. American Sewer Pipe Co., 18 Ga. App. 446, 89 S.E. 535, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 403 (1916).

Scope of Authority

1. Generally

Test of extent of authority. — Extent of an agent's authority is not determined by the title affixed to the agent's name, but, as between the agent's principal and third persons, the test is in the authority which the agent actually has or which the agent's principal expressly or impliedly represents the agent as having. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Davis, 42 Ga. App. 49, 155 S.E. 105, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 234 (1930).

One may be called a special agent and yet be given the broadest powers. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Davis, 42 Ga. App. 49, 155 S.E. 105, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 234 (1930).

Authority includes all necessary and usual means. — This section embodies a sound proposition taken from the common law, that is, that the agent's authority will be construed to include all necessary and usual means for effectuating authority. Strong v. West, 110 Ga. 382, 35 S.E. 693, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 447 (1900).

First sentence applies to both general and special agents. Callaway v. Barmore, 32 Ga. App. 665, 124 S.E. 382, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 587 (1924); Star Furn. Co. v. Dubberly, 46 Ga. App. 178, 167 S.E. 207, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 100 (1932).

Authority of special and general agents. — Provision of this section that "the agent's authority shall be construed to include all necessary and usual means for effectually executing it" has reference to both special and general agents. Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. v. Franklin, 51 Ga. App. 496, 180 S.E. 869, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 383 (1935).

While a general agent has broader powers than one selected to do a particular act, the authority in both cases must be construed to include all necessary and usual means for effectually executing the authority. Bass Dry Goods Co. v. Granite City Mfg. Co., 119 Ga. 124, 45 S.E. 980, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1903); Hopkins & Co. v. Armour & Co., 8 Ga. App. 442, 69 S.E. 580, 1910 Ga. App. LEXIS 213 (1910).

Agent's authority once established shall be construed to include all necessary and usual means for effectively executing the agent's authority, and this rule applies when the agency is created for general as well as for special purposes. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

Agent may do everything essential to agent's duties. — Agent to conduct a given business for the agent's principal necessarily has authority to do everything which is essential to the performance of the agent's duties as agent. Carmichael v. Silvers, 90 Ga. App. 804, 84 S.E.2d 668, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 819 (1954).

Agent may do everything usual or necessary. — Express authority to do an act includes as incidental thereto authority to do those things which are usual or necessary to accomplish effectually the act expressly authorized. McDonald v. Pearre Bros. & Co., 5 Ga. App. 130, 62 S.E. 830, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 34 (1908).

Authority for an agent to do a thing generally includes authority to do everything usual and necessary for the accomplishment of the main objective. Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980).

Agent may use all usual means, unless contrary clearly appears. — If an agency is created for the performance of an act beneficial to the principal, all the usual modes and means of accomplishing the objects of the agency are included in the agency's creation, unless the contrary clearly appears. Strong v. West, 110 Ga. 382, 35 S.E. 693, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 447 (1900); John Bean Mfg. Co. v. Citizens Bank, 60 Ga. App. 615, 4 S.E.2d 924, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 106 (1939), overruled, Tifton Bank & Trust Co. v. Knight's Furniture Co., 215 Ga. App. 471, 452 S.E.2d 219, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1274 (1994).

Fact that at the time of an accident a truck driver was on the driver's way to the lumberyard to get lumber with which to fasten furniture more securely on the truck does not mean that the driver was deviating from the mission to haul furniture for the employer since if the driver was moving the furniture under the authority of the master in the first instance, the driver's authority would include all necessary and usual means for effectually accomplishing the task. Ellison v. Evans, 85 Ga. App. 292, 69 S.E.2d 94, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 719 (1952).

1. Generally (Cont'd)

Rule applies to power of attorney. — General rule that an agent's authority shall be construed to include all necessary and usual means for executing the authority has application to the provisions of a power of attorney. Johnson v. Johnson, 184 Ga. 783, 193 S.E. 345, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 636 (1937).

Authority does not extend beyond what is necessary or incidental to it. — Agent's authority does not extend beyond what is necessary or incidental to the authority given. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

Agent may only do what agent may reasonably infer principal desires. — Agent is authorized to do, and to do only, what it is reasonable for the agent to infer that the principal desires the agent to do in the light of the principal's manifestations and the facts as the agent knows or should know them at the time the agent acts. Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

When authority to sell inferred. — Authority to sell the principal's property is inferred only when it is incidental to the transaction, usually accompanies the authority expressly conferred, or is reasonably necessary in accomplishing it. Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

Authority to obtain execution of prepared contract does not include authority for other agreement. — Authority to a special agent to obtain the signature of a seller to a prepared written contract for the sale of a certain amount of cotton, without more, does not include within itself authority to make a parol agreement that the cotton shall not in fact be delivered, but that the parties shall settle on the basis of the difference between the agreed price and the market price at the time for delivery. Terry v. International Cotton Co., 138 Ga. 656, 75 S.E. 1044, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 647 (1912).

Power to purchase includes power to execute note. — Agent having authority to purchase fertilizer for a company, it will be presumed by virtue of this section that the agent had authority to execute in behalf of the company a note for the payment of the purchase price. Swift & Co. v. Dawson Paper Shell Pecan Co., 24 Ga. App. 625, 101 S.E. 754, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 973 (1919).

Power to make cash purchases does not include power to pledge credit. — Person having authority from another to use the other's name in making cash purchases for the latter has no authority, as the latter's agent, to make purchases and pledge the principal's credit for their payment. Morgan v. Georgia Paving & Constr. Co., 40 Ga. App. 335, 149 S.E. 426, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 153 (1929).

Authority to sign note does not warrant signing note for larger amount. — Under this section, if one person authorized another to sign one's name to a note for a certain amount and the latter, instead of so doing, signed a note for a larger amount, it is not an abuse of power by the agent but an act by the agent wholly unwarranted. King v. Sparks, 77 Ga. 285, 1 S.E. 266, 1887 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1887).

Factor not authorized to pledge or mortgage. — Factor for the sale of goods is a general agent for that purpose and cannot, as against the owner, pledge or mortgage them to a third party to secure advances made on the agent's own account. First Nat'l Bank v. Charles Nelson & Co., 38 Ga. 391, 1868 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1868).

Drawing bills of exchange. — According to the evidence the drawing of foreign bills of exchange by the defendants, as the factors and shipping agents of the plaintiff, was the necessary and usual means to enable the defendants, as such agents, to obtain the proceeds of plaintiff's cotton in sterling bills. Jones v. J.W. Lathrop & Co., 44 Ga. 398, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 393 (1871).

Cotton factor's agent may make terms for shipments. — Cotton factor's agent, who is authorized to solicit shipments of cotton to the agent's principal, is a general agent for that purpose, and is presumptively authorized to make terms upon which the cotton shall be shipped, received, stored, sold, and handled by the agent's principal. John Flannery Co. v. James, 13 Ga. App. 425, 79 S.E. 912, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 184 (1913).

Authority to sell includes authority to agree on price. — If one is appointed to sell a particular article to a particular person, this confers on the special agent authority to agree on the price; otherwise, the appointment is illusory, and not real. Bass Dry Goods Co. v. Granite City Mfg. Co., 119 Ga. 124, 45 S.E. 980, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1903); Hopkins & Co. v. Armour & Co., 8 Ga. App. 442, 69 S.E. 580, 1910 Ga. App. LEXIS 213 (1910).

Authority to collect. — Agency to sell does not necessarily carry with it an agency to collect. Walton Guano Co. v. McCall, 111 Ga. 114, 36 S.E. 469, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 494 (1900).

Agency to sell does not necessarily or impliedly or incidentally carry with it the authority to collect. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

Credit manager does not have authority to accept order. — Acceptance of an order for goods by the credit manager of a corporation is not binding on the corporation when the credit manager neither has authority to make sales nor was held out by the corporation as having such authority, but the authority to sell was vested in another agent; and the deposit with a traveling sales person of a check as part payment on a proposed sale of goods, at the instance of the credit manager, which check was not accepted by the corporation but was returned to the drawee of the check, would not constitute part payment to the corporation. W. & J. Sloane Selling Agents, Inc. v. Tampa Chair & Table Co., 53 Ga. App. 609, 186 S.E. 761, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Collecting agency has authority to employ attorney to sue. — If one holding a promissory note against another with a claim on certain property as security sends the note and papers evidencing the claims to a collecting agency, a power is created in the latter to procure the services of an attorney, if necessary, to collect the note and enforce the security. Strong v. West, 110 Ga. 382, 35 S.E. 693, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 447 (1900).

A collecting agency empowered by a patron to collect a claim is authorized to employ an attorney to institute suit on the claim in behalf of the client; the patron becomes the attorney's client, and for the attorney's conduct the patron is as much responsible as if the patron had employed the attorney in the first instance instead of engaging the services of the collecting agency. Chamberlin Co. of Am. v. Mays, 96 Ga. App. 755, 101 S.E.2d 728, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 684 (1957).

If an Atlanta collecting agency was employed by the defendant to collect a debt, through the medium of a Detroit collecting agency empowered under the terms of a contract with the defendant to sue the claim, to engage the services of the Atlanta agency, and to transmit to the latter the authority conferred upon it, the Atlanta agency was vested with authority to retain a lawyer to handle the litigation necessary to collect the debt because the agency could not institute a suit on behalf of the defendant. Chamberlin Co. of Am. v. Mays, 96 Ga. App. 755, 101 S.E.2d 728, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 684 (1957).

Authority to collect does not authorize receiving anything except cash. — As a general rule, a special agent or attorney to collect a debt is not authorized to receive anything as a payment thereon except actual cash. Walton Guano Co. v. McCall, 111 Ga. 114, 36 S.E. 469, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 494 (1900); Quillan & Bros. v. Wales Adding Mach. Co., 34 Ga. App. 135, 128 S.E. 698, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 73 (1925).

Authority to accept less than full amount. — Presumptively, an agent is hired to make contracts and not to cancel contracts, and a power to collect money under a contract will not raise a presumption of authority in the agent to vary the terms and accept less than the agreed price. International Correspondence Sch. v. Wright, 47 Ga. App. 861, 171 S.E. 831, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 698 (1933).

If there is no apparent limitation on an attorney's authority, an attorney at law who has had placed with the attorney an account for collection cannot accept from the debtor, in full accord and satisfaction, anything less than the full amount of the claim, and that in cash; nevertheless, authority to effectuate the collection gives to the attorney implied authority to do everything usual and immediately necessary to accomplish the main purpose of the agency, that of making the collection "in cash." John Bean Mfg. Co. v. Citizens Bank, 60 Ga. App. 615, 4 S.E.2d 924, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 106 (1939), overruled, Tifton Bank & Trust Co. v. Knight's Furniture Co., 215 Ga. App. 471, 452 S.E.2d 219, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1274 (1994).

Authority to endorse check received for full amount. — Attorney with whom has been placed an account for collection, with no limitation on the attorney's authority as to the manner of collection, on receipt from the debtor of a check in the full amount of the claim and payable to the order of the client, has, without any enabling or permissive authority from the client, authority to endorse the name of the client personally as attorney, in order effectually to liquidate the collection; nor is the rule modified should the attorney, in lieu of taking manual possession of the money, deposit the check either to the attorney's individual account or to the attorney's account as attorney. John Bean Mfg. Co. v. Citizens Bank, 60 Ga. App. 615, 4 S.E.2d 924, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 106 (1939), overruled, Tifton Bank & Trust Co. v. Knight's Furniture Co., 215 Ga. App. 471, 452 S.E.2d 219, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1274 (1994).

Action of attorneys with whom a claim was placed for collection in endorsing client's name on check in settlement thereof, by themselves as attorneys, and depositing the check to the attorney's credit, did not constitute the crime of forgery, as the attorneys had authority to so endorse the check; hence, the bank was within the bank's right and authority when the bank cashed or paid the check by deposit to the credit of the attorneys making the collection, and would not, under the facts, be liable to the client of the attorneys, to whom the attorneys may have defaulted in remittance of the proceeds arising from the collection. John Bean Mfg. Co. v. Citizens Bank, 60 Ga. App. 615, 4 S.E.2d 924, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 106 (1939), overruled, Tifton Bank & Trust Co. v. Knight's Furniture Co., 215 Ga. App. 471, 452 S.E.2d 219, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1274 (1994).

Authority to endorse check received if attorney has interest in collection. — Attorney having an interest in a collection in the nature of a commission for services in effectuating the collection has authority to endorse the name of the attorney's client to whom the check is made payable, individually as attorney, in order that the attorney may deduct the commission fees before remittance of the collection to the client. John Bean Mfg. Co. v. Citizens Bank, 60 Ga. App. 615, 4 S.E.2d 924, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 106 (1939), overruled, Tifton Bank & Trust Co. v. Knight's Furniture Co., 215 Ga. App. 471, 452 S.E.2d 219, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1274 (1994).

Authority to foreclose security deed includes authority to execute required quitclaim reconveyance. — If the holder of the legal title under a deed to secure debt executed a power of attorney empowering the holder's named attorney in fact to bring suit on papers comprising the deed and evidence of debt, to cause the property to be sold under levy after judgment, and to bid in the property in the name of such holder of the legal title, this authority included, as a "necessary and usual means" of selling the property, the right to execute the quitclaim reconveyance to the debtor, record of which in the clerk's office is made under former Code 1933, §§ 39-202 and 67-1501, a prerequisite to a valid levy and sale of the property. Johnson v. Johnson, 184 Ga. 783, 193 S.E. 345, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 636 (1937).

Power to take bond does not include power to agree to conditions. — Ordinary (now judge of the probate court) who was appointed by the Governor to take a bond had no authority to consent to any stipulations or conditions, and any such consent would be in excess of the power conferred upon the ordinary. Lewis v. Board of Comm'rs, 70 Ga. 486, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 363 (1883).

Authority to make minor repairs necessarily includes the authority to employ others to do the work. Oconee County v. Rowland, 107 Ga. App. 108, 129 S.E.2d 373, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 584 (1962).

Delivery person may obtain assistance of another in changing tire. — If a servant is employed to take and deliver goods of the master in its truck to customers in another city, and after their delivery to return the truck to the master's place of business, and while the servant is thus en route, a blowout of a heavy tire occurs, the servant, in the absence of contrary instructions, is authorized, so far as reasonably necessary, to obtain the assistance of another in the furnishing of needful light for the work of changing the tire, when the blowout occurs at night. McGhee v. Kingman & Everett, Inc., 49 Ga. App. 767, 176 S.E. 55, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 554 (1934).

Foreperson of construction gang has no authority to hire teams. — Foreperson of a construction gang is a special agent with limited powers and has no authority to hire teams for a definite term. Langston v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., 6 Ga. App. 833, 65 S.E. 1094, 1909 Ga. App. LEXIS 492 (1909).

Conditions which enter into validity of contract of insurance at its inception may be waived by the agent, and are waived if so intended, although they remain in the policy when delivered, and limitations therein upon the authority of the agent to waive such conditions otherwise than in writing attached to or endorsed upon the policy are treated as referring to waivers made subsequently to the issuance of the policy. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Thompson, 51 Ga. App. 625, 181 S.E. 101, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 424 (1935).

Agent is without authority to continue cancelled policy. — If authority of agent is limited by terms of group insurance policy and such policy is cancelled, such agent is without authority to continue such cancelled policy in force, unless such continuation is accepted and agreed to by the officers of the company empowered so to do, or there has been an acceptance by the company of payments of premiums made for such purpose, and such agent is without authority to constitute the employer in group insurance policy the agent of the company to receive premiums for it. Lancaster v. Travelers Ins. Co., 54 Ga. App. 718, 189 S.E. 79, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 739 (1936).

2. Apparent Authority

Principal bound by agent's apparent authority. — Principal is bound when the agent lacks express authority but is possessed of apparent authority. Home Materials, Inc. v. Auto Owners Ins. Co., 250 Ga. 599, 300 S.E.2d 139, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 586 (1983).

"Apparent authority" defined. — "Apparent authority" is power which results from acts that appear to third persons to be authorized by the principal. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

"Apparent authority" is the power to affect the legal relations of another person by transactions with third persons, professedly as agent for the other, arising from and in accordance with the other's manifestations to such third persons. Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980).

Basis of apparent authority doctrine. — Doctrine of apparent authority is based upon the principle that when one of two innocent parties must suffer from the wrongful act of another, the loss should fall upon the one who, by that person's conduct created the circumstances which enabled the third party to perpetuate the wrong and cause the loss. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

Principal's conduct may establish agent's authority. — Authority of an agent in a particular instance may be established by the principal's conduct and course of dealing. Home Materials, Inc. v. Auto Owners Ins. Co., 250 Ga. 599, 300 S.E.2d 139, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 586 (1983).

Agent is presumed to have authority within apparent scope. — If a person imposes upon another the duties and responsibilities involving the management and control of a matter of business, the agent will be presumed to have authority to represent the agent's employer in any matter within the scope of the agent's apparent authority. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Davis, 42 Ga. App. 49, 155 S.E. 105, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 234 (1930).

Principal is bound to the extent of the apparent authority the principal has conferred upon the agent, and not by the actual or express authority, when that differs from the apparent authority. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Davis, 42 Ga. App. 49, 155 S.E. 105, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 234 (1930).

In the case of a general agency, the principal is bound by the acts of an agent within the apparent scope of the agent's authority. Bacon v. Dannenberg Co., 24 Ga. App. 540, 101 S.E. 699, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 909 (1919); Carmichael v. Silvers, 90 Ga. App. 804, 84 S.E.2d 668, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 819 (1954).

General agent may bind the agent's principal with respect to all matters within the apparent scope of the agent's authority. Hutson v. Prudential Ins. Co., 122 Ga. 847, 50 S.E. 1000, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 351 (1905).

Special agent. — If one holds another out as one's special agent, the principal is bound by the agent's apparent authority to do the particular thing thus authorized, as well as to do any and all things usual and necessary and to employ all usual and necessary means as may be reasonably required, in the due, proper, and ordinary performance of the particular purpose of the appointment. Wise v. Mohawk Rubber Co., 23 Ga. App. 255, 98 S.E. 100, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 65 (1919); Callaway v. Barmore, 32 Ga. App. 665, 124 S.E. 382, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 587 (1924); Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Davis, 42 Ga. App. 49, 155 S.E. 105, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 234 (1930).

If principal's words or conduct cause third person to believe principal consents. — Apparent authority to do an act is created as to a third person by written or spoken words or any other conduct of the principal which, reasonably interpreted, causes the third person to believe that the principal consents to have the act done on the principal's behalf by the person purporting to act for the principal. Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980).

Estoppel against principal to deny authority. — Under the doctrine of apparent authority, an estoppel is worked against the principal to deny that there was authority, and the principal will not be permitted to prove that the agent's authority was, in fact, less extensive than that with which the agent was apparently clothed. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

Establishing authority of agent. — Authority of an agent in a particular instance may be established by the habits, conduct, and course of business of the principal. If one thus holds out to another that one's agent possesses certain authority and this induces or influences others in their dealings with the agent, the principal is estopped to deny that the agent has the authority which, as reasonably deducible from the conduct of the principal, the agent apparently possesses. Germain Co. v. Bank of Camden County, 14 Ga. App. 88, 80 S.E. 302, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 421 (1913); Bacon v. Dannenberg Co., 24 Ga. App. 540, 101 S.E. 699, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 909 (1919); Atlanta Biltmore Hotel Corp. v. Martell, 118 Ga. App. 172, 162 S.E.2d 815, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1342 (1968); Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975); Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980).

Justified reliance required for estoppel. — In order for estoppel under the doctrine of apparent authority to occur it must appear that the third party dealt with the agent in reliance upon the authority which the principal has apparently conferred upon the agent, and it must appear that a person of ordinary prudence conversant with business usages and the nature of the particular business is justified in assuming that such agent had authority to perform a particular act and deals with the agent upon that assumption. Interstate Fin. Corp. v. Appel, 134 Ga. App. 407, 215 S.E.2d 19, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2025 (1975).

When an alleged principal, by acts or conduct, has knowingly caused or permitted another to appear as the principal's agent, the principal will be estopped to deny the agency, to the injury of third persons who have in good faith and in reasonable prudence dealt with the apparent agent on the faith of the relation. Allen & Bean, Inc. v. American Bankers Ins. Co., 153 Ga. App. 617, 266 S.E.2d 295, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1924 (1980).

An estoppel is worked against the principal to deny authority if it appears that the third party dealt with the agent in reliance upon the authority apparently conferred upon it by the principal. Home Materials, Inc. v. Auto Owners Ins. Co., 250 Ga. 599, 300 S.E.2d 139, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 586 (1983).

Authority of an agent in a particular instance need not be proved by express contract. Germain Co. v. Bank of Camden County, 14 Ga. App. 88, 80 S.E. 302, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 421 (1913); Atlanta Biltmore Hotel Corp. v. Martell, 118 Ga. App. 172, 162 S.E.2d 815, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1342 (1968); Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980).

Authority to sell does not include apparent authority to release debtor. — Agent or representative whose duties are merely to sell goods for a principal and collect therefor has no apparent authority under this section to release anyone from an obligation due to the principal. Morgan v. Weil Co., 31 Ga. App. 611, 121 S.E. 703, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 96 (1924).

Authority to collect and adjust apparently includes authority to release. — If an agent with authority from a principal to "adjust" and "collect" accounts is sent by the principal to collect an alleged indebtedness due the principal under a particular contract, which contract contemplates that the debtor might under some circumstances turn back to the creditor goods purchased from the creditor under the contract, one is a general agent for the purpose of adjusting and collecting the indebtedness, and it is apparently within the scope of one's authority to accept from purchasers of the debtor goods of the character bought by the debtor under the contract from the creditor, the agent's principal, and also to release the debtor from further liability under the contract, and also to accept payment in release of all liability under the contract of guaranty from the guarantor; and, although the agent may not have actually possessed such authority, a settlement by way of release, so made with one of the guarantors, without knowledge of such limitation, is binding upon the agent's principal. Rawleigh Co. v. Royal, 30 Ga. App. 706, 119 S.E. 339, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 635 (1923).

Authority to endorse check includes apparent authority to deposit proceeds. — If an attorney has authority to endorse a check payable to the attorney's client, the attorney has apparent authority to deposit the proceeds thereof either in the attorney's individual account or the attorney's account as attorney. John Bean Mfg. Co. v. Citizens Bank, 60 Ga. App. 615, 4 S.E.2d 924, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 106 (1939), overruled, Tifton Bank & Trust Co. v. Knight's Furniture Co., 215 Ga. App. 471, 452 S.E.2d 219, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1274 (1994).

Traveling salesperson apparently has authority to transmit instructions as to insuring goods. — Since it is a custom of wholesalers to effect insurance on goods shipped by the wholesalers, when requested or instructed so to do by their customers, an ordinary drummer or commercial traveler, who by the terms of employment is authorized to receive and transmit orders but not to close contracts, has apparent authority to receive and transmit instructions as to effecting insurance on goods ordered through the drummer or commercial traveler. McDonald v. Pearre Bros. & Co., 5 Ga. App. 130, 62 S.E. 830, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 34 (1908).

Real estate sales person apparently has authority to guarantee purchaser's lease will be cancelled. — Person employed by a real estate broker to act for the person as a "real estate salesman," whose duties are to obtain listings of real estate for sale, "to make sales of real estate just in a general way," and who has "the privilege of making transactions generally," is a general agent for the broker to procure purchasers for real estate listed with the broker for sale; and it is within the scope of the apparent authority of the sales person as the agent of the broker, in negotiating sales of real estate, to bind the principal by an obligation to the purchaser made for the purpose of inducing the purchaser to buy the real estate, and as a part of the consideration moving to the contract for the purchase of the real estate, to guarantee to obtain for the purchaser a cancellation of a lease which the purchaser has as a tenant of the premises other than that which are the subject matter of the sale. J.J. Williamson & Sons v. Smith, 47 Ga. App. 495, 170 S.E. 709, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 705 (1933).

Although it was undisputed that the patient did not sign the arbitration agreement personally, the operator asserted that the patient's spouse was the patient's agent and, therefore, had the authority to bind the patient to the agreement by signing the spouse's name; in Georgia, an agency relationship was created whenever one person, expressly or by implication, authorized another to act for the person or subsequently ratified the acts of another in the person's behalf, O.C.G.A. § 10-6-1, and because the operator had not proven, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the patient expressly authorized the operator to act on the patient's behalf in signing the arbitration agreement, an agency relationship was created, if at all, by implication. Under Georgia law, the agent's authority shall be construed to include all necessary and usual means for effectually executing it. O.C.G.A. § 10-6-50, and even assuming that the version of events put forth by the operator's witnesses was true, the operator failed to meet the operator's burden of proving that the patient's spouse had actual or apparent authority to bind the patient by signing the arbitration agreement; accordingly, the arbitration agreement was not enforceable against the patient pursuant to 9 U.S.C. § 4, and the operator's motion to compel arbitration and stay discovery was denied. Gentry v. Beverly Enterprises-Georgia Inc., 714 F. Supp. 2d 1225, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 127194 (S.D. Ga. 2009).

Instructions or Limitations on Authority

1. Generally

Authority of attorney of record is fixed by contract and client's instructions. — Attorney of record is a party's agent in the prosecution of a legal action, and the attorney's authority is determined by the terms of the attorney's contract of employment and the instructions given by the client. Davis v. Davis, 245 Ga. 233, 264 S.E.2d 177, 1980 Ga. LEXIS 753 (1980).

Special agent, like broker, derives power from instructions. — Under former Code 1873, §§ 2184 and 2196, a broker was a special agent and derived the broker's power and authority to bind the principal from the instruction given to the broker by the principal. Clark & Nunnally v. Cumming & Co., 77 Ga. 64, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 287 (1886).

Special agent cannot bind principal beyond known limitations. — One who deals with a special agent, knowing at the time the limits within which the agent, under the terms of the agent's appointment, has authority to bind the agent's principal, is bound to act with reference to this knowledge, and cannot hold the principal liable for loss occasioned by acts of the agent in excess of, or contrary to, the latter's authority in the premises. Littleton & Lamar v. Loan, Mercantile & Stock Ass'n, 97 Ga. 172, 25 S.E. 826, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 307 (1895); Quillan & Bros. v. Wales Adding Mach. Co., 34 Ga. App. 135, 128 S.E. 698, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 73 (1925).

In special agencies, the rule is that if the agent exceeds the special and limited authority conferred upon the agent, the principal is not bound by the agent's acts, but they are mere nullities, so far as the principal is concerned, unless the principal has held the agent out as possessing a more enlarged authority. Comer v. Foley, 98 Ga. 678, 25 S.E. 671, 1896 Ga. LEXIS 120 (1896); W. & J. Sloane Selling Agents, Inc. v. Tampa Chair & Table Co., 53 Ga. App. 609, 186 S.E. 761, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Principal is never bound when third person knows authority was exceeded. — A principal is not bound by the acts of an agent when those acts are beyond the scope of the agent's authority and the person dealing with the agent knows thereof. Boles v. Hartsfield Co., 50 Ga. App. 442, 178 S.E. 416, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 354 (1935).

If limitation on authority of agent is contained in an application for insurance, attached to and made part of the policy, and the agent was therefore not acting within the apparent scope of the agent's authority in waiving a breach of condition existing when the policy was issued, the insurer is not bound by the alleged waiver or by any estoppel. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Thompson, 51 Ga. App. 625, 181 S.E. 101, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 424 (1935).

Unknown, private instructions cannot affect third persons. — Private instructions or limitations not known to persons dealing with an agent who assumes to act within the apparent scope of the agent's authority cannot affect the third parties. Hutson v. Prudential Ins. Co., 122 Ga. 847, 50 S.E. 1000, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 351 (1905); Hopkins & Co. v. Armour & Co., 8 Ga. App. 442, 69 S.E. 580, 1910 Ga. App. LEXIS 213 (1910).

Unknown private instructions in case of general agent. — Private instructions or limitations not known to persons dealing with a general agent are not binding upon such persons. Bacon v. Dannenberg Co., 24 Ga. App. 540, 101 S.E. 699, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 909 (1919).

If it appears, without contradiction, that the agent had entire control of all the business affairs of the agent's sister, the landlord, including the management and control of the farm, the agent must be held to have been a general agent, and the agent's alleged agreement would be binding on the principal as landlord. This would be true despite any private instructions or limitations upon the agent's authority not known to the person dealing with the agent as a general agent. Nelson v. Fuqua, 46 Ga. App. 754, 169 S.E. 206, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 230 (1933).

If a clerk is left in charge of a mercantile establishment by the proprietors thereof in the proprietors' absence, with authority to conduct the business and to buy goods upon the credit of the proprietors, and with authority to conduct all the correspondence of the business, one is a general agent of the proprietors for the supervision of the establishment and the buying on their credit of goods of a mercantile character and suitable to the business conducted by the proprietors, and since one is such a general agent, limitations upon one's authority as to the amount and character of the purchases, which are unknown to persons dealing with the agent, do not affect them. Mason v. Rice, 47 Ga. App. 502, 170 S.E. 829, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 534 (1933).

Unknown private instructions in case of special agent not exceeding necessary and usual means. — Although the second sentence of this section mentions only general agents, so long as a special agent does not go beyond the necessary and usual means for executing the special agent's agency, the special agent's powers with reference to the particular undertaking are in the nature of those of a general agent to the extent that private instructions or limitations not known to the persons dealing with the special agent cannot affect the other parties. Callaway v. Barmore, 32 Ga. App. 665, 124 S.E. 382, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 587 (1924); Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Davis, 42 Ga. App. 49, 155 S.E. 105, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 234 (1930).

Secret instructions in case of special agent to sell who fixes price. — When, without naming the terms of sale, the principal, in writing authorizes a special agent to sell personal property to a particular person, the authority of such special agent will be construed to include all necessary and usual means for effectually executing it, and such agent has authority to fix the price of the goods, and the purchaser is not bound to take notice of secret instructions given by the principal. Bass Dry Goods Co. v. Granite City Mfg. Co., 119 Ga. 124, 45 S.E. 980, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1903).

Secret instructions do not alter general rule as to authority to use usual means. — Rule that whenever an agent is empowered to do a particular thing, the agent is also empowered to use all lawful means to accomplish the thing, would not be altered by any secret instructions given to the agent by the principal, unknown to a third person. John Flannery Co. v. James, 13 Ga. App. 425, 79 S.E. 912, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 184 (1913).

2. Inquiring as to Instructions

Third persons must inquire as to special agent's authority. — Persons dealing with an agent appointed for a particular purpose are bound to inquire as to the extent of the agent's authority. Baldwin Fertilizer Co. v. Thompson & McAlister, 106 Ga. 480, 32 S.E. 591, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 708 (1899); Harris Loan Co. v. Elliott & Hatch Book Typewriter Co., 110 Ga. 302, 34 S.E. 1003, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 382 (1900); Carter v. Pembroke Nat'l Bank, 11 Ga. App. 479, 75 S.E. 824, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 64 (1912); Germain Co. v. Bank of Camden County, 14 Ga. App. 88, 80 S.E. 302, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 421 (1913); Quillan & Bros. v. Wales Adding Mach. Co., 34 Ga. App. 135, 128 S.E. 698, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 73 (1925); Nalley v. Whitaker, 102 Ga. App. 230, 115 S.E.2d 790, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 594 (1960); Addley v. Beizer, 205 Ga. App. 714, 423 S.E.2d 398, 1992 Ga. App. LEXIS 1397 (1992); Continental Ins. Co. v. Gazaway, 216 Ga. App. 125, 453 S.E.2d 91, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1433 (1994), cert. denied, No. S95C0742, 1995 Ga. LEXIS 562 (Ga. Apr. 14, 1995); Turnipseed v. Jaje, 267 Ga. 320, 477 S.E.2d 101, 1996 Ga. LEXIS 876 (1996).

Even though buyers had no actual knowledge of limitations on the agent's authority to make representations on the quality of the carpet, the buyers were charged with a duty to discover the extent of the agent's authority. Bruce v. Calhoun First Nat'l Bank, 134 Ga. App. 790, 216 S.E.2d 622, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2171 (1975).

Third persons must take notice of special agent's instructions. — Every man deals with a special agent at the man's peril and is bound to take notice of the agent's instructions. First Nat'l Bank v. Charles Nelson & Co., 38 Ga. 391, 1868 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1868).

Those who deal with a special agent are charged with notice of the extent of the latter's authority, and if such agent makes a settlement not within the scope of the agency, the settlement is not binding on the principal. Baldwin Fertilizer Co. v. Thompson & McAlister, 106 Ga. 480, 32 S.E. 591, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 708 (1899).

One entering into a 15-year lease contract executed by an agent in behalf of a purported principal is charged with notice that the agent's authority to execute the lease is required by law to be in writing and is under a duty to inquire and ascertain whether such written authority exists and what the limits of the authority are, and such person is guilty of negligence in failing to make such an inquiry. Nalley v. Whitaker, 102 Ga. App. 230, 115 S.E.2d 790, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 594 (1960); Union Camp Corp. v. Dyal, 460 F.2d 678, 1972 U.S. App. LEXIS 10518 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 849, 93 S. Ct. 56, 34 L. Ed. 2d 90, 1972 U.S. LEXIS 1323 (1972).

Third persons must take notice of special agent's instructions only if included in examined authority. — Even if a letter is treated as creating a special agency to sell particular goods to a particular person, the purchaser was only required to examine the authority and was not bound by private instructions not included in the writing. Bass Dry Goods Co. v. Granite City Mfg. Co., 119 Ga. 124, 45 S.E. 980, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1903); Hopkins & Co. v. Armour & Co., 8 Ga. App. 442, 69 S.E. 580, 1910 Ga. App. LEXIS 213 (1910).

Failure to inquire bars recovery from agent for misrepresenting authority. — One who enters into a 15-year lease contract executed by an agent in behalf of a purported principal without making due inquiry into the agent's authority is precluded from recovering damages from the agent either on the ground that the agent contractually misrepresented the fact that the agent had authority, either expressly or impliedly, or on the ground that the agent fraudulently misrepresented that the agent had authority to execute the lease as agent. Nalley v. Whitaker, 102 Ga. App. 230, 115 S.E.2d 790, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 594 (1960).

Rule applies to guardian. — Since a guardian is in effect a special agent of the law to manage the estate of a person non sui juris, it is incumbent upon all persons dealing with the guardian/special agent to examine the agent's authority. Georgia R.R. Bank & Trust Co. v. Liberty Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 180 Ga. 4, 177 S.E. 803, 1934 Ga. LEXIS 443 (1934).

Railroad ticket agent. — Purchaser of railroad accommodations from a ticket agent was not required to communicate with the principal and verify the agent's actual authority. Bryant v. Atlantic C. L. R.R., 19 Ga. App. 536, 91 S.E. 1047, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 225 (1917).

Agents for indemnity company issuing unusual bond. — If a person dealing with agents, having a written power of attorney to execute bonds, has had experience in dealing with indemnity companies and knows that the bond is an unusual obligation for an indemnity company to write and is outside the ordinary range of the business of indemnity companies, and that the bond is not executed on the regular blank form used by the indemnity company, and is not executed in the office of indemnity company or in office of its authorized agents, but is executed in office of the person dealing with agents, this does not constitute knowledge of facts sufficient to put the person dealing with agents, as a prudent person, on inquiry as to the lack of the agents' authority to bind indemnity company. Independence Indem. Co. v. Industrial Realty Co., 46 Ga. App. 637, 168 S.E. 122, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 157, aff'd, 178 Ga. 45, 172 S.E. 38, 1933 Ga. LEXIS 12 (1933).

Principal may waive objection to want of authority. — Person who deals with a special agent must examine the special agent's authority and determine at the person's own risk whether the particular act to be done is within such authority, but this does not prevent the principal from waiving the principal's right to object to the agent's want of authority. Germain Co. v. Bank of Camden County, 14 Ga. App. 88, 80 S.E. 302, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 421 (1913).

General Consideration

Section amplifies § 10-6-56. — Former Code 1933, § 4-302 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-6-51), providing that the principal shall be bound by all the acts of the principal's agent within the scope of the principal's authority, was a mere amplification of former Code 1933, § 4-307 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-6-56), and the same was true of former Code 1933, § 4-315 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-6-64), insofar as it referred to scope of authority. Grant v. Hart, 197 Ga. 662, 30 S.E.2d 271, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 315 (1944).

Authority to do things necessary to accomplish objective. — Agent's authority generally includes authority to do everything necessary for accomplishment of main objective. Maggioni v. L.P. Maggioni & Co., 159 Ga. App. 463, 283 S.E.2d 682, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2647 (1981).

Sufficiency of allegations of agency to bind principal. — Since the plaintiff's pleading failed to show that the alleged agent of the defendant bank was a general agent, or that the agent was a special agent with authority to bind the bank, but showed that the sheriff had dealt with the person as an agent of the bank, the pleading failed to show that the person had any power or authority to enter into any contract binding the defendant in the manner alleged. First Joint Stock Land Bank v. Pitts, 48 Ga. App. 805, 173 S.E. 732, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 205 (1934).

One way of alleging agency so as to bind the principal for the acts of the agent is to allege that the act was committed by the agent as agent for the principal and within the scope of the agent's employment. Harris v. Barnes, 100 Ga. App. 412, 111 S.E.2d 147, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 633 (1959).

Allegations showing ratification. — Since the alleged acts of a finance company regarding an automobile sale contract included their acceptance of the benefits in the form of a note, conditional sale contract, payments on the note, and the insurance premium, this indicated a ratification of the agreement made by the president of the automobile dealership that assigned the contract to the finance company that credit life insurance would be procured, and showed such part performance on the part of the conditional buyer as to estop the finance company from attacking the agreement as oral and in conflict with any written provisions. In this situation, there appeared to be no conflict present, but rather an explanation of any ambiguity and a showing as to what constituted the entire contract. Consumers Fin. Corp. v. Lamb, 217 Ga. 359, 122 S.E.2d 101, 1961 Ga. LEXIS 454 (1961).

Admission of agency in answer binding on defendant. — Since the plaintiff alleged that a certain individual was the agent of defendant company, and the answer admitted it, and no amendment was made striking that part of the answer, and the trial proceeded on the only issue left, to wit, whether the defendant had complied with the defendant's contract, this admission was binding on defendant notwithstanding testimony admitted without objection that the individual bought an option on the property and transferred the option to the defendant. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Agency cannot be proved by evidence of mere declarations of the alleged agent. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Agent's declarations are admissible with other evidence. — When accompanied by other evidence as to the conduct of the person in the character of agent and acceptance by the alleged principal of the fruits of the agency, declarations of the alleged agent are admissible in evidence. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Acts of agents of defendant may be proved to prove waiver by defendant. — Act of fire insurance agents in waiving the necessity of filing proof of loss would be the act or conduct of the defendant, and accordingly the court did not err in admitting in evidence testimony of certain witnesses, over objection of the defendant, as to the acts and conduct of such agents, for the purpose of showing waiver of proof of loss. Concordia Fire Ins. Co. v. Hardman, 63 Ga. App. 320, 11 S.E.2d 79, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 84 (1940).

Whether acts within scope of employment question of fact to be proved. — Fact that one or more employees were acting within the scope of their employment was a fact to be proved on the trial by competent evidence, if the same was not admitted by the defendants in their answer, and could be proved either by showing specific authority or it might be inferred from all of the facts and circumstances of the case. Duchess Chenilles, Inc. v. Masters, 84 Ga. App. 822, 67 S.E.2d 600, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 805 (1951).

Contract admissible if agent's authority or ratification by principal inferable. — Court did not err in admitting the contract in evidence since the jury was authorized to infer that the contract was signed by an agent held out by a partnership as having authority or ratified by the conduct of a partner during the existence of the partnership. Hardin v. Atlanta Gas Light Co., 71 Ga. App. 63, 30 S.E.2d 121, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 280 (1944).

When Principal Bound

1. Generally

Principal responsible for acts in line of duty. — What an agent does in the line of duty devolved upon the agent by the agent's superior will make the latter responsible, under this section and § 10-6-60. Maddox & Rucker v. Cunningham, 68 Ga. 431, 1882 Ga. LEXIS 24 (1882).

Principal is bound by the authorized acts of the principal's agent as effectively as if the principal had been present and personally committed the act. Ford Motor Co. v. Abercrombie, 207 Ga. 464, 62 S.E.2d 209, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 636 (1950).

Principal responsible for acts of one partner if partnership is agent. — If an owner of property employs a partnership as the owner's agent to sell the property, the owner will be bound by the acts and representations of each of the partners within the real or apparent scope of the agency, although the owner may have dealt with the partnership through one of the partners only. Lancaster v. Neal, 41 Ga. App. 721, 154 S.E. 386, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 1072 (1930).

If agency disclosed, principal is maker of authorized instrument. — If in the body or on the face of the instrument the agency is distinctly specified and the principal indicated, and the contract is substantially in the name of such principal, the latter, and not the agent, will be regarded as the maker of the instrument, though the instrument is signed by the agent only, provided, of course, the agent has authority to bind the principal. McRitchie v. Atlanta Trust Co., 170 Ga. 296, 152 S.E. 834, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 443 (1930).

Master's property is subject to lien for labor and materials furnished through servant. — Since the relationship of master and servant existed between an owner and builder, the master became liable for the acts of the servant as the master's agent within the scope of the agent's employment and therefore was subject to a personal judgment, and the master's property was subject to liens for the labor and materials which had been furnished to the master through such servant and of which the master had received the benefit. Christian v. Bremer, 199 Ga. 285, 34 S.E.2d 40, 1945 Ga. LEXIS 303 (1945).

Members of a union are chargeable with the act of the officers of the union in allowing a strike in another plant since the officers were clearly acting within the scope of their authority as defined by the union's constitution. Ford Motor Co. v. Abercrombie, 207 Ga. 464, 62 S.E.2d 209, 1950 Ga. LEXIS 636 (1950).

Principal bound without knowledge, if acts were authorized. — Authorized acts of the agent are binding upon the principal, although the principal has no knowledge thereof. Grant v. Hart, 197 Ga. 662, 30 S.E.2d 271, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 315 (1944).

Principal is bound when the agent lacks express authority but is possessed of apparent authority. Home Materials, Inc. v. Auto Owners Ins. Co., 250 Ga. 599, 300 S.E.2d 139, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 586 (1983).

Principal estopped from denying agent's apparent authority. — If agent has certain authority from principal by reason of principal's conduct and course of dealing as well as express agency contract, and thus induces another to deal with the principal's agent as such, the agent's principal is estopped to deny that the agent has such authority which, as reasonably appears or is deducible from the conduct of the parties (principal and agent), agent apparently has. Hutsell v. U.S. Life Title Ins. Co., 157 Ga. App. 845, 278 S.E.2d 730, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2032 (1981).

Estoppel is worked against the principal to deny authority if it appears that the third party dealt with the agent in reliance upon the authority apparently conferred upon the agent by the principal. Home Materials, Inc. v. Auto Owners Ins. Co., 250 Ga. 599, 300 S.E.2d 139, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 586 (1983).

Principal bound even though agent is also agent for other party. — Insurer may not clothe an agent with apparent authority to enter into an insurance contract and then escape the usual effects of estoppel because the agent is also the agent of the insured party. Home Materials, Inc. v. Auto Owners Ins. Co., 250 Ga. 599, 300 S.E.2d 139, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 586 (1983).

Principal is responsible for the torts of the principal's agent when the agent is acting on behalf of the principal. DeDaviess v. U-Haul Co., 154 Ga. App. 124, 267 S.E.2d 633, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2068 (1980).

Agent's absconding with an appearance bond fee did not affect the validity of the bond, and forfeiture was authorized when the principal failed to appear. First Joint Stock Land Bank v. Pitts, 48 Ga. App. 805, 173 S.E. 732, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 205 (1934).

Principal may be criminally liable for agent's act. — Under statutes positively forbidding certain acts irrespective of the motive or intent of the actor, a principal or master may be criminally liable for the principal's agent's or employee's act done within the scope of the agent's employment. Lunsford v. State, 72 Ga. App. 700, 34 S.E.2d 731, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 676 (1945).

Principal only bound by acts within scope of agent's authority. — Principal is only bound for the acts of the agent within the scope of the agent's authority. Baldwin Fertilizer Co. v. Thompson & McAlister, 106 Ga. 480, 32 S.E. 591, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 708 (1899).

General agent may bind the agent's principal by any act within the scope of the agent's authority; the agent may do all acts proper for the accomplishment of the end or such as are usual in matters of this kind, but the agent cannot bind the principal by an act outside of the object of the agent's appointment. First Nat'l Bank v. Charles Nelson & Co., 38 Ga. 391, 1868 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1868).

Unpublished decision: Fact that the insured sent in a late payment after an agent allegedly told the insured that the insurer would provide retroactive coverage was of no issue; the late payment did not necessarily evidence a belief on the insured's part that the agent had the authority to provide retroactive coverage.

Even if the insured truly believed the agent had the authority to provide retroactive coverage, it was not a reasonable belief. Rutland v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 392 Fed. Appx. 721, 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 16744 (11th Cir. 2010).

Undisclosed principal. — Person cannot be held liable as an undisclosed principal unless the alleged agent who made the contract had actual authority as an agent to bind the principal. Morgan v. Georgia Paving & Constr. Co., 40 Ga. App. 335, 149 S.E. 426, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 153 (1929).

Principal not bound by acts outside scope. — Principal is not bound by the acts of the agent outside the scope of the agent's authority. First Joint Stock Land Bank v. Pitts, 48 Ga. App. 805, 173 S.E. 732, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 205 (1934).

Limitation on scope known to third person. — Principal is not bound by the acts of an agent when these acts are beyond the scope of the agent's authority and the person dealing has notice thereof, under former Code 1933, §§ 4-202, 4-301, 4-302 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6-21, 10-6-50, and 10-6-51). Cotton States Life Ins. Co. v. Scurry, 50 Ga. 48, 1873 Ga. LEXIS 201 (1873); Boles v. Hartsfield Co., 50 Ga. App. 442, 178 S.E. 416, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 354 (1935).

Limitation on power to procure attorney for collection. — Agent to procure a competent attorney to collect a note, though the note is without negotiable words, is clothed with power to make the contract for its collection, unless the agent's agency is restricted and that restriction is made known to the attorney at the time the contract for collection is made. Barclay v. Hopkins, 59 Ga. 562, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 335 (1877).

Waiver of breach of condition as to insurance policy. — If limitation on authority of agent is contained in an application for insurance, attached to and made part of the policy, and the agent was therefore not acting within the apparent scope of the agent's authority in waiving a breach of condition existing when the policy was issued, the insurer is not bound by the alleged waiver or by any estoppel. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Thompson, 51 Ga. App. 625, 181 S.E. 101, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 424 (1935).

Act ratified by principal. — Act done by an agent in excess of the agent's authority does not bind the principal unless ratified by the latter. Gaulding v. Courts, 90 Ga. App. 472, 83 S.E.2d 288, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 739 (1954).

Corporation clearly assented to a contract to sell the corporation's real property when the corporation properly executed a fourth amendment to the contract, although the original contract and amendments had not been properly signed. Del Lago Ventures, Inc. v. QuikTrip Corp., 330 Ga. App. 138, 764 S.E.2d 595, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 820 (2014).

Despite the genuine issue of material fact as to whether the purchaser terminated the purchaser's contract, the purchaser's principal ratified the contract and the contract's prior amendments by signing the contracts; thus, because the principal clearly assented to the contract, any irregularities in the signatures were irrelevant. Del Lago Ventures, Inc. v. QuikTrip Corp., 330 Ga. App. 138, 764 S.E.2d 595, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 820 (2014).

Duty to defend. — General liability insurers of a contractor were held to have a duty to defend the owner of a real estate project, because their agent had the actual or apparent authority to issue certificates of insurance to the owner, and to bind their obligations to the owner, under Georgia agency law. Sumitomo Marine & Fire Ins. Co. of Am. v. S. Guar. Ins. Co., 337 F. Supp. 2d 1339, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20097 (N.D. Ga. 2004).

Estoppel of principal to deny liability. — Notwithstanding knowledge by the principal of unauthorized acts of the principal's agent, the principal is not chargeable therewith unless the principal ratifies such acts or for other reasons is estopped to deny the principal's liability therefor. Grant v. Hart, 197 Ga. 662, 30 S.E.2d 271, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 315 (1944).

Receipt by principal of benefits of transaction. — If the principal has obtained the benefits of the transaction in which the draft was given by the agent, the injured party may bring an action on the original transaction against the principal. Rowland v. Farmers Bank, 52 Ga. App. 50, 182 S.E. 81, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 28 (1935).

If for some time an alleged agent of the defendant had purchased agricultural products for the defendant with drafts drawn upon the defendant, on which drafts the plaintiff bank advanced to the defendant's agent the cash, the defendant was bound by such acts of the defendant's agent and estopped to deny that such person was acting as the defendant's agent or set up that the defendant was not liable for the amount of plaintiff's money advanced on such unpaid drafts for the purchase of the farm products for the defendant which the defendant received and retained. Rowland v. Farmers Bank, 52 Ga. App. 50, 182 S.E. 81, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 28 (1935).

Act ratified by principal without intention. — By retaining money paid after knowledge that the money's source was the principal's credit, through an unauthorized assumption of authority by an agent, the principal ratifies the act irrespective of any intent to do so. United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

Principal's knowledge of all material facts. — Act of an insurance company in retaining the premiums without knowledge of the facts did not amount to a ratification of the unauthorized act of the agent in reinstating a lapsed policy. Independent Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Pantone, 80 Ga. App. 426, 56 S.E.2d 153, 1949 Ga. App. LEXIS 851 (1949).

In order to allege a good cause of action as to ratification, it must be shown that the ratifying body, such as a city council, had full knowledge of all material facts in connection with the transaction in question. City of Atlanta v. Smith, 84 Ga. App. 815, 67 S.E.2d 480, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 803 (1951).

When the fact of agency is to be proved by the subsequent ratification and adoption of the act by the principal, there must be evidence of previous knowledge on the part of the principal of all the material facts. Southeastern Fid. Fire Ins. Co. v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 118 Ga. App. 861, 165 S.E.2d 887, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1549 (1968).

Ratification is effective only with full knowledge of all material facts, and a principal, in adopting the acts of a purported agent, is not obligated for the whole of a transaction when the acts of the purported agent are not fully disclosed. Southeastern Fid. Fire Ins. Co. v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 118 Ga. App. 861, 165 S.E.2d 887, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1549 (1968).

Principal must ratify or disaffirm promptly after learning of unauthorized act. — If an agent without authority enters into a contract on behalf of a principal, the principal, upon discovery of the circumstances, has a choice either to ratify or disaffirm the contract made in the principal's behalf, but the principal must act promptly and within a reasonable time. Once the choice has been made to ratify, the contract may no longer be disaffirmed. Southern Motors of Savannah, Inc. v. Krieger, 86 Ga. App. 574, 71 S.E.2d 884, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 1011 (1952).

Knowledge of agent does not give principal notice. — Knowledge of all the facts by the principal is essential to ratification. A principal is not put on notice of the unauthorized act of an agent by the mere knowledge of the agent of the acts the agent personally has done in excess of the agent's authority. Gaulding v. Courts, 90 Ga. App. 472, 83 S.E.2d 288, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 739 (1954).

Third persons may presume general agency continues until notified of revocation. — Whenever a general agency has been established for any purpose, all persons who have dealt with the agent have a right to assume that the agent's authority to deal with them in behalf of the agent's principal continues until notice, express or implied, has been conveyed to them that the agency has been revoked. Arrington & Blount Ford, Inc. v. Jinks, 154 Ga. App. 785, 270 S.E.2d 27, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2388 (1980).

Payment to agent does not relieve principal of liability to third person. — Since a travel agent was defendant's disclosed agent in making arrangements for hotel accommodations with the plaintiff, and the defendant paid the agent for the hotel charges but the agent failed to pay the plaintiff, the defendant was bound for the unpaid debt when it appeared that the plaintiff had not chosen to make the agent its debtor, dealing with the agent alone, and that the exclusive credit was given to the agent. Southeastern Foam Prods., Inc. v. Hilton Hotels Corp., 149 Ga. App. 372, 254 S.E.2d 494, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 1853 (1979).

Acts held within scope of authority. — Because a corporation was organized, not only to build a schoolhouse, but also to supervise and carry on a school, when the corporation appointed and held out to the world its superintendent as general agent, the corporation became liable for the contracts made by such agent within the scope of the corporation's business entrusted to the agent, including not only teaching, but also the making of such publications as would advance the interests of the academy entrusted to the agent. Georgia Military Academy v. Estill, 77 Ga. 409, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 335 (1886).

Under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3593 and 3598, an agent authorized to sell mules in behalf of the agent's principal had authority to agree with a purchaser that if a mule which appeared to be sick did not recover, the seller will repay the purchase money. Turner Bros. v. Manley, 14 Ga. App. 215, 80 S.E. 680, 1914 Ga. App. LEXIS 178 (1914).

Under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3593, 3595, and 3598, if a warehouse company placed an agent in charge of its warehouse for the purpose of dealing with the public and as such the agent had authority to receive, weigh, and give receipts for cotton, making a charge of 50¢ for 30 days, which other evidence showed included a charge for insurance, the agent's agreements within the scope of the agent's authority would bind the company. Farmers Ginnery & Mfg. Co. v. Thrasher, 144 Ga. 598, 87 S.E. 804, 1916 Ga. LEXIS 53 (1916).

Bank will not be heard to plead that its vice-president exceeded the vice-president's authority as such officer in receiving a special deposit for the bank. Marietta Trust & Banking Co. v. Faw, 31 Ga. App. 507, 121 S.E. 244, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 10 (1924).

If the owner of an office building, through the operator of an elevator as the owner's agent, operates an elevator in the building, it is manifestly the duty of the operator, as such agent of the owner, to take on and let off persons using the elevator, and if the operator of an elevator refuses to permit a person in the elevator to leave the elevator, the agent is acting within the scope of the agent's employment as agent for the owner of the building. Turney v. Rhodes, 42 Ga. App. 104, 155 S.E. 112, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 251 (1930).

Conditions which enter into the validity of a contract of insurance at its inception may be waived by the agent, and are waived if so intended, although the conditions remain in the policy when delivered, and limitations therein upon the authority of the agent to waive such conditions otherwise than in writing attached to or endorsed upon the policy are treated as referring to waivers made subsequently to the issuance of the policy. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Thompson, 51 Ga. App. 625, 181 S.E. 101, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 424 (1935).

Lenders' title commitment provided that the closing documents had to be executed to the satisfaction of the title insurer's agents; that condition was fulfilled when the agents reviewed, approved, and accepted closing documents forged by an imposter and recorded the documents. As the insurer was bound by the authorized acts of the insurer's agents, the insurer was liable to the lenders. Keyingham Invs., LLC v. Fid. Nat'l Title Ins. Co., 298 Ga. App. 467, 680 S.E.2d 442, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 608 (2009), aff'd, 288 Ga. 312, 702 S.E.2d 851, 2010 Ga. LEXIS 768 (2010).

Trial court erred in granting a rental company summary judgment in a car owner's action alleging that the company breached a settlement agreement because the company was obligated to pay any settlement amounts negotiated by the company's agent, an independent third party administrator, and issues of fact remained as to whether the company issued payment according to the terms of the settlement agreement, which were also disputed. Hearn v. Dollar Rent A Car, Inc., 315 Ga. App. 164, 726 S.E.2d 661, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 338 (2012).

Authority to sell for cash. — In view of this section, a purchaser is charged with notice that an agent is only authorized to sell for cash; a sale on credit may be treated as void by the principal. Whitley v. James, 121 Ga. 521, 49 S.E. 600, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 219 (1904).

Acts held not within scope of authority. — Power to make restricted endorsement will not authorize a general endorsement in blank. Exchange Bank v. Thrower, 118 Ga. 433, 45 S.E. 316, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 580 (1903).

By virtue of this section, if less than the amount of an execution is received from one of joint defendants therein, under an agreement made or authorized by the plaintiff that the payment thus received shall relieve that defendant from further liability, the agreement will discharge the other defendants; but such an agreement by a sheriff, made without authority from the plaintiff, will not have that effect. Swicord v. Waxelbaum, 23 Ga. App. 297, 97 S.E. 891, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 92 (1919).

By virtue of this section, if an owner of cotton shipped it to factors and as an agent of another shipped cotton of the principal to the same factors, the owner could not, without special authority, authorize the factors to use money standing to the credit of the principal on the books of the factors to cover any deficit in the accounts or in the margins when the value of the owner's own cotton shipped to the factors became less than the advances of the latter. This is true, however general and broad the agent's power as agent may have been, unless the agent was expressly authorized by the principal to use the funds of the latter for the purpose indicated. Whiteley v. Garrett & Calhoun, Inc., 152 Ga. 437, 110 S.E. 209, 1921 Ga. LEXIS 118 (1921).

Motor vehicle activities not within scope of agent's authority. — Truck driver employed by the owner of the truck to deliver goods acts outside the scope of the driver's employment when the driver, for the driver's own pleasure and without the knowledge of the employer, invites another to ride on the truck, then the employer is not liable to the driver's guest for injury caused by negligence of the driver. Morris v. Fruit Co., 32 Ga. App. 788, 124 S.E. 807, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 665 (1924).

If one is employed by a master to drive a motor vehicle, the master is not liable for the negligence of another procured by the employee without authority as a substitute driver unless the master subsequent to the act ratifies the employment of the substitute. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953); Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Raley, 104 Ga. App. 717, 123 S.E.2d 272, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 780 (1961) (ratification shown).

Issues of fact as to agent's authority. — While a business seller claimed that an employee of a brokerage company was not the seller's agent and thus did not bind the seller to a new closing date under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-51, the employee was named as the seller's listing agent and the seller knew that the employee might have given the purchaser some sort of verbal extension to postpone the closing date; thus, issues of material fact remained as to the employee's actual or apparent authority. Santaniello v. Bennett, 296 Ga. App. 548, 675 S.E.2d 282, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 248 (2009).

Correct instruction as to signing for another who signs by mark. — While, when a person authorizes another to execute a written instrument for the person, in the person's presence, it is not necessary, in order to constitute the act of the person actually signing the instrument the act and deed of the person authorizing the person to do so, that the person so authorizing should touch the pen, a charge by the court that if a person authorizes another in the person's presence to sign the instrument for the person and does touch the pen and make the person's mark, the act of the party making the signature is the act and deed of the person so authorizing, states a correct proposition of law. East Point Lumber Co. v. Chandler, 46 Ga. App. 361,

167 S.E. 787, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 70 (1933).

Untimely actions of attorney bound client. — Trial court erred by reversing the decision of the Georgia Department of Driver Services (Department) because the evidence supported the decision of the Department in denying, as untimely, the driver's request for an administrative license suspension, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 40-5-67.1(g), since the actions of the driver's attorney in failing to mail a timely request for a hearing were imputed to the driver. Mikell v. Hortenstine, 334 Ga. App. 621, 780 S.E.2d 53, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (2015).

Instructions as to master's liability held not erroneous. — If the judge charged the jury that if the person in charge of the defendant's car at the time of the injury was driving it "as the servant or agent of the defendant," the defendant would be responsible for any negligence of which the driver might be guilty, but the driver did not amplify this statement by adding that such alleged acts of negligence by the servant must have been done in the prosecution of or within the scope of the master's business, it was held that such a charge cannot be accounted as reversible error, for, while a master was bound by the acts of the servant only when the latter was acting within the scope of the servant's authority under former Code 1933, §§ 4-302, and 105-108 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6-51 and 51-2-2), still, since the charge limited the accountability of the master for the negligence of the servant to the servant's acts when done "as the servant or agent of the defendant," this should be taken as the equivalent of a statement that the acts must have been done within the scope of the master's business. Collier v. Schoenberg, 26 Ga. App. 496, 106 S.E. 581, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 499 (1921).

Charge of the court that "if in the prosecution of the master's business the agent makes any representation with reference to the master's business, then such statements are imputable to the master," reasonably construed, restricted the statements of the agent to such portions of the master's business as came within the scope of the agency, and was not error for the assigned reason that the charge did not contain such a restriction. Grant v. Hart, 197 Ga. 662, 30 S.E.2d 271, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 315 (1944).

2. Effect of Partial Ratification

Principal must ratify or repudiate in whole. — If, in cases when an agent exceeds the agent's authority, the principal must ratify or repudiate in whole, there can be no tenable grounds for argument that, when an agent does not exceed the agent's authority, the principal may ratify in part and repudiate in part the contract made on the principal's behalf. Savage v. Western Union Tel. Co., 198 Ga. 728, 32 S.E.2d 785, 1945 Ga. LEXIS 223 (1945).

Accepting portion of agent's collection ratifies collection in toto. — If an unauthorized agent collects the entire amount owing on a note and the principal accepts a portion of the proceeds and consents that the person making the collections may use the remainder for a short time, the principal will be held to have ratified the collection in toto. Roberts v. Bank of Eufaula, 20 Ga. App. 221, 92 S.E. 1015, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 824 (1917).

Retention of benefits ratifies whole transaction. — Bank cannot be heard to plead that the bank's vice-president exceeded the vice-president's authority as such officer in receiving a special deposit since the retention by the bank of the net proceeds of the transaction amounts to a ratification by the bank of the whole transaction. Marietta Trust & Banking Co. v. Faw, 31 Ga. App. 507, 121 S.E. 244, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 10 (1924).

Ratification of agent's agreements. — While an agent to rent has no implied power to bind the landlord to a provision that the tenant shall make repairs to be paid for out of the rents accruing, if the agent exceeds the agent's authority by such an agreement, the landlord cannot solemnly claim that rent shall be paid the landlord at the figure which the landlord's agent and the tenant agreed to upon the condition regarding improvements without becoming bound to all of the terms and conditions upon which the landlord's agent and the tenant agreed, resulting in fixing the rent at that price; the landlord must, as a matter of law be held to have ratified the agreement in whole as made by the landlord's agent. Sikes v. Carter, 30 Ga. App. 539, 118 S.E. 430, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 524 (1923).

Partial payment of invoice. — Even though a company's sales vice president purchased advertising without authority, evidence that the company made a partial payment of the amount due several months after the advertisement was purchased, published, and invoiced reflected a ratification by the company as a matter of law. Thomas Register of Am. Mfrs. v. Proto Sys. Elec. Packaging, 221 Ga. App. 779, 471 S.E.2d 235, 1996 Ga. App. LEXIS 425 (1996), cert. denied, No. S96C1653, 1996 Ga. LEXIS 1049 (Ga. Oct. 4, 1996).

Agent's representations in consummating contract. — If one purporting to act as agent exceeds the agent's authority, the principal cannot ratify in part and repudiate in part, and therefore the principal cannot accept and retain the fruits of a contract so made by another in the principal's behalf without becoming bound by the representations of the person so purporting to act for the principal in consummating the agreement. Lancaster v. Neal, 41 Ga. App. 721, 154 S.E. 386, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 1072 (1930); Hawthorne Indus. v. Attaway Assocs., 153 Ga. App. 155, 264 S.E.2d 663, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1720 (1980).

Partial acceptance of order does not bind principal if agent lacked authority to make sale. — Seller's partial acceptance of an order given the seller's traveling salesman, who was not authorized to do more than receive and transmit orders and was unauthorized to make unconditional sales, was held not to bind the seller to fill an unaccepted portion under this section. Dannenberg Co. v. Hughes, 30 Ga. App. 83, 116 S.E. 892, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 265 (1923).

General Consideration

"Ratification" defined. — "Ratification" is the affirmance by a person of a prior act which did not bind the person but which was done or professedly done on the person's account, whereby the act, as to some or all persons, is given effect as if originally authorized by the person. Higgins v. D & F Elec. Co., 110 Ga. App. 790, 140 S.E.2d 99, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 764 (1964).

Principal may by ratification or by failure to repudiate acts of principal's alleged agent become bound. Klingbeil v. Renbaum, 146 Ga. App. 591, 246 S.E.2d 698, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2469 (1978).

Act of one holding oneself out as agent in consummating a sale for one's principal may be ratified by the principal, even if the agent was unauthorized in the first place to make the sale, and such ratification may be implied from the acts or silence of the principal. If a principal is informed by the principal's agent of what the agent has done, unless the principal repudiates the act promptly or within a reasonable time, a ratification will be presumed. Harris v. Underwood, 208 Ga. 247, 66 S.E.2d 332, 1951 Ga. LEXIS 341 (1951).

Chief executive officer terminated for cause based on ratification of chief financial officer's impropriety. — Chief executive officer of a housing authority was properly terminated for cause because the chief executive officer materially harmed the housing authority's business when the chief executive officer ratified the housing authority's chief financial officer's violation of federal rules the housing authority was required to comply with, when the proceeds of the sale of an asset were diverted to an improper purpose as: (1) the chief executive officer certified that the proceeds would be used only for a proper purpose; (2) the chief executive officer was notified of the diversion; and (3) the chief executive officer did not object or inform the housing authority's board of directors or the federal government of the diversion or seek the permission of either body for the diversion. Jones v. Hous. Auth. of Fulton County, 315 Ga. App. 15, 726 S.E.2d 484, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 303 (2012).

Corporation's president. — If the president of a corporation, merely by virtue of the president's office, has no power to bind the company by contract, the authority may be shown by ratification by the corporation of the contracts made by the corporation's president. Jack Fred Co. v. Lago, 96 Ga. App. 675, 101 S.E.2d 165, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 661 (1957).

Attorney purporting to represent party. — While as a general rule a party is not bound by the acts of an attorney who purports to represent the party, but without being employed so to do, and need not accept any benefits to the party as a result of such unauthorized appearance, the party may do so by ratifying the attorney's acts as in other cases of agency. Felker v. Johnson, 189 Ga. 797, 7 S.E.2d 668, 1940 Ga. LEXIS 377 (1940).

Class representative is a putative agent who keeps the case alive pending the decision on certification. Bickerstaff v. SunTrust Bank, 299 Ga. 459, 788 S.E.2d 787, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 469, cert. denied, 580 U.S. 1020, 137 S. Ct. 571, 196 L. Ed. 2d 447, 2016 U.S. LEXIS 7351 (2016).

Substitute driver procured without authority. — If one is employed by a master to drive a motor vehicle, the master is not liable for the negligence of another procured by the employee without authority as a substitute driver unless the master subsequent to the act ratifies the employment of the substitute. Carter v. Bishop, 209 Ga. 919, 76 S.E.2d 784, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 444 (1953); Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Raley, 104 Ga. App. 717, 123 S.E.2d 272, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 780 (1961) (ratification shown).

One committing forgery. — When one purports to act as the agent of another, even by forgery, the principal for whom the agent purports to act may ratify the act. Southern Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Firemen's Benevolent Ass'n, 72 Ga. App. 663, 34 S.E.2d 674, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 666, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 667 (1945).

Ratification must be unconditional. — Promise afterwards made by a planter to a merchant to pay for oats if the planter's overseer will approve the bill is not an unconditional act and therefore cannot amount to a ratification of the act of overseer in buying the oats. Render v. Jones Mercantile Co., 33 Ga. App. 394, 126 S.E. 159, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 787 (1925).

Act must be such as principal could have authorized. — Principal cannot ratify that which the principal had no power to authorize. Harrison v. McHenry, 9 Ga. 164, 1850 Ga. LEXIS 132 (1850); Ozburn v. Woolworth, 106 Ga. 459, 32 S.E. 581, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 705 (1899).

Act must be done for person adopting it. — Act cannot be ratified unless done for and in behalf of the person adopting it and attempting to ratify it. Render v. Jones Mercantile Co., 33 Ga. App. 394, 126 S.E. 159, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 787 (1925).

Doctrine of ratification is not applicable against a person as to an act of one who did not assume to act in the person's name or under authority from that person. Smith v. Pope, 100 Ga. App. 369, 111 S.E.2d 155, 1959 Ga. App. LEXIS 620 (1959); Citizens & S. Realty Investors v. L.G. Balfour Co., 152 Ga. App. 852, 264 S.E.2d 304, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1627 (1980).

Ratification of the act of one who volunteers to act as agent is valid. D. Goode & Son v. Rawlings, 44 Ga. 593, 1872 Ga. LEXIS 371 (1872).

Principal must have actual knowledge of unauthorized act. — Unauthorized act of an agent, done in the principal's behalf, cannot be ratified by the principal without actual knowledge of the act. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Blount, 165 Ga. 193, 140 S.E. 496, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 351 (1927).

Principal's knowledge of all other material facts. — Ratification of an unauthorized act of an agent, to be binding on the principal, must be made with full knowledge, on the part of the principal, of all material facts relating to the act in question. Ludden & Bates Southern Music House v. McDonald, 117 Ga. 60, 43 S.E. 425, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 151 (1903); American Harrow Co. v. Dolvin, 119 Ga. 186, 45 S.E. 983, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 84 (1903).

Knowledge of all the facts is essential to a ratification. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Blount, 33 Ga. App. 642, 127 S.E. 892, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 660 (1925).

Before a principal can be bound by a ratification of the act of an agent, the principal must at the time of ratification have full knowledge of all the material facts by which the principal is to be bound. Weather Bros. Transf. Co. v. Jarrell, 72 Ga. App. 317, 33 S.E.2d 805, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 575 (1945).

Act of an insurance company in retaining the premiums without knowledge of the facts did not amount to a ratification of the unauthorized act of the agent in reinstating a lapsed policy. Independent Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Pantone, 80 Ga. App. 426, 56 S.E.2d 153, 1949 Ga. App. LEXIS 851 (1949).

In order to allege a good cause of action as to ratification, it must be shown that the ratifying body, such as a city council, had full knowledge of all material facts in connection with the transaction in question. City of Atlanta v. Smith, 84 Ga. App. 815, 67 S.E.2d 480, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 803 (1951).

Principal's knowledge of material facts necessary. — Agency may be established by the subsequent ratification and adoption of the act by the principal, but there must be some evidence of the principal's knowledge of the material facts. Shirley v. Couch, 177 Ga. App. 436, 339 S.E.2d 648, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 1472 (1986).

Knowledge at time ratification made. — Ratification involves knowledge of the facts on the part of the person ratifying at the time when the ratification is made. Dolvin v. American Harrow Co., 125 Ga. 699, 54 S.E. 706, 1906 Ga. LEXIS 1 (1906); Dolvin v. American Harrow Co., 131 Ga. 300, 62 S.E. 198, 1908 Ga. LEXIS 70 (1908).

Mere knowledge of alleged agent insufficient. — If agency is sought to be proved by ratification, it must appear that the principal had full knowledge of all material facts in connection with the transaction in question and such knowledge must have been acquired by the principal otherwise than by the mere knowledge of the agent, the ratification of whose acts is contended for. Kephart v. Gulf Ref. Co., 59 Ga. App. 432, 1 S.E.2d 221, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 53 (1939).

Sealed authority unnecessary to ratify instrument not under seal. — If an instrument is not a contract under seal, no writing under seal is required to ratify the actions taken in behalf of the principal. Hence, the authority of the agent to execute such a contract is not required to be given in writing and under seal. Klingbeil v. Renbaum, 146 Ga. App. 591, 246 S.E.2d 698, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2469 (1978).

Ratification cures agent's mistake. — Contract made by an agent for the agent's principal is binding on the latter, though a mistake has been made therein by the agent, if such contract is ratified and acted on by the principal. Southern Ry. v. White, 108 Ga. 201, 33 S.E. 952, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 215 (1899).

Ratification, whether soon or late, is the equivalent of an original command and cures any defect in the execution of the agent's power. Whitley v. James, 121 Ga. 521, 49 S.E. 600, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 219 (1904).

Ratification once made may not be revoked. Harris v. Underwood, 208 Ga. 247, 66 S.E.2d 332, 1951 Ga. LEXIS 341 (1951).

Burden of proving a ratification is on the party asserting ratification. Padgett v. Collins, 89 Ga. App. 769, 81 S.E.2d 309, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 577 (1954).

No manifestation of intent. — Even if an owner received some benefit under a settlement agreement, the owner's alleged actions did not manifest an intent to ratify the agreement as it never proffered a deed consistent with the agreement. Furthermore, even if the court were able to conclude that the owner's actions constituted ratification for purposes of a motion to dismiss, the owner was not obligated to do anything under the agreement as the owner was not a named party or a signatory to the contract. Rohrig Invs., LP v. Knuckle P'ship, LLLP (In re Rohrig Invs., LP), 584 B.R. 382, 2018 Bankr. LEXIS 1004 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2018).

Jury question. — Whether or not a ratification has resulted is usually a question of fact to be determined by the jury. Gray, Bedell & Hughes v. Bass, 42 Ga. 270, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 56 (1871); Charles P. Burr & Co. v. William H. Howard & Sons, 58 Ga. 564, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 170 (1877); Mendel v. Converse & Co., 30 Ga. App. 549, 118 S.E. 586, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 527 (1923); Thompson v. Neely & Wilcox, 32 Ga. App. 131, 123 S.E. 171, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 313 (1924).

Whether or not the facts and circumstances of the particular case show a ratification of the acts of one alleged to have been acting for the defendant principal is ordinarily a question for the jury. Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Raley, 104 Ga. App.

Whether a ratification occurred is usually a question for a jury. Wielgorecki v. White, 133 Ga. App. 834, 212 S.E.2d 480, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2307 (1975).

While director of municipal recreation authority, who made the purchases in question, had neither actual nor implied authority to act for the city, a fact issue existed as to whether the city appropriated the goods purchased to the city's own use after abolishing the authority, as one who accepts possession of goods and permits the goods to be used for one's benefit cannot defeat an action for the purchase price by denying that the person who purchased the goods had authority to act as one's agent. Got-It Hdwe. & Gifts, Inc. v. City of Ashburn, 155 Ga. App. 214, 270 S.E.2d 380, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2533 (1980).

Pleading raising question of ratification makes case for jury. — If the question of ratification by the principal of unauthorized acts of the agent by the acceptance of the fruits of the agent's conduct arises, the plaintiff's pleading makes a case for submission to the jury. First Joint Stock Land Bank v. Pitts, 48 Ga. App. 805, 173 S.E. 732, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 205 (1934).

Relation Back of Ratification

Ratification relates back to the act ratified. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Blount, 33 Ga. App. 642, 127 S.E. 892, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 660 (1925).

Ratification by a principal relates back to the act ratified and takes effect as if originally authorized. United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

Intervening equity. — As a general rule, ratification relates back to the act ratified, except when there is an intervening equity. Atlanta Buggy Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co., 124 Ga. 338, 52 S.E. 613, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 709 (1905); Bridwell v. Gate City Term. Co., 127 Ga. 520, 56 S.E. 624, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 418 (1907); Coursey v. Consolidated Naval Stores, 22 Ga. App. 538, 96 S.E. 397, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 591 (1918); Mendel v. Converse & Co., 30 Ga. App. 549, 118 S.E. 586, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 527 (1923).

Intervening rights of third persons. — Ratification generally relates back to the act ratified, but when a mortgage is executed by a debtor to a creditor without the creditor's knowledge and not delivered to the latter but to the clerk for registration, and after it is recorded, the creditor accepts and thus ratifies it, judgment liens obtained after the delivery to the clerk but before the ratification by the creditor take precedence over the mortgage. Evans v. Coleman, 101 Ga. 152, 28 S.E. 645, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 184 (1897).

Ratification does not so relate back as to affect the rights of other parties which have intervened and accrued between the time of the unauthorized act and that of the ratification. Graham v. Williams, 114 Ga. 716, 40 S.E. 790, 1902 Ga. LEXIS 774 (1902).

Ratification does not affect antagonistic rights of others acquired between the unauthorized act and its ratification. Dalton Buggy Co. v. Wood, Son & Bro., 7 Ga. App. 477, 67 S.E. 121, 1910 Ga. App. LEXIS 359 (1910).

Principal cannot ratify the acts of an agent so as to affect the intervening rights of third parties. Padgett v. Collins, 89 Ga. App. 769, 81 S.E.2d 309, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 577 (1954).

Implied Ratification

Ratification need not be by word or writing. — It is not essential that the principal should expressly ratify by word or writing; it may be done by implication or by the subsequent acts or conduct of the parties. Bush v. Fourcher, 3 Ga. App. 43, 59 S.E. 459, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 547 (1907).

Implication from acts or silence of the principal. Harris v. Underwood, 208 Ga. 247, 66 S.E.2d 332, 1951 Ga. LEXIS 341 (1951).

Receipt of benefit. — Unauthorized contract made by an assumed agent, or by a real agent in excess of the agent's authority, becomes obligatory upon the principal if the latter receives the benefit of the contract. Merchants' Bank v. Central Bank, 1 Ga. 418, 1846 Ga. LEXIS 92 (1846); Haney School Furn. Co. v. Hightower Baptist Inst., 113 Ga. 289, 38 S.E. 761, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1901); Coursey v. Consolidated Naval Stores, 22 Ga. App. 538, 96 S.E. 397, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 591 (1918); Hixon v. Hinkle, 156 Ga. 341, 118 S.E. 874, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 249 (1923); Swearingen v. Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co., 19 Ga. App. 658, 91 S.E. 1050, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 292 (1917).

If the principal obtained the benefits of the transaction in which the draft was given by the agent, the injured party may bring an action on the original transaction against the principal. Rowland v. Farmers Bank, 52 Ga. App. 50, 182 S.E. 81, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 28 (1935).

If for some time an alleged agent of the defendant purchased agricultural products for the defendant, with drafts drawn upon the defendant, on which drafts the plaintiff bank advanced to the defendant's agent the cash, the defendant was bound by such acts of the agent and estopped to deny that such person was acting as an agent or set up that the defendant was not liable for the amount of the plaintiff's money advanced on such unpaid drafts for the purchase of the farm products for the defendant which the defendant received and retained. Rowland v. Farmers Bank, 52 Ga. App. 50, 182 S.E. 81, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 28 (1935).

Retaining possession of and using for any considerable period of time property received constitutes a ratification of an unauthorized contract for exchange. Southern Motors of Savannah, Inc. v. Krieger, 86 Ga. App. 574, 71 S.E.2d 884, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 1011 (1952).

If the alleged acts of a finance company regarding an automobile sale contract included their acceptance of the benefits in the form of a note, conditional-sale contract, payments on the note, and the insurance premium, this indicated a ratification of the agreement made by the president of the automobile dealership that assigned the contract to the finance company that credit life insurance would be procured, and showed such part performance on the part of the conditional buyer as to estop the finance company from attacking the agreement as oral and in conflict with any written provisions. In this situation, there appeared to be no conflict present, but rather an explanation of any ambiguity and a showing as to what constituted the entire contract. Consumers Fin. Corp. v. Lamb, 217 Ga. 359, 122 S.E.2d 101, 1961 Ga. LEXIS 454 (1961).

If a corporation, knowing all of the facts, accepts and uses the proceeds of an unauthorized contract executed in the corporation's behalf without authority, the corporation may be bound because of ratification. Western Am. Life Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 135 Ga. App. 90, 217 S.E.2d 323, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 1576 (1975).

In accepting the fruits of a contract for exchange of automobiles and using the new automobile for the principal's exclusive benefit for a period of almost six weeks of intensive driving, during which time the principal fails to notify the seller of the new car of any intention to disaffirm the contract on the principal's part, such acts of the principal constitute a ratification of the unauthorized act of exchange of the agent so as to render the principal liable for the payment of the purchase money. Southern Motors of Savannah, Inc. v. Krieger, 86 Ga. App. 574, 71 S.E.2d 884, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 1011 (1952).

Application in divorce action. — Plaintiff had full knowledge of his former wife's unauthorized withdrawal of funds from his "money market account" at the time he entered into his divorce settlement agreement with her. Plaintiff and his ex-wife also agreed in their property settlement agreement that "all personal property in the [ex-wife's] possession and control or in [her] name was to be and become [her] sole and separate property, free and clear of any claims of [plaintiff] whatsoever." Consequently, since plaintiff knowingly received the benefit of his former wife's withdrawal, he could not later make a claim against the bank that her withdrawal was unauthorized. Hyer v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 188 Ga. App. 452, 373 S.E.2d 391, 1988 Ga. App. LEXIS 1093 (1988).

Ratification of forged quitclaim deed between ex-spouses. — Ex-husband's action to quit title in certain property and to set aside a forged quitclaim deed transferring his interest in the property to the ex-wife was remanded for a jury to decide whether the ex-husband ratified the quitclaim deed in his divorce settlement agreement with his ex-wife because given the ambiguity in the settlement agreement arising from the phrase "liability on the property," a factual issue existed regarding the intention of the parties, which had to be determined in light of all the relevant evidence; to the extent that the ex-husband merely acknowledged that his ex-wife encumbered her share of the property, that acknowledgment would not evidence an election to treat the forged quitclaim deed as valid, and if the ex-husband believed that the property interest he was accepting from his ex-wife was encumbered, he could have wanted to clarify that he was not personally liable for the debt and to bargain for protection from any loss he could incur as the result of the debt. Brock v. Yale Mortg. Corp., 287 Ga. 849, 700 S.E.2d 583, 2010 Ga. LEXIS 647 (2010).

Intent when benefits retained. — Unauthorized act or transaction by an agent in excess of the agent's authority becomes binding and obligatory upon the principal if the latter, with knowledge of the facts, receives and retains the benefit thereof, since such acceptance of the benefit amounts to an implied ratification of such act, whether the principal intends thereby to ratify it or not. Kelley v. Carolina Life Ins. Co., 48 Ga. App. 106, 171 S.E. 847, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 478 (1933).

By retaining money paid after knowledge that its source was the principal's credit, through an unauthorized assumption of authority by an agent, the principal ratifies the act irrespective of any intent to do so. United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

Act done for principal who has knowledge of facts. — It is only when an act is done for and in behalf of another that it can be ratified by the latter's acceptance of the benefits accruing to the latter thereunder, and then only with knowledge of the facts. Morgan v. Georgia Paving & Constr. Co., 40 Ga. App. 335, 149 S.E. 426, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 153 (1929).

Ratification cannot be implied if the act assertedly ratified was not done in behalf of and for the benefit of the party assertedly ratifying the act. Regional Pacesetters, Inc. v. Halpern Enters., Inc., 165 Ga. App. 777, 300 S.E.2d 180, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2016 (1983).

Principal's knowledge of facts required. — Given that there was no evidence that a parent had knowledge at any time of an arbitration agreement signed by the parent's adult child on the parent's behalf when the parent entered a nursing home, the parent's later grant to the child of a power of attorney did not ratify the child's earlier action of signing the arbitration agreement. McKean v. GGNSC Atlanta, LLC, 329 Ga. App. 507, 765 S.E.2d 681, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 725 (2014).

In a dispute between a warehouse and a staffing agency over the warehouse's failure to pay for temporary employees, genuine issues existed as to whether the warehouse knew of or ratified the employee's allegedly unauthorized act of executing an agreement on its behalf, making summary judgment error. Division Six Sports, Inc. v. Hire Dynamics, LLC, 348 Ga. App. 347, 822 S.E.2d 841, 2019 Ga. App. LEXIS 6 (2019).

Inference from failure to repudiate within reasonable time. — If one in the presence of the principal, sells goods of the latter, as the principal's agent, without objection, the tacit consent of the principal will be presumed and will bind the principal. N. Owsley & Son v. Woolhopter, 14 Ga. 124, 1853 Ga. LEXIS 201 (1853); Crockett v. Chattahoochee Brick Co., 95 Ga. 540, 21 S.E. 42, 1894 Ga. LEXIS 583 (1894).

Ratification will be inferred if the agent has notified the principal of the agent's act and the principal has not repudiated it. Unless the principal repudiates the act promptly or within a reasonable time, a ratification will be presumed. Whitley v. James, 121 Ga. 521, 49 S.E. 600, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 219 (1904); Brooke & Co. v.

Cunningham Bros., 19 Ga. App. 21, 90 S.E. 1037, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 13 (1916); Pilcher & Dillon v. Smith, 31 Ga. App. 606, 121 S.E. 701, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 93 (1924); Thompson v. Neely & Wilcox, 32 Ga. App. 131, 123 S.E. 171, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 313 (1924); Harris v. Underwood, 208 Ga. 247, 66 S.E.2d 332, 1951 Ga. LEXIS 341 (1951).

An unauthorized transaction by an agent may be validated by the principal's acquiescence therein for an unreasonable time, after knowledge of such act. Nations v. Russell, 68 Ga. App. 329, 22 S.E.2d 756, 1942 Ga. App. LEXIS 120 (1942).

If an agent without authority enters into a contract on behalf of a principal, the principal, upon discovery of the circumstances, has a choice either to ratify or disaffirm the contract made in the principal's behalf, but the principal must act promptly and within a reasonable time. Once the choice has been made to ratify, the contract may no longer be disaffirmed. Southern Motors of Savannah, Inc. v. Krieger, 86 Ga. App. 574, 71 S.E.2d 884, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 1011 (1952).

If a master (principal) has knowledge that the master's servant (agent) pursues a given course of conduct and the master takes no steps to prevent such conduct, the master is liable for the consequences. Allen & Bean, Inc. v. American Bankers Ins. Co., 153 Ga. App. 617, 266 S.E.2d 295, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1924 (1980).

What is unreasonable time is generally for jury. — If, after knowledge of what the agent has done, the principal makes no objection for an unreasonable time, a ratification results by operation of law. Generally, the question of what is an unreasonable period of time is one for the jury. Klingbeil v. Renbaum, 146 Ga. App. 591, 246 S.E.2d 698, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2469 (1978).

Ratification of an agent's act is presumed from slight circumstances, and is as effective as if the act was originally authorized, and is not revocable. Napier v. Pool, 39 Ga. App. 187, 146 S.E. 783, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 246 (1929).

While ratification of an unauthorized act of an agent is not to be presumed, the acts of a principal are to be liberally construed in favor of an adoption of the acts of the agent, and when the unauthorized act of the agent is done in the execution of power conferred, but in excess or misuse thereof, a presumption of ratification readily arises from slight acts of confirmation, or from mere silence or acquiescence, or when the principal receives and holds the fruits of the agent's act. Kelley v. Carolina Life Ins. Co., 48 Ga. App. 106, 171 S.E. 847, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 478 (1933); Nations v. Russell, 68 Ga. App. 329, 22 S.E.2d 756, 1942 Ga. App. LEXIS 120 (1942).

Acts and conduct of the principal are construed liberally in favor of the agent. Slight circumstances and small matters will sometimes suffice to raise the presumption of ratification. Burke County Bd. of Educ. v. Raley, 104 Ga. App. 717, 123 S.E.2d 272, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 780 (1961).

Mere retention of employee does not ratify actions. — Mere retention of an employee after knowledge of the employee's wrongful act is not sufficient alone to amount to ratification by the employer of the act. Chrysler Corp. v. Wilson Plumbing Co., 132 Ga. App. 435, 208 S.E.2d 321, 1974 Ga. App. LEXIS 1717 (1974).

Ratification of unauthorized acts by employer. — In a breach of contract suit involving an employment contract, the trial court properly entered a judgment in favor of the former employee after a bench trial as there was sufficient evidence to support the conclusion that even though the person who signed the employment contract was not authorized to execute the employment contract on behalf of the employer, the employer ratified the agreement by failing to never object to the agreement. In addition, the employer paid the former employee at least two times directly. A & S Group, Inc. v. Murray, 291 Ga. App. 331, 661 S.E.2d 701, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 501 (2008).

Unpublished decision: Principal was liable for breach of a written contract between the principal and a construction company because realty company employees who made additional work requests had authority to bind the principal, and the record supported a finding that the vice president, acting within actual au-

Retaining property to which principal is already entitled. — Principal already entitled to possession of property is not bound by an unauthorized agreement by which the principal is put in possession thereof, nor by retaining possession will the principal be charged with a ratification. Baldwin Fertilizer Co. v. Thompson & McAlister, 106 Ga. 480, 32 S.E. 591, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 708 (1899).

Corporation ratified past contracts that were allegedly forged. — Corporation clearly assented to a contract to sell the corporation's real property when the corporation properly executed a fourth amendment to the contract, although the original contract and amendments had not been properly signed. Del Lago Ventures, Inc. v. QuikTrip Corp., 330 Ga. App. 138, 764 S.E.2d 595, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 820 (2014).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Disclosed principal liable when agent not dealt with alone. — When a travel agent was the defendant's disclosed agent in making arrangements for hotel accommodations with the plaintiff, the defendant paid the agent for the hotel charges, but the agent failed to pay the plaintiff, the defendant was bound for the unpaid debt since it did not appear that the plaintiff had chosen to make the agent its debtor, dealing with the agent alone, and that exclusive credit was given to the agent. Southeastern Foam Prods., Inc. v. Hilton Hotels Corp., 149 Ga. App. 372, 254 S.E.2d 494, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 1853 (1979).

Principal's name and agent's acting for principal must appear to bind principal. — Latitude is allowed as to the form in which an agent may contract, but in order to bind a principal the name of the principal must be disclosed, and the agent must profess to act for the principal. Moore v. Adams, 153 Ga. 709, 113 S.E. 383, 1922 Ga. LEXIS 157 (1922).

Disclosure of name must be in writing when required for principal to be bound. — This section does not purport to authorize an agent to contract for the agent's principal in a form which would be insufficient if the principal acted personally; if it is essential that the contracting party's name should appear in the writing when the party is contracting for the party, it is also necessary when the party contracts through an agent. Moore v. Adams, 153 Ga. 709, 113 S.E. 383, 1922 Ga. LEXIS 157 (1922).

Duly constituted agent is not responsible if agent has named principal. — It is a general rule — standing on strong foundations, and pervading every system of jurisprudence — that if an agent is duly constituted, and names the agent's principal, and contracts in the agent's name, the principal is responsible and not the agent. Gibbs v. Carolina Portland Cement Co., 50 Ga. App. 229, 177 S.E. 760, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 714 (1934).

Instrument specifying agency and naming principal is binding on principal. — If in the body or on the face of the instrument the agency is distinctly specified and the principal indicated, and the contract is substantially in the name of such principal, the latter, and not the agent, will be regarded as the maker of the instrument, though the instrument is signed by the agent only, provided, of course, the agent has authority to bind the principal. McRitchie v. Atlanta Trust Co., 170 Ga. 296, 152 S.E. 834, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 443 (1930); Dover v. Burns, 186 Ga. 19, 196 S.E. 785, 1938 Ga. LEXIS 545 (1938).

Instrument binding on principal in individual capacity. — Agent acting within the scope of the agent's authority may bind the agent's principal, although signing in the agent's individual capacity only, when it appears from the instrument that the principal and not the agent is intended to be bound. United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

"Agent for" designated person in signature is merely descriptive. — Expression "agent for" a designated person following the name in a signature attached to a contract is merely descriptio personae, and its presence in the signature does not of itself necessarily render the contract the undertaking of the designated principal, acting by and through the signer as the principal's agent. Dorsey v. Rankin, 43 Ga. App. 12, 157 S.E. 876, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1931).

Evidence that contract is principal's. — Under former Code 1882, §§ 2195 and 2211, when two notes were given to the plaintiff for cotton seed for Green J. Jordan's plantation and signed,

"J. Spradley, Agent for Green J. Jordan," this was a contract of Jordan, the principal, and not the contract of Spradley, the agent; more especially, as the evidence in the record disclosed the fact that the agency was made known to the payee of the notes at the time the notes were given. Tiller v. Spradley, 39 Ga. 35, 1869 Ga. LEXIS 168 (1869).

Acts held those of principal, not agent. — Under former Code 1873, § 2195, a deed made by a trustee under former Code 1873, § 2563 and signed by the trustee as "trustee of M.R." did not bind the trustee individually as to the warranty. Shacklett v. Ransom, 54 Ga. 350, 1875 Ga. LEXIS 179 (1875).

Contract signed by a person who adds after the person's signature the words "general manager" is not the individual undertaking of the person signing, if the contract shows on the contract's face that the contract was made in behalf of another, or if, in a suit for the contract's breach, this fact appears by extrinsic evidence. Raleigh & Gaston R.R. v. Pullman Co., 122 Ga. 700, 50 S.E. 1008, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 304 (1905).

Executory contract between "F.C. Miller, administrator of the estate of E.P. Miller," and H, properly construed, was an agreement by F.C. Miller in the representative capacity. Miller v. Hines, 145 Ga. 616, 89 S.E. 689, 1916 Ga. LEXIS 422 (1916).

If the check of the wife is signed by the husband as agent for his wife, the latter being named, it is in effect and in fact a check drawn by the wife upon an account kept in the bank in the name of the husband as agent for the wife. McRitchie v. Atlanta Trust Co., 170 Ga. 296, 152 S.E. 834, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 443 (1930).

When two attorneys in fact were expressly authorized by power of attorney to execute a deed in the names of the principals "or otherwise," under the facts, the security deed would be construed to be a conveyance by them in behalf of themselves and as attorneys in fact for the other heirs at law. Cocke v. Bank of Dawson, 180 Ga. 714, 180 S.E. 711, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 537 (1935).

Noncompetition clause in parties' agreement did not bar members of a limited liability company that sold a childcare facility from opening another daycare center as the members were not parties to the agreement and were not bound thereby; further, a member's signature was as a disclosed agent. Primary Invs., LLC v. Wee Tender Care III, Inc., 323 Ga. App. 196, 746 S.E.2d 823, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 665 (2013), cert. denied, No. S13C1735, 2014 Ga. LEXIS 34 (Ga. Jan. 6, 2014).

Parent signed as agent for adult son, not in personal capacity. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment to a medical center and denying it to a patient's parent because the parent signed the form on behalf of the adult son as an agent, not in a personal capacity; thus, the parent was not personally liable for any unpaid medical bills. Winterboer v. Floyd Healthcare Mgmt., 334 Ga. App. 97, 778 S.E.2d 354, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 579 (2015).

No evidence defendant "made" contract. — There was no evidence to support that the defendant "made" a contract with the plaintiff when the undisputed evidence was that the plaintiff executed the loan agreement with the mortgagee in 1998, that the defendant began servicing the plaintiff's loan in May 2005, and that the mortgagee assigned the note and security deed to the trustee on March 10, 2010. Phillips v. Ocwen Loan Servicing, LLC, 92 F. Supp. 3d 1255, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 31357 (N.D. Ga. 2015).

Contract held individual undertaking, not agency. — Under this section, a contract by one described as president of an association indicated an individual undertaking rather than an agency. Candler v. DeGive, 133 Ga. 486, 66 S.E. 244, 1909 Ga. LEXIS 253 (1909).

Disclosure of agency must be pled in action against principal. — In an action against a principal based on a contract allegedly entered into by an agent, when the plaintiff did not allege that the agent revealed that the agent was acting for the principal, the plaintiff's pleading was insufficient. Georgia Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Hardrick, 211 Ga. 709, 88 S.E.2d 394, 1955 Ga. LEXIS 437 (1955).

Admission of agency in answer binding on defendant. — When the plaintiff alleged that a certain individual was the agent of defendant company, and the answer admitted it, and no amendment was made striking that part of the answer, and the trial proceeded on the only issue left, to wit, whether the defendant had complied with the defendant's contract, this admission was binding on the defendant, notwithstanding testimony admitted without objection that the individual bought an option on the property and transferred the option to the defendant. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

When issue of who is bound is question of fact. — Omitting cases of contracts under seal, negotiable instruments, and those in which there is an express declaration in writing or an intention and agreement on the part of an agent to be individually bound, usually when the agent contracts in the agent's own name, but with the agent's principal known, the question as to whether the principal or agent is bound is one of fact. Gibbs v. Carolina Portland Cement Co., 50 Ga. App. 229, 177 S.E. 760, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 714 (1934).

Trial court erred by granting summary judgment to a private entity operating a county animal control shelter because genuine issues of material fact existed as to whether the shelter could be held liable for the euthanization of a hospitalized patient's dogs based upon the theory of promissory estoppel since while the releases may have authorized the shelter to euthanize the dogs, the shelter was also authorized to subsequently enter into a promise not to do so; thus, the patient, as a principal, would be entitled to damages suffered as a result of representations made to the patient's authorized agent acting on the patient's behalf to protect the well-being of the patient's dogs. Greenway v. Northside Hosp., 317 Ga. App. 371, 730 S.E.2d 742, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 706 (2012), rev'd, 294 Ga. 112, 751 S.E.2d 351, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 951 (2013), vacated in part, 328 Ga. App. 473, 763 S.E.2d 488, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 337 (2014).

Parol evidence may show contract was in fact principal's contract. — Under former Civil Code 1895, §§ 3022 and 3039, it was competent to show by parol evidence that the contract nominally that of the agent was in fact that of the principal. Fitzgerald Cotton Oil Co. v. Farmers Supply Co., 3 Ga. App. 212, 59 S.E. 713, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 598 (1907).

If it does not appear from the face of the contract whether it is the signer's individual undertaking or is that of the signer's principal acting through the agent as the principal's agent, it may, especially where the contract is not executed under seal, be shown extrinsically that the contract is that of the principal, executed for and in the principal's behalf by the principal's agent. Dorsey v. Rankin, 43 Ga. App. 12, 157 S.E. 876, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1931).

Where principal different from one indicated in signature. — Where the question as to who is the real contracting party is one of fact which can be extrinsically determined, it may be shown that the person signing a contract in one's own name, with descriptive terms of agency after one's signature, did so for and in behalf of another as the principal, by and through oneself as agent, although one's principal may be another and different person from the one indicated as the signer's principal in the descriptive terms attached to one's signature. Dorsey v. Rankin, 43 Ga. App. 12, 157 S.E. 876, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1931).

Agency cannot be proved by evidence of mere declarations of the alleged agent. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Agent's declarations admissible with other evidence. — When accompanied by other evidence as to the conduct of the person in the character of agent and acceptance by the alleged principal of the fruits of the agency, declarations of the alleged agent are admissible in evidence. Wofford Oil Co. v. Story, 52 Ga. App. 496, 183 S.E. 840, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1936).

Summary judgment improper. — Summary judgment for an engineer in a concrete company's suit for services and materials provided to a construction project was error because the evidence could have authorized a jury to have found that the engineer obtained the concrete company's agreement to provide services and material to the construction project without disclosing that the concrete company was dealing with the engineer, not directly, but only as an agent of the developer for purposes of O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6-53 and 10-6-85; a jury could have found that the concrete company reasonably understood that the engineer was binding itself as well as the developer. Action Concrete, Inc. v. Focal Point Eng'g, Inc., 296 Ga. App. 567, 675 S.E.2d 303, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 274 (2009).

Trial court erred in granting an insurer summary judgment and in denying an attorney summary judgment on the insurer's breach of contract claim because the evidence showed no meeting of the minds identifying the attorney as a party to the contract upon which the insurer based the insurer's claim and, therefore, no enforceable contract existed between the insured and the attorney; the closing instructions formed a contract between the insured and a law firm. Villanueva v. First Am. Title Ins. Co., 313 Ga. App. 164, 721 S.E.2d 150, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 1082 (2011), cert. denied, No. S12C0502, 2012 Ga. LEXIS 607 (Ga. June 18, 2012), aff'd, 292 Ga. 630, 740 S.E.2d 108, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 268 (2013).

Complaint alleging that an agreement had been reached between plaintiff's neighbor and a representative of an animal control facility for the safekeeping of plaintiff's dogs while plaintiff was hospitalized, set forth a claim for promissory estoppel, O.C.G.A. § 13-3-44(a), and plaintiff, as a principal, would be entitled to damages suffered as a result of representations made to plaintiff's neighbor, authorized agent acting on plaintiff's behalf, to protect the well-being of plaintiff's dogs. Thus, a grant of summary judgment in favor of the operator of the animal control facility was reversed. Greenway v. Northside Hosp., 317 Ga. App. 371, 730 S.E.2d 742, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 706 (2012), rev'd, 294 Ga. 112, 751 S.E.2d 351, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 951 (2013), vacated in part, 328 Ga. App. 473, 763 S.E.2d 488, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 337 (2014).

General Consideration

Section codifies preexisting law. — This section is a codification of the law as it stood prior to the original Code of 1863, and is not an innovation resulting from legislative enactment. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke, 123 Ga. 686, 51 S.E. 582, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 578 (1905).

Section states general rule as to holding undisclosed principal. — General rule with reference to holding an undisclosed principal liable upon the contract of the principal's agent is stated in this section. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke, 123 Ga. 686, 51 S.E. 582, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 578 (1905).

Section does not apply to contract under seal. — Rule laid down in this section, that an undisclosed principal shall stand liable for the contract of the principal's agent, does not apply when the contract is under seal. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke, 123 Ga. 686, 51 S.E. 582, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 578 (1905); Gill v. Atlanta, B. & Atl. Ry., 24 Ga. App. 780, 102 S.E. 457, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 521 (1920).

Contract must purport to be principal's to bind the principal. — General rule is this: in order to bind a principal on a contract made by an agent, it must purport on the contract's face to be the contract of the principal, and the principal's name must be asserted in the contract. It is not enough that the agent be described as such in the instrument. Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

Because the plaintiff contracted with the defendant individually, and not as anyone's agent, the fact that the defendant's employer made the downpayment was not conclusive as to which party entered into the agreement, and the plaintiff's claim against the defendant should not have been dismissed by the trial court sua sponte. Bump-Aire Corp. v. Rogers, 236 Ga. App. 422, 512 S.E.2d 326, 1999 Ga. App. LEXIS 197 (1999).

Person acting on person's own account cannot bind another, despite benefit. — Mere fact that a wife got the benefit of goods bought by her husband on his own credit would not, whether he was solvent or insolvent, make her liable in law to the seller for the price of such goods. Hightower v. Walker, 97 Ga. 748, 25 S.E. 386, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 571 (1895).

Trustees of a church are not, as such, liable for the price of lumber sold and delivered to the pastor on the pastor's individual account, when the pastor neither acted as their agent nor had authority to do so, although the lumber was, with the church's knowledge, used in improving the property of the church. Montgomery v. Walton, 111 Ga. 840, 36 S.E. 202, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 800 (1900).

Mere fact that a wife may be the owner of a tract of land upon which a house is erected out of materials furnished solely on the credit of her husband will not render her liable for the value of such materials on the theory that she was the concealed principal of her husband when there is no evidence that he was in any way acting as her agent when he purchased the materials. Blount & Morel v. Dugger, 115 Ga. 109, 41 S.E. 270, 1902 Ga. LEXIS 317 (1902); Cornelia Planing Mill Co. v. Wilcox, 129 Ga. 522, 59 S.E. 223, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 502 (1907).

Mere fact that the wife is the owner of cows which were fed upon provender furnished solely upon the credit of her husband was held insufficient to establish her as the concealed principal of her husband, when there was no evidence that he was in any way acting as her agent when the purchase was made. Moore v. Sims, 24 Ga. App. 296, 100 S.E. 647, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 582 (1919).

Undisclosed principal cannot deny liability for agent's act. — If a husband is acting as agent for his wife and she is simply the undisclosed principal, her liability cannot be questioned any more than if he had, with her assistance, concealed or misled the plaintiff as to the true ownership of the property. Porter v. Terrell, 2 Ga. App. 269, 58 S.E. 493, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 343 (1907).

Special contract. — If the agent delivers the property in the agent's own name and the agent's principal is undisclosed, the latter is bound by any special contract, so far as the terms thereof are legal and binding, which is made between the agent and the carrier; but if the company receives the goods as those of the principal and, without the knowledge or consent of the latter, the carrier attempts to make special contract with the agent, the principal is not bound thereby, unless the principal does some act from which the law infers a ratification. Wellborn v. Southern Ry., 6 Ga. App. 151, 64 S.E. 491, 1909 Ga. App. LEXIS 217 (1909).

Disclosure of agency must encompass principal's name to relieve agent from personal liability. Collins v. Brayson Supply Co., 157 Ga. App. 438, 278 S.E.2d 87, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1860 (1981).

Contract liability of a principal and the principal's agent is not joint, and after election to proceed against one, the other cannot be held. Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

Undisclosed principal. — If an employer is merely an agent and acts with the authority of an undisclosed principal, either may be held liable, but not jointly liable, and after election to proceed against one of them, the other is released from liability. Davis v. Menefee, 34 Ga. App. 813, 131 S.E. 527, 1926 Ga. App. LEXIS 56 (1926).

Party with whom an agent contracts without disclosing the agent's principal may treat the agent as the principal and elect to proceed against the agent as such in lieu of the principal, but the party may not proceed against the two jointly. Dinkler Mgt. Corp. v. Stein, 115 Ga. App. 586, 155 S.E.2d 442, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 1177 (1967).

Third party must elect whether to proceed against agent or principal. — One who is in fact merely an agent and acts with the authority of an undisclosed principal may, at the election of the opposite party, be held as the principal therein, but the contractual liability of such undisclosed agent and the agent's principal is not joint, and the injured party must elect against whom the party desires to proceed. Washburn Storage Co. v. Elliott, 93 Ga. App. 456, 92 S.E.2d 28, 1956 Ga. App. LEXIS 770 (1956).

Agent Liability

If an agent wishes to avoid personal liability, the duty is on the agent to disclose the agency and not on the party with whom the agent deals to discover the agency. Brown-Wright Hotel Supply Corp. v. Bagen, 112 Ga. App. 300, 145 S.E.2d 294, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (1965); Dinkler Mgt. Corp. v. Stein, 115 Ga. App. 586, 155 S.E.2d 442, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 1177 (1967).

Agents may be held when principals' identities not disclosed. — If certain individuals composing a committee to represent the general citizenry, whose names and identities were not disclosed, purchased a monument to be erected as a memorial to the soldiers from a given county who died in the first World War and the contract of purchase and sale was duly executed by the seller in terms of the agreement, the members of the committee may be held liable as individuals in a suit by the seller on account for the price of the monument. Schneider Marble Co. v. Knight, 37 Ga. App. 646, 141 S.E. 420, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 552 (1928).

In a suit brought by a carpet and paint company for unpaid work invoices for an apartment complex, the trial court did not err by granting partial summary judgment and holding the complex's property manager liable for the expenses because the company failed to disclose the company's agency relationship with the complex's owner. Carroll Mgmt. Group, LLC v. A Carpet & Paint, LLC, 334 Ga. App. 259, 779 S.E.2d 26, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 611 (2015), cert. denied, No. S16C0355, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 121 (Ga. Feb. 1, 2016).

Election to recover from agent. — One who deals with an agent who fails to disclose the agent's principal may recover from the agent, where the person so elects, or the person may proceed against the principal, when made known, should the person not elect to proceed against the agent. Brown-Wright Hotel Supply Corp. v. Bagen, 112 Ga. App. 300, 145 S.E.2d 294, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (1965).

One who performs personal services at the request of the agent, who fails to disclose the principal for whom the request is made, may recover from the agent, where the person so elects, or the person may proceed against the principal, when made known, should the person not elect to proceed against the agent. Dinkler Mgt. Corp. v. Stein, 115 Ga. App. 586, 155 S.E.2d 442, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 1177 (1967).

If an agent buys in the agent's own name without disclosing the principal and the seller subsequently discovers that the purchase was in fact made for another, the seller may, at the seller's choice, look for payment either to the agent or the principal, even though the title has been made to the agent and the agent has been debited with the account. Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

To avoid personal liability, the agent must disclose fact of agency and identity of principal, and one who deals with agent who fails to disclose the principal may at one's election recover from either agent or principal. Collins v. Brayson Supply Co., 157 Ga. App. 438, 278 S.E.2d 87, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1860 (1981).

If the plaintiff did not take a default judgment against the undisclosed principal, no election was made as between the principal and agent, and the agent was subject to suit individually. Watson v. Sierra Contr. Corp., 226 Ga. App. 21, 485 S.E.2d 563, 1997 Ga. App. LEXIS 513 (1997).

Third person knowing of agency and making agent debtor cannot charge principal. — A wife cannot be held accountable unless her husband acted as her agent in the transaction, nor even then if the fact of agency was known to the seller and the seller extended credit to her agent, not to her. Fisher v. Darsey, 21 Ga. App. 583, 94 S.E. 839, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 415 (1918).

If at the time of the sale the seller knows not only that the person who is nominally dealing with the seller is not principal but agent, but also who the principal really is, and, notwithstanding all the knowledge, chooses to make the agent the seller's debtor, dealing with the seller and the seller alone, the seller must be taken to have abandoned the seller's recourse against the principal, and cannot afterwards, upon failure of the agent, turn round and charge the principal, having once made an election at the time when the seller had the power of choosing between the one and the other. Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

No recovery from agent after discovering agency and looking to principal. — If the creditor, when the creditor ascertains that there is a principal who is liable, accepts the principal as the debtor and looks exclusively to the principal, the creditor cannot afterwards recover from the agent. Miller v. Watt & Walker, 70 Ga. 385, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 342 (1883).

Agent receiving property for undisclosed principal does not take title. — Ruling that when the original tenant, having reserved no rights against the subtenant in the transfer of a note to the landlord and having claimed no interest in the property delivered to the original tenant by the subtenant, the proceeds of which the original tenant paid to the landlord in satisfaction of the transferred note, title never vested in the original tenant, is not altered by the fact that the subtenant may not have known that the subtenant's note to the tenant had been transferred to the landlord; when it appears without dispute that the original tenant did not accept the cotton as owner, but, even if under an assumed agency, received the cotton only for the landlord as principal, undisclosed both to the subtenant and the claimant. Watson v. Sudderth, 32 Ga. App. 383, 123 S.E. 143, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 413 (1924).

When extrinsic evidence admissible concerning agent being party to contract. — If it appears unambiguously in an integrated contract that the agent is a party or is not a party, extrinsic evidence is not admissible to show a contrary intent, except for the purpose of reforming the contract. If the fact of agency does not appear in an integrated contract, an agent who appears to be a party thereto cannot introduce extrinsic evidence to show that one is not a party except: (a) for the purpose of reforming the contract; or (b) to establish that one's name was signed as the business name of the principal and that it was so agreed by the parties. Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

When wife retains property, only slight evidence of husband's agency required. — When the wife retains property and enjoys the property, only slight evidence of the husband's agency in contracting the debt for the property is required to charge her. Pinkston v. Cedar Hill Nursery & Orchard Co., 123 Ga. 302, 51 S.E. 387, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 448 (1905).

If principal and agent are improperly joined, one may be dismissed. — When the plaintiff, having a right to elect whether the plaintiff will sue the agent or the undisclosed principal, improperly joins both in the same action, the plaintiff may exercise the right of election, proceed against one, and dismiss as to the other. Lippincott & Co. v. Behre, 122 Ga. 543, 50 S.E. 467, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 255 (1905).

Unpublished decision: Realty company was liable to a construction company for breaching oral agreements because, to avoid personal liability, the realty company had the duty to disclose that the company was acting solely as the principal's agent in making the oral contracts. Circle Y Constr., Inc. v. WRH Realty Servs., 427 Fed. Appx. 772, 2011 U.S. App. LEXIS 10629 (11th Cir. 2011).

Principal Liability

Third party's right as to such principal does not depend upon diligence. — Right to proceed against the principal, is not dependent on the diligence of the plaintiff in discovering the fact of the concealed agency. Baldwin v. Garrett & Sons, 111 Ga. 876, 36 S.E. 966, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 875 (1900); Beacham v. Coe-Mortimer Co., 30 Ga. App. 456, 118 S.E. 441, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 503 (1923); Barrington v. Davis Jenkins & Sons, 44 Ga. App. 682, 162 S.E. 642, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 453 (1932).

Upon discovery, third person may go against principal. — When a person enters a demand for cars, without at that time disclosing an agency for another, but it appears that at the time of shipment, it was disclosed that the cars were intended solely for the use of another and the bill of lading was issued in the name of the true owner, the carrier might in such case go directly against the principal for demurrage charges, upon the agency being disclosed. Central of Ga. Ry. v. Rabun, 21 Ga. App. 402, 94 S.E. 598, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 607 (1917).

If an agent fails to disclose the agent's principal, a person dealing with the former may, when the fact is discovered, go against the principal under the contract. United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

Right to proceed against principal depends on special agent's authority. — Right of a third person to elect to proceed against principal is confined to the liability arising from the actual authority given the agent, when the authority given is a special and limited one, and no question of apparent authority or estoppel was involved. Piel v. Snow's Laundry & Dry Cleaning Co., 92 Ga. App. 411, 88 S.E.2d 628, 1955 Ga. App. LEXIS 599 (1955).

If no agency or if undisclosed principal has settled, one is not directly liable. — If there was in fact no agency, or if the agency existed, but the undisclosed principal has previously accounted and settled with the agent, the plaintiff is authorized to go directly upon the principal. Price-Evans Foundry Co. v. Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 19 Ga. App. 264, 91 S.E. 283, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 90 (1917); Beacham v. Coe-Mortimer Co., 30 Ga. App. 456, 118 S.E. 441, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 503 (1923).

Question of fact as to relationship precludes summary judgment. — Question of fact remained as to whether the crematory was acting as the undisclosed agent of the funeral home in contracting with the widower for the cremation; therefore, summary judgment for the funeral home was reversed on the breach of contract claim as the record on appeal was unclear as to the exact nature of the relationship between the crematory and the funeral home such as whether the funeral home was a co-owner of the crematory along with several other funeral homes. Moore v. Lovein Funeral Home, Inc., 358 Ga. App. 10, 852 S.E.2d 876, 2020 Ga. App. LEXIS 686 (2020).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Section not applicable when principal undisclosed. — Provision of this section does not apply so long as the principal is undisclosed. Beacham v.

Coe-Mortimer Co., 30 Ga. App. 456, 118 S.E. 441, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 503 (1923).

Generally, contract does not bind principal unless it purports to be principals. — General rule is this: in order to bind a principal, on a contract made by an agent, it must purport on the contract's face to be the contract of the principal, and the principal's name must be asserted in the contract. It is not enough that the agent be described as such in the instrument. Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

Known principal cannot be held liable by third person dealing with agent. — Wife could not be held accountable under this section if the fact of agency was known to the seller, and the seller extended credit to her agent, not to her. Pinkston v. Cedar Hill Nursery & Orchard Co., 123 Ga. 302, 51 S.E. 387, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 448 (1905); Fisher v. Darsey, 21 Ga. App. 583, 94 S.E. 839, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 415 (1918).

When one with knowledge of the agent's authority to bind the agent's principal deals with the agent directly, and not with the principal, one cannot hold the principal liable. Morgan v. Georgia Paving & Constr. Co., 40 Ga. App. 335, 149 S.E. 426, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 153 (1929); Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

If an agent buys in the agent's own name, without disclosing the principal, and the seller subsequently discovers that the purchase was in fact made for another, the seller may, at the seller's choice, look for payment either to the agent or the principal, and that too, notwithstanding the title had been made to the agent, and the agent debited with the account. On the other hand, if at the time of the sale, the seller knows not only the person who is nominally dealing with the seller is not the principal but the agent, and also knows who the principal really is, and, notwithstanding all the knowledge, chooses to make the agent the seller's debtor, dealing with the agent and the agent alone, the seller must be taken to have abandoned the seller's recourse against the principal and cannot afterwards, upon failure of the agent, turn around and charge the principal, having once made the seller's election at the time when the seller had the power of choosing between the one and the other. Kingsberry Homes v. Findley, 242 Ga. 362, 249 S.E.2d 51, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1208 (1978).

Credit given exclusively to agent. — To constitute an election by the seller between a principal and agent, so that giving credit to the agent will prevent the seller from afterward demanding payment of the principal under this section, it should appear that the credit was given exclusively to the agent. Fontaine v. Eagle & Phenix Mfg. Co., 52 Ga. 31, 1874 Ga. LEXIS 231 (1874).

Principal is liable if agent not dealt with alone. — When a travel agent was defendant's disclosed agent in making arrangements for hotel accommodations with the plaintiff, the defendant paid the agent for the hotel charges, but the agent failed to pay the plaintiff, the defendant was bound for the unpaid debt since it did not appear that the plaintiff had chosen to make the agent its debtor, dealing with the agent alone, and that exclusive credit was given to the agent. Southeastern Foam Prods., Inc. v. Hilton Hotels Corp., 149 Ga. App. 372, 254 S.E.2d 494, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 1853 (1979).

When extrinsic evidence admissible concerning whether agent is party to contract. — If it appears unambiguously in an integrated contract that the agent is a party or is not a party, extrinsic evidence is not admissible to show a contrary intent, except for the purpose of reforming the contract. If the fact of agency does not appear in an integrated contract, an agent who appears to be a party thereto cannot introduce extrinsic evidence to show that the agent is not a party except: (a) for the purpose of reforming the contract; or (b) to establish that the agent's name was signed as the business name of the principal and that it was so agreed by the parties. 10-6-56. Effect of representations or concealment on principal.

The principal shall be bound by all representations made by his agent in the business of his agency and also by his willful concealment of material facts, although they are unknown to the principal and known only by the agent.

Orig. Code 1863, § 2177; Code 1868, § 2173; Code 1873, § 2199; Code 1882, § 2199; Civil Code 1895, § 3026; Civil Code 1910, § 3598; Code 1933, § 4-307.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Amplification of statute. — Former Code 1933, § 4-302, providing that the principal shall be bound by all the acts of the principal's agent within the scope of the principal's authority, was a mere amplification of former Code 1933, § 4-307, and the same was true of former Code 1933, § 4-315, insofar as it referred to scope of authority. Grant v. Hart, 197 Ga. 662, 30 S.E.2d 271, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 315 (1944).

Principal bound by agent's fraudulent conduct in its business. — Under this section, a corporation is bound by the fraudulent conduct of the corporation's agents engaged in the corporation's business and on that line of the business where it puts such agent to work. All deceit, misrepresentations, and falsehoods occurring in the course of business, whereby anybody is cheated, are the responsibility of the corporation. Scofield Rolling Mill Co. v. State, 54 Ga. 635, 1875 Ga. LEXIS 286 (1875).

Chapter 11 debtor's claim that the statute of limitations on the debtor's claim seeking recovery of transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 547 was tolled until one of the debtor's members learned that another member was misappropriating funds the member received from a lender failed as a matter of law because the debtor was an LLC and the debtor was bound under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-56 by the fraudulent conduct of the debtor's agents who were engaged in business where the debtor put those agents to work. Citrus Tower Blvd. Imaging Ctr., LLC v. Key Equip. Fin., Inc. (In re Citrus Tower Blvd. Imaging Ctr., LLC), 520 B.R. 892, 2014 Bankr. LEXIS 4745 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2014).

Fraudulent conduct in obtaining contract principal accepts. — Principal who accepts a contract procured by fraudulent conduct of an agent, regardless of such agent's authority, is bound by such fraudulent conduct of the agent in procuring such contract. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Kelly, 78 Ga. App. 10, 50 S.E.2d 113, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 668 (1948).

Representations by agent exceeding authority, if benefits are retained. — If one purporting to act as agent exceeds the agent's authority, the principal cannot ratify in part and repudiate in part, and therefore the principal cannot accept and retain the fruits of a contract so made by another in the principal's behalf without becoming bound by the representations of the person so purporting to act for the principal in consummating the agreement. Lancaster v. Neal, 41 Ga. App.

721, 154 S.E. 386, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 1072 (1930); Hawthorne Indus. v. Attaway Assocs., 153 Ga. App. 155, 264 S.E.2d 663, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1720 (1980).

Representation of each partner when employing partnership. — When an owner of property employs a partnership as the owner's agent to sell the property, the owner will be bound by the acts and representations of each of the partners within the real or apparent scope of the agency, although the owner may have dealt with the partnership through one of the partners only. Lancaster v. Neal, 41 Ga. App. 721, 154 S.E. 386, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 1072 (1930).

Agent to sell may agree principal will repay purchase money. — Agent authorized to sell mules on behalf of a principal has authority to agree with a purchaser that if a mule which appears to be sick does not recover, the seller will repay the purchase money. Turner Bros. v. Manley, 14 Ga. App. 215, 80 S.E. 680, 1914 Ga. App. LEXIS 178 (1914).

Right to presume insurance companies dealing through agents follow usual rules. — Under former Code 1868, §§ 2168 and 2173, those who deal with agents of foreign insurance companies have a right to presume that the companies conform to the usual rules. City Fire Ins. Co. v. Carrugi, 41 Ga. 660, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 164 (1871).

Agent has duty to communicate material facts. — Since knowledge of an agent is imputed to the principal by law and only by the agent's performance of this duty can the principal acquire actual knowledge and govern or protect oneself, an agent is under a duty to communicate to the principal all pertinent and material facts concerning any transaction entered into on behalf of the principal. Dawes Mining Co. v. Callahan, 246 Ga. 531, 272 S.E.2d 267, 1980 Ga. LEXIS 1184 (1980).

Effect of dual representation by agent. — Rule set out in O.C.G.A. § 10-6-56 is not negated by the equally well-established rule that neither principal is civilly liable to the other for the tortious acts of the dual agent of both unless there is collusion or participation in that conduct by the principal. Although the principal may be relieved of liability in tort, equity will not allow the principal to be relieved of responsibility for misrepresentations of the dual agent upon which the other principal relied to the principal's detriment when the action is in contract. Home Materials, Inc. v. Auto Owners Ins. Co., 250 Ga. 599, 300 S.E.2d 139, 1983 Ga. LEXIS 586 (1983).

One who issued and procured insurance held dual agent. — Acts of an individual in procuring liability insurance for a company, of which the individual was the chairman, and issuing liability insurance policies on behalf of an insurer of which the individual was the president, had been occurring and recurring for more than 30 years with the knowledge and consent of all parties, and made the individual a dual agent. The individual's misconduct in procuring a policy which did not cover certain acts of employees could not be imputed to either of the principals, who were not actually at fault. Edwards-Warren Tire Co. v. Cole, Sanford & Whitmire, 188 Ga. App. 395, 373 S.E.2d 83, 1988 Ga. App. LEXIS 1048 (1988).

Question of fraud is a jury question in action on agent's false and fraudulent representations to induce purchase of mules. Johnson v. Renfroe & McCrary, 73 Ga. 138, 1884 Ga. LEXIS 69 (1884).

Instruction as to agent's representations held not erroneous. — Charge of the court that "if in the prosecution of the master's business, the agent makes any representation with reference to the master's business, then such statements are imputable to the master," reasonably construed, restricted the statements of the agent to such portions of the master's business as came within the scope of the agency, and was not error for the assigned reason that the charge did not contain such a restriction. Grant v. Hart, 197 Ga. 662, 30 S.E.2d 271, 1944 Ga. LEXIS 315 (1944).

History.

Civil Code 1895, § 3006; Civil Code 1910, § 3578; Code 1933, § 4-308.

History of Code section.

This Code section is derived from the decisions in Howard v. Soule, 54 Ga. 52 (1875), and Bank of Univ. v. Tuck, 96 Ga. 456, 23 S.E. 467 (1895).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Payment to payee without notice of payee's lack of authority is valid defense. — If the maker pays an installment to the payee without notice that the payee had no authority to accept payment, in a suit by the transferee the maker can set up as a defense that the payment was made, even though the transferor has not remitted it to the transferee. Northside Bldg. & Inv. Co. v. Finance Co. of Am., 119 Ga. App. 131, 166 S.E.2d 608, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1013 (1969).

Careless maker may have to pay twice. — Holder, notwithstanding the previous payment of a note by the maker to the original payee, may collect it again, unless one of three things appears: first, that the payee was the holder's general agent for the collection of such papers; or, second, had special authority to collect in the particular instance; or, third, that the money collected by the payee in fact reached the holder's hands. If the payee collected for the holder under the payee's authority, either general or special, or if the holder actually received the money collected by the payee upon the note, this should be an end to the matter. Otherwise, the law renders the careless maker liable to pay a second time. Bank of Univ. v. Tuck, 96 Ga. 456, 23 S.E. 467, 1895 Ga. LEXIS 110 (1895).

Maker may have to pay twice if note is not produced, unless payee is agent for holder or money reaches holder. — If the maker of a negotiable promissory note pays it to the original payee without requiring the production and surrender of the note, the maker is liable to pay it again to an innocent holder who acquired title to it in good faith and for value before maturity, unless the payee was the holder's general agent for the collection of the note and had special authority to collect it, or the money collected thereon in fact reached the hands of the holder of the note. Northside Bldg. & Inv. Co. v. Finance Co. of Am., 119 Ga. App. 131, 166 S.E.2d 608, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1013 (1969).

Debtor should verify that agent possesses security. — If the debtor on a promissory note makes a payment thereon to one claiming to be an agent for collection, it is incumbent on the debtor to see that the agent is in possession of the security, for if the agent is not, the debtor will be liable to pay again, unless the person making the collection had authority to collect the sums due the principal or the money actually reached the owner. Walton Guano Co. v. McCall, 111 Ga. 114, 36 S.E. 469, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 494 (1900); Baker v. Armour Fertilizer Works, 18 Ga. App. 611, 90 S.E. 171, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 1138 (1916).

Ordinary prudence in requiring production of note protects maker. — General rule set out in this section will injure no one who exercises the ordinary degree of prudence in requiring the production of the note before one pays the note. Howard & Soule v. Rice, 54 Ga. 52, 1875 Ga. LEXIS 69 (1875).

Holder not in due course is subject to defense of payment in full. — One who acquires a promissory note, but is not a holder in due course, is subject to the defense of payment in full. Northside Bldg. & Inv. Co. v. Finance Co. of Am., 119 Ga. App. 131, 166 S.E.2d 608, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1013 (1969).

One who is not a holder cannot utilize this section. — Plaintiff, who is not a holder in due course, cannot avail itself of the provisions of this section. Northside Bldg. & Inv. Co. v. Finance Co. of Am., 119 Ga. App. 131, 166 S.E.2d 608, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1013 (1969).

Section is inapplicable if note to partnership is paid to partner. — This section has no application when payment on a note payable to a partnership is made to one partner. Brady v. Phillips Mule Co., 27 Ga. App. 444, 108 S.E. 809, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 953 (1921).

Production of written evidence of debt implies agent has authority to collect. — If payment is made on a written evidence of debt to a person as agent for another, the production of the written evidence of debt raises an implication of the person's authority as agent to receive the payment. Futch v. F.S. Royster Guano Co., 51 Ga. App. 305, 180 S.E. 368, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 675 (1935).

If evidence of debt not produced, payor must prove such authority. — If payment on a written evidence of debt is made to a person as agent for another, the production of the written evidence of debt raises an implication of the person's authority to receive the payment as agent, but when it is not produced there is no such implication, and the burden is upon the person making the payment to establish such authority. Dibble v. Law, 141 Ga. 364, 80 S.E. 999, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 204 (1914); Sherrod v. Springfield Baptist Church, 21 Ga. App. 200, 93 S.E. 1009, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 523 (1917); Brady v. Phillips Mule Co., 27 Ga. App. 444, 108 S.E. 809, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 953 (1921).

Proof that payment reached owner. — In a suit upon a promissory note, if the debtor shows that the debtor paid a part of it to a supposed agent of the holder of the note, but fails to show that the supposed agent produced the note at the time of payment, or that the money so collected ever reached the owner of the note, or that the alleged agent had specific authority to collect the note, no valid defense of partial payment is shown. Lane v. Bank of Thomasville, 23 Ga. App. 275, 97 S.E. 884, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 83 (1919).

If a debtor makes a payment to a supposed agent of a note creditor, without requiring the production of the note at the time of payment, so as to create by such production an implication of the agent's authority, the burden is upon the debtor to show: (1) that the payment actually reached the hands of the creditor; or (2) that the payee was a general agent of the creditor for the collection of such paper; or (3) that the payee had special authority from the creditor to collect the particular payment. Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. v. Franklin, 51 Ga. App. 496, 180 S.E. 869, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 383 (1935).

Section does not limit proof of authority. — This section does not preclude the debtor from establishing express or implied authority to collect otherwise than by showing production of the evidence of debt, nor from showing the subsequent ratification of the act by the creditor as principal. Roberts v. Bank of Eufaula, 20 Ga. App. 221, 92 S.E. 1015, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 824 (1917).

Regardless of whether an implication of authority to collect a debt before maturity may arise if the creditor's agent has possession of an instrument which is evidence of the debt, the debtor who has made a payment before maturity is not precluded from otherwise establishing the authority of the agent receiving such payment. Commercial Credit Corp. v. Noles, 85 Ga. App. 392, 69 S.E.2d 309, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 742 (1952).

Authority may be shown by course of dealing. — One who has held another out as one's lawful agent is estopped to deny the agent's acts within the apparent scope of the agent's authority and about the agent's principal's business; such authority may be established by proof of a long course of dealing by such agent in a similar manner for the principal. Futch v. F.S. Royster Guano Co., 51 Ga. App. 305, 180 S.E. 368, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 675 (1935).

Customary collection of similar notes. — In a suit on a promissory note, if the debtor shows that the debtor has paid a part of the note to a duly authorized agent of the holder of the note, who has possession of the note, and who also had specific authority to collect the note, by customarily collecting such notes for the holder, a valid defense of partial payment is shown. Futch v. F.S. Royster Guano Co., 51 Ga. App. 305, 180 S.E. 368, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 675 (1935).

Declarations of the alleged agent are insufficient to establish agency and authority to collect. Baker v. Armour Fertilizer Works, 18 Ga. App. 611, 90 S.E. 171, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 1138 (1916).

Production, not just possession, must be shown. — Affidavit of a witness setting forth newly discovered evidence did not furnish sufficient ground for the grant of a new trial since it merely stated that the alleged agent had the note "in his possession" but did not state that it was produced. Schaefer v. Schaefer, 46 Ga. App. 789, 169 S.E. 256, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 247 (1933).

General Consideration

Agent's notice of fact connected with agency is notice to principal. — Notice to an agent of a fact connected with the subject matter of the agency is notice to the agent's principal. Whitten v. Jenkins, 34 Ga. 297, 1866 Ga. LEXIS 89 (1866).

Notice to an agent in the business for which the agent is employed is notice to the principal. Wilensky v. Martin, 4 Ga. App. 187, 60 S.E. 1074, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 242 (1908).

When notice of a fact is communicated to a general agent, or to a special agent in absolute charge of a particular business, knowledge of all the facts suggested by the notice is imputable to the principal. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Davis, 42 Ga. App. 49, 155 S.E. 105, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 234 (1930).

Notice to an agent of any matter within the scope of the agency is notice to the principal. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Hartley, 275 F. Supp. 610, 1967 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7638 (M.D. Ga. 1967), aff'd, 389 F.2d 91, 1968 U.S. App. LEXIS 8540 (5th Cir. 1968).

If agents, as attorneys of claimant, were making an investigation in the interest of their client, then the claimant is chargeable with whatever notice such agents had. Deveney, Hood & Co. v. Burton, 110 Ga. 56, 35 S.E. 268, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 324 (1900).

If an attorney for a mortgagee had knowledge of an adverse claim to the property which was subsequently bought at an execution sale by the attorney as agent for the attorney's spouse, if the notice of the claim was still in the mind of the attorney at the time of the execution sale, such knowledge would be imputable to the attorney's spouse, notwithstanding that the attorney acted in the dual capacity of attorney for the mortgagee and of agent for the spouse. Faircloth v. Taylor, 147 Ga. 787, 95 S.E. 689, 1918 Ga. LEXIS 145 (1918).

Knowledge of a dual agent is imputable to both principals. Carlton v. Moultrie Banking Co., 170 Ga. 185, 152 S.E. 215, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 419 (1930).

Agent who proves false to principal. — Rule of this section is modified when an agent proves false to the principal. Loftin v. Great S. Home Benevolent Ass'n, 9 Ga. App. 121, 70 S.E. 353, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 432 (1911); Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Hartley, 275 F. Supp. 610, 1967 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7638 (M.D. Ga. 1967), aff'd, 389 F.2d 91, 1968 U.S. App. LEXIS 8540 (5th Cir. 1968).

Conspiracy with other party keeps section from applying. — Rule of former Civil Code 1910, § 3599 does not apply if an agent conspires with the other party. In such a case, the principal is not bound thereby nor charged with knowledge of the facts thus acquired by the agent under former Civil Code 1910, § 3600. Terry v. International Cotton Co., 138 Ga. 656, 75 S.E. 1044, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 647 (1912).

Imputation imposes duty on agent to disclose material facts. — Since knowledge of an agent is imputed to the principal by law and only by agent's performance of this duty can principal acquire actual knowledge and govern or protect oneself, an agent is under a duty to communicate to the agent's principal all pertinent and material facts concerning any transaction entered into on behalf of the principal. Dawes Mining Co. v. Callahan, 246 Ga. 531, 272 S.E.2d 267, 1980 Ga. LEXIS 1184 (1980).

Proof of agency is indispensable for section to apply. — While notice to the agency is notice to the principal, proof of the agency is indispensable; and the fact that one as father or friend gives information or advice in reference to a land trade does not make such friend the agent in the sense of the rule stated in this section. McNamara v. McNamara, 62 Ga. 200, 1879 Ga. LEXIS 481 (1879).

Knowledge acquired during authorized duties is imputable. — Knowledge of an agent which is imputable to a principal is the knowledge which is acquired during the performance of authorized duties. Estes v. Standard Fire Ins. Co., 66 Ga. App. 775, 19 S.E.2d 35, 1942 Ga. App. LEXIS 303 (1942).

Subject matter of notice must be connected with agency. — In order that notice to an agent may operate as notice to the principal, the subject matter of the notice must be connected with the agency. Pursley v. Stahley, 122 Ga. 362, 50 S.E. 139, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 206 (1905); Central of Ga. Ry. v. Americus Constr. Co., 133 Ga. 392, 65 S.E. 855, 1909 Ga. LEXIS 222 (1909).

If the person receiving notice is not the agent of the adverse party, or when the notice is on a matter in no wise connected with the agency, no implication that the party has received such notice arises. Cloud v. Bagwell, 83 Ga. App. 769, 64 S.E.2d 921, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 958 (1951).

Application

Notice to person whose actions are accepted by principal. — When H, holding a deed as security for a debt, sold the land under a power of sale and had it struck off to H, approached B, a money lender, and told B that H had bought B a farm, and B, being satisfied with the transaction, let H have the money and took a deed to the land, executing a title bond to H, B was put upon inquiry and chargeable with knowledge of facts invalidating the sale, by the sudden and unexpected communication from H and also by reason of the fact that H acted as H's own agent within this section. Wright v. Harris, 221 F. 736, 1915 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1620 (D. Ga.), aff'd, 228 F. 1021, 1915 U.S. App. LEXIS 2080 (5th Cir. 1915).

Notice to traveling salesperson for dealer. — If, after dissolution of a partnership, a former member of the firm, on being approached and offered goods for sale by a traveling salesperson for a dealer who, before the dissolution had sold goods to the firm, tells the salesperson that the member is no longer a member of the firm, this is notice of the dissolution to the dealer represented by the salesperson. Franklin Buggy Co. v. Carter, 21 Ga. App. 576, 94 S.E. 820, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 411 (1918).

Notice to agent is imputed to carrier. — General liability insurers of a contractor were held to have a duty to defend the owner of a real estate project because their agent had the actual or apparent authority to issue certificates of insurance to the owner, and to bind their obligations to the owner, under Georgia agency law. Sumitomo Marine & Fire Ins. Co. of Am. v. S. Guar. Ins. Co., 337 F. Supp. 2d 1339, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20097 (N.D. Ga. 2004).

Notice to agent for landlord dealing with tenant. — Notice of the defective condition of the property when given to the agent with whom the tenant dealt, under the instructions of the landlord, when the premises were rented and to whom the rents were paid is notice to the landlord. Wall Realty Co. v. Leslie, 54 Ga. App. 560, 188 S.E. 600, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 701 (1936).

Knowledge of employees of tourist camp operator failing to register guests. — It is not required that the owner or operator of a tourist camp be personally in actual charge of the register; if the owner's agents, servants, or employees are in charge thereof and fail to secure from the occupants of the cabins or rooms the registration and information required by Ga. L. 1945, p. 326, § 6, the owner or operator is responsible therefore under former Code 1933, §§ 4-309 and 4-311. Copeland v. Leathers, 206 Ga. 280, 56 S.E.2d 530, 1949 Ga. LEXIS 455 (1949).

Notice to a partner is notice to the partnership of which the partner is a member, and service upon the partner is service upon the firm. Render & Hammett v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 Ga. App. 716, 127 S.E. 902, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 702 (1925).

Notice to officer is notice to corporation. — Notice to an officer of a corporation, acting for it in connection with its business and within the scope of its agency, is notice to the principal. Holland v. McRae Oil & Fertilizer Co., 134 Ga. 678, 68 S.E. 555, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 321 (1910).

Ordinarily, a corporation is presumed to have notice of any material fact disclosed to any agent authorized to act in its behalf in the peculiar circumstances or with reference to the particular business or undertaking at hand. Wallis v. Heard, 16 Ga. App. 802, 86 S.E. 391, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 231 (1915).

Knowledge of the officers of a corporation is knowledge to that corporation, and the corporation is bound thereby. Stein Steel & Supply Co. v. Franco, 148 Ga. App. 186, 251 S.E.2d 74, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 3117 (1978).

Notice of a law firm's potential conflict of interest was directly imputable to a company as the company's president signed conflict letters while acting in connection with the company's business as well as the president's own. Accordingly, whether or not the company was a party to the original conflict letter, the company was charged with knowledge of the conflict of interest and of the law firm's role in the transactions at issue. Smith v. Morris, Manning & Martin, LLP, 293 Ga. App. 153, 666 S.E.2d 683, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 860 (2008), cert. denied, No. S08C2077, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 992 (Ga. Nov. 17, 2008).

Notice to president of bank. — Knowledge of a president of a bank that certain stock had not been fully paid up is imputable to the bank, if the president, acting for the bank and in the bank's behalf, accepted a transfer of the stock to the bank, and the bank thereunder retained the stock. Fouche & Fouche v. Merchants Nat'l Bank, 110 Ga. 827, 36 S.E. 256, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 644 (1900).

Notice to cashier. — Cashier of a bank is held out as the bank's general agent for the management of the bank's notes and other securities. Therefore, the same rule applies as to notice as in the case of other agents. Bank of St. Marys v. Mumford & Tyson, 6 Ga. 44, 1849 Ga. LEXIS 7 (1849); Lessee of Veasey v. Graham, 17 Ga. 99, 1855 Ga. LEXIS 74 (1855).

Actual notice of a dissolution given by one partner to the cashier of a bank, which sues upon a note thereafter executed at the instance of such cashier as the bank's representative by the other alleged partner in the name of the partnership, and payable to the plaintiff, is sufficient notice to the bank. Bennett v. Watson, 31 Ga. App. 367, 120 S.E. 802, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 949 (1923).

Notice to real estate agent. — In an action involving a defect in a home's septic system, the home buyers' agent was not entitled to summary judgment on a Brokerage Relationship in Real Estate Transactions Act (BRETA), O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., claim because while notice to the buyers' agent was notice to the buyers under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-58, a disputed issue existed as to whether the buyers' agent actually disclosed the information regarding the second pumping of the septic tank to the buyers. Davis v. Silvers, 295 Ga. App. 103, 670 S.E.2d 805, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 1217 (2008).

Notice to officer entering into contract with corporation. — If a director or other officer of a corporation is dealing in the director's behalf or in conjunction with others in making a contract with the corporation, the director becomes an adverse party, and notice to the director is not notice to the corporation. Wallis v. Heard, 16 Ga. App. 802, 86 S.E. 391, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 231 (1915).

Agent acting on own behalf. — While it is true that notice to the agent of any matter connected with the agency is notice to the principal, a corporation is not charged with notice to the corporation's officer or agent while the officer or agent is acting in the officer's or agent's private capacity and for the officer's or agent's own benefit with third persons. Boles v. Hartsfield Co., 50 Ga. App. 442, 178 S.E. 416, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 354 (1935).

Notice or knowledge of failure of consideration of a negotiable promissory note which the director of a bank sells to it before the maturity of the paper is not imputable to the bank, when in the transaction the seller did not act for it at all, but exclusively for the seller, and the bank was represented by another of the bank's officials, who alone acted for it. English-American Loan & Trust Co. v. Hiers, 112 Ga. 823, 38 S.E. 103, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 102 (1901).

Banking corporation is not charged with notice of facts which became known to its president while the president is dealing in the president's private capacity and in the president's own behalf with third persons. Peoples Bank v. Exchange Bank, 116 Ga. 820, 43 S.E. 269, 1902 Ga. LEXIS 287 (1902); Alsabrooks v. Bank of Sparta, 22 Ga. App. 693, 97 S.E. 111, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 690 (1918).

Knowledge of insurance agent is imputable to company. — If an agent knew the status of the title to property insured at the time of issuance of the policy, such knowledge will be notice to the company. Atlas Assurance Co. v. Kettles, 144 Ga. 306, 87 S.E. 1, 1915 Ga. LEXIS 177 (1915).

In the absence of anything in the policy limiting the insurance agent's authority, the agent's knowledge that the insured had a hernia condition which was not disabling to any extent prior to the issuance of the policy was imputed to the company, and the insured would not be barred from a recovery for sickness caused by the aggravation of such hernia after the policy was issued merely because of its preexistence. American Life Ins. Co. v. Stone, 78 Ga. App. 98, 50 S.E.2d 231, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 689 (1948).

When an authorized agent of an insurance company has actual knowledge of the existence of a fact concerning the status of the potential policyholder or prospect, which fact would have the effect of voiding the policy, but the insurance company issues a policy which contains a provision that the policy is void upon the existence of such fact, the insurance company is deemed to have waived such provision. The knowledge of the agent is imputed to the principal. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Standridge, 103 Ga. App. 442, 119 S.E.2d 585, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 962 (1961).

Unless there is a limitation on the authority of the agent in the application itself sufficient to put the proposed insured on notice of the limitation on the authority of the agent, the general rule applies that the knowledge of the agent is the knowledge of the principal. Canal Ins. Co. v. Bryant, 166 Ga. App. 483, 304 S.E.2d 565, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2217 (1983).

An insurance company had actual knowledge of an applicant's misrepresentation about prior cancellation of a policy because its own agency had secured the policy; the "agent" for purposes of application of this section was the insurance agency, not merely the individuals working for the agency. Graphic Arts Mut. Ins. Co. v. Pritchett, 220 Ga. App. 430, 469 S.E.2d 199.

Where authority of insurance agent has been circumscribed by policy. — Knowledge of local agents as to the fact that premium was not paid by the insureds before the loss was not imputable to the company, where the policy had been delivered at the time of the payments to the agents and the more comprehensive authority of the local agents had been reduced and circumscribed by the terms of the policy. Estes v. Standard Fire Ins. Co., 66 Ga. App. 775, 19 S.E.2d 35, 1942 Ga. App. LEXIS 303 (1942).

Employer is not insurer's agent in selecting insurer, policy, and coverage for employees. — In selecting a group insurer, in selecting a policy, and in selecting coverages to be afforded by the insurer, for contributing employees, employers act not as agents of the insurer but for their employees or for themselves. Dawes Mining Co. v. Callahan, 246 Ga. 531, 272 S.E.2d 267, 1980 Ga. LEXIS 1184 (1980).

Employer's knowledge is imputed to insurer as agent for making policy effective. — When an employer obtains a group insurance policy covering the employer's employees, the employee acts as agent of the insurance company for every purpose necessary to make effective the group policy, and the insurance company has imputed knowledge of facts which the employer knows. Dawes Mining Co. v. Callahan, 246 Ga. 531, 272 S.E.2d 267, 1980 Ga. LEXIS 1184 (1980).

Notice imputed to principal is actual, not constructive, notice. — Actual notice to an agent of any matter connected with the agency is also actual notice to the agent's principal and is not merely constructive notice to the latter. Prater v. Cox, 64 Ga. 706, 1880 Ga. LEXIS 396 (1880), overruled, Rodgers v. Elder, 108 Ga. 22, 33 S.E. 662, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 177 (1899); Hillyer v. Brogden, 67 Ga. 24, 1881 Ga. LEXIS 122 (1881); Deveney, Hood & Co. v. Burton, 110 Ga. 56, 35 S.E. 268, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 324 (1900); Union Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Ellis, 110 Ga. 494, 35 S.E. 780, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 566 (1900).

Actual notice to an agent can be imputed to the principal, but, even then, though the principal's information rests only on the implication that the agent has imparted the agent's knowledge, it is impliedly actual knowledge. Wiley v. Rome Ins. Co., 12 Ga. App. 186, 76 S.E. 1067, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 488 (1913).

Actual notice to the agent is imputed actual notice to the principal. Mumford v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 44 Ga. App. 623, 162 S.E. 661, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 788 (1931).

Actual notice to an agent of any matter connected with the agent's agency is also actual notice to the agent's principal and is not merely constructive notice to the latter. Copeland v. Leathers, 206 Ga. 280, 56 S.E.2d 530, 1949 Ga. LEXIS 455 (1949).

Expression, "constructive notice," used in Atlas Assurance Co. v. Kettles, 144 Ga. 306, 87 S.E. 1 (1915), was not used in its strict sense, but as meaning that knowledge of the agent at the time of the issuance of the policy would be imputed to the agent's principal. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Hughes, 145 Ga. 716, 89 S.E. 817, 1916 Ga. LEXIS 456 (1916).

Agent must have been acting in course of employment. — If the officer or agent at the time of the alleged knowledge or notice was not acting for the corporation or in pursuance of the corporation's business and in the course of the agent's employment and duties, it is not bound or affected. Georgia Power Co. v. Kinard, 47 Ga. App. 483, 170 S.E. 688, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 528 (1933).

No imputed knowledge shown. — Superior court did not err in granting a purchaser summary judgment in an administrator's action alleging that the purchaser aided and abetted an executor's breach of fiduciary duties when it bought properties from the executor because, assuming that an individual acted as agent for a purchaser in filing an affidavit seeking a dispossessory warrant prior to the purchase of properties, such evidence did not show that any knowledge by the individual and a second purchaser of the executor's alleged fraud, which they concealed for their own benefit, could be imputed to the purchaser; for similar reasons, the purchaser could not have ratified the alleged tortious conduct of the individual and the second purchaser. Witcher v. JSD Props., LLC, 286 Ga. 717, 690 S.E.2d 855, 2010 Ga. LEXIS 232 (2010).

Evidence

How principal proves no notice to agent. — Under former Civil Code 1895, §§ 3027 and 5160, if it was sought to charge a principal with notice, the principal was only required to offer the agent to whom the opposite party claimed the party gave the notice. The principal need not undertake to prove a negative by producing all of the principal's agents in order to show that each did not receive the notice. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Thornton, 119 Ga. 455, 46 S.E. 678, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 232 (1904).

Effect of proving want of notice to agent. — Proof that there was want of notice of a judgment against the principal on the part of an agent is not proof of want of such notice on the part of the principal. Eason v. Vandiver, 108 Ga. 109, 33 S.E. 873, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 195 (1899).

Jury questions were presented, in pleading alleging sickness resulting from the aggravation of a preexisting hernia, as to whether the disability was a sickness within the meaning of the insurance policy and as to whether the company had waived the defense that the hernia existed before the policy was written or was estopped from defending on that ground since it appeared that the company had knowledge of such hernia through the company's agent taking the application for the insurance. American Life Ins. Co. v. Stone, 78 Ga. App. 98, 50 S.E.2d 231, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 689 (1948).

History of Code section.
This Code section is derived from the decision in Freeman v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n, 90 Ga. 190, 15 S.E. 758 (1892).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

When agent acts for the agent, reason for O.C.G.A. § 10-6-58 ceases. — When the agent departs from the scope of the agency and begins to act for the agent and not for the principal, when the agent's private interest is allowed to outweigh the agent's duty as a representative, and when to communicate the information would prevent the accomplishment of the agent's fraudulent scheme, the agent becomes an opposite party, not an agent. The reason for the rule enunciated in former Code 1933, § 4-309 then ceases. Pursley v. Stahley, 122 Ga. 362, 50 S.E. 139, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 206 (1905).

Former Code 1933, § 4-309 was modified when an agent proves false to the agent's principal. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Hartley, 275 F. Supp. 610, 1967 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7638 (M.D. Ga. 1967), aff'd, 389 F.2d 91, 1968 U.S. App. LEXIS 8540 (5th Cir. 1968).

When agent is false. — Rule enunciated in former Civil Code 1910, § 3599 was modified when an agent proves false to the agent's principal and at the instance of a third party aids in the communication of false reports as to the insurability of an applicant for the purpose of benefiting the applicant and of defrauding the agent's principal. Loftin v. Great S. Home Benevolent Ass'n, 9 Ga. App. 121, 70 S.E. 353, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 432 (1911).

Rule of former Civil Code 1910, § 3599 did not apply when an agent conspired with the other party. In such a case the principal was not bound thereby nor charged with knowledge of the facts thus acquired by the agent. Terry v. International Cotton Co., 138 Ga. 656, 75 S.E. 1044, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 647 (1912).

When notice to agent will not be imputed to principal. — Notice to the agent will not be imputed to the principal: (1) when it is such as it is the agent's duty not to disclose; (2) when the agent's relations to the subject matter, or the agent's previous conduct, render it uncertain that the agent will not disclose it; and (3) when the person claiming the benefit of the notice, or those whom the agent represents, colluded with the agent to cheat or defraud the principal. Faircloth v. Taylor, 147 Ga. 787, 95 S.E. 689, 1918 Ga. LEXIS 145 (1918).

A could read and write, but was inexperienced in business. B had been A's attorney, and A owed B $50. At B's request, and to enable B to raise the money, A agreed to give a note therefor. The agent fraudulently made a note for $500, instead of $50, and procured A to sign it. The note was made payable to X, who had money to lend and who was a client of B. The money was advanced on the note to B, but none was paid over by X to A. It was held that the lender was not charged with notice of the agent's fraud. Pursley v. Stahley, 122 Ga. 362, 50 S.E. 139, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 206 (1905).

Notice to the agent will not be imputed to the principal when the person claiming the benefit of the notice colluded with the agent to cheat or defraud the principal. Boles v. Hartsfield Co., 50 Ga. App. 442, 178 S.E. 416, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 354 (1935).

When an agent ceases to act for the agent's principal and begins to act in the agent's own best interest or conspire with another to the detriment of the agent's principal, the agent's knowledge is no longer imputed to the agent's principal. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Hartley, 275 F. Supp. 610, 1967 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7638 (M.D. Ga. 1967), aff'd, 389 F.2d 91, 1968 U.S. App. LEXIS 8540 (5th Cir. 1968).

Conspiracy with agent not proved. — Defense set up by the defendant insurer, that the plaintiff conspired with the agent of the insurance company to obtain the policies, was not supported by any evidence. Guaranty Life Ins. Co. v. Brown, 92 Ga. App. 847, 90 S.E.2d 97, 1955 Ga. App. LEXIS 729 (1955).

General Consideration

O.C.G.A. § 10-6-60 must be construed in pari materia with O.C.G.A. § 10-6-61; the distinction is that under § 10-6-60 the principal is liable for fraud or neglect of the principal's agent "in the transaction of the principal's business." The "assent" of the principal which under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-61 binds the principal to the willful trespass is deemed to exist implicitly where the act was "in the transaction of the principal's business." There is no conflict in these two statutes. Sasser v. Mixon Contracting, Inc., 181 Ga. App. 710, 353 S.E.2d 525, 1987 Ga. App. LEXIS 1546 (1987).

Common law. — This section, which lays down the general rule, also follows the common law. Robinson v. Huidekoper,

98 Ga. 306, 25 S.E. 440, 1896 Ga. LEXIS 34 (1896).

Gratuitous bailments. — Former Code 1882, §§ 2201 and 2961 did not vary the rule in respect to gratuitous bailments inasmuch as the degree of diligence touching such bailments is no higher under these sections than at common law. Merchants Nat'l Bank v. Guilmartin, 88 Ga. 797, 15 S.E. 831, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1892).

Principal is responsible for the torts of the agent when the agent is acting on behalf of the principal. DeDaviess v. U-Haul Co., 154 Ga. App. 124, 267 S.E.2d 633, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2068 (1980).

Agent's acts in line of duty. — What an agent did in the line of duty devolved upon the agent by the superior will make the superior responsible under former Code 1873, §§ 2194 and 2201. Maddox & Rucker v. Cunningham, 68 Ga. 431, 1882 Ga. LEXIS 24 (1882).

In determining the liability of the master for the negligent or willful acts of a servant, the test of liability is not whether the act was done during the existence of the employment, but whether it was done within the scope of the actual transaction of the master's business for accomplishing the ends of the servant's employment. McGhee v. Kingman & Everett, Inc., 49 Ga. App. 767, 176 S.E. 55, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 554 (1934).

In order to hold an automobile dealer liable for injuries inflicted by an automobile while being operated by a salesperson, the relation of master and servant must exist and the servant must, at the time, have been acting within the scope of the servant's employment in performing an act for the master's benefit. Nichols v. G.L. Hight Motor Co., 63 Ga. App. 155, 10 S.E.2d 439, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 27 (1940) (nonsuit granted dealer reversed), commented on in3 Ga. B.J. 63 (1940).

No matter how much authority a general agent may have, it is not to be presumed that the agent has authority to commit a tort, and in order to hold the defendant corporation liable for the act of the corporation's officer, such tort must have been committed during the prosecution of the business of the corporation as a part thereof or by authority of the corporation or be ratified by the corporation or assented to. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Principal responsible if principal accepts contract procured by agent. — Principal who accepts a contract procured by fraudulent conduct of an agent, regardless of such agent's authority, is bound by such fraudulent conduct of the agent in procuring such contract. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Kelly, 78 Ga. App. 10, 50 S.E.2d 113, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 668 (1948).

When command or assent need not be shown. — Principal may be liable for the willful tort of the principal's agent, done in the prosecution and within the scope of the principal's business, although it is not expressly shown that the principal either commanded the commission of the willful act or assented to the act. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. Baker, 181 Ga. 161, 181 S.E. 671, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1935).

If the tort of the agent is committed in the prosecution and within the scope of the principal's business, it is done with the implied command or assent of the principal, and in such case it is unnecessary to make proof of an express command or assent. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. Baker, 181 Ga. 161, 181 S.E. 671, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1935).

General rule applies to either agent or servant. — Whether tort-feasor was an agent or a servant makes no difference in applying the doctrine of respondeat superior; if the servant's or agent's wrongful acts were in the prosecution of the defendant's business and within the scope of the employment, then the defendant is liable for such tortious conduct of the servant or agent, as the case may be. Prince v. Brickell, 87 Ga. App. 697, 75 S.E.2d 288, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 831 (1953).

To end general employer's liability, new employment must clearly appear. — To show that the general employee or agent of one person has become the employee of another, with the effect of ending the general employer's responsibility for the acts of the agent, the new relation of the parties must clearly appear. Fleming v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., 89 Ga. App. 837, 81 S.E.2d 529, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 593 (1954).

Agent's nonfeasance. — If the appellant's agent for any reason fails to perform the agent's duty, the fault is chargeable to the principal and inures to the benefit of the opposite party. Broussard v. Brandenberg, 8 Ga. App. 795, 70 S.E. 159, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 150 (1911).

Agent's misfeasance. — While an agent is personally liable to those injured by the agent's misfeasance, the agent is not ordinarily liable for mere nonfeasance, under former Code 1933, §§ 4-311 and 4-409. Kimbrough v. Boswell, 119 Ga. 201, 45 S.E. 977, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 86 (1903).

Liability when duty is owed by principal. — Agent is not liable to third persons for the failure of the principal to discharge affirmative duties which the principal may owe. Verddier v. Neal Blun Co., 128 Ga. App. 321, 196 S.E.2d 469, 1973 Ga. App. LEXIS 1471 (1973).

Only fraud preventing reading what is signed will relieve party. — Only fraud which would relieve a party from an obligation which the party has signed, when that party can read and write and is not otherwise under any disability, is that fraud which prevents the party from reading what the party signed. Wall v. Federal Land Bank, 156 Ga. App. 368, 274 S.E.2d 753, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2985 (1980).

Blind reliance unjustified. — No actionable fraud was demonstrated because as a matter of law the defendant's blind reliance upon any representation about the principal without any attempt whatsoever at direct contact with the principal was unjustified. B & W Pipeline, Inc. v. Newton County Bank, 181 Ga. App. 684, 353 S.E.2d 829, 1987 Ga. App. LEXIS 1529 (1987).

Alleging principal by principal's agent committed wrongful act sufficiently pleads agency. — One of the ways of pleading that agency existed so as to make alleged principal responsible for the wrongful acts of the agent is to allege by a simple direct statement that the defendant principal by the principal's agent committed the wrongful act. Garver v. Smith, 90 Ga. App. 892, 84 S.E.2d 693, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 843 (1954).

Connection of act with employment must be alleged. — Principal or master being responsible for the negligent acts of the agent or servant only when done by command or within the scope of the employment, it is necessary, in an action seeking to charge one for the acts of another upon the theory that the latter was agent for the former, that the plaintiff's pleading should disclose, either expressly or by necessary implication, not only the existence of the agency, but also the connection of the act with the employment. Bates v. Southern Ry., 52 Ga. App. 576, 183 S.E. 819, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 184 (1936).

Agent's false parol representations may be shown. — Statements and representations in parol made by an agent of one of the parties to a contract, which are offered for the purpose of showing that they were falsely and fraudulently made for the purpose of procuring the execution of the contract and that therefore no valid contract is in existence, are not subject to the objection that they are matters in parol in contradiction to the terms of a written instrument. Edge v. Alertox, Inc., 47 Ga. App. 598, 171 S.E. 181, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 573 (1933).

Error not to vacate nonsuit. — Since there was evidence that defendant's explosives sales agent, in advising and instructing a county engineer as to the method of detonation and the quantities of explosives necessary to blast rock from the county's quarry, was acting in the scope of the agent's employment and in the prosecution of the defendant's business, and was not subject to the county's control in the performance of the agent's duties connected with the sales of explosives, and that, as a result of the negligence of the defendant's agent in instructing the county engineer to use a large quantity of explosives, to be detonated in a short time, a blast was performed in the county's quarry according to the instructions given, thereby causing the damage to the plaintiff's house as alleged, the court erred in refusing to vacate judgment on nonsuit and reinstate the plaintiffs' case. Fleming v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., 89 Ga. App. 837, 81 S.E.2d 529, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 593 (1954).

Instruction based on section proper when agent's act was unintentional. — If a trespass committed by an agent for the agent's principal is not denied, but is claimed to have been unintentional, it is proper to instruct the jury, on this issue, that "the principal is bound for the care, diligence, and fidelity of his agent in his business". Crockett Bros. v. Sibley, 3 Ga. App. 554, 60 S.E. 326, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 370 (1908).

Specific Examples

Independent contractor. — Principle of law that a master or employer is liable for a tort committed by the master's or employer's servant or employee about the master's business or within the course of the employee's employment is not applicable in a case where the relation between the parties is that of principal or employer and independent contractor. Whitehall Chevrolet Co. v. Anderson, 53 Ga. App. 406, 186 S.E. 135, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 135 (1936).

Conductor of train is alter ego of carrier. — Conductor of the train is the alter ego of the carrier with respect to the care of passengers on a railroad train and the duty of making contracts for passage, between points on the conductor's run, with persons who are permitted to board the train without tickets. Williamson v. Central of Ga. Ry., 127 Ga. 125, 56 S.E. 119, 1906 Ga. LEXIS 769 (1906).

Operator of tourist camp is liable for nonregistration of guests by employees. — It was not required that the owner or operator of a tourist camp be personally in actual charge of the register; if the owner's agents, servants, or employees were in charge thereof, and fail to secure from the occupants of the cabins or rooms the registration and information required by Ga. L. 1945, p. 326, § 6, the owner or operator was responsible therefor under former Code 1933, §§ 4-309 and 4-311. Copeland v. Leathers, 206 Ga. 280, 56 S.E.2d 530, 1949 Ga. LEXIS 455 (1949).

Seller of explosives is liable for agent's negligence in instructing use. — If a company by the company's agent gives instructions for the use of the company's explosive products, the company is liable for the company's negligence in giving such instructions, in connection with the sale of the company's products. Fleming v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., 89 Ga. App. 837, 81 S.E.2d 529, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 593 (1954).

Bank officer cannot release debtors short of payment of debt. — Despite this section, a bank officer, with or without apparent authority, cannot compromise the institution the officer represents by promising proposed debtors of the bank that the debtors will be granted a release from the debtors' obligations short of payment of the debt. Wall v. Federal Land Bank, 156 Ga. App. 368, 274 S.E.2d 753, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2985 (1980).

Special trust in bank or officers does not allow reliance on oral communications. — Even if a party places special trust and confidence in a bank or the bank's officers, this does not create a confidential or fiduciary relationship which would entitle the party seeking to avoid an obligation to the bank by alleging reliance upon oral communications between the bank officers and that party which might otherwise vitiate the transaction. Wall v. Federal Land Bank, 156 Ga. App. 368, 274 S.E.2d 753, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2985 (1980).

General Consideration

Meaning of "trespass". — In its broader sense, a "trespass" comprehends any misfeasance, transgression, or offense which damages another person's health, reputation, or property. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Any abuse of, or damage done to, the personal property of another, unlawfully, is a "trespass" for which damages may be recovered. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Summary judgment for a lender in an owner's suit claiming that the lender trespassed on the owner's property was proper because the security deed provided that the lender was allowed to take action to preserve the lender's interest in the property in the event of a default on the payments, and the owners admitted the owners were in default of those payments; further, both of the owners admitted that the owners had no evidence that the lender authorized anyone to remove the personal property from the home. Tacon v. Equity One, Inc., 280 Ga. App. 183, 633 S.E.2d 599, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 786 (2006).

Former Code 1933, §§ 4-312 and 105-108 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6-61 and 51-2-2) should be construed together, so as to harmonize the statutes and allow both to remain of force, in the cases to which the statutes were applicable. Western & Atl. R.R. v. Turner, 72 Ga. 292, 1884 Ga. LEXIS 258 (1884); Toole Furn. Co. v. Ellis, 5 Ga. App. 271, 63 S.E. 55, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 91 (1908); Mason v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry., 135 Ga. 741, 70 S.E. 225, 1911 Ga. LEXIS 71 (1911); Southeastern Fair Ass'n v. Wong Jung, 24 Ga. App. 707, 102 S.E. 32, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 475 (1920), aff'd, 151 Ga. 85, 105 S.E. 847, 1921 Ga. LEXIS 157 (1921).

Former Code 1933, §§ 4-312 and 105-108, being in pari materia, must be construed together. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. Baker, 181 Ga. 161, 181 S.E. 671, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1935).

Former Code 1933, § 4-312 was in pari materia with former Code 1933, § 105-108, and must be construed therewith and the two sections harmonized. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

O.C.G.A. § 10-6-61 must be construed in pari materia with § 51-2-2 and, so construed, means that the principal may be liable if trespass was committed by the principal's implied command or implied assent; and if committed within scope of agency, implication will arise as a matter of law. Melton v. LaCalamito, 158 Ga. App. 820, 282 S.E.2d 393, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2432 (1981).

O.C.G.A. § 10-6-61 must be construed in pari materia with O.C.G.A. § 10-6-60; the distinction is that under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-60 the principal is liable for fraud or neglect of the principal's agent "in the transaction of the principal's business." The "assent" of the principal which under § 10-6-61 binds the principal to the willful trespass is deemed to exist implicitly if the act was "in the transaction of the principal's business." There is no conflict in these two statutes. Sasser v. Mixon Contracting, Inc., 181 Ga. App. 710, 353 S.E.2d 525, 1987 Ga. App. LEXIS 1546 (1987).

Master liable for servant's willful torts if done in prosecution of master's business. — While former Code 1933, § 4-312 declared that "the principal is not liable for the willful trespass of his agent, unless done by his command or asserted to by him," § 51-2-2 makes a person liable "for torts committed by his servant, by his command or in the prosecution and within the scope of his business, whether the same is by negligence or voluntary." Thus, a master is deemed to have impliedly "assented" to and becomes liable for the willful torts of the master's servant only when the torts are committed "in the prosecution and within the scope of his business," and notwithstanding that, under common law and earlier decisions, an employer was not liable for the malicious and intentional torts of an employee, although committed while forwarding the employer's business; the rule is that a master is liable for the willful torts of the master's servant, committed in the course of the servant's employment, just as though the master had personally committed the torts. Gomez v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 48 Ga. App. 398, 172 S.E. 750, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 87 (1934).

Master is not liable for act done wholly for servant's purpose. — If the servant acts not in the prosecution of the master's business or within the scope of such business, the master cannot be held liable, no matter how wanton or willful the conduct of the servant, so that if the servant, wholly for a purpose of the servant's own, disregarding the object for which the servant is employed, and not intending by the servant's act to execute it, does an injury to another not within the scope of the servant's employment, the master is not liable. But if the act is done in the execution of the authority given the servant by the servant's master and for the purpose of performing what the master has directed, the master will be responsible, whether the wrong done is occasioned by negligence or by a wanton or reckless purpose to accomplish the master's business in an unlawful manner. Gomez v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 48 Ga. App. 398, 172 S.E. 750, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 87 (1934).

Principal is liable for agent's willful trespass if principal commands or assents to trespass. — While a principal is not, as a general rule, liable for the willful trespass of the principal's agent, yet, if the trespass is committed by the principal's command, or if it is assented to by the principal, the principal is liable under this section. Byne v. Hatcher, 75 Ga. 289, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 119 (1885); Crockett Bros. v. Sibley, 3 Ga. App. 554, 60 S.E. 326, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 370 (1908).

Principal's command or assent is implied as matter of law. — Former Code 1933, § 105-108 was not contrary to former Code 1933, § 4-312, because former Code 1933, § 4-312 properly construed did not mean the principal was not liable for the willful trespass of the principal's agent unless done by the principal's express command or assent, but the principal may be liable if the trespass was committed by the principal's implied command or implied assent, and if committed within the scope of the agency, the implication will arise as a matter of law. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. Baker, 181 Ga. 161, 181 S.E. 671, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1935); Conney v. Atlantic Greyhound Corp., 81 Ga. App. 324, 58 S.E.2d 559, 1950 Ga. App. LEXIS 888 (1950).

If the tort of the agent is committed in the prosecution and within the scope of the principal's business, it is done with the implied command or assent of the principal, and in such case it is unnecessary to make proof of an express command or assent. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. Baker, 181 Ga. 161, 181 S.E. 671, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1935).

If an agent commits a trespass in the prosecution of the corporation's business, it is by implication of law committed by command of the principal or with the principal's consent. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Since the determinative question in a case of a principal's liability is whether the act of the agent is done in the prosecution and within the scope of the principal's business, either command or assent can be implied. Greenbaum v. Brooks, 110 Ga. App. 661, 139 S.E.2d 432, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 730 (1964).

If an agent commits a trespass in the prosecution of the principal's business, it is by implication of law committed by command of the principal or with the principal's consent. Chrysler Corp. v. Wilson Plumbing Co., 132 Ga. App. 435, 208 S.E.2d 321, 1974 Ga. App. LEXIS 1717 (1974).

Same rules apply to agent and servant. — There should not be made any distinction between the relationships of principal and agent and that of master and servant, so as to make different rules of liability apply, according to the nature of the relationship. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. Baker, 181 Ga. 161, 181 S.E. 671, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1935).

Whether tort-feasor was an agent or a servant makes no difference in applying the doctrine of respondeat superior; if the tort-feasor's wrongful acts were in the prosecution of the defendant's business and within the scope of the employment, then the defendant is liable for such tortious conduct of the defendant's servant or agent, as the case may be. Prince v. Brickell, 87 Ga. App. 697, 75 S.E.2d 288, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 831 (1953).

Evidence

Jury charge on ratification. — It was not error for the court, in giving in charge to the jury the language of this section, to add, after the words "by his command or assented to by him," the words "or ratifies it." Crockett Bros. v. Sibley, 3 Ga. App. 554, 60 S.E. 326, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 370 (1908).

Command or assent need not be expressly shown. — Principal may be liable for the willful tort of the principal's agent, done in the prosecution and within the scope of the principal's business, although it is not expressly shown that the principal either commanded the commission of the willful act or assented to the act. Planters Cotton Oil Co. v. Baker, 181 Ga. 161, 181 S.E. 671, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1935).

Application

Fact tort-feasor is director or officer does not make corporation liable. — Mere fact that one who commits a tort is a director in a corporation does not, without more, render the corporation liable therefor. Strickland v. Bank of Cartersville, 141 Ga. 565, 81 S.E. 886, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 57 (1914).

Mere fact that one who commits a tort is a director and officer of a corporation does not, without more, render the corporation liable. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Corporation liable when tort-feasor acted in prosecution of corporation's business or with corporation's authority or act was ratified. — No matter how much authority a general agent may have, it is not to be presumed that the agent has authority to commit a tort, and, in order to hold the defendant corporation liable for the act of the corporation's officer, such tort must have been committed during the prosecution of the business of the corporation as a part thereof or by authority of the corporation or be ratified by the corporation or assented to. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Liability of corporation when acts in themselves violate duty owed by corporation. — Corporation is not liable for the malicious acts of the corporation's agent or officer unless the acts are authorized, or were within the scope of the agent's duties, or were in themselves a violation of a duty owed by the corporation to the party injured, or such acts were ratified by the corporation. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Liability of corporation for slander. — Corporation may only be liable for slander expressly ordered or directed, and in slander situations only for those words spoken by the corporation's command. Church of God, Inc. v. Shaw, 194 Ga. App. 694, 391 S.E.2d 666, 1990 Ga. App. LEXIS 292 (1990), cert. denied, No. S90C0806, 1990 Ga. LEXIS 770 (Ga. Apr. 5, 1990).

No liability if principal neither owes duty nor negligently fails to prevent servant's act. — Neither a carrier nor one who furnishes to a carrier terminal facilities for taking on passengers, owing a duty to one who is a passenger, violates that duty through any act of a servant towards the passenger, when servant committing the act has not been intrusted with the performance of any duty owing by master to passenger and when master is not negligent in failing to anticipate, or to prevent, the performance of the act of the servant. Massengale v. Atlanta, B. & C.R.R., 46 Ga. App. 484, 168 S.E. 111, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 112 (1933).

Principal is liable in a proper case for malicious prosecution, if the prosecution is conducted by the agent in furtherance of the business of the principal and within the scope of the agent's authority. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Principal is liable for malicious prosecution only if agent acted within scope of employment or at principal's command. — If it is alleged in a suit for damages for malicious prosecution that the prosecution was instituted by the agent of the defendant, it must be proved that the agent was at that time acting within the scope of the agent's employment or at the direction or command of the agent's principal. The plaintiff having failed to prove the plaintiff's case as laid in the plaintiff's pleading the court did not commit error in granting a nonsuit. Glass v. Brittain Bros. Co., 21 Ga. App. 634, 94 S.E. 814, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 445 (1918).

In order for a bank to be held liable for a malicious prosecution instigated by a false statement made by the bank's agent or the bank's executive vice-president, it must appear that the bank authorized such malicious prosecution and that the prosecution was done by the officer and agent, acting within the scope of the officer's or agent's employment or at the discretion or command of the bank. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Authority to agent must affirmatively appear. — Bank is not liable for a malicious prosecution in which the bank's vice-president participated, encouraged and aided, and purported to act for the corporation, since it does not affirmatively appear that the bank authorized the vice-president to engage in such prosecution or aid and abet therein or that the bank assented thereto or ratified the prosecution. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Banking corporation is not liable for damages resulting from a false statement maliciously and willfully made by the bank's executive vice-president, thereby inducing another to institute without probable cause and maliciously a criminal prosecution against another, even when in making such false statement the officer of the corporation was acting in the officer's capacity as such officer and for the corporation, and within the scope of the officer's agency with the corporation, unless it affirmatively appears that such officer had authority from the corporation to make such false statement. King v. Citizens Bank, 88 Ga. App. 40, 76 S.E.2d 86, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1004 (1953).

Liability of principal for malicious arrest by agent. — Principal is not liable for a malicious arrest by an agent, which was beyond the scope of the agent's authority and neither authorized or ratified by the principal. Fire Ass'n v. Fleming, 78 Ga. 733, 3 S.E. 420, 1887 Ga. LEXIS 62 (1887).

Liability of principal for assault and battery by agent. — If the agent of a corporation engaged in the business of selling certain commercial products manufactured by the corporation committed an unprovoked assault and battery upon the plaintiff, inflicting upon the plaintiff severe personal injuries, the plaintiff could not maintain a suit for damages against the corporation on this account, although it knew that the agent was a person of violent temper and in fact had employed the agent because it knew that the agent was a man prone to make unprovoked attacks upon others; it not appearing that the corporation authorized the assault or that the corporation assented to the tort complained of. Murphey v. New S. Brewery & Ice Co., 145 Ga. 561, 89 S.E. 704, 1916 Ga. LEXIS 401 (1916).

It appearing from the plaintiff's pleading that the alleged injury arose from an assault by a person alleged to be the manager of the defendant corporation; that the plaintiff approached the office of the corporation, not for the purpose of transacting any sort of business, but from mere idle curiosity, to hear a conversation between the manager and a third person; that the assault did not arise from the business of the corporation or in connection with the assailant's duties as manager, but arose from a merely personal altercation; and that the assailant left the corporation's place of business and struck the plaintiff on steps, which, though alleged to have been used jointly by the corporation and by a hotel company as an entrance, are not alleged to have been a part of the defendant's premises, the pleading does not show liability on the part of the corporation. Daniel v. Excelsior Auto Co., 31 Ga. App. 621, 121 S.E. 692, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 102 (1924).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Undisclosed principal is entitled to benefits of agent's contracts and acts. — Governing principle is that an undisclosed principal, as the ultimate party in interest, is entitled, against third persons, to all advantages and benefits of acts and contracts of the principal's agent. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Coastal Serv., Inc., 103 Ga. App. 133, 118 S.E.2d 710, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 884 (1961).

Injury to other party by substitution. — If an agent makes a contract for the agent's principal but conceals the fact that the agent is an agent, the principal may claim the benefits of the contract so far as the principal can do so without injury to the other party by the substitution of the principal for the agent. Planters Gin & Whse. Co. v. Pitts Banking Co., 24 Ga. App. 731, 102 S.E. 183, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 492 (1920).

Undisclosed principal may sue upon simple contract made in agent's name. — If a simple contract, oral or written was made with an agent in the agent's own name, and the principal was undisclosed, the latter may claim its fruits and sue upon it under former Code 1873, §§ 2197 and 2204, even though the agent also might sue. Spain v. W.H. Beach & Son, 52 Ga. 494, 1874 Ga. LEXIS 331 (1874); Atlanta & W. Point R.R. v. Texas Grate Co., 81 Ga. 602, 9 S.E. 600, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 287 (1888).

Suit on contract disclosing agency but not principal's name. — Principal may sue for breach of a written contract entered into by the principal's agent, if the instrument disclosed on the instrument's face that the agent was contracting as such and fails to disclose the name of the principal. Washington Mfg. Co. v. Callaway, 144 Ga. 89, 86 S.E. 225, 1915 Ga. LEXIS 60 (1915).

Undisclosed principal may recover damages for delay in delivery of telegram sent by agent. — If an agent sends a telegram for an undisclosed principal, the principal may maintain an action in the principal's own name for damages resulting from unreasonable delay in the telegram's transmission or delivery. Ruan v. Gunn, 77 Ga. 53, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 282 (1886); Rosser, Armistead & Co. v. Darden, 82 Ga. 219, 7 S.E. 919, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 394 (1888); Dodd Grocery Co. v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., 112 Ga. 685, 37 S.E. 981, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 56 (1901); Propeller Tow-Boat Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 124 Ga. 478, 52 S.E. 766, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 754 (1905); Seifert v. Western Union Tel. Co., 129 Ga. 181, 58 S.E. 699, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 328 (1907).

Undisclosed principal's rights are subject to claims against agent. — Rights of an undisclosed principal are subject to claims acquired in good faith against the agent. Standard Brick & Tile Co. v. Posey, 56 Ga. App. 686, 193 S.E. 613, 1937 Ga. App. LEXIS 205 (1937).

Defenses. — If the agency has been concealed, the party dealing with the agent may set up any defense against the principal which the party has against the agent. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Coastal Serv., Inc., 103 Ga. App. 133, 118 S.E.2d 710, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 884 (1961).

Third person who contracts in ignorance of the existence of a principal can set up against the principal, who sues upon the contract, any defenses and equities which the third person could have set up against the agent, had the agent's been in reality the principal suing on the principal's own behalf. Standard Brick & Tile Co. v. Posey, 56 Ga. App. 686, 193 S.E. 613, 1937 Ga. App. LEXIS 205 (1937).

Third person must have no notice of agency for application of defenses. — In a suit by principal, in order for third person to avail oneself of any equities, defenses, setoffs, or counterclaims one has against agent only, one must be innocent of any knowledge of facts and circumstances which would put a reasonably prudent person on inquiry that one is dealing with an agent; and, although the agent acts in the agent's own name, if the third person knows or has reason to believe that the third person is dealing with one who is agent of another, the third person cannot successfully set up such a defense or setoff. Standard Brick & Tile Co. v. Posey, 56 Ga. App. 686,

If principal gives indicia of authority to sell, principal cannot follow property. — If one gives to another such evidence of the right of selling the goods of the former as, according to the custom of trade or the common understanding of the world, usually accompanies the authority of disposal, or has given the external indicia of the right of disposing of the property, one loses the right of following it; a sale to a fair purchaser divests the first title, and the authority to sell, whether real or apparent, is good against the party who gave it, though the confidence of the principal is abused by the possessor of such indicia. Rosser, Armistead & Co. v. Darden, 82 Ga. 219, 7 S.E. 919, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 394 (1888).

Payment to a principal will discharge an obligation assumed by another to the agent of such principal. Trust Co. v. Mobley, 40 Ga. App. 468, 150 S.E. 169, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 589 (1929).

Payment to third person nominal payee must remit to. — If a mere nominal payee is bound on receiving money to pay it over to a third person, the debtor may be relieved by making payment directly to such third person. Trust Co. v. Mobley, 40 Ga. App. 468, 150 S.E. 169, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 589 (1929).

Sale of intoxicating liquors to an agent may be alleged as a sale to the principal. Kemp v. State, 120 Ga. 157, 47 S.E. 548, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 475 (1904).

Proof of undisclosed principal by parol evidence. — If fact of agency is concealed, it is necessary ordinarily to prove by parol evidence the existence of the undisclosed principal. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Coastal Serv., Inc., 103 Ga. App. 133, 118 S.E.2d 710, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 884 (1961).

Although parol evidence is inadmissible to add to, take from, or vary a written contract, parol evidence may be used in cases involving undisclosed principals in ordinary contracts which are not under seal; if the rule were otherwise, this section, which provides that the principal shall have advantage of its agent's contracts in the same manner as the principal shall be bound by them, could not be applied in all cases. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Coastal Serv., Inc., 103 Ga. App. 133, 118 S.E.2d 710, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 884 (1961).

If there was nothing in the record to show that the contract for the purchase of a car was under seal, the testimony of the agent that the agent was acting for an undisclosed principal was properly admitted; thus, the fact that the agency was not disclosed at the time of the contract would not prevent the principal from enforcing the contract in the principal's own name. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Coastal Serv., Inc., 103 Ga. App. 133, 118 S.E.2d 710, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 884 (1961).

When issue of who is bound is question of fact. — Trial court erred by granting summary judgment to a private entity operating a county animal control shelter because genuine issues of material fact existed as to whether the shelter could be held liable for the euthanization of a hospitalized patient's dogs based upon the theory of promissory estoppel since while the releases may have authorized the shelter to euthanize the dogs, the shelter was also authorized to subsequently enter into a promise not to do so; thus, the patient, as a principal, would be entitled to damages suffered as a result of representations made to the plaintiff's authorized agent acting on the plaintiff's behalf to protect the well-being of the plaintiff's dogs. Greenway v. Northside Hosp., 317 Ga. App. 371, 730 S.E.2d 742, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 706 (2012), rev'd, 294 Ga. 112, 751 S.E.2d 351, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 951 (2013), vacated in part, 328 Ga. App. 473, 763 S.E.2d 488, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 337 (2014).

Summary judgment improper. — Complaint alleging that an agreement had been reached between plaintiff's neighbor and a representative of an animal control facility for the safekeeping of plaintiff's dogs while plaintiff was hospitalized set forth a claim for promissory estoppel, O.C.G.A. § 13-3-44(a), and plaintiff, as a principal, would be entitled to damages suffered as a result of representations made to the plaintiff's neighbor, the plaintiff's authorized agent acting on the plaintiff's behalf, to protect the well-being of the plaintiff's dogs. Thus, a grant of summary judgment in favor of the operator of the animal control facility was reversed. Greenway v. Northside Hosp., 317 Ga. App. 371, 730 S.E.2d 742, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 706 (2012), rev'd, 294 Ga. 112, 751 S.E.2d 351, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 951 (2013), vacated in part, 328 Ga. App. 473, 763 S.E.2d 488, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 337 (2014).

10-6-63. Recovery of illegal or mistaken payments.

The principal may recover back money paid illegally or by mistake of his agent or goods wrongfully transferred by the agent, the party receiving the goods having notice of the agent's want of authority or willful misconduct.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Section introduces no new rule. — It authorizes a principal to recover back goods wrongfully transferred by the principal's agent, when the transferee had notice, but it does not change the rules regulating the rights of principals against parties dealing with special agents, or with general agents, who act beyond the scope of their agency. First Nat'l Bank v. Charles Nelson & Co., 38 Ga. 391, 1868 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1868); Hawthorne v. Pope, 48 Ga. App. 239, 172 S.E. 574, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 24 (1934).

Knowledge of conversion. — This section applies in all cases when the third person knew and participated in the illegal or unauthorized act of conversion. First Nat'l Bank v. ARTICLE 4

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF AGENT AS TO THIRD PERSONS

10-6-80. Agent authority in legal actions; parol authority; effect of repudiation.

Any act authorized or required to be done under this Code by any person in the prosecution of his legal remedies may be done by his agent; and for this purpose he is authorized to make an affidavit and execute any bond required, though his agency shall be created by parol. In all such cases, if the principal shall repudiate the act of the agent, the agent, together with his sureties, shall be personally bound.

History.

Orig. Code 1863, § 2185; Code 1868, § 2181; Code 1873, § 2207; Code 1882, § 2207; Civil Code 1895, § 3035; Civil Code 1910, § 3607; Code 1933, § 4-402.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Right to repudiate distinguishes § 10-6-80 from § 9-13-123. — If the agent had no authority to make an affidavit, former Code 1882, § 2207 allowed the principal to repudiate the action of the agent, and in that event the agent and the agent's securities become liable; and this is the difference between this section and former Code 1882, § 3670, which said an affidavit of illegality with respect to an execution may be filed by an attorney in fact or an executor, administrator, or other trustee. Cook v. Buchanan, 86 Ga. 760, 13 S.E. 83, 1891 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1891).

"Parol" means a verbal creation of the agency. Cook v. Buchanan, 86 Ga. 760, 13 S.E. 83, 1891 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1891).

When verbal appointment authorized. — Under this section, any person, in the prosecution of the person's legal remedies may appoint verbally an agent to act for the person therein, unless it is apparent that the agent cannot make the affidavit required by law, i.e., cannot conscientiously depose to the same facts to which the principal could, or where the Code provides elsewhere that the appointment shall be in writing. Cook v. Buchanan, 86 Ga. 760, 13 S.E. 83, 1891 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1891).

Agent may verify application for ne exeat. — Under this section, an agent may verify the application for a ne exeat, provided the agent can, of the agent's own knowledge, state the facts as positively and distinctly as is required of the complainant personally. Orme v. McPherson, 36 Ga. 571, 1867 Ga. LEXIS 95 (1867).

Execution of forthcoming bond. — Under this section, an agent interposing a claim in behalf of the agent's principal may execute the forthcoming bond required by statute whether the agency is created in writing or by parol. This section supplies the legislative authority which was wanting when the case of Gilmer v. Allen, 9 Ga. 208 (1850), was decided. Head v. Woods, 92 Ga. 548, 17 S.E. 928, 1893 Ga. LEXIS 175 (1893); United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Murphy, 4 Ga. App. 13, 60 S.E. 831, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 184 (1908).

Affidavit of illegality of execution without written appointment. — Under this section, an agent may make an affidavit of illegality when an execution has been issued and levied, and it is not necessary that the agency should be created in writing. Cook v. Buchanan, 86 Ga. 760, 13 S.E. 83, 1891 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1891).

Agent cannot interpose claim upon pauper's affidavit. — Claim can be interposed under former Code 1887, § 3733 upon an affidavit in forma pauperis made by the claimant personally, but not under former Code 1882, § 2202 upon a like affidavit made by the claimant's agent. Hadden v. Larned, 83 Ga. 636, 10 S.E. 278, 1889 Ga. LEXIS 126 (1889).

Agent cannot enter appeal when not authorized in writing. — Agent created by parol under former Code 1882, § 2207 cannot enter an appeal because former Code 1882, § 3615 expressly required that if an agent enters an appeal, the agent must be authorized in writing and the writing filed in the court in which the case is pending. Cook v. Buchanan, 86 Ga. 760, 13 S.E. 83, 1891 Ga. LEXIS 58 (1891).

Action in agent's own name not authorized. — If the claim of right to a private way is founded upon an uninterrupted use of the way for more than seven years by the owners of a certain plantation, their agents, servants, and tenants, the right is not in the agents or servants themselves, but in the owners who alone are the persons injured by an unlawful obstruction of the way, as against agents and servants, in violation of the right. While their agent, by virtue of former Code 1882, § 2207, may commence and carry on a proceeding in their names to remove such obstruction, under former Code 1882, §§ 738, 739, and 740, the agent cannot institute and carry on a proceeding for that purpose in the agent's own name, either individually or as an agent. Cunningham v. Elliott, 92 Ga. 159, 18 S.E. 365, 1893 Ga. LEXIS 33 (1893).

Local special agent without authority to bind surety company by renewal certificate. — Power of a local agent to bind the agent's surety company by a renewal certificate, contrary to the express terms of the indemnity bond itself, was not within the real or the apparent authority of the local special agent. National Sur. Co. v. Moore, 42 Ga. App. 582, 157 S.E. 108, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 6 (1930).

Agent's authority to execute warrant of attorney to confess judgment against principal, 92 A.L.R.2d 952.

10-6-81. Recovery for mistaken payment to principal.

If money shall be paid to an agent by mistake and he in good faith shall pay it over to his principal, he shall not thereafter be personally liable therefor. In all other cases he shall be liable for its repayment. If money shall be paid by an agent by mistake, he may recover it in his own name.

History.

Orig. Code 1863, § 2186; Code 1868, § 2182; Code 1873, § 2208; Code 1882, § 2208; Civil Code 1895, § 3036; Civil Code 1910, § 3608; Code 1933, § 4-403.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Remedy for mistaken payment reaching principal is action against principal. — If money is paid to an agent as the result of a mistake and the agent in turn pays the money in good faith to the agent's principal, the correct remedy of the payor is an action against the principal and not the agent. John L. Burns, Inc. v. Gulf Oil Corp., 268 F. Supp. 222, 1967 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11448 (N.D. Ga. 1967).

Question in suit against agent is whether agent has possession of money. — In a suit against an agent to recover money voluntarily paid to the agent by mistake in fact, the controlling question in determining the agent's individual liability to repay the money is whether the agent still has the money in the agent's possession at the time of the suit or whether the agent had, before the suit was brought and before the agent had any notice of the mistake, paid over to the agent's principal the money received by mistake. Rogers v. Durrence, 10 Ga. App. 657, 73 S.E. 1083, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 636 (1912).

Agent not liable if subagents have paid it to principal. — When there was testimony tending to show that the amount paid by a purchaser was paid in consequence of a mistake of fact, in that the plaintiff understood that the plaintiff was buying land, and it appears that the defendants acted in good faith, and the amount voluntarily paid to and received by their subagents or employees was in good faith paid over by the latter to the principal, before any notice of the alleged mistake was brought home to them, there was no personal liability on the part of the defendants. Pratt v. Foster, 18 Ga. App. 765, 90 S.E. 654, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 1253 (1916).

10-6-82. Agent's right of action on principal's contracts.

Generally, an agent shall have no right of action on contracts made for his principal. The following are exceptions:

(1) A factor contracting on his own credit;

(2) Where promissory notes or other evidences of debt are made payable to an agent of a corporation;

(3) In all cases where the contract is made with the agent in his individual name, though his agency be known;

(4) Auctioneers may sue in their own names for goods sold by them;

(5) In cases of agency coupled with an interest in the agent, known to the party contracting with him.

In all these cases, payment to the principal before notice of the agent's claim is a good defense.

History.
Orig. Code 1863, § 2187; Code 1868, § 2183; Code 1873, § 2209; Code 1882, § 2209; Civil Code 1895, § 3037; Civil Code 1910, § 3609; Code 1933, § 4-404.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

"Agency coupled with an interest in the agent" is similar to "a power coupled with an interest." The latter is a power which accompanies, or is connected with, an interest. The power and the interest are united in the same person. But if we are to understand by the word "interest," an interest in that which is to be produced by the exercise of the power, then they are never united. The power, to produce the interest, must be exercised and by its exercise, is extinguished. The power ceases when the interest commences and, therefore, cannot, in accurate law language, be said to be "coupled" with it. United States Epperson Underwriting Co. v. Jessup, 22 F.R.D. 336, 1958 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4460 (M.D. Ga.), aff'd, U. S. Epperson Underwriting Co. v. Jessup, 260 F.2d 355, 1958 U.S. App. LEXIS 3090 (5th Cir. 1958).

Suit on principal's contract. — Nothing is better settled than that an agent has no right of action on contracts made for the agent's principal except in specific instances. Henry Darling, Inc. v. Harvey-Given Co., 40 Ga. App. 771, 151 S.E. 518, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 691 (1930).

Agent is not liable for the agent's principal's contract when the agency is disclosed, and an agent has no right to sue on a contract made by the agent for the principal. R.C. Craig, Ltd. v. Ships of Sea, Inc., 345 F. Supp. 1066, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12788 (S.D. Ga. 1972).

Merely instructing agent to sue. — Instruction by principal to agent to institute litigation in the agent's name is not one of the exceptions of this section to the general rule. Rowland v. Gregg & Son, 122 Ga. 819, 50 S.E. 949, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 340 (1905).

Generally, an agent has no authority to enforce in the agent's own name the rights of the agent's principal. To this rule there are certain exceptions. But for an agent to be merely instructed by a principal to institute litigation in the agent's own name is not one of them. A.J. Evans Mktg. Agency v. Federated Fruit & Vegetable Growers, Inc., 170 Ga. 30, 152 S.E. 49, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 392 (1930).

If a person has a legal right, it does not follow that the person may delegate to another the power to litigate in the name of such other in respect to it. A.J. Evans Mktg. Agency v. Federated Fruit & Vegetable Growers, Inc., 170 Ga. 30, 152 S.E. 49, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 392 (1930).

Mere direction by an owner of property to another that the latter should file a claim in one's own name would not make such proceeding lawful. A.J. Evans Mktg. Agency v. Federated Fruit & Vegetable Growers, Inc., 170 Ga. 30, 152 S.E. 49, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 392 (1930).

Agent may not sue in agent's name for illegal levy upon principal's property. — Plaintiff agent cannot maintain an action in the plaintiff's own name for actual damages to the principal's automobile, or for the malicious abuse of process, or for any interference with the plaintiff's right of possession of the automobile resulting from an illegal levy. Andrew v. George Muse Clothing Co., 44 Ga. App. 291, 161 S.E. 296, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (1931).

General rule requires action on contract in name of party with legal interest. — While an agent has a right of action in the agent's own name on a contract made with the agent in the agent's individual name, though the agent's agency is known, and, in cases of agency coupled with an interest in the agent, known to the party contracting with the agent, the agent may, in the agent's own name, maintain an action on the contract, as a general rule an action on a contract must be brought in the name of the party in whom the legal interest in the contract is vested. Whitfield v. Boykin, 48 Ga. App. 141, 172 S.E. 82, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 499 (1933).

Either corporation or agent may sue on note payable to agent. — Promissory note, payable to the order of an agent of a corporation (the principal as well as the agent being specified by name) is, in legal effect, payable to the corporation, and while the agent can maintain an action thereon by virtue of this section, so can the principal. Martin v. Lamb & Co., 77 Ga. 252, 3 S.E. 10, 1887 Ga. LEXIS 100 (1887); Young v. Murray, 3 Ga. App. 204, 59 S.E. 717, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 595 (1907).

Contract for rent made in agent's name. — If one rents land from the agent of the owner, the contract being made with the agent in the agent's individual name, the latter may maintain an action on such contract, though the fact of the agent's agency was known by the renter; and, accordingly, the payment of such rent may be enforced by a distress warrant sued out by the agent in the agent's own name. Spence v. Wilson, 102 Ga. 762, 29 S.E. 713, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 686 (1897).

If a rent contract is made with A, "trustee," as landlord, A may foreclose a lien in A's own name for money furnished the tenant by A, as landlord, with which to make the crop upon the rented premises, though the land and such money belong to another person whom A represented in the transaction. Fargason v. Ford, 119 Ga. 343, 46 S.E. 431, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 830 (1904).

An executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee can sue out a distress warrant in an individual capacity under paragraph (3) of this section, and terms indicating a representative capacity, if used, may be treated and disregarded as surplusage. Dean v. Donalson, 2 Ga. App. 462, 58 S.E. 679, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 424 (1907).

Agent may sue carrier when contract of shipment does not disclose agency. — Person who having in charge as agent the goods of another makes with a common carrier a contract to ship such goods in which the agency is not disclosed may maintain by virtue of this section an action in the person's own name for a breach of such contract. Carter v. Southern Ry., 111 Ga. 38, 36 S.E. 308, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 479 (1900).

Broker with option to buy for clients may sue for breach. — Agreement to give a real estate agent the option of purchasing land for the agent's clients gives the agent individually a right of action for breach of the contract. Pearson v. Horne, 139 Ga. 453, 77 S.E. 387, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 464 (1913).

Agent buying in own name may sue for breach of warranty. — When one buys personally in one's own name that person may maintain an action in one's own name for a breach of a warranty in regard to the quality of the goods, although one may have been the agent of another in making the purchase. King v. Dobbs, 30 Ga. App. 441, 118 S.E. 428, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 497 (1923).

Agent's action upon contract in agent's name generally subject to defenses against principal. — If an agent sues in the agent's own name upon a contract so made for the benefit of the agent's principal, the action will be subject to any defenses which the defendant could lawfully assert against the principal if the action had been brought in the name of the latter. Hollingsworth v. Georgia Fruit Growers, Inc., 185 Ga. 873, 196 S.E. 766, 1938 Ga. LEXIS 818 (1938).

Rule that an agent's action in the agent's own name upon a contract made for the benefit of the agent's principal is subject to any defenses which the defendant could assert against the principal can have no application if the instrument sued on is a sealed instrument and the principal does not appear to be a party thereto. Hollingsworth v. Georgia Fruit Growers, Inc., 185 Ga. 873, 196 S.E. 766, 1938 Ga. LEXIS 818 (1938).

Agent may sue in own name on whole contract if agent has interest. — While it was the settled rule at common law that an agent who made a contract for an agent's principal could not sue upon the contract in the agent's own name, yet the rule had exceptions. One of these was, that if the agent had an interest, as for commissions, etc., the agent might sue on the whole contract in the agent's own name. Stevens v. Hunt, 61 Ga. App. 265, 6 S.E.2d 591, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 274 (1939).

Suit for agent's commission. — There is an exception to the rule that generally an agent cannot maintain an action on a contract which the agent has made on behalf of the agent's principal when the agency is coupled with an interest in the agent, such as commissions. Sheriff v. Moore, 105 Ga. App. 833, 125 S.E.2d 729, 1962 Ga. App. LEXIS 1055 (1962) (action by insurance agents for insurance premium); Pendley v. Jessee, 134 Ga. App. 138, 213 S.E.2d 496, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 1934 (1975) (owners acting as real estate brokers for other owners).

Exception authorizing suit must be alleged if agency appears. — If the plaintiff's pleading discloses agency on the part of the plaintiff, the plaintiff cannot maintain the action without alleging that the plaintiff was a factor and contracted on the plaintiff's own credit, or that the contract was made in the plaintiff's individual name, or that the plaintiff's agency was coupled with an interest in the agent known to the party contracting with the plaintiff, unless it appears that the action is founded on a promissory note or other evidence of debt payable to the plaintiff as agent of a corporation or joint stock company, or upon the sale of goods made by the plaintiff as an auctioneer. Richmond & Danville R.R. v. Bedell & Bowers ex rel. Orr & Hunter, 88 Ga. 591, 15 S.E. 676, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 72 (1892); Burg v. Malone, 22 Ga. App. 175, 95 S.E. 739, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 223 (1918).

If agent contracted in own name, principal's name may be inserted by amendment. — When a suit for rent is instituted by the party with whom the actual contract of tenancy was made, it is permissible for the plaintiff to amend plaintiff's pleading by setting out the name of the true owner for whose use the suit is brought. The rule would be otherwise, and such an amendment is not permissible, if the plaintiff acts not in the plaintiff's own behalf as landlord, but merely as an agent of the true owner. Clark v. Long, 25 Ga. App. 807, 105 S.E. 654, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 223 (1920).

History of section. — Provisions of this section appeared for the first time in the statute law of this state in the Code of 1863. It has been embodied in the same language in every Code since adopted. Mitchell v. Georgia & Ala. Ry., 111 Ga. 760, 36 S.E. 971, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 714 (1900).

Section applies only to agent with property interest. — Word "agent" as used in this section is to be construed as meaning an agent who has a property, either general or special, in the personalty in the agent's possession. Mitchell v. Georgia & Ala. Ry., 111 Ga. 760, 36 S.E. 971, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 714 (1900).

This section has been construed as referring only to an agent who has a property either general or special in the personalty in the agent's possession. Central of Ga. Ry. v. George P. Greene & Co., 41 Ga. App. 794, 154 S.E. 809, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 1101 (1930).

Section does not contravene requirement that possession must be in plaintiff's own right. — While at common law and under former Civil Code 1895, § 3886, mere possession of a chattel will give a right of action for any interference therewith, such possession must be in the plaintiff's own right, and not as agent of another. This rule was not contravened by former Civil Code 1895, § 3038. Mitchell v. Georgia & Ala. Ry., 111 Ga. 760, 36 S.E. 971, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 714 (1900).

Agent's possession will support principal's possessory warrant. — Possession of personalty by an agent is actual, not constructive, possession by the principal and will support a possessory warrant by the latter against one who wrongfully and fraudulently takes possession thereof. Hillyer v. Brogden, 67 Ga. 24, 1881 Ga. LEXIS 122 (1881).

General Consideration

Existence and extent of agency are questions of fact. — Questions of the existence and extent of an agent's authority are generally for the triers of fact. Allen & Bean, Inc. v. American Bankers Ins. Co., 153 Ga. App. 617, 266 S.E.2d 295, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1924 (1980).

Summary judgment improper. — Because the question of authorization could not be decided on summary judgment since a jury question existed as to whether the resolution of the county board of education authorized the county school superintendent to enter into a contract with the plaintiff on the board's behalf, the trial judge erred in entering summary judgment for the superintendent in the superintendent's individual capacity. Knight v. Troup County Bd. of Educ., 144 Ga. App. 634, 242 S.E.2d 263, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1718 (1978).

Agent's Individual Liability

1. Generally

This section states the law of Georgia as to the individual liability of agents in three instances: (1) by "express undertaking; (2) by exceeding the scope of his authority; and (3) for his own tortious acts"; and then the section states when the agent is not liable: "for the negligence of his underservant, employed by him in behalf of his principal, he is not responsible." Pan-American Petro. Co. v. Williams, 174 Ga. 875, 164 S.E. 759, 1932 Ga. LEXIS 161 (1932).

This section neither changes nor adds to old law. — This section does not change or add to the old law as to the liability of an agent. Reid v. Humber, 49 Ga. 207, 1873 Ga. LEXIS 336 (1873).

2. Upon Contract

Agent may bind agent by express undertaking. — Even though one employing another to perform services is acting in the capacity of agent and for the sole benefit of the agent's principal, the agent may nevertheless by express undertaking bind oneself personally. Willingham, Wright & Covington v. Glover, 28 Ga. App. 394, 111 S.E. 206, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1922); Davis v. Menefee, 34 Ga. App. 813, 131 S.E. 527, 1926 Ga. App. LEXIS 56 (1926).

A county warden who offered a certain amount to the plaintiff to return a convict rendered the warden individually liable. King v. Lewis, 32 Ga. App. 110, 122 S.E. 633, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 301 (1924).

If agent acts within authority, only express agreement binds agent. — Agent who, acting within the scope of the agent's authority, enters into contractual relations for a principal whom the agent discloses does not bind the agent, in the absence of an express agreement to do so. Echols v. Howard, 17 Ga. App. 49, 86 S.E. 91, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 253 (1915).

Agent acting within the scope of the agent's authority is liable only on the agent's own express undertaking. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Reynolds, 138 Ga. App. 582, 227 S.E.2d 77, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2242 (1976).

Failure of agent to disclose agency. — To avoid individual liability, it is the agent's duty to disclose the agent's agency, and failing to do so, even if acting within the agent's authority, the party with whom the agent deals may proceed against the agent. Maslia v. Kilgore, 119 Ga. App. 769, 168 S.E.2d 857, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1241 (1969).

If an agent does not disclose to the other party with whom the agent is dealing that the agent is acting on behalf of a principal, the agent is personally liable and responsible. Hodges-Ward Assocs. v. Ecclestone, 156 Ga. App. 59, 273 S.E.2d 872, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2879 (1980).

If an agent wishes to avoid personal liability, the duty is on the agent to disclose the agency, and not on the party with whom the agent deals to discover it. Brown-Wright Hotel Supply Corp. v. Bagen, 112 Ga. App. 300, 145 S.E.2d 294, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (1965); Hodges-Ward Assocs. v. Ecclestone, 156 Ga. App. 59, 273 S.E.2d 872, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2879 (1980).

If agent lacks or exceeds authority, only agent is liable. — If in point of fact one employing another to perform services has acted without or beyond the authority of an alleged principal, the agent alone becomes personally liable. Willingham, Wright & Covington v. Glover, 28 Ga. App. 394, 111 S.E. 206, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 542 (1922); Davis v. Menefee, 34 Ga. App. 813, 131 S.E. 527, 1926 Ga. App. LEXIS 56 (1926).

Agent must pay damages if agent knows of want of authority. — If one has knowledge of agent's want of authority and, without intending any wrong or by making false representations as to the agent's authority, executes a contract as the agent of another, the agent is personally liable to the person with whom the agent is dealing, and the third party, not learning the facts, has the right to repudiate the contract and hold the assumed agent immediately responsible for damages. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

Agent's bona fide belief of authority. — If an assumed agent bona fide believes the agent has authority, but in fact has none, and injury results to a third person who has honestly relied on the correctness of the agent's position as agent in making a contract in behalf of the agent's apparent principal, the agent will be personally liable for such injury. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

If one has no authority and acts bona fide, still one does a wrong to the other party, and if that wrong produces injury to the latter, owing to one's confidence in the truth of an express or implied assertion of authority by the purported agent, it is perfectly just that one who makes such assertion should be personally responsible for the consequences, rather than that the injury should be borne by the other party who has been misled by it. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

Breaching implied warranty of authority. — If an agent executes, without authority from the agent's principal, a bond in the name of the agent's principal as surety, and fails to disclose the agent's lack of authority to the other parties to the instrument, and the other parties have no knowledge of such lack of authority, and no ratification by the principal appears, and the principal is without knowledge of the agent's failure to comply with the specific requirements of a written power of attorney, which furnishes the agent's sole authority to bind the principal, and, on account of the implied representation as to the agent's authority to bind the principal in the manner attempted, a beneficiary in the instrument suffers injury, the injured person may recover damages from the agent individually. Peeples v. Perry, 18 Ga. App. 369, 89 S.E. 461, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 359 (1916).

Doctrine of the liability of a purported agent for the breach of an agent's implied warranty of authority proceeds upon a plain principle of justice, for every person so acting for another, by a natural, if not a necessary implication, holds oneself out as having competent authority to do the act, and one thereby draws the other party into a reciprocal engagement. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

If one assumes, as the agent of a named corporation, to contract with a real estate broker to procure a purchaser for certain corporate realty at a stated price, and the broker, within the time specified, finds a purchaser who is ready, willing, and able to purchase the realty in the terms of the contract and who actually offers to so purchase, the broker may, when the purported agent was without authority to contract for the corporation, maintain an action against the purported agent individually for the breach of the implied warranty of authority. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

Other party's ignorance of agent's want of authority. — To give a party a right of action against a professed agent, the party must have been ignorant of the want of authority on the part of the latter and have acted upon the faith of the representations, express or implied, that the professed agent had the authority assumed; hence, if the party complaining is fully cognizant of all the facts touching the agent's authority, the latter will not be liable. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

Section embodies only general rule of agency. — Provision of this section that "every agent exceeding the scope of his authority shall be individually liable to the person with whom he deals," embodies only a general rule of agency. Hill v. Daniel, 52 Ga. App. 427, 183 S.E. 662, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 656 (1936).

Section does not authorize action against agent on unauthorized instrument. — This section creates no authority for an action ex contractu against the agent on the unauthorized instrument itself, save perhaps, for peculiar reasons, in cases of executors, administrators, and guardians. Hill v. Daniel, 52 Ga. App. 427, 183 S.E. 662, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 656 (1936).

Contract not purporting to bind agent personally. — An action ex contractu on the instrument itself ordinarily will not lie against the agent individually on a contract made by the agent in the name of the principal, unless it contains apt words binding the agent personally. While the instrument is not the contract of the principal, because the principal did not authorize or ratify the acts of the alleged agent, neither is it the contract of the alleged agent, because in seeking to bind the principal the agent used no language binding the agent, and therefore the law cannot create an undertaking which was not made by the parties themselves. Hill v. Daniel, 52 Ga. App. 427, 183 S.E. 662, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 656 (1936).

Language not binding agent of corporation personally. — If a replevy bond, given in a laborer's lien foreclosure, was signed by a corporate officer with the name of the corporation followed by the word "by" and the officer's own name as secretary, the instrument as thus executed contained no language which as a matter of contract or as a matter of law would bind the corporate officer personally. Hill v. Daniel, 52 Ga. App. 427, 183 S.E. 662, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 656 (1936).

Agent for principal with no legal status. — One who assumes to act as agent for a nonexistent principal or one having no legal status renders that one individually liable in contracts so made. Don Swann Sales Corp. v. Echols, 160 Ga. App. 539, 287 S.E.2d 577, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3089 (1981).

If the evidence supports a finding that the purported corporation is not a valid corporate entity, there is no doubt that the agent is bound by the agent's purchases on an open account. Don Swann Sales Corp. v. Echols, 160 Ga. App. 539, 287 S.E.2d 577, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3089 (1981).

Measure of damages against agent acting without authority. — The damages to be recovered against a purported agent for acting without authority must, in general, be compensation for the loss which the other party has naturally and proximately sustained by reason of the lack of authority. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

In the case of a contract, the measure of damages to be recovered against a purported agent for acting without authority will usually be compensation for the loss sustained by not obtaining a then binding contract. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

Measure of damages against a purported agent for acting without authority is what the plaintiff actually lost by losing the particular contract which was to have been made by the alleged principal if the defendant had the authority the defendant professed to have; in other words, what the plaintiff would have gained by the contract which the defendant warranted should be made. Weinstein v. Rothberg, 87 Ga. App. 94, 73 S.E.2d 106, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 619 (1952).

Summary judgment improper. — Summary judgment for an engineer in a concrete company's suit for services and materials provided to a construction project was error because the evidence could have authorized a jury to have found that the engineer obtained the concrete company's agreement to provide services and material to the construction project without disclosing that the concrete company was dealing with the engineer, not directly, but only as an agent of the developer for purposes of O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6-53 and 10-6-85; a jury could have found that the concrete company reasonably understood that the engineer was binding itself as well as the developer. Action Concrete, Inc. v. Focal Point Eng'g, Inc., 296 Ga. App. 567, 675 S.E.2d 303, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 274 (2009).

3. For Tort

"Misfeasance" and "nonfeasance" defined. — "Misfeasance" is a positive wrong, and means the improper doing of an act which the agent might lawfully do. It may also involve to some extent the idea of not doing, as if an agent engaged in the performance of an undertaking does not do something which it is the agent's duty to do under the circumstances, or does not take that precaution or does not exercise that care which a due regard to the rights of others requires. Coffer v. Bradshaw, 46 Ga. App. 143, 167 S.E. 119, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1932).

"Nonfeasance" on the part of an agent is the total omission or failure of the agent to enter upon the performance of some distinct duty or undertaking which the agent has agreed with the principal to do. Coffer v. Bradshaw, 46 Ga. App. 143, 167 S.E. 119, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1932).

"Nonfeasance" is the total omission or failure of the agent to enter upon the performance of some distinct duty or undertaking which the agent has agreed with the principal to do. "Misfeasance" means the improper doing of an act which the agent might lawfully do, or, in other words, the performing of the agent's duty to the principal in such a manner as to infringe upon the rights and privileges of third persons. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

"Misfeasance" may involve, to some extent, the idea of not doing, as when an agent engaged in the performance of the agent's undertaking does not do something which it is the agent's duty to do under the circumstances, or does not take that precaution or does not exercise that care which a due regard to the rights of others requires; this is not the doing of that which is imposed upon the agent merely by virtue of the agent's relation, but of that which is imposed upon the agent by law as a responsible individual in common with all other members of society, and is the same not doing which constitutes actionable negligence in any relation. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

Agent is personally responsible for own tortious act. Wadley v. Dooly, 138 Ga. 275, 75 S.E. 153, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 281 (1912).

Actions not constituting tort. — O.C.G.A. § 10-6-85 did not apply in an action against a law firm for wrongfully and intentionally foreclosing on property since the firm was acting for a company that had legal title to the property under a deed to secure debt which was in default, and there was no impropriety in the notice, advertisement, or sale at foreclosure. McCarter v. Bankers Trust Co., 247 Ga. App. 129, 543 S.E.2d 755, 2000 Ga. App. LEXIS 1433 (2000).

Agent personally responsible for conversion. — When A delivered to the defendant, a warehouseman, a certain bale of cotton and received a warehouse receipt, which A transferred in writing to the plaintiff, who has since retained its possession, and subsequently the defendant, without legal authority, delivered the cotton to one B, knowing that the latter did not own it, the alleged conduct of the defendant amounted to a conversion, and B was liable for B's tortious act, though done in the capacity of agent. Trippe v. Bell & Co., 139 Ga. 782, 78 S.E. 126, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 602 (1913).

Trover lies against an agent, even though the agent does not purport to act individually, but wholly for another. Godwin v. Mitchell, 60 Ga. App. 713, 4 S.E.2d 678, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 149 (1939); Kelley v. Sheehan, 61 Ga. App. 714, 7 S.E.2d 298, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 232 (1940); Teper v. Weiss, 115 Ga. App. 621, 155 S.E.2d 730, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 1189 (1967).

Fact that the defendant held possession of the property in the defendant's representative capacity (as administrator of the estate) would afford the defendant no protection from a trover suit. Godwin v. Mitchell, 60 Ga. App. 713, 4 S.E.2d 678, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 149 (1939).

Agent's liability is measured by duty to third persons agent has assumed. — Agent's liability must be judged, not merely by a breach of the agent's contract to the principal, but by the extent of the duty and responsibility to third persons which the agent assumed coextensively with the contract. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

Agent's intervention into the relations between the principal and the others by the agent's assumption of the duty to the principal creates a duty to the others to use care either to perform the service or to see that no harm results from the agent's failure to do so. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

Agent is liable if acts create unreasonable risk of harm to others. — Agent is subject to liability if, by the agent's acts, the agent creates an unreasonable risk of harm to the interests of others protected against negligent invasion. Crosby v. Calaway, 65 Ga. App. 266, 16 S.E.2d 155, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 306 (1941).

Failure to take reasonable care in performing agency. — When a servant enters upon the performance of a contract with a principal and in so doing fails to take reasonable care in the commission of some act which the servant should do in the performance of the servant's duty under the contract, and thereby a third person is injured, the servant is responsible therefor to the same extent as if the servant had committed the wrong in the servant's own behalf; the servant's liability in such case is not based on the ground of the servant's agency, but on the ground that the servant is a wrongdoer and, as such, is responsible for any injury the servant may cause. Risby v. Sharp-Boylston Co., 62 Ga. App. 101, 7 S.E.2d 917, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 605 (1940).

If an agent fails to use reasonable care or diligence in the performance of the agent's duty, the agent will be personally responsible to a third person who is injured by such misfeasance; the agent's liability, in such cases, is not based upon the ground of the agent's agency, but upon the ground that the agent is a wrongdoer. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

If a landowner gives an agent sole authority to manage property, including renting and repairing, and if it is specifically alleged that the agent agreed to and did in fact assume such authority for the landowner, the agent may be held individually liable for a violation of this duty, not as an agent, but as an independent tort-feasor whose breach of duty owed to a third person is the actionable negligence. Ramey v. Pritchett, 90 Ga. App. 745, 84 S.E.2d 305, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 804 (1954).

Agent liable whether wrongful act is misfeasance or nonfeasance. — If a servant has undertaken for the principal the performance of a duty owed a third person, the servant is personally liable to such third person when the servant's wrongful act in the course of the servant's employment is the direct and proximate cause of injury to the third person, whether the wrongful act is one of misfeasance or nonfeasance. It is not the servant's contract with the principal which exposes the servant to, or protects the servant from, liability to third persons, but the servant's common-law obligation to use that which the servant controls so as not to injure another. Southern Ry. v. Smith, 55 Ga. App. 689, 191 S.E. 181, 1937 Ga. App. LEXIS 463 (1937); Crosby v. Calaway, 65 Ga. App. 266, 16 S.E.2d 155, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 306 (1941).

Performance of duty to principal is no defense. — In an action for damages founded on tort, it is no defense that the injury was caused while the defendant was acting in performance of a duty as agent of a firm of which the plaintiff was a member, if negligence of the defendant amounting to misfeasance produced the injury. Owens v. Nichols, 139 Ga. 475, 77 S.E. 635, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 475 (1913).

Officer or agent of corporation is personally liable for torts. — An officer or agent of a corporation is liable in damages for injuries suffered by third persons because of the officer's or agent's torts, regardless of whether the officer or agent acted on the officer's or agent's own account or on behalf of the corporation, and regardless of whether or not the corporation is also liable. Coffer v. Bradshaw, 46 Ga. App. 143, 167 S.E. 119, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1932).

Misfeasance of corporate agent. — The rule which makes officers or agents of a corporation liable for their torts to third persons who suffer injury thereby refers to misfeasance or positive wrong. Coffer v. Bradshaw, 46 Ga. App. 143, 167 S.E. 119, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1932).

Agent is not ordinarily liable for nonfeasance. — Under former Civil Code 1895 §§ 3029 and 3041, while an agent was personally liable to those injured by the agent's misfeasance, the agent was not ordinarily liable for mere nonfeasance. Kimbrough v. Boswell, 119 Ga. 201, 45 S.E. 977, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 86 (1903).

Agent is not ordinarily liable to third persons for nonfeasance; an agent is, however, liable to third persons for misfeasance. Coffer v. Bradshaw, 46 Ga. App. 143, 167 S.E. 119, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1932); Chambers v. Self, 53 Ga. App. 437, 186 S.E. 203, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 147 (1936); Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

Liability when duty to principal required performance. — Before an agent becomes liable for an act of omission alleged to have constituted negligence with resultant injury, it must appear that such agent had agreed to perform such act for the agent's principal, or had assumed to perform the act. Risby v. Sharp-Boylston Co., 62 Ga. App. 101, 7

Agent's Individual Liability (Cont'd)
3. For Tort (Cont'd)

S.E.2d 917, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 605 (1940).

Agent in complete charge of business is liable for nonperformance. — Nonperformance by an agent left in complete charge of the business in the absence of the owner entails liability, as do specific acts of negligence. Warnock v. Elliott, 96 Ga. App. 778, 101 S.E.2d 591, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 687 (1957).

Liability for failing to keep premises safe. — Agent who undertakes the sole and complete control and management of the principal's premises is liable to third persons, to whom a duty is owing on the part of the owner, for injuries resulting from the owner's negligence in failing to make or keep the premises in a safe condition. Ramey v. Pritchett, 90 Ga. App. 745, 84 S.E.2d 305, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 804 (1954).

Agent with custody of property that may harm others. — Agent who has the custody of land or chattels and who should realize that there is an undue risk that their condition will cause harm to the person, land, or chattels of others is subject to liability for such harm caused, during the continuance of the agent's custody, by the agent's failure to use care to take such reasonable precautions as the agent is authorized to take. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

Failure to make repairs. — After the defendant had by contract assumed the duty of maintaining and repairing a building, which duty in the first instance devolved upon the owner, and actually entered upon such duty by repairing a part of the building, then the defendant's failure to repair another part of the building, resulting in injury to the plaintiff, rendered the defendant liable, not because the defendant had breached the defendant's contract with the defendant's principal, but because, by assuming the total duty of repair and maintenance, the defendant had caused the owner to rely upon the defendant and prevented the job from being done by others, and had therefore breached a duty owing to the public generally and the plaintiff in particular of maintaining the premises in a reasonably safe condition. Sharp-Boylston Co. v. Bostick, 90 Ga. App. 46, 81 S.E.2d 853, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 624 (1954).

Employee canning food products not liable unless employee knows of defective condition. — Employee aiding in canning food products that are then in a dangerously defective condition is liable to the person injured if such agent knows of that condition; the agent would not be liable unless the agent knew of the defect. Crosby v. Calaway, 65 Ga. App. 266, 16 S.E.2d 155, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 306 (1941).

Retail clerk. — Agent or clerk in a retail store who merely passes out the articles and receives the price for the principal is not liable for defects in the article sold unless the clerk has actual knowledge of the defect, or unless the clerk assumes the responsibility which the law places upon retailers and distributers of food, or unless the clerk owes some particular duty to the purchaser. Crosby v. Calaway, 65 Ga. App. 266, 16 S.E.2d 155, 1941 Ga. App. LEXIS 306 (1941).

4. As to Underservant

Agent is not liable for subagent's negligence. — When an agent has authority to employ a subagent to do the work of the principal, the agent is not liable for the negligence of the subagent in the performance of the work, if due care has been used in the subagent's selection. Morris v. Warlick, 118 Ga. 421, 45 S.E. 407, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 576 (1903); Henderson v. Nolting First Mtg. Corp., 184 Ga. 724, 193 S.E. 347, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 637 (1937).

Failure to use due care in selecting or failing to remove subagent. — Agent is liable for the negligence of the subagent if due care has not been used in the subagent's selection, and the same principle should be applied to negligence in failing to displace a subagent or an underservant when the agent appears to have had a duty and responsibility as to such matter. Henderson v. Nolting First Mtg. Corp., 184 Ga. 724, 193 S.E. 347, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 637 (1937). But see Pan-American Petro. Corp. v. Williams, 45 Ga. App. 490, 165 S.E. 473, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 576 (1932).

Negligence of an underservant in respect to the inspection of bottles and the soft drink was not attributable to an agent of the bottling company in charge of business's operation, who served as the company's executive and administrative head; the only negligence of which such agent could have been guilty under the circumstances would have been an original act of negligence in selecting or retaining an incompetent employee. Schutle v. Pyle, 95 Ga. App. 229, 97 S.E.2d 558, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 760 (1957).

Employment by agent should be explicitly alleged. — If the plaintiff means to charge that an underservant was employed by an agent and that the agent was liable for the torts of the underservant because the agent had not exercised good faith and reasonable care in the selection of a suitable and proper subagent, the allegations of employment should be explicit and not inferential. Pan-American Petro. Co. v. Williams, 174 Ga. 875, 164 S.E. 759, 1932 Ga. LEXIS 161 (1932).

Analysis

General Consideration
Pleadings and Evidence

General Consideration

This section lays down the general rule. Wadley v. Oertel, 140 Ga. 326, 78 S.E. 912, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 120 (1913).

Rule was not changed by NIL. — Statutory rule in this section, first in the Code of 1895, was not altered but was given substantial effect with respect to negotiable instruments by the former Negotiable Instruments Law (see now O.C.G.A. § 11-3-403). Hill v. Daniel, 52 Ga. App. 427, 183 S.E. 662, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 656 (1936).

Deposit without instrument. — This section is not applicable when an administrator of an estate deposits funds of the estate (which were lost by failure of the bank), but when there was no instrument executed by the agent. Gatewood v. Furlow, 19 Ga. App. 74, 90 S.E. 973, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 51 (1916).

Checks drawn by spouse. — Instrument signed by one as agent, without more, is the individual undertaking of the maker, such words being generally words of description. So checks drawn by the husband and signed by him with the word "agent" added to his name, without more, were the individual checks of the husband, and did not put the payee upon notice that they were drawn on funds which did not belong to the husband, but which belonged to the wife. McRitchie v. Atlanta Trust Co., 170 Ga. 296, 152 S.E. 834, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 443 (1930).

One adding "trustee" after name is individually liable. — Addition of the word "trustee" after the name of the signer of a note, without more, is mere descriptio personae, and the debt is that of the maker individually. Crusselle v. Chastain, 76 Ga. 840, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 145 (1886); McRitchie v. Atlanta Trust Co., 170 Ga. 296, 152 S.E. 834, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 443 (1930).

Adding "President" after name. — One signing, "J. L. DeGive, President" was apparently individually liable. Candler v. DeGive, 133 Ga. 486, 66 S.E. 244, 1909 Ga. LEXIS 253 (1909).

Adding "Treas." or "V.P." after name. — Abbreviations and letters, "Treas.," and "V.P.," following the names respectively of two endorsers on a promissory note, are mere words of description, and the obligation incurred by such endorsers is personal. Morris v. Reed, 14 Ga. App. 729, 82 S.E. 314, 1914 Ga. App. LEXIS 435 (1914).

Adding "adm'r" after name. — It is clear that if "F" had signed an instrument as "TMF, adm'r" it would have been F's individual undertaking. Gatewood v. Furlow, 19 Ga. App. 74, 90 S.E. 973, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 51 (1916).

Adding "with Power of Attorney" after name. — When endorsed on a note and mortgage were several names, the last of which was "H. A. Burge with Power of Attorney" and the power of attorney is not included in the record, at most this could only indicate an ordinary individual endorsement. Hastey v. Roberts, 149 Ga. 479, 100 S.E. 569, 1919 Ga. LEXIS 277 (1919).

Adding "administrator" after name. — Certiorari bond payable on the bond's face to a named individual, followed by the word "administrator" which fails within itself to furnish the means whereby the actual principal for whose benefit the bond is executed can be ascertained with absolute and legal certainty, amounts to nothing more than an undertaking in favor of the named individual, and the word "administrator" is to be taken merely as descriptio personae under this section. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Monroe, 26 Ga. App. 332, 106 S.E. 209, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 139 (1921).

Adding "agent" after name. — If an agent signs a note with the agent's own name alone and adds to the agent's signature the word "agent," and if there is nothing in the note to indicate who is the principal, the agent will be personally liable, just as if the word agent was not added. Harp v. First Nat'l Bank, 173 Ga. 768, 161 S.E. 355, 1931 Ga. LEXIS 397 (1931).

Checks drawn by husband. — Two checks drawn by the plaintiff's husband and signed by him with the word "agent" added to his signature, without more, were the individual checks of the husband, and did not put the payee upon notice that the checks were drawn on funds which did not belong to the husband, nor did such signature to these checks impose upon the payee the duty of inquiring whether the checks were drawn on the funds of the drawer or upon someone else. McRitchie v. Atlanta Trust Co., 170 Ga. 296, 152 S.E. 834, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 443 (1930).

Action on note signed as administrator is action against individual. — Action against "A, administrator," on a promissory note containing the words "I promise to pay," and signed "B Estate, A, administrator (L.S.)," is an action against A as an individual. Glisson v. Weil & Co., 117 Ga. 842, 45 S.E. 221, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 362 (1903).

Action by or against one adding "administrator" or "executor" to name is action by or against individual. — Action by one with the word "administrator" or "executor" added to one's name, especially on a contract made by that one, will ordinarily be treated as being one's individual action; and likewise when the action is against that one. Wadley v. Oertel, 140 Ga. 326, 78 S.E. 912, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 120 (1913).

Execution against one "as agent for" another is against former alone. — Execution against SJW as agent for Mrs. MW is against SJW alone, the words, "as agent for," etc., being merely descriptio personae. Wynn v. Irvine's Ga. Music House, 109 Ga. 287, 34 S.E. 582, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 635 (1899).

Bond payable to city recorder individually is not city contract. — Bond made payable to the city recorder who tried the case in which the defendant was convicted, or to the recorder's successors in office, if given to the obligee in the obligee's personal capacity only, would not be a valid contract with the city. Soles v. City of Vidalia, 92 Ga. App. 839, 90 S.E.2d 249, 1955 Ga. App. LEXIS 727 (1955) (bond construed as payable to obligee in official capacity).

Application with "Agt." after name is individual application. — When an application to establish and lay out a public road is signed by a named person with the letters "Agt." after the person's name, without more, such instrument is the person's individual application for such road. Commissioners of Decatur County v. Curry, 154 Ga. 378, 114 S.E. 341, 1922 Ga. LEXIS 369 (1922).

Stock issued with "guardian" after name is individually owned. — Legal title to bank stock purchased by and issued to W, "guardian," was prima facie in W individually and on W's death descended to W's personal representative; and W's successor in the trust had no right, under the facts of this case, to recover from the bank money paid for the stock. Williams v. Farmers State Bank, 22 Ga. App. 656, 97 S.E. 249, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 664 (1918).

Only principal is bound if agency specified and principal name in contract. — When in the body or on the face of the instrument the agency is distinctly specified and the principal indicated, and the contract is substantially in the name of such principal, the latter and not the agent is liable, though the instrument is signed by the agent only, provided, of course, the agent has authority to bind the principal. Rawlings v. Robson, 70 Ga. 595, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 379 (1883); Bank of Univ. v. Hamilton, 78 Ga. 312, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 237 (1886); Wadley v. Oertel, 140 Ga. 326, 78 S.E. 912, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 120 (1913); Ocilla S.R.R. v. Morton, 13 Ga. App. 504, 79 S.E. 480, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 241 (1913); Harp v. First Nat'l Bank, 173 Ga. 768, 161 S.E. 355, 1931 Ga. LEXIS 397 (1931).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment to the relative after the home healthcare agency sued the relative for a balance due on a contract the relative signed to have nursing services provided to the relative's father. The relative clearly signed in a representative capacity the contract that the home healthcare agency drafted and provided for the relative to sign, the principal, the relative's father, was clearly named in the document as such, and it was evident that the contract was substantially in the name of the principal; accordingly, there was no issue for the jury to decide because the contract obligated the father, not the relative, to pay. Associated Servs. of Accountable

Prof'ls, Ltd. v. Workman, 265 Ga. App. 348, 593 S.E.2d 882, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 115 (2004).

Agent not personally liable for stock assessment. — When the trustee of a person non compos mentis, who succeeded to the trust upon the death of the original trustee, entered stock on the books of the bank in the name of "Billups Phinizy, Trustee Marion Daniel Phinizy," the words "Trustee Marion Daniel Phinizy" were not merely descriptio personae, and therefore the trustee was not personally liable for the stock assessment. Gormley v. Phinizy, 46 Ga. App. 431, 167 S.E. 757, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 86 (1933).

Principal must be party to sealed instrument to be liable thereon. — When a contract is made by an agent under seal, no one but a party to the instrument is liable to be sued thereon; and, therefore, if made by an agent or attorney, it must be in the name of the principal in order that the agent may be a party because otherwise the agent is not bound by it. Harp v. First Nat'l Bank, 173 Ga. 768, 161 S.E. 355, 1931 Ga. LEXIS 397 (1931).

Context may show agent signed in representative capacity. — Executory contract between "FCM, administrator of the estate of EPM" and H, was an agreement by FCM in FCM's representative capacity, under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3570 and 3594. Miller v. Hines, 145 Ga. 616, 89 S.E. 689, 1916 Ga. LEXIS 422 (1916).

When two attorneys in fact were expressly authorized by power of attorney to execute a security deed in the names of the principals "or otherwise" and the security deed executed refers to the heirs of an estate (the principals) the security deed would be construed to be a conveyance by them in behalf of themselves and as attorneys in fact for the other heirs at law. Cocke v. Bank of Dawson, 180 Ga. 714, 180 S.E. 711, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 537 (1935).

Deeds in which the named grantor was decedent's estate and which were signed in the name of the estate and of the two executors were deeds by the executors of the estate in their official capacity, and purported to convey properties belonging to the estate, and were not the personal deeds of the individuals designated as executors. Harrison v. Harrison, 214 Ga. 393, 105 S.E.2d 214, 1958 Ga. LEXIS 438 (1958).

While it is the general rule that a signature with the added word "administrator" or "executor" will ordinarily be treated as that of one in one's individual capacity, the added word being generally merely descriptio personae, this is not an inflexible rule when the context makes it clear that it is signed in a representative capacity, although the added words are not "as administrator" or "as executor." Fisher v. Pair, 69 Ga. App. 492, 26 S.E.2d 187, 1943 Ga. App. LEXIS 124 (1943); Evans v. Smithdeal, 143 Ga. App. 287, 238 S.E.2d 278, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2290 (1977).

Words added to signature may take case out of section. — When the evidence discloses that the advertising contract was signed as follows: "Ann Zior, Sec.-Tres. authorized agent for Ejax Oil Stabilizer," the addition of the name of the purported principal to the agent's signature is prima facie sufficient to take the case beyond the purview of this section. Radio Station WTMP v. Zior, 102 Ga. App. 38, 115 S.E.2d 627, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 549 (1960).

Pleadings and Evidence

Between immediate parties parol evidence may show only principal bound. — As between the immediate parties, it may be shown by parol evidence that the instrument was, to the knowledge of the parties, intended to be the obligation of the principal and not of the agent and that it was given and accepted as such. Ocilla S.R.R. v. Morton, 13 Ga. App. 504, 79 S.E. 480, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 241 (1913).

When a promissory note was made payable to the order of a named person, followed merely by the word "trustee," and such payee in like manner endorsed the note and delivered the note to a third person, in a suit on the note by the endorsee against the maker and the endorser, although under the rule of descriptio personae the manner of the endorser's signature indicated prima facie that the endorser signed as an individual and that the endorser's obligation as endorser was the endorser's individual undertaking, the endorser was nevertheless entitled to show by parol that the endorser in fact acted in the transaction merely as the trustee or agent of the plaintiff endorsee, and that the endorser's endorsement of the note, though in blank, was, under this agreement with the endorsee, made solely for the transfer of title as the true rightful owner. Kaiser v. Simmons, 52 Ga. App. 355, 183 S.E. 343, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 627 (1936) (see § 10-6-87 and notes thereto).

Only slight evidence of trust required. — Prima facie, a judgment in favor of EJD, executor of MG, is EJD's individual property under this section, but this presumption may be removed by slight evidence tending to show that EJD holds the same in trust for the estate. Dozier v. McWhorter, 117 Ga. 786, 45 S.E. 61, 1903 Ga. LEXIS 336 (1903).

Pleading may be amended to delete "agent". — Pleading alleging that the contract, the breach of which is the wrong complained of, was made by the defendant as agent, without more, is amendable by striking the word "agent" therefrom. Such contract is the individual undertaking of the maker under this section. Hearn v. Gower, 1 Ga. App. 265, 57 S.E. 916, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 209 (1907).

Mortgage held inadmissible when signer's authority not shown. — When a mortgage on realty was signed "Trustees North Ga. Col. School (Seal). H. A. Burge, Cor. Sect. (Seal)," it was erroneous to admit the mortgage in evidence on the trial of a claim to the property, over timely objection that "there was no evidence shown where H. A. Burge had any authority to sign any mortgage," the evidence failing to disclose any such authority. Hastey v. Roberts, 149 Ga. 479, 100 S.E. 569, 1919 Ga. LEXIS 277 (1919).

If one undertakes obligation in fictitious or trade name, such obligation is one's own individually. Horn v. Wright, 157 Ga. App. 408, 278 S.E.2d 66, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1845 (1981).

Action against "X, administratrix of estate of Y, deceased," is suit against X individually, the additional words being merely descriptio personae. Horn v. Wright, 157 Ga. App. 408, 278 S.E.2d 66, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 1845 (1981).

Jury Instructions

Liability of agent if agency not disclosed. — It is only when an agent is either expressly or impliedly dealing or acting for and in behalf of the agent's principal that a contract made by the agent with a third person having knowledge of this relationship is the contract of the principal and is not the personal contract of the agent. Harris v. Southeastern Printers Supply Co., 59 Ga. App. 729, 2 S.E.2d 184, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 398 (1939).

When the plaintiff, through a member of the firm, made an oral agreement with the defendant to install and repair a printing press on what is designated as "a time and material basis," and the defendant did not at any time during the negotiations for the contract or during the progress of the work disclose to the plaintiff's agent that the defendant was the agent of anyone or that the agent was contracting for the services, or that the agent accepted the services, as the agent for another, and, notwithstanding the fact that the plaintiff may have known beforehand that the defendant was "connected with" or was an officer in or agent for a corporation which was the owner of the printing press which was being repaired under the contract, the inference is authorized that the contract was with the defendant in the defendant's individual capacity. Harris v. Southeastern Printers Supply Co., 59 Ga. App. 729, 2 S.E.2d 184, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 398 (1939).

Agent who makes a contract without disclosing that the agent is acting as an agent or without identifying the agent's principal will become individually liable on the contract. Chambliss v. Hall, 113 Ga. App. 96, 147 S.E.2d 334, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 982 (1966).

Only principal is bound if agent names principal. — Under former Code 1868, §§ 2169 and 2185, it was a general rule — standing on strong foundations, and pervading every system of jurisprudence — that when an agent was duly constituted, and named the agent's principal, and contracts in the agent's name, the principal was responsible, and not the agent. Tiller v. Spradley, 39 Ga. 35, 1869 Ga. LEXIS 168 (1869); Gibbs v. Carolina Portland Cement Co., 50 Ga. App. 229, 177 S.E. 760, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 714 (1934).

When an agent in making a contract discloses to the other contracting party that the agent is acting for a named principal, the principal is responsible and not the agent. Chambliss v. Hall, 113 Ga. App. 96, 147 S.E.2d 334, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 982 (1966); Evans v. Smithdeal, 143 Ga. App. 287, 238 S.E.2d 278, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2290 (1977).

When the owner of land employs a general agent to manage and operate the owner's farm, such agency being fully disclosed to the persons contracting with the agent to cultivate the land as croppers, no liability arises in favor of persons cultivating the land, as against the agent, by reason of the operation of the farm, and even though the agent may have authority from the agent's employer to make all contracts with croppers, superintend the operations of the farm, sell the products of the farm, and make all settlements with the croppers and tenants thereon, and may actually perform such duties, with the consent of a cropper on the premises, the agent's possession of crops grown on the premises is as agent for the agent's employer, and not in the agent's own right, and the agent is not subject to the process of garnishment instituted by a creditor of such cropper. Johnson v. Varnum, 43 Ga. App. 737, 159 S.E. 908, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 533 (1931).

Principal liable if other party knew of agency. — If the sheriff knew that the bidder purchased as the agent of others, and recognized and treated the bidder as such, the sheriff's right of action would not be against the agent but against the principal. Cureton v. Wright, 73 Ga. 8, 1884 Ga. LEXIS 3 (1884).

A person who has obtained a diversion of a shipment of goods during transportation by a carrier is not liable for a resulting additional freight charge when, in ordering the diversion, the person was acting as agent for another and the carrier must have known of this fact. B & O R.R. v. Johnson-Battle Lumber Co., 37 Ga. App. 729, 141 S.E. 678, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 585 (1928).

Agent has duty to disclose principal to avoid liability. — If the agent would avoid personal liability, the duty is on the agent to disclose the agent's principal, and the agent is individually liable if the agent fails to disclose the agent's agency and the identity of the agent's principal. Chambliss v. Hall, 113 Ga. App. 96, 147 S.E.2d 334, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 982 (1966).

When an agent wishes to avoid personal liability, the duty is on the agent to disclose the agent's agency, and not on the party with whom the agent deals to discover it. Brown-Wright Hotel Supply Corp. v. Bagen, 112 Ga. App. 300, 145 S.E.2d 294, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (1965); Whitlock v. PKW Supply Co., 154 Ga. App. 573, 269 S.E.2d 36, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2291 (1980).

Agent has burden of proving agency and other party's knowledge thereof. — If a person would relieve themselves from personal liability on the ground of agency, the person ordinarily has the burden of proving the fact of agency as well as knowledge thereof by the opposite party. Citizens Nat'l Bank v. Jennings, 35 Ga. App. 553, 134 S.E. 114, 1926 Ga. App. LEXIS 976 (1926); B & O R.R. v. Johnson-Battle Lumber Co., 37 Ga. App. 729, 141 S.E. 678, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 585 (1928).

To relieve oneself of personal liability the agent ordinarily has the burden of proving by direct or circumstantial evidence the fact of agency as well as knowledge thereof by the opposite party. Chambliss v. Hall, 113 Ga. App. 96, 147 S.E.2d 334, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 982 (1966); Yarbrough & Co. v. Travis Pruitt & Assocs., 130 Ga. App. 49, 202 S.E.2d 227, 1973 Ga. App. LEXIS 1219 (1973).

Use of a tradename is not necessarily a sufficient disclosure of the identity of the principal and the fact of agency so as to protect the agent against personal liability. Brown-Wright Hotel Supply Corp. v. Bagen, 112 Ga. App. 300, 145 S.E.2d 294, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (1965).

Agent may expressly or impliedly bind himself. — An agent who makes a contract with the express or implied understanding with the other party that the agent is binding oneself individually will become individually liable on the contract. Chambliss v. Hall, 113 Ga. App. 96, 147 S.E.2d 334, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 982 (1966).

Personal liability of agent in addition to principal's liability. — If an agent acts for a disclosed principal, within the scope of the agent's authority, the actions are those of the principal, who is alone liable unless the agent has assumed personal liability also. Candler v. Clover Realty Co., 125 Ga. App. 278, 187 S.E.2d 318, 1972 Ga. App. LEXIS 1298 (1972).

When agency is known. — When the agency is known but the credit is expressly given to the agent, the agent is personally responsible. Verhey v. Cook, 142 Ga. App. 280, 235 S.E.2d 678, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 1576 (1977).

Agent may expressly contract on the agent's own credit and be bound, even though the agent's principal is known. Brown & Huseby, Inc. v. Chrietzberg, 242 Ga. 232, 248 S.E.2d 631, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1153 (1978).

Recording agency contract held not to give notice or relieve agent. — In an action by a seller on an open account for goods sold against a defendant who alleges the defendant was acting as an agent, recording of the agency contract in the office of the clerk of the superior court was held not to give proper notice of the agency contract to the seller, and when the seller had no actual knowledge of the contents of the agency contract, the defendant agent is personally liable. Babb v. Kersh, 92 Ga. App. 346, 88 S.E.2d 432, 1955 Ga. App. LEXIS 589 (1955).

Applicability in attorney-client relationship. — Attorney could not be held solely liable to a court reporting service for $851.10, representing court reporting fees owed, as the clients the attorney was representing at the time the services were rendered should have been joined in the litigation, pursuant to both O.C.G.A. §§ 9-11-14(a) and 9-11-19(a), given that: (1) the clients could have been liable to the attorney for all or part of the court reporting fees; and (2) the attorney's claim that the clients made partial payment for the court reporting services also rendered the clients necessary parties for adjudication of this dispute. Free v. Lankford & Assocs., Inc., 284 Ga. App. 328, 643 S.E.2d 771, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 236 (2007), cert. denied, No. S07C1114, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 560 (Ga. July 12, 2007).

Proof of Agency

Agency may be proved by contract or extrinsic evidence. — Contract signed by a person who adds after the person's signature the words "general manager" is not the individual undertaking of the person signing, if the contract shows on its face that it was made in behalf of another, or if, in an action for its breach, this fact appears by extrinsic evidence. Raleigh & Gaston R.R. v. Pullman Co., 122 Ga. 700, 50 S.E. 1008, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 304 (1905).

If it does not appear from the face of the contract whether it is the signer's individual undertaking or is that of the signer's principal acting through the signer as the principal's agent, it may, especially when the contract is not executed under seal, be shown extrinsically that the contract is that of the principal, executed for and in the principal's behalf by the principal's agent. Dorsey v. Rankin, 43 Ga. App. 12, 157 S.E. 876, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1931).

Parol evidence. — Under former Civil Code 1895, §§ 3022 and 3039, when a contract was signed by a person individually, parol evidence was admissible for the purpose of showing that the person was acting as agent for another. Fitzgerald Cotton Oil Co. v. Farmers Supply Co., 3 Ga. App. 212, 59 S.E. 713, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 598 (1907).

Proof when actual principal is not one indicated after agent's signature. — When the question as to who is the real contracting party is one of fact which can be extrinsically determined, it may be shown that the person signing a contract in the person's own name, with descriptive terms of agency after the person's signature, did so for and on behalf of another as the person's principal, by and through the person as agent, although the person's principal may be another and different person from the one indicated as the signer's principal in the descriptive terms attached to the signer's signature. Dorsey v. Rankin, 43 Ga. App. 12, 157 S.E. 876, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1931).

Contract reciting it was not signed on another's behalf. — When a contract recites that it represents the entire agreement between the parties, it cannot be shown by extrinsic parol evidence that one of the signatories did not sign, as recited therein, on the signatory's own behalf, but signed as an agent of another. Haas v. Koskey, 138 Ga. App. 448, 226 S.E.2d 279, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2188 (1976).

Introduction of extrinsic evidence when fact of agency not in contract. — If the fact of agency does not appear in an integrated contract, an agent who appears to be a party thereto cannot introduce extrinsic evidence to show that the agent is not a party except: (a) for the purpose of reforming the contract; or (b) to establish that the agent's name was signed as the business name of the principal and that it was so agreed by the parties. Haas v. Koskey, 138 Ga. App. 448, 226 S.E.2d 279, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2188 (1976).

"Agent for" after signature does not alone bind principal. — Expression "agent for" a designated person, following the name in a signature attached to a contract, is merely descriptio personae, and its presence in the signature does not of itself necessarily render the contract the undertaking of the designated principal, acting by and through the signer as the principal's agent. Dorsey v. Rankin, 43 Ga. App. 12, 157 S.E. 876, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 161 (1931).

Use of trade name does not necessarily relieve agent. — Use of a trade name is not necessarily a sufficient disclosure of the identity of the principal and the fact of agency so as to protect the agent against personal liability. Whitlock v. PKW Supply Co., 154 Ga. App. 573, 269 S.E.2d 36, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2291 (1980).

Employer was not representing the disclosed principal when the employer hired an employee, the employer contracted with the employee personally and not as an agent, and the language of a letter of understanding supported the position that the employer was acting individually in asking the employee to work for the corporation. Wojcik v. Lewis, 204 Ga. App. 301, 419 S.E.2d 135, 1992 Ga. App. LEXIS 848 (1992).

Questions of Fact

Disclosure or knowledge of agency is question of fact. — Whether or not the fact of the agency and the identity of the principal were disclosed or known to the other contracting party is a question of fact which may be shown by direct or circumstantial evidence. Chambliss v. Hall, 113 Ga. App. 96, 147 S.E.2d 334, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 982 (1966).

Trier of fact should determine whether the agency was disclosed. Yarbrough & Co. v. Travis Pruitt & Assocs., 130 Ga. App. 49, 202 S.E.2d 227, 1973 Ga. App. LEXIS 1219 (1973).

Parties' intention as to who will be bound. — Intention of the parties as to who will be bound when the principal is disclosed is usually a question of fact for a jury. Whitlock v. PKW Supply Co., 154 Ga. App. 573, 269 S.E.2d 36, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2291 (1980).

Question whether the plaintiff received certain foreign bills of exchange drawn by the defendants, payable to the plaintiff's order, from the defendants on their credit as the drawers thereof or on the credit of the proceeds of the plaintiff's own cotton shipped and sold by the defendants as the plaintiff's agents was a question to be decided by the jury under the evidence in the case. Jones v. J.W. Lathrop & Co., 44 Ga. 398, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 393 (1871).

Contract may, depending upon the facts and circumstances, be impliedly one with the agent in the agent's individual capacity. What was the understanding of both parties is a question of fact to be decided by the jury under the circumstances of each case. Chambliss v. Hall, 113 Ga. App. 96, 147 S.E.2d 334, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 982 (1966); Evans v. Smithdeal, 143 Ga. App. 287, 238 S.E.2d 278, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2290 (1977).

Negotiable instruments after negotiation. — This section does not control when a negotiable paper, complete on its face, appears to have been negotiated in the fair and usual course of trade; nor, on such a paper as this, is the question to whom credit was given one of fact to be decided by the jury. Bedell v. Scarlett, 75 Ga. 56, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 69 (1885).

Sealed instruments or agreements to be individually bound. — Omitting cases of contracts under seal, negotiable instruments, and those when there is an express declaration in writing of an intention and agreement on the part of an agent to be individually bound, usually when the agent contracts in the agent's own name, but with the agent's principal known, the question as to whether the principal or the agent individually is bound is one of fact. Phinizy v. Bush, 129 Ga. 479, 59 S.E. 259, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 491 (1907).

Allegations not raising issue of who is bound. — When the plaintiff's pleading showed on its face that the agency of the president was known and that credit was extended to the principal, and there being no allegation that credit was expressly extended to the agent, there was no issue which required submission to the jury. Bank of Univ. v. Hamilton, 78 Ga. 312, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 237 (1886).

When agency was shown, there was no issue which required submission to the jury in the absence of allegations that credit was expressly extended to the agent, or that the authority assumed by the agents was unauthorized. Ross v. Grinalds, 86 Ga. App. 180, 71 S.E.2d 294, 1952 Ga. App. LEXIS 909 (1952).

Jury Instructions

Instruction on section should use "expressly" or refer to parties' understanding. — In charging this section, the court neither used the word "expressly" nor any equivalent language, nor did the court refer in clear terms to the understanding of both parties. The amplification which was requested orally would have supplied the omission and ought to have been incorporated into the charge. Fleming v. Hill, 62 Ga. 751, 1879 Ga. LEXIS 613 (1879).

Instruction substantially giving benefit of section. — Failure to charge this section without request was not error when accommodation endorsers in an action on a renewal note were given substantially the benefit of this contention in a charge to the jury that, should the jury find from the evidence that the endorsers signed the note sued on as officers of a corporation and not as individuals, they should find in favor of them, even though no such representative capacity appears on the face of the note. Franklin v. Sea Island Bank, 111 Ga. App. 182, 141 S.E.2d 121, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 913 (1965).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Public officials are not personally liable on authorized contracts. — Public officials are not liable personally on contracts entered into by the officials within the scope of the officials' authority. Wilson v. Strange, 235 Ga. 156, 219 S.E.2d 88, 1975 Ga. LEXIS 810 (1975).

Justices of the inferior court. — Justices of the inferior court contracting in behalf of the public are not individually liable for the payment of such contracts. Ghent v. Adams, 2 Ga. 214, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 29 (1847).

Commissioners contracting for river improvement. — Commissioners contracting for improvement on Coosa River are not individually liable for obligations assumed in that character. Tucker v. Shorter, 17 Ga. 620, 1855 Ga. LEXIS 161 (1855).

Sheriffs. — When an action is against the defendant as sheriff, to recover on a contract made by the sheriff solely in the sheriff's capacity as sheriff and not in the sheriff's individual capacity, the plaintiff's pleading sets out no liability against the sheriff in the sheriff's individual capacity. Bowden v. Eubanks, 57 Ga. App. 414, 195 S.E. 582, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 617 (1938).

Members of county board of education. — Membership on a county board of education is a public office, and board members cannot be sued in their official capacity for breach of contract made on behalf of or in the name of the board. Knight v. Troup County Bd. of Educ., 144 Ga. App. 634, 242 S.E.2d 263, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1718 (1978).

County school superintendents. — When a county school superintendent's actions were authorized by the county board of education, the superintendent is immune from any individual liability on a contract made on behalf of or in the name of the board. Knight v. Troup County Bd. of Educ., 144 Ga. App. 634, 242 S.E.2d 263, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1718 (1978).

Contract showing intent to assume personal liability. — Officials are not personally liable on contracts entered into by the officials within the scope of their official authority, unless the contract shows that the officials clearly intended to assume a personal liability. Bowden v. Eubanks, 57 Ga. App. 414, 195 S.E. 582, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 617 (1938).

Public agent may stipulate to be personally responsible. Aven v. Beckom, 11 Ga. 1, 1852 Ga. LEXIS 1 (1852).

Reason for rule. — There is a manifest distinction between contracts made with private agents and agents acting on behalf of the public as it regards their personal responsibility. The reason for the distinction is that it is not to be presumed either that the public agent means to bind oneself personally in acting as a functionary of the public or that the party dealing with the public agent in the agent's public character means to rely on the agent's individual responsibility. If individuals acting for the public are to be held individually liable upon their official contracts, few would be willing to accept any public trust or office. Ghent v. Adams, 2 Ga. 214, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 29 (1847); Aven v. Beckom, 11 Ga. 1, 1852 Ga. LEXIS 1 (1852).

Other provisions are applicable to public agents. — That public agents fall within former Code 1873, § 2186, which prohibited an agent from buying if employed to sell or selling if employed to buy, and former Code 1882, § 2187, which prohibited an agent from making a profit out of the principal's property, appeared clearly from former Code 1873, § 2212; upon the principle "inclusio unius, exclusio alterius," it applies to all agents in common. Mayor of Macon v. Huff, 60 Ga. 221, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 427 (1878).

Existence of oral contract held question of fact. — When the plaintiff contends that an oral contract existed between the plaintiff and the county school superintendent, acting either on behalf of the county board of education or individually, but the only evidence as to the oral contract is the contradicting testimony of the plaintiff and the superintendent, a question of fact exists which must be resolved by the jury. Knight v. Troup County Bd. of Educ., 144 Ga. App. 634, 242 S.E.2d 263, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1718 (1978).

10-6-89. Contract for nonexisting principal void; right of action against purported agent.

The contract of any person or corporation who purports as agent of a nonexisting principal to bind such nonexisting principal only shall be void. Any other party to such contract who is misled thereby to his injury shall have a right of action for damages against such purported agent individually.

History.
Code 1933, § 4-410, enacted by Ga. L. 1955, p. 346, § 1.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Section codifies case law. — Rule holding an agent individually responsible when the agent acts for a nonexistent principal was derived from the case law and subsequently included in the statutes. West v. FDIC, 149 Ga. App. 342, 254 S.E.2d 392, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 3111, aff'd, 244 Ga. 396, 260 S.E.2d 89, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 1250 (1979).

Nonexistent legal entity can have no agent. Dixie Drive It Yourself Sys. v. Lewis, 78 Ga. App. 236, 50 S.E.2d 843, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 716 (1948).

Corporation acting under a trade name is not a nonexistent principal as a matter of law. West v. FDIC, 149 Ga. App. 342, 254 S.E.2d 392, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 3111, aff'd, 244 Ga. 396, 260 S.E.2d 89, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 1250 (1979).

Unauthorized foreign corporation. — Fact that a foreign corporation was unauthorized within the meaning of the Georgia Business Corporation Code (see now O.C.G.A. § 14-2-1501 et seq.) would not mean that the corporate agent was acting for a nonexistent principal. Evans v. Smithdeal, 143 Ga. App. 287, 238 S.E.2d 278, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2290 (1977).

If one contracts as agent when in fact one has no principal, one will be personally liable. Dixie Drive It Yourself Sys. v. Lewis, 78 Ga. App. 236, 50 S.E.2d 843, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 716 (1948).

One who assumes to act as agent for a nonexistent principal or one having no legal status renders oneself individually liable in contracts so made. Brown-Wright Hotel Supply Corp. v. Bagen, 112 Ga. App. 300, 145 S.E.2d 294, 1965 Ga. App. LEXIS 678 (1965); Don Swann Sales Corp. v. Echols, 160 Ga. App. 539, 287 S.E.2d 577, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3089 (1981).

If there was a nonexistent principal within the meaning of this section, the contract is void and the agent is rendered individually liable. Evans v. Smithdeal, 143 Ga. App. 287, 238 S.E.2d 278, 1977 Ga. App. LEXIS 2290 (1977).

When the evidence supports a finding that the purported corporation is not a valid corporate entity, there is no doubt that the agent is bound by the agent's purchases on an open account. Don Swann Sales Corp. v. Echols, 160 Ga. App. 539, 287 S.E.2d 577, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3089 (1981).

Purported agent liable unless other party agrees to look to somebody else. — One who professes to contract as agent for another, when one's purported principal is actually nonexistent, may be held personally liable on the contract, unless the other contracting party agrees to look to some other person for performance. Hagan v. Asa G. Candler, Inc., 189 Ga. 250, 5 S.E.2d 739, 1939 Ga. LEXIS 683 (1939); Dixie Drive It Yourself Sys. v. Lewis, 78 Ga. App. 236, 50 S.E.2d 843, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 716 (1948).

Other party's knowledge of principal's nonexistence. — One who professes to contract as agent is personally liable on the contract if, unknown to the other party, one's purported principal is actually nonexistent; however, the agent is not liable when the third person has knowledge of the nonexistence of the principal or when there is an agreement or understanding to the contrary. Hagan v. Asa G. Candler, Inc., 59 Ga. App. 587, 1 S.E.2d 693, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 367, aff'd, 189 Ga. 250, 5 S.E.2d 739, 1939 Ga. LEXIS 683 (1939).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Propriety of summary judgment. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment on a homebuyer's breach of contract claim against the buyer's realtor as material fact issues remained as to whether the realtor violated the realtor's duties under the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transaction Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq.; however, summary judgment was proper, based on the testimony presented on the motion, as to the homebuyer's fraudulent concealment claim. Ikola v. Schoene, 264 Ga. App. 338, 590 S.E.2d 750, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 1477 (2003).

Client's summary judgment motion was properly denied; the absence of a written agreement between a real estate broker and a client did not preclude the broker from seeking to recover compensation under the remedies found outside the scope of the Georgia Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., including those at common law. Killearn Partners, Inc. v. Southeast Props., 279 Ga. 144, 611 S.E.2d 26, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 222 (2005).

Trial court erred in granting summary judgment to a home seller and against a realtor in construing the unambiguous language in the brokerage agreement at issue, which was for a definite term and was not terminable at will; moreover, although a sale was not consummated, the realtor remained entitled to the realtor's six percent commission, and the seller remained obligated to pay that amount, which was the proper measure of damages. Ben Farmer Realty, Inc. v. Owens, 286 Ga. App. 678, 649 S.E.2d 771, 2007 Ga. App. LEXIS 768 (2007), cert. denied, No. S07C1820, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 81 (Ga. Jan. 7, 2008).

Scope. — Silence in the Georgia Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., as to when or under what circumstances a real estate agent may assert a claim for payment owed in exchange for services rendered or whether a written agreement must exist before an agent may claim such payment demonstrates that the Georgia legislature did not intend for the Act to regulate real estate commissions or remuneration payments; rather, the Act is concerned primarily with the question of whether and under what circumstances a client or a customer relationship arises and what duties are owed within the context of each. Killearn Partners, Inc. v. Southeast Props., 279 Ga. 144, 611 S.E.2d 26, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 222 (2005).

Act is not exclusive remedy, common law claims remain. — Nothing in the text of the Georgia Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., provides for the act to be the exclusive remedy; therefore, even in the absence of a written brokerage engagement as defined under the act, a broker may nevertheless recover for the value of the broker's services under common law theories of quantum meruit or as the procuring cause. Killearn Partners, Inc. v. Southeast Props., Inc., 266 Ga. App. 508, 597 S.E.2d 578, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 425 (2004), aff'd, 279 Ga. 144, 611 S.E.2d 26, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 222 (2005), overruled in part, Amend v. 485 Props., 280 Ga. 327, 627 S.E.2d 565, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 167 (2006).

Remedies outside of act's scope not foreclosed. — Nothing in the Georgia Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., indicates that the Georgia General Assembly intended to foreclose the availability of remedies outside the Act's scope, including those available under statute and at common law. Killearn Partners, Inc. v. Southeast Props., 279 Ga. 144, 611 S.E.2d 26, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 222 (2005).

10-6A-2. Legislative findings; chapter as basis for private rights of actions and defenses.

(a) The General Assembly finds, determines, and declares that application of the common law of agency to the relationships between real estate brokers and persons who are sellers, buyers, landlords and tenants of rights and interests in real property has resulted in misunderstandings and consequences that have been contrary to the best interests of the public; the General Assembly further finds, determines, and declares that the real estate brokerage industry has a significant impact upon the economy of the State of Georgia and that it is in the best interests of the public to provide codification of the relationships between real estate brokers and consumers of brokerage services in order to prevent detrimental misunderstandings and misinterpretations of such relationships by both consumers and real estate brokers and thus promote and provide stability in the real estate market. The provisions of this chapter are enacted to govern the relationships between sellers, landlords, buyers, tenants, and real estate brokers and their affiliated licensees to the extent not governed by specific written agreements between and among the parties.

(b) The General Assembly further finds, determines, and declares that the provisions of this chapter are not intended to prescribe or affect the contractual relationships as between real estate brokers and the broker's affiliated licensees.

(c) The provisions of this chapter may serve as a basis for private rights of action and defenses by sellers, buyers, landlords, tenants, and real estate brokers.

History.

Code 1981, § 10-6A-2, enacted by Ga. L. 1993, p. 376, § 1; Ga. L. 2000, p. 929, § 1.

Code Commission notes.

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1993, "General Assembly" was substituted for "general assembly" at the first instance of the term in subsection (a).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

No breach of duties. — Trial court did not err in dismissing the buyers' action against a real estate company and a real estate agent because any broker-client relationship between them and the company and the agent that could have been created when the agent executed the first purchase and sale agreement as both the buyers' agent and the seller's agent ended when that agreement failed due to a low appraisal, and since the buyers engaged a buyer's agent, the relationship between the company, agent, and buyers was that of broker-customer; in the absence of a written agreement between them, the duties of the company and the agent were those set out in the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-5, and although a broker who was engaged only by a seller owed a buyer, who was a "customer" rather than a "client" under the Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(8), certain duties in terms of disclosure of information, the buyers' complaint did not aver that the company and agent breached any of those duties. Jones v. Bill Garlen Real Estate, 311 Ga. App. 372, 715 S.E.2d 777, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 733 (2011).

10-6A-3. Definitions.

As used in this chapter, the term:

(1) "Agency" means every relationship in which a real estate broker acts for or represents another as a client by the latter's written authority in a real property transaction.

(3) "Brokerage" means the business or occupation of a real estate broker.

(4) "Brokerage engagement" means a written contract wherein the seller, buyer, landlord, or tenant becomes the client of the broker and promises to pay the broker a valuable consideration or agrees that the broker may receive a valuable consideration from another in consideration of the broker producing a seller, buyer, tenant, or landlord ready, able, and willing to sell, buy, or rent the property or performing other brokerage services.

(5) "Brokerage relationship" means the agency and nonagency relationships which may be formed between the broker and the broker's clients and customers, as described in this chapter.

(6) "Client" means a person who is being represented by a real estate broker in an agency capacity pursuant to a brokerage engagement.

(7) "Common source information companies" means any person, firm, or corporation that is a source, compiler, or supplier of information regarding real estate for sale or lease and other data and includes but is not limited to multiple listing services.

(9) "Designated agent" means one or more licensees affiliated with a broker who are assigned by the broker to represent solely one client to the exclusion of all other clients in the same transaction and to the exclusion of all other licensees affiliated with the broker.

(10) "Dual agent" means a broker who simultaneously has a client relationship with both seller and buyer or both landlord and tenant in the same real estate transaction.

(11) "Material facts" means those facts that a party does not know, could not reasonably discover, and would reasonably want to know.

(12) "Ministerial acts" means those acts described in Code Section 10-6A-14 and such other acts which do not require the exercise of the broker's or the broker's affiliated licensee's professional judgment or skill.

(12.1) "Option to enter into a brokerage engagement" means a written contract wherein a broker pays valuable consideration or agrees that a seller, buyer, landlord, or tenant may receive a valuable consideration from another in consideration of such seller, buyer, landlord, or tenant granting such broker an exclusive right to enter into a brokerage engagement with such seller, buyer, landlord, or tenant during the term of the written contract.

(13) "Timely" means a reasonable time under the particular circumstances.

(14) "Transaction broker" means a broker who has not entered into a client relationship with any of the parties to a particular real estate transaction and who performs only ministerial acts on behalf of one or more of the parties, but who is paid valuable consideration by one or more parties to the transaction pursuant to a verbal or written agreement for performing brokerage services.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Written agreement required. — Trial court erred in denying the appellants' motion for summary judgment in a negligence action because a written agreement was explicitly required under the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., the listing agreement terminated without either party entering into an extension or another written agreement and, therefore, appellee's status, as a matter of law, was no longer that of a client to whom appellants owed any duty. Starks v. Carver, 360 Ga. App. 366, 861 S.E.2d 193, 2021 Ga. App. LEXIS 353 (2021).

Business brokers. — O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-4(a), regarding a broker's legal relationship to customers or clients, which is in derogation of common law and must therefore be limited in strict accordance with its language, applies only to real estate brokers, not to business brokers, under O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3. Bienert v. Dickerson, 276 Ga. App. 621, 624 S.E.2d 245, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 1335 (2005).

Reasonable care exercised by real estate broker. — Trial court erred in denying motions for directed verdict and judgment notwithstanding the verdict, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-50, because a real estate broker and a real estate agent owed no duty to a potential buyer of property when the buyer did not engage the broker as defined in the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq.; the buyer was, at most, a "customer" of the broker pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(8), and the broker exercised reasonable care in locating a property owner and checking on the status of desired property pursuant to § 10-6A-3. Harrouk v. Fierman, 291 Ga. App. 818, 662 S.E.2d 892, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 654 (2008).

Brokerage agreement. — Real estate broker was not entitled to recover a commission from buyers who elected not to close because the required brokerage agreement under O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(4) had the pertinent commission paragraph stricken and, thus, did not advise the buyers that any commission had to be paid under O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-10(3); although the broker sought to rely on, inter alia, an FMLS listing indicating the commission, that particular document was unsigned and indicated no assent to any contractual terms. Pargar, LLC v. Jackson, 294 Ga. App. 882, 670 S.E.2d 547, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 1353 (2008).

No breach of duties. — Trial court did not err in dismissing buyers' action against a real estate company and a real estate agent because any broker-client relationship between them and the company and the agent that could have been created when the agent executed the first purchase and sale agreement as both the buyers' agent and the seller's agent ended when that agreement failed due to a low appraisal, and since the buyers engaged a buyer's agent, the relationship between the company, agent, and buyers was that of broker-customer; in the absence of a written agreement between them, the duties of the company and the agent were those set out in the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-5, and although a broker who was engaged only by a seller owed a buyer, who was a "customer" rather than a "client" under the Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(8), certain duties in terms of disclosure of information, the buyers' complaint did not aver that the company and agent breached any of those duties. Jones v. Bill Garlen Real Estate, 311 Ga. App. 372, 715 S.E.2d 777, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 733 (2011).

10-6A-4. Broker's legal relationship to customers or clients.

(a) A broker who performs brokerage services for a client or customer shall owe the client or customer only the duties and obligations set forth in this chapter, unless the parties expressly agree otherwise in a writing signed by the parties. A broker shall not be deemed to have a fiduciary relationship with any party or fiduciary obligations to any party but shall only be responsible for exercising reasonable care in the discharge of its specified duties as provided in this chapter and, in the case of a client, as specified in the brokerage engagement.

(b) Whenever a broker with an existing brokerage relationship with either a customer or a client enters into a new brokerage relationship with the customer or client, the broker shall timely disclose that fact and the new brokerage relationship to all brokers, customers, or clients involved in the contemplated real estate transaction.

History.
Code 1981, § 10-6A-4, enacted by Ga. L. 1993, p. 376, § 1; Ga. L. 2000, p. 929, § 1.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Home buyer's breach of contract claim against realtor. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment on a homebuyer's breach of contract claim against the buyer's realtor as material fact issues remained as to whether the realtor violated the realtor's duties under the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transaction Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq.; however, summary judgment was proper, based on the testimony presented on the motion as to the homebuyer's fraudulent concealment claim. Ikola v. Schoene, 264 Ga. App. 338, 590 S.E.2d 750, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 1477 (2003).

Real estate broker owes no fiduciary duty to a client. Instead, the broker is only responsible for exercising reasonable care in the discharge of the broker's specified duties. Resnick v. Meybohm Realty, Inc., 269 Ga. App. 486, 604 S.E.2d 536, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 983 (2004), cert. denied, No. S05C0166, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 76 (Ga. Jan. 10, 2005).

Potential buyer did not have a viable common law cause of action for fraud and deceit against a real estate broker and a real estate agent because, as set forth in O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-4(a), no confidential or fiduciary relationship was created between the buyer and the broker and the agent as a matter of law. Harrouk v. Fierman, 291 Ga. App. 818, 662 S.E.2d 892, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 654 (2008).

Trial court erred in denying motions for directed verdict and judgment notwithstanding the verdict, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-50, because a real estate broker and a real estate agent owed no duty to a potential buyer of property since the buyer did not engage the broker as defined in the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq.; the buyer was, at most, a "customer" of the broker pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(8), and the broker exercised reasonable care in locating a property owner and checking on the status of desired property pursuant to § 10-6A-3. Harrouk v. Fierman, 291 Ga. App. 818, 662 S.E.2d 892, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 654 (2008).

Issue as to whether broker exercised reasonable care. — Trial court erred in granting the brokerage firm's motion for summary judgment because the undisputed facts showed that the seller rejected the offer because the firm failed to timely submit an updated proof of funds and a material issue existed as to whether the failure to do so was due to the broker's failure to exercise reasonable care in timely disclosing to the buyer the final deadline for submission of the proof of funds. RZI Properties, LLC v. Southern REO Associates, LLC, 336 Ga. App. 336, 782 S.E.2d 731, 2016 Ga. App. LEXIS 83 (2016).

No breach of duties. — Trial court did not err in dismissing buyers' action against a real estate company and a real estate agent because any broker-client relationship between them and the company and the agent that could have been created when the agent executed the first purchase and sale agreement as both the buyers' agent and the seller's agent ended when that agreement failed due to a low appraisal, and since the buyers engaged a buyer's agent, the relationship between the company, agent, and buyers was that of broker-customer; in the absence of a written agreement between them, the duties of the company and the agent were those set out in the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-5, and although a broker who was engaged only by a seller owed a buyer, who was a "customer" rather than a "client" under the Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(8), certain duties in terms of disclosure of information, the buyers' complaint did not aver that the company and agent breached any of those duties. Jones v. Bill Garlen Real Estate, 311 Ga. App. 372, 715 S.E.2d 777, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 733 (2011).

Business brokers. — O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-4(a), regarding a broker's legal relationship to the customers or the clients, which is in derogation of common law and must therefore be limited in strict accordance with its language, applies only to real estate brokers, not to business brokers, under O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3. Bienert v. Dickerson, 276 Ga. App. 621, 624 S.E.2d 245, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 1335 (2005).

10-6A-5. Duties and responsibilities of broker engaged by seller.

(a) A broker engaged by a seller shall:

(1) Perform the terms of the brokerage engagement made with the seller;

(2) Promote the interests of the seller by:

(A) Seeking a sale at the price and terms stated in the brokerage engagement or at a price and terms acceptable to the seller; provided, however, that the broker shall not be obligated to seek additional offers to purchase the property while the property is subject to a contract of sale, unless the brokerage engagement so provides;

(B) Timely presenting all offers to and from the seller, even when the property is subject to a contract of sale;

(C) Disclosing to the seller material facts which the broker has actual knowledge concerning the transaction;

(D) Advising the seller to obtain expert advice as to material matters which are beyond the expertise of the broker; and

(E) Timely accounting for all money and property received in which the seller has or may have an interest;

(3) Exercise reasonable skill and care in performing the duties set forth in this subsection and such other duties, if any, as may be agreed to by the parties in the brokerage engagement;

(4) Comply with all requirements of this chapter and all applicable statutes and regulations, including but not limited to fair housing and civil rights statutes; and

(5) Keep confidential all information received by the broker during the course of the engagement which is made confidential by an express request or instruction from the seller unless the seller permits such disclosure by subsequent word or conduct, or such disclosure is required by law; provided, however, that disclosures between a broker and any of the broker's affiliated licensees assisting the broker in representing the seller shall not be deemed to breach the duty of confidentiality described above.

(b) A broker engaged by a seller shall timely disclose the following to all parties with whom the broker is working:

(1) All adverse material facts pertaining to the physical condition of the property and improvements located on such property including but not limited to material defects in the property, environmental contamination, and facts required by statute or regulation to be disclosed which are actually known by the broker which could not be discovered by a reasonably diligent inspection of the property by the buyer; and

(2) All material facts pertaining to existing adverse physical conditions in the immediate neighborhood within one mile of the property which are actually known to the broker and which could not be discovered by the buyer upon a diligent inspection of the neighborhood or through the review of reasonably available governmental regulations, documents, records, maps, and statistics. Examples of reasonably available governmental regulations, documents, records, maps, and statistics shall include without limitation: land use maps and plans; zoning ordinances; recorded plats and surveys; transportation maps and plans; maps of flood plains; tax maps; school district boundary maps; and maps showing the boundary lines of governmental jurisdictions. Nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to create any duty on the part of a broker to discover or seek to discover either adverse material facts pertaining to the physical condition of the property or existing adverse conditions in the immediate neighborhood. Brokers shall not knowingly give prospective buyers false information; provided, however, that a broker shall not be liable to a buyer for providing false information to the buyer if the broker did not have actual knowledge that the information was false and discloses to the buyer the source of the information. Nothing in this subsection shall limit any obligation of a seller under any applicable law to disclose to prospective buyers all adverse material facts actually known by the seller pertaining to the physical condition of the property nor shall it limit the obligation of prospective buyers to inspect and to familiarize themselves with potentially adverse conditions related to the physical condition of the property, any improvements located on the property, and the neighborhood in which the property is located. No cause of action shall arise on behalf of any person against a broker for revealing information in compliance with this subsection. No broker shall be liable for failure to disclose any matter other than those matters enumerated in this subsection. Violations of this subsection shall not create liability on the part of the broker absent a finding of fraud on the part of the broker.

(c) A broker engaged by a seller in a real estate transaction may provide assistance to the buyer by performing ministerial acts of the type described in Code Section 10-6A-14; and performing such ministerial acts shall not be construed to violate the broker's brokerage engagement with the seller nor shall performing such ministerial acts for the buyer be construed to form a brokerage engagement with the buyer.

(d) A broker engaged by a seller does not breach any duty or obligation by showing alternative properties to prospective buyers.

History.

Code 1981, § 10-6A-5, enacted by Ga. L. 1993, p. 376, § 1; Ga. L. 2000, p. 929, § 1; Ga. L. 2024, p. 1052, § 2(51)/SB 448, effective July 1, 2024.

Amendments.

The 2024 amendment, effective July 1, 2024, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, substituted "however, that" for "however," in subparagraph (a)(2)(A).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Seller disclosure form provided by agent. — Form disclosure statement provided by a real estate agent to the buyer plainly stating that the representations the statement contained were solely those of the seller was insufficient to form the basis for a claim of fraud because the statement was simply relaying information to the buyer without actual knowledge of the alleged falsity. ReMax North Atlanta v. Clark, 244 Ga. App. 890, 537 S.E.2d 138, 2000 Ga. App. LEXIS 886 (2000).

Buyer's claim against seller's agents barred because buyer did not exercise diligence. — Buyer's claim under Georgia Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., against the sellers' real estate agent and the employer failed because the buyer did not exercise diligence in determining the boundaries of the property; the buyer could have easily ascertained the actual property lines, and the buyer was unable to recover from the agents based upon any alleged failure to disclose information. Peacock v. Kiser, 272 Ga. App. 83, 611 S.E.2d 747, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 221 (2005).

No fraud shown by agent. — Trial court erred in denying a real estate agent's motion for summary judgment in an action against the agent by the home purchasers, alleging that the agent committed fraud by failing to disclose the defective nature of the home's septic system as there was no evidence that the broker had actual knowledge of any defect in the septic system, nor that the agent had breached the obligations under O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-5(b)(1); even if the septic system was defective, the agent could not be held liable. Dasher v. Davis, 274 Ga. App. 788, 618 S.E.2d 728, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 833 (2005), cert. denied, No. S05C2042, 2006 Ga. LEXIS 59 (Ga. Jan. 17, 2006).

Because a purchaser failed to act diligently, the purchaser was unable to recover from real estate agents or a broker based upon any alleged failure on the agents part to disclose information about property the purchaser bought from sellers under the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq. Shaw v. Robertson, 307 Ga. App. 337, 705 S.E.2d 210, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 1077 (2010), cert. denied, No. S11C0636, 2011 Ga. LEXIS 375 (Ga. Apr. 26, 2011).

Plaintiff's Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., claim failed as the plaintiff was told of the structural defects, and the defects were discoverable by a reasonably diligent inspection. Atlanta Partners Realty, LLC v. Wohlgemuth, 365 Ga. App. 386, 878 S.E.2d 615, 2022 Ga. App. LEXIS 448 (2022).

No breach of duties. — Trial court did not err in dismissing the buyers' action against a real estate company and a real estate agent because any broker-client relationship between them and the company and the agent that could have been created when the agent executed the first purchase and sale agreement as both the buyers' agent and the seller's agent ended when that agreement failed due to a low appraisal, and since the buyers engaged a buyer's agent, the relationship between the company, agent, and buyers was that of broker-customer; in the absence of a written agreement between them, the duties of the company and the agent were those set out in the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transactions Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-5, and although a broker who was engaged only by a seller owed a buyer, who was a "customer" rather than a "client" under the Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(8), certain duties in terms of disclosure of information, the buyers' complaint did not aver that the company and agent breached any of those duties. Jones v. Bill Garlen Real Estate, 311 Ga. App. 372, 715 S.E.2d 777, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 733 (2011).

Section imposes no special duties regarding pets. — O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6A-5, 10-6A-14, 43-40-15(a), and 43-40-25(b)(25) and related Code sections fail to impose any duties regarding pets other than the general duty to exercise reasonable skill and care in performing all duties; thus, a trial court's summary judgment dismissing claims against real estate agents and brokers for injuries arising from a dog bite while the injured person was viewing listed property for sale was affirmed. Gibson v. Rezvanpour, 268 Ga. App. 377, 601 S.E.2d 848, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 925 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1918, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 904 (Ga. Oct. 12, 2004).

Independent contractor. — Because the home buyers failed to show that a realty company knew of the drainage and flooding issues associated with their property, but instead claimed that the company was liable for negligence or negligent misrepresentation for failure to oversee the sales transaction and failure to oversee the listing agent because the company did not comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 43-40-18 and Ga. Comp. R. & Regs. 520-1-.10(4), the realty company was not liable for the acts of the listing agent as the listing agent was an independent contractor, and the homebuyers failed to present any evidence that the realty company assumed the right to control the time, manner, or method of the work. Walker v. Johnson, 278 Ga. App. 806, 630 S.E.2d 70, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 353 (2006), overruled in part, Kleber v. City of Atlanta, 291 Ga. App. 146, 661 S.E.2d 195, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 396 (2008).

Disclosure of material information. — In an action involving a defect in a home's septic system, the home buyers' agent was not entitled to summary judgment on a Brokerage Relationship in Real Estate Transactions Act (BRETA), O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq., claim because while notice to the buyers' agent was notice to the buyers under O.C.G.A. § 10-6-58, a disputed issue existed as to whether the buyers' agent actually disclosed the information as required by O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-5(b)(1) regarding the second pumping of the septic tank to the buyers. Davis v. Silvers, 295 Ga. App. 103, 670 S.E.2d 805, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 1217 (2008).

10-6A-6. Duties of broker engaged by landlord.

(a) A broker engaged by a landlord shall:

(1) Perform the terms of the brokerage engagement made with the landlord;

(2) Promote the interests of the landlord by:

(A) Seeking a tenant at the price and terms stated in the brokerage engagement or at a price and terms acceptable to the landlord; provided, however, that the broker shall not be obligated to seek additional offers to lease the property while the property is subject to a lease, or letter of intent to lease, unless the brokerage engagement so provides;

(B) Timely presenting all offers to and from the landlord, even when the property is subject to a lease or a letter of intent to lease;

(C) Disclosing to the landlord adverse material facts of which the broker has actual knowledge concerning the transaction;

(D) Advising the landlord to obtain expert advice as to material matters which are beyond the expertise of the broker; and

(E) Timely accounting for all money and property received in which the landlord has or may have an interest;

(3) Exercise ordinary skill and care in performing the duties set forth in this subsection and such other duties as may be agreed to by the parties in the brokerage agreement;

(4) Comply with all requirements of this chapter and all applicable statutes and regulations, including but not limited to fair housing and civil rights statutes; and

(5) Keep confidential all information received by the broker during the course of the engagement which is made confidential by an express request or instruction from the landlord unless the landlord permits such disclosure by subsequent word or conduct, or such disclosure is required by law; provided, however, that disclosures between a broker and any of the broker's affiliated licensees assisting the broker in representing the seller shall not be deemed to breach the duty of confidentiality described above.

(b) A broker engaged by a landlord shall timely disclose to prospective tenants with whom the broker is working:

(1) All adverse material facts pertaining to the physical condition of the property and improvements located on the property including, but not limited to, material defects in the property, environmental contamination, and facts required by statute or regulation to be disclosed which are actually known by the broker which could not be discovered by a reasonably diligent inspection of the property by the tenant; and

(2) All material facts pertaining to existing adverse physical conditions in the immediate neighborhood within one mile of the property which are actually known to the broker and which could not be discovered by the tenant upon a diligent inspection of the neighborhood or through the review of reasonably available governmental regulations, documents, records, maps, and statistics. Examples of reasonably available governmental regulations, documents, records, maps, and statistics shall include without limitation: land use maps and plans; zoning ordinances; recorded plats and surveys; transportation maps and plans; maps of flood plains; tax maps; school district boundary maps; and maps showing the boundary lines of governmental jurisdictions. Nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to create any duty on the part of a broker to discover or seek to discover either adverse material facts pertaining to the physical condition of the property or existing adverse conditions in the immediate neighborhood. Brokers shall not knowingly give prospective tenants false information; provided, however, that a broker shall not be liable to a tenant for providing false information to the tenant if the broker did not have actual knowledge that the information was false and discloses to the tenant the source of the information. Nothing in this subsection shall limit any obligation of the landlord under any applicable law to disclose to prospective tenants all adverse material facts actually known by the landlord pertaining to the physical condition of the property nor shall it limit the obligation of prospective tenants to inspect and to familiarize themselves with potentially adverse conditions in the physical condition of the property, any improvements located on the property, and the surrounding neighborhood. No cause of action shall arise on behalf of any person against a broker for revealing information in compliance with this subsection. No broker shall be liable for failure to disclose any matter other than those matters enumerated in this subsection. Violations of this subsection shall not create liability on the part of the broker absent a finding of fraud on the part of the broker.

(c) A broker engaged by a landlord in a real estate transaction may provide assistance to the tenant by performing such ministerial acts of the type described in Code Section 10-6A-14; and performing such ministerial acts shall not be construed to violate the broker's brokerage engagement with the landlord nor shall performing such ministerial acts for the tenant be construed to form a brokerage engagement with the tenant.

10-6A-7. Duties of broker engaged by buyer.

(a) A broker engaged by a buyer shall:

(1) Perform the terms of the brokerage engagement made with the buyer;

(2) Promote the interests of the buyer by:

(A) Seeking a property at a price and terms acceptable to the buyer; provided, however, that the broker shall not be obligated to seek other properties for the buyer while the buyer is a party to a contract to purchase property, unless the brokerage engagement so provides;

(B) Timely presenting all offers to and from the buyer, even when the buyer is a party to a contract to purchase property;

(C) Disclosing to the buyer adverse material facts of which the broker has actual knowledge concerning the transaction; between a broker and any of the broker's affiliated licensees assisting the broker in representing the buyer shall not be deemed to breach the duty of confidentiality described above.

(b) A broker engaged by a buyer shall timely disclose to a prospective seller with whom the broker is working as a customer and who is selling property which will be financed either by a loan assumption or by the seller's providing a part or all of the financing all material adverse facts actually known by the broker concerning the buyer's financial ability to perform the terms of the sale and, in the case of a residential transaction, the buyer's intent to occupy the property as a principal residence. Brokers shall not knowingly give prospective sellers false information; provided, however, that a broker shall not be liable to a seller for providing false information to the seller if the broker did not have actual knowledge that the information was false and discloses to the seller the source of the information. Nothing in this subsection shall limit the obligation of the prospective buyer under any applicable law to disclose to the prospective seller all adverse material facts actually known by the buyer concerning the buyer's financial ability to perform the terms of the sale and, in the case of a residential transaction, the buyer's intent to occupy the property as a principal residence. Amendments.

The 2024 amendment, effective July 1, 2024, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, substituted "however, that" for "however," in subparagraph (a)(2)(A).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Propriety of summary judgment. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment on a homebuyer's breach of contract claim against the buyer's realtor as material fact issues remained as to whether the realtor violated the realtor's duties under the Brokerage Relationships in Real Estate Transaction Act, O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-1 et seq.; however, summary judgment was proper, based on the testimony presented on the motion, as to the homebuyer's fraudulent concealment claim. Ikola v. Schoene, 264 Ga. App. 338, 590 S.E.2d 750, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 1477 (2003).

Breach of duty not shown. — Trial court properly dismissed a homebuyer's claim that the buyer's real estate agent breached the agent's duties under a brokerage agreement by suppressing an inspection report which showed problems with a house the buyer purchased, and by falsely stating that other offers had been made on the house. Even though there was a gas leak in the house that ignited, there was no evidence that the agent knew about the leak or that the agent lied to the buyer about other offers the seller received. Resnick v. Meybohm Realty, Inc., 269 Ga. App. 486, 604 S.E.2d 536, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 983 (2004), cert. denied, No. S05C0166, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 76 (Ga. Jan. 10, 2005).

10-6A-8. Duties of broker engaged by tenant.

(a) A broker engaged by a tenant shall:

(1) Perform the terms of the brokerage engagement made with the tenant;

(2) Promote the interests of the tenant by:

(A) Seeking a property to lease at a price and terms acceptable to the tenant; provided, however, that the broker shall not be obligated to seek other properties for the tenant while the tenant is a party to a lease or a letter of intent to lease unless the brokerage engagement so provides;

(B) Timely presenting all offers to and from the tenant, even when the tenant is a party to a lease or a letter of intent to lease;

(C) Disclosing to the tenant adverse material facts of which the broker has actual knowledge concerning the transaction;

(D) Advising the tenant to obtain expert advice as to material matters which are beyond the expertise of the broker; and

(E) Timely accounting for all money and property received in which the tenant has or may have an interest;

(3) Exercise ordinary skill and care in performing the duties set forth in this subsection and such other duties as may be agreed to by the parties;

(4) Comply with all requirements of this chapter and all applicable statutes and regulations, including but not limited to fair housing and civil rights statutes; and

(5) Keep confidential all information received by the broker during the course of the engagement which is made confidential by an express request or instruction from the tenant unless the tenant permits such disclosure by subsequent word or conduct, or such disclosure is required by law; provided, however, that disclosures between a broker and any of the broker's affiliated licensees assisting the broker in representing the seller shall not be deemed to breach the duty of confidentiality described above.

(b) A broker engaged by a tenant shall timely disclose to a prospective landlord with whom the broker is working all adverse material facts actually known by the broker concerning the tenant's financial ability to perform the terms of the lease or letter of intent to lease or intent to occupy the property. Brokers shall not knowingly give prospective landlords false information; provided, however, that a broker shall not be liable to a landlord for providing false information to the landlord if the broker did not have actual knowledge that the information was false and the broker discloses to the landlord the source of the information. Nothing in this subsection shall limit any obligation of the prospective tenant under any applicable law to disclose to a prospective landlord all adverse material facts actually known by the tenant concerning the tenant's financial ability to perform the terms of the lease or letter of intent to lease or intent to occupy the property. No cause of action shall arise on behalf of any person against a broker for revealing information in compliance with this subsection. No broker shall be liable for failure to disclose any matter other than those matters enumerated in this subsection. Violations of this subsection shall not create liability on the part of the broker absent a finding of fraud on the part of the broker.

(c) A broker engaged by a tenant in a real estate transaction may provide assistance to the landlord by performing such ministerial acts of the type described in Code Section 10-6A-14; and performing such ministerial acts shall not be construed to violate the broker's brokerage engagement with the tenant nor shall performing such ministerial acts for the landlord be construed to form a brokerage engagement with the landlord.

(d) A broker engaged by a tenant does not breach any duty or obligation by showing properties in which the tenant is interested to other prospective tenants.

Amendments.

The 2024 amendment, effective July 1, 2024, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, substituted

"however, that" for "however," in subparagraph (a)(2)(A).

10-6A-9. Duration of relationships between brokers and clients; conflict between duties owed to clients and customers.

(a) The relationships set forth in Code Sections 10-6A-4 through 10-6A-8, Code Section 10-6A-12, Code Section 10-6A-13, and an option to enter into a brokerage engagement shall commence at the time that the client engages the broker or executes an option to enter into a brokerage engagement, and shall continue until:

(1) Completion of performance of the engagement; or

(2) If paragraph (1) of this subsection is not applicable, then the earlier of:

(A) Any date of expiration agreed upon by the parties in the brokerage engagement, the option to enter into a brokerage engagement, or in any amendments thereto;

(B) Any authorized termination of the relationship; or

(C) If no expiration is provided and no authorized termination has occurred, then one year after initiation of the brokerage engagement or one year after the date the option to enter into a brokerage engagement was executed.

(b) Except as otherwise agreed in writing and as provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, a broker owes no further duties to the client after termination, withdrawal, expiration, or completion of performance of the engagement, except:

(1) To account for all moneys and property relating to the engagement; and

(2) To keep confidential all information received during the course of the engagement which was made confidential by request or instructions from the client, unless:

(A) The client permits the disclosure by subsequent word or conduct;

(B) Such disclosure is required by law; or

(C) The information becomes public from a source other than the broker.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision to the contrary contained in this chapter, in the event a conflict arises between a broker's duty to keep the confidence of a client and the duty not to give customers false information, the broker's duty not to give false information to customers shall prevail and shall govern the broker's actions. No cause of action shall arise on behalf of any person against a broker or the broker's affiliated licensees for revealing information in compliance with this subsection.

10-6A-10. Duties of brokers to prospective clients; limitations on brokerage agreements; exceptions.

(a) All brokerage engagements must:

(1) Advise the prospective client of the types of agency relationships available through the broker;

(2) Advise such prospective client of any brokerage relationships held by such broker with other parties which would conflict with any interests of the prospective client actually known to the broker but excluding the fact that the broker may be representing other sellers and landlords in selling or leasing property or that the broker may be representing other buyers and tenants in buying or leasing other property;

(3) Advise such prospective client as to the broker's compensation and whether the broker will share such compensation with other brokers who may represent other parties to the transaction in an agency capacity; and

(4) Advise the prospective client of the broker's obligations to keep information confidential under this chapter.

(b) A brokerage engagement or an option to enter into a brokerage engagement shall not:

for rights solely applicable to commercial real estate as set forth in Code Section 44-14-602;

(2) Allow for assignment of the right to provide service without notice and agreement of the owner of the subject property, except for such rights of assignment for commercial real estate as set forth in Code Section 44-14-602 or as part of the sale or merger of a brokerage firm; or

(3) Purport to create a recordable lien, encumbrance, or other real property security interest. Any such lien, encumbrance, or other real property security interest, if recorded, shall be void and unenforceable and no release or voiding of such lien, encumbrance, or other real property security interest shall be required; provided, however, that this subsection shall not be applicable to lien rights solely applicable to commercial real estate as set forth in Code Section 44-14-602.

(c) This Code section shall not apply to:

(1) A home warranty, building warranty, or other similar product that covers the cost of maintenance of a home's or other building's system or systems for a prescribed period of time from the date such home or building is sold;

(3) An option to purchase, a put requirement to purchase, a right of first offer, or a right of refusal;

(6) A loan or a commitment to make or receive a loan secured by real estate;

(7) A security agreement under the Uniform Commercial Code relating to the sale or rental of personal property or fixtures;

(8) Water, sewer, electrical, telephone, cable, or other regulated utility service providers; or

(9) A property management agreement by which the owner of the real property shall contract with a party to provide management services for the maintenance, ownership, operation, or lease of real property, provided that the real estate that is the subject of the property management agreement is either for commercial real estate as defined by Code Section 44-14-601 or is for residential one-to four-family real estate that is otherwise not occupied by the owner or owner's family members as their principal place of residence and place of abode as of the date of inception of such property management agreement.

(d) This Code section shall not be construed to impair the rights granted by Code Sections 44-14-361, 44-14-361.1, 44-14-602, and 9-12-80.

(e) This Code section shall not be construed to create any statutory lien right or statutory right to create a cloud on title that is not otherwise created elsewhere in the Official Code of Georgia Annotated.

Amendments.
The 2023 amendment, effective January 1, 2024, designated the existing provisions of this Code section as subsection (a) and added subsections (b) through (e).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Brokerage agreement failed to advise of commission. — Real estate broker was not entitled to recover a commission from buyers who elected not to close because the required brokerage agreement under O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-3(4) had the pertinent commission paragraph stricken and, thus, did not advise the buyers that any commission had to be paid under O.C.G.A. § 10-6A-10(3); although the broker sought to rely on, inter alia, an FMLS listing indicating the commission, that particular document was unsigned and indicated no assent to any contractual terms. Pargar, LLC v. Jackson, 294 Ga. App. 882, 670 S.E.2d 547, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 1353 (2008).

10-6A-11. Creation of relationship not determined by payment or promise of compensation.

The payment or promise of payment of compensation to a broker by a seller, landlord, buyer, or tenant shall not determine whether a brokerage relationship has been created between any broker and a seller, landlord, buyer, or tenant.

History.
Code 1981, § 10-6A-11, enacted by Ga. L. 1993, p. 376, § 1; Ga. L. 2000, p. 929, § 1.

10-6A-12. Broker acting as dual agent.

(a) A broker may act as a dual agent only with the written consent of all clients. Such written consent shall contain the following:

(1) A description of the transactions or types of transactions in which the broker will serve as a dual agent;

(2) A statement that, in serving as a dual agent, the broker represents two clients whose interests are or at times could be different or even adverse;

(3) A statement that a dual agent will disclose all adverse material facts relevant to the transaction and actually known to the dual agent to all parties in the transaction except for information made confidential by request or instructions from another client which is not allowed to be disclosed by this Code section or required to be disclosed by this Code section;

(4) A statement that the broker or the broker's affiliated licensees will timely disclose to each client in a real estate transaction the nature of any material relationship the broker and the broker's affiliated licensees have with the other clients in the transaction other than that incidental to the transaction. For the purposes of this Code section, a material relationship shall mean any actually known personal, familial, or business relationship between the broker or the broker's affiliated licensees and a client which would impair the ability of the broker or affiliated licensees to exercise fair and independent judgment relative to another client;

(5) A statement that the client does not have to consent to the dual agency; and

(6) A statement that the consent of the client has been given voluntarily and that the engagement has been read and understood.

(b) Upon the client signing a written consent meeting the requirements of this Code section, the consent of the client to dual agency shall conclusively be deemed to have been given and informed.

(c) No cause of action shall arise on behalf of any person against a dual agent for making disclosures allowed or required by this chapter and the dual agent does not terminate any agency by making such allowed or required disclosures.

(d) In the case of dual agency, each client and broker and their respective licensees possess only actual knowledge and information. There shall be no imputation of knowledge or information among or between the clients, brokers, or their affiliated licensees.

(e) In any transaction, a broker may without liability withdraw from representing a client who has not consented to a disclosed dual agency at any time prior to the existence of the dual agency. Such withdrawal shall not prejudice the ability of the broker to continue to represent the other client in the transaction, nor limit the broker from representing the client in other transactions not involving a dual agency. When such withdrawal as contemplated in this subsection occurs, the broker may receive a referral fee for referring a client to a broker employed by a different real estate brokerage firm.

(f) Every broker shall develop and enforce an office brokerage relationship policy among affiliated licensees which either specifically permits or rejects the practice of disclosed dual agency, which office brokerage relationship policy shall be disclosed pursuant to Code Section 10-6A-10 and paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of this Code section.

10-6A-13. Exclusive representation; company policies; actual knowledge; confidentiality.

(a) A broker may assign directly or through the adoption of a company policy different licensees affiliated with the broker as designated agents to exclusively represent different clients in the same transaction. In addition, the broker may delegate such assignment responsibility to other management level personnel acting under a company policy. Any company policy adopted to fulfill the requirements of this subsection shall contain provisions reasonably calculated to ensure each client is represented in accordance with the requirements of this chapter. A designated agent of a seller, landlord, buyer, or tenant shall owe his or her client the duties set forth in Code Section 10-6A-5, 10-6A-6, 10-6A-7, or 10-6A-8 of this chapter, respectively.

(b) If a broker appoints different designated agents in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section, neither the broker, the broker's licensees, nor the real estate brokerage firm shall be deemed to be dual agents.

(c) When designated agents are appointed in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section, the broker, the clients, and the designated agents shall be considered to possess only actual knowledge and information; there shall be no imputation of knowledge or information between and among the broker, the designated agents, and the clients. Designated agents shall not disclose, except to the designated agent's broker, information made confidential by request or instruction of the client whom the designated agent is representing, except information allowed to be disclosed by this Code section or required to be disclosed by this chapter. Unless required to be disclosed by law, the broker of a designated agent shall not reveal confidential information it receives from either the designated agent or the client with whom the designated agent is working. For the purposes of this Code section, confidential information shall be deemed to be any information the disclosure of which has not been consented to by the client that could harm the negotiating position of the client.

(d) The designation of one or more of a broker's affiliated licensees as designated agents shall not permit the disclosure by the broker or any of the broker's affiliated licensees of any information made confidential by an express request or instruction by a party prior to the creation of the designated agency. The broker and the broker's affiliated licensees shall continue to maintain such confidential information unless the party from whom the confidential information was obtained permits such disclosure by subsequent word or conduct, or such disclosure is required by law. No liability shall be created as a result of a broker and the broker's affiliated licensee's compliance with this subsection.

10-6A-14. Ministerial acts explained; required actions of transaction brokers; false information.

(a) A broker acting as a transaction broker may provide assistance to buyers, sellers, tenants, and landlords by performing ministerial acts. Examples of ministerial acts which can be performed by the transaction broker on behalf of any of the parties in a real estate transaction include without limitation the following:

(1) Identifying property for sale, lease, or exchange;

(2) Providing real estate statistics and information on property;

(3) Providing preprinted real estate form contracts, leases, and related exhibits and addenda;

(4) Acting as a scribe in the preparation of real estate form contracts, leases, and related exhibits and addenda;

(5) Locating architects, engineers, surveyors, inspectors, lenders, insurance agents, attorneys, and other professionals; and

(6) Identifying schools, shopping facilities, places of worship, and other similar facilities on behalf of any of the parties in a real estate transaction.

(b) A broker acting as a transaction broker shall do the following:

(1) Timely present all offers to and from the parties involving the sale, lease, and exchange of property;

(2) Timely account for all money and property received by the broker on behalf of a party in a real estate transaction; and

(3) Timely disclose the following to all buyers and tenants with whom the broker is working:

(A) All adverse material facts pertaining to the physical condition of the property and improvements located thereon including but not limited to material defects in the property, environmental contamination, and facts required by statute or regulation to be disclosed which are actually known by the broker which could not be discovered by a reasonably diligent inspection of the property by the buyer; and

(B) All material facts pertaining to existing adverse physical conditions in the immediate neighborhood within one mile of the property which are actually known to the broker and which could not be discovered by the buyer upon a diligent inspection of the neighborhood or through the review of reasonably available governmental regulations, documents, records, maps, and statistics. Examples of reasonably available governmental regulations, documents, records, maps, and statistics shall include without limitation: land use maps and plans; zoning ordinances; recorded plats and surveys; transportation maps and plans; maps of flood plains; crime statistics; tax maps; school district boundary maps; and maps showing the boundary lines of governmental jurisdictions.

(c) Transaction brokers shall not knowingly give any party in a real estate transaction false information; provided, however, that a broker shall not be liable to a party for providing false information to the party if broker did not have actual knowledge that the information was false and discloses to the party the source of the information. Nothing in this subsection shall limit any obligation of a seller under any applicable law to disclose to prospective buyers all adverse material facts actually known by the seller pertaining to the physical condition of the property nor shall it limit the obligation of prospective buyers to inspect and to familiarize themselves with potentially adverse conditions related to the physical condition of the property, any improvements located thereon, and the neighborhood in which the property is located. No cause of action shall arise on behalf of any person against a broker for revealing information in compliance with this subsection. No broker shall be liable for failure to disclose any matter other than those matters enumerated in this subsection. Violations of this subsection shall not create liability on the part of the broker absent a finding of fraud on the part of the broker.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Section imposes no special duties regarding pets. — O.C.G.A. §§ 10-6A-5, 10-6A-14, 43-40-15(a), and 43-40-25(b)(25), and related Code sections fail to impose any duties regarding pets other than the general duty to exercise reasonable skill and care in performing all duties; thus, a trial court's summary judgment dismissing claims against real estate agents and brokers for injuries arising from a dog bite while the injured person was viewing listed property for sale was affirmed. Gibson v. Rezvanpour, 268 Ga. App. 377, 601 S.E.2d 848, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 925 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1918, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 904 (Ga. Oct. 12, 2004).

Disclosure of water and mold damage. — In a purchaser's suit asserting fraud, rescission, breach of contract, and negligence with regard to the purchase of a townhome, the trial court properly granted summary judgment to the listing real estate agent, a listing broker, a listing brokerage, and a seller on all claims as the evidence established conclusively that a mold report that identified the water issues was disclosed to the purchaser's real estate agent (who the purchaser did not sue). However, the court found an exception to the general rule of caveat emptor with regard to the purchaser's claim asserting negligent repair against the seller and found the grant of summary judgment on that claim only was in error since the seller had superior knowledge of the water issues, failed to repair the water issues as advised by an engineer, and covered up the defects with sheetrock. Asuamah v. Haley, 293 Ga. App. 112, 666 S.E.2d 426, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 925 (2008).

10-6A-15. Affiliation with common source information company.

Except as may be provided in a written agreement between the parties, a broker shall not be deemed to have an agency relationship with a common source information company. No broker shall be deemed to be a subagent of any client of another broker solely by reason of membership or other affiliation by such brokers in a common source information company, including but not limited to multiple listing services.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Attorney client privilege extended to wills not probated. — Trial court did not clearly abuse the court's discretion in concluding that the principal's will was privileged, and, therefore, granting the agent's motion for an order protecting it from production because the privilege afforded to communications between an attorney and a client extended to wills that have not been submitted to probate. Bethune v. Bethune, 363 Ga. App. 273, 870 S.E.2d 827, 2022 Ga. App. LEXIS 145 (2022).

Code 1981, § 10-6B-6, enacted by Ga. L. 2017, p. 435, § 2-1/HB 221; Ga. L. 2018, p. 520, § 5/HB 897.

10-6B-7. Controlling law.

The meaning and effect of a power of attorney shall be determined by the law of the jurisdiction indicated in the power of attorney and, in the absence of an indication of jurisdiction, by the law of the jurisdiction in which the power of attorney was executed.

History.
Code 1981, § 10-6B-7, enacted by Ga. L. 2017, p. 435, § 2-1/HB 221.

10-6B-8. Nomination of conservator; relationship of agent to court-appointed fiduciary; finding of incapacity.

(a) In a power of attorney, a principal may nominate a conservator of the principal's estate for consideration by the court if protective proceedings for the principal's estate are begun after the principal executes the power of attorney. Except for good cause shown or disqualification, the court shall make its appointment in accordance with the principal's most recent nomination.

(b) Unless expressly provided otherwise by the power of attorney or ordered otherwise by the court appointing the conservator, if, after a principal executes a power of attorney, a court appoints a conservator of the principal's estate or other fiduciary charged with the management of some or all of the principal's property, then the appointment of a conservator or other fiduciary shall terminate all or part of the power of attorney that relates to the matters within the scope of the conservatorship or management by another fiduciary. If such power of attorney does not wholly terminate, the agent shall be accountable to the conservator or other fiduciary as well as to the principal.

(c) If the court orders the power of attorney shall not terminate, the court may impose upon the power of attorney or agent such terms and conditions as it determines are in the best interest of the principal.

(d) A finding by a court that a principal is incapacitated for purposes of this chapter shall neither constitute a determination of nor create a presumption regarding such principal's need for a guardian or conservator under Title 29.

History. Code 1981, § 10-6B-8, enacted by Ga. L. 2017, p. 435, § 2-1/HB 221; Ga. L. 2018, p. 520, § 6/HB 897.

10-6B-9. When power of attorney effective.

(a) A power of attorney shall be effective when executed unless the principal provides in the power of attorney that it becomes effective at a future date or upon the occurrence of a future event or contingency.

(b) If a power of attorney becomes effective upon the occurrence of a future event or contingency, the principal, in the power of attorney, may authorize one or more persons to determine in a writing or other record that the event or contingency has occurred.

(c) If a power of attorney becomes effective upon the principal's incapacity and the principal has not authorized a person to determine whether the principal is incapacitated, or the person authorized is unable or unwilling to make the determination, the power of attorney shall become effective upon a certification in a writing or other record by:

(1) A physician or licensed psychologist determining that the principal has an impairment in the ability to receive and evaluate information or make or communicate decisions even with the use of technological assistance; or

(2) An attorney at law, a judge, or an appropriate governmental official determining that the principal is missing, detained, including incarcerated in a penal system, or is outside the United States and unable to return.

(d) A person authorized by the principal in the power of attorney to determine that the principal is incapacitated may act as the principal's personal representative pursuant to the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, Sections 1171 through 1179 of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. Section 1320d, in effect on February 1, 2018, and applicable regulations in effect on February 1, 2018, to obtain access to the principal's health care information and communicate with the principal's health care provider.

10-6B-10. Termination of power of attorney and agent's authority; third-party reliance; filing notice of revocation with clerk.

(a) A power of attorney shall terminate when:

(1) The principal dies;

(2) The principal becomes incapacitated, if the power of attorney specifically provides that it is not durable;

(3) The principal revokes the power of attorney;

(4) The principal revokes the agent's authority or the agent resigns, becomes incapacitated, or dies and the power of attorney does not provide for another agent to act under such power of attorney;

(5) The power of attorney provides that it terminates; or

(6) The purpose of the power of attorney is accomplished.

(b) An agent's authority shall terminate when:

(1) The agent resigns, becomes incapacitated, or dies;

(2) The principal revokes the agent's authority;

(3) An action is filed for the dissolution or annulment of the agent's marriage to the principal or their legal separation, unless the power of attorney otherwise provides; or

(4) The power of attorney terminates.

(c) Unless the power of attorney otherwise provides, an agent's authority is exercisable until the authority terminates under subsection (b) of this Code section, notwithstanding a lapse of time since the execution of the power of attorney.

(d) Termination of an agent's authority or of a power of attorney shall not be effective as to the agent or another person that, without actual knowledge of the termination, acts in good faith under the power of attorney. An act so performed, unless otherwise invalid or unenforceable, shall bind the principal and the principal's successors in interest.

(e) Incapacity of the principal of a power of attorney that is not durable shall not revoke or terminate the power of attorney as to an agent or other person that, without actual knowledge of the incapacity, acts in good faith under the power of attorney. An act so performed, unless otherwise invalid or unenforceable, shall bind the principal and the principal's successors in interest.

(f) The execution of a power of attorney shall not revoke a power of attorney previously executed by the principal unless the subsequent power of attorney provides that the previous power of attorney shall be revoked or that all other powers of attorney are revoked.

(g) Nothing in this Code section shall prevent a principal who notifies an agent of the revocation of the agent's authority or power of attorney by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery from filing such notification and evidence of its receipt by the agent with the clerk of superior court in the county of the principal's domicile for the purposes of establishing such agent had knowledge of the principal's revocation.

(b)(1) A principal may designate one or more successor agents to act if an agent resigns, dies, becomes incapacitated, is no longer qualified to serve, has declined to serve, or dies. A principal may grant authority to designate one or more successor agents to an agent or other person designated by name, office, or function. Unless the power of attorney otherwise provides, a successor agent shall:

(A) Have the same authority as that granted to the original agent; and

(B) Not act until all predecessor agents have resigned, become incapacitated, are no longer qualified to serve, have declined to serve, or died.

(2) An agent who has been incapacitated for more than six months shall not resume acting as an agent pursuant to the power of attorney that created the agency during which the agent became incapacitated.

(c) Except as otherwise provided in the power of attorney and subsection (d) of this Code section, an agent that does not participate in or conceal a breach of fiduciary duty committed by another agent, including a predecessor agent, shall not be liable for the actions of the other agent.

(d) An agent that has actual knowledge of a breach or imminent breach of fiduciary duty by another agent shall notify the principal and, if the principal is incapacitated, take any action reasonably appropriate in the circumstances to safeguard the principal's best interest. An agent that fails to notify the principal or take action as required by this subsection shall be liable for the reasonably foreseeable damages that could have been avoided if the agent had notified the principal or taken such action.

10-6B-14. Duties of agents.

(a) Notwithstanding provisions in the power of attorney, an agent that has accepted:

(1) Appointment shall act in accordance with the principal's reasonable expectations to the extent actually known by the agent and, otherwise, in the principal's best interest;

(2) Appointment shall act in good faith;

(3) Appointment shall act only within the scope of authority granted in the power of attorney; and

(4) Delegation of fiduciary powers under paragraph (7) of subsection (a) of Code Section 10-6B-40, shall have the same duties and liabilities as the principal with respect to such fiduciary powers.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in the power of attorney, an agent that has accepted appointment shall:

(1) Act loyally for the principal's benefit;

(2) Act so as not to create a conflict of interest that impairs the agent's ability to act impartially in the principal's best interest;

(3) Act with the care, competence, and diligence ordinarily exercised by agents in similar circumstances;

(4) Keep a record of all receipts, disbursements, and transactions made on behalf of the principal;

(5) Cooperate with a person that has authority to make health care decisions for the principal to carry out the principal's reasonable expectations to the extent actually known by the agent and, otherwise, act in the principal's best interest; and

(6) Attempt to preserve the principal's estate plan, to the extent actually known by the agent, if preserving such plan is consistent with the principal's best interest based on all relevant factors, including:

(A) The value and nature of the principal's property;

(B) The principal's foreseeable obligations and need for maintenance;

(C) Minimization of taxes, including income, estate, inheritance, generation-skipping transfer, and gift taxes; and

(D) Eligibility for a benefit, a program, or assistance under a law or regulation.

(c) An agent that acts in good faith shall not be liable to any beneficiary of the principal's estate plan for failure to preserve such plan.

(d) An agent that acts with care, competence, and diligence for the best interest of the principal shall not be liable solely because the agent also benefits from the act or has an individual or conflicting interest in relation to the property or affairs of the principal.

(e) If an agent is selected by the principal because of special skills or expertise possessed by the agent or in reliance on the agent's representation that the agent has special skills or expertise, the special skills or expertise shall be considered in determining whether the agent has acted with care, competence, and diligence under the circumstances.

(f) Absent a breach of duty to the principal, an agent shall not be liable if the value of the principal's property declines.

(g) An agent that exercises authority to delegate to another person the authority granted by the principal or that engages another person on behalf of the principal shall not be liable for an act, error of judgment, or default of that person if the agent exercises care, competence, and diligence in selecting and monitoring the person.

(h) Except as otherwise provided in the power of attorney, an agent shall not be required to disclose receipts, disbursements, or transactions conducted on behalf of the principal unless ordered by a court or requested by the principal, a guardian, a conservator, another fiduciary acting for the principal, a governmental agency having authority to protect the welfare of the principal, or, upon the death of the principal, by the personal representative or successor in interest of the principal's estate. If so requested, within 30 days the agent shall comply with the request or provide a writing or other record substantiating why additional time is needed and shall comply with the request within an additional 30 days.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Attorney client privilege extended to wills not probated. — Trial court did not clearly abuse the court's discretion in concluding that the principal's will was privileged, and, therefore, granting the agent's motion for an order protecting it from production because the privilege afforded to communications between an attorney and a client extended to wills that have not been submitted to probate. Bethune v. Bethune, 363 Ga. App. 273, 870 S.E.2d 827, 2022 Ga. App. LEXIS 145 (2022).

10-6B-15. Waivers of agent liability.

A provision in a power of attorney relieving an agent of liability for breach of duty shall be binding on the principal and the principal's successors in interest except to the extent the provision:

(1) Relieves the agent of liability for breach of duty committed in bad faith, or with reckless indifference to the purposes of the power of attorney or the best interest of the principal; or

(2) Was inserted as a result of an abuse of a confidential or fiduciary relationship with the principal.

History.
Code 1981, § 10-6B-15, enacted by Ga. L. 2017, p. 435, § 2-1/HB 221.

10-6B-16. Petition for construction of power of attorney or role of agent; reimbursement for fees and expenses.

(a) The following persons may petition a court to construe a power of attorney or review the agent's conduct, and grant appropriate relief:

(1) The principal or the agent;

(2) A guardian, conservator, personal representative, or other fiduciary acting for the principal or for the principal's estate;

(3) A person authorized to make health care decisions for the principal;

(4) The principal's spouse, parent, or descendant;

(5) An individual who would qualify as a presumptive heir of the principal;

(6) A person named as a beneficiary to receive any property, benefit, or contractual right on the principal's death or as a beneficiary of a trust created by or for the principal that has a financial interest in the principal's estate;

(7) A governmental agency having authority to protect the welfare of the principal;

(8) The principal's caregiver or another person that demonstrates sufficient interest in the principal's welfare; and

(9) A person asked to accept the power of attorney.

(b) If a petition under this Code section was in the best interest of the principal and the agent admitted to a violation of this chapter or a court found that such agent violated this chapter, a court may order the principal to reimburse the persons, other than a governmental agency, who made such petition for part or all of the reasonable attorney's fees and expenses of litigation incurred by such persons, provided that such fees and expenses were not imposed on the agent, were related to the agent's violation of this chapter, and were reasonable in the context of the agent's misconduct and the general circumstances of the principal.

(c) Upon motion by the principal, the court shall dismiss a petition filed under this Code section, unless the court finds that the principal lacks capacity to revoke the agent's authority or the power of attorney.

(c) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (d) of this Code section:

10-6B-40. Agent authority that requires specific grant; granting of general authority; prohibited authorizations; petitions for authority.

(a)(1) An agent under a power of attorney may do the following on behalf of the principal or with the principal's property only if the power of attorney expressly grants the agent the authority and exercise of the authority is not otherwise prohibited by another agreement or instrument to which the authority or property is subject:

(A) Create, fund, amend, revoke, or terminate an inter vivos trust, other than a trust created pursuant to 42 U.S.C. Section 1396p(d)(4)(B) as provided under subsection (d) of Code Section 53-12-20;

(B) Make a gift;

(C) Create or change rights of survivorship;

(D) Create or change a beneficiary designation;

(E) Authorize another person to exercise authority granted under the power of attorney;

(F) Waive the principal's right to be a beneficiary of a joint and survivor annuity, including a survivor benefit under a retirement plan;

(G) Exercise fiduciary powers, other than those associated with an ownership interest as provided under paragraph (14) of Code Section 10-6B-48, that the principal has authority to delegate;

(H) Exercise authority over the content of electronic communications, as such term is defined in Code Section 53-13-2, sent or received by the principal; or

(I) Renounce an interest in property, including a power of appointment.

(2) A failure to grant authority under subparagraphs (1)(A) through (1)(D) of this subsection shall not prevent an agent from accessing information, depositing money, or withdrawing money, pursuant to the agent's other authority and in accordance with the agent's duties to the principal, from a revocable trust or an account or other banking arrangement with a bank or other financial institution.

(b) Notwithstanding a grant of authority:

(1) To do an act described in subsection (a) of this Code section, unless the power of attorney otherwise provides, an agent that is not an ancestor, spouse, or descendant of the principal, shall not exercise authority under a power of attorney to create in the agent, or in an individual to whom the agent owes a legal obligation of support, an interest in the principal's property, whether by gift, right of survivorship, beneficiary designation, disclaimer, or otherwise; and

(2) To exercise a fiduciary power described in subparagraph (a)(1)(G) of this Code section, an agent may only exercise those fiduciary powers of the principal that are expressly and clearly identified in the power of attorney. In identifying such fiduciary powers, the principal shall specify the persons for which the principal acts as a fiduciary. If such persons are not individuals, the principal shall specify only the estate, trust, or other legal or commercial entity for which the principal acts as a fiduciary. With respect to such an entity, the principal shall not be required to specify additional persons such as beneficiaries, members, partners, or other similar persons.

(c) Subject to subsections (a), (b), (d), and (e) of this Code section, if a power of attorney grants to an agent authority to do all acts that a principal could do, the agent has the general authority described in Code Sections 10-6B-43 through 10-6B-55.

(d) Unless the power of attorney otherwise provides, a grant of authority to make a gift shall be subject to Code Section 10-6B-56.

(e) Subject to subsections (a), (b), and (d) of this Code section, if the subjects over which authority is granted in a power of attorney are similar or overlap, the broadest authority shall control.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR AGENT

Agent's Duties

When you accept the authority granted under this power of attorney, a special legal relationship is created between you and the principal. This relationship imposes upon you legal duties that continue until you resign or the power of attorney is terminated or revoked. You must:

(1) Do what you know the principal reasonably expects you to do with the principal's property or, if you do not know the principal's expectations, act in the principal's best interest;

(2) Act in good faith;

(3) Do nothing beyond the authority granted in this power of attorney; and

(4) Disclose your identity as an agent whenever you act for the principal by writing or printing the name of the principal and signing your own name as "agent" in the following manner:

_____ by _____ as Agent.
(Principal's name) (Your signature)

Unless the Special Instructions in this power of attorney state otherwise, you must also:

(1) Act loyally for the principal's benefit;

(2) Avoid conflicts that would impair your ability to act in the principal's best interest;

(3) Act with care, competence, and diligence;

(4) Keep a record of all receipts, disbursements, and transactions made on behalf of the principal;

(5) Cooperate with any person that has authority to make health care decisions for the principal to do what you know the principal reasonably expects or, if you do not know the principal's expectations, to act in the principal's best interest; and

(6) Attempt to preserve the principal's estate plan if you know the plan and preserving the plan is consistent with the principal's best interest.

Termination of Agent's Authority

You must stop acting on behalf of the principal if you learn of any event that terminates this power of attorney or your authority under this power of attorney. Events that terminate a power of attorney or your authority to act under a power of attorney include:

(1) Death of the principal;

(2) The principal's revocation of your authority or the power of attorney;

(3) The occurrence of a termination event stated in the power of attorney;

(4) The purpose of the power of attorney is fully accomplished; or

(5) If you are married to the principal, a legal action is filed with a court to end your marriage, or for your legal separation, unless the Special Instructions in this power of attorney state that such an action will not terminate your authority.

Liability of Agent

The meaning of the authority granted to you is defined in O.C.G.A. Chapter 6B of Title 10. If you violate O.C.G.A. Chapter 6B of Title 10 or act outside the authority granted, you may be liable for any damages caused by your violation.

If there is anything about this document or your duties that you do not understand, you should seek legal advice.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Compensated sureties. — Prior to 1981, this chapter was not intended to govern compensated sureties, which meant that the surety law for compensated sureties had to be found in the common law of this state. Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Brock Constr. Co., 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1021 (1978) (excluding § 10-7-30, enacted in 1973, from holding and holding § 10-7-22 states common law applicable to compensated sureties).

Corporations writing surety bonds for profit. — Compensated corporate sureties engaged in writing surety bonds for a profit were, prior to 1981, not such sureties within the meaning of this chapter as to generally enjoy the protection afforded by all of its sections. Brock Constr. Co. v. Houston Gen. Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 860, 243 S.E.2d 83, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1824, aff'd, 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1021 (1978).

Uncompensated sureties. — Persons who guaranteed payment of a note solely as an accommodation to another and not for any profit flowing to themselves were uncompensated sureties entitled as members of a favored class to the protections of this chapter. Upshaw v. First State Bank, 244 Ga. 433, 260 S.E.2d 483, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 1271 (1979).

In 1981, distinction between sureties and guarantors was abolished. — Georgia L. 1981, p. 870 amends O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1 so as to abolish the distinction between sureties and guarantors. Balboa Ins. Co. v. A.J. Kellos Constr. Co., 247 Ga. 393, 276 S.E.2d 599, 1981 Ga. LEXIS 727 (1981).

General Consideration
Consideration for Obligation
Procedure

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — Prior to 1981, this section was but a codification of the common law. McIntyre v. Moore, 105 Ga. 112, 31 S.E. 144 (1898); Musgrove v. Luther Publishing Co., 5 Ga. App. 279, 63 S.E. 52 (1908). The language used in it in defining the obligation of a surety was almost exactly the language of the English textbooks. Phillips v. Solomon, 42 Ga. 192, 519 (1871). However, Ga. L. 1981, p. 870, § 1, amends this section to abolish the distinction between contracts of suretyship and guaranty. Balboa Ins. Co. v. A.J. Kellos Constr. Co., 247 Ga. 393, 276 S.E.2d 599 (1981). The distinction formerly expressly made by this section was that a contract of suretyship "differs from a guaranty in this, that the consideration of the latter is a benefit flowing to the guarantor." Many cases applied this distinction. See, for example, Wright v. Shorter, 56 Ga. 72 (1876); Manry v. Waxelbaum Co., 108 Ga. 14, 33 S.E. 701 (1899); Fields v. Willis, 123 Ga. 272, 51 S.E. 280 (1905), later appeal, 132 Ga. 242, 63 S.E. 828 (1909); Maril v. Boswell, 12 Ga. App. 41, 76 S.E. 773 (1912); Tennille Banking Co. v. Ward, 29 Ga. App. 660, 116 S.E. 347 (1923); Etheridge v. Rawleigh Co., 29 Ga. App. 698, 116 S.E. 903 (1923); Brock Candy Co. v. Craton, 33 Ga. App. 690, 127 S.E. 619 (1925), later appeal, 37 Ga. App. 728, 141 S.E. 916 (1928); Wilson Bros. v. Heard, 46 Ga. App. 497, 167 S.E. 913 (1933); Brilliant Coal Co. v. Gandy, 51 Ga. App. 264, 180 S.E. 379 (1935); Singleton v. Farmers & Merchants Bank, 55 Ga. App. 776, 191 S.E. 478 (1937); Durham v. Greenwold, 188 Ga. 165, 3 S.E.2d 585 (1939); W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Burkhalter, 59 Ga. App. 514, 1 S.E.2d 609 (1939); Cartwright v. Farmers Bank, 74 Ga. App. 847, 41 S.E.2d 818 (1947); National Bank v. Wright, 77 Ga. App. 272, 48 S.E.2d 306 (1948); Bearden v. Ebcap Supply Co., 108 Ga. App. 375, 133 S.E.2d 62 (1963); Fagelson v. Pfister Aluminum Corp., 109 Ga. App. 663, 137 S.E.2d 313 (1964), commented on in 1 Ga. St. B.J. 523 (1965); National Acceptance Co. v. Fulton Nat'l Bank, 113 Ga. App. 517, 148 S.E.2d 907, rev'd on other grounds sub nom. Wolkin v. National Acceptance Co., 222 Ga. 487, 150 S.E.2d 831 (1966); Decatur Coca-Cola Bottling Co. v. Variety Vending Corp., 277 F. Supp. 393 (N.D. Ga. 1967); Travelers Indem. Co. v. Sasser & Co., 138 Ga. App. 361, 226 S.E.2d 121 (1976); Brock Constr. Co. v. Houston Gen. Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 860, 243 S.E.2d 83, aff'd, 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316 (1978); Jackson v. First Bank, 150 Ga. App. 182, 256 S.E.2d 923 (1979); Griswold v. Wells Aluminum, Moultrie, Inc., 156 Ga. App. 19, 274 S.E.2d 7 (1980); Balboa Ins. Co. v. A.J. Kellos Constr. Co., 247 Ga. 393, 276 S.E.2d 599 (1981). However, this was only one of the tests to distinguish a contract of suretyship from a contract of guaranty. Schlittler & Johnson v. Deering Harvester Co., 3 Ga. App. 83, 3 Ga. App. 86, 59 S.E. 342, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 558 (1907); McKibben v. Luther Williams Banking Co., 32 Ga. App. 419, 123 S.E. 726, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 435 (1924), overruled, Timberlake Grocery Co. v. Cartwright, 146 Ga. App. 746, 247 S.E.2d 567, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2549 (1978); Guaranty Mtg. Co. v. National Life Ins. Co., 55 Ga. App. 104, 189 S.E. 603, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 439 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 644, 192 S.E. 298, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 595 (1937).

The test formerly laid down in this section was not decisive. As with other contracts, the whole matter was governed by the intention of the parties. For instance, in the usual indemnity contracts, the parties generally intended that the indemnitor should be surety, although the indemnitor received an independent consideration. And again, sometimes a contract would be construed to be one of guaranty although the guarantor received no consideration other than the benefit flowing to the guarantor's principal. Baggs v. Funderburke, 11 Ga. App. 173, 74 S.E. 937 (1912); Rawleigh Co. v. Salter, 31 Ga. App. 329, 120 S.E. 679 (1923); McKibben v. Luther Williams Banking Co., 32 Ga. App. 419, 123 S.E. 726 (1924); Whitley v. Powell, 47 Ga. App. 105, 169 S.E. 766 (1933); Brilliant Coal Co. v. Gandy, 51 Ga. App. 264, 180 S.E. 379 (1935); General Finance Corp. v. Welborn, 98 Ga. App. 280, 105 S.E.2d 386 (1958); McCallum v. Griffin, 289 F.2d 135 (5th Cir. 1961), commented on in 24 Ga. B.J. 273 (1961); National Acceptance Co. v. Fulton Nat'l Bank, 113 Ga. App. 517, 148 S.E.2d 907, rev'd on other grounds sub nom. Wolkin v. National Acceptance Co., 222 Ga. 487, 150 S.E.2d 831 (1966); Scarboro v. Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp., 364 F.2d 10 (5th Cir. 1966); Dunlap v. Citizens & S. DeKalb Bank, 134 Ga. App. 893, 216 S.E.2d 651 (1975). The fundamental distinction between a contract of guaranty and one of suretyship was said to be that in a contract of suretyship the person obligating himself to pay the debt of another was primarily, and not merely secondarily, liable for its payment. Watkins Medical Co. v. Marbach, 20 Ga. App. 691, 93 S.E. 270 (1917); Hartsfield Co. v. Robertson, 48 Ga. App. 735, 173 S.E. 201 (1934); Hartsfield Co. v. Hamil, 180 Ga. 615, 180 S.E. 128 (1935); Brilliant Coal Co. v. Gandy, 51 Ga. App. 264, 180 S.E. 379 (1935); Arkansas Fuel Oil Co. v. Young, 66 Ga. App. 25, 16 S.E.2d 909 (1941); Erbelding v. Noland Co., 83 Ga. App. 464, 64 S.E.2d 218 (1951); Nichols v. Miller, 91 Ga. App. 99, 84 S.E.2d 841 (1954); Ferguson v. Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., 91 Ga. App. 115, 85 S.E.2d 72 (1954); Continental Cas. Co. v. White, 160 F. Supp. 611 (M.D. Ga. 1957); General Fin. Corp. v. Welborn, 98 Ga. App. 280, 105 S.E.2d 386 (1958); McCallum v. Griffin, 289 F.2d 135 (5th Cir. 1961), commented on in 24 Ga. B.J. 273 (1961); Fagelson v. Pfister Aluminum Corp., 109 Ga. App. 663, 137 S.E.2d 313 (1964), commented on in 1 Ga. St. B.J. 523 (1965); Rankin v. Smith, 113 Ga. App. 204, 147 S.E.2d 649 (1966); National Acceptance Co. v. Fulton Nat'l Bank, 113 Ga. App. 517, 148 S.E.2d 907, rev'd on other grounds sub nom. Wolkin v. National Acceptance Co., 222 Ga. 487, 150 S.E.2d 831 (1966); Kennedy v. Thruway Serv. City, Inc., 133 Ga. App. 858, 212 S.E.2d 492 (1975); Oliver v. Citizens DeKalb Bank, 150 Ga. App. 437, 258 S.E.2d 204 (1979). While a surety rendered himself primarily responsible with the principal debtor and on the same undertaking, a guarantor became collaterally responsible by virtue of the guarantor's own separate and independent obligation, whereby, without joining in the principal's undertaking, the guarantor yet vouched for the principal's solvency by guaranteeing that the principal would be able to perform as the principal had agreed. Rawleigh Co. v. Salter, 31 Ga. App. 329, 120 S.E. 679 (1923); Hartsfield Co. v. Robertson, 48 Ga. App. 735, 173 S.E. 201 (1934); Hartsfield Co. v. Hamil, 180 Ga. 615, 180 S.E. 128 (1935); Guaranty Mtg. Co. v. National Life Ins. Co., 55 Ga. App. 104, 189 S.E. 603 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 644, 192 S.E. 298 (1937); Arkansas Fuel Oil Co. v. Young, 66 Ga. App. 25, 16 S.E.2d 909 (1941); W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Overstreet, 71 Ga. App. 873, 32 S.E.2d 574 (1944); Fagelson v. Pfister Aluminum Corp., 109 Ga. App. 663, 137 S.E.2d 313 (1964), commented on in 1 Ga. St. B.J. 523 (1965); Wolkin v. National Acceptance Co., 222 Ga. 487, 150 S.E.2d 831 (1966); Griswold v. Wells Aluminum, Moultrie, Inc., 156 Ga. App. 19, 274 S.E.2d 7 (1980). Hence, it was held that waiver of presentment, protest, and notice of nonpayment of any note or other evidence of indebtedness accepted by a promisee from the principal was evidence of suretyship, as it indicated assumption of a primary, rather than secondary, obligation to pay the debt. The 1981 amendment also inserted the provision that "sureties, including those formerly called guarantors, are jointly and severally liable with their principals unless the contract provides otherwise."

Many of the cases cited below construed or applied this Code section as it existed prior to the 1981 amendment.

Section reasonably construed. — This section must be given a reasonable and not an unreasonable construction. Tennille Banking Co. v. Ward, 29 Ga. App. 660, 116 S.E. 347, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 157 (1923).

Distinction between suretyship and guaranty has been eliminated. Johns v. Leaseway of Ga., Inc., 166 Ga. App. 472, 304 S.E.2d 555, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2213 (1983); Daprano v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 166 Ga. App. 811, 305 S.E.2d 655, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2340 (1983).

"Indemnity contract" is defined as an agreement between two parties, whereby the one party, the indemnitor, either agrees to indemnify and save harmless the other party, the indemnitee, from loss or damage, or binds the indemnitor to do some particular act or thing, or to protect the indemnitee against liability to, or the claim of, a third party. "Indemnity" means reimbursement, restitution, or compensation. National Bank v. Wright, 77 Ga. App. 272, 48 S.E.2d 306, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 531 (1948).

In a contract of indemnity the indemnitor, for a consideration, promises to indemnify and save harmless the indemnitee against liability of the indemnitee to a third person, or against loss resulting from such liability. The contract of the indemnitor is an original undertaking. National Bank v. Wright, 77 Ga. App. 272, 48 S.E.2d 306, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 531 (1948).

Trial court properly awarded damages jointly and severally against an individual representing an electrical contractor because the individual was charged with knowledge of the signature provision, whether read or not, and no violation of the statute of frauds existed because the signature provision was an assumption of the obligations under the contract or indemnity provision, not a guaranty; thus, the individual was a principal under the contract, not a guarantor. Progressive Elec. Servs. v. Task Force Construction, Inc., 327 Ga. App. 608, 760 S.E.2d 621, 2014 Ga. App. LEXIS 389 (2014).

Contracts of surety and indemnity compared. — Difference between a contract of surety and a contract of indemnity lies in the character of the promisee. In suretyship, the promise runs to an obligee or creditor, present or prospective. In indemnity, the promise runs to an obligor or debtor, present or prospective. In suretyship, the promisee has or is about to extend credit to a third person, the principal, and the promise is made to protect the promisee creditor in case the principal fails to perform. In indemnity, the promisee owes or is about to assume an obligation to a third person, the creditor, and the promisor agrees to save the promisee harmless from a loss as a result of assuming that obligation. Rankin v. Smith, 113 Ga. App. 204, 147 S.E.2d 649, 1966 Ga. App. LEXIS 1019 (1966).

Suretyship and fidelity insurance distinguished. — There is a well-recognized difference between a contract of suretyship and one of fidelity insurance. John Church Co. v. Aetna Indem. Co., 13 Ga. App. 826, 80 S.E. 1093, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 372 (1913).

Insurance law not applicable to suretyship contract. — Insurance law was not applicable in a case involving liability under a suretyship contract; thus, O.C.G.A. § 33-24-7 did not apply to excuse a surety from liability based on fraud of the principal. American Mfg. Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tison Hog Mkt., Inc., 182 F.3d 1284, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 18167 (11th Cir. 1999), cert. denied, 531 U.S. 819, 121 S. Ct. 59, 148 L. Ed. 2d 26, 2000 U.S. LEXIS 5097 (2000), cert. denied, 531 U.S. 819, 121 S. Ct. 59, 148 L. Ed. 2d 26, 2000 U.S. LEXIS 5098 (2000).

Difference between guarantee of loan and guarantee of negotiable instrument. — There is a difference between an undertaking which guarantees a loan and one which guarantees the payment of a negotiable instrument; the former covers the debt; the latter the evidence thereof. Sulter v. Citizens Bank & Trust Co., 51 Ga. App. 798, 181 S.E. 694, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 476 (1935).

Principal and surety are joint and several obligors. — If an obligation, joint in form, is executed by one party as principal and another as surety, they were to be deemed joint and several obligors since by former Code 1933, § 107-102 the obligation of the surety was an accessory to that of the principal. Smith v. Moore, 45 Ga. App. 708, 165 S.E. 765, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 665 (1932).

Liability of principal is essence of suretyship. — Very essence of a contract of suretyship is that there should be someone liable as principal. This necessarily contemplates that when a note is given to purchase a store and goods, there must be at least two parties who signed the note and are liable for the payment thereof, the principal and the surety. Where only one person signed the note sued on, that person must necessarily be the principal. Jordan v. Douglas Grocery Co., 27 Ga. App. 296, 108 S.E. 139, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 844 (1921); Saxon v. National City Bank, 169 Ga. 784, 151 S.E. 501, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 32 (1930); Boles v. Hartsfield Co., 50 Ga. App. 442, 178 S.E. 416, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 354 (1935); Meeks v. Withers, 181 Ga. 787, 184 S.E. 604, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 433 (1936); Magid v. Beaver, 56 Ga. App. 286, 192 S.E. 532, 1937 Ga. App. LEXIS 334 (1937), rev'd, 185 Ga. 669, 196 S.E. 422, 1938 Ga. LEXIS 511 (1938).

Nature of liability established by guaranty terms. — Generally, a guarantor or surety is primarily liable along with the guarantor's principal to pay the debt; however, the true nature of the guarantor's liability is established by the terms of the guaranty, which may render the guarantor only secondarily liable on the principal's inability to pay, or otherwise condition or limit liability in any number of ways. Holland v. Holland Heating & Air Conditioning, 208 Ga. App. 794, 432 S.E.2d 238, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 688 (1993), cert. denied, No. S93C1471, 1993 Ga. LEXIS 917 (Ga. Oct. 5, 1993).

Verdict for principal extinguishes surety's liability. — Verdict in favor of the principal, on the principal's defense of failure of consideration, extinguishes ipso facto the obligation of the sureties. Schlittler & Johnson v. Deering Harvester Co., 3 Ga. App. 83, 3 Ga. App. 86, 59 S.E. 342, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 558 (1907).

Illegality of consideration to principal is defense to surety. — If a note was executed by one as principal and by another as surety and the consideration therefor was illegal and immoral, but this fact was unknown to the surety at the time of the execution and delivery of the note, the surety may nevertheless defend a suit thereon by showing that the note was in fact executed by the principal for such a consideration. William-Hester Marble Co. v. Walton, 22 Ga. App. 433, 96 S.E. 269, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 377 (1918).

Duress of principal. — If the principal signed the obligation sought to be enforced under such duress as would release the principal from liability thereon, the duress of the principal is an available defense for the surety, if the principal signed without knowledge of the defense. Patterson v. Gibson, 81 Ga. 802, 10 S.E. 9, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 350 (1888).

If purported principal not bound, promissor is principal and not surety. — It is essential that there be a principal, and if a person undertakes that another will pay or perform, there not being any legal liability on the part of such person to pay or perform, the promissor is the principal and not a surety. Saxon v. National City Bank, 169 Ga. 784, 151 S.E. 501, 1930 Ga. LEXIS 32 (1930).

Contract of suretyship does not depend on form. — Under this section, a contract, whatever the contract's form, by which one obligates oneself to pay the debt of another in consideration of credit or indulgence or other benefit given to one's principal, the principal remaining bound for the debt, is a contract of suretyship. Buck v. Bank of Ga., 104 Ga. 660, 30 S.E. 872, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 392 (1898).

Form of the contract is immaterial, provided the fact of suretyship exists, and one may assume that relation even by an instrument separate and distinct from that of one's principal and also subsequent in time. Kennedy v. Thruway Serv. City, Inc., 133 Ga. App. 858, 212 S.E.2d 492, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2313 (1975).

No written instrument between creditor and surety required. — Fact that written instrument may not have been executed between the creditor and the alleged surety does not preclude the existence of a suretyship. Griswold v.

Wells Aluminum, Moultrie, Inc., 156 Ga. App. 19, 274 S.E.2d 7, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2856 (1980).

Whether one is principal or surety determined by facts. — Whether one signs a note with another as joint principal maker or as surety merely is a question to be determined by the facts and not by the opinion that either party to the contract may entertain. Williams v. Peoples Bank, 9 Ga. App. 714, 72 S.E. 177, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 304 (1911).

Facts, not statements, control. — Real character of the instrument must be determined by the facts, not by the statement of the payee that the defendant did sign as principal and not as surety nor by the defendant's statement that the defendant understood the plaintiff signed as principal and not as surety. McDaniel v. Akridge, 5 Ga. App. 208, 62 S.E. 1010, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 67 (1908).

Purchase subject to lien does not create suretyship. — Implied promise of suretyship with the incident rights of a surety to discharge does not arise when a purchase is made merely subject to the outstanding lien of a mortgage. Nelson v. National Life & Accident Ins. Co., 51 Ga. App. 684, 181 S.E. 202, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 443 (1935).

Retiring partner as surety. — When a partnership is dissolved by the retirement of one of the partners and the continuing partner agrees to assume the debts of the firm, the retiring partner becomes a surety for the copartner. Stapler v. Anderson, 177 Ga. 434, 170 S.E. 498, 1933 Ga. LEXIS 195 (1933).

Drawer of bill of exchange as surety. — Contract of one who draws a domestic bill of exchange is that if the drawee does not accept, the drawer will pay, and if the drawee does not pay after acceptance, the drawer will. After acceptance, the contract of the drawer is one of suretyship. Tennille Banking Co. v. Ward, 29 Ga. App. 660, 116 S.E. 347, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 157 (1923).

Endorser held principal, not surety. — When four people owning equal undivided interests in property situated in Alabama executed in that state an instrument in writing purporting to convey such property, in trust for themselves, to a named corporation of that state as trustee, and providing for the appointment of a board of advisors to govern the estate, consisting of one representative for each of the four undivided shares and one representative of the trustee, each such member of the board to have one vote accordingly, but under the terms of the agreement the grantors reserved unto themselves or their assigns as beneficiaries the power to remove their representatives and fill vacancies, and the further power to remove the trustee through such representatives, and when the designated trustee was a bank, and before the execution of such instrument had loaned money to the grantors as individuals, and after its execution advanced additional money to itself as trustee for the benefit of the estate, and finally as trustee signed a note payable to itself for the entire indebtedness, in view of the control reserved to the beneficiaries by the trust agreement, the entity created, if any, was in the nature of a partnership, with the trustee as its agent, and endorsement by the beneficiaries of the note amounted to a ratification of the trustee's action, rendering the endorsers liable as principals, so that endorsement by one of the beneficiaries did not create the relation of surety within the meaning of the law of this state. National City Bank v. First Nat'l Bank, 193 Ga. 477, 19 S.E.2d 19, 1942 Ga. LEXIS 424 (1942).

Set-off not guaranty. — Setoff provision was not a guaranty nor created an obligation for the appellant to answer for the appellant's son's debt. Yates v. Trust Co. Bank, 212 Ga. App. 438, 442 S.E.2d 293, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 299 (1994).

Persons who sign on the back of a note made by one party to another, or order, are liable as sureties or joint promisors, and the mere limitation in the term "endorser" written after the name of such a signer would not change the real status, if as a matter of fact the endorsement was to add strength to the paper and not to negotiate title. Burkhalter v. Conley, 24 Ga. App. 256, 100 S.E. 725, 1919 Ga. App.

LEXIS 533 (1919) (judgment of superior court judge).

When two people sign a note apparently as joint principals and there is nothing in the face of the note to indicate that one is principal and the other is surety, the law presumes that both are principals. This presumption is rebuttable, of course, but the burden is on those asserting suretyship to establish suretyship. United States v. Frost, 149 F. Supp. 386, 1957 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3868 (D. Ga. 1957).

Cosurety may become such without knowledge of other sureties. — If an apparent accommodation endorser knew other apparent makers were sureties and intended to become surety for principal maker, the endorser and the other sureties were cosureties, though they signed at different times and the others had no knowledge or expectation that the endorser would become surety. Taff v. Larey, 29 Ga. App. 631, 116 S.E. 866, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 147 (1923).

Cosureties who had set forth in different instruments their separate promises to pay the debt of their principal were not joint contractors or obligors, and one cosurety was not a necessary party in a creditor's action against the other cosurety to recover a debt. Floyd Davis Sales, Inc. v. Central Mtg. Corp., 197 Ga. App. 532, 398 S.E.2d 820, 1990 Ga. App. LEXIS 1405 (1990).

Suretyship is not valid as to creditor until creditor assents. — When the grantee of property under a mortgage assumes and agrees with the mortgagor to pay the mortgage, the grantee becomes, as to the mortgagor with whom the grantee thus contracts, the principal debtor, with the result that the mortgagor thereafter occupies the position of surety; but the mortgagee is not bound by such an agreement unless one personally assents to such express assumption. Nelson v. National Life & Accident Ins. Co., 51 Ga. App. 684, 181 S.E. 202, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 443 (1935).

When B conveys lands to C in consideration of the assumption by C of the obligation due to A, the relationship between B and C is that of principal and surety, but so far as A is concerned, such relationship between B and C is not effective as to A unless A assents to and accepts the relationship. Federal Land Bank v. Conger, 55 Ga. App. 11, 189 S.E. 567, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 419 (1936).

Waiver of confirmation of foreclosure sale. — When a buyer of foreclosed properties bought the properties for less than the amounts owed, but the buyer's efforts at confirmation of the sales failed, the buyer was nevertheless entitled to pursue the guarantors of the notes on the properties for the deficiency because the guarantors had waived "any and all rights or defenses based on suretyship," and the confirmation defense under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-161(a) was based on suretyship. York v. RES-GA LJY, LLC, 336 Ga. App. 253, 784 S.E.2d 96, 2016 Ga. App. LEXIS 155 (2016), aff'd, 300 Ga. 869, 799 S.E.2d 235, 2017 Ga. LEXIS 229 (2017).

Effect of death of guarantor. — Death of a guarantor and knowledge or notice of such death to the guarantee revokes the guaranty as to future transactions, when the guaranty is a continuing one based on a divisible consideration, if the contract of guaranty itself does not express a contrary intention. Sulter v. Citizens Bank & Trust Co., 51 Ga. App. 798, 181 S.E. 694, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 476 (1935).

Surety is liable for judgment against principal without being party. — When a surety is bound under a materialman's bond to pay a claim against the principal, the surety is liable for a judgment rendered against the defendant principal even though the surety was not a party in the prior case. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Sasser & Co., 138 Ga. App. 361, 226 S.E.2d 121, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2161 (1976).

Surety is not obligated to furnish additional collateral. — Contract being one of suretyship only, accessory to that of the principal and limited to the principal's obligation to pay the principal's debt, a bank had no legal right to demand of the surety additional collateral provided for in the instrument, and it was therefore unnecessary for it to do so as a condition precedent to declaring the note due. Chandler v. Bank of Waynesboro, 29 Ga.

App. 5, 113 S.E. 25, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 5 (1922).

Surety or guarantor may consent in advance to conduct which would otherwise result in surety's discharge. Bobbitt v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., 158 Ga. App. 580, 281 S.E.2d 324, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2319 (1981).

Agent guarantying payment jointly and severally liable on account. — Authorized agent is generally not personally liable on contracts which the agent enters into on behalf of the disclosed principal, but an agent may become a party to a contract either by the term of the agreement or by implication based on the surrounding facts and circumstances. One guarantying payment is jointly and severally liable on an account, notwithstanding the fact that one is acting as an agent for a disclosed principal. TBS, Inc. v. Sanyo Elec., Inc., 33 B.R. 996, 1983 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13171 (N.D. Ga. 1983), aff'd, 742 F.2d 1465, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 19223 (11th Cir. 1984).

Corporation was not a surety on a note since the corporation's name did not appear on the face of the note and the debt was paid by the corporation to protect a co-maker's credit and not to protect any interest or right of the corporation. Levinson v. American Thermex, Inc., 196 Ga. App. 291, 396 S.E.2d 252, 1990 Ga. App. LEXIS 852 (1990).

Co-debtor was not a surety of a debtor within the meaning of O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-1, 10-7-45, and 10-7-57 as: (1) the note was executed so that both parties could buy a tract of land; (2) both parties received an equal benefit; (3) the debtor was solely liable for that portion of the loan that represented the payout of the previous mortgage on the debtor's property, and both parties were required to put up property in addition to the land they bought with the borrowed money; and (4) there was nothing in the agreement showing any intent by the parties that one was signing as the principal debtor and the other was signing as a surety. Johnson v. AgSouth Farm Credit, 267 Ga. App. 567, 600 S.E.2d 664, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 713 (2004).

Knowledge of endorser's signing as accommodation party. — Even assuming that a creditor was aware that the president of a corporation co-signed a note as a guarantor to accommodate the corporation, knowledge that the president signed as an accommodation party to guarantee the note would not relieve the president of the joint and several liability the president assumed under the terms of the note. Hassell v. First Nat'l Bank, 218 Ga. App. 231, 461 S.E.2d 245, 1995 Ga. App. LEXIS 696 (1995), cert. denied, No. S95C1878, 1995 Ga. LEXIS 1199 (Ga. Nov. 9, 1995).

When a tenant which terminated the tenant's lease early and agreed to pay the landlord the difference between the tenant's rental obligation and rent the landlord was able to obtain from a third party the tenant said this agreement was a guaranty from which the tenant had been discharged, the landlord was entitled to partial summary judgment on the landlord's breach of contract claim in the landlord's suit to enforce the agreement, because the agreement was not a guaranty subject to the discharge provisions of O.C.G.A. § 10-7-20 et seq., as the tenant did not agree to be answerable for the debt of another but, instead, agreed to continue the tenant's rental obligation to the landlord, subject to any credit the tenant might be entitled to for rent the landlord received from a third party. Equifax, Inc. v. 1600 Peachtree, L.L.C., 268 Ga. App. 186, 601 S.E.2d 519, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 875 (2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1871, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 866 (Ga. Sept. 27, 2004), cert. denied, No. S04C1855, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 870 (Ga. Sept. 27, 2004).

Contract of idemnity and not guaranty. — Document signed by individual owners of a masonry business in support of the business's application for a performance bond on a construction project was a contract of indemnity and not a guaranty, and the document did not fall within the statute of frauds, O.C.G.A. § 13-5-30(2); summary judgment for the bond issuer should have been granted.

Auto-Owners Ins. Co. v. CW Masonry, Inc., 350 Ga. App. 401, 829 S.E.2d 443, 2019 Ga. App. LEXIS 308 (2019).

Consideration for Obligation

Consideration for a guarantor's signature is the extension of credit to guarantor's principal. Griswold v. Whetsell, 157 Ga. App. 800, 278 S.E.2d 753, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2015 (1981); Beard v. McDowell, 174 Ga. App. 793, 331 S.E.2d 104, 1985 Ga. App. LEXIS 1958 (1985).

"Benefit" means more than nominal benefit. — Word "benefit," as used in this section, means some real and substantial, and not a mere nominal, benefit. Tennille Banking Co. v. Ward, 29 Ga. App. 660, 116 S.E. 347, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 157 (1923).

Benefit to guarantor need not be direct. — If there is a consideration for the promise of the guarantor, it is immaterial whether or not the guarantor personally gets any immediate and direct benefit therefrom. Musgrove v. Luther Publishing Co., 5 Ga. App. 279, 63 S.E. 52, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 93 (1908).

Generally, consideration to guarantor is new or independent. — As a general proposition, a contract of guaranty must be expected to be founded on some new or independent consideration flowing directly to the guarantor. Etheridge v. Rawleigh Co., 29 Ga. App. 698, 116 S.E. 903, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 171 (1923).

Contract of guaranty exists if one lends one's credit for the benefit of another, but under an obligation which is separate and distinct from that of the principal debtor, by which one renders oneself secondarily or collaterally liable on account of any inability of the principal to perform one's own contract, and is supported either as an original undertaking to guarantee satisfaction for benefits to be subsequently extended to the principal or is based upon an independent consideration flowing directly to the guarantor. Except as indicated, a contract of guaranty must be expected to be founded on some new or independent consideration flowing directly to the guarantor. Durham v. Greenwold, 188 Ga. 165, 3 S.E.2d 585, 1939 Ga. LEXIS 493 (1939).

Contract of guaranty, whether entered into on the same or another instrument as that of the original obligation, whether executed at the same or a different time, and whether or not purporting to be the separate obligation of the signer, must, to be enforceable, show a consideration flowing directly to the guarantor. This is because it is a separate contract, and any contract, to be enforceable, must have a consideration. Bearden v. Ebcap Supply Co., 108 Ga. App. 375, 133 S.E.2d 62, 1963 Ga. App. LEXIS 650 (1963).

Obligation of a surety may be for a previously existing obligation if there is a consideration for the execution of the instrument. Nichols v. Miller, 91 Ga. App. 99, 84 S.E.2d 841, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 869 (1954).

Consideration for preexisting debt is insufficient. — Whether the obligation of a person in executing a note in payment of a preexisting indebtedness of another, when the latter is not released, constitutes a contract of suretyship, the consideration for the latter's obligation will not suffice as a consideration for the contract of suretyship, but the contract must be supported by a new and distinct consideration. McCrary v. Berry, 51 Ga. App. 947, 181 S.E. 814, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 503 (1935).

Promise without detriment to creditor or benefit to debtor is nudum pactum. — Promise to pay the preexisting debt of another, without any detriment or inconvenience to the creditor or any benefit secured to the debtor in consequence of the undertaking, is a mere nudum pactum. Jackson v. First Bank, 150 Ga. App. 182, 256 S.E.2d 923, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2177 (1979).

Benefit to principal binds surety. — Benefit given to or obtained by the maker or principal on the maker's transfer of the note with a surety's endorsement supplies a consideration sufficient to bind the surety. Jordan v. First Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 118, 91 S.E. 287, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 6 (1917).

Proof of want of consideration. — Surety cannot defeat liability by proving merely that the surety received no monetary consideration, but in order to sustain a defense of want of consideration, the surety would have to show that the principal did not receive any consideration or benefit from the paper sued on. Tennille Banking Co. v. Ward, 29 Ga. App. 660, 116 S.E. 347, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 157 (1923); Jackson v. First Bank, 150 Ga. App. 182, 256 S.E.2d 923, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2177 (1979).

Consideration to surety individually not needed. — It is not necessary that there should be a consideration to the surety individually for the suretyship in order to bind the surety; it is sufficient if there is a valid consideration out of which the suretyship grew. Walls v. Muscogee Bank & Trust Co., 44 Ga. App. 361, 161 S.E. 663, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 727 (1931).

Only consideration flowing to principal is required. — Contract of suretyship is when, in consideration of the benefit extended to the principal debtor, one lends one's credit by joining in the principal debtor's obligation, so as to render oneself directly and primarily responsible with the principal on the same contract, and without any reference to the solvency of the principal; in such a case, the promise of each being one and the same, one consideration, the one flowing to the principal debtor, is all that is required, although there may be additional consideration flowing to the surety. Durham v. Greenwold, 188 Ga. 165, 3 S.E.2d 585, 1939 Ga. LEXIS 493 (1939).

Confidentiality provision void and consideration adequate. — Trial court properly granted summary judgment to a payee under the terms of a settlement agreement to recover funds owed for a preexisting debt, despite the fact that a confidentiality provision contained therein was void for public policy reasons, as the consideration supporting the payment provision was separate and apart from the confidentiality provision. Thus, the obligation to pay the payee remained enforceable, and the guarantor under the settlement agreement remained obligated to pay the payee the debt owed. Unami v. Roshan, 290 Ga. App. 317, 659 S.E.2d 724, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 310 (2008).

Indulgence to principal, such as extension of time, suffices. — Extension of time by a creditor to a principal debtor is a sufficient consideration to support the accommodation endorsement of a note renewing the original note. Hollinshead v. Virginia Nat'l Bank, 104 Ga. 250, 30 S.E. 728, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 317 (1898).

When the appellant obligates oneself as a surety, it is not necessary that the appellant receive a separate consideration from the transaction in order for the appellant's promise to be binding on the appellant. It is enough that the maker received a consideration, even though that consideration may have amounted to nothing more than an extension of time resulting from the refinancing of preexisting indebtedness. Oliver v. Citizens DeKalb Bank, 150 Ga. App. 437, 258 S.E.2d 204, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2342 (1979).

Words "value received" are always subject to explanation. Baggs v. Funderburke, 11 Ga. App. 173, 74 S.E. 937, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 314 (1912).

Words "value received" have been held not to show conclusively that there was consideration. Wolkin v. National Acceptance Co., 222 Ga. 487, 150 S.E.2d 831, 1966 Ga. LEXIS 525 (1966).

Mere recitation "for value received" in the instrument is not controlling. Southern Land & Dev. Co. v. Silvers, 499 F.2d 967, 1974 U.S. App. LEXIS 7694 (6th Cir. 1974).

Implied promise may be a sufficient consideration for an express promise whereby one party obligates oneself to pay the debt of another in consideration of indulgence to one's principal, the latter remaining bound therefor. Loewenherz v. Weil, 33 Ga. App. 760, 127 S.E. 883, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 715 (1925).

Past consideration is insufficient for guaranty or suretyship. — Guarantor's promise cannot be founded on a past consideration or one flowing to the debtor only, such as a previous extension of credit to the principal debtor plus an agreement to postpone the time of collection of the principal's debt, and the fact that the purported guarantor is a married woman who owns all of the stock of the corporate debtor does not allow the court to pierce the corporate veil and to consider the benefit as one flowing directly to the owner. Bearden v. Ebcap Supply Co., 108 Ga. App. 375, 133 S.E.2d 62, 1963 Ga. App. LEXIS 650 (1963).

Past consideration, one which has already served its purpose in a former transaction, will support neither a contract of guaranty nor a contract of suretyship. Jackson v. First Bank, 150 Ga. App. 182, 256 S.E.2d 923, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2177 (1979).

Contract of guaranty executed after the original obligation must be founded on some new type of consideration, independent of that flowing to the principal and flowing directly to the guarantor; past consideration which has already served its purpose in a former transaction will not support a contract of guaranty. Gwinnett Com. Bank v. Flake, 151 Ga. App. 578, 260 S.E.2d 523, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2650 (1979).

Forbearance to sue would be insufficient unless requested for becoming surety. — Mere forbearance by the plaintiff to prosecute a judgment, without even so much as a request therefor, would not have afforded a consideration for the promise of the defendants to be liable as sureties. But undoubtedly, if they sought and also obtained an agreement for the grant of it, the execution of the notes signed by them as sureties in consideration thereof would be binding upon them. Broughton v. Joseph Lazarus Co., 13 Ga. App. 153, 78 S.E. 1024, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 80 (1913); Watkins Medical Co. v. Marbach, 20 Ga. App. 691, 93 S.E. 270, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 1032 (1917); Loewenherz v. Weil, 33 Ga. App. 760, 127 S.E. 883, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 715 (1925).

If the principal received the proceeds of the subject loans, there was adequate consideration for the contracts of suretyship. Delta Diversified, Inc. v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 171 Ga. App. 625, 320 S.E.2d 767, 1984 Ga. App. LEXIS 2303 (1984).

Consideration found. — In return for parties' personal and unconditional guaranty of a debt, the federal government guaranteed a loan of the principal, a corporation of which the guarantors were 10 percent stockholders. Because this in essence financed the guarantors' business, there was thereby conferred a direct benefit on the principal and an indirect benefit on the guarantors. United States v. Blue Dolphin Assocs., 620 F. Supp. 463, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14708 (S.D. Ga. 1985).

Under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1, the mere lack of any personal consideration flowing directly to one guarantor constituted no legal defense to their liability on the guaranty because while the one guarantor did not execute a guaranty in connection with the initial loan, the record established that the one guarantor executed a guaranty on the same date the loan was renewed. MJL Props. v. Cmty. & S. Bank, 330 Ga. App. 524, 768 S.E.2d 111, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 2 (2015).

Procedure

When action against surety barred by statute of limitations. — Right of action upon an unsealed contract of surety is barred by the statute of limitations upon the expiration of six years after the date of the maturity of the obligation, not six years after the date of the execution of the agreement, since no right of action accrues until the maturity date of the obligation. Fagelson v. Pfister Aluminum Corp., 109 Ga. App. 663, 137 S.E.2d 313, 1964 Ga. App. LEXIS 949 (1964) (commented on in) 1 Ga. St. B.J. 523 (1965).

Action may be brought against surety by one beneficially interested in contract. — Subcontractor's bond to a main contractor to build a hospital, conditioned in part to pay all persons having contracts directly with the subcontractor for labor and materials, gave a materialman who furnished marble directly to the subcontractor such a beneficial interest in the bond as to authorize an action against the surety thereon, for the use of the materialman, for the subcontractor's failure to pay the materialman for the marble. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Pittman ex rel. Georgia

Marble Co., 52 Ga. App. 394, 183 S.E. 572, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 647 (1936).

Principal and surety may be joined in one action. — Surety binds oneself to perform if the principal does not, without regard to one's ability to do so. The surety's contract is equally absolute with that of the principal. They may be sued in the same action, and judgment may be entered up against both. Hartsfield Co. v. Robertson, 48 Ga. App. 735, 173 S.E. 201, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 178 (1934); Hartsfield Co. v. Hamil, 180 Ga. 615, 180 S.E. 128, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 507 (1935); Brilliant Coal Co. v. Gandy, 51 Ga. App. 264, 180 S.E. 379, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 658 (1935); Guaranty Mtg. Co. v. National Life Ins. Co., 55 Ga. App. 104, 189 S.E. 603, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 439 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 644, 192 S.E. 298, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 595 (1937); Arkansas Fuel Oil Co. v. Young, 66 Ga. App. 25, 16 S.E.2d 909 (1941); W.T. Raleigh Co. v. Overstreet, 71 Ga. App. 873, 32 S.E.2d 574, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 249 (1944); Kennedy v. Thruway Serv. City, Inc., 133 Ga. App. 858, 212 S.E.2d 492, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2313 (1975).

Liability of the principal and surety being joint and several, they may be joined in same action. Durham v. Greenwold, 188 Ga. 165, 3 S.E.2d 585, 1939 Ga. LEXIS 493 (1939).

"Contract of suretyship" is when one lends one's credit by joining in the principal debtor's obligation, so as to render oneself directly and primarily responsible with the debtor, and on the same contract, and without reference to the solvency of the principal. In such a case, the promise of each being one and the same, and their liability being joint and several, they may be joined in the same action. Erbelding v. Noland Co., 83 Ga. App. 464, 64 S.E.2d 218, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 888 (1951).

Surety may be sued alone. — If note was a joint and severable obligation, suit was properly brought against the surety alone who resided in the county in which the suit was instituted. Griffin v. Blackshear Bank, 66 Ga. App. 821, 19 S.E.2d 325, 1942 Ga. App. LEXIS 309 (1942).

Surety may be sued first. — Surety is an original debtor, and a surety's contract is equally absolute with that of a surety's principal; they may be sued in the same action, or the surety may even be sued first. Woodward v. La Porte, 181 Ga. 731, 184 S.E. 280, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 417 (1936).

Guarantor and principal may not be sued jointly. — Contract of the guarantor is separate and distinct from the contract of the debtor, and they cannot be sued jointly; the two contracts are several, not joint, and the liability on each is several and those who contracted the account are not liable at all on the guaranty, and one who made the guaranty is not liable at all on the account. Shepard v. Moultrie Banking Co., 48 Ga. App. 194, 172 S.E. 587, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 12 (1934).

Improper joinder does not bar subsequent action against guarantor. — Fact that a joint action was brought against the principal and the other named parties as sureties or guarantors and a judgment by default obtained against all of them except the defendant, who successfully contended that the defendant was a guarantor and could not be sued in such action, will not estop the plaintiff from bringing an action against the defendant as such guarantor. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Burkhalter, 59 Ga. App. 514, 1 S.E.2d 609, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 341 (1939).

To recover against guarantor, inability of principal to perform must be shown. — Before an action can be maintained against a guarantor, it must be shown that the principal is unable to perform. The surety says to the creditor: "If your debtor will not pay, I will pay." The guarantor says to the creditor: "Proceed first against the principal, and, if he should not be able to pay, then you may proceed against me." It has been said that there is no instance in the books of a guarantor contracting jointly with a principal. Hartsfield Co. v. Hamil, 180 Ga. 615, 180 S.E. 128, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 507 (1935).

A guarantor does not contract that the principal will pay, but simply that the principal is able to do so, warranting nothing but the solvency of the principal, and before an action can be maintained against a guarantor, it must be shown that the principal is unable to perform. Brilliant Coal Co. v. Gandy, 51 Ga. App. 264, 180 S.E. 379, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 658 (1935); Guaranty Mtg. Co. v. National Life Ins. Co., 55 Ga. App. 104, 189 S.E. 603, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 439 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 644, 192 S.E. 298, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 595 (1937).

Ordinarily, a guarantor cannot be sued to judgment on a contract of guaranty in the absence of a prior judgment against the principal and a nulla bona return, unless it is alleged and proved that the principal debtor is insolvent or that the debtor cannot be made to respond to a judgment that may be obtained against the debtor by the plaintiff. Arkansas Fuel Oil Co. v. Young, 66 Ga. App. 25, 16 S.E.2d 909 (1941).

When the contract, properly construed, is one of guaranty, before an action may be maintained on such contract, it must appear that the principal debtor is insolvent or is unable to respond to any judgment which the creditor may obtain against it. Erbelding v. Noland Co., 83 Ga. App. 464, 64 S.E.2d 218, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 888 (1951).

Guarantor is only secondarily liable on the principal's obligation, and in order to recover against a guarantor without first suing and seeking to enforce a judgment against the principal, the obligee must first show that the principal is insolvent or cannot be made to respond to a judgment against the obligee. Ferguson v. Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., 91 Ga. App. 115, 85 S.E.2d 72, 1954 Ga. App. LEXIS 875 (1954).

Guarantor, unlike a surety, is not liable until it appears that the debt is uncollectible from the primary debtor. Decatur Coca-Cola Bottling Co. v. Variety Vending Corp., 277 F. Supp. 393, 1967 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7477 (N.D. Ga. 1967).

When guarantor's liability under contract is direct and primary. — When under an agreement the defendant is primarily liable to the plaintiff, not secondarily so due to the defendant's having agreed to pay a certain amount for the principal debtor promptly on demand at maturity. The defendant's liability under the contract is direct and primary and, upon the defendant's failure to pay as provided therein, the defendant is subject to suit thereon, without it being shown that the principal debtor was insolvent, or unable to respond to any judgment that the plaintiff may obtain against the principal debtor. Under these circumstances, it is immaterial whether the instrument in question be denominated a contract of suretyship or one of guaranty. Arkansas Fuel Oil Co. v. Young, 66 Ga. App. 25, 16 S.E.2d 909 (1941).

Amount admitted by guarantor's principal not conclusive. — Guarantor is not conclusively bound by a judgment or the amount admitted due by the guarantor's principal, and such amount is only prima facie evidence of liability to the creditor; while a default judgment against a guarantor as to liability based on the guarantor's failure to answer the complaint was proper, the trial court erred in granting judgment against the guarantor without proof of damages, and the case was remanded for further proceedings regarding the damages owed by the guarantor. McCorvey Grading & Pipeline, Inc. v. Blalock Oil Co., 268 Ga. App. 795, 602 S.E.2d 842, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 1020 (2004).

Case remanded when findings so deficient as to preclude review. — When there may have been forbearance sufficient to constitute consideration for the guaranty as a material issue, but the findings of the trial court are so deficient as to preclude review, the appeal will be remanded with direction that the judgment be vacated and a new one entered with appropriate findings of fact and conclusions of law, after which the losing party shall be free to enter another appeal. Hickok v. Starka Indus., Inc., 151 Ga. App. 668, 261 S.E.2d 418, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2740 (1979).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Contract of guaranty is a collateral "obligation" which is just as enforceable as any other contract. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-69.

Notes for education are "obligations".—Notes guaranteed by the Georgia Higher Education Assistance Corporation and the United States government were "obligations" within the meaning of Ga. L. 1965, p. 217, § 5(2). 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-69.

General Consideration

This section is but an affirmance of the common law upon this subject. Phillips v. Solomon, 42 Ga. 192, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 35 (1871); Schwitzerlet-Seigler Co. v. Citizens & S. Bank, 155 Ga. 740, 118 S.E. 365, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 161 (1923).

Judgment against surety does not preclude setting up defense. — If, for any cause, the surety failed to set up a defense and judgment went against the surety, the surety would not be precluded by that judgment, from showing this fact and protecting the surety, at least to this extent. Norris v. Pollard, 75 Ga. 358, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1885).

Surety on bond for tax commissioner not liable for excess funds from tax sale. — Trial court did not err in granting a surety summary judgment in a lienholder's action under O.C.G.A. § 15-13-3 to recover excess funds from a tax sale because as the surety on the bond for the tax commissioner, the surety had no liability when the tax commissioner had none, O.C.G.A. § 10-7-2, and the tax commissioner was not liable. Brina Bay Holdings, LLC v. Echols, 314 Ga. App. 242, 723 S.E.2d 533, 2012 Ga. App. LEXIS 169 (2012), overruled in part, DLT List, LLC v. M7VEN Supportive Hous. & Dev. Group, 335 Ga. App. 318, 779 S.E.2d 436, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 769 (2015).

Surety's Obligation

Surety's liability governed by intent of parties as expressed in instrument. — Ordinarily, as a matter of construction, liability of surety on bond which is plain and unambiguous is governed, like any other contract, by intention of parties as expressed in the instrument. Sims' Crane Serv., Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co., 514 F. Supp. 1033, 1981 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9561 (S.D. Ga. 1981), aff'd, 667 F.2d 30, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 22211 (11th Cir. 1982).

Surety's obligation is predicated on bond. — While the obligation of a surety is accessory to that of the surety's principal, still regardless of the underlying cause, the liability of the surety is predicated on the bond and not on a tort. Fidelity-Phenix Ins. Co. v. Mauldin, 123 Ga. App. 108, 179 S.E.2d 525, 1970 Ga. App. LEXIS 1390 (1970).

Principal and surety are joint and several obligors. — When an obligation, joint in form, is executed by one party as principal and another as surety, they are to be deemed joint and several obligors, since by this section the obligation of the surety is accessory to that of the principal. Smith v. Moore, 45 Ga. App. 708, 165 S.E. 765, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 665 (1932).

Accommodation endorsers. — An obligation in the form "we promise to pay," but signed by one party as maker and endorsed by another as an accommodation endorser, is a joint and several obligation, since the endorser is a mere surety. Smith v. Moore, 45 Ga. App. 708, 165 S.E. 765, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 665 (1932).

Balance owed by principal determines amount owed by surety. — By virtue of this section, the balance due by a principal on a contract of suretyship must determine the amount due by the surety thereon. Gartrell v. Johns, 15 Ga. App. 671, 84 S.E. 175, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 33 (1915).

Surety is liable for no greater amount than is found to be due from the principal; the surety's liability cannot be extended beyond that of the principal. This follows from the very nature of the contract. Norris v. Pollard, 75 Ga. 358, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1885).

Surety not liable when principal not liable. — Trial court properly dismissed the counterclaim filed by the Georgia Department of Corrections (GDOC) against a roofing company's surety because it was found that the roofing company was not liable to the GDOC; thus, the surety was not liable to the GDOC. State Dep't of Corr. v. Developers Sur. & Indem. Co., 324 Ga. App. 371, 750 S.E.2d 697, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 847 (2013), aff'd, 295 Ga. 741, 763 S.E.2d 868, 2014 Ga. LEXIS 732 (2014).

Surety's promise is presumed to continue to amount agreed until revocation. — When an absolute promise is made to become responsible for a certain amount with no limitation as to time and there is nothing in the circumstances surrounding the execution of the contract to evince a contrary intention, it will be presumed that the promise was to continue until revoked, and the promisor will be held liable to the extent of one's guaranty, notwithstanding the principal may have, during the existence of the contract, contracted debts to an amount equal to or greater than the sum named in the guaranty. Manry v. Waxelbaum Co., 108 Ga. 14, 33 S.E. 701, 1899 Ga. LEXIS 176 (1899); Brock Candy Co. v. Craton, 33 Ga. App. 690, 127 S.E. 619, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 685 (1925).

Extension of credit beyond limit does not release surety. — Extension of credit to the principal in excess of the sum named in the contract of suretyship will not release the surety, the limit thus named being merely as to the surety's liability and not as to the credit to be extended. Brock Candy Co. v. Craton, 33 Ga. App. 690, 127 S.E. 619, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 685 (1925).

Obligations may be determined in light of surrounding circumstances. — Although, standing alone, a letter signed by the defendants is ambiguous, the intention of the parties may be ascertained by viewing the circumstances under which the letter was written, and under such circumstances it constituted a continuing guaranty of loans as they were made after the receipt of the letter. Roberson v. Liberty Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 88 Ga. App. 271, 76 S.E.2d 522, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1063 (1953).

Want of due care by a payee bank is no defense to the willful misconduct of the principal for the faithful performance of whose duties the surety obligated itself. American Sur. Co. v. Citizens' Bank, 48 Ga. App. 448, 172 S.E. 801, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 100 (1934), aff'd, 180 Ga. 827, 180 S.E. 635, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 571 (1935).

Accommodation party held liable without endorsement. — If one signs as maker a note payable to oneself and another signs the note as surety only, the maker's endorsement converts the note into a negotiable instrument, and the transfer of the note binds the surety, notwithstanding the absence of an endorsement by the surety. Jordan v. First Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 118, 91 S.E. 287, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 6 (1917).

Surety on fiduciary's bond only liable as to official acts. — Surety on the bond of an administrator or executor is liable only for acts of nonfeasance or misfeasance on the part of such representative in respect to one's official acts. Watson v. Watson, 61 Ga. App. 825, 7 S.E.2d 614, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 278 (1940).

Alleging executor's fraud in employing puffer does not state cause of action. — Petition against executor and executor's bond to recover an amount in excess of actual value the plaintiff was required to pay for lands sold by an executor at public outcry by reason of fraudulent conduct of an executor in securing a puffer to bid with the understanding that such person would not have to comply with one's bid did not set out a cause of action against the defendants. Watson v. Watson, 61 Ga. App. 825, 7 S.E.2d 614, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 278 (1940).

Guarantor is not conclusively bound by judgment or amount admitted due by one's principal as such amount is only prima-facie evidence of liability to the creditor. But, when such evidence has been introduced, it does establish prima facie the liability of the guarantor then the burden shifts to the guarantor to rebut the correctness of the amount. Peterson v. Midas Realty Corp., 160 Ga. App. 333, 287 S.E.2d 61, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3061 (1981).

Surety or guarantor may assert all but personal defenses principal would have to contract. Peterson v. Midas Realty Corp., 160 Ga. App. 333, 287 S.E.2d 61, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3061 (1981).

Discharge of Surety

Generally, discharge of the principal debtor also discharges the surety. Hendricks v. Davis, 196 Ga. App. 286, 395 S.E.2d 632, 1990 Ga. App. LEXIS 902 (1990), cert. denied, No. S90C1451, 1990 Ga. LEXIS 571 (Ga. Sept. 4, 1990).

Section does not include discharge of principal by operation of law. — This section does nothing more than to announce the general law applicable to principal and surety and does not include that class of cases when the principal debtor is discharged by operation of law; the more especially when that law which discharges the principal debtor expressly declares that it shall not operate to discharge the surety. Phillips v. Solomon, 42 Ga. 192, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 35 (1871).

Discharge under bankruptcy law. — By the words "from any cause" as used in this section is meant any cause dependent on the act or negligence of the creditor and not such a cause as the discharge of the principal under the bankruptcy law, Title 11, U.S.C., which is beyond the control of the creditor, and by force of the laws of the land. Phillips v. Solomon, 42 Ga. 192, 1871 Ga. LEXIS 35 (1871).

Discharge of principal by party's act discharges surety. — If the principal is discharged from liability by the act of the party procuring the contract, or by the party seeking to enforce the contract, and this was done without the knowledge of the surety, the surety will also be discharged, under this section. Langston v. Aderhold, 60 Ga. 376, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 475 (1878); Richardson v. Allen, 74 Ga. 719, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 388 (1885); Patterson v. Gibson, 81 Ga. 802, 10 S.E. 9, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 350 (1888).

If the maker of notes with sureties thereon executes a deed of assignment for the benefit of one's creditors, with a provision therein that the acceptance of any benefits thereunder by one's creditors will be a full satisfaction of the claims of the creditors against such maker, the acceptance, by the payee of such notes, of benefits under the assignment terminates the liability of the maker of such notes and would likewise discharge the sureties thereon, if done without their knowledge and consent. Schwitzerlet-Seigler Co. v. Citizens & S. Bank, 155 Ga. 740, 118 S.E. 365, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 161 (1923).

Sureties not discharged when creditor reserves rights. — When the creditor reserves all rights against the sureties, or it appears from the whole transaction that the sureties should remain bound, the sureties would not be discharged. Schwitzerlet-Seigler Co. v. Citizens & S. Bank, 155 Ga. 740, 118 S.E. 365, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 161 (1923).

Knowledge of continued liability on assigned notes. — When the holder of the notes accepted benefits under the assignment with the knowledge of the sureties and under an express understanding with the sureties that their liability on the notes was to continue, the sureties were not discharged from liability on the notes, although the acceptance of such benefits was a full satisfaction of the notes so far as the maker was concerned. Schwitzerlet-Seigler Co. v. Citizens & S. Bank, 155 Ga. 740, 118 S.E. 365, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 161 (1923).

Debt does not become extinct merely because the debt has become barred by limitation. Franklin v. Mobley, 202 Ga. 212, 42 S.E.2d 755, 1947 Ga. LEXIS 417 (1947).

Verdict for principal discharges surety. — Verdict of the jury in favor of the principal, discharging the principal from liability, extinguished ipso facto the obligation of the sureties. Schlittler & Johnson v. Deering Harvester Co., 3 Ga. App. 83, 3 Ga. App. 86, 59 S.E. 342, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 558 (1907); Marietta Fertilizer Co. v. Gary, 22 Ga. App. 604, 96 S.E. 711, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 620 (1918).

Verdict against surety only in joint action discharges surety and principal. — If the principal and the principal's surety on a promissory note, which is joint and several on its face, are sued in the same action and verdict and judgment are taken against the surety only, both the principal and the surety are discharged. Fricks v. Rome Mercantile Co., 49 Ga. App. 431, 175 S.E. 807, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 430 (1934).

Effect of dismissal without prejudice from case. — Dismissal without prejudice of a principal from a case sub judice is not equivalent to the extinction of the principal's obligation so as to render relevant the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 10-7-2. Gowdey v. Rem Assocs., 176 Ga. App. 83, 335 S.E.2d 309, 1985 Ga. App. LEXIS 2226 (1985).

Disability of Principal

Duress is, or, rather, it imposes, a disability. Patterson v. Gibson, 81 Ga. 802, 10 S.E. 9, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 350 (1888).

Duress of principal unknown to surety is good defense. — Bond executed under the duress of the principal is void as to the surety also if the surety acted without knowledge of the duress; and knowledge of the fact of imprisonment does not necessarily involve knowledge of its want of legality. Patterson v. Gibson, 81 Ga. 802, 10 S.E. 9, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 350 (1888).

Disability known to surety is no defense to surety. — Any disability of the principal in a bond or recognizance which is known to the bail will not prevent the bail from being bound by their undertaking, they being instrumental in causing the principal to be discharged from arrest, and delivered into their friendly custody. Weldon v. Colquitt, 62 Ga. 449, 1879 Ga. LEXIS 553 (1879).

General rule is inapplicable if surety knew surety had no remedy against principal. — Whatever discharges the principal also discharges the surety; but this rule does not apply when the principal binds oneself knowing the principal has no remedy over against the principal. Patterson v. Gibson, 81 Ga. 802, 10 S.E. 9, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 350 (1888).

Supreme Court has jurisdiction of claim Constitution prevents enforcement against principal. — Supreme Court and not the Court of Appeals has jurisdiction when surety seeks to be held free of liability on grounds of constitutional provisions which made the obligation unenforceable against the school system as principal. Franklin v. Mobley, 202 Ga. 212, 42 S.E.2d 755, 1947 Ga. LEXIS 417 (1947).

Analysis

General Consideration
Application

General Consideration

Strict construction of contract of suretyship or guaranty. — When a person promises to become a sponsor for the debt of another, the person's promise is to be strictly construed. Musgrove v. Luther Publishing Co., 5 Ga. App. 279, 63 S.E. 52, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 93 (1908).

This section calls for a strict construction of a contract of suretyship. American Sur. Co. v. Small Quarries Co., 157 Ga. 33, 120 S.E. 617, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 358 (1923); Hannah v. Lovelace-Young Lumber Co., 159 Ga. 856, 127 S.E. 225, 1925 Ga. LEXIS 69 (1925).

Courts of this state have construed bonds given by contractors on public works strictly. Durden v. American Sur. Co., 40 Ga. App. 705, 151 S.E. 408, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 653 (1930).

Whether the contract is one of guaranty or suretyship, the rule of stricti juris is applicable. LeCraw v. Atlanta Arts Alliance, Inc., 126 Ga. App. 656, 191 S.E.2d 572, 1972 Ga. App. LEXIS 1245 (1972) (decided prior to 1981 amendment to O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1, abolishing distinction between contracts of suretyship and guaranty).

Georgia Court of Appeals held that a guaranty contract cannot be extended by implication or interpretation and must be strictly construed. Apex Bank v. Thompson, 349 Ga. App. 285, 826 S.E.2d 162, 2019 Ga. App. LEXIS 155 (2019).

Failure to show waiver of confirmation process on part of guarantors. — As to the foreclosure deficiency judgment, the trial court erred by denying the guarantors of the mortgage summary judgment because the loan documents failed to include an adequate waiver of the confirmation process required by O.C.G.A. § 44-14-161. Apex Bank v. Thompson, 349 Ga. App. 285, 826 S.E.2d 162, 2019 Ga. App. LEXIS 155 (2019).

Construction same at law or in equity. — Undertaking of a surety being one stricti juris, the surety cannot, either at law or in equity, be bound farther or otherwise than the surety is by the very terms of the contract. Kenney v. Armour Fertilizer Works, 33 Ga. App. 126, 126 S.E. 284, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 765 (1924), rev'd, 161 Ga. 477, 131 S.E. 281, 1926 Ga. LEXIS 287 (1926); Mayor of Savannah v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 104 Ga. App. 879, 123 S.E.2d 293, 1961 Ga. App. LEXIS 832 (1961), overruled, Brock Constr. Co. v. Houston General Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 860, 243 S.E.2d 83, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1824 (1978); Johns v. Leaseway of Ga., Inc., 166 Ga. App. 472, 304 S.E.2d 555, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2213 (1983); Stone v. Palm Pool Prods., Ltd., 198 Ga. App. 751, 403 S.E.2d 69, 1991 Ga. App. LEXIS 303 (1991).

Section inapplicable where surety's obligation is manifest. — This section is inapplicable to an action upon an injunction bond if the surety's obligation is made manifest and full by a reference in the bond to certain portions of the injunction proceedings. Richardson v. Allen, 74 Ga. 719, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 388 (1885).

Liability cannot be extended by implication. — If the contract is unambiguous and subject to only one construction, the liability of any surety (whether compensated or not) is not to be extended beyond the terms of the contract by implication or interpretation. Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Brock Constr. Co., 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1021 (1978) (decided prior to 1981 amendment to O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1, abolishing distinction between contracts of suretyship and guaranty).

Surety's liability on a bond given to dissolve a garnishment is one of strict law and cannot be extended by implication. Roney v. McCall, 128 Ga. 249, 57 S.E. 503, 1907 Ga. LEXIS 76 (1907).

Guarantee agreement executed between lessor and lessee three days prior to a lease agreement could not apply to the lease agreement as it would have effectively extended the lessee's liability by implication. Avec Corp. v. Schmidt, 207 Ga. App. 374, 427 S.E.2d 850, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 190 (1993).

Any unconsented to change discharges surety. — Contract of suretyship is one of strict law by virtue of this section, and any change of the nature or terms of the contract without the consent of the surety discharges the surety. Camp v. Howell, 37 Ga. 312, 1867 Ga. LEXIS 163 (1867).

Liability of a surety cannot be extended beyond the actual terms of the surety's engagement and will be extinguished by any act or omission which alters the terms of the contract, unless it is done with the surety's consent. Washington Loan & Banking Co. v. Holliday, 26 Ga. App. 792, 107 S.E. 370, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 642 (1921).

Undertaking of a surety being stricti juris, one cannot, in law or equity, be bound further than the very terms of one's contract; and if the principal and obligee change the terms of the contract without consent, the surety is discharged. LeCraw v. Atlanta Arts Alliance, Inc., 126 Ga. App. 656, 191 S.E.2d 572, 1972 Ga. App. LEXIS 1245 (1972).

Appearance at specified term of court complies with bond. — When the condition in a criminal recognizance was that a principal should appear at a particular term of court, but it contained no provision as to appearing from term to term, or other like provision, the appearance of the principal at the specified term was a compliance with the condition, and the principal's failure to appear at a subsequent term to which the case was continued would not subject the sureties to a forfeiture. Colquitt v. Smith, 65 Ga. 341, 1880 Ga. LEXIS 193 (1880).

Undertaking of the sureties on a criminal bond is stricti juris by virtue of this section, and when the bond obligates the principal to be present at a specified term of court, but contains no provision for the surety's appearance from term to term, or other like provision, the appearance of the principal at the term specified in the bond would be a compliance with the condition thereof. Roberts v. State, 32 Ga. App. 339, 123 S.E. 151, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 381 (1924).

Official bond does not apply to funds received after term of office. — Under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 291 and 3540 (see now O.C.G.A. §§10-7-3 and 45-4-24) official bond of the former treasurer of the county did not impose upon the treasurer's sureties any obligation with reference to the county funds received by the treasurer after the treasurer's term of office from the treasurer's successor. Fannin County v. Daves, 23 Ga. App. 220, 98 S.E. 104, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 46 (1919).

Recovery is limited to penalty in bond. — When, pursuant to former Civil Code 1910, §§ 5185, 5186, and 5187, a bond was executed with a penalty value of $20.00, as far as the surety was concerned, the only recovery which could have been had on the bond was the named penalty of $20.00. Gullatt v. Blankenship, 42 Ga. App. 139, 155 S.E. 353, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 262 (1930).

Rule of strict construction in surety's favor applies only to gratuitous sureties. — Rule of "strict law" embodied in O.C.G.A. § 10-7-3 which provides an absolute rule of strict construction of surety contract in favor of the surety applies only to uncompensated sureties (sureties acting gratuitously), not to compensated sureties (sureties engaged in writing surety bonds for profit). Sims' Crane Serv., Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co., 514 F. Supp. 1033, 1981 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9561 (S.D. Ga. 1981), aff'd, 667 F.2d 30, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 22211 (11th Cir. 1982).

Contracts of compensated sureties construed strongly against surety. — Unlike gratuitous sureties, compensated sureties are not favorites of the law; on the contrary, the contract of a surety company, acting for compensation, and of any other surety for hire, is construed most strongly against the surety and in favor of an indemnity which the obligee has reasonable grounds to expect. Sims' Crane Serv., Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co., 514 F. Supp. 1033, 1981 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9561 (S.D. Ga. 1981), aff'd, 667 F.2d 30, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 22211 (11th Cir. 1982).

Application

Sheriff's surety is not liable for injuries by fellow prisoners allowed by jailer. — Action against surety on bond of a sheriff for injuries sustained by a prisoner confined, for violation of a municipal ordinance, in a county jail where the prisoner was "kangarooed" by other prisoners confined therein, the jailer knowingly allowing the injuries to be inflicted, was properly nonsuited. Tate v. National Sur. Corp., 58 Ga. App. 874, 200 S.E. 314, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 162 (1938).

Defendant was not a compensated surety and thus was entitled to the application of the extremely protective rule of strictissimi juris set forth in the statute; while the defendant had ownership interests in the businesses who were the unnamed principal debtors and may have eventually derived some benefit from their success, the consideration for the defendant signing the guarantees did not flow to the defendant, but instead to the businesses. Workman v. Sysco Food Servs., 236 Ga. App. 784, 513 S.E.2d 523, 1999 Ga. App. LEXIS 333 (1999).

Contract held not to extend to all debts of principal. — Other than the general statement that the plaintiff would not lease trucks to a company without a guaranty or suretyship agreement, there was no evidence that would alter the clear and unambiguous language of the agreement that the defendant would guarantee the obligation of the company arising from a weekly lease agreement of the same date as the suretyship agreement, nor was any evidence produced of the referenced lease agreement or that the company owed the plaintiff anything under the agreement, the plaintiff failed to prove that the defendant was obligated to pay any sums under the suretyship agreement; and the trial court's factual finding that the purpose of obtaining the defendant's guarantee was to have the defendant be responsible for all the debts of the company and its judgment for the plaintiff were clearly erroneous. Johns v. Leaseway of Ga., Inc., 166 Ga. App. 472, 304 S.E.2d 555, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2213 (1983).

Addition of coguarantor held not to alter contract. — When the contract contemplates more than one guarantor to be jointly and severally liable and the addition of other guaranties, the terms of the contract as to the original guarantor, would not be altered by adding a coguarantor, as the guarantor remains jointly and severally liable, nor would there be any increase in the risk to the guarantor if a coguarantor were added. Daprano v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 166 Ga. App. 811, 305 S.E.2d 655, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2340 (1983).

Incorporation of credit application sufficiently identified principal debtor. — Guaranty agreement that was included at the bottom of the same page as a credit application identified the principal debtor by referring to "the above applicant;" when read in conjunction with the incorporated application, with the word "applicant" bearing its usual meaning, the guaranty agreement identified the principal debtor sufficiently to satisfy the statute of frauds. House Hasson Hardware Co., Inc. v. Lawson's Home Ctr., Inc., 332 Ga. App. 295, 772 S.E.2d 389, 2015 Ga. App. LEXIS 288 (2015).

Debt unenforceable. — Writing which left blank both the name of the principal debtor and the name of the person individually guaranteeing the indebtedness was unenforceable. Sysco Food Servs. v. Coleman, 227 Ga. App. 460, 489 S.E.2d 568, 1997 Ga. App. LEXIS 935 (1997).

Directed verdict error when fact of suretyship does not appear on face of contract. — It was error to grant a motion for directed verdict when the fact of suretyship did not appear on the face of a contract, and since the question is an evidentiary one, the fact finder should hear all the facts in order to determine the parties' intention. Growth Properties of Fla., Ltd. v. Wallace, 168 Ga. App. 893, 310 S.E.2d 715, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2948 (1983).

Explicit, limited contract terms governed. — Trial court did not err in finding that the guaranties had expired when under the explicit terms in each guaranty, the guarantors' obligations were to end on the 42nd month of the lease in the event that no default existed, which was indeed the case. Roswell Festival, L.L.L.P. v. Athens Int'l, Inc., 259 Ga. App. 445, 576 S.E.2d 908, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 146 (2003).

Insufficient identification of guarantor. — Lessor was not entitled to recover on an equipment lease guaranty because the guaranty was unenforceable since it omitted essential elements, including the guarantor's identity, and the lease could not supply the missing elements since this required consideration of parol evidence, which was inadmissible for a contract required by the statute of frauds to be in writing. Dabbs v. Key Equip. Fin., Inc., 303 Ga. App. 570, 694 S.E.2d 161, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 379 (2010).

Lease holdover. — Lease guarantor was liable for increased holdover rent since the lease specifically reserved the holdover rent and the guaranty obligated the guarantor; since there was no change in the terms of the lease, the landlord's act of allowing the tenant to remain as a holdover was not a novation of the lease, and the guarantor's reliance on O.C.G.A. § 10-7-3 to refute the landlord's claim under the guaranty was misplaced because the guarantor's liability was established by the terms of the guaranty. Hood v. Peck, 269 Ga. App. 249, 603 S.E.2d 756, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 1129 (2004).

Expired performance bond. — Because the performance bond, on which the plaintiff's sole claim against an insurer was based, expired before the plaintiff asserted the claims, the insurer's motion for summary judgment was

Guarantor personally liable on promissory note. — Trial court did not err by finding a guarantor personally liable on a promissory note because the trial court correctly found that the language of the promissory note, the unconditional guaranty, and the modification to the promissory note were unambiguous, and since the documents' provisions were clear, the trial court's proper role was to apply the terms as written; in the guaranty, the guarantor expressly waived all notices or defenses to which the guarantor could be entitled under the guaranty, to the extent permitted by law, and because the guarantor failed to assert any defense based upon an alleged incompetency to enter into a contract at the time the guarantor executed the guaranty, and because the guarantor failed to show that the guaranty's broad waiver of defenses was prohibited by statute or public policy, the guarantor was bound thereby. Core LaVista, LLC v. Cumming, 308 Ga. App. 791, 709 S.E.2d 336, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (2011).

Corporate officers not individually liable. — Plain language of the document, although poorly drafted, established that the document was a promissory note made between two lenders and a corporation, and the officers signed the document in the officers' representative capacity on behalf of the corporation. A provision that the officers personally guaranteed the debt could not be implied pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-7-3. Elwell v. Keefe, 312 Ga. App. 393, 718 S.E.2d 587, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 964 (2011).

Acts not covered by bond. — Trial court erred in granting a purchaser summary judgment and in denying an insurer summary judgment in the purchaser's action to recover against a bond the insurer issued to a mortgage lender under the Georgia Residential Mortgage Act, O.C.G.A. § 7-1-1000 et seq., because the acts that gave rise to the judgment the purchaser obtained against the lender occurred before the bond was in effect, and the lender's failure to pay the judgment was not an act that authorized recovery against the bond; the bond did not contain a specific covenant extending liability to acts prior to the bond's execution. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. iFreedom Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. iFreedom Direct Corp., 312 Ga. App. 262, 718 S.E.2d 103, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 934 (2011), cert. denied, No. S12C0408, 2012 Ga. Editor's notes.

In Massell v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America, 57 Ga. App. 460, 196 S.E. 115 (1938), it was held that this section, under which an accommodation endorser was considered merely a surety, must yield to the former Negotiable Instruments Law, Ga. L. 1924, p. 126, which has in turn been superseded by the commercial paper provisions of the Uniform Commercial Code, O.C.G.A. §§ 11-3-101 through 11-3-805. The UCC provides that a signature in an ambiguous capacity is an endorsement (O.C.G.A. § 11-3-402); that an accommodation party is liable in the capacity in which he has signed, even though the taker knows of the accommodation, where the instrument has been taken for value before it is due (O.C.G.A. § 11-3-415(2)); that oral proof of the accommodation is not admissible against a holder in due course who has no notice of the accommodation to give the accommodation party the benefit of discharges dependent on his character as such, but in other cases is admissible (§ 11-3-415(3)); and that an accommodation party paying the instrument has a right of recourse against the accommodated party (§ 11-3-415(5)), and spells out the liability of makers, drawers, acceptors, endorsers, and guarantors (O.C.G.A. §§ 11-3-413, 11-3-414, and 11-3-416) and how the liability of parties to commercial paper is discharged (§§ 11-3-601 through 11-3-606).

Many cases involving negotiable instruments were decided under this section before the UCC became effective. See, for example, Freeman v. Cherry, 46 Ga. 14 (1872); Camp v. Simmons, 62 Ga. 73 (1878), later appeals, 64 Ga. 726, 65 Ga. 674 (1880), 71 Ga. 54 (1883); Patillo v. Mayer & Glauber, 70 Ga. 715 (1883); Hall v. Capital Bank, 71 Ga. 715 (1883); Parmelee v. Williams, 72 Ga. 42 (1883); Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653 (1893); Baggs v. Funderburke, 11 Ga. App. 173, 74 S.E. 937 (1912); Bank of LaFayette v. Wardlaw, 20 Ga. App. 741, 93 S.E. 236 (1917); Washington Loan & Banking Co. v. Holliday, 26 Ga. App. 792, 107 S.E. 370, cert. denied, 26 Ga. App. 801 (1921); Taff v. Larey, 29 Ga. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided before the UCC became effective on January 1, 1964, are included in the annotations for this Code section and must be considered in light of the UCC provisions referred to above.

Form of contract makes no difference. — Form of the contract can make no difference, if the fact of suretyship is made to appear from the evidence and that fact was known to all the parties. Norris v. Pollard, 75 Ga. 358, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1885); Buck v. Bank of Ga., 104 Ga. 660, 30 S.E. 872, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 392 (1898).

Mere language of the contract does not determine the contract's legal character. Courts may disregard formal expressions to ascertain the real intent of the parties. Schlittler & Johnson v. Deering Harvester Co., 3 Ga. App. 83, 3 Ga. App. 86, 59 S.E. 342, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 558 (1907).

Form is immaterial if the fact of suretyship exists. United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

Formal expressions may be disregarded. — No particular or formal phrase is required to create a contract of surety. Courts may disregard formal expressions to ascertain the real intent of the parties, and the form of the contract is immaterial. W.T. Raleigh Co. v. Overstreet, 71 Ga. App. 873, 32 S.E.2d 574, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 249 (1944); United States v. Ferguson, 409 F. Supp. 393, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11415 (S.D. Ga. 1975), aff'd, 529 F.2d 999, 1976 U.S. App. LEXIS 12012 (5th Cir. 1976).

Suretyship may be created by separate instrument. — While a surety is usually bound with the surety's principal by the same instrument, that is not always true, and one may assume that the relation of suretyship exists even by an instrument separate and distinct from that of the surety's principal and also subsequent in time. McKibben v. Fourth Nat'l Bank, 32 Ga. App. 222, 122 S.E. 891, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 343 (1924), overruled, Timberlake Grocery Co. v. Cartwright, 146 Ga. App. 746, 247 S.E.2d 567, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2549 (1978); Griswold v. Wells Aluminum, Moultrie, Inc., 156 Ga. App. 19, 274 S.E.2d 7, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2856 (1980).

Written instrument is not required. — Fact that written instrument may not have been executed between the creditor and an alleged surety does not preclude existence of a suretyship. Griswold v. Wells Aluminum, Moultrie, Inc., 156 Ga. App. 19, 274 S.E.2d 7, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2856 (1980).

Suretyship may be shown although not on face of instrument. — When the evidence offered tended to show that B signed the note purely for the accommodation of S to enable the latter to borrow the money from the bank, that B did not receive a cent of the money, that B had no interest in the loan and that B therefore obligated B to pay S's debt in consideration of the credit extended to S by the bank while S remained bound for the debt, under the provision of this section, B was only a surety for S. Buck v. Bank of Ga., 104 Ga. 660, 30 S.E. 872, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 392 (1898).

Although the fact of suretyship does not appear on the face of a note, the defendants are clearly entitled to show that the defendants were only sureties by virtue of this section. Duggan v. Monk, 5 Ga. App. 206, 62 S.E. 1017, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 66 (1908).

If a negotiable promissory note purports to have been given "for value received," and suit is brought thereon by the payee, the maker may plead and prove by parol that the note was executed without consideration as between the parties, and for the sole purpose of enabling the payee to endorse the note to a third person as collateral security for a debt which the payee desired to contract and which the payee promised to pay without assistance from the maker of the note. Such a note is a mere accommodation paper and, while in the hands of the person to be accommodated, is without consideration and binds nobody, but it would be otherwise if the note were in the hands of an endorsee who received the note for value. Rheney v.

Anderson, 22 Ga. App. 417, 96 S.E. 217, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 373 (1918).

One who signs a note with another apparently as a joint principal may in an action by the payee plead and prove that one had no interest in the paper and was only surety for the accommodation of the other and principal signer, and that the plaintiff took the note with knowledge of such facts. Cheshire v. Hightower, 33 Ga. App. 793, 127 S.E. 891, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 724 (1925).

One who signs a note ostensibly as a coprincipal may in fact be a surety, and this may be established by parol. Campbell v. Rybert, 46 Ga. App. 461, 167 S.E. 924, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 101 (1933).

Creditor's reliance on surety's credit does not alter rule. — Fact that the payee of the note might have been induced to make the loan on the faith of the surety's credit, rather than upon that of the principal debtor, would not alter the rule. Cheshire v. Hightower, 33 Ga. App. 793, 127 S.E. 891, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 724 (1925).

Surety usually bound with principal by same instrument, executed at same time, and on same consideration; the surety is an original promisor and debtor from the beginning. Griswold v. Whetsell, 157 Ga. App. 800, 278 S.E.2d 753, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2015 (1981).

Surety or guarantor may consent in advance to conduct which would otherwise result in surety's discharge. Griswold v. Whetsell, 157 Ga. App. 800, 278 S.E.2d 753, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2015 (1981).

Failure of a cosurety to disclose the true nature and purport of the note at the time of endorsement is insufficient to release an accommodation endorser who did not read the note but seeks to avoid liability on the ground that the endorsement was obtained by fraud and deceit. "Compound" defined. — To "compound" is to compromise or make a composition whereby a creditor discharges the creditor's debtor on payment of a smaller sum than that actually owing. Williams-Thompson Co. v. Williams, 10 Ga. App. 251, 73 S.E. 409, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 446 (1912) (no compounding shown).

Foreign statute denying release conflicts with policy of this state. — Tennessee statute providing that the release of a cosurety or coobligor does not release the other surety or obligor when the parties, other than those not released, stipulate that such other surety or obligor ws not released, was contrary to the public policy of this state as expressed by former Code 1933, §§ 20-910 and 103-201 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-20 and 13-4-80), and will not be enforced. Kent v. Hair, 60 Ga. App. 652, 4 S.E.2d 703, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 130 (1939).

Section only applies to release without consent of cosureties. — When the novation of a contract by the release of one surety and the substitution of another was done with the consent of the sureties, derived from the provisions of the contract of suretyship, the provision of this section for the discharge of cosureties by the release of a surety must be construed, in pari materia with former Code 1933, § 103-202 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-7-21), so as to apply only when such release is done without the consent of such cosurety or co-sureties. Overcash v. First Nat'l Bank, 115 Ga. App. 499, 155 S.E.2d 32, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 1144 (1967).

Unenforceable attempt to release surety does not release cosurety. — Release of or compounding with one surety discharges a cosurety under this section, but an attempt to release one of the sureties does not have this effect when the attempted release is unenforceable for lack of consideration. Williams-Thompson Co. v. Williams, 10 Ga. App. 251, 73 S.E. 409, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 446 (1912).

Individually liable guarantors not cosureties. — Nonsettling guarantors of promissory notes who were individually, not jointly, liable were not cosureties under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-20; thus, they were not discharged by plaintiff's acceptance from other guarantors of less than the total sum owed under the notes. Any novation by virtue of the settlement agreement would not operate to release the nonsettling guarantors from their individual limited liabilities. Marret v. Scott, 212 Ga. App. 427, 441 S.E.2d 902, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 286 (1994).

Guarantor who admitted forging co-guarantor's signature estopped from pleading discharge. — Husband/guarantor was equitably estopped from arguing that a licensor's discharge of his co-guarantor and wife discharged him pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-20 and 10-7-21 because he signed an affidavit that he had forged his wife's signature on the guaranty without her knowledge, and the affidavit resulted in the wife's dismissal from the licensor's suit. Noons v. Holiday Hospitality Franchising, Inc., 307 Ga. App. 351, 705 S.E.2d 166, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 922 (2010), cert. denied, No. S11C0654, 2011 Ga. LEXIS 423 (Ga. May 16, 2011).

Guarantor bound by contract. — As there was some evidence to support a determination that a guarantor did not intend that contractual guaranty obligations were contingent upon another individual signing the guaranty as a co-surety, the failure of such signature was not a change in the contract terms or a release that discharged the guarantor from liability. Fletcher v. C. W. Matthews Contr. Co., 322 Ga. App. 751, 746 S.E.2d 230, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 604 (2013).

Guarantor discharged. — In a foreclosure action, the property owner was discharged as a guarantor when the lender compromised with and released the owner's co-guarantors. Pollard v. Queensborough Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 356 Ga. App. 223, 844 S.E.2d 894, 2020 Ga. App. LEXIS 349 (2020), cert. denied, No. S21C0012, 2021 Ga. LEXIS 342 (Ga. Apr. 19, 2021).

Waiver of defense by terms of guaranty documents. — Even if a corporation president was released from the president's personal guarantee of a corporate loan, O.C.G.A. § 10-7-20 did not apply to release the co-guarantors from liability when, by virtue of the terms of their guarantee documents, the guarantors had expressly waived any defense the guarantors might have which was related to the guarantors claim under § 10-7-20. Baby Days, Inc. v. Bank of Adairsville, 218 Ga. App. 752, 463 S.E.2d 171, 1995 Ga. App. LEXIS 875 (1995), cert. denied, No. S96C0260, 1996 Ga. LEXIS 269 (Ga. Jan. 26, 1996).

Editor's notes.

It was held in some cases, prior to 1981, that this section did not apply to compensated sureties, as they were treated as guarantors under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1 as it then read. See, for example, Travelers Indem. Co. v. Sasser & Co., 138 Ga. App. 361, 226 S.E.2d 121 (1976); Brock Constr. Co. v. Houston Gen. Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 860, 243 S.E.2d 83, aff'd, 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316 (1978), overruling Little Rock Furn. Co. v. Jones & Co., 13 Ga. App. 502, 79 S.E. 375 (1913), and Fairmont Creamery Co. v. Collier, 21 Ga. App. 87, 94 S.E. 56 (1917). Other cases stated that this section did apply to contracts of guaranty. See, for example, Dunlap v. Citizens & S. DeKalb Bank, 134 Ga. App. 893, 216 S.E.2d 651 (1975); Gilbert v. Cobb Exch. Bank, 140 Ga. App. 514, 231 S.E.2d 508 (1976); Ricks v. United States, 434 F. Supp. 1262 (S.D. Ga. 1976). Then in 1981, Ga. L. 1981, p. 870, § 1, amended O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1 to abolish the distinction between contracts of suretyship and guaranty. See the Editor's note to O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1.

General Consideration

Section strictly construed. — Georgia courts have given this section strict enforcement. Oellerich v. First Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 552 F.2d 1109, 1977 U.S. App. LEXIS 13220 (5th Cir. 1977).

Liability of a surety cannot be extended beyond the actual terms of surety's engagement and will be extinguished by any act or omission which alters the terms of the contract, unless it is done with the surety's consent.

Washington Loan & Banking Co. v. Holliday, 26 Ga. App. 792, 107 S.E. 370, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 642 (1921).

Novation

Novation discharges surety. — Contract of suretyship was one of strict law under former Code 1863, § 2127 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-7-3), and any change of the nature or terms of the contract, without the consent of the surety, discharges the surety. Camp v. Howell, 37 Ga. 312, 1867 Ga. LEXIS 163 (1867).

Change in the nature or terms of the contract is a novation, and such a novation, without the consent of the surety discharges the surety from liability. Smith v. Georgia Battery Co., 46 Ga. App. 840, 169 S.E. 381, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 266 (1933) (change in terms of bond after surety signed).

Any change in the terms of the contract is considered a novation and discharges the surety in the absence of the latter's consent. The surety is also discharged by any act of the creditor which injures the surety or increases the surety's risk. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Any novation without the consent of the surety, or increase in risk, discharges the surety. Dunlap v. Citizens & S. DeKalb Bank, 134 Ga. App. 893, 216 S.E.2d 651, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2210 (1975).

Tenant and landlord changed the terms of lease without the consent of the guarantor on the lease, therefore the guarantor was discharged from its obligations; the amendments, which removed the landlord's obligation to provide additional access to the property and waived the landlord's liability for leasing portions of the property to competing businesses, were material changes to the lease. SuperValu, Inc. v. KR Douglasville, LLC, 272 Ga. App. 710, 613 S.E.2d 154, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 290 (2005), cert. denied, No. S05C1326, 2005 Ga. LEXIS 602 (Ga. Sept. 19, 2005).

In a suit to recover on a note, the trial court properly denied a creditor's motion for summary judgment, and granted summary judgment to the guarantor of the note, releasing the guarantor from the guaranty the guarantor entered into with the creditor's debtor, as the execution of an escrow agreement between the creditor and the debtor, which materially changed the debtor's obligations thereunder without the guarantor's consent, amounted to a novation, releasing the guarantor from any obligation under the note. Thomas-Sears v. Morris, 278 Ga. App. 152, 628 S.E.2d 241, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 272 (2006).

Change must be material. — Any material alteration in the original contract, without the knowledge or consent of the guarantor thereof, will relieve the guarantor from the guaranty. H.C. Whitmer Co. v. Sheffield, 51 Ga. App. 623, 181 S.E. 119, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 423 (1935).

Surety will not be discharged from the contract unless the change or alteration in the contract is material. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Changes in lease agreed on in advance by guarantor. — Increased holdover rent was reserved in a commercial lease, and since there was no change in the terms of the lease, the landlord's act of allowing the corporation to remain as a tenant holding over was not a novation; in any event, the guaranty gave the landlord the authority to change the amount, time, or manner of payment of rent and to amend, modify, change or supplement the lease, and thus, the guarantor consented in advance to changes in the lease. Hood v. Peck, 269 Ga. App. 249, 603 S.E.2d 756, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 1129 (2004).

Guarantors remained responsible under lease. — In a dispute to recover amounts due under a lease and two guaranties, under the plain terms of the guaranties, the guarantors were liable for rent under the lease renewal as there was no novation because the guarantors explicitly agreed that the guaranties would continue in full force and effect during any renewals of the lease and that the guaranties would not be affected by any modification, changes, alteration, or revisions to the lease. Sage Atlanta Props. v. Diner Group of Ga., 360 Ga. App. 817, 861 S.E.2d 638, 2021 Ga. App. LEXIS 398 (2021).

One who consents to a novation is not discharged as a surety. If notes are accepted by a creditor as security and are signed by the surety, the notes are not "without the consent of the surety" as contemplated by this section. Mauldin v. Lowe's of Macon, Inc., 146 Ga. App. 539, 246 S.E.2d 726, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2448 (1978).

Liability extinguished when changes without consent. — If a party makes a contract in such a manner as is authorized by law, the party has a right to object to being bound by any other, and this elementary general rule has particular application to material changes in contractual obligations of sureties when made without their consent, and their liability is thereby extinguished. Hamby v. Crisp, 48 Ga. App. 418, 172 S.E. 842, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 91 (1934).

Individually liable guarantors not released by novation. — Nonsettling guarantors of promissory notes who were individually, not jointly, liable were not cosureties under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-21; thus, they were not discharged by plaintiff's acceptance from other guarantors of less than the total sum owed under the notes. Any novation by virtue of the settlement agreement would not operate to release the nonsettling guarantors from their individual limited liabilities. Marret v. Scott, 212 Ga. App. 427, 441 S.E.2d 902, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 286 (1994).

No evidence of novation to discharge surety. — Given that the broad language of a guaranty obligated the guarantor to the bank, absolutely and unconditionally guaranteeing the payment and performance of each and every debt that the debtor would owe, and because no issue of fact existed as to whether the guarantor was discharged by any increased risk or any purported novation, the guarantor remained obligated under the guaranty to the bank. Fielbon Dev. Co. v. Colony Bank, 290 Ga. App. 847, 660 S.E.2d 801, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 376 (2008).

Trial court did not err in ruling that a promissory note modification was simply a modification of certain terms of the original note instead of a novation that substantially increased a guarantor's personal liability under the guaranty and, therefore, discharged the guarantor because there was no merit to the guarantor's contention that, at the time the guarantor executed the note modification, such modification contemporaneously increased the guarantor's contractual obligations to the creditors; at the time the guarantor executed the note modification on behalf of the debtor, the guarantor was already personally obligated to pay the creditors, pursuant to the guaranty, the original principal amount plus the accrued interest. Core LaVista, LLC v. Cumming, 308 Ga. App. 791, 709 S.E.2d 336, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (2011).

Change which benefits surety. — Rule enunciated in this section will not be altered by the fact that the change in the contract, which was made without the knowledge or consent of the surety, nevertheless inured to the benefit of the principal and the surety. If the change is made without the knowledge or consent of the surety, the surety's complete reply is non haec in foedera veni. Little Rock Furn. Co. v. Jones & Co., 13 Ga. App. 502, 79 S.E. 375, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 239 (1913), overruled, Brock Constr. Co. v. Houston General Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 860, 243 S.E.2d 83, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1824 (1978); Fairmont Creamery Co. v. Collier, 21 Ga. App. 87, 94 S.E. 56, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 440 (1917).

Any change in the terms of a contract by which a new and materially different contract is created constitutes a novation and, when made without the consent of the surety, operates to discharge the latter; this is true even though such newly created contract is more favorable to the surety than the contract as originally executed. Paulk v. Williams, 28 Ga. App. 183, 110 S.E. 632, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 370 (1922).

Surety who has not consented to a change in a bond is entitled to claim a discharge, regardless of how the change affected the surety, and even if the change inured to the surety's benefit. Smith v.

Novation (Cont'd)

Georgia Battery Co., 46 Ga. App. 840, 169 S.E. 381, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 266 (1933).

Change which does not injure surety. — If there is a change in the nature of the contract and it is made without the knowledge or consent of the surety, a release will result, regardless of injury. Alropa Corp. v. Snyder, 182 Ga. 305, 185 S.E. 352, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Surety is discharged from the terms of the contract, even though the surety is not injured by the contract change. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Any change, whether to the surety's benefit or detriment, is a novation which discharges the surety. Upshaw v. First State Bank, 244 Ga. 433, 260 S.E.2d 483, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 1271 (1979).

Release of parties to instrument secured discharges surety. — By virtue of this section, when a surety or accommodation endorser signs a note, the consideration of which is that the note shall be held by the bank when it is negotiated as collateral security for another note or draft due the bank, and the bank, without the knowledge and consent of the surety, changes the contract by releasing the acceptor and endorser of that other note or draft, the security or accommodation endorser of the collateral note is discharged. Stallings v. Bank of Americus, 59 Ga. 701, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 372 (1877).

Change in terms of payment to creditor discharges surety. — Change by the obligee and principal in the terms of payments to the contractor from that provided in the building contract operates to discharge the surety. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Claim for interest not novation. — Creditor's claim for interest in an action against the debtor and personal guarantor on an open account agreement did not result in a novation of the agreement. Charles S. Martin Distrib. Co. v. Berhardt Furn. Co., 213 Ga. App. 481, 445 S.E.2d 297, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 608 (1994).

Increase in rate of interest. — Giving of a new note for a usurious increase in interest, and part payment thereof, in consideration of 12 months delay to sue, discharges the surety on the original note. Camp v. Howell, 37 Ga. 312, 1867 Ga. LEXIS 163 (1867).

Under former Civil Code 1885, §§ 2968 and 2971, if, after a promissory note payable to a named payee or bearer has been signed by one as surety, the principal, before it comes into the hands of one who thereafter receives it as bearer in the course of negotiation before due, so alters it as to increase the rate of interest agreed to be paid from 8 to 12 percent, such note is by such alteration rendered void as to such surety; and this is true even though, at the time it comes into the hands of such bearer, one has no notice of the alteration by the principal. Hill v. O'Niell, 101 Ga. 832, 28 S.E. 996, 29 S.E. 996, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 341 (1897).

Comaker of the third series of renewal notes was discharged following subsequent renewals at an increased rate of interest since the provisions of the note did not cover subsequent modifications of the interest rate and the comaker had not signed the subsequent notes. Bank of Terrell v. Webb, 177 Ga. App. 715, 341 S.E.2d 258, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 1526 (1986).

Change in payment terms, costs, and expenses resulted in novation. — New agreement was a novation under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-21 as the agreement changed the payment terms of the original contract by adding the requirement of late charges on unpaid balances, and costs and expenses of collection, including attorney fees; therefore, the novation discharged the guarantor. Builder Marts of Am., Inc. v. Gilbert, 257 Ga. App. 763, 572 S.E.2d 88, 2002 Ga. App. LEXIS 1281 (2002).

There is no novation if there is no new consideration. Sens v. Decatur Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 159 Ga. App. 767, 285 S.E.2d 226, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2800 (1981).

Novation not found. — Guarantor argued that a bank's settlements with two other guarantors constituted a novation under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-21; however, a novation required a new agreement, and there was no new contract between the bank and the borrower and no new contract between the bank and the borrower. Additionally, the guarantor consented to the settlements in advance in the guaranty agreement. Wooden v. Synovus Bank, 323 Ga. App. 794, 748 S.E.2d 275, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 750 (2013).

Consent

Implied consent makes change immaterial. — Any change or alteration made in an instrument after the instrument's execution which is impliedly authorized by the signers thereof, and which merely expresses what would otherwise be supplied by intendment, is immaterial, and will not discharge one signing as surety. Watkins Medical Co. v. Harrison, 33 Ga. App. 585, 126 S.E. 909, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 615 (1925).

Surety may consent in advance to a course of conduct which would otherwise result in the surety's discharge. Dunlap v. Citizens & S. DeKalb Bank, 134 Ga. App. 893, 216 S.E.2d 651, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2210 (1975).

Surety is not discharged by any act of the creditor or obligee to which the surety consents. Consent may be given in advance as at the time the contract of suretyship is entered into. Union Commerce Leasing Corp. v. Beef 'N Burgundy, Inc., 155 Ga. App. 257, 270 S.E.2d 696, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2549 (1980).

Guarantor may consent in advance to conduct which would otherwise result in statutory discharge. Regan v. United States Small Bus. Admin., 926 F.2d 1078, 1991 U.S. App. LEXIS 4091 (11th Cir. 1991).

If the language of a guaranty specifically contemplated an increase in the obligor's debt and the creation of new obligations, and included waivers of any "legal or equitable discharge" and of any defense based upon an increase in risk, the protections of O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-21 and 10-7-22 were waived. Underwood v. NationsBanc Real Estate Serv., Inc., 221 Ga. App. 351, 471 S.E.2d 291, 1996 Ga. App. LEXIS 482 (1996).

By assenting in advance to a waiver of all legal and equitable defenses, the guarantor was foreclosed from asserting that the guarantor was discharged under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-21 or O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22. Ramirez v. Golden, 223 Ga. App. 610, 478 S.E.2d 430, 1996 Ga. App. LEXIS 1241 (1996).

Alleged guarantor was not discharged from the obligations of a personal guarantee under O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-21 and 10-7-22 because, although a subsequent agreement changed the terms of the original guaranty by granting an extension of time regarding the terms of purchase from a company and acted as a novation, the alleged guarantor consented to those changes. Staten v. Beaulieu Group, LLC, 278 Ga. App. 179, 628 S.E.2d 614, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 278 (2006).

Disregard of condition of surety's consent makes section apply. — If a surety authorizes the substitution of the new bill on a condition useless to the surety and the condition is disregarded, the surety may claim the principle announced in this section. Central Ga. Bank v. Cleveland Nat'l Bank, 59 Ga. 667, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 368 (1877).

Unconsented increase in risk is an independent ground for discharge of a surety. Upshaw v. First State Bank, 244 Ga. 433, 260 S.E.2d 483, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 1271 (1979).

Application

Rules apply to negotiable instruments. — Agreement (novation) which would discharge the surety or guarantor of a simple contract for the payment of money will also discharge one who is a guarantor or surety on a negotiable instrument. Sewell v. Akins, 147 Ga. App. 454, 249 S.E.2d 274, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 2720 (1978).

Official bonds. — When, after the execution of the public printer's performance bond, the legislature by resolution authorized the treasurer (now director of the Office of Treasury and Fiscal Services) to advance to the printer a sum in part payment for the public printing of the session then pending, this was such a novation of the contract as discharged the sureties if done without the surety's consent. Walsh v. Colquitt, 64 Ga. 740, 1880 Ga. LEXIS 402 (1880).

Taking of a promissory note for an antecedent liability does not constitute a payment of the debt in the absence of an agreement to that effect, or evidence that such was the intention of the parties. Sulter v. Citizens Bank & Trust Co., 51 Ga. App. 798, 181 S.E. 694, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 476 (1935).

Mutual intention to treat former contract as no longer binding must be shown. — To do away with the stipulations in a contract, the circumstances must show a mutual intention of the parties to treat the stipulations as no longer binding and must be such as, in law, to make practically a new agreement. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. v. Jarrett, 42 F. Supp. 723, 1942 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3262 (D. Ga.), modified, 131 F.2d 674, 1942 U.S. App. LEXIS 2918 (5th Cir. 1942).

Promissory note evidence of settlement of accounts. — Under the facts, the taking of a demand promissory note for a preexisting liability which was covered by the guaranty did not constitute a payment of the debt and thereby release the guarantor. Sulter v. Citizens Bank & Trust Co., 51 Ga. App. 798, 181 S.E. 694, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 476 (1935).

Generally, the execution of a promissory note is prima facie evidence of the full settlement of all accounts up to the date of the note. A compromise, or mutual accord and satisfaction, is binding on both parties. Collier v. Casey, 59 Ga. App. 627, 1 S.E.2d 776, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 377 (1939).

Accord and satisfaction is effected by each party relinquishing claim. — When each of two persons relinquishes a claim against the other, or each discontinues an action against the other, a mutual accord and satisfaction is effected, regardless of the respective amounts involved; and this bars any further recourse on the part of either as to such claims. Any rights of the parties must now be based upon the new agreement. Collier v. Casey, 59 Ga. App. 627, 1 S.E.2d 776, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 377 (1939).

New note for less than old is presumptive evidence of settlement. — New note for a less sum than the old note, given in renewal thereof, is presumptive evidence that all differences between the parties were adjusted and settled when such new note was given. Collier v. Casey, 59 Ga. App. 627, 1 S.E.2d 776, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 377 (1939).

Other agreement must be clearly shown. — It must be upon clear and satisfactory evidence that both parties agreed and intended that the settlement, made when the new note was given, was not final and that any defense which could have been made to the old note might still be made to the new one. Collier v. Casey, 59 Ga. App. 627, 1 S.E.2d 776, 1939 Ga. App. LEXIS 377 (1939).

New note given for old with different terms is novation. — When a note was given by principal and security during the Civil War which, at the close of the war, was scaled to a gold standard, a new note given by a principal alone for the amount thus scaled, and accepted by the payee in the discharge of the first note, was a novation of the original contract under former Code 1868, §§ 2125 and 2828. Hamilton v. Willingham, 45 Ga. 500, 1872 Ga. LEXIS 267 (1872).

Substituting absolute deed for mortgage. — Absolute deed conveying land as security for a debt is a security of a higher nature than a mortgage for the same debt on the same premises, and when the mortgage is entered satisfied and surrendered up because of the execution of such deed, the transaction operates as a novation and amounts to a merger. Bostwick v. Felder, 73 Ga. App. 118, 35 S.E.2d 783, 1945 Ga. App. LEXIS 405 (1945).

Changing the date from which a promissory note draws interest by erasing the words "from date" and substituting therefor the words "from maturity" is a material alteration creating a new contract and constitutes a novation. Paulk v. Williams, 28 Ga. App. 183, 110 S.E. 632, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 370 (1922).

Renewing note at same rate. — By virtue of this section, the mere renewal of a note at the same rate of interest is not a novation. Partridge v. Williams' Sons, 72 Ga. 807, 1884 Ga. LEXIS 324 (1884).

New note to ward and security deed conveying same property conveyed to guardian. — If a guardian holding a note secured by a deed received, for the benefit of two minor wards, payment from the debtor of a sum equal to the share of one of the wards, and settled with such ward at majority, and thereafter the debtor executed a new note and security deed to the other ward at majority, the new note representing the ward's share of the original indebtedness and the security deed conveying the same property as the original deed to the guardian, it was held that the new note and security deed did not amount to a novation. Kelley v. Spivey, 182 Ga. 507, 185 S.E. 783, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 474 (1936).

Failure to enter into contract not relied upon by surety. — Fact that no contract was ultimately entered into between the grantor and grantee in the security deed executed contemporaneously with notes endorsed by a surety does not constitute a fraud upon the surety so as to relieve the surety of liability on the notes; nor does such fact constitute a novation of the notes so as to relieve the surety of the surety's liability thereon, for if it does not appear that the surety relied upon the existence of such contract as an inducement to sign as surety, there can be no fraud, nor can the failure to enter into the contract, which was cancellable at any time solely by the grantee in the security deed (the payee in the notes), constitute a novation of the notes. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Hammond, 92 Ga. App. 11, 87 S.E.2d 426, 1955 Ga. App. LEXIS 506 (1955).

Surety will not be released by fraudulent renewal note disaffirmed by creditor. — While under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3543 and 3544 a surety will be discharged by a novation changing the nature or terms of the surety's contract without the surety's consent, and therefore the acceptance by a payee bank, without the agreement or consent of the surety, of a new note in renewal or payment of the original note signed by the surety will discharge the surety from liability, such an acceptance by the payee bank, when induced by the actual fraud of the maker in presenting the renewal instrument with the signature of the surety forged thereon, and without knowledge or reasonable ground to suspect, on the part of the bank, that the signature was in fact a forgery, will not release the surety, if it appeared that upon discovery of the fraud of the maker the bank promptly disaffirmed the bank's previous acceptance of the renewal note by regaining possession of the original note and suing thereon. Biddy v. People's Bank, 29 Ga. App. 580, 116 S.E. 222, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 128 (1923).

Guarantor who admitted forging co-guarantor's signature estopped from pleading discharge. — Husband/guarantor was equitably estopped from arguing that a licensor's discharge of his co-guarantor and wife discharged him pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-20 and 10-7-21 because he signed an affidavit that he had forged his wife's signature on the guaranty without her knowledge, and the affidavit resulted in the wife's dismissal from the licensor's suit. Noons v. Holiday Hospitality Franchising, Inc., 307 Ga. App. 351, 705 S.E.2d 166, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 922 (2010), cert. denied, No. S11C0654, 2011 Ga. LEXIS 423 (Ga. May 16, 2011).

Guarantor bound by contract. — As there was some evidence to support a determination that a guarantor did not intend that contractual guaranty obligations were contingent upon another individual signing the guaranty as a co-surety, the failure of such signature was not a change in the contract terms or a release that discharged the guarantor from liability. Fletcher v. C. W. Matthews Contr. Co., 322 Ga. App. 751, 746 S.E.2d 230, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 604 (2013).

Substituting note for account. — By virtue of this section, a guarantor is not released by reason of the mere fact that an account which the guarantor guaranteed has been reduced to a note, when it appears the account was for goods furnished "in pursuance of the contract of guaranty" and it appears that the note represents the same amount and stands in lieu of the account. Kalmon v. Scarboro, 11 Ga. App. 547, 75 S.E. 846, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 101 (1912).

Substitution of a promissory note for an original account indebtedness, with the inclusion in the note of an extended time for payment, a higher face amount reflecting accrued interest, and a provision authorizing the recovery of attorney fees in the event of collection by an attorney, did not result in either a novation of the contract nor an increased risk and did not discharge the guarantors of the prior guaranty agreement from liability. Columbia Nitrogen Corp. v. Mason, 171 Ga. App. 685, 320 S.E.2d 838, 1984 Ga. App. LEXIS 2316 (1984).

Contract simply giving creditor additional security. — Since a second contract simply gave the seller additional security for the payment of the debt, was not inconsistent with the first contract, and did not increase the risk of the surety, the second contract was not a novation of the first within the meaning of former Code 1933, § 103-202 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-7-21) and did not release the surety under the provisions of either § 103-202 or former Code 1933, § 103-203. W.T. Raleigh Co. v. Overstreet, 71 Ga. App. 873, 32 S.E.2d 574, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 249 (1944).

Failure of creditor to record lien. — Since the defendant signed the note as surety, and this fact was known to the plaintiffs when the plaintiffs accepted the note, the failure of the plaintiffs to record the retention of title contract within the time required by law did not discharge the surety. La Boon v. Wright & Locklin, 42 Ga. App. 275, 155 S.E. 770, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 335 (1930).

Grantor whose debt is assumed is surety if creditor assents to assumption. — When A, the mortgagor, was originally bound as principal to B, the mortgagee, and C, the grantee, assumed the debt to B, as between A and C, the latter assumed the position of principal debtor and the former was changed to a mere surety. The consideration for C's assumption of the debt was the property conveyed by A to C. This change of position would not affect B, the mortgagee, if B did not assent to the change. Stapler v. Anderson, 177 Ga. 434, 170 S.E. 498, 1933 Ga. LEXIS 195 (1933).

New obligation from grantee to creditor is recognition of suretyship. — When a grantee in a sales agreement, as part of the consideration thereof, assumes and agrees to pay an outstanding indebtedness against the property conveyed, the grantee takes upon the grantee the burden of the debt secured by the deed, and, as between the grantee and the grantor, the grantee becomes the principal and the latter merely a surety for payment of the debt. While the holder of the security deed is not bound by such an agreement unless the holder consents to it, when, with knowledge of such an agreement, the holder enters into an independent stipulation on the holder's own account with the grantee whereby the holder obtains a new obligation running directly to the holder on the footing that the grantee becomes the principal, then, in the absence of special conditions, the holder is held to have recognized and become bound by the relation of principal and surety existing between the maker of the surety deed and the grantee. Zellner v. Hall, 210 Ga. 504, 80 S.E.2d 787, 1954 Ga. LEXIS 347 (1954).

Extension of mortgage without consent of grantor discharges grantor. — A purchased land subject to a mortgage which A assumed, and later sold the land to B under a like assumption; B sold the land to C, who did not assume; thereafter the mortgagee, at the request of C, extended the maturity of the mortgage and of a portion of the debt, without the knowledge or consent of A. It was held that if the mortgagee had knowledge of the new relationships, the grant of the extension operated to release A from liability. Alropa Corp. v. Snyder, 182 Ga. 305, 185 S.E. 352, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Grant must consent to extension when suretyship was not created by mutual agreement of all parties. — In the absence of a mutual agreement of the grantor, the grantee, and the holder of the encumbrance to that effect, the relation of principal and surety did not exist between the grantee and grantor, and the latter was not discharged from liability by an agreement between the other parties to extend the time of payment. Alsobrook v. Taylor, 181 Ga. 10, 181 S.E. 182, 1935 Ga. LEXIS 8 (1935).

Reduction in interest rate does not release grantor who remains principal. — Change in the rate of interest called for by contract from eight to six percent at the time of the sale of the premises to the grantees, when the grantor remained bound to the holder as principal debtor, would not operate to relieve the grantor from responsibility on the grantor's note and deed to secure debt. Zellner v. Hall, 211 Ga. 572, 87 S.E.2d 395, 1955 Ga. LEXIS 394 (1955).

Creditor's agreement to allow delay in payment is not an additional consideration as the debtor's promise to pay debt already due creates no additional obligation. Sens v. Decatur Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 159 Ga. App. 767, 285 S.E.2d 226, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2800 (1981).

Payment of late charges or reinstatement fees authorized by original contract does not furnish new consideration. Sens v. Decatur Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 159 Ga. App. 767, 285 S.E.2d 226, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2800 (1981).

Promise to pay usury does not discharge surety. — Mere promise to pay usury is void, and the surety is not thereby discharged. Lewis, Leonard & Co. v. Brown, 89 Ga. 115, 14 S.E. 881, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 280 (1892).

Parol contract does not release surety when statute of frauds applies. — When a written contract which must, under the statute of frauds, be in writing has been signed by a surety for one of the contracting parties, the surety will not be released from liability by reason of the making of a subsequent parol contract between the principals which does not become binding by reason of complete performance or otherwise. Willis v. Fields, 132 Ga. 242, 63 S.E. 828, 1909 Ga. LEXIS 72 (1909).

Parol evidence inadmissible to show novation under statute of frauds. — Contract which by law is required to be in writing cannot be changed by parol evidence so as to substitute therefor, by novation, a contract which is also required by law to be in writing. Evidence of a parol agreement is inadmissible to establish the novation of a contract by law required to be in writing. Ver Nooy v. Pitner, 17 Ga. App. 229, 86 S.E. 456, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 314 (1915).

When section should be charged. — When Civil Code 1895, §§ 2968, 2971, and 2972 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-3, 10-7-21, and 10-7-22), defining a contract of suretyship and the rights of a surety, were pertinent to the issues involved, the statutes should have been given in a charge to the jury on timely written request, or even without request. Haigler v. Adams, 5 Ga. App. 637, 63 S.E. 715, 1909 Ga. App. LEXIS 93 (1909).

Instruction proper. — As there was evidence to support a charge on waiver of a guarantor's right to be discharged by an increase of risk or a novation, and it was not an improper statement of the law, there was no cause to grant the guarantor's motion for a new trial. Fletcher v. C. W. Matthews Contr. Co., 322 Ga. App. 751, 746 S.E.2d 230, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 604 (2013).

If the arrangement for the use of a pledged savings account did not deviate from the terms of the subject note as agreed to by plaintiffs, no issue concerning the discharge defenses remained for jury determination, warranting summary judgment. Cohen v. Northside Bank & Trust Co., 207 Ga. App. 536, 428 S.E.2d 354, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 260 (1993).

Extension

Extension of time for payment. — A creditor of a partnership who has notice of the dissolution and of the agreement by the continuing partner to assume the debts of the firm is bound to accord to the retiring partner all the rights of a surety. Hence, if, without the latter's knowledge or consent, the creditor, upon a sufficient consideration, extends the time of payment of the firm indebtedness, the retiring partner is released from the indebtedness, and the creditor must thereafter look only to the firm assets and to the individual assets of the continuing partner. Grigg v. Empire State Chem. Co., 17 Ga. App. 385, 87 S.E. 149, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 441 (1915).

When the creditor had, for a consideration, extended the time of payment of the note signed by the surety, and in addition thereto had calculated, and undertook to and did collect, usurious interest from the principal, and by reason of such payment did indulge the principal debtor and extend the payment of the note, all of which, according to the evidence, was without the knowledge or consent of the surety, the surety was discharged by virtue of this section. Pickett v. Brooke, 24 Ga. App. 651, 101 S.E. 814, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 429 (1920).

If after the maturity of a note the debtor pays to the creditor a sum of money representing advance interest upon the principal at the rate of 8 percent per annum for a definite period of time, in consideration of a promise by the creditor to extend the time of payment of the principal, this agreement, although not in writing, constitutes a valid contract between the parties, and, when made without the consent of the surety upon the note, operates to release and discharge the latter by virtue of this section. Lewis v. Citizens' & S. Bank, 31 Ga. App. 597, 121 S.E. 524, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 83 (1924), aff'd, Citizens' & Southern Bank v. Lewis, 159 Ga. 551, 126 S.E. 392, 1925 Ga. LEXIS 17 (1925).

If a valid and binding extension is granted to the principal debtor without the consent of the surety, the latter is discharged. Alropa Corp. v. Snyder, 182 Ga. 305, 185 S.E. 352, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Period of extension must be fixed by agreement. — In order to discharge a surety by an extension of time to the principal, not only must there be an agreement for the extension, but the proof must show that the indulgence was extended for a definite period fixed by the agreement. Bunn v. Commercial Bank, 98 Ga. 647, 26 S.E. 63, 1896 Ga. LEXIS 114 (1896); Ver Nooy v. Pitner, 17 Ga. App. 229, 86 S.E. 456, 1915 Ga. App. LEXIS 314 (1915).

If a signer of a note was in fact a surety only and the payee, under a valid agreement with the principal and without the consent of the surety, extends the time of maturity as fixed by the obligation, a release of the surety will result, but in order to discharge a surety by an extension of time granted to the principal, not only must there be an agreement for the extension, but the indulgence must be for a definite period fixed by a valid agreement. Duckett v. Martin, 23 Ga. App. 630, 99 S.E. 151, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 245 (1919); Benson v. Henning, 50 Ga. App. 492, 178 S.E. 406, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 188 (1935); Guaranty Mtg. Co. v. National Life Ins. Co., 55 Ga. App. 104, 189 S.E. 603, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 439 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 644, 192 S.E. 298, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 595 (1937).

Taking demand note is not extension of time. — Taking of a demand note was not such an extension of time as would release a guarantor because a demand note is instantly due and the moment delivered can be sued upon. Sulter v. Citizens Bank & Trust Co., 51 Ga. App. 798, 181 S.E. 694, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 476 (1935).

Creditor may rescind extension obtained by fraud. — Under former Code 1882, §§ 2153 and 2154, if the maker of a note induced the payee to extend the time of payment, by fraudulent representations, upon the discovery of such fraud, the creditor can rescind the agreement, but if the creditor failed so to do and retained the benefits of the transaction, this will operate to discharge a surety or accommodation endorser. Burnlap v. Robertson, 75 Ga. 689, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 206 (1885).

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Brock Constr. Co., 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316 (1978), this section was held not to apply to compensated sureties. However, Ga. L. 1981, p. 870, § 1, amended § 10-7-1 so as to abolish the distinction between contracts of suretyship and guaranty. Balboa Ins. Co. v. A.J. Kellos Constr. Co., 247 Ga. 393, 276 S.E.2d 599 (1981). See the Editor's note under §§ 10-7-1 and 10-7-24.

Section codifies general rule. — This section is a codification of the general rule. Timmons v. Butler, Stevens & Co., 138 Ga. 69, 74 S.E. 784, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 192 (1912); Johnson v. Longley, 142 Ga. 814, 83 S.E. 952, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 560 (1914).

Section is of judicial origin, being merely the adoption and incorporation into the Code by legislative approval of the principles previously asserted in Brown v. Executors of Riggins, 3 Ga. 405 (1847), and Jones v. Whitehead, 4 Ga. 397 (1848). Cloud v. Scarborough, 3 Ga. App. 7, 59 S.E. 202, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 536 (1907).

Common law. — Rule stated in this section is a correct statement of the common law applicable to compensated sureties. Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Brock Constr. Co., 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1021 (1978); Balboa Ins. Co. v. A.J. Kellos Constr. Co., 247 Ga. 393, 276 S.E.2d 599, 1981 Ga. LEXIS 727 (1981).

While O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22 does not apply to compensated sureties, the rule stated therein is a correct statement of common law applicable to compensated sureties. West Cash & Carry Bldg. Materials of Savannah, Inc. v. Liberty Mtg. Corp., 160 Ga. App. 323, 287 S.E.2d 320, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 3056 (1981).

Uniform Commercial Code provides for discharge of parties on instruments. — Former Code 1933, § 103-203 was superseded by former Code 1933, § 14-902. Former § 14-902 was, in turn, repealed by Ga. L. 1962, p. 156. The law governing discharge of sureties and other parties on instruments is currently governed by the Uniform Commercial Code provisions. Christian v. Atlanta Army Depot Fed. Credit Union, 151 Ga. App. 403, 260 S.E.2d 533, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2547 (1979).

Law governing the discharge of parties from liability on instruments may be found in present O.C.G.A. § 11-3-601. Westwood Place, Ltd. v. Green, 153 Ga. App. 595, 266 S.E.2d 242, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 1917, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 246 Ga. 287, 271 S.E.2d 194, 1980 Ga. LEXIS 1083 (1980).

Not applicable to liability of debtor to guarantor. — O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-22 and 11-3-606 address liability of a guarantor to a creditor, not the liability of a debtor to the debtor's guarantor, and did not apply to the release of a guarantor's principal from liability on a note. Fabian v. Dykes, 214 Ga. App. 792, 449 S.E.2d 305, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1059 (1994).

Holder of collateral may not split debt. — When a debtor to secure a debt deposits more than one piece of property, whether personal or real, as security in gross for an entire debt, the amount of which is definitely fixed in the contract, it is not within the power of the holder of such collateral, whether the holder is the original creditor or a transferee, to split the debt so as to make it the liability of two persons instead of one, and to be paid in full as to a portion of the original amount with a provision that it shall still retain vigor as to the other debtor. Loftis v. Clay, 164 Ga. 845, 139 S.E. 668, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 288 (1927).

Contract of guaranty not broken by shipments not confirmed by guarantor. — Contract guaranteeing a trade account, which says that "this guarantee does not limit the amount of credit extended the said party, but my liability hereunder is not to exceed $2000.00 at any one time," and "no shipments are to be made except on orders confirmed by me," means that the guarantor will not be liable for any shipment not confirmed by the guarantor, nor for more than $2000.00 at any one time, but that the vendor may extend credit in addition to the amounts guaranteed, and consequently the contract was not broken by the vendor shipping some goods to the vendee without the confirmation of the guarantor. Brown Shoe Co. v. Moore, 53 Ga. App. 159, 184 S.E. 923, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 29 (1936).

Both principal and surety discharged by verdict against surety only. — When the principal and the principal's surety on a promissory note, which is joint and several on its face, are sued in the same action, and verdict and judgment are taken against the surety only, both the principal and the surety are discharged. Fricks v. Rome Mercantile Co., 49 Ga. App. 431, 175 S.E. 807, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 430 (1934).

Guarantor consented to the additional risk. — Sole shareholder of the corporation consented to the additional risk created by the extension of credit beyond $15,000, when the personal guaranty language provided that the guarantor's liability under the guaranty was to be "UNLIMITED", and that the guaranty remained in full force and effect until the guarantor gave written notice to the seller to make no further advances on the security of the guaranty. Builders Dev. Corp. v. Hughes Supply, Inc., 242 Ga. App. 244, 529 S.E.2d 388, 2000 Ga. App. LEXIS 143 (2000).

Risk of guarantor not increased. — Trial court did not err in granting a payee's motion for summary judgment in the payee's action against a maker and a guarantor to collect on a promissory note and to enforce a guaranty because the payee established that there was no issue of material fact as to the defense that its actions in promising to refinance the loan or to extend a line of credit increased the guarantor's risk under the guaranty; a lender's failure to lend additional sums to a principal did not discharge a guarantor from liability for the amount that was actually advanced by the lender. Ga. Invs. Int'l, Inc. v. Branch Banking & Trust Co., 305 Ga. App. 673, 700 S.E.2d 662, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 788 (2010).

Instruction proper. — As there was evidence to support a charge on waiver of a guarantor's right to be discharged by an increase of risk or a novation, and it was not an improper statement of the law, there was no cause to grant the guarantor's motion for a new trial. Fletcher v. C. W. Matthews Contr. Co., 322 Ga. App. 751, 746 S.E.2d 230, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 604 (2013).

Waiver of defense clear. — Trial court properly held a guarantor liable on a promissory note because the construction of the guaranty was a matter of law for the court and the language employed by the parties in the guaranty was plain, unambiguous, and capable of only one reasonable interpretation and the discharge of the surety by increase of risk under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22 was a legal defense which the plain language of the guaranty waived. Hanna v. First Citizens Bank & Trust Co., Inc., 323 Ga. App. 321, 744 S.E.2d 894, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 546 (2013), cert. denied, No. S13C1742, 2013 Ga. LEXIS 986 (Ga. Nov. 18, 2013).

Unpublished decision: After a restaurant operator stopped making rent payments and the plaintiff sued the defendant for rent payments, re-letting costs, accrued interest, and attorneys' fees under a guaranty agreement, it was not error to hold that the defendant waived its defenses to liability pursuant to the terms of the guaranty agreement. ND Props. v. BLRG Rest. Grp., Inc., 649 Fed. Appx. 861, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 8691 (11th Cir. 2016).

Acts Discharging Surety

1. In General

"Creditor" whose acts relieve is opposite party. — Acts of "the creditor," the opposite party, are those that relieve. Perkins v. Terrell, 1 Ga. App. 250, 58 S.E. 133, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 206 (1907).

Acts enumerated are disjunctive. — This section lays down three acts on the part of a creditor which will release a surety: (1) injury to the surety; (2) increasing the risk to the surety; and (3) exposing the surety to greater liability; any one of these three acts will discharge a surety. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Kelly, 78 Ga. App. 10, 50 S.E.2d 113, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 668 (1948).

Injury necessarily involves something in past. — Distinction between the first ground of discharge under this section and the other two is apparent because the injury naturally refers to something in the past from which the injury resulted. Cloud v. Scarborough, 3 Ga. App. 7, 59 S.E. 202, 1907 Ga. App. LEXIS 536 (1907).

Acts of creditor causing injury or increased risk. — Any breach of a contract between a principal debtor and the creditor, made at the time of the making of a loan to the principal debtor, which results in loss or increase of risk to sureties discharges the sureties. Seaboard Loan Corp. v. McCall, 61 Ga. App. 752, 7 S.E.2d 318, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 252 (1940).

Surety is discharged by any act of the creditor which injures the surety or increases the surety's risk. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Any novation without the consent of the surety, or increase in risk, discharges the surety. Dunlap v. Citizens & S. DeKalb Bank, 134 Ga. App. 893, 216 S.E.2d 651, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2210 (1975).

Unconsented increase in risk is an independent ground for discharge of a surety. Upshaw v. First State Bank, 244 Ga. 433, 260 S.E.2d 483, 1979 Ga. LEXIS 1271 (1979).

Consent by guarantor in advance to changes. — Landlord's failure to pursue the landlord's legal remedies as soon as the law allowed and the landlord's refusal to accept the tenant's insufficient rent payments after bringing an eviction action did not affect a guarantor's liability under a lease guaranty; in any event, the guaranty gave the landlord the authority to change the amount, time, or manner of payment of rent and to amend, modify, change, or supplement the lease, and thus, the guarantor consented in advance to changes in the lease. Hood v. Peck, 269 Ga. App. 249, 603 S.E.2d 756, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 1129 (2004).

Alleged guarantor was not discharged from the obligations of a personal guarantee under O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-21 and 10-7-22 because, although a subsequent agreement changed the terms of the original guaranty by granting an extension of time regarding the terms of purchase from a company and acted as a novation, the alleged guarantor consented to those changes and, thus, an additional risk. Staten v. Beaulieu Group, LLC, 278 Ga. App. 179, 628 S.E.2d 614, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 278 (2006).

Trial court did not err in ruling that a promissory note modification was simply a modification of certain terms of the original note instead of a novation that substantially increased a guarantor's personal liability under the guaranty and, therefore, discharged the guarantor because there was no merit to the guarantor's contention that, at the time the guarantor executed the note modification, such modification contemporaneously increased the guarantor's contractual obligations to the creditors; given the unambiguous language of the guaranty, no issue of fact existed as to whether the guarantor was discharged by any increased risk or a purported novation because the guarantor voluntarily and explicitly agreed in advance to the modification of the original note. Core LaVista, LLC v. Cumming, 308 Ga. App. 791, 709 S.E.2d 336, 2011 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (2011).

Exposure to greater liability. — Surety may be discharged when the creditor has so acted as to increase the surety's risk or expose the surety to greater liability than that for which the surety contracted. Parker v. Fidelity Bank, 151 Ga. App. 733, 261 S.E.2d 465, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2773 (1979).

Change must be material. — Surety will not be discharged from the contract unless the change or alteration in the contract is material. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Compensated surety is discharged only if the change is material and causes some injury, loss, or prejudice to it. Brock Constr. Co. v. Houston Gen. Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 860, 243 S.E.2d 83, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1824, aff'd, 241 Ga. 460, 246 S.E.2d 316, 1978 Ga. LEXIS 1021 (1978).

Loss need not be shown. — In a contract of suretyship, it is not essential, in order to prove a release, that the surety allege or prove a loss. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Kelly, 78 Ga. App. 10, 50 S.E.2d 113, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 668 (1948).

Surety is discharged from the terms of the contract even though the surety is not injured by the contract change. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Some acts discharge in whole and some in part only. — While the language of this section is broad, yet there is a distinction between certain things which will operate to discharge a surety in whole and others which will only discharge a surety in part. Johnson v. Longley, 142 Ga. 814, 83 S.E. 952, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 560 (1914).

Collateral injury discharges pro tanto. — If a surety suffers injury arising collaterally and not affecting the contract itself, the discharge is only to the extent of the loss or injury, and, if that is not as great as the liability of the surety, then pro tanto. Armour Fertilizer Works v. Kenney, 161 Ga. 477, 131 S.E. 281, 1926 Ga. LEXIS 287 (1926); Alropa Corp. v. Snyder, 182 Ga. 305, 185 S.E. 352, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Discharge pro tanto despite increased risk. — If the plaintiff sought to recover against the surety on a replevy bond and if, after the bond was executed and the plaintiff obtained a verdict and judgment in the plaintiff's favor establishing a lien upon the cotton (subject of the replevy bond and plaintiff's previous suit in trover), the plaintiff took possession of the cotton, the surety was not discharged from the entire indebtedness but was discharged only in the amount of the value of the cotton, even though this act of the plaintiff may have increased the risk of the surety. Trice v. Cabero, 41 Ga. App. 816, 155 S.E. 54, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 1106 (1930).

Act of creditor affecting contract itself. — Principle regarding a release pro tanto has no relevancy when the act of the creditor affected the contract itself. Alropa Corp. v. Snyder, 182 Ga. 305, 185 S.E. 352, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Accommodation party must show payee knew payee was surety. — Promissory note signed by two persons as apparent principal makers, reciting, "We promise to pay," etc., when there is nothing to indicate that they are not principal makers, is prima facie a joint note; however, it may be shown by parol, in an action by the payee, that one of the persons so signing the note as an apparent maker was in truth a surety for the other signer, rather than a coprincipal, and when the one thus claiming suretyship claims a discharge or release by reason of some act increasing one's risk as surety, one must go further and show that the payee knew one was a surety at the time of the act in question. Benson v. Henning, 50 Ga. App. 492, 178 S.E. 406, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 188 (1935).

Act damaging surety's heirs held not to increase surety's risk. — Although the plaintiff creditor, through the plaintiff's agent, may have induced the other heirs at law of the intestate surety to purchase the share of the principal debtor, also an heir at law, in the estate of the intestate, and pay the plaintiff therefor, the agent's actions could not have operated to increase the risk of the surety on the note, although it may have resulted in damage to the other heirs at law who had purchased such share. Stephens v. Stone, 46 Ga. App. 293, 167 S.E. 545, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 129 (1932).

Act or omission authorized by law does not discharge surety. — Neither the omission by the creditor of some act not specially enjoined by law nor the commission of some act expressly authorized by law which tends to increase the risk of the security will operate as a discharge. Stewart v. Barrow, 55 Ga. 664, 1876 Ga. LEXIS 452 (1876).

Consent may be given in advance to act which otherwise would discharge surety. — Surety or guarantor may consent in advance to a course of conduct which would otherwise result in the surety's discharge. Dunlap v. Citizens & S. DeKalb Bank, 134 Ga. App. 893, 216 S.E.2d 651, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2210 (1975).

When the language of a guaranty specifically contemplated an increase in the obligor's debt and the creation of new obligations, and included waivers of any "legal or equitable discharge" and of any defense based upon an increase in risk, the protections of O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-21 and 10-7-22 were waived. Underwood v. NationsBanc Real Estate Serv., Inc., 221 Ga. App. 351, 471 S.E.2d 291, 1996 Ga. App. LEXIS 482 (1996).

By assenting in advance to a waiver of all legal and equitable defenses, the guarantor was foreclosed from asserting that the guarantor was discharged under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-21 or O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22. Ramirez v. Golden, 223 Ga. App. 610, 478 S.E.2d 430, 1996 Ga. App. LEXIS 1241 (1996).

Contract giving additional security does not discharge surety. — When a second contract simply gave the seller additional security for the payment of the debt, was not inconsistent with the first contract, and did not increase the risk of the surety, the second contract was not a novation of the first within the meaning of former Code 1933, § 103-202 and did not release the surety under either § 103-202 or former Code 1933, § 103-203. W.T. Raleigh Co. v. Overstreet, 71 Ga. App. 873, 32 S.E.2d 574, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 249 (1944).

Extension of additional credit. — Lender's extension of additional credit to the principal obligor did not affect the guarantor's liability under the guaranty since the amount sought by the lender from the guarantor did not exceed the limit in the note secured by the guaranty. Evans v. Merrill Lynch Bus. Fin. Servs., Inc., 213 Ga. App. 808, 446 S.E.2d 215, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 755 (1994), cert. denied, No. S94C1690, 1994 Ga. LEXIS 1123 (Ga. Oct. 17, 1994).

Creditor's nonaction will not discharge surety unless collateral lost, consideration paid, or notice given. — Mere nonaction by the creditor will not release the surety, unless such nonaction made unproductive some collateral surety or was based upon a consideration paid by the principal debtor to the creditor, or the creditor was notified under former Code 1933, § 103-205 to collect the debt. Lumsden v. Leonard, 55 Ga. 374, 1876 Ga. LEXIS 411 (1876); Jordan v. F & M Bank, 5 Ga. App. 244, 62

S.E. 1024, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 81 (1908); Chapman v. Miller, 40 Ga. App. 138, 149 S.E. 70, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 48 (1929).

Some positive act must be done by the creditor, either before or after judgment, which injures the surety in some way; mere failure or negligence on the part of the creditor will not relieve the surety; the exceptions to this general rule will be found to be where the creditor omits to do something by which some collateral security in the creditor's hands is made unproductive or when the creditor is notified under former Civil Code 1910, § 3546 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-7-24) to proceed and the creditor fails or refuses. McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917).

Creditor's loan extensions. — Because creditor bank's loan extensions increased guarantor's risk of exposure to greater liability due to the marked diminution of the resale value of collateralled stock, guarantor's obligation was accordingly discharged under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22. Cantrell v. First Tenn. Nat'l Bank Ass'n, 207 Ga. App. 458, 428 S.E.2d 368, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 237 (1993).

Surety not discharged by failure to apply judicial sale proceeds to senior execution. — That the plaintiff in the senior execution, after obtaining in the justice's court a judgment on the first bond, did not seek to have the proceeds of the sale of the property under the junior execution applied to the senior execution or object to the application of such proceeds to the junior execution would not afford a sufficient reason for discharging the surety on the trial of an appeal entered to the judgment rendered against the surety and the surety's principal in the magistrate's court. Reese v. Worsham & Co., 110 Ga. 449, 35 S.E. 680, 1900 Ga. LEXIS 458 (1900).

Failure of creditor to prosecute claim against surety's estate. — Since the plaintiff creditor failed to apprise the heirs at law of the deceased surety of the fact that the plaintiff held an unpaid note, and to prosecute the claim against the then unrepresented estate, even though the plaintiff may have known that pending such delay the personal property of the intestate had been turned over to the principal debtor and was being wasted by the debtor, the plaintiff's actions amounted to mere inaction on the plaintiff's part and were not such a positive act causing injury to the surety as would operate as a release. Stephens v. Stone, 46 Ga. App. 293, 167 S.E. 545, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 129 (1932).

No provision of law requires that a surety be notified of the principal debtor's default. Barnett v. Leasing Int'l, Inc., 151 Ga. App. 715, 261 S.E.2d 452, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2764 (1979).

Failing to give notice of default will not discharge surety. — When a contract for a future sale of goods is signed by the prospective vendor as creditor and the prospective purchaser as principal debtor and by sureties for such purchaser, whereby the obligation of continuing suretyship is imposed upon the sureties, guaranteeing payment for goods which the contract provides shall be furnished from time to time by the prospective vendor to the prospective purchaser, and the contract provides for weekly settlements for the goods furnished under the contract, but does not require that notice of any default in weekly payments shall be given by the creditor to the sureties, the securities are not released from liability to the creditor, or confined to the first weekly default, although such sureties are given no notice by the creditor of the original default and are unaware thereof. Georgian Co. v. Jones, 154 Ga. 762, 115 S.E. 490, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 384 (1923).

Failure to keep the collateral security insured amounts to an increase in risk which will discharge the surety to the extent that the surety is injured thereby. Evans v. American Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 116 Ga. App. 468, 157 S.E.2d 816, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 854 (1967).

Failure of the bank, knowing the purchaser's insolvency, either to obtain insurance at the purchaser's expense or to notify the surety of the cancellation materially increased the risk and, to the extent of the insurance involved, discharged the surety from liability. Evans v. American

Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 116 Ga. App. 468, 157 S.E.2d 816, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 854 (1967).

Breach of agreement to procure life insurance discharges damaged surety. — Even if an agreement by the creditor to procure insurance on the life of the maker of a note was an agreement subsequent to the making and endorsing of the note and could be classified as a collateral agreement so as to bring the agreement without the rule that a surety is discharged by a breach thereof, the principle that a surety would be discharged to the extent of actual damage would apply, and in such case the damage would be sufficient to discharge the obligation. Seaboard Loan Corp. v. McCall, 61 Ga. App. 752, 7 S.E.2d 318, 1940 Ga. App. LEXIS 252 (1940).

Allowing life insurance not made condition of contract to lapse. — When life insurance policy was allowed to lapse and the guarantor by not being informed in no manner increased the guarantor's risk, neither guarantor nor the makers having made the fact of life insurance a condition of the contract, the surety may not be discharged. Parker v. Fidelity Bank, 151 Ga. App. 733, 261 S.E.2d 465, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2773 (1979).

Change in terms of payment to contractor discharges surety. — Change by the obligee and principal in the terms of payments to the contractor from that provided in the building contract operates to discharge the surety. Brunswick Nursing & Convalescent Ctr., Inc. v. Great Am. Ins. Co., 308 F. Supp. 297, 1970 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13292 (S.D. Ga. 1970).

Contractor's failure to pay subcontractor does not discharge subcontractor's surety. — Main contractor's breach of the contractor's contract with the subcontractor to pay the subcontractor for materials used in construction of the hospital was not such an increase of the risk of the surety on the subcontractor's bond, which was conditioned in part to pay all persons having contracts directly with the subcontractor for materials, as to discharge the surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Pittman ex rel. Georgia Marble Co., 52 Ga. App. 394, 183 S.E. 572, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 647 (1936).

Principal's misrepresentations increasing risk are defense to surety. — Misrepresentations as to the shape and quality of the land by principal, inducing surety to sign a note and materially increasing the risk, constitute a good defense. Satterfield v. Spier, 114 Ga. 127, 39 S.E. 930, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 603 (1901).

If a false representation of an existing fact to the effect that a person had signed as surety to a contract induced another to sign as surety, such misrepresentation increased the risk and exposed to greater liability the person who signed by reason of such false representation, and it is not necessary to prove loss to avoid the contract. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Kelly, 78 Ga. App. 10, 50 S.E.2d 113, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 668 (1948).

Allegation to the effect that a surety was induced to sign by a false representation that a surety whose name appeared as such had already signed the contract of suretyship is not an effort to vary the terms of a written contract. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Kelly, 78 Ga. App. 10, 50 S.E.2d 113, 1948 Ga. App. LEXIS 668 (1948).

Substitution of a promissory note for an original account indebtedness, with the inclusion in the note of an extended time for payment, a higher face amount reflecting accrued interest, and a provision authorizing the recovery of attorney fees in the event of collection by an attorney, did not result in either a novation of the contract nor an increased risk and did not discharge the guarantors of the prior guaranty agreement from liability. Columbia Nitrogen Corp. v. Mason, 171 Ga. App. 685, 320 S.E.2d 838, 1984 Ga. App. LEXIS 2316 (1984).

Foreclosure of mortgage. — Creditor had every right under the creditor's first and second preferred ship mortgages to bring an in rem foreclosure action against a fishing vessel, the subject of the loan proceeds. When it did so, there was no ground for discharge under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22, even though the act allegedly increased the guarantors' risk. United States v. Blue Dolphin Assocs., 620 F. Supp. 463, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14708 (S.D. Ga. 1985).

Increased rate of interest. — Comaker of the third series of renewal notes was discharged following subsequent renewals at an increased rate of interest, since the provisions of the note did not cover subsequent modifications of the interest rate and the comaker had not signed the subsequent notes. Bank of Terrell v. Webb, 177 Ga. App. 715, 341 S.E.2d 258, 1986 Ga. App. LEXIS 1526 (1986).

No discharge of debt due to bad faith or fraud. — See Delta Diversified, Inc. v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 171 Ga. App. 625, 320 S.E.2d 767, 1984 Ga. App. LEXIS 2303 (1984).

When the arrangement for the use of a pledged savings account did not deviate from the terms of the subject note as agreed to by the plaintiffs, no issue concerning the discharge defenses remained for jury determination, warranting summary judgment. Cohen v. Northside Bank & Trust Co., 207 Ga. App. 536, 428 S.E.2d 354, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 260 (1993).

No evidence of increased risk meant no discharge of surety. — Given that the broad language of a guaranty obligated the guarantor to the bank, absolutely and unconditionally guaranteeing the payment and performance of each and every debt that the debtor would owe, and because no issue of fact existed as to whether the guarantor was discharged by any increased risk or any purported novation, the guarantor remained obligated under the guaranty to the bank. Fielbon Dev. Co. v. Colony Bank, 290 Ga. App. 847, 660 S.E.2d 801, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 376 (2008).

Guarantor argued that a bank's settlements with two other guarantors increased the guarantor's risk, discharging the guarantor under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22; however, the language of the guaranty unconditionally obligated the guarantor individually to pay the entire amount of the borrower's indebtedness, and the language permitted the bank to enter into settlements with the others. Wooden v. Synovus Bank, 323 Ga. App. 794, 748 S.E.2d 275, 2013 Ga. App. LEXIS 750 (2013).

No material breach as surety not exposed to greater liability. — Creditor did not commit a material breach of a guaranty by not providing monthly billings to the surety as the surety was not exposed to greater liability under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-22 as the guaranty capped the surety's liability at $30,000. General Steel, Inc. v. Delta Bldg. Sys., 297 Ga. App. 136, 676 S.E.2d 451, 2009 Ga. App. LEXIS 392 (2009).

2. Loss of Collateral

Loss of collateral discharges surety to extent of injury. — When a creditor has control of liens, securities, or any other means whereby a creditor might satisfy the debt and parts with them, or by the creditor's negligence allows them to become lost or depreciated in value, thus cutting off the surety from the surety's right to be subrogated to such liens, etc., the surety is discharged to the extent of the surety's injury by the loss of such liens. Stewart v. Barrow, 55 Ga. 664, 1876 Ga. LEXIS 452 (1876); Poullain v. Brown, 80 Ga. 27, 5 S.E. 107, 1887 Ga. LEXIS 315 (1887); Lewis v. Armstrong, 80 Ga. 402, 7 S.E. 114, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 149 (1888).

Failure to record lien in time. — Failure of a creditor to preserve a lien which the creditor had on property of the principal debtor discharges a surety. For instance, where a creditor failed to record a mortgage within the time prescribed, it was held to operate as a discharge of the surety. Stevens v. Zachary, 27 Ga. 427, 1859 Ga. LEXIS 92 (1859); Atlanta Nat'l Bank v. Douglass, 51 Ga. 205, 1874 Ga. LEXIS 89 (1874); Bledsoe v. Ivey, 27 Ga. App. 235, 107 S.E. 615, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 793 (1921); Seymour v. Bank of Thomasville, 157 Ga. 99, 121 S.E. 578, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 371 (1923).

When the defendant has signed the note as surety, and this fact was known to the plaintiffs when plaintiffs accepted the note, the failure of the plaintiffs to record the retention of title contract within the time required by law did not discharge the surety. La Boon v. Wright & Locklin, 42

Filing claim in bankruptcy on judgment without reserving lien. — Under former Code 1873, §§ 2153 and 2154 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-21 and 10-7-22), proof of debt in the bankruptcy court by the judgment creditor against the principal without an express reservation of the lien of the judgment will discharge the lien of the judgment, and the accommodation endorser or surety is discharged, but only to the extent of the injury received. Jones v. Hawkins, 60 Ga. 52, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 370 (1878) (no damage shown and surety counsel for principal in bankruptcy proceedings).

Having execution returned without levy. — If, when the execution is issued, it becomes a valid lien on property of the principal without any levy being made, and such lien is lost in consequence of the return of the execution without a levy by procurement of the creditor, and the surety is thereby injured, the surety is discharged pro tanto. This is in accord with justice and common sense and is within the spirit, if not the very letter, of this section. Griffeth v. Moss & Co., 94 Ga. 199, 21 S.E. 463, 1894 Ga. LEXIS 45 (1894).

Failing to enter judgment after verdict. — When a plaintiff, at a given term of the court, took a verdict against a principal and sureties but failed for several terms to enter a judgment thereon, the sureties were discharged. Hayes v. Little, 52 Ga. 555, 1874 Ga. LEXIS 346 (1874); Hall v. Pratt, 103 Ga. 255, 29 S.E. 764, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1898).

Releasing notes taken as collateral. — When, in a suit on a note against two defendants as apparent joint makers, one of the defendants had signed the note as surety only, which fact was known to the plaintiff, the note sued on was a balance of a larger note, at the time of making the original note there was delivered to the plaintiff bank by the principal, as collateral security, described notes aggregating an amount in excess of the amount of the note sued on, and the plaintiff bank released the collateral notes to the principal without the knowledge or consent of the defendant surety, who did not know that the plaintiff bank had released the collateral notes when the defendant signed the renewal note sued on, by reason of these facts the defendant surety has been injured and the defendant's risk increased so that the defendant is discharged from all liability on the note sued on. Kennedy v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank, 47 Ga. App. 104, 169 S.E. 769, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 304 (1933).

Failing to enter judgment after default. — An accommodation endorser of a promissory note, sued jointly with the maker thereof, was not discharged merely because the plaintiff, after an entry of "default" had been made upon the judge's docket, permitted one or more terms to elapse before entering up a final judgment in the case. Hall v. Pratt, 103 Ga. 255, 29 S.E. 764, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 104 (1898).

Failing to issue execution. — In the absence of notice to proceed, the surety is not discharged by failure to issue execution on a judgment obtained against the principal. Crawford v. Gaulden, 33 Ga. 173, 1862 Ga. LEXIS 10 (1862); Hall v. Langford, 18 Ga. App. 73, 88 S.E. 918, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 128 (1916).

Failing to docket execution in time. — Omission to enter execution on general docket in ten days did not effect discharge of surety. Williams v. Kennedy, 134 Ga. 339, 67 S.E. 821, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 192 (1910).

Failing to proceed against collateral. — Right of a payee of a note to resort to the sureties thereon is not lost because of the payee's failure to sell personal property held as collateral immediately on the maturity of the note. Timmons v. Butler, Stevens & Co., 138 Ga. 69, 74 S.E. 784, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 192 (1912).

Mere failure of the payee of a note, who is the holder thereof, to institute suit to recover on the note against one of the sureties thereon, before the expiration of the period of limitation in which suit must be brought against this surety, does not amount to a release by the payee of the obligation to him of a cosurety on the note whose obligation is not barred by the statute of limitations, when the payee's act in refraining from instituting the suit as indicated was not procured by or consented or agreed to by the latter surety. Scott v. Gaulding, 187 Ga. 751, 2 S.E.2d 69, 1939 Ga. LEXIS 454 (1939).

When no agreement to condition the surety's obligation upon the creditor's enforcement of security is found, the courts have not conditioned the creditor's right of recovery from the surety on the creditor's first using any security the creditor may have to satisfy or reduce the creditor's claim. Trust Inv. & Dev. Co. v. First Ga. Bank, 238 Ga. 309, 232 S.E.2d 828, 1977 Ga. LEXIS 1010 (1977).

Mere failure of a creditor to proceed against collateral will not operate to discharge a surety. Pippin v. Brigadier Indus. Corp., 150 Ga. App. 401, 258 S.E.2d 18, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2331 (1979).

Accepting payment from principal voidable in bankruptcy. — By virtue of this section, the mere fact that the holder of a note in good faith accepts payment thereof from the maker at a time when the maker is insolvent, so that such payment is voidable in the event of the maker's bankruptcy and is thereafter actually voided by the trustee or voluntarily surrendered to the trustee by the holder, will not discharge the note or release a surety thereon. Higdon v. Bell, 25 Ga. App. 54, 102 S.E. 546, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 592 (1920) (See 11 U.S.C. § 547(b)).

Dismissing levy discharges surety. — If the fi. fa. was levied upon the property of the principal defendant and the levy dismissed by the creditor, whereby injury resulted to the surety, it is just that such act inure to the surety's discharge. Brown v. Executors of Riggins, 3 Ga. 405, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 120 (1847); Rawson v. Gregory, 59 Ga. 733, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 382 (1877).

Dismissal of levy on realty. — The dismissal of a levy on the real property of the principal cannot hurt or discharge the surety, for the lien of the judgment on the property being realty cannot be removed, and the lien of the judgment is one to which the surety becomes entitled the moment the surety pays the debt. Wyley v. Stanford, 22 Ga. 385, 1857 Ga. LEXIS 165 (1857); Manry v. Shepperd, 57 Ga. 68, 1876 Ga. LEXIS 24 (1876).

Placing property out of reach discharges surety pro tanto. — Removal of principal's property outside the county and beyond reach of judgment by the plaintiffs in fi. fa. discharges the surety to the extent of the property removed. Dasher v. Brannen & Bro., 29 Ga. App. 253, 116 S.E. 206, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 212 (1922).

Enforcement against joint debtors. — Joint debtors have a right of contribution which may be enforced like that of cosureties, and if the creditor so acted as to place the property of one of the joint debtors beyond the reach of the other, the creditor would be responsible to the latter for the injury done by such wrongful diversion; and this injury may be set up in a claim case, as a discharge, at least to the extent of the damage done, as well as by an action for damages. Green v. Mann, 76 Ga. 246, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 9 (1886).

Removal by principal when creditor receives no consideration. — Removal of personal property from one county in the state to another by the principal judgment debtor will not discharge the surety, though permitted by the plaintiff without action on the plaintiff's part and without the surety's consent, and though the property would be sufficient to satisfy the fi. fa., no consideration being paid to the plaintiff-creditor by the principal debtor. Lumsden v. Leonard, 55 Ga. 374, 1876 Ga. LEXIS 411 (1876).

Delivery of property awarded to trustee does not discharge sureties. — When in an equity cause between the remaindermen and the trustee certain property was awarded to the latter and it was not sought to hold the trustee responsible therefor, the delivery of such property to the trustee did not work a discharge to the sureties, and an allegation to that effect was properly stricken. Haddock v. Perham, 70 Ga. 572, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 374 (1883).

When a creditor transferred possession of some collateral to a codebtor, and express language of a guaranty agreement prevented the surety from subrogation until the creditor received full payment of all liabilities, the surety could not be discharged on the claim that the surety's rights to subrogation had been impaired. In re Broomfield, 35 B.R. 459, 1983 Bankr. LEXIS 5383 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 1983).

3. Forbearance to Sue and Dismissal of Suit

Failure to sue does not discharge surety. — A mere failure to sue on a bond, required by the court to stay the collection of a judgment, as soon as the law allows or the negligence of the obligee to prosecute with vigor the obligee's legal remedies, unless for a consideration, will not release the surety. Harris v. Woodard, 142 Ga. 297, 82 S.E. 902, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 747 (1914).

Forbearance towards principal. — When indulgence was granted to the acceptors in consideration of the payment of 18 percent interest and the acceptors became insolvent, the security was thereby released. Parmelee v. Williams, 72 Ga. 42, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 10 (1883).

If the consequence of forbearance is injury to the surety, the surety is discharged. Brown v. Executors of Riggins, 3 Ga. 405, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 120 (1847).

Mere forbearance towards the principal does not discharge the surety. Hall v. Langford, 18 Ga. App. 73, 88 S.E. 918, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 128 (1916); McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917); Hearn v. Durrence, 33 Ga. App. 296, 125 S.E. 794, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 846 (1924).

Failure to sue for consideration releases the surety. Camp v. Howell, 37 Ga. 312, 1867 Ga. LEXIS 163 (1867) (new note for usurious portion of interest given and paid in part).

When subsequent to the sale by a borrower of the property securing its loan evidenced by a note and the assumption of the indebtedness by the purchaser, which assumption was consented to by the holder of the note, the latter grants a six-month extension to the purchaser with the knowledge, consent, or ratification of either of the signers of the note in consideration of the purchaser paying (apparently after maturity) $500.00 on the note and thereafter 6 percent calculated upon the original amount of the note rather than 8 percent as specified in the note, on the balance, the alleged contract between the holder and the subsequent purchaser, not being supported by a consideration, would not be binding on the holder, and the signers, who, it is alleged had become sureties under the agreement, would not be released. Guaranty Mtg. Co. v. National Life Ins. Co., 55 Ga. App. 104, 189 S.E. 603, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 439 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 644, 192 S.E. 298, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 595 (1937).

Extension of time for definite period. — If the defendant is in fact a surety only and the payee, under a valid agreement with the principal and without the consent of the surety, extends the time of maturity as fixed by the obligation, a release of the defendant will result; but in order to discharge a surety by an extension of time granted to the principal, not only must there be an agreement for the extension, but the indulgence must be for a definite period fixed by a valid agreement. Duckett v. Martin, 23 Ga. App. 630, 99 S.E. 151, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 245 (1919); Benson v. Henning, 50 Ga. App. 492, 178 S.E. 406, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 188 (1935); Guaranty Mtg. Co. v. National Life Ins. Co., 55 Ga. App. 104, 189 S.E. 603, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 439 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 644, 192 S.E. 298, 1937 Ga. LEXIS 595 (1937).

Surety's reliance on promise to proceed against principal. — Mere promise by the holder of a promissory note, made to a surety thereon without consideration, to the effect that the creditor would proceed forthwith against the principal debtor, standing alone, would be a nudum pactum and would have no effect upon the obligation of the surety. If, however, the surety is induced by such an assurance to forego any means of indemnity or protection, an estoppel will arise to the extent of the resulting loss, and the surety will be discharged to that extent. Johnson v. Longley, 142 Ga. 814, 83 S.E. 952, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 560 (1914).

Agreeing to increase in interest, with note for increase. — When the holder of a promissory note on which the interest was 7 percent, without the assent of the surety, agreed with the principal to wait 12 months in consideration of the promise of 16 percent interest and for the 9 percent usurious interest took a new note with security, a portion of which usurious note was paid, and the time was given accordingly, the surety to the original note was discharged. Camp v. Howell, 37 Ga. 312, 1867 Ga. LEXIS 163 (1867).

Debtor's promise to pay required interest during forbearance is not consideration. — Promise by the principal debtor to pay interest upon the debt during the time of forbearance forms no consideration for such forbearance when the debtor is already bound to pay such interest. Harrell v. Kutz & Co., 22 Ga. App. 235, 95 S.E. 717, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 264 (1918).

Extension of time by mortgagee. — When the mortgagee has in fact assented to an assumption by the grantee to pay the mortgage and thus has recognized the relation of principal and surety between such a mortgagor and the grantee, a new agreement made by the mortgagee with the grantee who purchased the property and assumed the debt, extending the time of payment of the debt, if valid and made on a sufficient consideration, will discharge the original mortgagor from personal liability, unless the extension agreement is made with the consent of the mortgagor; but such an implied promise of suretyship with the incident rights of a surety to discharge does not arise when a purchase is made merely subject to the outstanding lien of a mortgage. Nelson v. National Life & Accident Ins. Co., 51 Ga. App. 684, 181 S.E. 202, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 443 (1935).

When A purchased land subject to a mortgage which A assumed and later sold the land to B under a like assumption; B sold the land to C, who did not assume; thereafter the mortgagee, at the request of C, extended the maturity of the mortgage and of a portion of the debt, without the knowledge or consent of A, it was held that if the mortgagee had knowledge of the new relationships, the grant of the extension operated to release A from liability. Alropa Corp. v. Snyder, 182 Ga. 305, 185 S.E. 352, 1936 Ga. LEXIS 339 (1936).

Whene B conveys lands to C in consideration of the assumption by C of the obligation due to A, the relationship between B and C is that of principal and surety, but so far as A is concerned, such relationship between B and C is not effective as to A unless A assents to and accepts it; but after such assent by A, an extension of time of payment granted to C without the knowledge or consent of B releases B from B's obligation to A. Federal Land Bank v. Conger, 55 Ga. App. 11, 189 S.E. 567, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 419 (1936).

Extension of time not shown. — When whether or not the defendant was a principal, endorser, or surety, there was no showing that the plaintiff entered an agreement with the principal, without the consent of the alleged surety, to extend the time of maturity as fixed by the obligation so as to release the surety, no issue of fact was created and the trial court did not err in granting a partial summary judgment in that there was no discharge of defendant's liability by any novation or increase of the risk. Barnett v. Leasing Int'l, Inc., 151 Ga. App. 715, 261 S.E.2d 452, 1979 Ga. App. LEXIS 2764 (1979).

Surety to pay judgment not discharged although judgment becomes dormant. — If a principal and surety executed a bond required by the court to stay the collection of a judgment, conditioned to pay that judgment in a certain contingency, in a suit brought thereon, seven years after the happening of such contingency, it is no defense to the surety that the judgment may have become dormant in the meantime. Harris v. Woodard, 142 Ga. 297, 82 S.E. 902, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 747 (1914).

If no relationship of principal and surety exists between B and C, the voluntary assumption by C of the debt owed by B to A does not make C the principal so far as A is concerned, nor does an extension of time granted to C release B from B's liability to A. Federal Land Bank v. Conger, 55 Ga. App. 11, 189 S.E. 567, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 419 (1936).

Consideration for forbearance or notice to sue must be alleged. — Defense that the plaintiff was guilty of laches, in that the plaintiff did not bring suit earlier and thereby increased the risk of the surety, was properly stricken because there was no allegation that there was a consideration for the postponement nor an averment that the security had given a written notice to sue. Baumgartner v. McKinnon, 10 Ga. App. 219, 73 S.E. 519, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 439 (1912).

Surety not released by failure to prove debt in bankruptcy. — As this section provides nonaction or failure to sue will not release a surety, the failure or refusal of the creditor to prove the creditor's debt in bankruptcy against the principal debtor will not discharge the surety. Jordan v. F & M Bank, 5 Ga. App. 244, 62 S.E. 1024, 1908 Ga. App. LEXIS 81 (1908); Higdon v. Bell, 25 Ga. App. 54, 102 S.E. 546, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 592 (1920).

Surety on appeal bond is discharged by dismissal of suit. — Risk of a surety on an appeal bond is increased and the surety is therefore discharged when the suit is dismissed by the creditor or by the court at the creditor's instance. Armstrong v. Lewis, 61 Ga. 680, 1878 Ga. LEXIS 210 (1878).

Dismissal of suit as to cosurety discharges other. — Dismissal as to one surety of a suit already brought, for a consideration paid by the surety, and not bringing any further action against the surety, constituted such conduct as released the other surety on the administrator's bond. Wilkinson v. Conley, 133 Ga. 518, 66 S.E. 372, 1909 Ga. LEXIS 263 (1909).

Surety is not discharged by dismissal as to principal. — When a joint action is brought against the principal and the surety on a joint and several promissory note, and the plaintiff, by amendment, voluntarily dismisses the plaintiff's action against the principal, the surety is not thereby ipso facto discharged from liability. McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917).

When a joint action is brought against a principal and a surety and the plaintiff by amendment voluntarily dismisses the plaintiff's action against the principal, the surety is not thereby ipso facto discharged from liability. Griffin v. H.C. Whitmer Co., 57 Ga. App. 203, 194 S.E. 895, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 530 (1938).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Effect of failure to give notice of principal's default. — Unless the creditor or trustee grants an indulgence based upon a consideration paid by a warehouseman or unless the bond specifies that immediate notice of any known breach by the warehouseman be given, failure of the Commissioner of Agriculture as trustee for the obligees to give such notice will not release the surety. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-423.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Only person making tender is discharged. — This section provides only for the discharge of the person whose tender was refused. Hall v. First Nat'l Bank, 145 Ga. App. 267, 243 S.E.2d 569, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1944 (1978).

Burden upon surety to prove tender and demand. — When, to an action by the former state superintendent of banks, the surety pleaded that the surety was discharged by a refusal of a tender and demand allowable under this section, the burden was upon the surety to prove that the tender and demand had been made either to the superintendent of banks or to one duly authorized by the surety, as provided by statute, to make collections for the bank. Bennett v. Simmons, 30 Ga. App. 529, 118 S.E. 493, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 522 (1923).

Transfer of security proper. — Summary judgment for a bank was properly entered after the bank demanded that a guarantor pay off an outstanding Release of payee from warranty constituting a part of the consideration for a note as releasing a surety, 7 A.L.R. 1605.

Incapacity of principal to contract as affecting liability of guarantor or surety, 24 A.L.R. 838; 43 A.L.R. 589.

Application of payments as between debts for which a surety or guarantor is bound and those for which he is not, 57 A.L.R.2d 855.

10-7-24. Refusal to sue principal after notice by surety as discharge.

Any surety, guarantor, or endorser, at any time after the debt on which he or she is liable becomes due, may give notice in writing to the creditor, his or her agent, or any person having possession or control of the obligation, to proceed to collect the debt from the principal or any one of the several principals liable therefor; and, if the creditor or holder refuses or fails to commence an action for the space of three months after such notice (the principal being within the jurisdiction of this state), the endorser, guarantor, or surety giving the notice, as well as all subsequent endorsers and all cosureties, shall be discharged. To comply with the requirements of this Code section, the notice must specifically state that the creditor loses his or her rights to pursue the surety, guarantor, or endorser, as well as any cosureties, coguarantors, or endorsers, if the creditor does not commence legal action within three months after receiving the notice. Further, any notice which does not state the county in which the principal resides shall not be considered to be in compliance with the requirements of this Code section.

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In Balboa Ins. Co. v. A.J. Kellos Constr. Co., 247 Ga. 393, 276 S.E.2d 599 (1981), it was held that this Code section applied to compensated sureties. However, Ga. L. 1981, p. 870, § 1, amends O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1 so as to abolish the distinction between contracts of suretyship and guaranty. See the Editor's note to § 10-7-1.

Section is in derogation of common law and strictly construed. — This section was made in derogation of the common-law rule upon this subject and introduced a new principle of commercial law. It operates as a restriction upon the rights of the holder and should be strictly construed. Howard v. Brown, 3 Ga. 523, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1847).

The discharge under this section is statutory, and a strict compliance with the requirements of this section by one claiming benefit under the statute is mandatory. Glasser v. Decatur Lumber & Supply Co., 95 Ga. App. 665, 99 S.E.2d 330, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 893 (1957).

Section affects remedy only. — This section does not affect either the nature, obligation, construction, or validity of the contract, but goes only to the remedy. Sally v. Bank of Union, 150 Ga. 281, 103 S.E. 460, 1920 Ga. LEXIS 140 (1920); Overstreet v. W.T. Rawleigh Co., 75 Ga. App. 483, 43 S.E.2d 774, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 566 (1947).

Section is like limitation of actions. — This section operates as the extinguishment of a remedy, and not of a right, and is therefore in the nature of a limitation of actions. Vanzant, Jones & Co. v. Arnold, Hamilton & Johnson, 31 Ga. 210, 1860 Ga. LEXIS 316 (1860); Sally v. Bank of Union, 150 Ga. 281, 103 S.E. 460, 1920 Ga. LEXIS 140 (1920); Overstreet v. W.T. Rawleigh Co., 75 Ga. App. 483, 43 S.E.2d 774, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 566 (1947); Hearn v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 154 Ga. App. 686, 269 S.E.2d 486, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2342 (1980).

Any conflict between this section and the UCC would be controlled by the UCC as the later expression of the legislature. Gunter v. True, 203 Ga. App. 330, 416 S.E.2d 768, 1992 Ga. App. LEXIS 406 (1992), cert. denied, No. S92C0807, 1992 Ga. LEXIS 449 (Ga. June 4, 1992).

Compensated as well as uncompensated sureties are governed by the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 10-7-24. Morrison Assurance Co. v. Preston Carroll Co., 254 Ga. 608, 331 S.E.2d 520, 1985 Ga. LEXIS 752 (1985), cert. denied, 474 U.S. 1060, 106 S. Ct. 805, 88 L. Ed. 2d 781, 1986 U.S. LEXIS 2382 (1986).

Purpose of section. — Object of this section was for the benefit and protection of securities. Bank of St. Marys v. Mumford & Tyson, 6 Ga. 44, 1849 Ga. LEXIS 7 (1849).

Essential purpose of O.C.G.A. § 10-7-24 is to accord sureties a mechanism to compel creditors to sue the principal debtor upon accrual of the creditor's cause of action. A.J. Kellos Constr. Co. v. Balboa Ins. Co., 661 F.2d 402, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 15993 (5th Cir. 1981).

Statutory bonds. — This section has no reference to statutory bonds, such as a forthcoming bond, taken in the progress of a judicial proceeding. Hobbs v. Taylor, 11 Ga. App. 579, 75 S.E. 906, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 107 (1912).

Guaranty agreements under UCC. — O.C.G.A. § 10-7-24 does not apply to guaranty agreements governed by the UCC. Gunter v. True, 203 Ga. App. 330, 416 S.E.2d 768, 1992 Ga. App. LEXIS 406 (1992), cert. denied, No. S92C0807, 1992 Ga. LEXIS 449 (Ga. June 4, 1992).

Section applicable to guarantor. — A guarantor has the same right as a surety by written notice to compel the institution of a suit against the principal under this section. Fields v. Willis, 123 Ga. 272, 51 S.E. 280, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 440 (1905).

Contracts executed in another state. — This section is applicable to a case when the contract sued on in Georgia was executed in another state. J.R. Watkins Co. v. Seawright, 168 Ga. 750, 149 S.E. 45, 1929 Ga. LEXIS 230 (1929).

Nonresident principal. — Fact that the residence of the principal was in another state, and was so stated in the notice, would not, under the terms of this section or the statutes from which it is condensed, preclude the sureties from the benefit thereof, the principal being in fact within the jurisdiction of the court. Fricks v. J.R. Watkins Co., 88 Ga. App. 276, 76 S.E.2d 518, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1065, rev'd, 210 Ga. 83, 78 S.E.2d 2, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 481 (1953).

Discharge of an endorser for which provision is made in this section is not applicable when the principal in the promissory note resides outside this state. Glasser v. Decatur Lumber & Supply Co., 95 Ga. App. 665, 99 S.E.2d 330, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 893 (1957).

When it appears that the corporate maker of a note is a foreign corporation, an endorser of the note is not discharged if the creditor, on request, neglects to proceed against the principal, in the absence of an offer of indemnity to the holder against the consequences, risk, delay, or expenses. Glasser v. Decatur Lumber & Supply Co., 95 Ga. App. 665, 99 S.E.2d 330, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 893 (1957).

Failure to show waiver of confirmation process on part of guarantors. — As to foreclosure deficiency judgment, the trial court erred by denying the guarantors of the mortgage summary judgment because the loan documents failed to include an adequate waiver of the confirmation process required by O.C.G.A. § 44-14-161. Apex Bank v. Thompson, 349 Ga. App. 285, 826 S.E.2d 162, 2019 Ga. App. LEXIS 155 (2019).

Surety claim brought in bad faith. — Trial court properly awarded the surety company a bad faith attorney fee award and struck the counterclaim because the purchaser's bad faith counterclaim against the surety company as a corporate surety was not only brought under an inapplicable statute, namely O.C.G.A. § 13-6-11, but failed to meet the basic pleading requirements under § 13-6-11. Hicks v. Gabor, 354 Ga. App. 714, 841 S.E.2d 42, 2020 Ga. App. LEXIS 183 (2020).

Notice

Notice may be given at any time. — This section provides that the surety, "at any time" after the debt on which the surety is liable becomes due, may give the notice. Sally v. Bank of Union, 150 Ga. 281, 103 S.E. 460, 1920 Ga. LEXIS 140 (1920).

Notice after suit against surety. — When a surety has been sued separately from a principal, it is not too late to give the notice. Sally v. Bank of Union, 150 Ga. 281, 103 S.E. 460, 1920 Ga. LEXIS 140 (1920); Overstreet v. W.T. Rawleigh Co., 75 Ga. App. 483, 43 S.E.2d 774, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 566 (1947).

Notice must be written. — Notice to the creditor by a surety to proceed against the principal debtor, required by this section, is written notice, an oral request will not suffice. Timmons v. Butler, Stevens & Co., 138 Ga. 69, 74 S.E. 784, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 192 (1912); Johnson v. Longley, 142 Ga. 814, 83 S.E. 952, 1914 Ga. LEXIS 560 (1914).

If it is not claimed that either of the endorsers gave notice in writing to the creditor to proceed to collect the debt out of the principal, the creditor was not barred from bringing suit to recover several years later. Chapman v. Miller, 40 Ga. App. 138, 149 S.E. 70, 1929 Ga. App. LEXIS 48 (1929).

Oral notice is not a sufficient compliance with this section. Gettis v. Gormley, 49 Ga. App. 339, 175 S.E. 393, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 395 (1934).

Creditor may waive requirement by filing suit and then discharge surety by dismissing it. — If oral notice is given by a surety on a note to the creditor to sue on the note, and the creditor agrees to sue and in pursuance to such notice and agreement does actually enter suit, the creditor thereby treats such notice as sufficient and waives the requirements of this section, and the surety acquires a right and interest in the suit; and when such suit is dismissed without the permission of the surety, the creditor must bring another suit within three months from the date of the original notice and executed agreement to sue, and failure to do so will discharge the surety. Gettis v. Gormley, 49 Ga. App. 339, 175 S.E. 393, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 395 (1934).

Reliance on assurance of suit will discharge surety to extent of loss. — A parol notice or request to the creditor by a surety upon a promissory note to bring suit will not operate as a compliance with this section; if, however, the surety is assured by the holder of the note that suit will be brought at the next term of court, and because of such assurance the surety foregoes means of indemnity or protection, and the suit is not brought, the surety will be discharged to the extent of the loss. Longley v. Johnson, 22 Ga. App. 96, 95 S.E. 315, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 168 (1918).

Evidence of oral notice. — If it does not appear that the endorser parted with the means of protecting himself in consequence of any assurances made to him by the creditor and the record discloses nothing that would estop the creditor or relieve the endorser from the necessity of complying with the strict provisions of this section, the court does not err in excluding parol testimony to the effect that the endorser made an oral demand on the officers of the creditor to sue on the note while the principal was solvent and that demand was followed by a promise on the part of the creditor to do so and it failed to do so. Smith v. Morris Fertilizer Co., 18 Ga. App. 217, 89 S.E. 174, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 244 (1916).

Notice need not indicate benefit of section will be claimed. — To entitle a security or endorser to the benefit of the provisions of this section for the endorser's relief, it is only necessary for the endorser to notify the holder to sue the note. It is not necessary that the endorser should, in addition, notify the holder that unless the endorser did proceed to collect the note that the endorser would claim the benefit of this section. Denson v. Miller, 33 Ga. 275, 1862 Ga. LEXIS 25 (1862).

Notice must be positive demand to sue. — It must be a positive demand to sue, and so understood by the parties at the time, in order to discharge the surety. If it appeared that it was a request of a favor, and so considered by the parties at the time, then the surety was not discharged by reason of a failure to sue in three months. Bethune v. Dozier, 10 Ga. 235, 1851 Ga. LEXIS 95 (1851).

"Lose no time in suing" is a command to sue. Howard v. Brown, 3 Ga. 523, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1847).

Letters properly excluded which contain no command. — When two letters were written by the surety, one being mailed before the maturity of the debt and containing merely the expression of a desire on the part of the surety that the plaintiff would collect when the obligation became due and the other suggesting the advisability of bringing suit and expressing doubt whether the money could be made later, but containing no command, there was no notice given as required by this section, and the letters were rightly excluded. Smith v. Morris Fertilizer Co., 18 Ga. App. 217, 89 S.E. 174, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 244 (1916).

Notice must state county of principal's residence. — No notice shall be considered a compliance with the requirements of this section which does not state the county of the principal's residence. Smith v. Morris Fertilizer Co., 18 Ga. App. 217, 89 S.E. 174, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 244 (1916).

A notice which states that the principal's residence is "Waycross, Ga.," but which does not state the county of the principal's residence, is not the notice required by this section. Seckinger v. Exchange Bank, 38 Ga. App. 667, 145 S.E. 94, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 382 (1928).

Written notice that does not state the county of the principal's residence is not a sufficient compliance with this section. Gettis v. Gormley, 49 Ga. App. 339, 175 S.E. 393, 1934 Ga. App. LEXIS 395 (1934).

If the maker resides in this state, in order for the notice for which provision is made in this section to be effective, such notice must state the county in which the principal resides. Glasser v. Decatur Lumber & Supply Co., 95 Ga. App. 665, 99 S.E.2d 330, 1957 Ga. App. LEXIS 893 (1957).

Notice to a creditor to proceed is ineffective unless the notice states the county in which the principal resides; this requirement is mandatory under the statute. Motz v. Landmark First Nat'l Bank, 154 Ga. App. 858, 270 S.E.2d 81, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2418 (1980).

Actual notice is required. Constructive notice, if there is any arising by virtue of an Act of the legislature incorporating a city, that the city is in a particular county, will not suffice as a compliance with this section. Seckinger v. Exchange Bank, 38 Ga. App. 667, 145 S.E. 94, 1928 Ga. App. LEXIS 382 (1928).

When city and county have same name. — It is not a compliance with the section to say "of Macon, Georgia," there being in the state both a County of Macon and a City of Macon, and the notice not indicating that the county was meant rather than the city. Ware v. City Bank, 59 Ga. 840, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 415 (1877).

Receipt of notice by creditor does not cure defect as to county. — A notice to sue, given by a surety under this section in order to afford a defense to a subsequent action brought against the surety by the creditor, must state the county of the residence of the principal debtor since, under the mandate of the statute, "no notice shall be considered a compliance with the requirements of this section which does not state the county of the principal's residence"; a notice fatally defective in this respect, but received by the creditor with the remark "all right," could amount to nothing more than a mere promise by the creditor, without consideration, to proceed against the principal debtor, which would have no effect upon the obligation of the surety. Bowen v. Mobley, 40 Ga. App. 833, 151 S.E. 667, 1930 Ga. App. LEXIS 722 (1930).

Notice by one surety is sufficient. — Notice by one surety is as effectual as if all the sureties were to unite in the notice; a notice by one surety is as available to the creditor as a notice from all. Jones v. Whitehead, 4 Ga. 397, 1848 Ga. LEXIS 46 (1848).

Notice is properly given to creditor holding note. — When a promissory note to which there is a surety is held by a creditor of the owner as a collateral security, such creditor is the proper person to be notified by the surety to sue the maker. McCrary v. King, 27 Ga. 26, 1859 Ga. LEXIS 3 (1859).

Notice to agent, such as cashier of bank. — Since notice to sue the principal maker of a note by the surety was directed to the cashier of the bank which was the holder of the note, it was sufficient notice to the bank, especially as it appeared that the bank acted upon such notice. Bank of St. Marys v. Mumford & Tyson, 6 Ga. 44, 1849 Ga. LEXIS 7 (1849).

Wrongly designating person giving notice is not grounds for excluding notice. — Fact that the person giving the written notice to sue under this section was designated as "endorser," when, under both the pleading and the evidence, the person was a technical "surety," was not cause for excluding such notice as evidence in the case. Milam v. Lewis, 47 Ga. App. 376, 170 S.E. 404, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 410 (1933).

Nature of surety's request may be question for jury. — If it is doubtful whether the surety intended to request the creditor to sue the principal as a matter of law, it is proper to submit it to the jury to find from the facts how the parties understood the matter. Bethune v. Dozier, 10 Ga. 235, 1851 Ga. LEXIS 95 (1851).

Suit by Creditor

Surety is entitled under the law to have the creditor sue the principal debtor, if the debtor can be found, as such was the purpose of the General Assembly in the enactment of this section. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Overstreet, 84 Ga. App. 21, 65 S.E.2d 50, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 620 (1951).

After proper notice, failure to sue principal within state discharges surety. — Under this section, the surety is required only to give the creditor: (a) notice to proceed to collect the debt from the principal; and (b) to state the county in which the principal resides; thereafter, if the principal is within the jurisdiction of the state, and if the creditor fails to commence an action within three months after such notice, the surety will be discharged. Fricks v. J.R. Watkins Co., 88 Ga. App. 276, 76 S.E.2d 518, 1953 Ga. App. LEXIS 1065, rev'd, 210 Ga. 83, 78 S.E.2d 2, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 481 (1953).

Failure of creditor to commence action. — To the extent O.C.G.A. § 10-7-24 provides for the discharge of a guarantor based on the failure of the creditor to commence an action against the principal it is inconsistent with O.C.G.A. § 11-3-416(1). Gunter v. True, 203 Ga. App. 330, 416 S.E.2d 768, 1992 Ga. App. LEXIS 406 (1992), cert. denied, No. S92C0807, 1992 Ga. LEXIS 449 (Ga. June 4, 1992).

Filing of petition without service does not operate to commence suit and no suit is pending until the suit has been served. Southeastern Fid. Ins. Co. v. Tesler, 159 Ga. App. 60, 282 S.E.2d 703, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2487 (1981).

Suing in wrong county does not comply with notice. — Bringing of a suit by a creditor against a principal in a county other than the principal's residence is the equivalent of no suit at all when process was not served on the principal and hence cannot be urged as a compliance upon service of notice provided for in this section. Overstreet v. W.T. Rawleigh Co., 75 Ga. App. 483, 43 S.E.2d 774, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 566 (1947); Southeastern Fid. Ins. Co. v. Tesler, 159 Ga. App. 60, 282 S.E.2d 703, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2487 (1981).

Suit on obligation on which sureties were not liable. — Suit by a creditor against the principal debtor on the second of two obligations for which sureties were liable on only the first obligation will not suffice as a suit within three months since this section refers to the obligation on which the sureties sought to be held liable became obligated to pay the creditor. W.T. Rawleigh Co. v. Overstreet, 84 Ga. App. 21, 65 S.E.2d 50, 1951 Ga. App. LEXIS 620 (1951).

New suit is unnecessary if one is pending when notice received. — If a creditor brings suit against the sureties on a contract, and the sureties give the statutory notice to the creditor to proceed to collect the debt out of the principal, and if upon the trial the creditor admits the creditor's failure to sue the principal within three months after receiving such notice, but shows that the creditor did file suit against the principal in the county of the residence of the principal after the debt was due, but before the creditor received the notice from the sureties and before the creditor brought suit against the sureties, the filing of another suit is unnecessary. J.R. Watkins Co. v. Seawright, 168 Ga. 750, 149 S.E. 45, 1929 Ga. LEXIS 230 (1929).

Creditor has full three months to sue so surety risks principal's removal. — If notice was given to the holder to sue the maker, but before the expiration of the three months allowed by this section, the maker removed out of the state, so that no suit could be instituted against the maker, the holder has the whole three months allowed by this section within which to sue, and the removal of the maker was at the risk of the endorser and not of the holder. Howard v. Brown, 3 Ga. 523, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 133 (1847).

No duty to sue principal when third party not surety. — Creditor is not required to proceed against the principal in order to preserve the creditor's rights to hold a third party liable when the third party is neither a surety, guarantor, nor an endorser, but has agreed to a primary obligation to pay for goods. Ely & Walker v. Dux-Mixture Hdwe. Co., 582 F. Supp. 285, 1982 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17649 (N.D. Ga. 1982), aff'd, 732 F.2d 821, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 22771 (11th Cir. 1984).

Obtaining default judgment. — Creditor who obtained a default judgment against the principal (maker of notes) fulfilled the creditor's duty under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-24. United States v. Blue Dolphin Assocs., 620 F. Supp. 463, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14708 (S.D. Ga. 1985).

Waiver and Estoppel

Surety may waive benefit of section. — Right created by the legislature, as embodied in this section, was established solely for the benefit of one who has become surety for another, and such surety may therefore waive it without injuring others and without affecting the public interest. J.R. Watkins Co. v. Fricks, 210 Ga. 83, 78 S.E.2d 2, 1953 Ga. LEXIS 481 (1953).

Provision agreeing creditor may extend time estops surety from giving notice. — If, for value received, the surety consents that the creditor "may grant any extension on the note that he deems proper," the surety cannot, by giving the notice contemplated in this section, revoke the surety's consent allowing the extension of time and be discharged from liability on the note merely because of a failure on the part of the creditor to commence an action against the principal debtor within the period of three months. Armour Fertilizer Works v. Bond, 139 Ga. 246, 77 S.E. 22, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 395 (1913).

If the surety has in the surety's contract consented that the creditor may, within the creditor's discretion, extend the period of time within which the principal's indebtedness is due, the surety will be estopped to give notice under this section after the date the debt is due and claim the benefit of the shorter three-month "statute of limitation" within which the creditor must thereafter bring suit against the principal. Hearn v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 154 Ga. App. 686, 269 S.E.2d 486, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 2342 (1980).

Surety waives notice by requesting indulgence to principal. — If the surety gives notice and then asks the creditor for indulgence, the surety waives the notice, provided the surety's request was made before the expiration of three months after the notice, and provided it was a request for indulgence to the surety's principal, not to the surety. Bailey v. New, 29 Ga. 214, 1859 Ga. LEXIS 311 (1859).

Request after three-month period. — Request for indulgence made after the expiration of three months after the notice will not have the effect of a waiver of notice. Bailey v. New, 29 Ga. 214, 1859 Ga. LEXIS 311 (1859).

Provision allowing suit against sureties first does not waive section. — When relationship of principal and surety exists, the creditor for whose protection the sureties become such may proceed against the sureties without first exhausting its remedies against the principal as a matter of law, with or without a provision to that effect in the contract. Therefore, the creditor acquires nothing by such a provision, and the sureties surrender nothing. Overstreet v. W.T. Rawleigh Co., 75 Ga. App. 483, 43 S.E.2d 774, 1947 Ga. App. LEXIS 566 (1947).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Entering payment on note does not extend statute of limitations against surety. — Payment and entry on a note by the principal did not prevent the bar of the statute of limitations from attaching in favor of the surety's security under former Code 1873, §§ 2157 and 2938. McBride v. Hunter, 64 Ga. 655, 1880 Ga. LEXIS 385 (1880).

Credits on note do not extend statute of limitations whether made by principal or cosurety. — Whether the credits on the notes were made by the principal or the maker thereof, or by the present plaintiff as surety, these payments or credits did not extend or revive the original liability, did not create new promises that were binding upon any of the other sureties who were not parties to such payments, and did not constitute new points for the running of the statute of limitations insofar as the rights of other sureties not parties to such payments were concerned. This principle falls within the spirit, if not the letter, of this section. McLin v. Harvey, 8 Ga. App. 360, 69 S.E. 123, 1910 Ga. App. LEXIS 162 (1910).

Waiver of contractual limitations on time to sue. — When surety company led bank to believe that claim under bond sued on would be paid by surety company, without suit, if the bank would by legal proceedings force exhaustion of administrator's bond before calling upon cashier's bond, and thus determine the amount due by the surety company on the cashier's bond on account of embezzlement of bank's cashier, the surety company could not take advantage of the provision in the policy requiring that action thereunder be brought within a stated time. American Sur. Co. v. Peoples Bank, 55 Ga. App. 28, 189 S.E. 414, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 422 (1936).

Discharge of parties to commercial paper, § 11-3-601 et seq.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Prior to section, suit against sureties was required. — Prior to the adoption of this section, in order to obtain judgment against sureties on bonds of losing parties in equitable proceedings, conditioned to pay the eventual condemnation money, it was necessary to bring suit on the bond. Offerman & W. R.R. v. Waycross Air-Line R.R., 112 Ga. 610, 37 S.E. 871, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 21 (1901); Miller v. A.M. Watson & Co., 135 Ga. 408, 69 S.E. 555, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 557 (1910).

Purpose of this section was to make the judgment so entered against the surety binding to the same extent as a judgment against the surety if rendered in a separate suit on the bond; in other words, that such a judgment should be a substitute for a judgment which might theretofore have been rendered in a separate suit on the bond. Miller v. A.M. Watson & Co., 135 Ga. 408, 69 S.E. 555, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 557 (1910).

Judgment may now be entered against surety without suit. — Under this section, upon the entering of judgment against the principal, it is lawful to sign up judgment against the surety on the condemnation money bond at the same time without the necessity for bringing suit thereon. O'Leary v. Smith, 119 Ga. App. 762, 168 S.E.2d 886, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1238 (1969).

Eventual condemnation money bond. — Prior to Ga. L. 1893, p. 131, § 1, now embraced in this section, it was necessary to bring an independent suit on all bonds given in an equitable proceeding; and since the passage of the Act, judgment can be entered up against the principal and the principal's sureties at the same time in an equitable proceeding only in a case where a bond has been made by the losing party, conditioned to pay the eventual condemnation money in the action. Jordan v. J.A. Callaway & Co., 138 Ga. 209, 75 S.E. 101, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 261 (1912); United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Tucker, 165 Ga. 283, 140 S.E. 866, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 371 (1927).

"Eventual condemnation money" is that which is recovered in the identical case in which the appeal is taken; it is the amount fixed and settled by the judgment or decree of the court in the case. Harrell v. Kutz & Co., 22 Ga. App. 235, 95 S.E. 717, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 264 (1918).

If the bond given by the defendants is for the payment of the judgments which may be rendered in the case, it will be treated as a bond for the eventual condemnation money under this section. Harrell v. Kutz & Co., 22 Ga. App. 235, 95 S.E. 717, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 264 (1918).

Under this section, while judgment against the sureties on a bond to dissolve an injunction and receivership cannot be entered in the main case, when the bond is conditioned otherwise than for the eventual condemnation money, yet, when the obligation of the bond was conditioned to pay unto the plaintiff whatever sum may be shown to be due the plaintiff under the contract and the liability was not limited to an amount other than that which might be ultimately fixed and settled by the judgment or decree in the case, a summary judgment in the same case against the sureties on the bond was permissible, and an affidavit of illegality, based on the contention that one of the sureties had not had a day in court could not properly be sustained. Smith v. Newsome, 26 Ga. App. 743, 107 S.E. 269, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 621 (1921).

An "eventual condemnation money bond" is one wherein makers agree to pay to the payee therein any judgment which the payee may recover against the principal in the suit in which such bond is given. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Tucker, 165 Ga. 283, 140 S.E. 866, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 371 (1927).

Under this section, a bond must be an eventual condemnation money bond in order that judgment may be entered thereon in the particular case in which it was given, that is, without an independent suit. Vickers v. Jones, 200 Ga. 338, 37 S.E.2d 205, 1946 Ga. LEXIS 395 (1946).

Bond must secure independent liability for which judgment may be taken. — Since a "condemnation money bond" is given merely as security, necessarily there must be some independent liability that is thus secured, and it must be one for which judgment may be taken against the principal in the identical case, even if the bond had not been given. Vickers v. Jones, 200 Ga. 338, 37 S.E.2d 205, 1946 Ga. LEXIS 395 (1946).

Recovery on bond creating only liability must be by independent suit. — If a bond itself creates the only liability, it is not an eventual condemnation money bond, and a recovery thereon can be had only in an independent suit. Vickers v. Jones, 200 Ga. 338, 37 S.E.2d 205, 1946 Ga. LEXIS 395 (1946).

Injunction bond is not an eventual condemnation money bond within the meaning of this section, and a recovery thereon may be had only in an independent suit. Vickers v. Jones, 200 Ga. 338, 37 S.E.2d 205, 1946 Ga. LEXIS 395 (1946).

Bond of indemnity. — See United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Tucker, 165 Ga. 283, 140 S.E. 866, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 371 (1927).

Judgment may be entered if bond so provides. — Judge of the superior court did not err in entering up judgment against the plaintiff and the plaintiff's surety upon a bond for the amount of the judgment obtained in the municipal court, which bond was voluntarily given in order to obtain a restraining order upon presentation of the petition for injunction for sanction by the judge and which provided that judgment might be entered thereon as in case of appeal, should the plaintiff fail in the plaintiff's equitable cause for injunction. American Liberty Fire Ins. Co. v. McGlothin, 165 Ga. 173, 140 S.E. 354, 1927 Ga. LEXIS 338 (1927).

Sureties on a condemnation money bond must remain silent witnesses to the conflict between the parties to the suit, standing ready to fulfill at the end of the litigation the obligation the sureties have undertaken. Ford v. Herbermann, 125 Ga. App. 87, 186 S.E.2d 501, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 743 (1971).

Bail or security takes the fortunes of the principal and is bound equally with the principal by the judgment in the main action. O'Leary v. Smith, 119 Ga. App. 762, 168 S.E.2d 886, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1238 (1969).

Consent of principal, not surety. — Where, under former provisions therefor, a tenant arrested an eviction proceeding by giving bond with a surety to the landlord, conditioned for the payment of such sum with costs as may be recovered against the defendant tenant on the trial of the case, the surety took the fortunes of the principal and was bound by whatever judgment was rendered against the principal, even though the surety did not appear and plead and the judgment was by consent of the principal and not of the surety. Ford v. Eskridge, 53 Ga. App. 466, 186 S.E. 204, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (1936).

Liability of sureties is absolutely fixed by the judgment against their principal, and the sureties must stand or fall by the result of the surety's defense, such being the express undertaking in the bond. O'Leary v. Smith, 119 Ga. App. 762, 168 S.E.2d 886, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1238 (1969); Ford v. Herbermann, 125 Ga. App. 87, 186 S.E.2d 501, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 743 (1971).

Notice or hearing not required. — There is no requirement in this section that the surety be named as a party or be served, or otherwise notified and given an opportunity to be heard. O'Leary v. Smith, 119 Ga. App. 762, 168 S.E.2d 886, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1238 (1969).

Under the construction the courts have placed on this section, a surety takes the fortunes of the surety's principal; upon judgment being entered against the principal, it is lawful to enter judgment against the surety at the same time without the necessity of bringing suit. In such instance, the surety cannot complain of lack of notice or opportunity of being heard prior to that judgment. Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Stein Steel & Supply Co., 134 Ga. App. 624, 215 S.E.2d 511, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2106 (1975).

Surety cannot attack judgment for causes principal could have raised. — If a judgment has been rendered against a surety by a court of competent jurisdiction, the surety is absolutely bound by the judgment, and will not be heard to impeach or attack the judgment in any way for causes which were or could have been a matter of defense by the principal. O'Leary v. Smith, 119 Ga. App. 762, 168 S.E.2d 886, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1238 (1969); Ford v. Herbermann, 125 Ga. App. 87, 186 S.E.2d 501, 1971 Ga. App. LEXIS 743 (1971).

Motion to set aside. — In a motion to set aside, a surety may make no complaint relative to the merits of the judgment which could have been raised by the surety's principal, but must stand or fall by the result of the principal's defense. O'Leary v. Smith, 119 Ga. App. 762, 168 S.E.2d 886, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1238 (1969).

Affidavit of illegality. — Bail can no more go behind the judgment or attack the judgment by affidavit of illegality after the judgment is duly entered against both the bail and the principal than can the principal. O'Leary v. Smith, 119 Ga. App. 762, 168 S.E.2d 886, 1969 Ga. App. LEXIS 1238 (1969).

Finding in main case must fix liability according to terms of bond. — Even if in a particular case judgment could be entered upon the bond under this section, it is a prerequisite that there be a finding fixing the surety's liability according to the condition in the surety's bond. Jordan v. J.A. Callaway & Co., 138 Ga. 209, 75 S.E. 101, 1912 Ga. LEXIS 261 (1912) (bond to dissolve injunction and receivership).

When, as a condition for the grant of an interlocutory injunction against interfering with the possession of land, the plaintiff was required to file a bond to indemnify the defendant for such rentals as the jury on the final trial of the case should find to be due by the plaintiff to the defendant according to such interest as the defendant might be found to have in the land, under the terms of the bond, no recovery could be had thereon without a determination in the cause itself as to the interest of the defendant and the amount of rentals due the defendant by the plaintiff if the defendant had an interest; this is true irrespective of whether or not, in the event of determination of these questions favorably to the defendant, the defendant could summarily enter in the same case a judgment on the bond against the principal and the surety as in cases of appeal, or would have to resort to an independent action. Fender v. Hendley, 196 Ga. 512, 26 S.E.2d 887, 1943 Ga. LEXIS 373 (1943).

Intervening surety is concluded by prior judgment. — Surety on the eventual condemnation money bond given by the defendant in the distress warrant proceeding was concluded by the prior judgment, even though the surety had been allowed to intervene in the distress warrant proceeding. Price v. Carlton, 121 Ga. 12, 48 S.E. 721, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 2 (1904).

Binding judgment may be entered after dismissal set aside. — Under former provisions as to eviction proceedings, after an order of reinstatement of such a proceeding against a tenant, because its dismissal at the same term of court was for want of prosecution, being presumptively proper and reciting that it was entered "for sufficient cause shown," the surety on the bond of the defendant became bound for such eventual condemnation money as might be determined under the evidence at the trial; the surety was not entitled to set aside the final judgment rendered against the surety and the defendant principal on the bond upon the grounds that the order of dismissal terminated the surety's liability as surety and that the order of reinstatement was entered by the consent only of the defendant and without notice to the surety. Ford v. Eskridge, 53 Ga. App. 466, 186 S.E. 204, 1936 Ga. App. LEXIS 281 (1936).

(b) In the event of the refusal of a corporate surety to commence the remedy of a default covered by, to make payment to an obligee under, or otherwise to commence performance in accordance with the terms of a contract of suretyship within 60 days after receipt from the obligee of a notice of default or demand for payment, and upon a finding that such refusal was in bad faith, the surety shall be liable to pay such obligee, in addition to the loss, not more than 25 percent of the liability of the surety for the loss and all reasonable attorney's fees for the prosecution of the case against the surety. The amount of such reasonable attorney's fees shall be determined by the trial jury and shall be included in any judgment rendered in such action; provided, however, that such attorney's fees shall be fixed on the basis of competent expert evidence as to the reasonable value of such services, based on the time spent and legal and factual issues involved, in accordance with prevailing fees in the locality where the action is pending; provided, further, that the trial court shall have the discretion, if it finds such jury verdict fixing attorney's fees to be greatly excessive or inadequate, to review and amend such portion of the verdict fixing attorney's fees without the necessity of disapproving the entire verdict. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

O.C.G.A. § 33-4-6 is virtually identical to O.C.G.A. § 10-7-30, except that the statute deals with the liability of insurance companies on their insurance contracts rather than the liability of corporate sureties on their suretyship contracts. Columbus Fire & Safety Equip. Co. v. American Druggist Ins. Co., 166 Ga. App. 509, 304 S.E.2d 471, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2225 (1983).

Strict construction. — This section, being in derogation of the common law, must be strictly construed. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Sasser & Co., 138 Ga. App. 361, 226 S.E.2d 121, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2161 (1976).

Section refers to payment to obligee, not claimant. — This section, which provides damages and attorney fees for default by a corporate surety, refers to the payment to the obligee of the penalty and not to a claimant. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Sasser & Co., 138 Ga. App. 361, 226 S.E.2d 121, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 2161 (1976).

Continued failure to pay the claim after the suit was filed may not be counted as part of the 60-day deadline set forth in subsection (b) of O.C.G.A. § 10-7-30. Columbus Fire & Safety Equip. Co. v. American Druggist Ins. Co., 166 Ga. App. 509, 304 S.E.2d 471, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2225 (1983).

Estoppel. — Indemnitors were estopped from contending that the insurer's failure to pay the owner's claim prior to trial constituted a breach of fiduciary duty on the insurer's part, when the reason the insurer defended the owner's claim instead of paying the claim prior to trial was because the president of one of the indemnitors denied any liability in the matter and resisted efforts to settle. M-Pax, Inc. v. Dependable Ins. Co., 176 Ga. App. 93, 335 S.E.2d 591, 1985 Ga. App. LEXIS 2265 (1985).

Unavailable remedies. — The 60-day performance period provided by subsection (b) of O.C.G.A. § 10-7-30 began to run on the date that the surety received the obligee's demand letter and not on the date that the surety was "aware of" the obligee's claim on the bond, and this period was not waived by the surety's denying, prior to 60 days, any obligation on the bond. Consulting Eng'rs Group, Inc. v. Pace Constr., 613 F. Supp. 1192, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17504 (N.D. Ga. 1985).

Plaintiff may not recover a bad faith penalty or attorneys' fees pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-7-30 in a suit brought under the Miller Act. United States v. All Am. Bldg. Sys., 847 F. Supp. 69, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3840 (S.D. Tex. 1994).

No award for additional attorney's fees on appeal. — Since the trial court did not err in striking the bad-faith penalty and attorney fees awarded to the plaintiff, its motion for an award of additional attorney fees on appeal will be perforce, denied, both because of this holding and because the Court of Appeals is not empowered by statute or otherwise to grant such relief. Columbus Fire & Safety Equip. Co. v. American Druggist Ins. Co., 166 Ga. App. 509, 304 S.E.2d 471, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2225 (1983).

Withdrawal of first notice of default. — When a contractor's letter to the subcontractor specified that no claim was being made against the performance bond "at this time," the prior notice of default was clearly intended to be withdrawn, and since the subcontractor was not again declared in default until less than 60 days before suit was filed, and since no demand for payment was made against the surety until that same date, it follows that the surety cannot be held liable for a bad-faith penalty and attorney fees. Columbus Fire & Safety Equip. Co. v. American Druggist Ins. Co., 166 Ga. App. 509, 304 S.E.2d 471, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2225 (1983).

Jurisdiction. — Subcontractor's action against surety for breach of payment bond contract, bad faith, and attorney fees was within the superior court's subject matter jurisdiction. Harry S. Peterson Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 209 Ga. App. 585, 434 S.E.2d 778, 1993 Ga. App. LEXIS 945 (1993).

10-7-31. Rights of certain parties claiming protection under a payment bond or security deposit; notice of commencement of work.

(a) Where a payment bond or security deposit is provided pursuant to a contract for the construction of an improvement to property other than a public work, every person entitled to claim the protection of the payment bond or security deposit who has not been paid in full for labor or material furnished in the prosecution of the work referred to in such bond or security deposit after the last of the labor was done or performed by him or her or the material or equipment or machinery was furnished or supplied by him or her for which such claim is made, or when he or she has completed his or her subcontract for which such claim is made, shall have the right to bring an action on such payment bond or security deposit in accordance with the terms thereof for the amount, or the balance thereof, unpaid at the time of the commencement of such action and to prosecute such action to final execution and judgment for the sum or sums due him or her; provided, however, that any person having no contractual relationship express or implied with the contractor furnishing such payment bond or security deposit on a project where the contractor has complied with the Notice of Commencement requirements in accordance with subsection (b) of this Code section shall not have the right to bring an action on such payment bond or security deposit in accordance with the terms thereof unless such person gave to the contractor within 30 days from the filing of the Notice of Commencement or 30 days following the first delivery of labor, material, machinery, or equipment, whichever is later, a written Notice to Contractor setting forth:

(1) The name, address, and telephone number of the person providing labor, material, machinery, or equipment;

(2) The name and address of each person at whose instance the labor, material, machinery, or equipment are being furnished;

(3) The name and location of the project set forth in the Notice of Commencement; and

(4) A description of the labor, material, machinery, or equipment being provided and, if known, the contract price or anticipated value of the labor, material, machinery, or equipment to be provided or the amount claimed to be due, if any.

(b) Where a payment bond or security deposit is provided pursuant to a contract for the construction of an improvement to property other than a public work, the contractor furnishing the payment bond or security deposit shall post on the project site and file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the project is located a Notice of Commencement no later than 15 days after the contractor physically commences work on the project and give a copy of the Notice of Commencement to any subcontractor, materialman, or person who makes a written request of the contractor. Failure to give a copy of the Notice of Commencement within ten calendar days of receipt of the written request from the subcontractor, materialman, or person shall render the notice to contractor requirement of subsection (a) of this Code section inapplicable to the subcontractor, materialman, or person making the request. The Notice of Commencement shall include:

(1) The name, address, and telephone number of the contractor;

(2) The name and location of the project being constructed and the legal description of the property upon which the improvements are being made;

(3) The name and address of the true owner of the property;

(4) The name and address of the person other than the owner at whose instance the improvements are being made, if not the true owner of the property;

(5) The name and the address of the surety for the performance and payment bonds, if any;

(6) The name and address of the construction lender, if any; and

(7) The name and address of the holder of the security deposit provided, if any.

(c) The failure to file a Notice of Commencement under subsection (b) of this Code section shall render the Notice to Contractor requirements of subsection (a) of this Code section inapplicable.

(d) The clerk of the superior court shall file the Notice of Commencement provided for in this Code section within the records of that office and maintain an index separate from other real estate records or an index with the preliminary notices of lien specified in subsection (a) of Code Section 44-14-361.3. Each such Notice of Commencement shall be indexed under the name of the true owner and the contractor as contained in the Notice of Commencement.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Judgment on the pleadings reversed. — Construing the pleadings in a light most favorable to showing a question of fact in an action in which: (1) the pleadings did not disclose with certainty that a supplier would not be entitled to relief in the supplier's action against a general contractor and the contractor's surety; and (2) the appeals court did not consider the supplier's averments that the supplier's "Notice to Owner/Contractor" complied with O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-31 and 44-14-361.5 or its admission that it received a copy of the notice of commencement to establish that the general contractor's notice of commencement was otherwise proper and timely filed as required by the statutes, the general contractor and the contractor's surety were not entitled to judgment on the pleadings. Consol. Pipe & Supply Co. v. Genoa Constr. Servs., Inc., 279 Ga. App. 894, 633 S.E.2d 59, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 731 (2006).

Payment bond not substitute collateral. — In the general contractor's action against the materials provider relating to the provider's request for payment under a payment bond, the trial court erred by declaring that the payment bond obtained and recorded by the general contractor served as substituted collateral for the construction project and in discharging the materialmen's lien filed by the provider; O.C.G.A. § 10-7-31 was silent on the issue of how or whether the bond affected materialmen's liens, and, under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-364(a), the bond did not satisfy the essential requirements of a lien release bond since the bond was obtained before the provider filed its lien claim and there was nothing indicating that the bond was issued with good security approved by the clerk. Sierra Craft, Inc. v. T. D. Farrell Constr., Inc., 282 Ga. App. 377, 638 S.E.2d 815, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 1398 (2006), cert. denied, No. S07C0460, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 145 (Ga. Feb. 5, 2007).

Notice adequate. — In the general contractor's action against the materials provider relating to the provider's request for payment under a payment bond, the general contractor's notice of commencement and the provider's notice to contractor complied with O.C.G.A. § 10-7-31; although the notice of commencement stated that the notice was pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 44-14-361.5 and the notice to contractor stated that the notice was sent under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-361, O.C.G.A. § 10-7-31 did not require that either of the notices be expressly labeled as being provided under the statute, the notices contained the pertinent information contemplated by O.C.G.A. § 10-7-31, including that the general contractor had provided a payment bond and that the provider had provided materials for the project through improvements made by the subcontractor, and the notice of commencement was not misfiled under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-31(d) because it was labeled as provided under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-361.5 as the indexing requirements of both statutes were substantially identical. Sierra Craft, Inc. v. T. D. Farrell Constr., Inc., 282 Ga. App.

Notice to contractor deficient. — Trial court did not err in granting a general contractor and its surety summary judgment in a supplier's action to recover under a payment bond and a lien discharge bond for monies a subcontractor owed it for materials it supplied to a construction project because the supplier's notice to contractor failed to comply with O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-31(a) and 44-14-361.5(c) because the notice wholly omitted required information; although the supplier's notice to contractor set forth the subcontractor's name, it failed to provide any address for the subcontractor as required under §§ 10-7-31(a)(2) and 44-14-361.5(c)(2), and although the notice set forth the name of the project, it failed to state the location of the construction project pursuant to §§ 10-7-31(a)(3) and 44-14-361.5(c)(3). Consol. Pipe & Supply Co. v. Genoa Constr. Servs., 302 Ga. App. 255, 690 S.E.2d 894, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 104 (2010).

Notice did not limit the future claims of supplier. — Although the materials provider, in seeking payment under a payment bond, incorrectly stated in the notice to contractor that the contract price for its provision of materials was $20,000, it was not limited to recovery of that amount. O.C.G.A. § 10-7-31(a)(4), dictating the contents of a notice to contractor, did not limit the future claims of a notifying supplier. Sierra Craft, Inc. v. T. D. Farrell Constr., Inc., 282 Ga. App. 377, 638 S.E.2d 815, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 1398 (2006), cert. denied, No. S07C0460, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 145 (Ga. Feb. 5, 2007).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Independent remedies provided surety. — Former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3551, 3553, 3559, and 3560 were remedies to which the surety can resort for the surety's protection, independently of any voluntary action by the creditor. McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917).

Basis of liability. — Liability between principals is not based on underlying notes but on inducement to action. Moore v. Lindsey, 662 F.2d 354, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 15629 (5th Cir. 1981).

Action in equity after debt falls due. — Paying party may proceed in equity against other principal at any time after debt falls due even if the other principal has not yet been served. Moore v. Lindsey, 662 F.2d 354, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 15629 (5th Cir. 1981).

Call for contribution. — One who discharges a note can call on one's joint debtor for contribution. Moore v. Lindsey, 662 F.2d 354, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 15629 (5th Cir. 1981).

Basis for contribution. — Right to call on a joint debtor for contribution arises upon implied contract of joint debtor to bear the debtor's share of debt. Moore v. Lindsey, 662 F.2d 354, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 15629 (5th Cir. 1981).

Contribution in proportion to benefits received. — Usually joint debtors are equally liable, but, upon highest equitable principles, if there is an inequality of benefits the debtors contribute not equally but in proportion to respective benefits accruing to each joint debtor from proceeds. Moore v. Lindsey, 662 F.2d 354, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 15629 (5th Cir. 1981).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Independent remedies provided surety. — Former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3551, 3553, 3559, and 3560 were remedies to which the surety can resort for the surety's protection, independently of any voluntary action by the creditor. McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917).

Subrogation not applicable to rights. — Subrogation by which a guarantor takes rights of a creditor is not the same thing as a guarantor's right to recoup payment of a debt from the debtor's principal under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-41. Fabian v. Dykes, 214 Ga. App. 792, 449 S.E.2d 305, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1059 (1994).

Voluntary payment entitles surety to proceed against principal. — Voluntary payment by a surety of a past due debt entitles the surety to proceed immediately against the principal for the amount paid in the principal's behalf. Shattles v. Baker, 18 Ga. App. 300, 89 S.E. 373, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 309 (1916).

Recovery upon note or upon other obligation. — If one who signs a note ostensibly as a coprincipal is in fact a surety, one may, after paying the amount due by the principal, recover the amount in a suit against the principal, either in a suit upon the note after a transfer or upon an obligation of the defendant arising otherwise. Campbell v. Rybert, 46 Ga. App. 461, 167 S.E. 924, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 101 (1933).

Effect of release of principal. — Even though the creditor released the principal from liability on a note, the guarantor who paid the note on the principal's behalf and who was not a party to the release had an independent legal right to collect from the principal under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-41. Fabian v. Dykes, 214 Ga. App. 792, 449 S.E.2d 305, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1059 (1994).

Right is not affected by paying fraudulent renewal note. — When the surety has paid the debt, the surety is entitled to reimbursement. The fact that the payment was accomplished by paying a fraudulent renewal note would not affect the right to recover on the original note. Frye v. Sims, 144 Ga. 74, 86 S.E. 249, 1915 Ga. LEXIS 54 (1915).

Written assignment of note to surety is unnecessary. — When a negotiable promissory note, endorsed in blank and discounted at a bank, is paid to the bank at maturity by a surety thereon, title to the note passes to the surety by mere delivery and no written assignment by the bank is necessary. Electric City Brick Co. v. Hagler, 168 Ga. 836, 149 S.E. 126, 1929 Ga. LEXIS 255 (1929).

Dispute as to date debt was paid with stock and amount paid. — Guarantor's were not entitled to summary judgment on indemnification claim since the guarantor failed to establish when the stock used to satisfy the debt, in part, was actually transferred to the creditor or when the creditor exercised control over it. Lahaina Acquisitions, Inc. v. GCA Strategic Inv. Fund Ltd., 261 Ga. App. 800, 584 S.E.2d 51, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 773 (2003).

Recovery of stipulated attorney's fees. — Attorney's fees stipulated in note may be recovered by surety. Youmans v. Puder, 13 Ga. App. 785, 80 S.E. 34, 1913 Ga. App. LEXIS 359 (1913).

Surety or endorser is subrogated to payee's rights to extent of payment. — When the plaintiff was a surety or endorser, the plaintiff is to be subrogated to the rights of the payee in the notes in controversy to the extent of payment. Electric City Brick Co. v. Hagler, 168 Ga.

836, 149 S.E. 126, 1929 Ga. LEXIS 255 (1929).

Spouse is not entitled to be subrogated. — Spouse of the grantor in the security deed paying debt secured by another deed was not entitled to be subrogated to the grantee's rights. Hiers v. Exum, 158 Ga. 19, 122 S.E. 784, 1924 Ga. LEXIS 72 (1924).

Waiver. — Guaranty executed by a guarantor contained a very broad waiver clause which plainly and unambiguously waived any claims the guarantor might have had against the debtor and extended to claims arising in equity, or under contract, statute, or common law, and which obviously included a claim under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-41; the trial court erred by denying summary judgment to the debtor and other defendants, and erred in granting summary judgment in favor of the guarantor. Brookside Cmtys., LLC v. Lake Dow N. Corp., 268 Ga. App. 785, 603 S.E.2d 31, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 933 (2004).

Relationship to bankruptcy law. — Although the court found that the debtor owed a specific amount to the creditor at the time the bankruptcy case was filed and as scheduled, affirmative defenses of recoupment and setoff were preserved, and the party objecting to the creditor's claim could assert those defenses to reduce the creditor's claims if the defenses were permitted under state law (here, Georgia). Whether called setoff or recoupment, it was undisputed that the debtor paid an amount to the bank to satisfy the creditor's primary obligation to that bank, and it was also undisputed that the obligation of the debtor to the creditor arose when the debtor borrowed money that originated from the bank; thus, under any theory the debtor would get the benefit of the amount the debtor paid on the bank's debt, reducing the creditor's claim accordingly. In re Bay Circle Props., LLC, No. 15-58440-WLH, 2020 Bankr. LEXIS 917 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. Apr. 3, 2020).

Setoff allowed. — Equity holders were not entitled to disallow the scheduled claims of an affiliate of a bankruptcy debtor because bankruptcy rules allowed the affiliate to amend its bankruptcy schedules at any time until the case was closed, judicial estoppel did not bar an amendment based on a change in circumstances, and the affiliate was entitled to setoff of the amount it paid to the creditor post-petition to reduce the debtor's claim under state law since the bankruptcy law opened up the possibility for others to raise the defense to minimize recovery from the estate. In re Bay Circle Props., LLC, No. 15-58440-WLH, 2020 Bankr. LEXIS 733 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. Mar. 21, 2020), modified, No. 15-58440-WLH, 2020 Bankr. LEXIS 917 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. Apr. 3, 2020).

If the payment was made after judgment and the principal had notice of the pendency of the action against the surety, the amount of such

Independent remedies provided surety. — Former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3551, 3553, 3559, and 3560 were remedies to which the surety can resort for the surety's protection, independently of any voluntary action by the creditor. McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917).

Joint or separate actions on joint and several note. — The holder of a joint and several note may sue the obligors jointly or severally or sue any one of the signers alone. On such an obligation, one may sue the principal and surety jointly, or at one's option one may sue either the principal or the surety alone under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3553 and 3559. McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917); Johnson v. Georgia Fertilizer & Oil Co., 21 Ga. App. 530, 94 S.E. 850, 1918 Ga. How surety may defeat liability. — A surety cannot defeat liability by proving merely that the surety received no monetary consideration; the surety would have to show that the surety's principal did not receive any consideration or benefit from the paper sued on. Pharr v. Burnette, 158 Ga. App. 473, 280 S.E.2d 881, 1981 Ga. App. LEXIS 2259 (1981).

Dormant judgment against surety alone revivable although principal not notified. — When a scire facias proceeding is brought to revive a dormant judgment rendered against a surety on a joint and several note and the defendant objects to the revival of such judgment on the ground that the defendant's liability had been increased and that the defendant had been discharged from liability thereon because no judgment was rendered against the principal on the note, although no service of the suit was had on the principal, it was error for the judge to refuse to revive the judgment for that reason. Hicks v. Bank of Wrightsville, 57 Ga. App. 233, 194 S.E. 892, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 541 (1938).

Sufficiency of allegations in action against endorser. — In view of former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3541, 3553, and 3559, the plaintiff's pleading in an action against an endorser alleging that the plaintiff was the owner and holder of the notes sued on in due course, bona fide and for value, states a cause of action and is not subject to dismissal for failure to allege the defendant's relationship to the notes and to the other parties to the notes. Meldrim v. Peoples Bank, 28 Ga. App. 294, 111 S.E. 76, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 458 (1922).

Effect of surety's payment of the judgment. — Amount of the indemnity owed by an insurer to a surety was not affected by the outcome of the appeal as when the judgment was paid by the surety and when the principal had notice of the action against the surety, the surety's payment of the judgment was conclusive of the amount and the surety could recover such sum from the principal under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-42. Sec. Life Ins. Co. v. St. Paul Marine & Fire Ins. Co., 263 Ga. App. 525, 588 S.E.2d 319, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 1255 (2003), rev'd, No. S04G0322, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 1038 (Ga. Nov. 22, 2004), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 278 Ga. 800, 606 S.E.2d 855, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 1078 (2004), vacated in part, 273 Ga. App. 91, 614 S.E.2d 477, 2005 Ga. App. LEXIS 417 (2005).

When the surety on a principal's appeal bond paid the judgment that had been entered and substituted itself for the principal's opponents, the surety's payment of the judgment was not conclusive of the principal's liability to the surety because the principal was still engaged in contesting the extent of the principal's liability, and the judgment was not final because the judgment was still on appeal, so the second sentence of O.C.G.A. § 10-7-42 was applicable to these facts, rather than the first sentence, which applied to situations in which a judgment had reached a state of finality. Sec. Life Ins. Co. of Am. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 278 Ga. 800, 606 S.E.2d 855, 2004 Ga. LEXIS 1078 (2004).

10-7-43. Recovery of usury paid by surety.

If the contract was originally usurious and the surety in making payment includes the usury, he shall recover the same from the principal unless previous to the payment he had notice of the intention of the principal to resist usury.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Surety may recover usury surety pays. — Usury paid by a surety on a contract originally usurious may be recovered back by the surety. Whitehead v. Peck, 1 Ga. 140, 1846 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1846).

Knowledge that contract was usurious. — If the surety knew the contract to be usurious when the surety paid the debt, the surety cannot recover it back out of the surety's principal. Jones v. Joyner, 8 Ga. 562, 1850 Ga. LEXIS 98 (1850).

Knowledge that principal intended to resist usury. — A surety cannot recover usury paid by the surety if, previous to the payment, the surety had knowledge of the intention of the principal to resist the usury. Lay v. Seago, 47 Ga. 82, 1872 Ga. LEXIS 306 (1872).

Failure of surety to plead known usury. — If the surety had notice of the usury and might have pleaded it, but did not, the surety is estopped to recover it of the principal. Hargraves v. Lewis, 3 Ga. 162, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 91 (1847).

Principal reimbursing surety cannot recover usury paid voluntarily from creditor. — When a surety who is indemnified by a mortgage voluntarily pays a usurious note and is subsequently reimbursed by the surety's principal in property, the latter cannot recover of the creditor the excess of interest in an action for money had and received. Whitehead v. Peck, 1 Ga. 140, 1846 Ga. LEXIS 49 (1846).

If the principal executes any mortgage or gives other security to the surety or endorser to indemnify him against loss by reason of his suretyship, the surety or endorser may proceed to foreclose such mortgage or enforce such other lien or security as soon as judgment shall be rendered against him on his contract.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Section prescribes general rule. — This section prescribes a rule which was intended to be general, and the section comprehends all cases of the class mentioned. Importers & Traders Bank v. McGhees & Co., 88 Ga. 702, 16 S.E. 27, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 87 (1892).

Remedy in absence of contractual stipulation. — This section simply provides a remedy for the endorser or surety in the absence of any stipulations in the contract between the principal and the surety on the subject. Jones v. Norton, 9 Ga. App. 333, 71 S.E. 687, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 540 (1911).

Section authorizes surety to foreclose. — Mortgage given to indemnify a surety may, under this section, be foreclosed by the surety when judgment is rendered against the surety on the contract. Conley v. State, 85 Ga. 348, 11 S.E. 659, 1890 Ga. LEXIS 53 (1890).

Judgment against surety required prior to foreclosure. — Under this section, no foreclosure can be had ordinarily until after judgment against the mortgagee. Importers & Traders Bank v. McGhees & Co., 88 Ga. 702, 16 S.E. 27, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 87 (1892); Jones v. Norton, 136 Ga. 835, 72 S.E. 337, 1911 Ga. LEXIS 245 (1911).

Payment by surety required prior to foreclosure. — By clear implication, this section negatives any right of foreclosure until the surety or endorser has paid something on the debt or judgment has been rendered against the surety on the surety's contract. Importers & Traders Bank v. McGhees & Co., 88 Ga. 702, 16 S.E. 27, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 87 (1892).

Foreclosure in manner stipulated in mortgage. — This section recognizes the right of the principal to give to the principal's surety or endorser a mortgage or other security to secure and protect the surety on the surety's endorsement or suretyship, and, if it is legal for such a mortgage to be given, it can be provided in the mortgage that it may be foreclosed or enforced in such way as the parties may stipulate, without reference to the statutory right referred to. Jones v. Norton, 9 Ga. App. 333, 71 S.E. 687, 1911 Ga. App. LEXIS 540 (1911).

Surety giving creditor note may foreclose mortgage. — When the security to a promissory note was indemnified by a mortgage executed by the principal, and after the note became due, the security voluntarily gave the security's own note to the creditor, which was accepted by the security in full payment of the joint debt, and the joint note was given up to the security, the security was allowed to foreclose the security's mortgage against the principal and collect from the security what was actually due on the note in the hands of the original creditor. Mims v. McDowell, 4 Ga. 182, 1848 Ga. LEXIS 22 (1848).

Defense by principal debtor. — Principal debtor may make any defense to the note which the debtor could have made against the original creditor. Mims v. McDowell, 4 Ga. 182, 1848 Ga. LEXIS 22 (1848).

Creditor cannot enforce mortgage without judgment. — Creditor, prior to obtaining judgment, cannot proceed in the creditor's own behalf to enforce the mortgage, even though the principal debtor and the endorser both are insolvent, the rights of the creditor depending, not upon the law of trust, but upon the law of subrogation. Importers & Traders Bank v. McGhees & Co., 88 Ga. 702, 16 S.E. 27, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 87 (1892); Burnett v. Gainesville Nat'l Bank, 28 Ga. App. 255, 110 S.E. 753, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 434 (1922).

Security deed cannot be enforced in absence of judgment. — In the absence of any judgment against the surety upon the indebtedness represented by a note, there was no right in the surety to enforce any lien against the property arising out of a deed to secure a debt to the surety from the principal, and therefore no right existed in the surety to which the creditor could be subrogated. Burnett v. Gainesville Nat'l Bank, 28 Ga. App. 255, 110 S.E. 753, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 434 (1922).

Assets cannot be impounded awaiting judgment. — Creditor cannot, prior to obtaining judgment according to this section on the creditor's debt, maintain a bill or petition to impound the mortgaged assets to await the recovery of such judgment. Up to the rendition of judgment, the right to preserve the security is one personal to the endorser, and to which the creditor is not subrogated. Importers & Traders Bank v. McGhees & Co., 88 Ga. 702, 16 S.E. 27, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 87 (1892).

Deed of trust as voluntary assignment. — Since a deed of trust to two of 16 accommodation endorsers was a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors and was not a mortgage or mere security under former Code 1882, § 2164, a compliance with the essential requirements of former Civil Code 1895, § 2700 et seq. was necessary to the security's validity. Johnson v. Brewer, 134 Ga. 828, 68 S.E. 590, 1910 Ga. LEXIS 364 (1910).

General Consideration

Purpose of section. — This section was enacted for the purpose of protecting the securities on bonds, notes, or other contracts. Bank of St. Marys v. Mumford & Tyson, 6 Ga. 44, 1849 Ga. LEXIS 7 (1849).

Basis for section. — Rule laid down in this section rests primarily upon the reason that when there is in fact a contract of suretyship and this is made to appear, the relative rights of the makers' interests can be fixed and the surety given the surety's right of subrogation generally without affecting the rights of the holder of the note. Hill v. Driskell, 15 Ga. App. 458, 83 S.E. 859, 1914 Ga. App. LEXIS 294 (1914).

"Delay", as used in this section, is such as arises from fault or negligence of the surety. Whitley v. Hudson, 114 Ga. 668, 40 S.E. 838, 1902 Ga. LEXIS 755 (1902).

Section only applies when surety seeks to enforce rights against principal. — This section applies only when the defendant seeks to establish the defendant as a surety, not by way of a defense to an action against the defendant on the contract, but for the purpose of enforcing the defendant's rights as a surety against the defendant's principal. Brown v. Merchants Trading Co., 26 Ga. App. 331, 106 S.E. 208, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 137 (1921).

Statutes and cases barring a cosigner from introducing parol evidence that the cosigner signed the note as a surety are applicable only when the defense of suretyship is asserted by one who is primarily obligated on the note in an action brought by the payee or the cosigner's assign to collect on the note. That prohibition does not apply when the note was paid from the proceeds of a life insurance policy the cosigner had assigned to the creditor, the creditor assigned the note and security deed to the creditor's estate, and the maker then sued the creditor and the cosigner's executor to cancel the security deed. Aultman v. United Bank, 259 Ga. 237, 378 S.E.2d 302, 1989 Ga. LEXIS 180 (1989).

Right to control judgment. — Law allows sureties to make "special defense," i.e., to show that they are sureties for the purpose of acquiring the right to control the judgment under Laws 1826, Cobb's 1851 Digest, p. 593 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-13-77), and to do this even after judgment. Brown v. Harris, 20 Ga. 403, 1856 Ga. LEXIS 71 (1856).

Proof

This section allows proof of suretyship by parol. Decatur Coca-Cola Bottling Co. v. Variety Vending Corp., 277 F. Supp. 393, 1967 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7477 (N.D. Ga. 1967).

Use of parol evidence. — If the fact of suretyship does not appear on the face of a note, it may be proved by parol; and the relative position of the makers' names is immaterial, if one is surety of the other. Trammell v. Swift Fertilizer Works, 121 Ga. 778, 49 S.E. 739, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 70 (1905).

When a written contract for the sale of personalty is executed by two persons ostensibly as purchasers, it may be shown by parol that one of such persons executed the contract, not as a principal obligor, but as a surety only. Nunnally v. J.B. Colt Co., 34 Ga. App. 247, 129 S.E. 119, 1925 Ga.

App. LEXIS 202 (1925); West v. Nottingham, 71 Ga. App. 282, 30 S.E.2d 651, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 335 (1944).

One who signs a note ostensibly as a coprincipal may in fact be a surety, and this may be established by parol. Campbell v. Rybert, 46 Ga. App. 461, 167 S.E. 924, 1933 Ga. App. LEXIS 101 (1933); Levinson v. American Thermex, Inc., 196 Ga. App. 291, 396 S.E.2d 252, 1990 Ga. App. LEXIS 852 (1990).

One who signs a note with another apparently as a joint principal may, in an action by the payee, plead and prove that the payee had no interest in the paper and was only surety for the accommodation of the other and principal signer, and that the plaintiff took the note with knowledge of such facts. Benson v. Henning, 50 Ga. App. 492, 178 S.E. 406, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 188 (1935).

Even though the notes did not show that defendant signed as surety and not as principal, the defendant could establish by parol evidence that the defendant signed the notes as surety and not as principal. Wofford v. Waldrip, 80 Ga. App. 562, 56 S.E.2d 816, 1949 Ga. App. LEXIS 879 (1949).

Although the contract recites that the contract is made for "value received" and is prima facie a contract of guaranty, parol evidence is admissible to show that there was no independent consideration flowing to those signing as guarantors and the contract is one of suretyship. Wolkin v. National Acceptance Co., 222 Ga. 487, 150 S.E.2d 831, 1966 Ga. LEXIS 525 (1966); Kennedy v. Thruway Serv. City, Inc., 133 Ga. App. 858, 212 S.E.2d 492, 1975 Ga. App. LEXIS 2313 (1975). (As to abolishment of distinction between contracts of suretyship and guaranty, see O.C.G.A. § 10-7-1 and the Editor's note thereto).

Burden is on surety to prove relationship and knowledge of creditor. — When a married woman signs a note ostensibly as a maker jointly with her husband when in fact she is a surety only, before she can establish the fact of her suretyship as against the payee of the note, it must be made to appear, despite her apparent relationship as principal, that the payee, with knowledge of the facts which would constitute her a surety, contracted with her as a surety. Bennett v. Danforth, 36 Ga. App. 466, 137 S.E. 285, 1927 Ga. App. LEXIS 109 (1927).

When the wife signs the note as an apparent principal, the burden is on her to prove that she signed as surety only, and that the payee of the note, with knowledge of the facts which would constitute her a surety, contracted with her as a surety. Lovelady v. Moss, 50 Ga. App. 652, 179 S.E. 168, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 260 (1935).

In an action by the payee against all the makers as joint principals it may be shown by parol evidence that some of the makers are sureties for others, the burden being on those setting up suretyship to establish it; and when they claim to be discharged by some act increasing their risk as sureties, they must further show that the payee knew they were sureties at the time of the occurrence of such act. Northcutt v. Crowe, 116 Ga. App. 715, 158 S.E.2d 318, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 935 (1967).

Establishment of suretyship requires proof payee knew signer of note was obligating signer to pay another's debt. — In order to establish as a fact that the ostensible maker of a promissory note executed the note as surety only and not as a principal, it must be shown that the payee contracted with the principal as a surety; and if the payee did not at the time know that the person signing the note was obligating oneself for the payment of the debt of another, it is not established that the payee contracted with the obligor as a surety. Northcutt v. Crowe, 116 Ga. App. 715, 158 S.E.2d 318, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 935 (1967).

Prayer for relief. — Surety's pleading must contain an appropriate prayer for independent affirmative relief. Morrison v. Citizens & S. Bank, 19 Ga. App. 434, 91 S.E. 509, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 138 (1917).

Nature of transaction is jury question. — Whether a note and deed to secure debt or mortgage were made by the wife as a part of a transaction to secure a debt of her husband or for the purpose of paying the debts of her husband is for the jury, and it may be shown by parol that the wife signed the note as surety. Almond v. Mount Vernon Bank, 53 Ga. App. 565,

New trial proper when surety denied right to prove alleged suretyship. — If a party defendant to an action upon a contract by the defendant's answer alleges that the defendant signed the paper as a security and is by an erroneous ruling denied the right to establish before judgment the fact thus set up, the defendant is entitled to a new trial, and granting the new trial will not violate that portion of this section which declares that in such a case the creditor is not to be "delayed in his remedy." Whitley v. Hudson, 114 Ga. 668, 40 S.E. 838, 1902 Ga. LEXIS 755 (1902); Ryle v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank, 33 Ga. App. 459, 127 S.E. 233, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 531 (1925) (ruling held harmless under circumstances).

Suretyship shown in contract as pled need not appear in judgment. — When the fact of suretyship sufficiently appears upon the face of the contract as pled, it is probably unnecessary for the defendant's protection for the fact to be made to appear in the judgment. Loewenherz v. Weil, 33 Ga. App. 760, 127 S.E. 883, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 715 (1925).

Application

Self estoppel by party. — When the written assignment of the note signed by the payee recites that, for value received, the payee transferred and assigned the note with full recourse on oneself, the payee was estopped from testifying that as a matter of fact the payee was an accommodation endorser only. This section is clearly not applicable to such facts. Phillips v. Bridges, 20 Ga. App. 489, 93 S.E. 115, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 944 (1917).

Presumption that signers of note are principals may be rebutted. — When two or more persons sign a note apparently as joint principals, and there is nothing in the instrument indicating that some of the makers are principals and others sureties, the presumption of law is that all are joint principals. This presumption, however, may be rebutted, and in an action by the payee against all the makers as joint principals it may be shown by parol evidence that some of the makers are sureties for others, the burden being on those setting up suretyship to establish it. Hill v. Driskell, 15 Ga. App. 458, 83 S.E. 859, 1914 Ga. App. LEXIS 294 (1914); Duckett v. Martin, 23 Ga. App. 630, 99 S.E. 151, 1919 Ga. App. LEXIS 245 (1919); Bank of Lumpkin County v. Justus, 150 Ga. 286, 103 S.E. 794, 1920 Ga. LEXIS 144 (1920); Seymour v. Bank of Thomasville, 157 Ga. 99, 121 S.E. 578, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 371 (1923); Northcutt v. Crowe, 116 Ga. App. 715, 158 S.E.2d 318, 1967 Ga. App. LEXIS 935 (1967).

Judgment is not void if plaintiff consents to proof of suretyship without notice. — Judgment against one signer of a note as principal and another as surety is not absolutely void and subject to collateral attack, although no pleading alleging suretyship was filed or any notice of intention to make proof thereof was given to the principal, when by consent of the plaintiff's attorney one of the signers was permitted to show that the signer was only security on the note. Freeman v. Bank of LaFayette, 20 Ga. App. 334, 93 S.E. 34, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 888 (1917).

Co-debtor was not a surety of a debtor within the meaning of O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-1, 10-7-45, and 10-7-57 as: (1) the note was executed so that both parties could buy a tract of land; (2) both parties received an equal benefit; (3) the debtor was solely liable for that portion of the loan that represented the payout of the previous mortgage on the debtor's property, and both parties were required to put up property in addition to the land they bought with the borrowed money; and (4) there was nothing in the agreement showing any intent by the parties that one was signing as the principal debtor and the other was signing as a surety. Johnson v. AgSouth Farm Credit, 267 Ga. App. 567, 600 S.E.2d 664, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 713 (2004).

Notice

Notice of intention to prove suretyship must have been given principal. — Surety's pleading setting up the fact of suretyship and praying that the judgment be molded accordingly must also show that previous notice had been given the principal of the surety's intention to make such proof. Johnson v. Georgia Fertilizer & Oil Co., 21 Ga. App. 530, 94 S.E. 850, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 389 (1918).

Notice when suretyship appears on face of contract. — This section requires notice of an intention to prove suretyship only when the fact of suretyship does not appear upon the face of the contract. Taff v. Larey, 29 Ga. App. 631, 116 S.E. 866, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 147 (1923).

Notice when suretyship is raised as defense. — Prior to 1979, a female defendant whose name appeared as a principal on the face of the contract sued on could plead in defense that she was in fact a surety only and that, being a married woman at the time she entered into the contract, the contract of suretyship was void; and it was not necessary to the validity of such defense that it appear that notice was given to the alleged principal, as required by this section, of her intention to make such defense. Brown v. Merchants Trading Co., 26 Ga. App. 331, 106 S.E. 208, 1921 Ga. App. LEXIS 137 (1921) (decided under former Code 1933, § 53-503, repealed in 1979).

An apparent maker of a note is not limited by the provisions of this section to relief over against a principal after payment of the debt, nor in a suit by the payee, when the apparent maker pleads that the maker is surety only and alleges grounds of discharge of liability to the payee, have the provisions of this section prescribing notice to the principal any application to such defense. Seymour v. Bank of Thomasville, 157 Ga. 99, 121 S.E. 578, 1923 Ga. LEXIS 371 (1923).

Creditor has no interest in notice. — It is obvious from the language of this section that the statute's provision as to notice applies solely to a collateral issue between the principal and the principal surety in which the creditor has no interest, and it is therefore no concern of the principal whether the surety, in a case covered by this section, gives notice to the principal of the surety's intention to make proof of suretyship. Bank of Lumpkin County v. Justus, 150 Ga. 286, 103 S.E. 794, 1920 Ga. LEXIS 144 (1920).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Surety making part payment may have fact put in record for contribution. — Surety without paying in full the joint debt, but upon paying, either before or after judgment, a portion only thereof, may maintain against a cosurety, for the purpose of compelling contribution, the statutory proceeding for having such fact entered of record; and when such a proceeding is instituted after judgment it is not essential for the petitioner to show that the execution issued thereon has been assigned to the petitioner. Cooper v. Chamblee, 114 Ga. 116, 39 S.E. 917, 1901 Ga. LEXIS 597 (1901).

Surety must follow section if not named as surety in execution. — If one defendant to a fi. fa., not named as security therein but claiming to be such, seeks to control it against a codefendant who is set forth as a security, to force contribution, one must proceed to obtain the legal control thereof former Code 1873, §§ 2166 and 2170 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-46 and 10-7-53). Burke v. Lee, 59 Ga. 165, 1877 Ga. LEXIS 222 (1877).

Right to control execution lost if O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-45 and 10-7-46 not followed. — If one of joint judgment debtors has paid off the judgment, claiming to have been only a surety of the other, but without taking such steps as are required former Civil Code 1895, §§ 2984 and 2985 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-45 and 10-7-46) to have one's true relation defined on the record, one is not entitled, in a contest exclusively between oneself and others who are judgment creditors of the alleged principal, arising on a rule for the distribution of money realized from the sale of property of the latter under another execution, to control the execution so paid by the one for the purpose of competing with other creditors claiming the money. Patterson v. Clark, 101 Ga. 214, 28 S.E. 623, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 197 (1897).

10-7-47. Control of execution and judgment by surety; subrogation to plaintiff's rights.

Any surety on the original contract, or on stay of execution, or on appeal, or in any other way, or the representative of a deceased surety, who shall have paid off or discharged the judgment or execution in whole or in part and shall have the fact of such payment by him entered on such execution by the plaintiff or his attorney or the collecting officer, shall have the control of such execution and the judgment upon which it is founded, to the same extent as if he were the original plaintiff therein, and be subrogated to all the rights of such plaintiff, for the purpose of reimbursing himself from his principal.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Benefits of this section are for an actual surety who becomes such on the authority of the principal. Therefore, one who is not a surety would not be entitled to control a judgment or fi. fa. merely because the surety had agreed with the creditor to become such. Taff v. Larey, 29 Ga. App. 631, 116 S.E. 866, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 147 (1923).

Applicability to involuntary payments. — The language, "who shall have paid off or discharged the judgment," as employed in this section, applies to an involuntary as well as a voluntary payment. Ezzard v. Bell, 100 Ga. 150, 28 S.E. 28, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 17 (1897).

Levy on and sale of surety's property. — A surety whose property, under an execution against the surety's principal and the surety, has been levied upon and sold in satisfaction of the sum due the judgment creditor, "pays off and discharges" the debt of the principal, within the meaning of this section. Ezzard v. Bell, 100 Ga. 150, 28 S.E. 28, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 17 (1897).

Applicability to partner paying joint judgment. — Former Civil Code 1910, § 5971 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-13-78), taken in connection with former Civil Code 1910, § 3558 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-7-47) gave a partner paying off a judgment binding on the partner and a copartner the right to enforce it to its full amount against the partnership assets. Higdon v. Williamson, 10 Ga. App. 376, 73 S.E. 528, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 519 (1912).

No legal right to subrogation unless surety or compelled to protect interest. — Legal right of subrogation arising out of the payment of the debt of another extends only in favor of a surety for the payment of the debt or in favor of one who is compelled to pay the debt to protect one's own right or interest, and there is no right of subrogation when, at the time of the payment of the debt, the plaintiff had no claim against or lien upon the property in question. Hiers v. Exum, 158 Ga. 19, 122 S.E. 784, 1924 Ga. LEXIS 72 (1924).

Lien takes effect from date of judgment. — When a surety takes control of the execution against the surety's principal, the lien of the judgment against the surety's principal in the surety's hands takes effect from the date of that judgment. Bailey v. Mizell, 4 Ga. 123, 1848 Ga. LEXIS 12 (1848).

Payment after principal's death entitles surety to proceed against principal's property. — After a judgment was rendered against an intestate in the intestate's lifetime, as principal, and the principal's surety, which judgment was paid by the surety since the death of the intestate, such payment, under the statutes of this state, had relation to the date of the judgment so as to enable the surety to remunerate the surety out of the property of the surety's principal. Ray v. Dennis, 5 Ga. 357, 1848 Ga. LEXIS 102 (1848).

Payment must be entered on execution. — If entry of payment was not made on the execution, the surety would not be able to enforce the contribution against a cosurety provided by former Civil Code 1895, § 2989 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-7-53). Cureton v. Cureton, 120 Ga. 559, 48 S.E. 162, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 640 (1904).

Entry may be made by justice of peace. — A justice of the peace is a collecting officer as to debts sued in the justice's court and may make, upon an execution issued from the justice's court against joint defendants, the entry of payment by one of the justices which is required by this section. Higdon v. Williamson, 10 Ga. App. 376, 73 S.E. 528, 1912 Ga. App. LEXIS 519 (1912).

Entry may be made by attorney for plaintiff. — When there was no entry on the fi. fa. showing its payment by the endorser, pending a claim case arising under a levy made for the benefit of such endorser, the attorney for the plaintiff in fi. fa. could make the entry. Thomason v. Wade, 72 Ga. 160, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 44 (1883).

Surety making payment is protected against fraudulent conveyance. — Surety on bail bond who pays judgment in trover is entitled to the protection afforded creditors as against a conveyance by the debtor to avoid payment of the judgment. Banks v. McCandless, 119 Ga. 793, 47 S.E. 332, 1904 Ga. LEXIS 362 (1904).

Surety's right limited to reimbursement for actual payment. — If a surety bought a judgment at a discount or, after levy of it upon the surety's property, obtained control of it by compromise at a price less than the amount apparently due on it, the surety would be entitled to enforce it against the principal for only the amount necessary for reimbursement, after receiving which the execution would be paid off and discharged. Stanford v. Connery, 84 Ga. 731, 11 S.E. 507, 1890 Ga. LEXIS 335 (1890).

Part payment gives surety no right of control without tender of amount due. — That a security has paid a part of the amount due on a fi. fa. does not give the security the right to control the same so as to reimburse the security. The security's rights are secondary to those of the holder of the fi. fa., and in order to control it without the consent of the latter, the security must comply with the requirements of former Code 1873, § 2155 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-7-23) as to tender. Cherry v. Singleton, 66 Ga. 206, 1880 Ga. LEXIS 50 (1880).

Transferee from surety cannot enforce execution against surety's property. — Under former Code 1882, §§ 2167, 2168 and 2169, when a surety paid off a fi. fa. against a principal and the surety personally and takes a transfer thereof, the debt was extinguished as to the surety and the surety became the creditor of the principal; and if the surety thereafter transfers the fi. fa. to another, the surety's transferee had no right to enforce it against the surety's property, but only against the property held by the principal. Jennings v. National Bank, 74 Ga. 782, 1885 Ga. LEXIS 398 (1885).

Surety was not entitled to capias against principal. — When the principal and sureties in a promissory note were sued and judgment and fi. fa. went against them jointly, the sureties paid off the fi. fa., and the sheriff made an entry to that effect on the fi. fa., the sureties had no right to return the fi. fa. and take out a ca. sa. and arrest the principal. Elam v. Rawson, 21 Ga. 139, 1857 Ga. LEXIS 19 (1857).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Surety's right limited to actual expenses. — Surety who completes a contract when the surety's principal defaults is entitled to moneys due to the principal only to the extent of the actual expenses of the surety. 1954-56 Ga. Op. Att'y Gen. 662.

10-7-48. Control of execution and judgment by surety when sued separately.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Independent remedies provided surety. — Former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3551, 3553, 3559, and 3560 were remedies to which the surety can resort for the surety's protection, independently of any voluntary action by the creditor. McMillan v. Heard Nat'l Bank, 19 Ga. App. 148, 91 S.E. 235, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 36 (1917).

Separate action against surety. — Surety may be sued separately from the surety's principal under this section. Amos v. Continental Trust Co., 22 Ga. App. 348, 95 S.E. 1025, 1918 Ga. App. LEXIS 718 (1925).

Principal and surety are joint and several obligors, although obligation is joint in form. — If an obligation, joint in form, is executed by one party as principal and another as surety, they are to be deemed joint and several obligors, since by former Civil Code 1910, § 3539 the obligation of the surety is accessory to that of the principal. Smith v. Moore, 45 Ga. App. 708, 165 S.E. 765, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 665 (1932).

Obligation on which one party is maker and another is accommodation endorser. — An obligation in the form "we promise to pay" but signed by one party as maker and endorsed by another as an accommodation endorser is a joint and several obligation, since the endorser is a mere surety. Smith v. Moore, 45 Ga. App. 708, 165 S.E. 765, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 665 (1932).

Holder of a joint and several note may sue the obligors jointly or severally or sue any one of the signers. On such an obligation the holder may sue either the principal or the surety by virtue of former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3553 and

The holder of a joint and several note may sue the principal and surety jointly, or at the holder's option the holder may sue either the principal or surety alone. Hicks v. Bank of Wrightsville, 57 Ga. App. 233, 194 S.E. 892, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 541 (1938).

Judgment against surety is valid without serving principal. — As a surety may be sued separately from a principal, the fact that service was not perfected upon the principal debtor to whom the goods were furnished would not affect the validity of the judgment properly obtained against the surety. Wesley v. Lewis Bros., 33 Ga. App. 783, 127 S.E. 660, 1925 Ga. App. LEXIS 718 (1925).

Judgment may be revived although no service or judgment had against principal. — When a proceeding is brought to revive a dormant judgment rendered against a surety on a joint and several note and the defendant objects to the revival of such judgment on the ground that the defendant's liability had been increased and that the defendant had been discharged from liability thereon because no judgment was rendered against the principal on the note, although no service of the suit was had on the principal, it was error for the judge to refuse to revive the judgment for that reason. Hicks v. Bank of Wrightsville, 57 Ga. App. 233, 194 S.E. 892, 1938 Ga. App. LEXIS 541 (1938).

Execution may be issued against surety alone on joint judgment. — Insofar as an affidavit of illegality asserts the defense that the execution did not follow the judgment, since it was issued against the surety alone, while the suit and the judgment were against another as principal and the surety only as security, and that the execution is therefore void, because the defendant was thereby deprived of the defendant's right to control the execution against the principal, the affidavit of illegality is without merit. Assuming that the better practice would have been — if this ground was sustained by the record in the proceeding — to have issued a single fi. fa. against both the principal and the surety, describing them respectively as such, the fact that a separate fi. fa. was issued against the surety without describing the surety as such would not deprive the surety of the rights accorded the surety by former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3556 through 3559 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-45 though 10-7-48), against the surety's principal, or render the execution void. Fowler v. King, 29 Ga. App. 500, 116 S.E. 54, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 95 (1923).

Pleading against endorser need not allege relationship to notes. — In view of former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3541, 3553, and 3559 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-4, 10-7-42, and 10-7-48), relative to sureties, the plaintiff's pleading in an action against an endorser alleging that the plaintiff was the owner and holder of the notes sued on in due course, bona fide and for value, states a cause of action and is not subject to dismissal for failure to allege the defendant's relationship to the notes and to the other parties to the notes. Meldrim v. Peoples Bank, 28 Ga. App. 294, 111 S.E. 76, 1922 Ga. App. LEXIS 458 (1922).

If one of the cosureties is insolvent, the deficiency in his share must be borne equally by the solvent sureties.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Codification of common law. — This section is but a codification of the principle of contribution of the common law and is not of statutory origin. Bigby v. Douglas, 123 Ga. 635, 51 S.E. 606, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 562 (1905).

Modification of common law. — Only amendment or modification of the common-law rule governing the amount which each of the cosureties must contribute to the one who has paid more than one's equal share of the indebtedness is found in the last sentence of this section. Higdon v. Bell, 25 Ga. App. 54, 102 S.E. 546, 1920 Ga. App. LEXIS 592 (1920).

Construction with federal provisions. — As adequate protection pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §§ 361 and 363, the court provided a junior creditor a replacement lien on claims for contribution and subrogation by the debtor against other related debtors after the property on which the junior creditor had a lien was sold. In re Bay Circle Props., No. Administered, 577 B.R. 587, 2017 Bankr. LEXIS 3870 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2017).

In an adversary proceeding in bankruptcy that sought determinations regarding a contribution claim and an adequate protection lien, the parties liable for contribution under Georgia law included only the debtors, as guarantors under a settlement agreement, but not primary obligors and pledgors; applying a presumption of solvency and both a balance sheet test and a cash flow test, an entity that had paid claims against it and was paying debts when due was solvent. Good Gateway, LLC v. NRCT, LLC (In re Bay Circle Props., LLC), 635 B.R. 784, 2022 Bankr. LEXIS 233 (Bankr. E.D. Mo. 2022).

Doctrine of contribution is limited to cosureties. — Doctrine of contribution, as applied to sureties, is limited to cosureties. Snow v. Brown, 100 Ga. 117, 28 S.E. 77, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 10 (1897).

No right of contribution between successive sureties. — A surety upon a guardian's bond, after obtaining the surety's discharge, although liable to the ward for any past default of the guardian, is not liable to a surety of the guardian upon a second bond who has answered for that default in consequence of the surety's own statutory liability upon the second bond. This liability of the second surety is primary, as between the second surety and the first surety, and the second surety has no right of contribution from the first surety. Tittle v. Bennett, 94 Ga. 405, 21 S.E. 62, 1894 Ga. LEXIS 94 (1894); Snow v. Brown, 100 Ga. 117, 28 S.E. 77, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 10 (1897).

Cosurety is entitled to binding contract requiring contribution. — Parol agreement of one surety was not sufficient to bind a cosurety as the surety was entitled to a valid, binding contract on which the surety could require contribution. English v. Bank of Ga., 76 Ga. 537, 1886 Ga. LEXIS 60 (1886).

Sureties paying debt may sue jointly for contribution on instrument. — Three of four sureties, who have paid the debt of their principal, may jointly sue their cosurety for contribution founding their action upon the obligation containing the contract of suretyship. Train v. Emerson, 141 Ga. 95, 80 S.E. 554, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 333 (1913).

Sureties may sue jointly on implied promise. — Two or more sureties who have paid the debt of their insolvent principal may jointly sue a cosurety for contribution, even when their action is based upon their right to contribution predicated upon the implied promise springing from the payment of the debt alone and is not based upon notes paid off and transferred to them, when the plaintiff sureties jointly paid the debt, although it was paid by their individual funds. Durden v. Youmans, 37 Ga. App. 182, 139 S.E. 91, 1927 Ga. App. LEXIS 570 (1927).

Action by surety against cosurety on original indebtedness is for contribution. — There is no authority which allows a cosurety to convert the cosurety's action for contribution into something else merely by finding the cosurety's action on the original evidence of indebtedness. It is still a suit to enforce contribution from cosureties, and the plaintiff is bound by the substantive rules pertaining to contribution. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

It is not some independent right but the right to contribution which is being enforced, and it is suit on the original evidence of indebtedness by way of subrogation to the creditor's remedy which is allowed to the surety merely as a form of action in aid of the right to contribution from cosureties. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga.

App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

Trial court erred in failing to award appellant partner prejudgment interest under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-51, as the judgment was for contribution under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-50 and the law of the case by appellee partner for sums appellant partner paid in excess of that paid by appellee partner since both were equally bound on the same instruments. Murphy v. McCaughey, 262 Ga. App. 570, 586 S.E.2d 16, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 829 (2003), cert. denied, No. S03C1809, 2003 Ga. LEXIS 1024 (Ga. Nov. 17, 2003).

Judgment must be limited to proportion due from each cosurety. — Since the substantive right and liability being enforced is that of contribution between co-obligors, each is liable only for an equal proportionate share of the debt. This liability is several and not joint, and a joint obligor who has paid the joint obligation is entitled to judgment against each of the co-obligors only for the proportion for which each is liable — judgment should not be entered against any one of them or against all of them jointly for the aggregate amount due from them. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

When co-obligors have received unequal benefits from the common obligation, the portion of the contribution that each must bear is according to the benefit that each has received, and the presumption that each co-obligor benefited in an equal degree is subject to rebuttal by proof that there was an inequality of benefits received. Steele v. Grot, 232 Ga. App. 847, 503 S.E.2d 92, 1998 Ga. App. LEXIS 854 (1998).

Joint and several judgment for aggregate amount due surety is not authorized. — There is no authority for the proposition that a surety or other co-obligor, however the surety may have found the surety's action for contribution, may obtain a joint and several judgment against the surety's several cosureties for the aggregate amount due the surety. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

In case of insolvency of one surety, solvent sureties bear burden equally. — Rule in equity in case of insolvency of a surety is that the solvent sureties bear equally the burden of payment. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

Insolvency of co-obligors. — In a lienholder's action for contribution, a co-obligor failed to rebut the presumption that all co-obligors were solvent because evidence of bankruptcy was not dispositive. Good Gateway, LLC v. NRCT, LLC (In re Bay Circle Props., LLC), No. 15-58440-WLH, No. 19-5284, 2022 Bankr. LEXIS 257 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. Jan. 31, 2022).

Time for bringing action depends on basis therefor. — Under this section, the surety entitled to contribution may sue the cosureties upon the written evidence of indebtedness (in which case the period of limitation would be that applicable to instruments of its class) or upon the implied contract raised by law in favor of one surety against the cosureties for contribution (in which instance the period of limitation would be that of an implied promise). Bigby v. Douglas, 123 Ga. 635, 51 S.E. 606, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 562 (1905); Reed v. Liberty Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 44 Ga. App. 544, 162 S.E. 154, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 371 (1932). (See also O.C.G.A. §§ 9-3-23 to 9-3-25).

Sureties founding their action for contribution upon the obligation containing the contract of suretyship will have the same time within which to bring the action as the creditor would have on the same instrument. Train v. Emerson, 141 Ga. 95, 80 S.E. 554, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 333 (1913).

Accommodation party is not surety now without express agreement. — Since the enactment in Georgia of the former Negotiable Instruments Law in 1924 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 11-3-101 through 11-3-805), an accommodation party is no longer a surety for the party accommodated as a legal consequence of the accommodation undertaking. The rule now is that the fact of suretyship must be written in the endorsement or there must be an express agreement that the accommodation party is signing as surety. Bell v. Kleinberg, 102 Ga. App. 623, 117 S.E.2d 262, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 696 (1960).

Accommodation party who is not surety may only sue on implied promise. — Since the enactment in Georgia of the former Negotiable Instruments Law in 1924 (see O.C.G.A. §§ 11-3-101 through 11-3-805), the ruling in Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653 (1893), to the effect that an action by an accommodation party against another party could be brought on the instrument as well as on the basis of an implied contract to reimburse, has not been the law. Bell v. Kleinberg, 102 Ga. App. 623, 117 S.E.2d 262, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 696 (1960) (four-year statute of limitations as to implied contracts applies and Reed v. Liberty Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 44 Ga. App. 544, 162 S.E. 154, will not be followed).

Signatures on separate agreements held not consequential. — Fact that corporate officers were not signatories to the same guaranty agreement but rather signed separate agreements, each of which contained language providing that the agreement inured only to the benefit of a bank and the undersigned, was of no consequence. Because both parties were sureties for the obligations of the corporation, and one of the parties paid the corporate obligation to the bank, that party was entitled to contribution from the other party. Dever v. Lee, 188 Ga. App. 483, 373 S.E.2d 224, 1988 Ga. App. LEXIS 1108 (1988).

Statute of limitations. — Four-year statute of limitations is applicable to claims for the right of contribution filed by one co-maker of a debt against another pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 10-7-50; thus, because a plaintiff filed a claim for contribution some four years and 10 months after the plaintiff paid the debt for which the plaintiff sought contribution from the defendants, the claim was time-barred. Gray v. Currie, No. 1:04-CV-3211-TWT, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 31407 (N.D. Ga. Nov. 21, 2005).

Interest award reversed. — Award of interest for a client against an attorney from the date that the client satisfied an underlying judgment against the client, the client's son, and the attorney had no legal basis and was reversed; it had been established that the client, the client's son, and the attorney were joint tortfeasors and while O.C.G.A. § 10-7-51 authorized the award of interest running from the date of a co-surety's payment of a joint obligation, it applied to contribution actions arising from joint instruments executed by the sureties, not to joint tortfeasors. The issue was not controlled by O.C.G.A. § 9-13-78 as it provided a method of enforcing contribution from a joint defendant and the statute did not purport to control an award of interest; O.C.G.A. § 7-4-12 provided that all money judgments bore post-judgment interest from the date of entry. Gerschick v. Pounds, 281 Ga. App. 531, 636 S.E.2d 663, 2006 Ga. App. LEXIS 940 (2006), cert. denied, No. S07C0191, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 95 (Ga. Jan. 8, 2007).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Right of control formerly limited to bankable instruments. — Neither Laws 1839, Cobb's 1851 Digest, p. 596, nor Georgia Laws 1845, Cobb's 1851 Digest, p. 598 (from which this section was derived), passed for the relief of endorsers, gave the control of executions to endorsers who had paid off the same against prior endorsers except such executions as had been issued on judgments founded on bankable instruments. Evans v. Rogers, 1 Ga. 463, 1846 Ga. LEXIS 95 (1846).

Right of control limited to payment after judgment. — Under Georgia Laws 1839, 1845, and 1850, Cobb's 1851 Digest, pp. 596, 598, and 600, when pending suit against a principal and endorser jointly, the endorser paid the note, this payment was a bar to the further prosecution of the suit, even though the further prosecution of the suit might be at the instance, and for the benefit of, the endorser. Griffin v. Hampton, 21 Ga. 198, 1857 Ga. LEXIS 35 (1857).

"Shall pay off or discharge" defined. — When the codifiers used the expression "shall pay off and discharge" in this section, they intended that those words should have the same significance as "compelled to pay." Ezzard v. Bell, 100 Ga. 150, 28 S.E. 28, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 17 (1897).

Section applies to involuntary payment as well as voluntary. Stiles v. Eastman, 1 Ga. 205, 1846 Ga. LEXIS 56 (1846); Ezzard v. Bell, 100 Ga. 150, 28 S.E. 28, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 17 (1897).

A voluntary payment is compulsory within legal contemplation, and there is no reason why a compulsory payment should not likewise fall within the spirit of this section. Ezzard v. Bell, 100 Ga. 150, 28 S.E. 28, 1897 Ga. LEXIS 17 (1897).

Plaintiff's attorney may enter payment on execution after levy. — Under this section, it having been discovered that there was no entry on the fi. fa. showing its payment by the endorser, pending a claim case arising under a levy made for the benefit of such endorser, the attorney for the plaintiff in fi. fa. could then make the entry. Thomason v. Wade, 72 Ga. 160, 1883 Ga. LEXIS 44 (1883).

Surety cannot control execution if cosureties do not consent to relationship. — If an accommodation endorser agreed with the creditor to become surety for all signers of the note, but those signing did not have notice of nor accept such relation, the accommodation endorser could not control the fi. fa. under this section, merely by reason of the accommodation endorser's agreement with the creditor. Taff v. Larey, 29 Ga. App. 631, 116 S.E. 866, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 147 (1923).

10-7-55. Protection of bona fide purchasers when surety controls judgment.

When the surety does not appear to be such in the judgment and execution, the lien of such judgment, when controlled by the surety, shall not interfere with bona fide purchasers without notice from the principal, whose rights were vested before the order giving control to the surety was granted.

10-7-56. Subrogation to rights of creditor; priority of claim.

A surety who has paid the debt of his principal shall be subrogated, both at law and in equity, to all the rights of the creditor and, in a controversy with other creditors, shall rank in dignity the same as the creditor whose claim he paid.

General Consideration
Application

General Consideration

"Subrogation" defined. — "Subrogation" is the substitution of another person in the place of the creditor whose obligation is paid, so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to all the rights of the creditor; it is of equitable origin, being founded upon the dictates of refined justice, its basis is the doing of complete, essential, and perfect justice between the parties, and its object is the prevention of injustice. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Construction by courts. — Courts incline to extend rather than restrict the principle of subrogation. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Effect of UCC. — Uniform Commercial Code does not abrogate, modify, affect, or abridge the equitable doctrine of subrogation. Argonaut Ins. Co. v. C & S Bank, 140 Ga. App. 807, 232 S.E.2d 135, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 1639 (1976); Pembroke State Bank v. Balboa Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 609, 241 S.E.2d 483, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1706 (1978).

Surety need not file under UCC to preserve surety's priority. — A surety is "secured" by the surety's right of subrogation, which relates back to the issuance of the bond, to defeat intervening creditors. The Uniform Commercial Code does not abrogate, modify, affect, or abridge the equitable doctrine of subrogation, and a surety is not required to file under the UCC to preserve the surety's priority under the equitable right of subrogation. Pembroke State Bank v. Balboa Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 609, 241 S.E.2d 483, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1706 (1978).

Cumulative remedy. — Only a cumulative remedy is afforded by this section as the doctrine of subrogation existed by general law prior to its adoption in the statutes. Curan v. Colbert, 3 Ga. 239, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 103 (1847).

Section not applicable to rights under § 10-7-41. — Subrogation under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-56 is not the same thing as a guarantor's right to recoup payment of a debt from the guarantor's principal under O.C.G.A. § 10-7-41. Fabian v. Dykes, 214 Ga. App. 792, 449 S.E.2d 305, 1994 Ga. App. LEXIS 1059 (1994).

Legal and equitable right. — Regardless of its origin in equity, subrogation under former Code 1933, §§ 103-501 and 103-502 was now a legal as well as an equitable right. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Former Code 1882, §§ 2176 and 2177 made subrogation a legal as well as an equitable right. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

What former Code 1882, §§ 2176 and 2177 did was to break down the exclusiveness of equity and carry the right of subrogation into law, so as to make equity and law concurrent and coequal with respect to this subject matter. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

Whether right is legal or equitable is now immaterial. — Whether former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3567 and 3568 serve to convert the right of substitution from an equitable to a legal right was quite immaterial since enforcement of equitable and legal rights was permitted in the same action in a court having jurisdiction to administer both. Train v. Emerson, 141 Ga. 95, 80 S.E. 554, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 333 (1913); Durden v. Youmans, 37 Ga. App. 182, 139 S.E. 91, 1927 Ga. App. LEXIS 570 (1927).

Section reaffirms subrogation founded upon equity, not contract. — Subrogation is not founded upon contract, express or implied, but upon principles of equity and justice. The doctrine was not limited or abrogated by this section, but positively reaffirmed. Argonaut Ins. Co. v. C & S Bank, 140 Ga. App. 807, 232 S.E.2d 135, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 1639 (1976).

Legal subrogation arises as a matter of equity without any agreement to that effect. Bank of Danielsville v. Seagraves, 167 Ga. App. 135, 305 S.E.2d 790, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2420 (1983).

Origins of legal subrogation. — Doctrine of subrogation is not founded on contract but has its origin in a sense of natural justice. The equitable principle of the surety's subrogation was incorporated into the 1863 Code as former Code 1863, §§ 2155 and 2156. Since the 1863 Code, this action is for the enforcement of a legal, as contradistinguished from an equitable, right. Fender v. Fender, 30 Ga. App. 319, 117 S.E. 676, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 430 (1923).

Conventional subrogation. — There is a well-recognized distinction between the right to sue on a claim of legal subrogation, which is of an equitable nature, and the right to sue on conventional subrogation, based on an agreement of the parties. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

There are known to the law two kinds of subrogation, legal and conventional. Legal subrogation arises by operation of law, when one having a liability or a right or a fiduciary relation in the premises pays a debt due by another under such circumstances that one is in equity entitled to the security or obligation held by the creditor whom one has paid. Conventional subrogation depends upon a lawful contract, and occurs when one having no interest in or relation to the matter pays the debt of another, and by agreement is entitled to the securities and rights of the creditor so paid. Erwin v. Brooke, 159 Ga. 683, 126 S.E. 777, 1925 Ga. LEXIS 39 (1925).

Subrogation is of two kinds. One is legal subrogation, which takes place as a matter of equity, without any agreement to that effect made with the person paying the debt. The other is conventional subrogation, which is applied when an agreement is made with the person paying the debt that one shall be subrogated to the rights and remedies of the original creditor. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Conventional subrogation depends upon contract and upon payment of the debt of another who then is entitled to the securities and rights of the creditor so paid. Bank of Danielsville v. Seagraves, 167 Ga. App. 135, 305 S.E.2d 790, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2420 (1983).

Conventional subrogation can take effect only by agreement, and has been said to be synonymous with assignment. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Conventional subrogation agreement need not be written. — Conventional subrogation agreement is not required to be in writing. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Standing to sue. — Unpublished decision: Insurer expressly limited the insurer's subrogation rights in a settlement agreement to any other person or entity who received either directly or indirectly any of the funds or property belonging to an injured child's estate. The child's co-counsel did not receive any of the misappropriated funds; thus, because the insurer's subrogation rights did not reach co-counsel, the insurer did not have standing to sue co-counsel. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Schneider, 267 Fed. Appx. 912, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 5039 (11th Cir. 2008).

Subrogation under section does not depend on judicial proceeding. — Former Code 1882, §§ 2176 and 2177 intended to effect the substitution of the surety by their own vigor and not leave it to be done by any court or any judicial proceedings. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

As soon as the debt is paid by the surety, the surety is subrogated by virtue of this section to all the rights of the creditor by vigor of the law, and not dependent upon any judicial proceedings. Sherling v. Long, 122 Ga. 797, 50 S.E. 935, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 331 (1905); Fender v. Fender, 30 Ga. App. 319, 117 S.E. 676, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 430 (1923).

Payment of debt is necessary. — Subrogation inures only to a surety who has paid the debt of the surety's principal. Jessee v. First Nat'l Bank, 154 Ga. App. 209, 267 S.E.2d 803, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 3240 (1980).

When note maker brought an action to cancel a security deed after the creditor assigned the note and security deed to the cosigner's estate when the note was paid from the cosigner's life insurance policy, the trial judge correctly refused to cancel the security deed which the creditor transferred to the cosigner's estate. Aultman v. United Bank, 259 Ga. 237, 378 S.E.2d 302, 1989 Ga. LEXIS 180 (1989).

Full amount of debt must be tendered. — When less than the total amount of the debt is tendered, subrogation is not permitted; the reason for this rule is that if the surety upon making a partial payment became entitled to subrogation pro tanto and thereby became entitled to the position of an assignee of the property to the extent of such payment, it would operate to place such surety upon a footing of equality with the holders of the unpaid part of the debt, and, in case the property was insufficient to pay the remainder of the debt for which the guarantor was bound, the loss would logically fall proportionately upon the creditor and upon the surety. Jessee v. First Nat'l Bank, 154 Ga. App. 209, 267 S.E.2d 803, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 3240 (1980).

Writing "paid" on instrument does not extinguish surety's rights. — Under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3567 and 3568, the fact that when a note was paid by the surety and it, with the mortgage securing it, was surrendered by the creditor to the surety, the word "Paid," dated and signed, was written across the face of the note and the mortgage, amounts to nothing more than a receipt for the money by the creditor to the surety, and does not operate legally to extinguish the rights of the surety against the principal or against other creditors of the principal contending for the mortgaged property, unless it is made to appear that it was the intent that such payment by the surety should operate to satisfy and extinguish the instruments; especially would this be true when it does not appear that the contending creditor had knowledge of such entry. Dabney v. Brigman Motors Co., 32 Ga. App. 652, 124 S.E. 370, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 580 (1924).

Surety making payment to state acquires its security, not remedies. — Right of subrogation does not apply to the remedies which the state has against a citizen, but as to the security which the state has. That security passes to the surety who pays off a debt to the state. Irby v. Livingston, 81 Ga. 281, 6 S.E. 591, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 108 (1888).

Surety acquires no greater rights than state had. — Lien which the state had under the Motor Fuel Tax Law of 1937 (now repealed and replaced by present O.C.G.A. § 48-9-1 et seq.) upon the property of a distributor for excise taxes collected by the distributor on the sale or use of motor fuel or kerosene did not have priority over the lien of a judgment creditor, when the rights of such creditor attached prior to the time the state revenue commissioner filed notice of the state's lien in the office of the clerk of the superior court; and when a surety upon such distributor's bond to the state became subrogated to the rights of the state by payment of such taxes to the state, the surety took the position of the state and acquired no greater rights with respect thereto than the state had at the time the surety became subrogated. Royal Indem. Co. v. Mayor of Savannah, 209 Ga. 383, 73 S.E.2d 205, 1952 Ga. LEXIS 529 (1952).

Surety in a state project. — Surety on a public contract, after assisting the contractor in completing the project, stood in the place of the contractor and was subrogated to the contractor's right of action for breach of contract against the Georgia Department of Corrections; under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IX(c), the state waived sovereign immunity for contracts. State Dep't of Corr. v. Developers Sur. & Indem. Co., 295 Ga. 741, 763 S.E.2d 868, 2014 Ga. LEXIS 732 (2014).

Section gives surety title to instrument paid off. — This section clothes the surety with the legal title to the security which the surety pays off. By legal subrogation, the paper becomes the surety's property, and the creditor has no right to withhold it from the surety's possession. Dabney v. Brigman Motors Co., 32 Ga. App. 652, 124 S.E. 370, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 580 (1924).

Section permits surety to sue on original obligation. — Since the adoption of former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3567 and 3568 (see now O.C.G.A.

§§ 10-7-56 and 10-7-57), not only can a surety paying the debt of the surety's principal maintain a suit in equity against the surety's principal upon the implied promise of indemnification, but, being legally subrogated to the rights of the creditor, the surety may sue on the original indebtedness. Fender v. Fender, 30 Ga. App. 319, 117 S.E. 676, 1923 Ga. App. LEXIS 430 (1923); Dabney v. Brigman Motors Co., 32 Ga. App. 652, 124 S.E. 370, 1924 Ga. App. LEXIS 580 (1924).

Surety entitled to contribution may sue the cosureties upon the written evidence of indebtedness or upon the implied contract raised by law in favor of one surety against the cosureties for contribution. Reed v. Liberty Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 44 Ga. App. 544, 162 S.E. 154, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 371 (1932).

Application

Accommodation party is not surety now without express agreement. — Since the enactment in Georgia of the former Negotiable Instruments Law in 1924 (see now O.C.G.A. § 11-3-101 et seq.), an accommodation party is no longer a surety for the party accommodated as a legal consequence of the accommodation undertaking. The rule now is that the fact of suretyship must be written in the endorsement or there must be an express agreement that the accommodation party is signing as surety. Bell v. Kleinberg, 102 Ga. App. 623, 117 S.E.2d 262, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 696 (1960).

Accommodation party who is not surety may now only sue on implied promise. — Since the enactment in Georgia of the former Negotiable Instruments Law in 1924 (see now O.C.G.A. § 11-3-101 et seq.), the ruling in Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653 (1893), to the effect that an action by an accommodation party against another party could be brought on the instrument as well as on the basis of an implied contract to reimburse, has not been the law. Bell v. Kleinberg, 102 Ga. App. 623, 117 S.E.2d 262, 1960 Ga. App. LEXIS 696 (1960) (four-year statute of limitations as to implied contracts applies and will not be followed).

Surety paying debt may collect from principal. — When person making a payment of the debt of another pays an indebtedness for which one is surety, and is therefore under a contractual obligation to pay it, one is entitled, by subrogation to the rights of the creditor, to collect from the debtor the amount of the payment thus made. Hartley v. Hartley, 50 Ga. App. 848, 179 S.E. 245, 1935 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1935).

Surety may recover from cosurety. — Surety who has paid the debt of the surety's principal is subrogated, both at law and in equity, to all the rights of the creditor and is entitled to recover from the cosurety (when there are only two sureties) half of the amount paid by the surety, with interest thereon and attorney's fees, provided the debt paid by the surety was past due and the statutory notice of suit was given. Reed v. Liberty Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 44 Ga. App. 544, 162 S.E. 154, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 371 (1932).

When several persons who are directors of a banking corporation borrow money which is used for the benefit of the bank and obligate themselves to repay it, all of the obligors are equally bound to bear the common burden, and when all of the obligors except one make a payment on the obligation, which payment represents their aggregate pro rata shares, and when all of the obligors execute a promissory note for the unpaid amount of the debt which represents the proportionate share of the obligor who did not pay, which is then paid in full by all the obligors except the one who had not paid and is transferred to them by the creditor, although no suit has been filed upon it, they are sureties and are subrogated to the rights of the creditor and are entitled to recover the amount of the note against the principal, who is the obligor who had not paid. Holton v. Smith, 44 Ga. App. 832, 163 S.E. 516, 1932 Ga. App. LEXIS 546 (1932).

Joint action for contribution on original obligation is proper. — Three of four sureties, who have paid the debt of their principal, may jointly sue their cosurety for contribution, founding their action upon the obligation containing the contract of suretyship, and will have the same time within which to bring suit as the creditor would have had on the same instrument. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892); Train v. Emerson, 141 Ga. 95, 80 S.E. 554, 1913 Ga. LEXIS 333 (1913).

If payment is by several, separate action is improper. — When accommodation endorsers have paid off more than their pro rata share of a note, one of the endorsers subrogated under this section cannot sue severally on the note for that one's pro rata share of the contribution to which the surety and the coowners of the note are entitled. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

Separate action proper for amount paid and not on original indebtedness. — When, of several endorsers for accommodation, some pay off the whole debt, though each of these has no several right of action upon the note for contribution against a coendorser who has paid nothing, yet each may sue severally for contribution to the extent of each one's own share thereof in an action for money paid for the defendant's use, payment to the creditor having been made, not out of a joint fund, but out of individual assets contributed by each paying endorser from one's own resources. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

Action is for contribution only, even if founded upon original indebtedness. — There is no authority which allows a cosurety to convert one's action for contribution into something else merely by founding one's action on the original evidence of indebtedness. It is still a suit to enforce contribution from cosureties, and the plaintiff is bound by the substantive rules pertaining to contribution. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

Although a surety, after payment of the principal's debt, was subrogated to the rights and remedies of the creditor and entitled to found the surety's action for contribution directly on the original evidence of indebtedness, it does not follow that the surety is entitled to enforce these obligations against the cosureties in exactly the same manner and in the same amounts as could the creditor. The surety is bound by the substantive rules of contribution, while the creditor is not. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

Section does not allow surety to escape part of deficiency if cosurety is insolvent. — Former Code 1933, §§ 103-501 and 103-502 have never been construed to allow a cosurety to escape paying part of the deficiency in the share of an insolvent cosurety. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

Section does not apply to successive sureties. — Exception to the general rule, laid down in this section, exists when in a legal proceeding there are successive sureties. In such a case the last surety is regarded as the primary one, and if the surety pays the debt of the surety's principal, the surety has no right of subrogation against the preceding sureties. This is true whether the dispute is between successive sureties in the legal proceeding itself or between the surety given in the legal proceeding and the surety in the original transaction upon which the legal proceeding is based. National Surety Co. v. White, 21 Ga. App. 471, 94 S.E. 589, 1917 Ga. App. LEXIS 645 (1917).

Section does not give subrogation when creditor has received mortgaged property in part payment. — Rights of subrogation given the surety by this section cannot be enjoyed when the creditor, who by the same contract has personal security and a mortgage upon personal property, has after maturity of the debt received the mortgaged property by contract with the principal debtor, in part payment at more than its full value at the time the creditor received it. Marshall v. Dixon, 82 Ga. 435, 9 S.E. 167, 1889 Ga. LEXIS 395 (1889).

Joint obligor is not like a surety subrogated to the rights of the creditor, but the obligor may enforce contribution on the implied contract on the obligor's part to share the common burden. Sherling v. Long, 122 Ga. 797, 50 S.E. 935, 1905 Ga. LEXIS 331 (1905).

Surety is not bound to pay and be subrogated. — Surety may pay up the debt and be subrogated to the rights of the creditor against the surety's principal, but the surety is not bound to do this. Curan v. Colbert, 3 Ga. 239, 1847 Ga. LEXIS 103 (1847).

Surety may renounce right by surety's actions. — Although a surety, if the surety so elects, may, under former Code 1882, §§ 2176 and 2177, have the right to be subrogated to the creditor's status, yet a foreclosure by the surety of the mortgage given to indemnify the surety was a renunciation of that right. Flannagan v. Forrest, 94 Ga. 685, 21 S.E. 712, 1894 Ga. LEXIS 270 (1894).

Spouse of grantor in security deed paying another debt is not subrogated. — Under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 3558, 3567 and 3568, because the wife of the grantor in a security deed paid a debt secured by another deed, the spouse was not entitled to be subrogated to the grantee's rights. Hiers v. Exum, 158 Ga. 19, 122 S.E. 784, 1924 Ga. LEXIS 72 (1924).

Venue. — Creditor holding a promissory note may sue the maker and sureties thereon in the county of the residence of either, and a surety paying the note succeeds to this right, and may bring action upon the note either in the county of the residence of the maker or in that of the residence of a cosurety, at the surety's option, as the surety is subrogated in law and equity to all the rights of the creditor. Anderson v. Armistead, 18 Ga. App. 387, 89 S.E. 525, 1916 Ga. App. LEXIS 364 (1916).

In action on conventional subrogation, subrogee need not prove superior equity. — In this state an action based on conventional subrogation, clearly established by an agreement reduced to writing or otherwise shown, in which no equitable relief is prayed, is a legal action and is not controlled by principles of equity; and a conventional subrogee does not have the burden of showing the superior equity in itself as plaintiff to authorize a recovery. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Subrogation rights inchoate until principal unable to pay. — Contractor's surety has subrogation rights with respect to any funds earned and paid to the contractor and still in the contractor's hands. Until the surety is called upon to perform the surety's obligation under a payment or performance bond, however, the right of subrogation is an inchoate one, which becomes choate only upon the maturing and performance of the obligation to pay, which occurs only when the principal finds itself unable to pay and calls upon the surety to pay in accordance with the terms of the bond. Cotton States Mut. Ins. Co. v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 168 Ga. App. 83, 308 S.E.2d 199, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 3374 (1983).

Obtaining rights under negotiable promissory notes. — Fidelity bond insurer who paid insured's claim for loss based on the employee's improper receipt of a personal loan would not obtain subrogation rights under negotiable promissory notes bank received from an employee at the time of loan until the notes were negotiated to the insurer. Bank of Danielsville v. Seagraves, 167 Ga. App. 135, 305 S.E.2d 790, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 2420 (1983).

Applicability in bankruptcy proceedings. — Assignment of a creditor's security interest to a co-debtor who paid the debt of a principal did not amount to inequitable conduct justifying subordination of the co-debtor's secured claim in bankruptcy proceedings, because the co-debtor had a clear right, under both state and federal law, to succeed to the creditor's position. Even in the absence of the assignment, the co-debtor would have been subrogated to the rights of the creditor. Estes v. Cranshaw (In re N & D Properties, Inc.), 54 B.R. 590, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15440 (N.D. Ga. 1985), modified, In re N & D Properties, Inc., 799 F.2d 726, 1986 U.S. App. LEXIS 30924 (11th Cir. 1986).

Genuine issues of material fact existed as to whether equitable subrogation applied. — In a declaratory judgment action brought by a senior lienholder against a junior lienholder of certain real property, a trial court erred by granting summary judgment to the senior lienholder based on equitable subrogation as, although the senior lienholder met the prima facie requirements for equitable subrogation, material issues of fact existed as to whether equitable subrogation applied to the case. Secured Equity Fin., LLC v. Washington Mut. Bank, F. A., 293 Ga. App. 50, 666 S.E.2d 554, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 717 (2008), cert. denied, No. S08C2028, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 968 (Ga. Nov. 3, 2008).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Section reaffirms equitable doctrine of subrogation. — Subrogation is not founded upon contract, express or implied, but upon principles of equity and justice. The doctrine was not limited or abrogated by this section, but positively reaffirmed. Argonaut Ins. Co. v. C & S Bank, 140 Ga. App. 807, 232 S.E.2d 135, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 1639 (1976).

Effect of UCC. — Uniform Commercial Code does not abrogate, modify, affect, or abridge the equitable doctrine of subrogation. Argonaut Ins. Co. v. C & S Bank, 140 Ga. App. 807, 232 S.E.2d 135, 1976 Ga. App. LEXIS 1639 (1976); Pembroke State Bank v. Balboa Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 609, 241 S.E.2d 483, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1706 (1978).

Subrogation defined. — "Subrogation" is the substitution of another person in the place of the creditor whose obligation is paid so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to all the rights of the creditor; it is of equitable origin, being founded upon the dictates of refined justice, its basis is the doing of complete, essential, and perfect justice between the parties, and its object is the prevention of injustice. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Subrogation is legal as well as equitable right. — Former Code 1882, §§ 2176 and 2177 made subrogation a legal as well as equitable right. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

What former Code 1882, §§ 2176 and 2177 did was to break down the exclusiveness of equity and carry the right of subrogation into law, so as to make equity and law concurrent and coequal with respect to this subject matter. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

Regardless of its origin in equity, subrogation under former Code 1933, §§ 103-501 and 103-502 was now a legal as well as an equitable right. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Subrogation rights inchoate until principal unable to pay. — Contractor's surety has subrogation rights with respect to any funds earned and paid to the contractor and still in the contractor's hands. Until the surety is called upon to perform the surety's obligation under a payment or performance bond, however, the right of subrogation is an inchoate one, which becomes choate only upon the maturing and performance of the obligation to pay, which occurs only when the principal finds itself unable to pay and calls upon the surety to pay in accordance with the terms of the bond. Cotton States Mut. Ins. Co. v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 168 Ga. App. 83, 308 S.E.2d 199, 1983 Ga. App. LEXIS 3374 (1983).

Construction by courts. — Courts incline to extend rather than restrict the principle of subrogation. First Nat'l Bank v. American Sur. Co., 71 Ga. App. 112, 30 S.E.2d 402, 1944 Ga. App. LEXIS 293 (1944).

Contract of suretyship alone does not give surety interest in security. — Surety has not, by virtue of the contract of suretyship alone, any right, title, or interest in property which the surety's principal has pledged to a creditor as security for a debt. Conley v. Kelley, 43 Ga. App. 822, 160 S.E. 532, 1931 Ga. App. LEXIS 574 (1931).

Subrogation of surety. — As soon as a debt is paid, the surety paying the debt is subrogated to the creditor's rights and to any and all remedies for the enforcement thereof for the surety's own reimbursement and is substituted in place of the creditor to all securities held by the latter for the payment of the debt. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

Payment of debt is necessary. — Since the note maker brought action to cancel security deed after the creditor assigned the note and security deed to the cosigner's estate when the note was paid from the cosigner's life insurance policy, the trial judge correctly refused to cancel the security deed which the creditor transferred to the cosigner's estate. Aultman v. United Bank, 259 Ga. 237, 378 S.E.2d 302, 1989 Ga. LEXIS 180 (1989).

Subrogation requires full payment. — Pro tanto assignment or subrogation will not be made upon payment of part of the debt. All of the debt must be paid before there is any subrogation. Erwin v. Brooke, 159 Ga. 683, 126 S.E. 777, 1925 Ga. LEXIS 39 (1925).

When less than the total amount of the debt is tendered, subrogation is not permitted. Jessee v. First Nat'l Bank, 154 Ga. App. 209, 267 S.E.2d 803, 1980 Ga. App. LEXIS 3240 (1980).

Party paying is surety. — To be substituted under this section for the creditor, it is necessary only that the payment of the debt should be made by a surety, it matters not whether the surety is a maker, endorser, drawer, acceptor, or what not. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

Right extends to original security on which surety is bound. — "All securities" as used in this section will include the identical security, the judgment, promissory note, bill, bond, or other contractual instrument, upon which the surety and the cosureties are bound with and for the principal debtor. Though there was a conflict on the question, the better opinion was that the primary and original security, as well as all others, was embraced in the equitable right of subrogation as it existed prior to the Code, irrespective of any statute. Hull v. Myers, 90 Ga. 674, 16 S.E. 653, 1892 Ga. LEXIS 233 (1892).

Co-debtor was not a surety of a debtor within the meaning of O.C.G.A. §§ 10-7-1, 10-7-45, and 10-7-57 as: (1) the note was executed so that both parties could buy a tract of land; (2) both parties received an equal benefit; (3) the debtor was solely liable for that portion of the loan that represented the payout of the previous mortgage on the debtor's property, and both parties were required to put up property in addition to the land they bought with the borrowed money; and (4) there was nothing in the agreement showing any intent by the parties that one was signing as the principal debtor and the other was signing as a surety. Johnson v. AgSouth Farm Credit, 267 Ga. App. 567, 600 S.E.2d 664, 2004 Ga. App. LEXIS 713 (2004).

Surety acquires state's security, not remedies. — Right of subrogation does not apply to the remedies which the state has against a citizen, but as to the security which the state has. That security passes to the surety who pays off a debt to the state. Irby v. Livingston, 81 Ga. 281, 6 S.E. 591, 1888 Ga. LEXIS 108 (1888).

Section does not allow surety to escape part of deficiency if cosurety is insolvent. — Former Code 1933, §§ 103-501 and 103-502 have never been construed to allow a cosurety to escape paying part of the deficiency in the share of an insolvent cosurety. Todd v. Windsor, 118 Ga. App. 805, 165 S.E.2d 438, 1968 Ga. App. LEXIS 1528 (1968).

Filing under UCC not necessary to preserve surety's priority. — Surety is "secured" by the surety's right of subrogation, which relates back to the issuance of the bond, to defeat intervening creditors. The Uniform Commercial Code does not abrogate, modify, affect, or abridge the equitable doctrine of subrogation, and a surety is not required to file under the UCC to preserve the surety's priority under the equitable right of subrogation. Pembroke State Bank v. Balboa Ins. Co., 144 Ga. App. 609, 241 S.E.2d 483, 1978 Ga. App. LEXIS 1706 (1978).

Sureties are discharged if creditor takes mortgaged property. — When a creditor on a promissory note signed by three persons, two of whom were sureties, having as further security for the debt a mortgage upon personal property, takes charge of such personalty, such property being sufficient in value to discharge the debt, and fails to appropriate it to a payment of the note, the sureties will be discharged from liability thereon. Barrett v. Bass Bros. & Co., 105 Ga. 421, 31 S.E. 435, 1898 Ga. LEXIS 528 (1898).

(e) The authority shall have the power to sell or dispense, upon obtaining a license from the Department of Revenue, or to permit others to sell or dispense, upon obtaining a license from the Department of Revenue, alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises but only upon and within the territorial limits of property of or under the management and control of the authority. The authority shall not have the power to sell or dispense alcoholic beverages in unbroken packages for the purpose of permitting such unbroken packages to be carried off the premises. The authority shall determine and regulate by resolution, as it may amend from time to time, the conditions under which such sales or dispensing of alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises shall be made or shall be permitted, including the hours and days during which the sale or dispensing of alcoholic beverages shall be made or shall be permitted.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Nature of functions performed. — Functions performed by the World Congress Center Authority are primarily, if not exclusively, executive. Greer v. State, 233 Ga. 667, 212 S.E.2d 836, 1975 Ga. LEXIS 1415 (1975) (decided under Ga. L. 1974, p. 174, prior to amendment by Ga. L. 1975, p. 435, § 1).

10-9-4.1. Adoption and enforcement of ordinances relating to property, affairs, and administration of authority; penalties.

(a) In addition to and not in derogation of its other powers under this chapter, the authority is empowered to exercise such of the police powers of the state as may be necessary to maintain peace and order.

(b) The authority shall have legislative power to adopt reasonable ordinances relating to the property, affairs, and administration of the authority for which no provision has been made by general law and which are not inconsistent with the general laws and Constitution of the State of Georgia and the laws and Constitution of the United States. The officers of the Georgia World Congress Center Police, including the Security Guard Division thereof, and law enforcement officers acting within the jurisdiction of the authority under paragraph (3) of subsection (d) of Code Section 10-9-15, and subject to the requirements of Chapter 8 of Title 35, the "Georgia Peace Officer Standards and Training Act," shall be authorized to serve and execute warrants and to make arrests for violation of ordinances adopted by the authority. For the purposes of exercising the powers and responsibilities of such officers as peace officers under paragraph (8) of Code Section 35-8-2, including their duties and responsibilities with respect to matters occurring within the limits of the facilities of the authority or requests by another law enforcement agency to provide aid and assistance, such officers shall have the same authority, powers, privileges, and immunities regarding enforcement of laws as law enforcement officers employed by the state. Prosecutions for violations of the ordinances of the authority shall be in the magistrate court sitting in the county in which such violation occurs as provided in Article 4 of Chapter 10 of Title 15. The authority may provide that ordinance violations may be tried upon citations with or without a prosecuting attorney as well as upon accusations in the manner prescribed in Code Section 15-10-63.

(c) The maximum punishment for violation of such an ordinance shall be stated in the ordinance and shall not exceed a fine of $500.00 or imprisonment for 60 days, or both.

(d) Nothing in this Code section shall prevent prosecution of any act which is a violation of an ordinance of the authority under any law applicable to such act.

History.
Code 1981, § 10-9-4.1, enacted by Ga. L. 1996, p. 916, § 1.

10-9-5. Transfer of duties of Department of Economic Development; actions to be performed by authority under contract with and on behalf of department; costs; ratification of past actions.

The authority is authorized and directed to contract with the Department of Economic Development to exercise on behalf of the department such future responsibility in connection with the acquisition, construction, operation, management, and maintenance of the project as is now or may be vested in the department; and the Department of Economic Development is authorized by such contract to delegate to the authority all of its responsibilities and powers with respect to the project and to transfer to the authority any and all contracts, plans, documents, or other papers of said department relating to the project, together with any and all funds heretofore or hereafter appropriated to it for the acquisition, construction, operation, management, or maintenance of the project or for all other purposes related to the project, other than appropriations made specifically for debt service purposes, as compensation to the authority under such contract. Under contract with the Department of Economic Development, as authorized in this Code section, the authority on behalf of the Department of Economic Development shall plan, construct, erect, acquire, own, repair, remodel, maintain, add to, extend, improve, equip, operate, and manage the project, as hereinabove defined, on property owned by or leased by the State of Georgia in the City of Atlanta, Georgia, the cost of any such project to be paid in full or in part from the proceeds of general obligation bonds issued by the State of Georgia as the General Assembly may authorize or from such proceeds and other funds as may be available for such purposes, including any grant from the United States of America or any agency or instrumentality thereof. All actions of the authority and the Department of Economic Development, or their predecessors, heretofore taken in connection with such contractual relationship, are ratified and confirmed and shall not be affected by any provision of this chapter. Nothing in this Code section shall affect the powers or duties of the Georgia State Financing and Investment Commission or of the State Properties Commission. Nothing in this Code section nor anything in any contract between the authority and the Department of Economic Development shall prevent the Department of Economic Development from contracting with the Georgia Building Authority for the provision of a parking facility or for any other exercise of its powers necessary or convenient to the department.

10-9-6. Appointment and terms of members of board of governors; vacancies; travel expenses and per diem.

(a) The board of governors of the authority shall consist of 15 members. Each member shall serve for a term of four years, with the beginning and ending dates of terms to be specified by the Governor except that the four additional positions added in 1999 shall be appointed for initial terms ending July 1, 2002, but their successors shall be appointed for four-year terms. All members of the board shall be appointed by the Governor of the State of Georgia and shall serve until the appointment and qualification of a successor. Said members shall be appointed from the general public; and no person holding any other office of profit or trust under the state shall be appointed to membership.

10-9-49. Lease of facilities; terms and conditions; contracts with public entities.

(a)(1) Subject to the requirements of paragraph (2) of this subsection, the authority shall operate and manage the facilities financed by the issuance of revenue bonds as authorized by this article. The authority may, incident to such operation and management, lease the facilities to persons, firms, private corporations, authorities, counties, municipal corporations, public corporations, public authorities, or other political subdivisions of this state under leases covering all or such separately identified portions of the facilities as the authority may determine appropriate and upon and for such terms, conditions, and considerations and for such rentals, fees, prices, and other charges as the authority shall determine appropriate. The authority shall fix the rentals, fees, prices, and other charges payable to the authority under such leases so that the aggregate amount of such rentals, fees, prices, or other charges derived by the authority thereunder, together with other revenues and earnings of the authority from the facilities designated by the resolution authorizing the issuance of the revenue bonds, and together with revenues, earnings, and funds otherwise available to the authority for such purposes, are at least sufficient to pay the principal, interest, premiums, discounts, fees, costs, or expenses payable by the authority on or with respect to all of the revenue bonds and other obligations issued by the authority for the purpose of financing such facilities as such principal, interest, premiums, discounts, fees, costs, or expenses shall become due, together with the costs of the maintenance, repair, and operation of the facilities, including reserves established for such purposes, and the payment and performance of contractual obligations of the authority. The obligation of any lessee to the authority under any such lease may be secured in such manner as the authority shall determine appropriate. Any such lease may provide that the authority may be subrogated to and may at its election upon such terms as may be set forth in such lease enforce all contracts or rights of action of such lessee relating to or arising out of the operation of the facilities covered by such lease. Any such lease shall contain such other terms, conditions, and considerations as the authority may determine appropriate.

(2) Any lease provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection which lease is for a term in excess of ten years must, as a condition precedent to its effectiveness, be approved by the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittees of the Senate and House of Representatives meeting jointly as one committee; and such approval shall require the affirmative votes of at least 11 members of such subcommittees sitting jointly.

(b) As used in this article, "lease" includes a lease or sublease and may, in the discretion of the authority, be in form and substance an estate for years, usufruct, license, concession, or any other right or privilege to use or occupy or conduct any activity within the facilities. The term "lessee" includes lessee or sublessee, tenant, licensee, concessionaire, or other person contracting for such estate, interest, right, or privilege.

(c) In the exercise of its powers under this chapter, including the powers under this article, the authority may contract with any public entity which shall include the state or with any other public agency, public corporation, or public authority, for joint services, for the provision of services, or for the joint or separate use of facilities which the contracting parties are authorized by law to undertake or provide.

(d) Pursuant to any such contract, in connection with any facility authorized under this article or any project authorized under this chapter, the authority may undertake such facility or provide such services or facilities or projects of the authority, in whole or in part, to or for the benefit of the public entity contracting with the authority with respect to those activities, services, or facilities or projects which the contracting public entity is authorized by the Constitution or laws of this state to provide, including, but not limited to, those set forth in Article IX, Section III, Paragraph I of the Constitution and Chapters 42, 44, 61, and 64 of Title 36 and Article 3 of Chapter 13 of Title 48, and any such contracting public entity is authorized to undertake to pay the authority for such activities, services, or facilities or projects such amounts and on such terms as the parties may determine.

(e) The state and each institution, department, or other agency thereof or each county, municipality, school district, or other political subdivision of this state and each public agency, public corporation, or public authority is authorized to contract with the authority in connection with any activity, service, or facility which such public entity is otherwise authorized to provide to obtain the performance of such activity or provision of such services or facilities through the authority.

(f) In connection with its operations, the authority may similarly obtain from, and each public entity may provide, such activities, services, or facilities which the authority is authorized to provide.

(g) Except as provided by Article VII, Section IV, Paragraph IV of the Constitution, any such contract authorized by this Code section or the revenues derived therefrom may be designated as security for revenue bonds issued under this article.

Code Commission notes.

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1988, the correct spelling of "concessionaire" was substituted in the second sentence of subsection (b) and commas were inserted following "activities" and "services" in subsection (d).

10-9-50. Enforceability against authority; limitation on state liability.

(a)(1) Revenue bonds issued under the authority of this article shall not be deemed to constitute a debt of the state or a pledge of the faith and credit of the state. The bonds shall be enforceable against the authority only to the extent of, and only against funds derived from, the rents, revenues, earnings, and funds derived from the facilities designated by the resolution authorizing the issuance of such revenue bonds or which are otherwise available to the authority for such purposes which are so designated, including but not limited to rents, revenues, earnings, and funds which are:

(A) Payable to the authority by the lessee or lessees and received by the authority from the lessee or lessees under the lease or leases by the authority of the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of such revenue bonds described in the resolutions authorizing the issuance of such revenue bonds;

(B) Payable to the authority under such contracts as may be entered into in accordance with Code Section 10-9-49, relating to the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of the revenue bonds or the use thereof or services provided through such facilities, which are designated as security for the revenue bonds;

(C) Payable to the authority under such other contracts or agreements relating to the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of the revenue bonds as may be designated as security for such bonds; and

(D) As may otherwise be designated as security for such bonds either: (i) derived from or in connection with the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of the revenue bonds or the use or operation thereof or the services provided through such facilities; or (ii) otherwise available to the authority for such purposes.

The bonds shall be payable solely from the rents, revenues, earnings, and funds described in this paragraph, except that the bonds may, in addition and in the discretion of the authority, be paid in part by the authority from any other source of funds lawfully available to the authority for that purpose. The authority shall not be obligated in any way, however, to make any payments from any such other source of funds.

(2) The issuance of the revenue bonds shall not directly or indirectly or contingently obligate the state to continue or to levy or pledge any form of taxation whatsoever therefor or to continue or make any appropriation for the payment thereof. Revenue bonds issued under the authority of this article shall not be payable from or a charge upon any funds other than those pledged to the payment thereof nor shall the authority be otherwise directly or indirectly subject to any pecuniary liability thereon. Except as provided in this article, a holder or holders of any such revenue bonds, directly or through any trustee or receiver, shall not have the right to enforce payment thereof against the authority or any property of or any right of action of or against the authority nor shall any such revenue bonds constitute a charge, lien, or encumbrance, legal or equitable, upon any property of or any right of action of or against the authority.

(b) Notice of the limitations of this Code section shall be set forth on the face of the revenue bonds which shall further provide that the obligations of the authority thereunder are limited by the provisions of this article.

History. Code 1981, § 10-9-50, enacted by Ga. L. 1988, p. 556, § 4; Ga. L. 1989, p. 1195, § 8; Ga. L. 2017, p. 774, § 10/HB 323.

10-9-51. Security; provisions in resolution or trust indenture for protection of bondholder rights and remedies; sinking fund.

(a) Subject to the limitations set forth in this chapter, the authority shall be authorized to provide, directly or through lessees of the project, such security for revenue bonds issued by it as it may determine appropriate.

(b)(1) Without limitation of the provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section, in the discretion of the authority, any issue of revenue bonds may be secured by a trust indenture by and between the authority and a corporate trustee, which may be any trust company or bank having the powers of a trust company within or outside the state. The trust indenture may pledge or assign rents, revenues, earnings, and funds derived from the facilities designated by the resolution authorizing the issuance of such revenue bonds or which may be otherwise available to the authority for such purposes, including but not limited to rents, revenues, earnings, and funds which are:

(A) Payable to the authority by the lessee or lessees and received by the authority from the lessee or lessees under the lease or leases by the authority of the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of such revenue bonds described in the resolutions authorizing the issuance of such revenue bonds;

(B) Payable to the authority under such contracts as may be entered into in accordance with Code Section 10-9-49, relating to the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of the revenue bonds or the use thereof or services provided through such facilities, which are designated as security for the revenue bonds;

(C) Payable to the authority under such other contracts or agreements relating to the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of the revenue bonds as may be designated as security for such bonds; and

(D) As may otherwise be designated as security for such bonds either: (i) derived from or in connection with the facilities acquired or improved by the proceeds of the revenue bonds or the use or operation thereof or the services provided through such facilities; or (ii) otherwise available to the authority for such purposes.

(2) Either the resolution providing for the issuance of the revenue bonds or the trust indenture may contain such provisions for protecting and enforcing the rights and remedies of the bondholders as may be reasonable and proper and not in violation of law, including covenants setting forth the duties of the authority in relation to the acquisition of property; the construction of the project; the maintenance, operation, repair, and insurance of the project; and the custody, safeguarding, manner of disbursements, and application of all moneys and may also provide that any facility shall be constructed and paid for under the supervision and approval of consulting engineers or architects employed or designated by the authority. The resolution or the trust indenture may also require that the security given by contractors and by any depository of the proceeds of the bonds or revenues or other moneys be satisfactory to such purchasers and may also contain provisions concerning the conditions, if any, upon which additional revenue bonds may be issued. The indenture may set forth the rights and remedies of the bondholders and of the trustee and may restrict the individual right of action of bondholders as is customary in trust indentures securing revenue bonds and debentures of corporations.

(c) The resolution or trust indenture may provide that the rents, revenues, earnings, and funds which are designated as security for the revenue bonds shall be set aside into a sinking fund, which sinking fund shall be pledged to and charged with the payment of:

(1) The interest upon the revenue bonds as the interest falls due;

(2) The principal of the bonds as the same falls due;

(3) The necessary charges of paying agents for paying principal and interest;

(4) Any premium upon bonds retired by call or purchase as provided in this article; and

(5) Any fees, costs, or expenses payable under the revenue bonds or trust indentures.

(d) The use and disposition of the sinking fund shall be subject to such regulations as may be provided in the resolution authorizing the issuance of the revenue bonds or in the trust indenture, but, except as may otherwise be provided in the resolution or trust indenture, such sinking fund shall be a fund for the benefit of all revenue bonds without distinction or priority of one over another. (C) A statement of the potential economic impact of the enterprise, including the number, location, and types of jobs expected to be created; and

(D) Such other information as the center shall request; and

(6) Approval of an equity contribution may be made after the center finds, based upon the application submitted by the enterprise and such additional investigation as the staff of the center shall make and incorporate in its records, that:

(b) The center, subject to the approval of the board or its designee, may authorize transfers directly from the fund or indirectly, as described in subsection (c) of this Code section, from an investment entity as to which the state is the sole limited liability owner, to make equity contributions to one or more investment entities whose structures, purposes, and operations are consistent with the criteria specified in this chapter. state for every $1.00 of equity contributions committed by the state from the fund or from an investment entity which the state is the sole limited liability owner of; or

In addition, the amount of investment by an investment entity in qualified securities issued by an enterprise should ordinarily not represent more than 49 percent of the total qualified securities at the time such qualified securities are purchased by the investment entity, after giving effect to the conversion of all outstanding convertible qualified securities of the enterprise; provided, however, that the investment in qualified securities of the enterprise by the investment entity can exceed 49 percent if, in the investment entity's judgment exercised in accordance with paragraph (5) of this subsection, such greater investment is prudent; and provided, further, that an amount greater than $1 million of funds attributable to equity contributions by the state from the fund may be invested by the investment entity in qualified securities of an enterprise if the enterprise is in severe financial difficulty and, in the judgment of the investment entity, an investment of such greater amount is necessary to preserve the initial investment in qualified securities;

(3) The investment entity shall make authorized investments in enterprises engaged in an entrepreneurial business only after receipt of an application from the enterprise that contains:

(D) Such other information as the investment entity shall request;

(4) Approval of an investment may be made after the investment entity finds, based upon the application submitted by the enterprise and such additional investigation as the staff of the investment entity shall make and incorporate in its records, that:

(c) The center, subject to the approval of the board or its designee, may authorize transfers from the fund to make equity contributions to one or more investment entities as to which the state is the sole limited liability owner. Any such investment entities as to which the state is the sole limited liability owner shall be assigned for administrative purposes to the center within the meaning of Code Section 50-4-3. Such investment entities may make investments in other investment entities, which make equity contributions pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section. Such investment entities may also make equity contributions through direct purchases of qualified securities of enterprises, subject to the center and the investment entity assuring themselves that the following conditions will be satisfied:

(a) This chapter shall not require a record or signature to be created, generated, sent, communicated, received, stored, or otherwise processed or used by electronic means or in electronic form.

(b) This chapter shall apply only to transactions between parties each of which has agreed to conduct transactions by electronic means. Whether the parties agree to conduct a transaction by electronic means is determined from the context and surrounding circumstances, including the parties' conduct.

(c) A party that agrees to conduct a transaction by electronic means may refuse to conduct other transactions by electronic means. The right granted by this subsection shall not be waived by agreement.

10-12-7. Legal effect of electronic records or signatures.

(b) A contract shall not be denied legal effect or enforceability solely because an electronic record was used in its formation.

(c) If a law requires a record to be in writing, an electronic record shall satisfy the law.

(d) If a law requires a signature, an electronic signature shall satisfy the law.

History.
Code 1981, § 10-12-7, enacted by Ga. L. 2009, p. 698, § 1/HB 126.

10-12-8. Ability to retain, store, and print electronic records; requirements for posting and display of records; variation by agreement.

(a) If parties have agreed to conduct a transaction by electronic means and a law requires a person to provide, send, or deliver information in writing to another person, the requirement shall be satisfied if the information is provided, sent, or delivered, as the case may be, in an electronic record capable of retention by the recipient at the time of receipt. An electronic record is not capable of retention by the recipient if the sender or its information processing system inhibits the ability of the recipient to print or store the electronic record.

(b) If a law other than this chapter requires a record to be posted or displayed in a certain manner; to be sent, communicated, or transmitted by a specified method; or to contain information that is formatted in a certain manner, the following rules shall apply:

(1) The record shall be posted or displayed in the manner specified in the other law;

(d) The requirements of this Code section shall not be varied by agreement, but:

(1) To the extent a law other than this chapter requires information to be provided, sent, or delivered in writing but permits that requirement to be varied by agreement, the requirement under subsection (a) of this Code section that the information be in the form of an electronic record capable of retention may also be varied by agreement; and

(2) A requirement under a law other than this chapter to send, communicate, or transmit a record by first-class mail, postage prepaid, or by regular United States mail may be varied by agreement to the extent permitted by the other law.

(b) The effect of an electronic record or electronic signature attributed to a person under subsection (a) of this Code section shall be determined from the context and surrounding circumstances at the time of its creation, execution, or adoption, including the parties' agreement, if any, and otherwise as provided by law.

10-12-10. Rules applicable when change or error in electronic record occurs.

If a change or error in an electronic record occurs in a transmission between parties to a transaction, the following rules shall apply:

(1) If the parties have agreed to use a security procedure to detect changes or errors and one party has conformed to the procedure but the other party has not, and the nonconforming party would have detected the change or error had that party also conformed, the conforming party may avoid the effect of the changed or erroneous electronic record;

(2) In an automated transaction involving an individual, the individual may avoid the effect of an electronic record that resulted from an error made by the individual in dealing with the electronic agent of another person if the electronic agent did not provide an opportunity for the prevention or correction of the error and, at the time the individual learns of the error, the individual:

(A) Promptly notifies the other person of the error and that the individual did not intend to be bound by the electronic record received by the other person;

(B) Takes reasonable steps, including steps that conform to the other person's reasonable instructions, to return to the other person or, if instructed by the other person, to destroy the consideration received, if any, as a result of the erroneous electronic record; and

(C) Has not used or received any benefit or value from the consideration, if any, received from the other person;

(3) If neither paragraph (1) nor paragraph (2) of this Code section applies, the change or error shall have the effect provided by other law, including the law of mistake, and the parties' contract, if any; and

(4) Paragraphs (2) and (3) of this Code section shall not be varied by agreement.

(a) If a law requires that a record be retained, such requirement shall be satisfied by retaining an electronic record of the information in the record which:

(1) Accurately reflects the information set forth in the record after it was first generated in its final form as an electronic record or otherwise; and

(2) Remains accessible for the retention period required by law.

(b) A requirement to retain a record in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section shall not apply to any information the sole purpose of which is to enable the record to be sent, communicated, or received.

(c) A person may satisfy subsection (a) of this Code section by using the services of another person if the requirements of that subsection are satisfied.

(d) If a law requires a record to be presented or retained in its original form, or provides consequences if the record is not presented or retained in its original form, that law is satisfied by an electronic record retained in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section.

(e) If a law requires retention of a check, that requirement is satisfied by retention of an electronic record of the information on the front and back of the check in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section.

(f) A record retained as an electronic record in accordance with subsection (a) of this Code section shall satisfy a law requiring a person to retain a record for evidentiary, audit, or like purposes unless a law enacted after July 1, 2009, specifically prohibits the use of an electronic record for the specified purpose.

(g) This Code section shall not preclude a governmental agency of this state from specifying additional requirements for the retention of a record subject to the agency's jurisdiction.

(h) This Code section shall not preclude the Georgia Technology Authority from specifying additional technology requirements in accordance with Code Section 50-25-4.

In an automated transaction, the following rules shall apply:

(1) A contract may be formed by the interaction of electronic agents of the parties, even if no individual was aware of or reviewed the electronic agents' actions or the resulting terms and agreements;

(2) A contract may be formed by the interaction of an electronic agent and an individual, acting on the individual's own behalf or for another person, including by an interaction in which the individual performs actions that the individual is free to refuse to perform and which the individual knows or has reason to know will cause the electronic agent to complete the transaction or performance; and

(3) The terms of the contract are determined by the substantive law applicable to the contract.

History.

10-12-15. Sending and receipt of electronic records.

(a) Unless otherwise agreed between the sender and the recipient, an electronic record is sent when:

(1) It is addressed properly or otherwise directed properly to an information processing system that the recipient has designated or uses for receiving electronic records or information of the type sent and from which the recipient is able to retrieve the electronic record;

(2) It is in a form capable of being processed by that system; and

(3) It enters an information processing system outside the control of the sender or of a person that sent the electronic record on behalf of the sender or enters a region of the information processing system designated or used by the recipient which is under the control of the recipient.

(b) Unless otherwise agreed between a sender and the recipient, an electronic record is received when:

(1) It enters an information processing system that the recipient has designated or uses for receiving electronic records or information of the type sent and from which the recipient is able to retrieve the electronic record; and

(2) It is in a form capable of being processed by that system.

(c) Subsection (b) of this Code section shall apply even if the information processing system is located in a different place than the electronic record is deemed to be received under subsection (d) of this Code section.

(d) Unless otherwise expressly provided in the electronic record or agreed between the sender and the recipient, an electronic record is deemed to be sent from the sender's place of business and to be received at the recipient's place of business. For purposes of this subsection, the following rules shall apply:

(1) If the sender or recipient has more than one place of business, the place of business of that person is the place having the closest relationship to the underlying transaction; and

(2) If the sender or the recipient does not have a place of business, the place of business is the sender's or recipient's residence, as the case may be.

(e) An electronic record is received under subsection (b) of this Code section even if no individual is aware of its receipt.

(f) Receipt of an electronic acknowledgment from an information processing system described in subsection (b) of this Code section shall establish that a record was received but, by itself, does not establish that the content sent corresponds to the content received.

(g) If a person is aware that an electronic record purportedly sent under subsection (a) of this Code section, or purportedly received under subsection (b) of this Code section, was not actually sent or received, the legal effect of the sending or receipt shall be determined by other applicable law. Except to the extent permitted by the other law, the requirements of this subsection shall not be varied by agreement.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term "transferable record" means an electronic record that:

(1) Would be a note under Article 3 of Title 11 or a document under Article 7 of Title 11 if the electronic record were in writing; and

(2) The issuer of the electronic record expressly has agreed is a transferable record.

(b) A person has control of a transferable record if a system employed for evidencing the transfer of interests in the transferable record reliably establishes that person as the person to which the transferable record was issued or transferred.

(c) A system satisfies subsection (b) of this Code section, and a person is deemed to have control of a transferable record, if the transferable record is created, stored, and assigned in such a manner that:

(1) A single authoritative copy of the transferable record exists which is unique, identifiable, and, except as otherwise provided in paragraphs (4), (5), and (6) of this subsection, unalterable;

(2) The authoritative copy identifies the person asserting control as:

(A) The person to which the transferable record was issued; or

(B) If the authoritative copy indicates that the transferable record has been transferred, the person to which the transferable record was most recently transferred;

(5) Each copy of the authoritative copy and any copy of a copy is readily identifiable as a copy that is not the authoritative copy; and

(6) Any revision of the authoritative copy is readily identifiable as authorized or unauthorized.

(d) Except as otherwise agreed, a person having control of a transferable record is the holder, as defined in Code Section 11-1-201, of the transferable record and has the same rights and defenses as a holder of an equivalent record or writing under Title 11, including, if the applicable statutory requirements under subsection (a) of Code Section 11-3-302 or Code Section 11-7-501 or 11-9-308 are satisfied, the rights and defenses of a holder in due course, a holder to which a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated, or a purchaser, respectively. Delivery, possession, and indorsement are not required to obtain or exercise any of the rights under this subsection.

(e) Except as otherwise agreed, an obligor under a transferable record shall have the same rights and defenses as an equivalent obligor under equivalent records or writings under Title 11.

(f) If requested by a person against which enforcement is sought, the person seeking to enforce the transferable record shall provide reasonable proof that the person is in control of the transferable record. Proof may include access to the authoritative copy of the transferable record and related business records sufficient to review the terms of the transferable record and to establish the identity of the person having control of the transferable record.

(a) Cigarette smoking presents serious public health concerns to the state and to the citizens of the state. The Surgeon General has determined that smoking causes lung cancer, heart disease, and other serious diseases, and that there are hundreds of thousands of tobacco-related deaths in the United States each year. These diseases most often do not appear until many years after the person in question begins smoking.

(b) Cigarette smoking also presents serious financial concerns for the state. Under certain health-care programs, the state may have a legal obligation to provide medical assistance to eligible persons for health conditions associated with cigarette smoking, and those persons may have a legal entitlement to receive such medical assistance.

(c) Under these programs, the state pays millions of dollars each year to provide medical assistance for these persons for health conditions associated with cigarette smoking.

(d) It is the policy of the state that financial burdens imposed on the state by cigarette smoking be borne by tobacco product manufacturers rather than by the state to the extent that such manufacturers either determine to enter into a settlement with the state or are found culpable by the courts.

(e) On November 23, 1998, leading United States tobacco product manufacturers entered into a settlement agreement, entitled the "Master Settlement Agreement," with the state. The Master Settlement Agreement obligates these manufacturers, in return for a release of past, present, and certain future claims against them as described therein, to pay substantial sums to the state (tied in part to their volume of sales); to fund a national foundation devoted to the interests of public health; and to make substantial changes in their advertising and marketing practices and corporate culture, with the intention of reducing underage smoking.

(f) It would be contrary to the policy of the state if tobacco product manufacturers who determine not to enter into such a settlement could use a resulting cost advantage to derive large, short-term profits in the years before liability may arise without ensuring that the state will have an eventual source of recovery from them if they are proven to have acted culpably. It is thus in the interest of the state to require that such manufacturers establish a reserve fund to guarantee a source of compensation and to prevent such manufacturers from deriving large, short-term profits and then becoming judgment-proof before liability may arise.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Misinterpretation of Attorney General's power under O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b). — Trial court committed an error of law by affirming a decision of the Georgia Attorney General (AG) that a cigarette manufacturer was not a tobacco product manufacturer under the Georgia Qualifying Statute, O.C.G.A. § 10-13-2(9), and, therefore, could not sell cigarettes under its brand name in Georgia since the AG's decision was based in part on a misinterpretation of O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b) and the AG's retention of the ability to have the manufacturer cure any certification deficiencies. Carolina Tobacco Co. v. Baker, 295 Ga. App. 115, 670 S.E.2d 811, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 1289 (2008).

10-13-2. Definitions.

As used in this chapter, the term:

(1) "Adjusted for inflation" means increased in accordance with the formula for inflation adjustment set forth in Exhibit C to the Master Settlement Agreement.

(2) "Affiliate" means a person who directly or indirectly owns or controls, is owned or controlled by, or is under common ownership or control with, another person. Solely for purposes of this definition, the terms "owns," "is owned," and "ownership" mean ownership of an equity interest, or the equivalent thereof of 10 percent or more, and the term "person" means an individual, partnership, committee, association, corporation, or any other organization or group of persons.

(3) "Allocable share" means Allocable Share as that term is defined in the Master Settlement Agreement.

(4) "Cigarette" means any product that contains nicotine, is intended to be burned or heated under ordinary conditions of use, and consists of or contains (A) any roll of tobacco wrapped in paper or in any substance not containing tobacco; or (B) tobacco, in any form, that is functional in the product, which, because of its appearance, the type of tobacco used in the filler, or its packaging and labeling, is likely to be offered to, or purchased by, consumers as a cigarette; or (C) any roll of tobacco wrapped in any substance containing tobacco which, because of its appearance, the type of tobacco used in the filler, or its packaging and labeling, is likely to be offered to, or purchased by, consumers as a cigarette described in clause (A) of this definition. The term "cigarette" includes "roll-your-own" (i.e., any tobacco which, because of its appearance, type, packaging, or labeling is suitable for use and likely to be offered to, or purchased by, consumers as tobacco for making cigarettes). For purposes of this definition of "cigarette," 0.09 ounces of "roll-your-own" tobacco shall constitute one individual "cigarette."

(5) "Importer" means any person in the United States to whom nonfederal excise tax-paid cigarettes manufactured in a foreign country are shipped or consigned, any person who removes cigarettes for sale or consumption in the United States from a customs bonded manufacturing warehouse, or any person who smuggles or otherwise unlawfully brings cigarettes into the United States.

(6) "Master Settlement Agreement" means the settlement agreement (and related documents) entered into on November 23, 1998, by the state and leading United States tobacco product manufacturers.

(7) "Qualified escrow fund" means an escrow arrangement with a federally or state chartered financial institution having no affiliation with any tobacco product manufacturer and having assets of at least $1 billion where such arrangement requires that such financial institution hold the escrowed funds' principal for the benefit of releasing parties and prohibits the tobacco product manufacturer placing the funds into escrow from using, accessing, or directing the use of the funds' principal except as consistent with subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) of Code Section 10-13-3. The principal balance in the qualified escrow fund must always be maintained so that both the face value and the cost basis of the account are each equal to or greater than the accumulated principal deposits.

(8) "Released claims" means Released Claims as that term is defined in the Master Settlement Agreement.

(9) "Releasing parties" means Releasing Parties as that term is defined in the Master Settlement Agreement.

(10) "Tobacco product manufacturer" means an entity that after April 28, 1999, directly (and not exclusively through any affiliate):

(A) Manufactures cigarettes anywhere that such manufacturer intends to be sold in the United States, including cigarettes intended to be sold in the United States through an importer (except where such importer is an original participating manufacturer (as that term is defined in the Master Settlement Agreement) that will be responsible for the payments under the Master Settlement Agreement with respect to such cigarettes as a result of the provisions of subsection II(mm) of the Master Settlement Agreement and that pays the taxes specified in subsection II(z) of the Master Settlement Agreement, and provided that the manufacturer of such cigarettes does not market or advertise such cigarettes in the United States);

(B) Is the first purchaser anywhere for resale in the United States of cigarettes manufactured anywhere that the manufacturer does not intend to be sold in the United States; or

(C) Becomes a successor of an entity described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of this paragraph.

The term "tobacco product manufacturer" shall not include an affiliate of a tobacco product manufacturer unless such affiliate itself falls within subparagraphs (A) through (C) of this paragraph.

(11) "Units sold" means the number of individual cigarettes sold in the state by the applicable tobacco product manufacturer (whether directly or through a distributor, retailer, or similar intermediary or intermediaries) during the year in question, on packs required to bear a tax stamp pursuant to Code Section 48-11-3 and on "roll-your-own" tobacco on which excise tax is due either by tax stamp or pursuant to an alternate method of taxation. "Units sold" does not include cigarettes the purchase or use of which the state is prohibited from taxing under the Constitution or statutes of the United States. The state revenue commissioner and the Attorney General may promulgate such regulations as are necessary to ascertain the amount of state excise tax paid on the cigarettes of such tobacco product manufacturer for each year.

History.

Code 1981, § 10-13-2, enacted by Ga. L. 1999, p. 725, § 1; Ga. L. 2016, p. 528, § 1/HB 899; Ga. L. 2017, p. 774, § 10/HB 323.

Code Commission notes.

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1999, "$1 billion" was substituted for "$1,000,000,000.00" in paragraph (6) (now paragraph (7)).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Misinterpretation of Attorney's General power under O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b). — Trial court committed an error of law by affirming a decision of the Georgia Attorney General (AG) that a cigarette manufacturer was not a tobacco product manufacturer under the Georgia Qualifying Statute, O.C.G.A. § 10-13-2(9), and, therefore, could not sell cigarettes under its brand name in Georgia since the AG's decision was based in part on a misinterpretation of O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b) and the AG's retention of the ability to have the manufacturer cure any certification deficiencies. Carolina Tobacco Co. v. Baker, 295 Ga. App. 115, 670 S.E.2d 811, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 1289 (2008).

10-13-3. Deposits into escrow accounts; violations.

Any tobacco product manufacturer selling cigarettes to consumers within the state (whether directly or through a distributor, retailer, or similar intermediary or intermediaries) after the date of enactment of this chapter shall do one of the following:

(1) Become a participating manufacturer (as that term is defined in section II(jj) of the Master Settlement Agreement) and generally perform its financial obligations under the Master Settlement Agreement; or

(2)(A) Place into a qualified escrow fund on a quarterly basis, no later than 30 days after the end of each calendar quarter in which sales are made, the following amounts (as such amounts are adjusted for inflation):

(i) 1999: $0.0094241 per unit sold after the date of enactment of this chapter;

(ii) 2000: $0.0104712 per unit sold;

(iii) For each of 2001 and 2002: $0.0136125 per unit sold;

(iv) For each of 2003 through 2006: $0.0167539 per unit sold; and

(v) For each of 2007 and each year thereafter: $0.0188482 per unit sold.

(B) A tobacco product manufacturer that places funds into escrow pursuant to subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall receive the interest or other appreciation on such funds as earned. Such funds themselves shall be released from escrow only under the following circumstances:

(i) To pay a judgment or settlement on any released claim brought against such tobacco product manufacturer by the state or any releasing party located or residing in the state. Funds shall be released from escrow under this division: (I) in the order in which they were placed into escrow; and (II) only to the extent and at the time necessary to make payments required under such judgment or settlement;

(ii) To the extent that a tobacco product manufacturer establishes that the amount it was required to place into escrow on account of units sold in the state in a particular year was greater than the Master Settlement Agreement payments, as determined pursuant to section IX(i) of that Agreement including, after final determination of all adjustments, that such manufacturer would have been required to make on account of such units sold had it been a participating manufacturer, the excess shall be released from escrow and revert back to such tobacco product manufacturer; or

(iii) To the extent not released from escrow under division (i) or (ii) of this subparagraph, funds shall be released from escrow and revert back to such tobacco product manufacturer 25 years after the date on which they were placed into escrow.

(C) Each tobacco product manufacturer that elects to place funds into escrow pursuant to this paragraph shall quarterly and annually certify to the Attorney General that it is in compliance with this paragraph. The Attorney General may bring a civil action on behalf of the state against any tobacco product manufacturer that fails to place into escrow the funds required under this paragraph. Any tobacco product manufacturer that fails in any calendar quarter or year to place into escrow the funds required under this paragraph shall:

(i) Be required within 15 days to place such funds into escrow as shall bring it into compliance with this paragraph. The court, upon a finding of a violation of this paragraph, may impose a civil penalty (to be paid to the general fund of the state) in an amount not to exceed 5 percent of the amount improperly withheld from escrow per day of the violation and in a total amount not to exceed 100 percent of the original amount improperly withheld from escrow;

(ii) In the case of a knowing violation, be required within 15 days to place such funds into escrow as shall bring it into compliance with this Code section. The court, upon a finding of a knowing violation of this paragraph, may impose a civil penalty (to be paid to the general fund of the state) in an amount not to exceed 15 percent of the amount improperly withheld from escrow per day of the violation and in a total amount not to exceed 300 percent of the original amount improperly withheld from escrow; and

(iii) In the case of a second knowing violation, be prohibited from selling cigarettes to consumers within the state (whether directly or through a distributor, retailer, or similar intermediary) for a period not to exceed two years.

(D) An importer shall be jointly and severally liable for escrow deposits due from a nonparticipating manufacturer with respect to any nonparticipating manufacturer cigarettes that it imported and which were then sold in this state.

Each failure to make a quarterly or annual deposit required under this Code section shall constitute a separate violation.

Editor's notes.

Ga. L. 2004, p. 340, § 2/SB 395, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "If this Act, or any portion of the amendment to division (ii) of subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) of Code Section 10-13-3 made by this Act, is held by a court of competent jurisdiction to be unconstitutional, then such division (ii) shall be deemed to be repealed in its entirety. If subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) of Code Section 10-13-3 shall thereafter be held by a court of competent jurisdiction to be unconstitutional, then this Act shall be deemed repealed, and division (ii) of subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) of Code Section 10-13-3 shall be restored as if no such amendments had been made. Neither any holding of unconstitutionality nor the repeal of division (ii) of subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) of Code Section 10-13-3 shall affect, impair, or invalidate any other portion of Code Section 10-13-3, or the application of such Code section to any other person or circumstance, and such remaining portions of Code Section 10-13-3 shall at all times continue in force and effect." As of May 2024, no such decision has been issued.

Ga. L. 2004, p. 340, § 3, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the amendment to division (2)(B)(ii) shall govern all requests for the release of escrow moneys made on or after May 7, 2004.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Sovereign immunity. — Tobacco producer's claim that the attorney general was required to release escrow funds to the producer because the producer paid more into escrow than the producer was required to under Georgia law was properly dismissed because the producer was barred by state sovereign immunity. S&M Brands, Inc. v. Georgia ex rel. Carr, 925 F.3d 1198, 2019 U.S. App. LEXIS 15870 (11th Cir. 2019).

No Equal Protection violation shown. — All provisions of a revised escrow agreement that the tobacco producer challenged under the Equal Protection clause were provisions with respect to which participating manufacturer's and nonparticipating manufacturers were not similarly situated, so the producer had not plausibly alleged an Equal Protection violation. S&M Brands, Inc. v. Georgia ex rel. Carr, 925 F.3d 1198, 2019 U.S. App. LEXIS 15870 (11th Cir. 2019).

10-13-4. Copies of Master Settlement Agreement available to the public.

The "Master Settlement Agreement" referred to in subsection (e) of Code Section 10-13-1 and other provisions of this chapter has been transmitted by the Attorney General to the Secretary of State and shall be maintained as a permanent record in the office of the Secretary of State, together with the enrolled Act by which this chapter is enacted. The Master Settlement Agreement shall not be published with the Act, but the Secretary of State shall, upon request and payment of copying costs, make a copy or certified copy of such document available to any member of the public.

(2) "Cigarette" means any product that contains nicotine, is intended to be burned or heated under ordinary conditions of use, and consists of or contains (A) any roll of tobacco wrapped in paper or in any substance not containing tobacco; or (B) tobacco, in any form, that is functional in the product, which, because of its appearance, the type of tobacco used in the filler, or its packaging and labeling, is likely to be offered to, or purchased by, consumers as a cigarette; or (C) any roll of tobacco wrapped in any substance containing tobacco which, because of its appearance, the type of tobacco used in the filler, or its packaging and labeling, is likely to be offered to, or purchased by, consumers as a cigarette described in clause (A) of this definition. The term "cigarette" includes "roll-your-own" (i.e., any tobacco which, because of its appearance, type, packaging, or labeling is suitable for use and likely to be offered to, or purchased by, consumers as tobacco for making cigarettes). For purposes of this definition of "cigarette," 0.09 ounces of "roll-your-own" tobacco shall constitute one individual "cigarette."

"Units sold" does not include cigarettes the purchase or use of which the state is prohibited from taxing under the Constitution or statutes of the United States. The state revenue commissioner and the Attorney General may promulgate such regulations as are necessary to ascertain the amount of state excise tax paid on cigarettes of such tobacco product manufacturer for each year.

History. Code 1981, § 10-13A-2, enacted by Ga. L. 2003, p. 829, § 1; Ga. L. 2004, p. 631, § 10; Ga. L. 2016, p. 528, § 3/HB 899.

(a) Every tobacco product manufacturer whose cigarettes are sold in this state, whether directly or through a distributor, retailer, or similar intermediary or intermediaries, shall execute and deliver in the manner prescribed by the Attorney General a certification to the commissioner and Attorney General, no later than the thirtieth day of April each year, certifying that, as of the date of such certification, such tobacco product manufacturer either is a participating manufacturer or is in full compliance with Chapter 13 of this title, including all annual deposits required by paragraph (2) of Code Section 10-13-3.

(b) Every tobacco product manufacturer shall also certify that:

(1) Such manufacturer or its importer holds a valid permit under 26 U.S.C. Section 5713; and

(2) Such manufacturer is in compliance with all reporting and registration requirements of 15 U.S.C. Sections 376 and 376a.

(c) In addition, participating manufacturer shall include in its certification a list of its brand families. A participating manufacturer shall update such list 30 calendar days prior to any addition to or modification of its brand families by executing and delivering a supplemental certification to the Attorney General and commissioner. A participating manufacturer may not include a brand family in its certification unless the participating manufacturer affirms that the brand family is to be deemed to be its cigarettes for purposes of calculating its payments under the Master Settlement Agreement for the relevant year, in the volume and shares determined pursuant to the Master Settlement Agreement.

(d) A nonparticipating manufacturer shall include in its certification a list of all of its brand families and the number of units sold for each brand family that were sold in this state during the preceding calendar year and a list of all of its brand families that have been sold in this state at any time during the current calendar year. Such lists must indicate any brand family sold in this state during the preceding calendar year that is no longer being sold in this state as of the date of such certification, and identification by name and address of any other manufacturer of such brand families in the preceding or current calendar year. The nonparticipating manufacturer shall update such list 30 calendar days prior to any addition to or modification of its brand families by executing and delivering a supplemental certification to the Attorney General and commissioner. A nonparticipating manufacturer may not include a brand family in its certification unless such nonparticipating manufacturer affirms that the brand family is to be deemed to be its cigarettes for purposes of Chapter 13 of this title. Such certification must also certify:

(1) That such nonparticipating manufacturer is registered to do business in this state and has appointed a resident agent for service of process and provided notice thereof as required by Code Section 10-13A-6;

(2) That such nonparticipating manufacturer has established and continues to maintain a qualified escrow fund as required by Code Section 10-13-3 and has executed a qualified escrow agreement that has been reviewed and approved by the Attorney General and that governs the qualified escrow fund;

(3) That such nonparticipating manufacturer is in full compliance with Chapter 13 of this title, this chapter, Chapter 11 of Title 48, and any regulations promulgated pursuant to such chapters;

(4) The name, address, and telephone number of the financial institution where the nonparticipating manufacturer has established such qualified escrow fund required pursuant to Chapter 13 of this title and all regulations promulgated pursuant to such chapter; the account number of such qualified escrow fund and any subaccount number for this state; the amount such nonparticipating manufacturer placed in such fund for cigarettes sold in this state during the preceding calendar year, the date and amount of each such deposit, and such evidence or verification as may be deemed necessary by the Attorney General to confirm the foregoing; and the amount and date of any withdrawal or transfer of funds the nonparticipating manufacturer made at any time from such fund or from any other qualified escrow fund into which it ever made escrow payments pursuant to Chapter 13 of this title and all regulations promulgated pursuant to such chapter;

(5) That such nonparticipating manufacturer consents to be sued in the courts of the State of Georgia for purposes of the state:

(A) Enforcing this chapter, Chapter 13 of this title, Title 48, and any regulations promulgated pursuant to these provisions; or

(B) Bringing a released claim as defined in paragraph (8) of Code Section 10-13-2;

(6) That such nonparticipating manufacturer has posted the appropriate bond required under Code Section 10-13A-7 and the information needed to establish the existence of such bond; and

(7) In the case of a nonparticipating manufacturer located outside of the United States, the nonparticipating manufacturer shall provide a declaration from each of its importers into the United States of any of its brand families to be sold in this state. The declaration shall be on a form prescribed by the Attorney General and shall state the following:

(A) The importer accepts joint and several liability with the nonparticipating manufacturer for all obligations to place funds into a qualified escrow fund and for payment of all civil penalties and all reasonable costs and expenses of investigation and prosecution, including attorney's fees;

(B) The importer consents to personal jurisdiction in Georgia for the purposes of claims by the state for any obligation to place funds into a qualified escrow fund and for payment of all civil penalties and all reasonable costs and expenses of investigation and prosecution, including attorney's fees; and

(C) The importer has appointed a registered agent for service of process in Georgia according to the same requirements as established in Code Section 10-13A-6 for any nonresident or foreign nonparticipating manufacturer.

Certification in accordance with this subsection shall be deemed to be in compliance with subparagraph (C) of paragraph (2) of Code Section 10-13-3.

(e) Nothing in this Code section shall be construed as limiting or otherwise affecting the state's right to maintain that a brand family constitutes cigarettes of a different tobacco product manufacturer for purposes of calculating payments under the Master Settlement Agreement or for purposes of Chapter 13 of this title.

(f) Tobacco product manufacturers shall maintain all invoices and documentation of sales and other such information relied upon for such certification for a period of five years, unless otherwise required by law to maintain them for a greater period of time.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Misinterpretation of Attorney General's power under O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b). — Trial court committed an error of law by affirming a decision of the Georgia Attorney General (AG) that a cigarette manufacturer was not a tobacco product manufacturer under the Georgia Qualifying Statute, O.C.G.A. § 10-13-2(9), and, therefore, could not sell cigarettes under its brand name in Georgia since the AG's decision was based in part on a misinterpretation of O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b) and the AG's retention of the ability to have the manufacturer cure any certification deficiencies. Carolina Tobacco Co. v. Baker, 295 Ga. App. 115, 670 S.E.2d 811, 2008 Ga. App. LEXIS 1289 (2008).

10-13A-4. Availability of directory; inclusion and maintenance requirements; provision of email by distributor.

(a) The Attorney General shall develop and make available for public inspection on its website a directory, as defined in paragraph (5) of Code Section 10-13A-2.

(b) The Attorney General shall not include or retain in such directory the name or brand families of any nonparticipating manufacturer that has failed to provide the required certification or whose certification the Attorney General determines is not in compliance with Code Section 10-13A-3, unless the Attorney General has determined that such violation has been cured to the satisfaction of the Attorney General.

(c) Neither a tobacco product manufacturer nor brand family shall be included or retained in the directory if the Attorney General concludes, in the case of a nonparticipating manufacturer, that:

(1) Any escrow payment required pursuant to Chapter 13 of this title for any period for any brand family, whether or not listed by such nonparticipating manufacturer, has not been fully paid into a qualified escrow fund governed by a qualified escrow agreement that has been approved by the Attorney General; or

(2) Any outstanding final judgment, including interest thereon, for a violation of Chapter 13 of this title has not been fully satisfied for such brand family or such manufacturer.

(d) The Attorney General shall update the directory as necessary in order to correct mistakes and to add or remove tobacco product manufacturers or brand families to keep the directory in conformity with the requirements of this chapter.

(e) Every distributor shall provide and update as necessary an email address to the Attorney General for the purpose of receiving any notifications as may be required by this chapter.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Misinterpretation of Attorney General's power under O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b). — Trial court committed an error of law by affirming a decision of the Georgia Attorney General (AG) that a cigarette manufacturer was not a tobacco product manufacturer under the Georgia Qualifying Statute, O.C.G.A. § 10-13-2(9), and, therefore, could not sell cigarettes under its brand name in Georgia since the AG's decision was based in part on a misinterpretation of O.C.G.A. § 10-13A-4(b) and the AG's retention of the ability to have the manufacturer cure any certification deficiencies. 10-13A-5. Prohibition against affixing tax stamp to manufacturer or brand not included in directory.

It shall be unlawful for any person to affix a tax stamp to a package or other container of cigarettes of a tobacco product manufacturer or brand family not included in the directory or to sell, offer for sale, or possess with intent to sell, or import for personal use, in this state, cigarettes of a tobacco product manufacturer or brand family not included in the directory.

Code 1981, § 10-13A-5, enacted by Ga. L. 2003, p. 829, § 1; Ga. L. 2016, p. 528, § 3/HB 899.

10-13A-6. Agents of nonresident or foreign nonparticipating manufacturer or importer; directory updating; refunds upon removal from directory.

(a) Any nonresident or foreign nonparticipating manufacturer or importer that has not registered to do business in this state as a foreign corporation or business entity shall, as a condition precedent to having its brand families included or retained in the directory, appoint and continually engage without interruption the services of an agent in this state as required by Code Section 48-11-5 to act as agent for the service of process on whom all process and any action or proceeding against it concerning or arising out of the enforcement of Chapter 13 of this title or this chapter may be served in any manner authorized by law. Such service shall constitute legal and valid service of process on the nonparticipating manufacturer. The nonparticipating manufacturer shall provide the name, address, phone number, and proof of the appointment and availability of such agent to the satisfaction of the commissioner and Attorney General.

(b) The nonparticipating manufacturer or importer shall provide notice to the commissioner and Attorney General 30 calendar days prior to termination of the authority of an agent and shall further provide proof to the satisfaction of the Attorney General of the appointment of a new agent no less than five calendar days prior to the termination of an existing agent appointment. In the event an agent terminates an agency appointment, the agent and the nonparticipating manufacturer or importer shall notify the commissioner and Attorney General of said termination within five calendar days and shall include proof to the satisfaction of the Attorney General of the appointment of a new agent.

(c) Any nonparticipating manufacturer or importer whose cigarettes are sold in this state who has not appointed and engaged an agent as required in this Code section shall be deemed to have appointed the Secretary of State as such agent and may be proceeded against in courts of this state by service of process upon the Secretary of State; provided, however, that the appointment of the Secretary of State as such agent shall not satisfy the condition precedent for having the brand families of the nonparticipating manufacturer or importer included or retained in the directory.

(d) The Attorney General shall update the directory as necessary in order to correct mistakes and to add or remove a tobacco product manufacturer or brand family to keep the directory in conformity with the requirements of this chapter. The Attorney General shall post in the directory and transmit by email or other practicable means to each notice of any removal from the directory of a tobacco product manufacturer or brand family at least 30 days prior to removal from the directory of such tobacco product manufacturer or brand family. Unless otherwise provided by agreement between the wholesaler and a tobacco product manufacturer, the wholesaler shall be entitled to a refund from a tobacco product manufacturer for any money paid by the wholesaler to the tobacco product manufacturer for any cigarettes of the tobacco product manufacturer in the possession of the wholesaler on the effective date of removal from the directory, or as subsequently received from a retail dealer as provided in this chapter, of products of that tobacco product manufacturer or brand family of cigarettes. Unless otherwise provided by agreement between a retail dealer and the wholesaler or a tobacco product manufacturer, a retail dealer shall be entitled to a refund from the wholesaler or a tobacco product manufacturer for any money paid by the retail dealer to the wholesaler or such tobacco product manufacturer for any cigarettes of the tobacco product manufacturer still in the possession of the retail dealer on the effective date of removal from the directory of that tobacco product manufacturer or brand family.

(a) All nonparticipating manufacturers shall post a bond for the benefit of the state which is subject to execution under subsection (c) of this Code section. The bond shall be posted by a corporate surety located within the United States. The bond shall be posted and evidence of such posting shall be provided to the Attorney General with the nonparticipating manufacturer's quarterly and annual certifications as a condition of the nonparticipating manufacturer and its brand families being included or remaining in the directory for the following quarter or year.

(b) The amount of the bond shall be the greater of:

(1) Fifty thousand dollars; or

(2) The highest amount of escrow owed in Georgia by the nonparticipating manufacturer or its predecessor in the last 12 quarters.

(c) If a nonparticipating manufacturer that posted a bond has failed to make, or have made on its behalf by an entity with joint and several liability, escrow deposits equal to the full amount owed for a quarter within 15 days following the due date for the quarter under Code Section 10-13-3, the state may execute upon the bond, first to recover delinquent escrow, which amount shall be deposited into a qualified escrow account under Code Section 10-13-3, and then to recover civil penalties and costs authorized under such Code section. Escrow obligations above the amount collected on the bond remain due from that nonparticipating manufacturer and from the importers that sold its cigarettes during that calendar quarter and at any time prior to the removal of the nonparticipating manufacturer and brand from the directory.

(a) Not later than ten calendar days after the end of each calendar month, and more frequently if so directed by the Attorney General, each distributor shall submit such information as the Attorney General requires to facilitate compliance with this chapter, including, but not limited to, a list by brand family of the total number of cigarettes, or, in the case of "roll-your-own," the equivalent count, for which the distributor affixed tax stamps during the previous calendar month or otherwise paid the tax due for such cigarettes. The distributor shall also certify that the information provided to the Attorney General is complete and accurate. The distributor shall maintain and make available to the Attorney General all invoices and documentation of sales of all nonparticipating manufacturer cigarettes and any other information relied upon in reporting to the Attorney General for a period of five years.

(b) Notwithstanding any law to the contrary, the commissioner and the Attorney General are authorized to disclose to each other any information received under this chapter, Chapter 13 of this title, and Title 48 for the purposes of determining compliance with and enforcing the provisions of this chapter, Chapter 13 of this title, and Title 48. (3) In complying with provisions in the NPM Adjustment Settlement Agreement.

Despite this disclosure, the information shall maintain its confidential status.

(c) Any tobacco sales data provided by another state, a tobacco product manufacturer, or other person or entity to a data clearinghouse pursuant to the NPM Adjustment Settlement Agreement that is also provided to the Attorney General or commissioner pursuant to that agreement shall be treated as confidential tax information as defined in Title 48. This subsection only applies to information received by the Attorney General or commissioner solely as a result of the NPM Adjustment Settlement Agreement.

(d) The Attorney General may require at any time from the nonparticipating manufacturer proof from the financial institution in which such manufacturer has established a qualified escrow fund for the purpose of compliance with Chapter 13 of this title of the amount of money in such fund, exclusive of interest, the amount and date of each deposit to such fund, and the amount and date of each withdrawal from such fund.

(e) In addition to the information required to be submitted pursuant to this chapter, the Attorney General may require a distributor, stamping agent, or tobacco product manufacturer to submit any additional information or documentation, including, but not limited to, samples of the packaging or labeling of each brand family, as is necessary to enable the Attorney General to determine whether a tobacco product manufacturer is in compliance with this chapter.

10-13B-1. Legislative findings.

The General Assembly finds that:

(1) There is an opioid epidemic occurring in the United States, and the State of Georgia has been greatly impacted;

(2) State-wide coordination surrounding and managing opioid addiction and related disorders is critical to the health and safety of all Georgians;

(3) Funding is needed in the state for, among other things, prevention and treatment of opioid addiction and related disorders; providing resources to law enforcement agencies to address the opioid crisis; increasing the number of professionals who provide treatment for opioid addiction; educating medical professionals regarding the safe and effective prescribing of, and then tapering off of, opioids; and treatment and prevention of opioid use disorder in incarcerated populations;

(4) It is imperative that the state receive the full amount of any opioid settlement, and in order to do so, the state must be able to release claims for all state and local public bodies and instrumentalities in the state; and

(5) While local governments generally have the authority to pursue and litigate claims against businesses and individuals to protect their own interests, in certain limited circumstances involving particular industries, the interests of the state as a whole are best served by having a unified settlement structure that benefits both the state and its local governments and brings full and complete closure to the claims that were asserted or could have been asserted and maximizes the state and local governments' potential recovery to address this extraordinary crisis.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Insurance coverage for breach of perpetual care. — When an insurer sought a declaratory judgment defining the insurer's rights and responsibilities under an insurance policy issued to an insured cemetery that was sued for desecrating a grave, the insurer was not obligated to indemnify the insured for any damages awarded on a breach of contract claim alleging a breach of a perpetual care contract regarding the grave because the insured had no duty to care for the grave absent the contract, and the policy excluded coverage for any personal injury for which the insured had assumed liability in a contract. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Somers, 264 Ga. App. 421, 591 S.E.2d 430, 2003 Ga. App. LEXIS 1496 (2003).

Private rule prohibiting use of concrete vaults violated statute. — Trial court did not manifestly abuse the court's discretion by entering a permanent injunction preventing a cemetery group from implementing a rule established by a private cemetery owner to prohibit the use of concrete vaults in its cemeteries because the rule violated the Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000, O.C.G.A. § 10-14-1 et seq., because it was not reasonable within the context of O.C.G.A. § 10-14-16(b). OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Deposits and additional fees. — The Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act, O.C.G.A. § 10 14 1 et seq., requires a cemetery to make deposits to a perpetual care trust fund based on a percentage of the sales price of any burial right, cemetery lot, grave space, niche, mausoleum, columbarium, urn, or crypt sold by a cemetery and prohibits a cemetery from charging an additional fee or add-on to the customer. 2017 Op. 10-14-2. Legislative findings and intent.

(a) The legislature recognizes that purchasers of preneed burial rights, funeral or burial merchandise, or funeral services or burial services may suffer serious economic harm if purchase money is not set aside for future use as intended by the purchaser and that the failure to maintain cemetery grounds properly may cause significant emotional distress. Therefore, it is necessary in the interest of the public welfare to regulate preneed dealers, licensees, registrants, and cemetery companies in this state. However, restrictions shall be imposed only to the extent necessary to protect the public from significant or discernible harm or damage and not in a manner which will unreasonably affect the competitive market.

(b) Subject to certain interests of society, the legislature finds that every competent adult has the right to control the decisions relating to his or her own funeral arrangements. Accordingly, unless otherwise stated in this chapter, it is the legislature's express intent that nothing contained in this chapter should be construed or interpreted in any manner as to subject preneed contract purchasers to federal income taxation under the grantor trust rules contained in Sections 671 et seq. of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

(c) Nothing herein is intended to prohibit or restrict the sale or purchase of life insurance as a funding vehicle for preneed contracts under this chapter, nor to change the state of the law prior to July 1, 2000, with respect to prohibiting or restricting the sale or purchase of life insurance as a funding vehicle for preneed contracts under this chapter.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutional challenges. — Nonprofit cemetery association was unable to sustain an equal protection challenge to the Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000, O.C.G.A. § 10-14-1 et seq., on the basis that the Act regulated only private cemeteries; the association, which conceded that the Act's purpose was to protect consumers and the public welfare, health, and safety, did not argue that the regulation of the private cemeteries alone would not meet the purposes intended in the Act, but rather argued that it would have been better and more efficient if the Georgia General Assembly had regulated all cemeteries rather than only those privately owned, which was not a decision for the court to make. Ga. Cemetery Ass'n v. Cox, 403 F. Supp. 2d 1206, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26825 (N.D. Ga.), aff'd, 353 F.3d 1319, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 25861 (11th Cir. 2003).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutional challenges. — O.C.G.A. § 10-14-3(8) of the Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000, O.C.G.A. § 10-14-1 et seq., did not violate the Establishment Clause because the Act's purpose to protect consumer and public welfare, health, and safety was clearly secular; the principal effect of the Act did not advance or inhibit religion, and the statute did not foster an excessive government entanglement with religion. Ga. Cemetery Ass'n v. Cox, 403 F. Supp. 2d 1206, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26825 (N.D. Ga.), aff'd, 353 F.3d 1319, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 25861 (11th Cir. 2003).

10-14-3.1. Authority of boards.

As provided in this Code section, the boards may have all administrative powers and other powers necessary to carry out the provisions of this chapter, including the authority to promulgate rules and regulations, and the Secretary of State may delegate to the boards all such duties otherwise entrusted to the Secretary of State; provided, however, that the Secretary of State shall have sole authority over matters relating to the regulation of funds, trust funds, and escrow accounts and accounting and investigations concerning such matters but may delegate authority to the appropriate board for the review of such investigations and the determination as to disciplinary matters, necessary sanctions, and the enforcement of such decisions and sanctions. The State Board of Funeral Service shall have authority to promulgate rules and regulations and may be delegated the authority to make disciplinary and sanctioning decisions relating to funeral services or funeral merchandise. The State Board of Cemeterians shall have authority to promulgate rules and regulations and may be delegated the authority to make disciplinary and sanctioning decisions relating to burial services or burial merchandise. The Secretary of State may delegate to each board according to such duties and responsibilities of the boards.

Any such document once filed with the Secretary of State pursuant to this chapter shall be deemed to be on file and incorporated into any subsequent renewal or filing of such cemetery registration; provided, however, that each applicant and registrant is under a continuing duty to update such filing and to notify the Secretary of State regarding any changes or amendments to the articles of incorporation, bylaws, cemetery rules and regulations, or substantially equivalent documents, and provided, further, that any applicant or registrant shall furnish to the Secretary of State additional copies of any such document upon request;

(K) Such other information and documents as the Secretary of State may require by rule;

(L) A filing fee of $100.00; and

(M) A bond, if required by the rules and regulations of the Secretary of State.

A registration application filed under this Code section shall become effective upon the issuing of a certificate of registration by the Secretary of State or at such earlier time as the Secretary of State determines.

(d) Every registration under this subsection shall expire on the first day of August of each year. The registration must be renewed with the Secretary of State each year by the submission of a renewal application containing the information required in an application for initial registration to the extent that such information had not been included in an application or renewal application previously filed together with a sworn statement that all information not provided remains accurate. (2) Any nonperpetual care cemetery which was registered with the Secretary of State prior to August 1, 1986, may continue to be operated as such after that date and a renewal of such registration shall not be required.

10-14-5. Registration of preneed sales agents; retention of employee applications by registered cemeteries.

(a) All individuals who offer preneed contracts to the public, or who execute preneed contracts on behalf of any entity required to be registered as a preneed dealer, and all individuals who offer, sell, or sign contracts for the preneed sale of burial rights shall be registered with the Secretary of State as preneed sales agents, pursuant to this Code section, unless such individuals are exempted under this chapter or individually own a controlling interest in a preneed dealer registered under this chapter. For purposes of this chapter, any person licensed by or registered with the Board of Funeral Service as a funeral services director in full and continuous charge or an owner of a cemetery licensed by the State Board of Cemeterians as a cemeterian shall be deemed a registered preneed dealer, and regulated pursuant to the rules governing same, by virtue thereof.

(b) All preneed sales agents must be employed by a registered preneed dealer.

(c) A preneed dealer shall be liable for the activities of all preneed sales agents who are employed by the preneed dealer or who perform any type of preneed related activity on behalf of the preneed dealer. If a preneed sales agent violates any provision of this chapter, such preneed sales agent and each preneed dealer who employs such preneed sales agent shall be subject to the penalties and remedies set out in Code Sections 10-14-11, 10-14-19, 10-14-20, and 10-14-21.

(d) A preneed sales agent may be authorized to sell, offer, and execute preneed contracts on behalf of all entities owned or operated by the agent's sponsoring preneed dealer.

(e) If the application for his or her registration is sent by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, an individual may begin functioning as a preneed sales agent as soon as a completed application for registration, as set forth in subsection (g) of this Code section, is submitted to the Secretary of State, provided that, if any such sales agent fails to meet the qualifications set forth in this chapter, the preneed dealer shall immediately upon notification by the Secretary of State cause such agent to cease any sales activity on its behalf.

(f) The qualifications for a preneed sales agent are as follows:

(1) The applicant must be at least 18 years of age;

(2) The applicant must not be subject to any order of the Secretary of State that restricts his or her ability to be registered as a preneed sales agent; and

(3) The applicant must not have been adjudicated, civilly or criminally, to have committed fraud or to have violated any law of any state involving fair trade or business practices, have been convicted of a misdemeanor of which fraud is an essential element or which involves any aspect of the funeral or cemetery business, or have been convicted of a felony.

(g) An application for registration as a preneed sales agent shall be submitted to the Secretary of State with an application fee of $100.00 by the preneed dealer on a form that has been designated by the Secretary of State and shall contain, at a minimum, the following:

(1) The name, address, social security number, and date of birth of the applicant and such other information as the Secretary of State may reasonably require of the applicant;

(2) The name, address, and license number of the sponsoring preneed dealer;

(3) A representation, signed by the applicant, that the applicant meets the requirements set forth in subsection (f) of this Code section;

(4) A representation, signed by the preneed dealer, that the applicant is authorized to offer, sell, and sign preneed contracts on behalf of the preneed dealer and that the preneed dealer has informed the applicant of the requirements and prohibitions of this chapter relating to preneed sales, the provisions of the preneed dealer's preneed contract, and the nature of the merchandise, services, or burial rights sold by the preneed dealer;

(5) A statement indicating whether the applicant has any type of working relationship with any other preneed dealer or insurance company; and

(6) A signed agreement by the applicant consenting to an investigation of his or her background with regard to the matters set forth in this Code section, including, without limitation, his or her criminal history.

(h) An individual may be registered as a preneed sales agent on behalf of more than one preneed dealer, provided that the individual has received the written consent of all such preneed dealers.

(i) A preneed dealer who has registered a preneed sales agent shall notify the Secretary of State within three business days of a change in such individual's status as a preneed sales agent with such preneed dealer or upon the occurrence of any other event which would disqualify the individual as a preneed sales agent.

(j) Upon receipt and review of an application that complies with all of the requirements of this Code section, the Secretary of State shall register the applicant. The Secretary of State shall by rule provide for annual renewal of registration and a renewal fee of $50.00.

(k) Each cemetery registered under this chapter shall maintain in its files for a period of five years a properly completed and executed application for employment in a form prescribed by the Secretary of State for each employee, officer, independent contractor, or other agent directly or indirectly involved in cemetery or preneed sales or any person occupying a similar status or performing similar functions. If a request is made, said forms shall be made available for inspection by authorized representatives of the Secretary of State.

Any individual engaged in the sale of life insurance shall not use the name of any funeral establishment or any price list which identifies the funeral establishment or any reference to a funeral establishment or crematory in connection with the sale of life insurance without the express written authorization of the funeral establishment. When a preneed funeral contract is funded by a life insurance policy, the funeral establishment shall be designated as the assignee of the death benefit payable under the policy in accordance with the terms of the preneed contract.

10-14-6. Perpetual care trust funds.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term "income" means:

(1) The net income, including the collected dividends, interest, net realized gains, and other income of the trust reduced by any expenses, including, but not limited to, taxes on income, fees, commissions, and costs; or

(2) Four percent of the net fair market value of the trust assets, averaged over the lesser of the three preceding years or the period during which the trust has been in existence.

(b)(1) Each cemetery or cemetery company required to be registered by this chapter shall establish and maintain an irrevocable trust fund for each cemetery owned.

(2) For trust funds established on or after July 1, 2000, the initial deposit to said irrevocable trust fund shall be the sum of $10,000.00 and the deposit of said sum shall be made before selling or contracting to sell any burial right. No such initial deposit shall be required with respect to any cemetery for which there is an existing perpetual care account on July 1, 2000. The trust fund shall apply to sales or contracts for sale of lots, grave spaces, niches, mausoleums, columbaria, urns, or crypts in which perpetual care has been promised or guaranteed.

(3) The initial corpus of the trust fund and all subsequent required deposits shall be deposited in a state bank, state savings and loan institution, savings bank, national bank, or federal savings and loan institution, whose deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or other governmental agency, or a state or federally chartered credit union insured under 12 U.S.C. Section 1781 of the Federal Credit Union Act, or other depository or trustee which is approved by the Secretary of State or which meets the standards contained in the rules and regulations promulgated by the Secretary of State.

(4) Each perpetual care trust fund established on or after July 1, 2000, shall be named "The _____ Cemetery _____ Perpetual Care Trust Fund" with the first blank being filled by the name of the cemetery and the second blank being filled by the month and year of the establishment of such trust fund. If a cemetery has a perpetual care trust fund existing on July 1, 2000, and the perpetual care trust fund agreement permits, the cemetery may make additional deposits to such a trust fund on the condition that the entire corpus of the trust fund, any income earned by the trust fund, and any subsequent deposits to the trust fund are thereafter governed by the provisions of this chapter, the "Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000," as it existed on July 1, 2000, except for the amount of the initial deposit to the trust fund. If a cemetery owner or company elects to establish a new perpetual care trust fund subject to the provisions of this chapter, the "Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000," as it existed on July 1, 2000, any perpetual care trust fund which existed on July 1, 2000, is subject to the provisions of law in effect on the date of its establishment, and deposits for sales transacted on or after July 1, 2000, shall be deposited in the trust fund established on or after July 1, 2000. If a cemetery existing on July 1, 2000, has an existing perpetual care trust fund which complies with provisions of law in effect on the date of its establishment, a new trust fund created in compliance with this chapter shall not require an initial deposit.

(c) Whenever any burial right, cemetery lot, grave space, niche, mausoleum, columbarium, urn, or crypt wherein perpetual care or endowment care is promised or contracted for or guaranteed is sold by any cemetery, the cemetery shall make deposits to the trust fund that equal 15 percent of the sales price of the burial right or 7.5 percent of the total sales price of any mausoleums, niches, columbaria, urns, or crypts, provided that the minimum deposit for each burial right shall be $50.00; provided, further, that on July 1, 2003, and every three years thereafter, the amount of said minimum deposit shall be adjusted by the rate of change in the Consumer Price Index as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor. The Secretary of State shall adopt such adjustment to the amount of said minimum deposit by rule. Deposits to the trust fund shall be made not later than 30 days following the last day of the month in which payment therefor is made, or, in the case of a free space, the month in which the space is given. In the event any sale is made on an installment basis, not less than a pro rata share of the principal portion of each payment made and allocated to the lot, grave, space, niche, mausoleum, columbarium, urn, or crypt shall be allocated to the required trust fund deposit, provided that all deposits to the trust fund shall be completed within six years from the date of the signing of the perpetual care contract. The manner of any such allocation shall be clearly reflected on the books of the registrant.

(d) The initial $10,000.00 corpus of the perpetual care trust fund shall not be counted as part of the required periodic deposits and shall be considered to be corpus or principal.

(e)(1) The income earned by the trust fund shall be retained by the trust fund. At such time as either:

(A) The cemetery owner is not licensed and has not been licensed for 90 or more consecutive days to sell burial rights;

(B) The cemetery is under the management of a receiver; or

(C) Less than 50 percent of available lots are unsold,

95 percent of the income from the trust fund shall be paid to the owner or receiver exclusively for covering the costs of care and maintenance of the cemetery, including reasonable administrative expenses incurred in connection therewith. The income of the trust fund shall be paid to the owner or receiver at intervals agreed upon by the recipient and the trustee, but in no case shall the income be paid more often than monthly.

(2) Subject to the limitations set forth in paragraph (1) of this subsection, a cemetery owner or receiver may request a trustee to distribute income following the unitrust distribution method provisions outlined in Code Section 53-12-362. The cemetery owner or receiver may select the unitrust distribution method by delivering written instructions to the trustee no later than 60 days prior to when the conversion shall take place. Such notification shall also be provided to the Secretary of State. The unitrust distribution method and the distribution rate selected shall remain in effect unless the cemetery or cemetery company notifies the trustee and the Secretary of State of its desire to effect a change.

(3) Disbursements from the trust in accordance with this subsection shall be made on a monthly, quarterly, semiannual, or annual basis, as agreed upon by the cemetery or cemetery company and the trustee.

(4) The Secretary of State may limit or prohibit any distribution based on the unitrust distribution method provisions in situations where investment returns and distribution practices have not resulted in sufficient protection of the perpetual care trust fund's trust principal based upon a three to five-year analysis.

(f) There shall be no withdrawals from the trust fund except pursuant to the provisions of this chapter or by court order.

(g)(1) The assets of a trust fund shall be invested and reinvested subject to all the terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions imposed by the laws of the State of Georgia upon executors and trustees regarding the making and depositing of investments with trust moneys pursuant to former Code Sections 53-8-1 through 53-8-4 as such existed on December 31, 1997, if applicable; Code Section 53-8-1; or Code Section 53-12-340. Subject to said terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions, the trustee of the perpetual care trust fund shall have full power to hold, purchase, sell, assign, transfer, reinvest, and dispose of any of the securities and investments in which any of the assets of said fund are invested, including proceeds of investments.

(2) Any state bank, national bank, or other financial institution authorized to act in a fiduciary capacity in this state, which presently or in the future serves as a fiduciary or cofiduciary of the trust fund of a perpetual care cemetery, may invest part or all of such trust fund held by it for investment in interests or participation in one or more common trust funds established by that state bank, national bank, or other financial institution for collective investment, if such investment is not expressly prohibited by the instrument, judgment, decree, or order creating the fiduciary relationship and if, in the case of cofiduciaries the trust institution procures the consent of its cofiduciary or cofiduciaries to such investment, and notwithstanding the fact that such common trust funds are not invested and reinvested subject to all the terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions imposed by the laws of the State of Georgia upon executors and trustees in the making and disposing of their investments.

(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, the Secretary of State shall establish rules and regulations for investments of a trust fund established on or after July 1, 2000, or otherwise governed by this chapter, the "Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000," as it existed on July 1, 2000, as necessary to preserve the corpus and income of such a fund and for determining what restrictions are necessary for such purpose.

(4) At any time, in the event that the perpetual care trust fund contains an amount less than the amount required by this Code section, the cemetery owner shall, within 15 days after the earlier of becoming aware of such fact or having been so notified by the Secretary of State, deposit into the perpetual care trust fund an amount equal to such shortfall. In the event that the Secretary of State and the cemetery owner disagree regarding the amount of such shortfall, no penalty shall be imposed upon the cemetery owner for any failure to comply with this paragraph unless such failure occurs after notice and opportunity for a hearing as provided in Code Section 10-14-23.

(h) Moneys of the perpetual care trust fund shall not be invested in or loaned to any business venture controlled by the cemetery owner, a person who owns a controlling interest of a cemetery owner that is not a natural person, or an affiliate of any of these persons or entities.

(i) The trustee shall furnish yearly to the Secretary of State a financial report in a form designated by the Secretary of State with respect to the perpetual care trust fund.

(j) Upon a finding by a court of competent jurisdiction of failure to deposit or maintain funds in the trust account as required by this chapter or of fraud, theft, or misconduct by the owners of the cemetery or the officers or directors of a cemetery company which has wasted or depleted such funds, the cemetery owners or the officers or directors of a cemetery company may be held jointly and severally liable for any deficiencies in the trust account as required in this chapter.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Insurance Code restrictions apply. — Restrictions imposed by former Code 1933, § 56-1005 upon domestic insurers in making investments apply to the investment of the assets of perpetual care trust funds. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-51.

Initial deposit is capital. — For the purpose of determining what investments are permissible, the initial trust deposit required of a cemetery offering perpetual care should be considered minimum capital, and the balance of the corpus of the trust fund should be considered a reserve. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-51.

Corpus of a perpetual care trust fund is generally a reserve to provide for the payment of future liabilities. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-51.

Family burial plot. — Absent some local regulation to the contrary a citizen could start a family burial plot on the citizen's own property; in the event of any death, however, all public health formalities would have to be complied with. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-9.

Construction of subsection (c). — The plain language of O.C.G.A. § 10 14 6(c) requires a cemetery to "make deposits to the trust that equal" a specified percentage of the "sales price" of the item or items sold, but the statute does not directly address whether a cemetery can then charge a customer an "additional add-on" equal to the amount of the deposit to a perpetual care trust fund. Nevertheless, § 10 14 6(c) does not stand alone, as it is a part of the Act "whose key components were enacted contemporaneously." Construed together with other provisions of the Act, it does not appear that the legislature intended for customers to be charged an "additional add-on" equal to the amount of the deposit to a perpetual care trust fund, and a cemetery is, therefore, prohibited from doing so. 2017 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U2017-4.

10-14-7. Preneed escrow accounts or trust funds.

(a)(1) Each preneed dealer which sells burial or funeral merchandise on a preneed basis or preneed burial or funeral services, other than preneed funeral services described in Code Section 10-14-7.1, shall establish and maintain a trust fund or a preneed escrow account.

(2) With respect to each monument and outer burial container, bench, coping, and other burial and funeral merchandise items except for caskets, and except as otherwise provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection, the amount to be deposited to said trust or escrow account shall be not less than 35 percent of the sales price of such monument or outer burial container; in no event shall the amount deposited be less than 120 percent of the wholesale price of such items. For caskets, the amount to be deposited to said trust or escrow account shall be not less than 100 percent of the sales price of such merchandise; in no event shall the amount deposited be less than 110 percent of the wholesale price of such merchandise. If the contract of sale shall include grave spaces or items not deemed to be burial or funeral merchandise, the portion of the sales price attributable to the sale of the burial or funeral merchandise shall be determined, and it shall only be as to such portion of the total contract as constitutes burial or funeral merchandise that the deposit described in this paragraph shall be required. In the event that the sale of burial or funeral merchandise is under an installment contract, the required trust deposit shall be a pro rata part of the principal portion of each installment payment, such deposit only being required as payments are made by the purchaser for such burial or funeral merchandise. In the event the installment contract is discounted or sold to a third party, the seller shall be required to deposit an amount equal to the undeposited portion of the required deposit of the sales price of such burial or funeral merchandise at such time as if the contract were paid in full.

(3) With respect to a monument, outer burial container, bench, coping, and other burial and funeral merchandise items except for caskets, the itemized sales price of which does not include the installation of such item, 100 percent of the installation cost shall be deposited in the trust or escrow account.

(4) With respect to cash advance items and the sale of preneed funeral services, the amount to be deposited to said trust or escrow account shall be 100 percent of the sales price of such funeral services or the full amount of a cash advance item. The time and manner of deposit shall be the same as that specified for deposit of burial or funeral merchandise sale funds to the escrow account.

(5) With respect to preneed burial services, the amount to be deposited to said trust or escrow account shall be not less than 35 percent of the sales price of such burial services; in no event shall the amount deposited be less than 120 percent of the wholesale price of such burial services. The time and manner of deposit shall be the same as that specified for deposit of burial or funeral merchandise sale funds to the escrow account.

(b) The deposit specified in paragraphs (2), (3), (4), and (5) of subsection (a) of this Code section shall be made not later than 30 days following the last day of the month in which any payment is received.

(c) A preneed escrow account governed by the provisions of this Code section shall be established and maintained in a state bank, state savings and loan institution, savings bank, national bank, federal savings and loan association, whose deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or other governmental agency, or a state or federally chartered credit union insured under 12 U.S.C. Section 1781 of the Federal Credit Union Act, or other organization approved by the Secretary of State which is located and doing business in this state.

(d)(1) If the account is maintained with a trustee, the assets of the trust fund shall be invested and reinvested by the trustee subject to all the terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions imposed by Georgia law upon executors and trustees regarding the making and depositing of investments with trust moneys pursuant to Code Sections 53-8-1 through 53-8-4 of the "Pre 1998 Probate Code," if applicable, or Code Sections 53-8-1 and 53-12-340 of the "Revised Probate Code of 1998," if applicable, or Chapter 12 of Title 53, "The Revised Georgia Trust Code of 2010." Subject to said terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions, the trustee of the preneed accounts shall have full power to hold, purchase, sell, assign, transfer, reinvest, and dispose of any of the securities and investments in which any of the assets of said account are invested, including proceeds of investments.

(2) Any state bank, national bank, or other financial institution authorized to act in a fiduciary capacity in this state, which presently or in the future serves as a fiduciary or cofiduciary of the trust fund of a preneed dealer, may invest part or all of such trust fund held by it for investment in interests or participation in one or more common trust funds established by that state bank, national bank, or other financial institution for collective investment, if such investment is not expressly prohibited by the instrument, judgment, decree, or order creating the fiduciary relationship and if, in the case of cofiduciaries, the trust institution procures the consent of its cofiduciary or cofiduciaries to such investment, and notwithstanding the fact that such common trust funds are not invested and reinvested subject to all the terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions imposed by the laws of the State of Georgia upon executors and trustees in the making and disposing of their investments.

(e)(1) For burial or funeral merchandise, funds shall be released from the trust or escrow account when the burial or funeral merchandise is delivered or, if the burial or funeral merchandise is not yet delivered, within the time required by law after a purchaser requests a refund. The preneed dealer is considered to have delivered burial or funeral merchandise when the burial or funeral merchandise is:

(A) Actually delivered to the purchaser at the time of need;

(B) Actually delivered to the purchaser at the purchaser's request;

(C) In the case of a monument, when the monument is attached to realty;

(D) In the case of a monument, when the preneed dealer has the monument manufactured for the purchaser and placed into storage with a responsible third party bonded and insured for the wholesale value thereof and evidenced by a receipt specifically identifying the monument, the specific preneed contract, the location of the monument, and identify and address of the bonding and insuring parties; or

(E) At such other times as prescribed by the rule or order of the Secretary of State.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, outer burial containers may not be delivered prior to need.

(2) Deposits made from funds received in payment of preneed services shall remain in the trust or escrow account until such services are performed, at which time said funds may be released to the preneed dealer. The trustee may require certification by the preneed dealer of delivery of merchandise or performance of services before release of funds.

(3) The funds on deposit under the terms of this subsection regarded as escrow funds may not be pledged, hypothecated, transferred, or in any manner encumbered by the escrow agent nor may said funds be offset or taken for the debts of the preneed dealer until such time as the merchandise has been delivered or the services performed, but after delivery of the burial or funeral merchandise concerned.

(f) At any time, in the event that the preneed trust or escrow account contains an amount less than the amount required by this Code section, the preneed dealer shall, within 15 days after the earlier of becoming aware of such fact or having been so notified by the Secretary of State, deposit into the preneed account an amount equal to such shortfall. In the event that the Secretary of State and the preneed dealer disagree regarding the amount of such shortfall, no penalty shall be imposed upon the preneed dealer for any failure to comply with this provision unless such failure occurs after notice and opportunity for a hearing as provided in Code Section 10-14-23.

(g) In the case of release of trusted or escrowed funds to a purchaser at the purchaser's request pursuant to subsection (e) of this Code section, a sum not less than the lesser of 10 percent of the trusted or escrowed amount or one-half of the interest earned or return upon such funds as of the date of release, as provided by the Secretary of State by rule or regulation, may be retained by the preneed dealer as an administrative fee for reimbursement of the preneed dealer for costs.

(h) The trustee shall furnish yearly to the Secretary of State a financial report in a form designated by the Secretary of State with respect to the preneed trust or escrow account.

(i) Trust funds shall not be invested in or loaned to any business venture controlled by the preneed dealer, a person who owns a controlling interest of a cemetery owner that is not a natural person, or an affiliate of any of these persons or entities.

(j) Upon a finding by a court of competent jurisdiction of failure to deposit or maintain funds in the preneed trust or escrow account as required by this chapter or of fraud, theft, or other misconduct by the preneed dealer or the officers or directors of the preneed dealer which has wasted or depleted such funds, the preneed dealer or the officers or directors of the preneed dealer may be held jointly and severally liable for any deficiencies in the preneed trust or escrow account.

(a) Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary contained in

Chapter 1 of Title 7, the "Financial Institutions Code of Georgia," or in any other provision of law, a preneed dealer registered or deemed registered pursuant to Code Section 10-14-5 who provides funeral services shall provide for funds to be deposited in an escrow account pursuant to Code Section 10-14-7 or with a depository institution in accordance with this Code section and placed in an individual trust fund account that is:

(1) Titled in the name of a funeral establishment;

(2) Established for the purpose of providing preneed funeral services;

(3) Payable upon the death of the purchaser in favor of a funeral establishment for purposes of providing funeral services; and

(b)(1) One hundred percent of funds to be held in trust shall be deposited in the trust account. The deposit of such funds shall be made not later than 30 days following the last day of the month in which any payment is received. Trust fund accounts shall be established and maintained in a state bank, state savings and loan institution, savings bank, national bank, federal savings and loan association, whose deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or other governmental agency, or a state or federally chartered credit union insured under 12 U.S.C. Section 1781 of the Federal Credit Union Act, or other organization approved by the Secretary of State which is located and doing business in this state.

(2)(A) If the account is maintained with a trustee, the assets of the trust account shall be invested and reinvested by the trustee subject to all the terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions imposed by Georgia law upon executors and trustees regarding the making and depositing of investments with trust moneys and subject to the limitations and restrictions imposed pursuant to this Code section.

(B) Subject to said terms, conditions, limitations, and restrictions, the trustee of a preneed account shall have full power to hold, purchase, sell, assign, transfer, reinvest, and dispose of any of the securities and investments in which any of the assets of said account are invested, including proceeds of investments. A personal representative shall be authorized to invest funds in:

(i) Interest-bearing deposits in any chartered state or national bank or trust company or savings and loan association located in this state to the extent the deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or comparable insurance; and

(ii) Direct and general obligations of the United States government, obligations unconditionally guaranteed by the United States government, and obligations of the agencies of the United States government enumerated in Code Section 53-8-3.

(C) In making investments pursuant to subparagraph (b)(2)(B) of this Code section and in acquiring and retaining those investments and managing the property of the estate, the personal representative shall exercise the judgment and care, under the circumstances then prevailing, which persons of prudence, discretion, and intelligence exercise in the management of their own affairs, not in regard to speculation but in regard to the permanent disposition of their funds, considering the probable income as well as the probable safety of their capital.

(3) In the event that the sale of burial or funeral merchandise is under an installment contract, the required trust deposit shall be a pro rata part of the principal portion of each installment payment, such deposit only being required as payments are made by the purchaser for such burial or funeral merchandise.

(c) The trustee shall furnish yearly to the Secretary of State a financial report in a form designated by the Secretary of State with respect to the preneed trust or escrow account.

(d) Upon a finding by a court of competent jurisdiction of failure to deposit or maintain funds in the trust account as required by this Code section or of fraud, theft, or misconduct by a funeral establishment or a funeral director or his or her employee, representative, or agent which has wasted or depleted such funds, the funeral establishment owners, funeral director, or employee, representative, or agent of a funeral director or establishment may be held jointly and severally liable for any deficiencies in the trust account.

(e) Any other provision of law notwithstanding, a trust fund account established and maintained under this Code section and the moneys contained therein shall not be deemed an asset or income for purposes of recapture of income or funds owed or for any other purpose.

(f) Nothing contained herein shall preclude a licensed funeral director in full and continuous charge from maintaining an escrow account with aggregate escrow funds for 100 percent of any preneed contract

Such an order shall not be effective until notice and opportunity for hearing are provided in accordance with Code Section 10-14-23 and until the Secretary of State shall issue a written order in accordance with Code Section 10-14-23; but the Secretary of State may, if he or she finds that the public safety or welfare requires emergency action, immediately issue an order prohibiting such person from such employment. 10-14-9. Amendment of registration applications; audit of registrant records; transfer of ownership in cemeteries or preneed dealers.

(a) A registration application may be amended by filing with the Secretary of State an amended application signed by the persons required to sign the original application under Code Section 10-14-4 or 10-14-5.

(b) Every applicant registered pursuant to Code Section 10-14-4 or 10-14-5 shall agree to deliver in Georgia, on demand of the Secretary of State, all records and documents concerning funds, accounts, transactions, and activities of said applicant or said applicant shall agree to pay the expenses incurred in sending an auditor approved by the Secretary of State to wherever such records and documents are located for the purpose of conducting an audit pursuant to the provisions of this chapter.

(c) When any cemetery or preneed dealer registered under Code Section 10-14-4 is sold or the ownership is otherwise transferred, or a controlling interest is sold or transferred, the vendor or the transferor of such cemetery, preneed dealer, or interest shall remain liable for any funds that should have been deposited prior to the date of such sale or transfer in the perpetual care trust fund or the preneed escrow account, or both.

(1) Prior to such sale or transfer, the vendor or transferor shall notify the Secretary of State of the proposed transfer and submit to the Secretary of State any document or record the Secretary of State may require in order to demonstrate that said vendor or transferor is not indebted to the perpetual care trust fund or the preneed escrow account, or both. The Secretary of State is authorized to recover from such vendor, transferor, vendee, or transferee, for the benefit of the perpetual care trust fund or the preneed escrow account, or both, all sums which the vendor, transferor, vendee, or transferee has not properly accounted for and paid into the trust fund.

(2) When the vendee or transferee has complied with the provisions of this subsection, he or she shall submit to the Secretary of State an application for registration and appropriate fees pursuant to Code Section 10-14-4. The Secretary of State shall then issue a certificate of registration to said vendee or transferee.

(c) In case of refusal to obey a subpoena issued under any Code section of this chapter to any person, a superior court of appropriate jurisdiction, upon application by the Secretary of State, may issue to the person an order requiring him or her to appear before the court to show cause why he or she should not be held in contempt for refusal to obey the subpoena. Such rules and regulations shall be plainly printed or typewritten, posted conspicuously, and maintained, subject to inspection and copy, at the usual place for transacting the regular business of the cemetery; provided, however, that no cemetery to which the provisions of this chapter are applicable shall have the power to adopt any rule or regulation in conflict with any of the provisions of this chapter or in derogation of the contract rights of lot owners or owners of burial rights. Upon request, the registrant shall provide a copy of said rules and regulations to any person who requests it.

(b) The owner of every cemetery shall have the further right to establish reasonable rules and regulations regarding the type material, design, composition, finish, and specifications of any and all merchandise to be used or installed in the cemetery. Subject to the provisions of this Code section and rules of the Secretary of State, reasonable rules may further be adopted regarding the installing by the cemetery or others of all merchandise to be installed in the cemetery. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Statute of limitations. — Violations of former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-141 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-14-16) alleged in a complaint were treated as violations of former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-142 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-14-17) and were subject to the two-year statute of limitation. Reeves v. Edge, 225 Ga. App. 615, 484 S.E.2d 498, 1997 Ga. App. LEXIS 203 (1997), cert. denied, No. S97C1120, 1997 Ga. LEXIS 795 (Ga. Sept. 4, 1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-141).

Unreasonable rule on vaults. — Trial court did not manifestly abuse the court's discretion by entering a permanent injunction preventing a cemetery group from implementing a rule established by a private cemetery owner to prohibit the use of concrete vaults in the company's cemeteries because the rule violated the Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000, O.C.G.A. § 10-14-1 et seq., and the rule was not reasonable within the context of O.C.G.A. § 10-14-16(b). Savannah Cemetery Group, Inc. v. DePue-Wilbert Vault Co., 307 Ga. App. 206, 704 S.E.2d 858, 2010 Ga. App. LEXIS 1126 (2010).

10-14-17. Prohibited acts; fees.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person:

(1) To sell or offer to sell any burial rights, burial or funeral services, or burial or funeral merchandise by means of any oral or written untrue statement of a material fact or any omission to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading, the buyer not knowing of the untruth or omission, if such person shall not sustain the burden of proof that he did not know, and in the exercise of reasonable care could not have known, of the untruth or omission;

(2) To sell or offer to sell any, burial rights, burial or funeral services, or burial or funeral merchandise in violation of any provision of this chapter or rule, regulation, or order promulgated or issued by the Secretary of State under any provision of this chapter;

(3) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (4) of this subsection, in connection with the sale of preneed merchandise or services requiring funds to be deposited into a preneed escrow account, to fail to refund, within three business days of the request of the purchaser or the purchaser's heirs or assigns, the sales prices plus applicable interest as determined according to rules promulgated by the Secretary of State, provided that such request is made prior to the earlier of:

(A) The delivery of the merchandise or services; or

(B) The death of the person for whose interment or inurnment the merchandise or services are intended to be used.

Certain solicitations during a person's last illness relating to refunds shall be a violation of Part 2 of Article 15 of Chapter 1 of this title, the "Fair Business Practices Act of 1975," as set out in Code Section 10-1-393.7;

(4) In connection with the sale of monuments or vaults, to fail to refund within three business days of the request of the purchaser or the purchaser's heirs or assigns the full sales price, without interest, provided that such request is made prior to the earlier of:

(A) The delivery of the merchandise or services; or

(B) The death of the person for whose interment or inurnment the monument or vault is intended to be used.

Certain solicitations during a person's last illness relating to refunds shall be a violation of Part 2 of Article 15 of Chapter 1 of this title, the "Fair Business Practices Act of 1975," as set out in Code Section 10-1-393.7;

(7) To sell, offer to sell, solicit offers to buy, or otherwise engage in the sale of funeral services if such person is not a licensed funeral director;

(7.1) To sell, offer to sell, solicit offers to buy, or otherwise engage in the sale of burial rights or burial merchandise if such person is not registered pursuant to the provisions of this chapter; or

(8) To sell any grave space which has not been platted and pinned.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any person in connection with the ownership, offer, sale, or purchase of any burial rights, burial or funeral services, or burial or funeral merchandise, directly or indirectly:

(1) To employ any device, scheme, or artifice to defraud; or

(2) To engage in any transaction, act, practice, or course of business which operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon the purchaser or seller.

(c) In connection with the sale or installation of merchandise, it shall be unlawful for a cemetery company to:

(1) Impose any condition upon the installation of merchandise obtained from a third party, other than to require installation by a registrant under this chapter or as may be otherwise permitted by the rules and regulations of the Secretary of State;

(2) Charge a fee for the installation of merchandise purchased or obtained from and to be installed by a person or firm other than the cemetery company or its agents, provided that the cemetery owner may charge a fee not to exceed $125.00 to reimburse the cemetery owner for its reasonable costs incurred in assisting in the siting of a monument on the lot on which it is to be installed, supervision and inspection of the installation to ensure compliance with the rules and regulations of the cemetery, and any administrative functions associated with the installation; provided, further, any such fee is properly disclosed and published as required by this chapter and charged regardless of whether the installer is or is not the cemetery owner or affiliated therewith;

(3) Refuse to mark the place on the grave where the merchandise is to be installed and inspect the installation when completed to ensure compliance with cemetery rules and regulations;

(4) Require any person or firm that installs, places, or sets merchandise to pay any fee other than any fee charged pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection;

(5) Tie the purchase of any grave space or burial right to the purchase of merchandise from or through the seller or any other designated person or corporation;

(6) Refuse to provide care or maintenance for any portion of a grave site on which a monument has been placed, provided that installation has been in accordance with lawful rules and regulations of the cemetery;

(7) Attempt to waive liability with respect to damage caused by cemetery employees or agents to merchandise after installation, where merchandise or installation service is not purchased from the cemetery company providing grave space or from or through any other person or corporation designated by the person authorized to sell grave space or the cemetery company providing grave space; provided, however, that no cemetery company may be held liable for the improper installation of merchandise where merchandise is not installed by the cemetery company or its agents; or

(8) After the promulgation of rules and regulations relating to the subject matter of this subsection by the Secretary of State, to require any person who installs, places, or sets merchandise to obtain any form of insurance, bond, or surety or make any form of pledge, deposit, or monetary guarantee as a condition of entry or access to cemetery property or the installation of merchandise thereon, other than as may be in accordance with said rules and regulations.

(d) Other than fees for the processing and for the sale of burial rights, burial or funeral merchandise, and burial or funeral services, no other fee may be directly or indirectly charged, contracted for, or received by a cemetery company as a condition for a customer to use any burial right, burial or funeral merchandise, or burial or funeral service, except for:

(1) Charges paid for opening and closing a grave and vault installation;

(2) Charges paid for transferring burial rights from one purchaser to another; however, no such fee may exceed $75.00 and such fee must have been disclosed in writing to the owner at the time of the initial purchase of the burial right from the cemetery;

(3) Charges for sales, documentary, excise, and other taxes actually and necessarily paid to a public official, which charges must be supported in fact;

(4) Charges for credit life and credit disability insurance, but only as requested by the purchaser, and the premiums for which do not exceed the applicable premium chargeable in accordance with the rates filed with the Insurance Commissioner; or

(5) Charges for interest on unpaid balances in accordance with applicable law.

Nothing herein shall prohibit a cemetery company from charging a reasonable fee for services it provides in connection with a lawful disinterment, provided such charges do not exceed the greater of the cemetery company's normal and customary charges for interment or the actual costs incurred by the cemetery directly attributable to such disinterment. Nothing herein shall prohibit a cemetery from charging a reasonable fee for actual costs it incurs due to the commencement of a funeral service at a time other than previously agreed by the cemetery company, the funeral establishment, and the owner of the burial rights, or his or her heirs and assigns, provided such charges are calculated in a manner which is disclosed and published as required by this chapter and that such charges are directly attributable to extra costs incurred by the cemetery company due to such late commencement.

(e) In connection with the sale of burial rights, burial or funeral merchandise, or burial or funeral services, it shall be unlawful for any person to fail to comply with the provisions of Article 1 of Chapter 1 of this title, "The Georgia Retail Installment and Home Solicitation Sales Act" or Part 2 of Article 15 of Chapter 1 of this title, the "Fair Business Practices Act of 1975." For the purposes of this subsection, burial rights, burial or funeral services, and burial or funeral merchandise shall constitute goods as that term is used in said article and said part.

(f) In connection with the installation of a monument:

(1) It shall be unlawful for any person installing said monument to fail to comply with the lawful rules and regulations of the cemetery regarding monument installation, provided that said rules and regulations are provided in writing to the installer prior to the installation. In the event such installation is not in conformity with said rules and regulations, the installer shall be liable to the cemetery for the actual cost of correcting such installation so it will be in conformity, provided that:

(A) The cemetery has notified the installer by certified mail, return receipt requested, of the reasons for the nonconformity not later than one year after the date of the installation; and

(B) The installer, provided it is registered under this chapter, shall have had not less than 30 days from its receipt of such notice to correct such nonconformity; and

(2) An installer of a monument shall be liable to the cemetery, to its customers, and to third persons for damages to their respective property and for other damages arising due to the negligence or intentional act of such installer, which liability may not be waived by contract.

(g) No program offering free burial rights may be conditioned on any requirement to purchase additional burial rights, burial or funeral merchandise, or burial or funeral services.

(h) The contract rights of any purchaser of preneed merchandise shall be freely transferable without fee except as provided in this chapter.

(i) It shall be unlawful for any owner or operator of a perpetual care cemetery to fail to provide care and maintenance for the cemetery.

(j) The fees set forth in this Code section shall be annually adjusted to the rate of change in the Consumer Price Index as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor. The Secretary of State shall adopt such adjustments to the amount of said fees by rule.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Statute of limitations. — Violations of former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-141 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-14-16) alleged in a complaint were treated as violations of former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-142 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-14-17) and were subject to the two-year statute of limitation. Reeves v. Edge, 225 Ga. App. 615, 484 S.E.2d 498, 1997 Ga. App. LEXIS 203 (1997), cert. denied, No. S97C1120, 1997 Ga. LEXIS 795 (Ga. Sept. 4, 1997) (decided under former § 44-3-142).

Constitutional challenges. — Refund provisions of the Georgia Cemetery and Funeral Services Act of 2000, specifically O.C.G.A. § 10-14-17(a)(3) and (4), did not violate the equal protection rights of a nonprofit cemetery association because the purpose of the provisions, to protect consumers from fraud in preneed purchasing, has a legitimate governmental purpose. Ga. Cemetery Ass'n v. Cox, 403 F. Supp. 2d 1206, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26825 (N.D. Ga.), aff'd, 353 F.3d 1319, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 25861 (11th Cir. 2003).

10-14-18. Duties of registrants; requirements of written contracts.

(a) A registrant offering to provide burial rights, burial or funeral merchandise, or burial or funeral services to the public shall:

(1) Provide by telephone, upon request, accurate information regarding the retail prices of burial or funeral merchandise and services offered for sale by the registrant;

(2) Fully disclose all regularly offered services and merchandise prior to the selection of burial rights, burial or funeral services, or burial or funeral merchandise. The full disclosure required shall identify the prices of all burial rights, burial or funeral services, and burial or funeral merchandise provided by the registrant;

(3) Not make any false or misleading statements of the legal requirement as to the necessity of a casket or outer burial container;

(4) Provide a good faith estimate of all fees and costs the customer will incur to use any burial rights, merchandise, or services purchased;

(5) Provide to the customer a current copy of the rules and regulations of the registrant;

(6) Provide the registrant's policy on cancellation and refunds to each customer;

(7) Provide refunds if burial or funeral merchandise is not delivered as represented; and

(b) In a manner established by rule of the Secretary of State, the written contract shall provide on the signature page of the contract, clearly and conspicuously in boldface ten-point type or larger, the following:

(2) The amount to be placed in trust;

(3) Either:

(A) A statement that no further expenses will be incurred at the time of need; or

(B) A statement that additional expenses will be incurred at the time of need, the registrant's current price for each such expense, and a statement that such prices may be expected to increase in the future; and

(4) The telephone number designated by the Secretary of State for questions and complaints.

(c) The written contract shall be completed prior to the signing of the contract by the customer and a copy of the contract shall be provided to the customer. As used in this subsection, the term "signing" includes any manual, facsimile, conformed, or electronic signature, and the term "electronic signature" means an electronic symbol or process attached to or logically associated with a document and executed or adopted by a person with the intent to sign the document.

(d) The written contract shall provide an itemization of the amounts charged for all burial rights, burial or funeral services, burial or funeral merchandise, cash advances, and fees and other charges, which itemization shall be clearly and conspicuously segregated from everything else on the written contract.

(e) The written contract shall contain a description of the burial or funeral merchandise covered by the contract to include, when applicable, size, materials from which the burial or funeral merchandise is made, and other relevant specifications as may be required by the Secretary of State.

(f) The written contract shall disclose the location at which funeral services are to be provided and the space number of each lot or grave space.

10-14-19. Enforcement of chapter; civil penalties.

(a) Whenever it may appear to the Secretary of State that any person has engaged in, or is engaging in, or is about to engage in any act or practice or transaction which is prohibited by this chapter or by any rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of State promulgated or issued pursuant to any Code section of this chapter or which is declared to be unlawful under this chapter, the Secretary of State may, at his or her discretion, act under any or all of the following paragraphs:

(1) Issue an order, if he or she deems it to be appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of consumers, prohibiting such person from continuing such act, practice, or transaction, subject to the right of such person to a hearing as provided in Code Section 10-14-23;

(2) Apply to any superior court of competent jurisdiction in this state for an injunction restraining such person and such person's agents, employees, partners, officers, and directors from continuing such act, practice, or transaction or engaging therein or doing any acts in furtherance thereof, and for appointment of a receiver or an auditor and such other and further relief as the facts may warrant; or

(3) Transmit such evidence as may be available concerning such act, practice, or transaction to any district attorney or to the Attorney General, who may, at his or her individual discretion, institute the necessary criminal proceedings.

(b) In any proceedings for an injunction, the Secretary of State may apply for and be entitled to have issued the court's subpoena requiring the appearance forthwith of any defendant and its agents, employees, partners, officers, or directors, and the production of such documents, books, and records as may appear necessary for the hearing upon the petition for an injunction. Upon proof of any of the offenses described in this Code section, the court may grant such injunction and appoint a receiver or an auditor and issue such other orders for the protection of the public as the facts may warrant.

(c) In any criminal proceeding, either the district attorney or the Attorney General, or both, may apply for and be entitled to have issued the court's subpoena requiring the appearance forthwith of any defendant or its agents, employees, partners, officers, or directors and the production of such documents, books, and records as may appear necessary for the prosecution of such criminal proceedings.

(d) In any civil proceeding brought under this Code section, if the Secretary of State shall establish that a perpetual care trust fund or preneed escrow account has not been established and maintained as required, the assets of the cemetery, cemetery company, or preneed dealer may be seized and sold by the state under orders of the court to the extent necessary to provide said perpetual care trust fund or preneed escrow account and set up the same. In addition, where the registration has been revoked, the whole company property may be ordered sold after the perpetual care trust fund and preneed escrow account have been established so that the purchaser of the cemetery may continue to operate the same and maintain it under the terms of this chapter.

(e) The Secretary of State shall have the authority to petition a court of competent jurisdiction to remove a trustee or escrow agent for violation of the provisions of this chapter, the rules and regulations promulgated under this chapter, or for other unlawful acts and practices.

(f) In addition to any other penalties that may be imposed, any person willfully violating any provisions of Code Section 10-14-17 or 10-14-18 or of Code Section 10-14-11 or any rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of State made pursuant to Code Section 10-14-17, 10-14-18, or 10-14-11 shall be subject to a civil penalty not to exceed $10,000.00 for a single violation and not exceeding $100,000.00 for multiple violations in a single proceeding or a series of related proceedings. The Secretary of State shall be authorized in his or her discretion to decline to impose a penalty or to impose any lesser penalty that he or she may deem to be sufficient and appropriate in any particular case. The amount of such penalty may be collected by the Secretary of State in the same manner that money judgments are now enforced in the superior courts of this state, except that the order or finding of the Secretary of State as to such penalty may be appealed according to the provisions of Code Section 10-14-22.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Priority of liens. — Purchase-money security deed executed prior to the effective date of former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-143 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-14-19) had priority over the statutory lien pertaining to the preneed escrow account but not as to the lien on the perpetual care trust fund. Connolly v. State, 199 Ga. App. 887, 406 S.E.2d 222, 1991 Ga. App. LEXIS 712 (1991) (decided under former § 44-3-143).

(a) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (b) of this Code section, any person who shall willfully violate any provision of this chapter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be subject to a fine of not more than $1,000.00 or imprisonment not to exceed 12 months, or both.

(b) Any person who shall willfully violate Code Section 10-14-17, Code Section 10-14-18, or any provision of this chapter regarding the establishment, maintenance, or reporting of any trust, reserve, or escrow funds mandated by this chapter shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000.00 or imprisonment for not less than one and not more than five years, or both.

(c) Nothing in this chapter shall limit any statutory or common-law right of the state to punish any person for violation of any provision of any law.

10-14-21. Purchaser's remedy for violations.

(a) Any person who violates any provision of subsection (a) of Code Section 10-14-17 shall be liable to the person buying such burial lot, burial right, burial merchandise, or burial service; and such buyer may bring action in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover the consideration paid in cash for the burial lot, burial right, burial merchandise, or burial service together with interest at the legal rate from the date of such payment, and reasonable attorney's fees and costs.

(b) In addition to the remedy set forth in subsection (a) of this Code section, a purchaser may apply to a court of competent jurisdiction in this state for an order authorizing the recovery of the preneed escrow deposit if a registrant fails to deliver burial merchandise or perform preneed burial services in accordance with the terms of the preneed sales contract.

(c) No person may bring action under this Code section more than two years from the date of the scheduled completion of the contract for sale or from the date of the sale if there is no contract for sale.

(d) Every cause of action under this chapter survives the death of any person who might have been a plaintiff or defendant.

(e) Nothing in this chapter shall limit any statutory or common-law right of any person in any court for any act involving the sale of a burial lot, burial right, burial merchandise, or burial services.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Statute of limitations. — Violations of former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-141 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-14-16) alleged in a complaint were treated as violations of former O.C.G.A. § 44-3-142 (see now O.C.G.A. § 10-14-17) and were subject to the two-year statute of limitation. Reeves v. Edge, 225 Ga. App. 615, 484 S.E.2d 498, 1997 Ga. App. LEXIS 203 (1997), cert. denied, No. S97C1120, 1997 Ga. LEXIS 795 (Ga. Sept. 4, 1997) (decided under former § 44-3-145).

(a)(1) An appeal may be taken from any order of the Secretary of State resulting from a hearing held in accordance with the provisions of Code Section 10-14-23 by any person adversely affected thereby to the Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia, by serving on the Secretary of State, within 20 days after the date of entry of such order, a copy of the petition for review filed in the Superior Court of Fulton County and signed by the petitioner, stating:

(A) The order from which the appeal is taken;

(B) The ground upon which a reversal or modification of such order is sought; and

(C) A demand for a certified transcript of the record of such order.

(2) The proceedings on the petition for review shall be governed by Chapter 3 of Title 5 except as provided in this Code section.

(b) Upon receipt of such petition for review, the Secretary of State shall, within ten days thereafter, make, certify, and deliver to the clerk of the Superior Court of Fulton County a transcript of the record of the order from which the appeal is taken, provided that the petitioner shall pay the reasonable costs of such transcript. Said petition for review and transcript of the record shall constitute petitioner's complaint. Said complaint shall thereupon be entered on the trial calendar of the court in accordance with the court's normal procedures.

(c) If the order of the Secretary of State shall be reversed, the court shall by its mandate specifically direct the Secretary of State as to his or her further action in the matter, including the making and entering of any order or orders in connection therewith and the conditions, limitations, or restrictions to be contained therein.

Amendments.

The 2022 amendment, effective July 1, 2023, redesignated subsection (a) as paragraph (a)(1); substituted "copy of the petition for review filed in the Superior Court of Fulton County and signed by the petitioner" for "written notice of appeal signed by the appellant" in the introductory language of paragraph (a)(1); added paragraph (a)(2); and rewrote subsection (b), which read: "Upon receipt of such notice of appeal, the Secretary of State shall, within ten days thereafter, make, certify, and deliver to the appellant a transcript of the record of the order from which the appeal is taken, provided that the appellant shall pay the reasonable costs of such transcript. The appellant shall, within five days after receipt of such transcript, file such transcript and a copy of the notice of appeal with the clerk of the court. Said notice of appeal and transcript of the record shall constitute appellant's complaint. Said complaint shall thereupon be entered on the trial calendar of the court in accordance with the court's normal procedures." See Editor's note for applicability.

Editor's notes.

Ga. L. 2022, p. 767, § 3-1/HB 916, not codified by the General Assembly, makes this Code section applicable to petitions for review filed in superior or state court on or after July 1, 2023.

10-14-23. Administrative appeal of orders issued by Secretary of State.

(a) Where the Secretary of State has issued any order forbidding the sale of burial lots, burial rights, burial merchandise, or burial services under any provision of this chapter, he or she shall promptly send to the cemetery owner, cemetery company, burial or funeral merchandise dealer, or preneed dealer and to the persons who have filed such application for registration a notice of opportunity for hearing. Before entering an order refusing to register any person or entity and after the entering of any order for revocation or suspension, the Secretary of State shall promptly send to such person or entity a notice of opportunity for hearing. Hearings shall be conducted by the Secretary of State pursuant to this Code section.

(b) Notices of opportunity for hearing shall be served by investigators appointed by the Secretary of State or sent by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, to the addressee's business mailing address, and such notice shall state:

(1) The order which has issued or which is proposed to be issued;

(2) The ground for issuing such order or proposed order; and

(3) That the person to whom such notice is sent will be afforded a hearing upon request if such request is made within ten days after receipt of the notice.

(c) Whenever a person requests a hearing in accordance with the provisions of this Code section, there shall immediately be set a date, time, and place for such hearing, and the person requesting such hearing shall forthwith be notified thereof. The date set for such hearing shall be within 15 days, but not earlier than five days after the request for hearing has been made, unless otherwise agreed to by the issuer of the notice and the person requesting such hearing.

(d) For the purpose of conducting any hearing as provided in this Code section, the Secretary of State shall have the power to administer oaths, to call any party to testify under oath at such hearings, to require the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, records, and papers, and to take the depositions of witnesses; and for such purposes the Secretary of State is authorized, at the request of the person requesting such hearing or upon the official's own initiative, to issue a subpoena for any witnesses or a subpoena for the production of documentary evidence to compel the production of any books, records, or papers. Said subpoenas may be served by certified mail or statutory overnight delivery, return receipt requested, to the addressee's business mailing address or by investigators appointed by the Secretary of State or shall be directed for service to the sheriff of the county where such witness resides or is found or where such person in custody of any books, records, or papers resides or is found. The fees and mileage of the sheriff, witness, or person shall be paid from the funds in the state treasury for the use of the Secretary of State in the same manner that other expenses of the Secretary of State are paid.

(e) At any hearing conducted under this Code section, a party or an affected person may appear in his or her own behalf or may be represented by an attorney. A stenographic record of the testimony and other evidence submitted shall be taken unless the Secretary of State and the person requesting such hearing shall agree that such a stenographic record of the testimony shall not be taken. A transcript of the proceeding shall be made available to a party upon the payment of reasonable costs. The Secretary of State shall pass upon the admissibility of such evidence, but a party may at any time make objections to such rulings thereon; and, if the Secretary of State refuses to admit evidence, the party offering the same shall make a proffer thereof and such proffer shall be made a part of the record of such hearing.

(f) If the Secretary of State does not receive a request for a hearing within the prescribed time, he or she may permit an order previously entered to remain in effect or he or she may enter a proposed order. If a hearing is requested and conducted as provided in this Code section, the Secretary of State shall issue a written order which shall set forth his or her findings with respect to the matters involved and enter an order in accordance with the Secretary's findings.

(a) Prior law exclusively governs all actions, prosecutions, or proceedings which are pending or may be initiated on the basis of facts or circumstances occurring before July 1, 2000, except that no civil action may be maintained to enforce any liability under prior law unless brought within any period of limitation which applied when the cause of action accrued and, in any event, no later than July 1, 2000.

(b) All effective registrations under prior law, all administrative orders relating to such registrations, and all conditions imposed upon such registrations remain in effect. They shall be deemed to have been filed, entered, or imposed under this chapter but are governed by prior law.

10-14-29. Construction of mausoleums and columbariums; preconstruction trust funds.

(a) A cemetery company shall start construction of that section of a mausoleum or columbarium in which sales, contracts for sales, reservations for sales, or agreements for sales are being made within four years after the date of the first such sale or 50 percent of the mausoleum or columbarium has been sold and the purchase price has been received, whichever occurs first. The construction shall be completed within five years after the date of the first sale made. If the units have not been completely constructed at the earlier of time of need or the time specified in this subsection, all moneys paid shall be refunded upon request, plus interest earned thereon for that portion of the moneys deposited in the preneed escrow account and an amount equal to the interest that would have been earned on that portion of the moneys that were not so deposited.

(b) A cemetery company that plans to offer for sale space in a section of a mausoleum or columbarium prior to construction shall establish a preconstruction trust fund by written instrument. The preconstruction trust fund shall be administered by a corporate trustee approved by the Secretary of State and not affiliated with the cemetery company and operated in conformity with applicable provisions of Code Section 10-14-7. The preconstruction trust fund shall be separate from any other trust funds that may be required by this chapter.

(c) Before a sale, contract for sale, reservation for sale, or agreement for sale in a mausoleum section or columbarium may be made, the cemetery company shall compute the amount to be deposited to the preconstruction trust fund. The total amount to be deposited in the fund for each unit of the project shall be computed by dividing the cost of the project plus 10 percent of the cost, as computed by a licensed contractor, engineer, or architect, by the number of crypts or niches in the mausoleum or columbarium. When payments are received in installments, the percentage of the installment payment placed in trust must be identical to the percentage which the payment received bears to the total cost of the contract, including other burial or funeral merchandise and services purchased. Preconstruction trust fund payments shall be made within 30 days after the end of the month in which payment is received.

(d) When the cemetery company delivers a completed crypt, mausoleum, columbarium, or niche acceptable to the purchaser in lieu of the crypt or niche purchased prior to construction, all sums deposited to the preconstruction trust fund for that purchaser shall be paid to the cemetery company.

(e) Upon completion of the mausoleum section or columbarium, the cemetery company shall certify completion to the trustee and shall be entitled to withdraw all funds deposited to the account of such mausoleum section or columbarium.

(f) If the mausoleum section or columbarium is not completed within the time limits set out in this Code section, the trustee shall contract for and cause the project to be completed and pay therefor from the trust funds deposited to the project's account, paying any balance, less cost and expenses, to the cemetery company. The cemetery company shall be liable for any difference between the amount necessary to complete construction and the amount of trust funds.

(g) On or before January 31 of each year, the trustee shall file with the Secretary of State in the form prescribed by the Secretary of State, a full and true statement as to the activities of any trust established pursuant to this Code section for the preceding calendar year.

It shall be an affirmative defense to the wrongful disposing of or discarding of a customer's record that contains personal information if the business can show that it used due diligence in its attempt to properly dispose of or discard such records.

(b) If the Attorney General determines, after notice and hearing, that a business has violated Code Section 10-15-3, the Attorney General may issue an administrative order imposing a penalty of not more than $250.00 for the first violation of Code Section 10-15-3, and a penalty of $1,000.00 for a second or subsequent violation of Code Section 10-15-3.

(c) The hearing and any administrative review in connection with alleged violations of Code Section 10-15-2 or 10-15-3 shall be conducted in accordance with the procedure for contested cases pursuant to Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act." Any person who has exhausted all administrative remedies available and who is aggrieved or adversely affected by a final order or action of the Attorney General shall have the right of judicial review in accordance with Chapter 13 of Title 50, the "Georgia Administrative Procedure Act."
