Preface

This volume cumulates and replaces the 2015 edition of Volume 13 of the Official Code of Georgia Annotated, as supplemented by the 2019 Cumulative Supplement. The 2015 Volume 13 and its supplement may be recycled or, if so desired, retained for historical purposes.

This volume contains all laws specifically codified in Title 15, Chapters 1 through 11A, by the General Assembly through the 2020 Session. This volume also contains case annotations reflecting decisions posted to LexisNexis® through August 7, 2020. These annotations will appear in the following traditional reporter sources: Georgia Supreme Court Opinions; Georgia Appeals Court Opinions; Southeastern Reporter, Second Series; Supreme Court Reporter; Federal Reporter, Third Series; Federal Supplement, Second Series; Federal Rules Decisions; and Bankruptcy Reporter. As official and traditional citations become available, substitutions for the LexisNexis® citations will be made.

Additionally, LexisNexis® has prepared annotations and references to Attorney General Opinions, law reviews, and other research sources that we hope will be beneficial as you utilize this product. A complete listing of those sources is as follows: Official and Unofficial Attorney General Opinions; Opinions of the Judicial Qualifications Commission; Advisory Opinions of the State Disciplinary Board of the State Bar; Formal Advisory Opinions of the State Disciplinary Board of the State Bar, issued by the Supreme Court of Georgia; Emory Law Journal; Georgia Law Review; Georgia State University Law Review; John Marshall Law Review; Mercer Law Review; Georgia State Bar Journal; American Law Reports; American Jurisprudence 2d; American Jurisprudence Pleading and Practice, American Jurisprudence Proof of Facts; American Jurisprudence Trials; Corpus Juris Secundum; and Uniform Laws Annotated. Also included, where appropriate, are cross references to the Official Code of Georgia Annotated. This volume retains amendment notes and effective date notes for Acts passed during the 2018, 2019 and 2020 Sessions of the General Assembly. In order to determine the changes which were made or the effective date applied to a Code section by an Act passed prior to the 2018 Session of the General Assembly, the user should consult the Georgia Laws.

General Consideration

This Code section is a codification of preexisting law. Central Bank v. Gibson, 11 Ga. 453 (1852).

Language in the latter part of this Code section does not mean that parties can confer upon a court, by agreement or waiver, jurisdiction as to a subject matter. The statute was a codification of the preexisting law, and it has been declared that it was the same in effect after the adoption of the Code as before that time. Rosenthal v. Langley, 180 Ga. 253, 179 S.E. 383, appeal dismissed, 295 U.S. 720, 55 S. Ct. 916, 79 L. Ed. 1674 (1935).

Code section does not mean that parties can confer subject matter jurisdiction on court. — Last sentence of this Code section does not mean that parties, by agreement or waiver, can confer jurisdiction of subject matter on the court, and as to the subject matter the court is limited by the power conferred upon the court by law. Champion v. Rakes, 155 Ga. App. 134, 270 S.E.2d 272 (1980).

Extent of relief against nonresident not served in this state. — Extent of available judicial relief in reference to alimony against a nonresident defendant, who is not personally served in this state, or does not acknowledge service, or who does not voluntarily submit to the jurisdiction of the court by appearing and pleading, is confined to the seizure and utilization of such property as the defendant may own, situated within the jurisdiction of the court. Hicks v. Hicks, 193 Ga. 446, 18 S.E.2d 754 (1942).

Suit brought in county where neither defendant resided. — Suit to remove from the record a certain year's support proceeding as a cloud upon the title of described land in plaintiff's possession was one in equity and not one respecting title to land, and should have been brought in the county of a defendant against whom substantial relief was sought; since the suit was brought in a county where neither defendant resided, the court was without jurisdiction of the subject matter and such jurisdiction could not be conferred by consent or waived by the parties. Sweatman v. Roberts, 213 Ga. 112, 97 S.E.2d 320 (1957).

Forum selection clause cannot confer subject matter jurisdiction. — Trial court erred in entering an order enjoining the appellants from the appellants alleged continuing trespass on the appellee's premises because the trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction as the premises were located in South Carolina; and the forum selection clause could not confer subject matter jurisdiction to the trial court as forum selection clauses did not address subject matter jurisdiction, but rather personal jurisdiction. MSM Poly, LLC v. Textile Rubber & Chem. Co., 353 Ga. App. 538, 839 S.E.2d 4 (2020).

Attachment proceedings. — If a defendant in an attachment, at the time the attachment was issued and levied, resided in the county where it was returnable, but prior to the filing of the declaration changed the defendant's domicile to another county, the court wherein the attachment was pending did not have jurisdiction to render a general judgment against the defendant since the defendant had not appeared and made a defense, nor replevied the property levied upon. Varn v. Chapman, 137 Ga. 300, 73 S.E. 507 (1912).

Appeals. — Without proper and timely filing of a notice of appeal, dismissal is required in spite of the fact of consent given by opposing counsel to the late appeal as parties may not give jurisdiction to a court by consent, express or implied, as to the person or subject matter of an action. Clark v. State, 182 Ga. App. 752, 357 S.E.2d 109 (1987).

Appellate court needs to assess jurisdiction before proceeding. — Appellate court was unable to address the merits of the business owner's appeal because the court was unable to determine whether the court had subject matter jurisdiction as it was necessary to determine if the power company properly filed a motion for contempt or impermissibly attempted to initiate a new civil action. Cowart v. Georgia Power Company, 354 Ga. App. 748, 841 S.E.2d 426 (2020).

Brumbelow, 843 S.E.2d 582, No. S19G0426, 2020 Ga. LEXIS 353 (2020).

Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Agreement of parties. — Jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon a court or administrative body, such as the Department of Industrial Relations (now State Board of Workers' Compensation), by the agreement or consent, past or present, of the parties if jurisdiction over the subject matter of the claim or controversy does not actually exist. City Council v. Reynolds, 50 Ga. App. 482, 178 S.E. 485 (1935).

Subject Matter Jurisdiction (Cont'd)

Jurisdiction of subject matter of suit cannot be conferred by agreement or consent, or be waived or "based on an estoppel of a party to deny that it exists." Langston v. Nash, 192 Ga. 427, 15 S.E.2d 481 (1941).

Consent of parties cannot give court jurisdiction of subject matter when the court has none by law, and if the court discovers from the record that a judgment has been rendered by a court having no jurisdiction of the subject matter, and the case is brought to the Georgia Supreme Court for review upon writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50), the Supreme Court will of the court's own motion reverse the judgment. Sweatman v. Roberts, 213 Ga. 112, 97 S.E.2d 320 (1957).

Waiver. — As to the subject matter, the jurisdiction of a court is limited by the power conferred upon the court by law, and cannot be given additional jurisdiction by waiver. Thomas v. Calhoun Nat'l Bank, 157 Ga. 475, 121 S.E. 808 (1924).

Subject matter jurisdiction is not amenable to waiver. In re C.F., 199 Ga. App. 858, 406 S.E.2d 279 (1991).

Equity jurisdiction. — Although an agreement by parties is entitled to consideration, the parties cannot by waiver or consent confer equity jurisdiction on a court when the court is otherwise without jurisdiction. Sherrer v. Hale, 248 Ga. 793, 285 S.E.2d 714 (1982).

Waiver as to rights of parties. — Parties, by consent, express or implied, cannot give jurisdiction to court as to the person or the subject matter. It may be waived, however, as to the person, so far as the rights of the parties themselves are concerned. Lott v. City of Waycross, 152 Ga. 237, 110 S.E. 217 (1921).

Provision in agreement ineffective to confer jurisdiction. — Provision in an agreement to submit to arbitration for an appeal to the superior court is ineffective to confer on the superior court jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. Jurisdiction as to the subject matter cannot be conferred by consent. Georgia Power Co. v. Friar, 47 Ga. App. 675, 171 S.E. 210 (1933), aff'd, 179 Ga. 470, 175 S.E. 807 (1934).

Jurisdiction held not conferred by implied consent. — When the City of Augusta and claimant, a member of the city's fire department, made a written agreement for the payment of a stipulated weekly compensation to the claimant as an "employee" for the claimant's temporary total disability, and the Department of Industrial Relations (now State Board of Workers' Compensation) made an award confirming the agreement, without any question being presented as to whether the claimant was actually an employee or an officer of the city, and the claimant, after the conclusion of the payments under such agreement and award, filed a new application to the department for additional compensation to cover a permanent partial loss of use of the claimant's left hand resulting from the original injury, and when under the undisputed facts presented at the hearing of the second claim, and the foregoing rulings, the claimant was actually a public officer and not an employee of the city within the intent of the Workers' Compensation Act (O.C.G.A. T. 34, C. 9), it was error for the department to take jurisdiction of the new and additional claim since jurisdiction could not be thus imposed by implied consent any more than by the express consent of the city. City Council v. Reynolds, 50 Ga. App. 482, 178 S.E. 485 (1935).

No jurisdiction by consent after time for exercising such has expired. — If jurisdiction may not be given by consent before the time is ripe for jurisdiction to attach, jurisdiction may not be given by consent after the time for exercising jurisdiction has expired. Pal Theatre, Inc. v. Tarver, 60 Ga. App. 817, 5 S.E.2d 277 (1939).

Effect of Lack of Jurisdiction

Power of court over subject matter is sine qua non to valid judgment, and may not be waived by consent of the parties. Champion v. Rakes, 155 Ga. App. 134, 270 S.E.2d 272 (1980).

Judgment is nullity absent jurisdiction. — Suit in a court having no jurisdiction of the subject matter resulting in a judgment for the defendant is a nullity. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Taylor, 84 Ga. 408, 11 S.E. 396, 8 L.R.A. 189 (1890).

Void judgment will be reversed on review. — When, in consideration of a case, it is discovered from the record that a judgment has been rendered by a court having no jurisdiction of the subject matter, that judgment will be reversed. Cutts v. Scandrett, 108 Ga. 620, 34 S.E. 186 (1899).

Invalid decision is not res judicata. — If a court is wholly without jurisdiction of a given subject matter, an attempted decision of issues on that subject is invalid, and will not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit concerning the subject matter in a court of competent jurisdiction. Dix v. Dix, 132 Ga. 630, 64 S.E. 790 (1909).

No consent or waiver of parties can make void judgment legal. — If the court has no jurisdiction over the subject matter of a suit, parties cannot confer jurisdiction by agreement. The judgment in a case where the court is without jurisdiction is void, and no consent or waiver of the parties litigant can make it a legal judgment of a court of law or equity. O'Brien v. Harris, 105 Ga. 732, 31 S.E. 745 (1898).

Appellate court could not address the merits of the defendant's enumerations of errors as the power company did not properly invoke the jurisdiction of the trial court when the company attempted to initiate a new civil action by filing a contempt proceeding because an action for contempt was ancillary to the primary action and, as such, was not a pleading but a motion; thus, it was improper for the power company to initiate a new civil action to enforce contempt of an order from a prior case, and the trial court was without jurisdiction to consider the power company's improperly filed contempt proceeding. Cowart v. Georgia Power Company, 354 Ga. App. 748, 841 S.E.2d 426 (2020).

Waiver

Jurisdiction of person may be waived. — This section has been construed to permit a party to waive lack of jurisdiction over the party's person. McGahee v. Hilton & Dodge Lumber Co., 112 Ga. 513, 37 S.E. 708 (1900); Sanford v. Tanner, 114 Ga. 1005, 41 S.E. 668 (1902).

It is permissible to waive jurisdiction over the person provided the court has jurisdiction of the subject matter of the suit. Southern Express Co. v. B.R. Elec. Co., 126 Ga. 472, 55 S.E. 254 (1906).

Jurisdiction of a person may be waived. Harper v. Allen, 41 Ga. App. 736, 154 S.E. 651 (1930).

Jurisdiction of a person may be waived in connection with acknowledgement of service. Georgia Creosoting Co. v. Moody, 41 Ga. App. 701, 154 S.E. 294 (1930).

Consent to jurisdiction through forum selection clause. — O.C.G.A. § 15-1-2 did not prohibit a party from waiving the defense of lack of personal jurisdiction by consensually subjecting itself to jurisdiction of the court through a forum selection clause in a contract. Apparel Resources Int'l, Ltd. v. Amersig S.E., Inc., 215 Ga. App. 483, 451 S.E.2d 113 (1994).

Filing of general demurrer (now motion to dismiss) is equivalent to plea to merits within this rule. Harper v. Allen, 41 Ga. App. 736, 154 S.E. 651 (1930).

Failure to plead jurisdiction waives irregularities. — If a defendant appears and pleads to the merits, without pleading to the jurisdiction and without any protestation as to process or service, the defendant thereby admits the jurisdiction of the court and waives all irregularities of the process, or of the absence of process and the service thereof. Harper v. Allen, 41 Ga. App. 736, 154 S.E. 651 (1930).

Defendant's appearance in support of motion. — In case of a judgment void for want of personal service of process, the defendant does not waive the question of jurisdiction or validate the void judgment by an appearance after judgment in support of a motion to set the judgment aside. Hicks v. Hicks, 193 Ga. 446, 18 S.E.2d 754 (1942).

Rights of Third Persons

Language refers to interferences with legal rights of third persons. — The language "but not so as to prejudice third persons" does not refer to mere inconvenience and expense in defending an action properly brought, but to interferences with legal rights of third persons. Odgen Equip. Co. v. Talmadge Farms,

Rights of Third Persons (Cont'd)

Inc., 132 Ga. App. 834, 209 S.E.2d 260 (1974).

Parties may not waive jurisdiction to prejudice of third parties. — Parties defendant to an equitable action who appear and plead to the merits without excepting to the jurisdiction thereby waive any objection to the jurisdiction of the person so far as those defendants are concerned; but parties cannot waive jurisdiction to the prejudice of third parties. White v. North Ga. Elec. Co., 139 Ga. 587, 77 S.E. 789 (1913).

Purchasers from defendant are bound by defendant's waiver. — Though a defendant may not so waive a want of jurisdiction as to defendant's person as to affect third persons, yet purchasers from defendant whose rights originate after the judgment against defendant's rendered after such waiver by defendant are bound by defendant's waiver on the principle of estoppel. Glennville Bank v. Deal, 146 Ga. 127, 90 S.E. 958 (1916).

Error to join another party when no jurisdiction. — When, to an action at law brought by a resident of Polk County against a defendant residing in Fulton County, an answer in the nature of a cross action (now counterclaim) was filed, in which substantial equitable relief was prayed against the plaintiff and a third party who was also a resident of Polk County, it was erroneous to make the latter, over defendant's objection, a party, and to refuse on defendant's motion to dismiss the cross action as to defendant, the ground of such objection and motion being that the court had no jurisdiction to grant as to defendant the relief sought. Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943).

Section on point where third parties involved. — Since former Code 1933, § 3-202 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-10-30) can be reconciled with Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. III (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. III), as to venue of equity cases only on the ground of waiver, then former Code 1933, § 24-112 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-1-2), and particularly the latter portion thereof, was directly on point in a case involving third parties. Terhune v. Pettit, 195 Ga. 793, 25 S.E.2d 660 (1943).

(4) To control, in the furtherance of justice, the conduct of its officers and all other persons connected with a judicial proceeding before it, in every matter appertaining thereto;

General Consideration

Inherent powers. — Every court possesses inherent powers not specifically granted. Johnson v. State, 177 Ga. 881, 171 S.E. 699 (1933).

Inherent power of courts should never be impaired or destroyed to such an extent that the court cannot exercise a power necessary to the court's proper functioning. Evans v. State, 69 Ga. App. 178, 24 S.E.2d 861 (1943).

Transfer of cause to another court. — Unless expressly authorized, a court has no authority to transfer a case from itself to another court, and thereby give the other court possession of the case to hear and determine the case, although the other court would have had jurisdiction of the cause if the case had come to the court by due process. Burgess v. Nabers, 122 Ga. App. 445, 177 S.E.2d 266 (1970), but see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. VIII.

Appointment of foreperson of grand jury. — In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the judge of the superior court has inherent power as the presiding officer of the court to appoint the foreperson of a grand jury from the number of those duly selected and required to serve. This authority vested in the judge by law is not affected by the custom of permitting the members of the grand jury to elect a foreperson. Peeples v. State, 178 Ga. 675, 173 S.E. 850 (1934).

Refusal to accept pro se filings. — Trial court properly refused to accept plaintiff's pro se filings since plaintiff was represented by counsel at the time of the filings. Jacobsen v. Haldi, 210 Ga. App. 817, 437 S.E.2d 819 (1993).

Expert evaluation of criminal defendant. — Superior court of the county in which defendant was convicted of murder had authority, on defendant's motion for new trial, to order an expert evaluation of defendant, who was incarcerated beyond the boundaries of the county in which the court sat. Zant v. Brantley, 261 Ga. 817, 411 S.E.2d 869 (1992).

Board of Workers' Compensation does not have same powers or jurisdiction as courts. — Georgia Industrial Commission (now State Board of Workers' Compensation) is not a court of general jurisdiction, nor even of limited common-law jurisdiction, but is an industrial commission made so by express terms of the act of the legislature to administer the act's provisions as provided therein. As such, the administrative commission possesses only such jurisdiction, powers, and authority as are conferred upon the commission by the legislature, or such as arise therefrom by necessary implication to carry out the full and complete exercise of the powers granted. No power of reopening or rehearing a case on the case's merits, in which a decree has been entered, and of determining anew the liability or nonliability of the employer, is granted, except as provided by former Code 1933, § 114-709 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-9-104). Dempsey v. Chevrolet Div., 102 Ga. App. 408, 116 S.E.2d 509 (1960). (See also Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. I specifically empowering General Assembly to confer quasi-judicial powers on agencies).

Magistrate's power in dispossessory proceeding. — Magistrate court had the authority to enter an order in a dispossessory action directing the landlord to perform repairs to the tenant's apartment since a magistrate court was entitled to exercise such powers as were necessary in aid of the court's jurisdiction, or to protect or effectuate the court's judgments. H. J. Russell & Co. v. Manuel, 264 Ga. App. 273, 590 S.E.2d 250 (2003).

Clarification of new trial order in criminal action. — In an action in which a superior court granted defendant's motion for a new trial, as amended, based on a finding that a jury charge was erroneous and harmful, a second order which clarified that the new trial was to be held on only one of the multiple offenses of which defendant had been convicted was a proper clarification order under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3(6), rather than an improper reconsideration order; the content and context of the second order indicated that the order was clearly for clarification purposes, based on the state's request for clarification, and the superior court had previously denied reconsideration of the new trial order because reconsideration was requested out of term. Barlow v. State, 279 Ga. 870, 621 S.E.2d 438 (2005).

Abam-Samson, 318 Ga. App. 1, 733 S.E.2d 58 (2012); Devlin v. Devlin, 339 Ga. App. 520, 791 S.E.2d 840 (2016).

Discretion of Court

Discretion in regulating and controlling business of court is necessarily confided to judge. Simpkins v. State, 149 Ga. App. 763, 256 S.E.2d 63 (1979).

Pursuant to the court's inherent power under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3(3) and (4), the superior court did not abuse the court's discretion, or usurp the authority of the county sheriff by ordering the sheriff to transport county jail inmates represented by the county public defender to the county courthouse for pre-arraignment meetings as those actions helped to ensure that the inmates received effective assistance of counsel. Brown v. Incarcerated Pub. Defender Clients Div. 3, 288 Ga. App. 859, 655 S.E.2d 704 (2007), cert. denied, 2008 Ga. LEXIS 406 (Ga. 2008).

Discretion of Court (Cont'd)

Power to order defense counsel access to inmates. — Orders directing prison or jail authorities to allow visits by defense team members under appropriately specified conditions are proper; trial courts have authority to control, in the furtherance of justice, the conduct of their officers and all other persons connected with a judicial proceeding before them. State v. Rowe, 843 S.E.2d 537, No. S20A0504, 2020 Ga. LEXIS 345 (May 18, 2020).

Requiring party to submit to physical examination. — It is within the discretion of the court to require the plaintiff, suing for a physical injury alleged to be permanent, to submit to an examination by competent physicians. Richmond & D.R.R. v. Childress, 82 Ga. 719, 9 S.E. 602, 14 Am. St. R. 189, 3 L.R.A. 808 (1889).

Physical exam not required. — No abuse of discretion arises when an examination is not ordered. City of Cedartown v. Brooks, 2 Ga. App. 583, 59 S.E. 836 (1907).

Decision to retain jury. — Decision of retaining jury in session lies within discretion of court. Simpkins v. State, 149 Ga. App. 763, 256 S.E.2d 63 (1979).

Requiring a jury to deliberate until the hour of 4 A.M. is not such an abuse of discretion requiring reversal if the jury already reached an agreement on two of three counts and indicated the jury was making progress toward reaching agreement on the third and last count. Simpkins v. State, 149 Ga. App. 763, 256 S.E.2d 63 (1979).

Denial of mistrial. — Since the defendant contended the trial court erred in refusing to grant a mistrial based on plaintiff's behavior in that while plaintiff testified plaintiff was unresponsive, sobbed constantly, and made direct emotional speeches to the jury, but the record indicated that the trial court was monitoring plaintiff's testimony and instructed plaintiff on several occasions to be more responsive, no manifest abuse of discretion by the trial court in denying the motion for mistrial was found. Southern Ry. v. Lawson, 256 Ga. 798, 353 S.E.2d 491 (1987).

Denial of sanctions for defense counsel's improper remarks informing the jury that opposing counsel was representing plaintiffs on a contingent-fee basis was not an abuse of discretion since issues as to the amount of damages, addressed by the improper remarks, were not reached by the jury, and therefore no harm resulted. Stoner v. Eden, 199 Ga. App. 135, 404 S.E.2d 283, cert. denied, 199 Ga. App. 907, 404 S.E.2d 283 (1991).

Appellate review of discretion. — Discretion of the judges in all matters pertaining to contempt of their authority and mandates will never be controlled unless grossly abused. Crute v. Crute, 86 Ga. App. 96, 70 S.E.2d 727 (1952).

Discretion in regulating and controlling the business of the court is necessarily confided to the judge, who is invested with wide discretion in the exercise of which a reviewing court should never interfere unless it is made to appear that wrong or oppression has resulted from an abuse of discretion. Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. v. Grimes, 216 Ga. 74, 114 S.E.2d 421, appeal dismissed, 364 U.S. 290, 81 S. Ct. 63, 5 L. Ed. 2d 39 (1960); Barkett v. Jones, 142 Ga. App. 835, 237 S.E.2d 400 (1977).

If the legal rights of the parties are not prejudiced or denied, a reviewing court will not interfere with the discretion of the trial court in matters of practice in the hearing and disposition of causes before the court unless this discretionary power has been exercised in an illegal, unjust, or arbitrary manner. Bradford v. Parrish, 111 Ga. App. 167, 141 S.E.2d 125 (1965); Grossman v. Glass, 143 Ga. App. 464, 238 S.E.2d 569 (1977).

Reviewing court will not undertake to control the wide discretion vested in the trial court in the exercise of this fundamental power unless it is made to appear that wrong or oppression has resulted from an abuse of such discretion reposed in the court. Young v. Champion, 142 Ga. App. 687, 236 S.E.2d 783 (1977).

Denial of motion to correct judgment proper. — Trial court properly denied a motion to correct a judgment entered against two debtors and the debtors' guarantors, five years and eight months after the expiration of the term of court in which the judgment was entered, as the debtors failed to show any entitlement to relief or exception as to why the debtors could not have timely sought the relief requested, and O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3(6) was unavailing because that section did not enable a court to change a judgment in substance or in any material respect. De La Reza v. Osprey Capital, LLC, 287 Ga. App. 196, 651 S.E.2d 97 (2007), cert. denied, No. S07C1928, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 819 (Ga. 2007).

Preserving and Enforcing Order

Duty of administering justice and maintaining dignity and authority of court. — Every court's judges are charged with the duty of administering justice and with maintaining the dignity and authority of the court. Johnson v. State, 177 Ga. 881, 171 S.E. 699 (1933).

Power to control proceeding of court is subject to proviso that in so doing a judge does not take away or abridge any right of a party under the law. State v. Colquitt, 147 Ga. App. 627, 249 S.E.2d 680 (1978).

Inherent power to preserve and enforce order. — Every court has power to preserve and enforce order in the court's immediate presence, and as near thereto as is necessary to prevent interruption, disturbance, or hindrance to the court's proceedings. Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. v. Grimes, 216 Ga. 74, 114 S.E.2d 421, appeal dismissed, 364 U.S. 290, 81 S. Ct. 63, 5 L. Ed. 2d 39 (1960).

It is fundamental that every court possesses inherent power to preserve and enforce order and compel obedience to the court's judgments and orders, to control the conduct of the court's officers and all other persons connected with the judicial proceedings before the court, and to inflict summary punishment for contempt upon any person failing and refusing to obey any lawful order. Jackson v. State, 225 Ga. 553, 170 S.E.2d 281 (1969); Farmer v. Holton, 146 Ga. App. 102, 245 S.E.2d 457 (1978), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985), cert. denied, 440 U.S. 958, 99 S. Ct. 1499, 59 L. Ed. 2d 771 (1979).

Court may control conduct of press. — Courts have the power to determine the manner in which the courts shall operate in order to administer justice with dignity and decorum, and in such manner as shall be conducive to fair and impartial trials, and ascertainment of the truth uninfluenced by extraneous matters or distractions, and may stop conduct of representatives of the press in any field of activity interfering with the orderly conduct of court procedure or creating distractions interfering therewith. Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. v. Grimes, 216 Ga. 74, 114 S.E.2d 421, appeal dismissed, 364 U.S. 290, 81 S. Ct. 63, 5 L. Ed. 2d 39 (1960).

Spoliation of evidence. — Trial court did not err by precluding the testimony of defendant's expert regarding possible causes of an accident deduced from an examination of the wrecked car as a sanction for the spoliation of the vehicle against an order of the court directing preservation. R.A. Siegel Co. v. Bowen, 246 Ga. App. 177, 539 S.E.2d 873 (2000).

Trial court erred in attributing bad faith to the plaintiff based upon the wrecker service's destruction of the truck because there was no way to construe the evidence so as to conclude that the wrecker service was acting as the plaintiff's agent when the service disregarded counsel's repeated requests to preserve the truck, and the striking of the plaintiff's complaint as a sanction was an abuse of discretion. Wilkins v. City of Conyers, 47 Ga. App. 469, 819 S.E.2d 885 (2018).

Power to punish for contempt. — All courts are clothed with the inherent power to punish for contempt. West v. Field, 181 Ga. 152, 181 S.E. 661 (1935).

Discretion as to contempt power. — Question whether contempt has been committed is for trial court, and that court's adjudication will not be interfered with unless there has been an abuse of discretion. Berman v. Berman, 232 Ga. 342, 206 S.E.2d 447 (1974); Rutledge v. State, 151 Ga. App. 615, 260 S.E.2d 743 (1979).

Disobedience to lawful court order. — Disobedience to lawful order of court is obstruction of justice, and for such a violation the court, in order to compel respect or compliance, may punish for contempt. Griggers v. Bryant, 239 Ga. 244, 236 S.E.2d 599 (1977).

Summary contempt power. — Although summary punishment is always and rightly regarded with disfavor, there is no doubt that the summary contempt power is still available to courts, under the appropriate circumstances, to control judicial proceedings. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Court may apply less harsh sanctions. — Under certain circumstances, the court may decide the sanctions provided by statute are too severe and apply less harsh measures under the court's inherent power to enforce obedience. Millholland v. Oglesby, 223 Ga. 230, 154 S.E.2d 194 (1967).

Notice and hearing on constructive contempt. — In cases of constructive contempt of court if the alleged contumacious conduct is disobedience to a mandate of the court, not an act in the presence of the court or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice, the law requires that a rule nisi issue and be served upon the accused, giving the accused notice of the charges against the accused, and that the accused be given an opportunity to be heard. Anthony v. Anthony, 240 Ga. 155, 240 S.E.2d 45 (1977).

Purpose of notice to accused. — Notice given by the rule nisi is to afford the accused a reasonable time in which to prepare the accused's defense to the charge that the accused has violated the court's order. Anthony v. Anthony, 240 Ga. 155, 240 S.E.2d 45 (1977).

Contempt of order when actual notice exists. — Person may be held in contempt of a court order entered in a proceeding in which the person was not a party, if it is shown that the person sought to be held in contempt had actual notice of the order. Anthony v. Anthony, 240 Ga. 155, 240 S.E.2d 45 (1977).

Probate court may punish for contempt. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) has jurisdiction of matters pertaining to the estates of deceased persons, jurisdiction over administrators, jurisdiction to compel administrators to account for the assets of an estate in their possession or custody, and jurisdiction in such cases to attach and punish for contempt. Melton v. Jenkins, 50 Ga. App. 615, 178 S.E. 754 (1935).

Order containing contempt of court provision valid. — Judge of superior court, upon a finding that the administrator had in the administrator's possession, custody, and control, money which belonged to the estate of the deceased, and which the administrator failed and refused to pay into court for distribution among the heirs at law, as directed by a valid judgment of the court of ordinary (now probate court), acted within the judge's powers, not only in rendering a judgment ordering that the administrator pay the amount which the administrator held to the several heirs at law, to be applied against the judgment rendered in the court of ordinary (now probate court), but also in ordering that upon the administrator's failure to do so within seven days the administrator be adjudged in contempt of court and be committed to the common jail of the county. Lewis v. Grovas, 62 Ga. App. 625, 9 S.E.2d 282 (1940).

Whether undisputed conduct amounts to contempt is question of law. — It is a question of law for the court to decide whether the courtroom conduct which is factually undisputed amounts to criminal contempt of court. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Evidence not required for contempt in judge's presence. — When the contempt occurs totally in the presence of the judge, there is no necessity for the production of evidence. Indeed, there is no burden of persuading the trier of fact as there is no fact finding process to be conducted. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

No evidentiary standard of proof required for conduct in judge's presence. — If the contumacious conduct is committed in the presence of the court in the immediate view of the judge, it is unnecessary for the court to apply any evidentiary standard of proof in order to summarily hold the contemnor in contempt of court. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Protection of client's rights no excuse. — Once an objection has been made by an attorney and the court has made the court's considered ruling, subsequent contumacious conduct will not be excused merely for the fact that the conduct was committed by an officer of the court during court proceedings in an attempt to protect the rights of the attorney's client. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Shackling of defendant. — Because the record did not reveal any specific actions of the appellant justifying the use of restraints, the shackling of the appellant, which continued throughout the trial, injected partiality into the trial, infringed upon the appellant's presumption of innocence and prevented the fundamental fairness which attends a trial by jury. Pace v. State, 212 Ga. App. 489, 442 S.E.2d 307 (1994).

Use of an electronic prisoner restraint device shielded from the jury's view was permissible. Young v. State, 269 Ga. 478, 499 S.E.2d 60 (1998), overruled on other grounds, 287 Ga. 242, 695 S.E.2d 255 (2010).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by ordering the defendant to wear a restraint belt during trial as the defendant pointed to no assertions that the defendant made during the trial that wearing the restraint belt had an adverse effect on the defendant or that the belt prevented the defendant from assisting the defendant's attorney. Campbell v. State, 333 Ga. App. 829, 777 S.E.2d 507 (2015).

Compelling Obedience to Judgments, Orders, and Process

Judgment or decree to enforce prior judgment. — If it is brought to the attention of the judge that the judge's judgment upon the same issue in granting an interlocutory injunction against the enforcement of certain tax assessments by the mayor and council is being set at naught and disregarded, the judge can entertain an ancillary proceeding and render such judgment or decree as would enforce the judge's prior judgment until it should be reversed; and an objection based on lack of jurisdiction of the judge to issue an injunction upon the amendment is without merit. City of Macon v. Ries, 180 Ga. 371, 179 S.E. 529 (1935).

Power of Court of Appeals to enforce judgments. — Court of Appeals has the power to entertain a petition for mandamus or prohibition in order to enforce the court's judgments. Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc. v. Moran, 248 Ga. 461, 284 S.E.2d 256 (1981).

Change in venue does not eliminate court's power. — When the venue is changed, the first court does not lose power to enforce the court's judgment changing the venue. Ruffin v. State, 28 Ga. App. 40, 110 S.E. 311 (1921).

Superior court rendering the final order placing the custody of the parties' minor child in the appellant retains jurisdiction to enforce the court's order by attachment for contempt, notwithstanding the fact that subsequent to the rendition of the order the appellant may have removed the appellant's residence to another county. Ogletree v. Watson, 223 Ga. 618, 157 S.E.2d 464 (1967).

Jurisdiction to enforce retained despite change of residence. — Superior court, awarding alimony in virtue of the court's jurisdiction originally invoked by plaintiff in divorce suit, had jurisdiction to enforce the court's payment by attachment for contempt against the plaintiff after the plaintiff changed the plaintiff's residence to another county. Curtright v. Curtright, 187 Ga. 122, 200 S.E. 711 (1938).

Trial court retained jurisdiction to enforce stock levy order and to compel judgment debtor to reconvey corporate assets. — Trial court that ordered a judgment debtor to convey shares of stock to the court for levy and execution retained jurisdiction for the purpose of enforcing the levy orders, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3(3) and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. IV, and compelling the debtor to reconvey assets of the corporation to the judgment creditor, the new shareholder. Clark v. Chapman, 301 Ga.

Compelling Obedience to Judgments, Orders, and Process (Cont'd)

App. 117, 687 S.E.2d 146 (2009).

Action should not be dismissed because of witness' disobedience to court order. — Action by a father for the loss of the services of his minor child should not be dismissed because the child, after reaching majority, refused to obey an order of the court in which the action was pending requiring the child to submit to a physical examination. Bagwell v. Atlanta Consol. S. Ry., 109 Ga. 611, 34 S.E. 1018, 47 L.R.A. 486 (1900).

Interference with receiver's possession of property. — One who dispossesses the receiver of property consigned to that person by the court dispossesses the court, and of course becomes in contempt of court; and one may be punished for contempt and the property may be restored. A contempt of court being complete by dispossessing the receiver, the fact that no injunctive order has been passed does not affect the case. Coker v. Norman, 162 Ga. 351, 133 S.E. 740 (1926).

Refusal to answer writ of certiorari. — When a person has been tried and convicted in the county court, and has petitioned the judge of the superior court for a writ of certiorari, and the petition is sanctioned, and the writ issued, and the judge of the county court refuses to answer as required by the writ, the judge of the superior court, in term time, has power to attach the county court judge for contempt. Pittman v. Hagans, 91 Ga. 107, 16 S.E. 659 (1892).

Party late for trial. — Public housing tenant's answer was struck since the tenant was five minutes late for trial after having been warned not to be late. Truitt v. Housing Auth., 235 Ga. App. 92, 507 S.E.2d 781 (1998).

Enforcement of custody provisions of Georgia divorce judgment. — Georgia court which issued a divorce judgment that has not been modified by a court of another state with jurisdiction to do so may hear a Georgia-resident, non-custodial parent's allegations of contumacious conduct leveled against the nonresident custodial parent; a Georgia court has the statutory power to compel obedience to the court's judgments, as well as the inherent power to enforce the court's orders through contempt proceedings, and the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-9-81 et seq., does not provide the exclusive means by which a party may seek enforcement of the custody provisions of a Georgia judgment. Dyer v. Surratt, 266 Ga. 220, 466 S.E.2d 584 (1996).

Authority to strike wife's pleadings in divorce for nonappearance. — It was not an abuse of discretion for a trial court to strike a wife's pleadings in a divorce after the wife failed to appear at a final custody hearing because: (1) O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3 gave the trial court such authority for the wife's wilful refusal to participate; (2) the wife was warned to check for notices of upcoming hearing dates; and (3) despite proper notice, the wife chose not to participate or state why. Pennington v. Pennington, 291 Ga. 165, 728 S.E.2d 230 (2012).

Revocation of bail bond for violations. — Since the defendant was charged with battery against a specific female victim, the trial court had authority to revoke defendant's bail bond following defendant's violation of conditions thereof that forbade the defendant to threaten, harass, stalk, or abuse the victim. Clarke v. State, 228 Ga. App. 219, 491 S.E.2d 450 (1997).

Refusal of order to testify. — Defendant's criminal contempt conviction was reversed as the trial court relied on another court's ex parte immunity grant in ordering the defendant to testify and neither court made a finding that defendant's testimony was "necessary to the public interest" as required by former O.C.G.A. § 24-9-28 (see now O.C.G.A. § 24-5-507); the state had to grant a valid immunity as broad in scope as the privilege the state replaced and show the applicability of that state immunity to the witness. In re Long, 276 Ga. App. 306, 623 S.E.2d 181 (2005).

Trial court's failure to use proper Fifth Amendment analysis. — Trial court did not engage in the required analysis for a witness asserting a Fifth Amendment privilege, but merely declared that answering the questions concerning knowledge of the court's order regarding removing a child from a father's home would not incriminate the witness; at a minimum, such knowledge would establish a link in the chain of evidence needed to prove the witness was in contempt of that order and the trial court's finding of contempt based on the witness's refusal to answer the question was improper. In re Tidwell, 279 Ga. App. 734, 632 S.E.2d 690 (2006).

Conduct of Officers and Other Persons

Paragraph (4) codifies ancient right. — Paragraph (4) is a codification of a right which has inhered in courts from ancient times. Lowe v. Taylor, 180 Ga. 654, 180 S.E. 223 (1935).

Order for deposit into court registry authorized. — In a trespass action against a sign leasing corporation for unauthorized placement of a sign, the trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in ordering the corporation to deposit income from operation of the sign into the court's registry. Courtesy Leasing, Inc. v. Christian, 266 Ga. 187, 465 S.E.2d 443 (1996).

Broad powers given to trial courts by paragraph (4) of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3 to manage the cases over which the courts preside authorized the trial court to order the deposit into the registry of funds. Such funds were due by the plaintiffs to the defendants under a prior settlement agreement which the plaintiffs alleged was breached by the defendants since the action made entitlement to the funds an issue and, under the allegations of the complaint, the plaintiffs may have been excused from further performance under the agreement by the defendants' breach. Eichelkraut v. Camp, 236 Ga. App. 721, 513 S.E.2d 267 (1999).

Inherent power. — Courts have the inherent power to adequately control, in furtherance of justice, officers, parties, jurors, witnesses, and others connected with a pending case. Crosby v. Potts, 8 Ga. App. 463, 69 S.E. 582 (1910).

Control is essential. — It is essential that control of persons referred to in paragraph (4) be exercised in a matter which is before the court. Lowe v. Taylor, 180 Ga. 654, 180 S.E. 223 (1935).

Attorney conduct. — Attorney at law admitted to practice in the courts of this state is an officer of the courts, and as such, is as much subject to the power of the court to control the conduct of persons present in the courtroom as others are subject thereto. Kellar v. State, 226 Ga. 432, 175 S.E.2d 654 (1970).

Contempt against a lawyer was affirmed when the lawyer failed to appear at the call of the client's case, failed to file a conflict letter, failed to notify the trial court of the lawyer's unavailability, failed to notify the client that the lawyer would not be in court, and, after being haled into court to explain the lawyer's conduct, the lawyer failed to acknowledge that the lawyer had not complied with Ga. Unif. Super. Ct. R. 17.1(B) regarding notification of conflicts and had, thus, inconvenienced both the court and the lawyer's client, and lastly, displayed contumacious behavior at the contempt hearing. In re Herring, 268 Ga. App. 390, 601 S.E.2d 839 (2004).

Contempt against lawyer without consideration of evidence erroneous. — Juvenile court erred by summarily holding an attorney in contempt based on a per se rule. The juvenile court determined that a per se rule existed that an attorney was in contempt when the attorney claimed ineffectiveness against themselves, but no such per se rule existed and, therefore, it was error to have adjudicated the attorney in contempt. Morris v. State, 295 Ga. App. 579, 672 S.E.2d 531 (2009).

Self-representation. — As the right to represent oneself does not evaporate when an attorney is hired, a court errs in barring a party from representing oneself because an appearance has been made for the attorney by other attorneys; however, the court is not required to accept random appearances and filings by both the client and attorneys. If a party and the party's attorneys are unable to coordinate their efforts so that they speak with one voice, the court is empowered to appoint a leading counsel who shall be the spokesperson. Cherry v. Coast House, Ltd., 257 Ga. 403, 359 S.E.2d 904 (1987), cert. denied, 484 U.S. 1060, 108 S. Ct. 1015, 98 L. Ed. 2d 981 (1988).

Disclosure by plaintiff applying for relief. — Court has inherent power to enforce disclosure by plaintiff applying to the court's forum for relief. Millholland v. Oglesby, 223 Ga. 230, 154 S.E.2d 194 (1967).

Court can compel attendance of witness under the court's power to control all persons connected with a judicial proceeding before the court. Western & Atl. R.R. v. Denmead, 83 Ga. 351, 9 S.E. 683 (1889).

Bail or jail of witness to secure presence. — Court, in order to secure the presence of a witness in a criminal case, and to prevent the witness leaving the jurisdiction of the court prior to the trial, may require that the witness give bail for the witness's appearance, and, in default of the witness's giving bail, cause the witness to be held in confinement. Crosby v. Potts, 8 Ga. App. 463, 69 S.E. 582 (1910).

If it is necessary in order to secure the attendance of a witness at court to make the witness testify, the court has ample authority to secure the witness's attendance by requiring the witness to give bail, or in default thereof, to go to jail. Pullen v. Cleckler, 162 Ga. 111, 132 S.E. 761 (1926).

Imprisonment of witness defaulting on bond. — No court should order a witness to be imprisoned in default of bond, except from grave necessity; unless the witness's testimony is material and important, and unless there is strong likelihood that, if the witness is not restrained by confinement or bond, the witness will violate the mandates of the subpoena and flee the limits of the state, the power should not be exercised. Lowe v. Taylor, 180 Ga. 654, 180 S.E. 223 (1935).

"Extraordinary service" not illegal such that witness could refuse to testify. — In a contempt proceeding against a witness for refusing to testify, arising in a proceeding by a solicitor general (now district attorney) to revoke a previous order of the court admitting certain persons to practice law, which main proceeding was not a technical motion in arrest or motion to set aside, but was an independent proceeding quasi in rem at law, and invoked control by the court over the court's own officers, "extraordinary service" ordered by the court was not illegal so as to permit the witness to refuse to testify. Simpson v. Bradley, 189 Ga. 316, 5 S.E.2d 893 (1939), cert. denied, 310 U.S. 643, 60 S. Ct. 1105, 84 L. Ed. 1410 (1940).

Payment for court reporting services. — O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3 gives no authority, by in personam order, to compel the payment of private contractual obligations incurred by an attorney for court reporting services. Augustine v. Clifton, 248 Ga. 553, 284 S.E.2d 432 (1981).

Claim for money in attorney's hands by person other than client. — When, as the result of a lawsuit instituted by an attorney for a client, money has come into the hands of the attorney, the defendant in that suit who claims title to the money, but who is not the client of the attorney, cannot enforce the client's claim by rule against the attorney. Blanch v. Roberson, 69 Ga. App. 423, 25 S.E.2d 720 (1943).

Money in hands of attorney. — Right to rule an attorney, for money alleged to be in the attorney's hands as such, depends upon the existence of the relation of attorney and client and is limited to the client. Haygood v. Haden, 119 Ga. 463, 46 S.E. 625 (1904); Blanch v. Roberson, 69 Ga. App. 423, 25 S.E.2d 720 (1943).

Party sanctioned. — Trial court was within the court's authority to strike the party's answer and counterclaim and to bar the presentation of evidence after the party failed to personally appear throughout the litigation and disregarded multiple orders. Bayless v. Bayless, 280 Ga. 153, 625 S.E.2d 741 (2006).

No intimidation of defendant. — There was no merit to the defendant's claim of ineffective assistance of counsel in that the trial court intimidated the defendant by admonishing the defendant about making objections during the trial; since the defendant was represented by counsel, the defendant had no right to personally make evidentiary objections or otherwise assume the role of co-counsel. Phillips v. State, 278 Ga. App. 439, 629 S.E.2d 130 (2006).

Oaths

Authority of commissioners to administer oaths. — If a court is composed of commissioners, any one of the commissioners may administer oaths. Broadwater v. State, 10 Ga. App. 458, 73 S.E. 691 (1912).

Competency of reader of oath immaterial when in presence of court. — When the reading of the oath by another person is in the presence of the court, the competency of the person reading the oath is immaterial. Richards v. State, 131 Ga. App. 362, 206 S.E.2d 93 (1974).

Court's job to swear witnesses. — With regard to a defendant's convictions for incest and child molestation, the trial judge did not exhibit undue bias against the defense by reminding defense counsel that the swearing of witnesses fell within the dominion of the court. Hubert v. State, 297 Ga. App. 71, 676 S.E.2d 436 (2009).

Amendments

1. In General

Power to amend is broad and liberal. — Power to amend process given under the authority of paragraph (6) of this section is fully as broad and liberal as that allowed for the amendment of other pleadings. Everett v. McCary, 93 Ga. App. 474, 92 S.E.2d 112 (1956).

Death of party. — Fact that the husband died prior to the entry of the judgment nunc pro tunc would not alter the power of the court to complete and amend the court's records so as to make the records speak the truth. Moore v. Moore, 229 Ga. 600, 193 S.E.2d 608 (1972).

Effect of correction on nonparties. — Judgment cannot be corrected so as to bind person not party to suit. Thompson v. American Mtg. Co., 122 Ga. 39, 49 S.E. 751 (1905).

Application for discretionary appeal from probation revocation. — Defendant's filing of an application for discretionary appeal from a revocation of probation acted as a supersedeas to the same extent as a notice of appeal and thereby deprived the trial court of jurisdiction to enter an amended revocation order. Bryson v. State, 228 Ga. App. 84, 491 S.E.2d 184 (1997).

2. Scope of Power to Amend

Power to render records truthful. — All courts have inherent power to amend their records to speak the truth. Vaughn v. Fitzgerald, 112 Ga. 517, 37 S.E. 752 (1900).

Every court has the power to amend and control the court's processes and orders so as to make the orders conform to law and justice, and to amend the court's records to conform to the truth. Cox v. LeRoy, 130 Ga. App. 388, 203 S.E.2d 863 (1973).

Every court has the inherent power and duty to correct the court's own records to make the records speak truth. Willis v. Jackson, 148 Ga. App. 432, 251 S.E.2d 341 (1978).

Court may correct court's own records. — If based solely on the record, and without the necessity for the introduction of extrinsic evidence, the court may, on the court's own motion and without notice, enter a judgment and decree correcting the court's own records nunc pro tunc at a later date; and since such entry simply perfects the record as between the parties the entry relates back to the time when the entry should have been entered, although a different rule would apply to sureties, intervening bona fide purchasers, or innocent third parties. Swindell v. Swindell, 208 Ga. 727, 69 S.E.2d 197 (1952); Moore v. Moore, 229 Ga. 600, 193 S.E.2d 608 (1972).

Correction of errors and mistakes. — Every court, whether the court exercises exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction, is vested with inherent power to control and amend the court's records, judgments, and processes, and to correct errors and mistakes in those records, judgments, and processes. Ellis v. Clarke, 173 Ga. 618, 160 S.E. 780 (1931).

Court whose sole purpose is to deal fairly and do justice to all parties can accomplish this purpose only by acting upon true and correct records; and if errors or mistakes are found in the court's records, whether they be honest mistakes or deliberate alterations, the court in the exercise of the court's inherent power can and should correct all such records. Beecher v. Carter, 189 Ga. 234, 5 S.E.2d 648 (1939).

Motion to vacate order must be based on meritorious reason. — While a motion to vacate an order or judgment is one addressed to the court's sound discretion, such a motion should not be granted unless founded upon a meritorious reason. Drain Tile Mach., Inc. v. McCannon, 80 Ga. App. 373, 56 S.E.2d 165 (1949).

3. Timing of Changes and Relation Back

Control during term over orders and judgments. — Court of record has plenary control of the court's orders and judgments during term rendered, and may amend, correct, modify, supplement, or vacate the orders and judgments; the exercise of this power during the term will not be disturbed unless there is an abuse thereof. Drain Tile Mach., Inc. v. McCannon, 80 Ga. App. 373, 56 S.E.2d 165 (1949).

During the term at which a judgment or ruling is made, the judge, in the exercise of the judge's own discretion to correct errors and to promote justice, has plenary power to amend, modify, revise, supplement, or even supersede, revoke, or vacate such previous judgment or ruling. Shockley v. Henselee, 114 Ga. App. 227, 150 S.E.2d 689 (1966).

Final order must be set aside during same term entered. — Trial judge can set aside a final order entered provided that the order is set aside during the same term in which the order is entered. Donnelly v. Stynchcombe, 246 Ga. 118, 269 S.E.2d 10 (1980).

Power to correct at subsequent term. — Judge had power at the subsequent term, in the direct proceeding against the defendant, after due notice and a hearing, to correct the paper inadvertently signed as a sentence and entered upon the minutes of the court, so that the paper conforms to the actual sentence orally pronounced. Pulliam v. Jenkins, 157 Ga. 18, 121 S.E. 679 (1923).

Revising judgment at subsequent term. — Judgment may be revised or amended, or entered of record, nunc pro tunc, on proper motion, at a term subsequent to that at which the judgment was rendered so as to make the judgment speak the truth of the decision that was actually rendered, or to make the judgment conform to the verdict; but the judgment must be amended by an inspection of the record, including the pleadings and the verdict, without resort to extraneous evidence. Allen v. Community Loan & Inv. Corp., 78 Ga. App. 611, 51 S.E.2d 872 (1949).

Amendment of judgment after term and after affirmation on appeal. — Court may amend a judgment to make the judgment conform to the verdict, not only after the term in which the judgment was rendered, but after the case has been affirmed by an appellate court. Kerr v. Noble, 124 Ga. App. 722, 185 S.E.2d 807 (1971).

Notice of change made at subsequent term. — If done at same term, court may make correction without notice to anyone; if at a subsequent term, the correction must be upon notice to the parties at interest. Ellis v. Clarke, 173 Ga. 618, 160 S.E. 780 (1931).

Material amendments at subsequent term require notice. — Judgment regular on the judgment's face cannot at a subsequent term be amended in a material respect, even though the amendment makes the judgment conform to the original judgment as orally rendered if there has been no proceeding brought for that purpose, with due notice to parties whose rights are to be affected. Crowell v. Crowell, 191 Ga. 36, 11 S.E.2d 190 (1940).

Amendment to assert statute of limitations defense. — Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by permitting the insurance company to amend the company's answer to raise a statute-of-limitations defense to the tree service company owner's (owner's) personal injury claims after the entry of the pre-trial order because the owner failed to show any prejudice since the other defendants had raised the statute-of-limitations defense by the time the insurance company did, so the owner was on notice that the defense would be considered by the trial court. Popham v. Landmark Am. Ins. Co., 340 Ga. App. 603, 798 S.E.2d 257 (2017).

Disposition of motion to revise or vacate. — Motion to revise or vacate an order or judgment not founded on a verdict made during the term at which rendered cannot be determined by any fixed rule, but the disposition thereof by the court depends on the circumstances of the case. Drain Tile Mach., Inc. v. McCannon, 80 Ga. App. 373, 56 S.E.2d 165 (1949).

Incorrect docket entry that case is settled. — Entry on the issue docket of a superior court that a case is settled is prima facie true and cannot be collaterally attacked; but, in the absence of a signed order entered on the minutes of the court, such docket entry does not constitute a dismissal of the case, and may be set aside in a direct proceeding for that purpose in the exercise of the authority of the court to correct the court's records to make the records speak the truth. Head v. Yeomans, 189 Ga. 335, 6 S.E.2d 704 (1939).

Relation back of amendment to judgment. — Based solely on the record, and without the necessity for the introduction of extrinsic evidence, the court may, on the court's own motion and without notice, enter such judgment and decree nunc pro tunc at a later date; and since such entry simply perfects the record, as between the parties the entry relates back to the time when the entry should have been entered. Swindell v. Swindell, 208 Ga. 727, 69 S.E.2d 197 (1952); Moore v. Moore, 229 Ga. 600, 193 S.E.2d 608 (1972).

Amendment to judgment to make the judgment conform to the verdict relates back to that which was amended. Further, the court may act on the court's own motion if a nunc pro tunc judgment is based solely on the record. Kerr v. Noble, 124 Ga. App. 722, 185 S.E.2d 807 (1971).

Judgment nunc pro tunc. — Generally, a judgment entered nunc pro tunc relates back to the time when the judgment should have been entered and completes the record. If there are no intervening equities, the judgment so entered will sustain a plea of res judicata between the parties as to the matter involved in the litigation. Walden v. Walden, 128 Ga. 126, 57 S.E. 323 (1907).

Trial court did not err in entering a final divorce decree nunc pro tunc and ordering monthly installments of lump-sum alimony to begin almost five months before entry of the judgment because entry of the judgment nunc pro tunc and commencement of lump-sum alimony soon after the verdict was advantageous to a common law husband as the monthly payments thereof were $500 less than the monthly amount of temporary alimony. Norman v. Ault, 287 Ga. 324, 695 S.E.2d 633 (2010).

Trial court's entry of a divorce decree nunc pro tunc under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3(6), which eliminated a "transition period" from supervised to unsupervised visitation between the husband and the children, was error as the court had orally announced that the court was providing the transition period for the welfare of the parties' two children. Sigal v. Sigal, 289 Ga. 814, 716 S.E.2d 206 (2011).

4. Restrictions on Substantive Changes

Substantive or material changes in judgment barred. — This section does not enable a court to change a judgment in substance or in any material respect. Crowell v. Crowell, 191 Ga. 36, 11 S.E.2d 190 (1940).

No power to include what was not actually decided. — Power to amend and revise does not include power to supply judicial omissions so as to include what a court might or should have decided, but did not actually so decide. Allen v. Community Loan & Inv. Corp., 78 Ga. App. 611, 51 S.E.2d 872 (1949).

Amendment of judgment so as not to follow verdict of jury not allowed. — When founded on verdicts of a jury, and not the acts of the judge, the court may not amend the judgment so as not to follow the verdict. Cox v. LeRoy, 130 Ga. App. 388, 203 S.E.2d 863 (1973); Wimberly v. Medaris, 143 Ga. App. 805, 240 S.E.2d 200 (1977).

Additional pleadings with material changes not allowed after judgment. — While the superior court has the power and duty of correcting errors in the court's records, this rule does not authorize the court to allow, filed subsequent to judgment, additional pleadings which will materially change the pleadings on which the judgment was rendered; hence, if the plaintiff's amended motion for a new trial was heard and overruled, the trial judge did not err in disallowing a second amendment to the motion, offered several weeks after the date of the judgment overruling the original motion for the purpose of perfecting the assignments of error contained in the first amendment to the motion for a new trial. Nickerson v. Porter, 189 Ga. 671, 7 S.E.2d 231 (1940).

Amendments (Cont'd)
4. Restrictions on Substantive Changes (Cont'd)

Modification of order denying attorney's fees not authorized. — If the trial court determined as a matter of law that there was no claim under an insurance policy, there could be no recovery of attorney's fees under O.C.G.A. § 33-4-6, and the court was without power to modify the court's order denying an attorney's fees award to plaintiff after the term of court expired in which that order was made. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Johnson, 242 Ga. App. 591, 530 S.E.2d 492 (2000).

5. Clerical Corrections

Court may order clerk to correct clerical error. — If the clerk of the superior court, in issuing the writ of certiorari, made a clerical error in dating the writ, the judge of that court may pass an order authorizing the clerk to correct such error so as to make the writ bear the true date of issuance. Neal v. Neal, 122 Ga. 804, 50 S.E. 929 (1905).

Substantive changes not allowed. — Power of courts to correct clerical errors and misprints and to make the record speak the truth by nunc pro tunc amendments after the term does not enable the courts to change their judgments in substance or in any material respect. Rogers v. Rigell, 183 Ga. 455, 188 S.E. 704 (1936).

Clerical omission or irregularity may be cured by amendment. — If the process contains a command to the defendant to appear in court at a certain time for a specified purpose, and if this process is actually executed by the proper officer, the mere fact that the formal direction to the officer to execute the process is omitted therefrom would be at most a mere clerical omission or irregularity, which could be cured by amendment. Gay v. Sylvania Cent. Ry., 79 Ga. App. 362, 53 S.E.2d 713 (1949).

6. Illustrative Cases

Process is amendable so as to be made to "conform to law and justice." Minsk v. Cook, 48 Ga. App. 567, 173 S.E. 446 (1934).

Process properly served its purpose despite defect. — If, by virtue of a process, although defective, a defendant has been properly served by one lawfully authorized to effect the service, although the process was not so directed to the officer, and if that process has properly put the defendant on notice of the proceeding, and when defendant's appearance will be required, such process has properly served its purpose. Gay v. Sylvania Cent. Ry., 79 Ga. App. 362, 53 S.E.2d 713 (1949).

Continuing jurisdiction to enter judgment on jury verdict. — Court of record, in the exercise of the court's inherent power, has continuing jurisdiction to enter judgment on a jury verdict at any time. Jefferson v. Ross, 250 Ga. 817, 301 S.E.2d 268 (1983) (overruling Maroska v. Williams, 146 Ga. App. 130, 245 S.E.2d 470 (1978)).

Failure to state length of sentence. — Record which fails to state length of sentence may be corrected. Tyler v. State, 125 Ga. 46, 53 S.E. 818 (1906).

Transcript of charge to jury may be corrected. Georgia Ry. & Elec. Co. v. Carroll, 143 Ga. 93, 84 S.E. 434 (1915).

Failure to instruct jury to pronounce determinate sentence. — Since the jury pronounced an indeterminate sentence of three to five years, when in fact the jury should have been instructed to pronounce a determinate sentence, and the court, evidently convinced of the error, changed the sentence to three years, any errors involved were trifling and were harmless. Powell v. State, 115 Ga. App. 791, 156 S.E.2d 188 (1967).

Record of judgment is amendable to show true relation of parties as disclosed by execution. Safford v. Banks, 69 Ga. 289 (1882).

Record of illegal judgment. — Judge of a court of record may of the judge's own motion, when approving the minutes at the close of the term, expunge therefrom a judgment which the court is, as to the subject matter, without jurisdiction to render. Scott v. Hughes, 124 Ga. 1000, 53 S.E. 453 (1906).

Setting aside judgment. — Failure of a defendant to appear and plead, in consequence of a misunderstanding between defendant and defense counsel, does not afford a meritorious reason for granting a motion to set aside a judgment, even though made during the term when the judgment was yet in the breast of the court. Drain Tile Mach., Inc. v. McCannon, 80 Ga. App. 373, 56 S.E.2d 165 (1949).

Laches not grounds for vacating dismissal. — Laches of plaintiff is not a sufficient reason for the court to exercise the court's plenary power and vacate an order dismissing a case for want of prosecution since neither the plaintiff nor plaintiff's counsel are present on the call of the case for trial. Drain Tile Mach., Inc. v. McCannon, 80 Ga. App. 373, 56 S.E.2d 165 (1949).

Power of court to enter order accurately reflecting trial of case. — Trial court, if no adverse rights have intervened, has jurisdiction nunc pro tunc to enter an order of dismissal accurately reflecting what occurred upon the trial of the case. Israel v. Joe Redwine Ins. Agency, 120 Ga. App. 14, 169 S.E.2d 347 (1969).

Power to require clerk to recall incorrect execution. — It was within the power of the court to compel obedience to the court's judgments, orders, and process in an action or proceeding therein. This general power conferred by the law upon the courts and the specific power providing for rule nisi against officers contained in former Code 1933, § 24-209 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-13-4) authorized a proceeding when an execution was issued by the clerk contrary to the terms of the judgment and was paid by the defendant in fi. fa. and marked satisfied by the clerk. The court had the power to have the clerk recall such an execution and offer to refund the money paid to the clerk by the defendant in fi. fa. Miller Serv., Inc. v. Miller, 77 Ga. App. 413, 48 S.E.2d 761 (1948).

Corrections of mistake in minutes must not prejudice rights of third person. Barefield v. Bryan, 8 Ga. 463 (1850).

Entry of order 24 years after issuance. — If an order granted 24 years previously had not been placed upon the minutes of the court by the clerk, the judge ordered it done in order to make the minutes speak the truth. Ellis v. Clarke, 173 Ga. 618, 160 S.E. 780 (1931).

Reducing oral order to writing. — Language "amend its own records" includes amending the record by reducing to writing an order which had previously existed only as an oral statement and was, therefore, not properly a part of the record at all, although it had been recognized as such during the trial of the case. Maloy v. Planter's Whse. & Lumber Co., 142 Ga. App. 69, 234 S.E.2d 807 (1977).

If the plaintiff files an amendment to the plaintiff's complaint and a motion to add parties, a proposed (unsigned) order granting the motion is placed in the file at the same time as the motion, a hearing on the motion is held, and the trial court, in the exercise of the court's discretion, orally grants the motion, all within the limitations period, but, through oversight, the court omits the actual signing of the order, the trial court does not err in later entering a nunc pro tunc order so as to correct the court's own oversight and to make the record speak the truth. Savannah Iron & Fence Corp. v. Mitchell, 168 Ga. App. 252, 308 S.E.2d 569 (1983).

Motion to revoke or set aside order of incorporation. — Motion to revoke and set aside an order of incorporation on the grounds that the movant had acquired prior use to the name used by the corporation, that its use would cause confusion and cloud titles of petitioners' property, and that it was improvidently granted because the movant was not given notice before the order of incorporation, and praying that it be set aside, is not an equity case within the meaning of that term as used in Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. IV (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Paras. II, III), defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. The grounds of the motion are not relievable only in equity. On the contrary, the motion is one to set aside an order of the court on an alleged legal ground and a court has jurisdiction with rule nisi or process to grant the relief prayed. Methodist Episcopal Church S., Inc. v. Decell, 60 Ga. App. 843, 5 S.E.2d 66 (1939).

Coerced compliance with settlement agreement outside term. — If county and jail inmates entered a settlement agreement whereby the county would take steps over an 18-month period to improve health services, but the county was held in contempt and given the opportunity to purge itself of contempt, the mere fact that the trial court's later order was beyond the original 18 month settlement terms did not prevent the trial court from finding the county had not purged the contempt; the expiration of the term did not halt the trial court's lawful efforts to coerce compliance, particularly when those efforts began long before the agreement was due to expire. DeKalb County v. Adams, 262 Ga. App. 243, 585 S.E.2d 178 (2003).

Error to deny motion to set aside consent order when one party did not consent. — Because both a wife and her counsel read and signed a settlement agreement reached during a divorce hearing, the agreement was enforceable even though some details remained to be decided, and it could not be rescinded based on a claimed error in the award of a home to the husband. However, a consent order based on the agreement should have been set aside under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-3(6) because the wife did not consent to the order and the trial court had the duty to determine whether the agreement was equitable. Buckner v. Buckner, 294 Ga. 705, 755 S.E.2d 722 (2014).

Revival of dormant judgment in workers' compensation cases. — In an action wherein a workers' compensation claimant revived a lump-sum judgment of $37,747.08 plus accrued interest, which had become dormant against an employer, the trial court properly refused to amend the 2006 judgment that revived the judgment to provide for weekly disability payments as the term of court ended and, therefore, the trial court had no authority to amend or alter that 2006 judgment. However, the trial court should have issued a writ of execution for the payments that became due after July 27, 2000, as those payments had not become dormant. Taylor v. Peachbelt Props., 293 Ga. App. 335, 667 S.E.2d 117 (2008).

Disqualification of counsel. — Trial court did not err by granting the wife's motion to disqualify counsel in a wrongful death action after finding that the lawyers repeatedly and intentionally contacted the wife's expert with the objective of interfering with the expert's appearance as a witness; the natural and foreseeable result of co-counsel's phone calls to the witness's employer was to have the expert pressured into withdrawing from the case. WellStar Health Sys. v. Kemp, 324 Ga. App. 629, 751 S.E.2d 445 (2013).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Choice of forum. — Courts of Georgia may not restrict the suitor's choice of forum when jurisdiction of a cause of action is vested in more than one court. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-50.

Reduction of sentence to writing. — Trial judge is ultimately responsible for reducing sentence to writing, even though this duty may be delegated to another officer; in any event, the judge must sign the sentence. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-85.

Ensuring safety during habeas corpus proceeding. — Court, assisted by the sheriff of the county, is responsible for undertaking measures necessary to ensure the safety of the court during a habeas corpus proceeding; however, this does not relieve the Board of Corrections from any of the Board's constitutional duties for the custody of inmates. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-57.

Dismissal of arrest warrant. — Arrest warrant may be dismissed by the issuing judicial officer at the request of the prosecutor prior to the warrant's execution and need not be dismissed by the court having jurisdiction over the trial of the case. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-27.

Magistrate may prevent interference with constable. — Justice of peace (now magistrate) may prevent interference with a constable in making levy through contempt processes. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-63.

Magistrate court may, sua sponte, order the release of arrestees who have been arrested without a warrant if no warrant has been procured as required by O.C.G.A. § 17-4-62, and if an individual has been arrested with a warrant, but has not been afforded a first appearance hearing within 72 hours of the individual's arrest as required by O.C.G.A. § 17-4-26. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-14.

Control of courtroom. — Department of Public Safety officers are permitted to carry their service weapons and handguns into courthouses, but O.C.G.A. § 16-11-30 does not authorize the officers' entry into courtrooms where the courthouse's security plan and/or judges of that court have directed otherwise. 2017 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 17-5.

15-1-4. Extent of contempt power.

(a) The powers of the several courts to issue attachments and inflict summary punishment for contempt of court shall extend only to cases of:

(1) Misbehavior of any person or persons in the presence of such courts or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice;

(2) Misbehavior of any of the officers of the courts in their official transactions;

(3) Disobedience or resistance by any officer of the courts, party, juror, witness, or other person or persons to any lawful writ, process, order, rule, decree, or command of the courts;

(4) Violation of subsection (a) of Code Section 34-1-3, relating to prohibited conduct of employers with respect to employees who are required to attend judicial proceedings; and

(5) Violation of a court order relating to the televising, videotaping, or motion picture filming of judicial proceedings.

(b) No person shall be imprisoned for contempt for failing or refusing to pay over money under any order, decree, or judgment of any court of law or any other court of this state when he denies that the money ordered or decreed to be paid over is in his power, custody, or control until he has a trial by jury in accordance with the following provisions:

(1) The allegation of the plaintiff, receiver, referee, or any other person or persons that the defendant accused of contempt has a certain sum of money within his power, custody, or control, which he is withholding or refuses or fails to pay over, and the denial of the defendant that he has the power, custody, or control of the money shall form the issue to be tried by the jury, and the jury shall decide the issue of fact;

(2) The issue being made, a bond may be required in the discretion of the court for the appearance of the defendant for trial, which bond shall be of sufficient size to ensure the attendance of the defendant to appear and answer the final judgment or decree in the case and shall be approved by the judge. On failure of the defendant to appear, the bond shall be forfeited as in criminal cases. If bond is required but not posted the defendant may be committed to jail for safekeeping until trial; and

(3) The judge presiding shall cause questions to be propounded in writing to the jury and every question propounded shall be answered by the jury in its verdict. Upon the answers made, the judge shall adjudge or decree whether the defendant is in contempt. Either party shall have the right to move for a new trial and to appeal as in other civil cases.

(c) When a person who is gainfully employed violates an order of the court granting temporary or permanent alimony or child support and the judge finds the person in contempt of court, the sentencing judge may sentence the respondent to a term of confinement in a diversion center and participation in a diversion program if such a program has been established by a county pursuant to the provisions of Article 5 of Chapter 3 of Title 42.

General Consideration

Use of contumacious language in court. — Fact that the court has made a ruling which seems completely unjustified or beyond the authority of the court does not give the aggrieved party the license to use contumacious language in the presence of the court concerning such a ruling. White v. State, 105 Ga. App. 616, 125 S.E.2d 239, rev'd on other grounds, 218 Ga. 290, 127 S.E.2d 668 (1962).

Acts occurring before domestication of foreign judgment. — Trial court's contempt power is not limited to contempt acts occurring after date of domestication of foreign judgment. Martin v. Martin, 244 Ga. 68, 257 S.E.2d 903 (1979).

Presenting motion in good faith. — Attorney may not be held in contempt of court merely for presenting in good faith a motion which the attorney has a right to make, nor may an attorney be held in contempt merely because, having filed such a motion, the attorney fails to prevail on the motion. In re McLarty, 152 Ga. App. 399, 263 S.E.2d 194 (1979).

Lack of intent to violate order. — Contemnor's testimony that contemnor had no intent to violate an order is not binding on the court. Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

Powers of Courts

1. In General

Disobeying or resisting lawful order. — Several courts of this state have power to attach and punish for contempt any party who disobeys or resists any lawful order granted by such courts. Crawford v. Manning, 12 Ga. App. 54, 76 S.E. 771 (1912).

Compliance with intent and spirit of decrees. — Trial court has power to see that there be compliance with the intent and spirit of the court's decrees and no party should be permitted to take advantage of the letter of a decree to the detriment of the other party. Davis v. Davis, 243 Ga. 421, 254 S.E.2d 370 (1979); Kaufmann v. Kaufmann, 246 Ga. 266, 271 S.E.2d 175 (1980).

Trial judge best qualified to determine contempt. — Trial judge is the one best qualified to determine whether or not the plaintiff, as a witness, placed oneself in contempt. Crute v. Crute, 86 Ga. App. 96, 70 S.E.2d 727 (1952).

Misbehavior of officer of court. — Powers of court are applicable to misbehavior of any officer of the court in the officers' official transactions. West v. Field, 181 Ga. 152, 181 S.E. 661 (1935).

O.C.G.A. § 15-1-4(a)(2) is intended to impose upon officers of the courts engaged in the officers' official transactions a higher duty to the court than is demanded of the broader group of individuals listed in § 15-1-4(a)(3) who are arguably subject to the contempt powers only for failure to comply with those commands of the court spread upon the record in written form. In re Smith, 211 Ga. App. 493, 439 S.E.2d 725 (1993).

Indictable act may be treated as contempt. — That given act may be indictable does not deprive court of power of dealing with the act as contempt of court. Bradley v. State, 111 Ga. 168, 36 S.E. 630, 78 Am. St. R. 157, 50 L.R.A. 691 (1900).

Court may handle contempt at any time. — Court has jurisdiction and is empowered to deal with the matter of contempt at any time during the progress of the litigation before the court. West v. Field, 181 Ga. 152, 181 S.E. 661 (1935).

Court may not modify previous decree in contempt order; however, a court may always interpret and clarify the court's own orders. The test to determine whether an order is clarified or modified is whether the clarification is reasonable or whether the clarification is so contrary to the apparent intention of the original order as to amount to a modification. Kaufmann v. Kaufmann, 246 Ga. 266, 271 S.E.2d 175 (1980).

Confinement for contempt was abuse of discretion since father demonstrated inability to pay child support. — Despite the fact that sufficient evidence supported a civil contempt finding, the trial court erred in continuing a father's incarceration after the father established an inability to pay the child support arrearage and the court lacked any authority to confine the father in a diversion center or to place the father in a work release program pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-1-4(c). Gallaher v. Breaux, 286 Ga. App. 375, 650 S.E.2d 313 (2007).

Civil contempt for failing to pay child support and alimony. — Supreme Court of Georgia has long held that a person is not entitled to a jury trial on the issue of ability to pay or contempt for failure to pay alimony and child support and while none of the opinions appear to address the plain meaning of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-4(b) or its similarly worded predecessor statutes, this is ultimately of no consequence as the Georgia Court of Appeals is bound by these decisions and must apply them. Bernard v. Bernard, 347 Ga. App. 429, 819 S.E.2d 688 (2018).

2. Limits Imposed by Legislature

Limits on exercise of power. — This Code section is designed to limit courts in exercise of contempt power. Wood v. Georgia, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

Power to define, classify, and punish contempt. — All constitutional courts have the inherent power to define and punish contempt and this right was not denied or limited by this section. Jones v. State, 39 Ga. App. 1, 145 S.E. 914 (1928); Evans v. State, 69 Ga. App. 178, 24 S.E.2d 861 (1943); Vines v. State, 69 Ga. App. 175, 24 S.E.2d 864 (1943).

Power of constitutional court to define and classify contempt of court was not limited by this section. Cobb v. State, 187 Ga. 448, 200 S.E. 796, answer conformed to, 59 Ga. App. 695, 2 S.E.2d 116 (1939).

Power to define may not be abridged or taken away by legislature. — As to courts created by the Constitution, the right to define contempt cannot be abridged or taken away by legislative action. In re Fite, 11 Ga. App. 665, 76 S.E. 397 (1912).

If the court is created by the Constitution, the legislature cannot, without express constitutional authority, define what is contempt, and declare that the court shall have jurisdiction over no acts except those specified. Cobb v. State, 187 Ga. 448, 200 S.E. 796, answer conformed to, 59 Ga. App. 695, 2 S.E.2d 116 (1939).

Georgia Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VI (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IV) does not confer authority upon the legislature to define what is contempt, and to declare that the court shall have jurisdiction over no acts except those specified, because the power to punish contempt is inherent in every court of record. Wood v. State, 103 Ga. App. 305, 119 S.E.2d 261 (1961), rev'd on other grounds, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

Legislature has power to prescribe punishment. — Georgia Const. 1976, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. VI (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. II, Para. IV) does not confer authority to define contempt, but only the power to prescribe the punishment after conviction. Cobb v. State, 187 Ga. 448, 200 S.E. 796, answer conformed to, 59 Ga. App. 695, 2 S.E.2d 116 (1939).

Limits on power of judges to punish contempt. — Whatever may have been the power of judges at common law to adjudge, as for a contempt of court, any person for an act done or writing published calculated to bring the court or the judge into contempt and lower the person's authority, the power of the judges in Georgia to punish for a criminal contempt of court was limited by law as provided in this section. Townsend v. State, 54 Ga. App. 627, 188 S.E. 560 (1936).

This Code section, insofar as the statute sought to limit the jurisdiction of a constitutional court to punish contempts to certain specified acts, is not binding upon such courts; the courts may go beyond the provisions of the statute in order to preserve and enforce the court's constitutional powers by treating as contempt acts which clearly invade the court's powers. Cobb v. State, 187 Ga. 448, 200 S.E. 796, answer conformed to, 59 Ga. App. 695, 2 S.E.2d 116 (1939); Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. v. State, 216 Ga. 399, 116 S.E.2d 580 (1960); Wood v. State, 103 Ga. App. 305, 119 S.E.2d 261 (1961), rev'd on other grounds, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

3. Inherent Powers

Power to punish contempt is inherent in every court of record. Cobb v. State, 187 Ga. 448, 200 S.E. 796, answer conformed to, 59 Ga. App. 695, 2 S.E.2d 116 (1939).

Inherent power of courts should never be impaired or destroyed to such an extent that the courts cannot exercise a power necessary to the court's proper functioning. Evans v. State, 69 Ga.

App. 178, 24 S.E.2d 861 (1943).

This Code section did not restrict the inherent power of the court to punish for contempt, but criminal contempt involves some disrespectful or contumacious conduct towards the court. In re Brookins, 153 Ga. App. 82, 264 S.E.2d 560 (1980).

Power to punish direct criminal contempt. — Courts have inherent power to punish direct criminal contempts committed in the court's presence summarily and without hearing, the judge being aware by use of the judge's own senses of what has transpired. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979).

Summary contempt power available although disfavored. — Although summary punishment is always and rightly regarded with disfavor, there is no doubt that the summary contempt power is still available to courts, under appropriate circumstances, to control judicial proceedings. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Inherent and legislative authority to punish for contempt. — Constitutional courts of Georgia have inherent and legislative authority to punish for contempt any person in disobedience of the court's judgments, orders, and processes. In re Boswell, 148 Ga. App. 519, 251 S.E.2d 596 (1978).

Courts have inherent power to preserve and enforce order. — It is fundamental that every court possesses the inherent power to preserve and enforce order and compel obedience to the court's judgments and orders, to control the conduct of the court's officers and all other persons connected with the judicial proceedings before the court and to inflict summary punishment for contempt upon any person failing and refusing to obey any unlawful order of such court. Farmer v. Holton, 146 Ga. App. 102, 245 S.E.2d 457 (1978), cert. denied, 440 U.S. 958, 99 S. Ct. 1499, 59 L. Ed. 2d 771 (1979), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985).

Contempt

1. In General

Removal, concealment, or destruction of documents. — It is contempt of court to remove, conceal, or destroy, for the purpose of defeating the court's jurisdiction, documents which are known to be the subject matter of proceedings pending before the court. Crute v. Crute, 86 Ga. App. 96, 70 S.E.2d 727 (1952).

Contempt will lie for failure to pay alimony award even though the decree contains no specific command to pay. Martin v. Martin, 244 Ga. 68, 257 S.E.2d 903 (1979).

Motion which contains false accusations and filed to denigrate court. — Motion which contains knowingly false accusations against the court and which is filed for the purpose of denigrating the court or impugning the court's integrity must certainly be characterized as contumacious. In re McLarty, 152 Ga. App. 399, 263 S.E.2d 194 (1979).

Contempt of grand jury. — Whether the contempt be regarded as one of the court or of the grand jury, the result is the same since if there is a contempt of the grand jury, this is also a contempt of the court, as the grand jury is a constituent part of the court, and anyone whose conduct interferes with or has a tendency to obstruct the grand jury may be found to be in contempt. Wood v. State, 103 Ga. App. 305, 119 S.E.2d 261 (1961), rev'd on other grounds, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

Intimidation of witnesses. — It is contempt of court to threaten or to endeavor to intimidate a witness in a pending action. Renfroe v. State, 104 Ga. App. 362, 121 S.E.2d 811 (1961), for comment, see 24 Ga. B. J. 544 (1962), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985).

Any interference or attempt to interfere with witnesses by means of bribery, intimidation, inducements, or other unlawful means, in order to induce the witnesses to testify falsely, or to change or modify the witnesses' testimony, or to suppress facts, constitutes contempt, which it is the duty of the courts to guard against zealously and to punish. Renfroe v. State, 104 Ga. App. 362, 121 S.E.2d 811 (1961), for comment, see 24 Ga. B. J. 544 (1962), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985).

Procuring witness to testify in case contrary to previous testimony. — It is contempt of court to attempt by unlawful means to procure a witness to testify in a case contrary to the witness's previous testimony, even though the testimony so sought is the truth. Renfroe v. State, 104 Ga. App. 362, 121 S.E.2d 811 (1961), for comment, see 24 Ga. B. J. 544 (1962), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985).

Statements intended to coerce witness. — It was contempt of court for the accused to make to the father and brother of the witness statements intending that the statements should be communicated to the witness since such statements naturally tended to coerce and were expected to coerce the witness. Herring v. State, 165 Ga. 254, 140 S.E. 491 (1927); Herring v. State, 37 Ga. App. 594, 141 S.E. 89 (1928).

Refusal of appointed counsel to represent defendant. — Having invoked the judicial powers of the court in relation to a motion for new trial, an attorney appointed to represent an indigent defendant has the responsibility to resolve the issues presented thereby within the parameters of time established by the court. By utterly ignoring the scheduled date and thereafter stating categorically that the attorney would no longer represent the defendant, the attorney exposes oneself to a contempt action. Jordan v. State, 166 Ga. App. 627, 305 S.E.2d 165 (1983).

Offering proof in jury's absence. — Summary punishment for contempt was authorized since counsel insisted on making a tender of proof after the jury was excused for the night and without the judge's approval instead of waiting for the jury to begin the jury's deliberations the next day. Heilman v. DOT, 162 Ga. App. 547, 290 S.E.2d 189 (1982), overruled on other grounds, Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Auth. v. Funk, 263 Ga. 385, 435 S.E.2d 196 (1993).

What contempt order regarding child support must contain. — Words "willful refusal" and "ability to pay" are not words of art which must appear in every contempt order regarding child support. Rather, it is only necessary that the order specify sufficient facts to show that the respondent was in contempt of court. Floyd v. Floyd, 247 Ga. 551, 277 S.E.2d 658 (1981).

Confinement for failure to pay child support. — When, on motion for contempt, an order is entered requiring payment of sums for child support which are past due, a person can be ordered to jail by a subsequent order, entered after a hearing finding that the prior order has been disobeyed. Floyd v. Floyd, 247 Ga. 551, 277 S.E.2d 658 (1981).

Suspension of sheriff not authorized punishment. — Superior court was authorized to inflict summary punishment for contempt predicated upon the wilful failure of a sheriff, an officer of the court, to obey an oral direction by the court to transfer a defendant to a jail in another county, but was not authorized to temporarily suspend the sheriff, an elected officer, from the sheriff's position. In re Irvin, 171 Ga. App. 794, 321 S.E.2d 119 (1984), modified on other grounds, 254 Ga. 251, 328 S.E.2d 215 (1985).

Sheriff's failure to obey unfiled order. — Sheriff, as an officer of the court, could be held in contempt for failure to produce documents pursuant to a court order which, although not filed, was reduced to writing and delivered into the hands of sworn deputies for service on the sheriff. In re Smith, 211 Ga. App. 493, 439 S.E.2d 725 (1993).

Protection of client's rights no excuse. — Once an objection has been made by an attorney and the court has made the court's considered ruling, subsequent contumacious conduct will not be excused merely for the fact that the conduct was committed by an officer of the court during court proceedings in an attempt to protect the rights of the attorney's client. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440,

71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Failure to answer calendar calls. — Evidence that the attorney failed to answer two calendar calls was sufficient to support a judgment of contempt. In re Brant, 230 Ga. App. 283, 496 S.E.2d 321 (1998).

Failure to pay wife car insurance proceeds. — In a civil contempt order in a divorce case, the husband was properly ordered to pay $1,500 for each day that passed without him paying the wife insurance proceeds after he had disregarded a consent order to title a car in the wife's name and an oral order to pay her the insurance proceeds after the car was totalled, and he could avoid the daily payments simply by paying the proceeds; furthermore, the fact that the order to pay the proceeds was oral did not mean that the order was ineffective as a matter of law. Chatfield v. Adkins-Chatfield, 282 Ga. 190, 646 S.E.2d 247 (2007).

Evidence sufficient for contempt. — Evidence was clearly sufficient under the reasonable doubt standard to find the appellants in willful contempt for disobedience or resistance by an officer of the court to a lawful command of the court. In re Farmer, 212 Ga. App. 372, 442 S.E.2d 251 (1994).

Trial court properly held a corporation in civil contempt after the corporation ordered services from a credit bureau pursuant to a temporary restraining order (TRO), yet the corporation refused to pay for the services since the TRO did not require that the corporation order services, the corporation ordered services after the credit bureau refused to provide the corporation with the new select service, the corporation failed to meet the corporation's burden of proof to show that the corporation was unable to pay for the services, no balance sheets or lists of assets and liabilities were presented, and there was no showing that the corporation made an effort to borrow the money or to make partial payments. Hamilton Capital Group, Inc. v. Equifax Credit Info. Servs., 266 Ga. App. 1, 596 S.E.2d 656 (2004).

Landowners were properly held in civil contempt for violating subdivision's restrictive covenants; using one of their two lots for ingress and egress to their other lot and maintaining a road between the lots were violations of the covenants, and the trial court's judgment provided that the landowners refrain from further covenant violations. Korowotny v. Outback Prop. Owners Ass'n, 291 Ga. App. 236, 661 S.E.2d 857 (2008).

Criminal contempt finding against an attorney and an order disallowing the attorney from seeking payment from the county for legal services to two indigent defendants under a theory of quantum meruit was upheld as the attorney failed to appear in court as commanded, provided no notice of a scheduling conflict, and failed to show that the attorney made any attempt to comply with Ga. Unif. St. Ct. R. 17.1. In re Otuonye, 279 Ga. App. 468, 631 S.E.2d 500 (2006).

Attorneys were properly held in criminal contempt under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-4(a)(3). To the extent that the attorneys believed that the trial court erred by ordering the attorneys to proceed based on an alleged conflict of interest, the attorney's remedy was to appeal, not to disobey the trial court's direct order. Britt v. State, 282 Ga. 746, 653 S.E.2d 713 (2007).

Attorney was properly found in direct criminal contempt under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-4 for failure to appear at trial because while the attorney claimed that the attorney did not receive seven days' notice of the trial date under Ga. Unif. Super. Ct. R. 32.1, the attorney's remedy was to seek a continuance as the attorney had received the trial court's directive to appear by fax and telephone call. In re Beckstrom, 295 Ga. App. 179, 671 S.E.2d 215 (2008).

Summary contempt finding improper against attorney. — Juvenile court erred by summarily holding an attorney in contempt based on a per se rule. The juvenile court determined that a per se rule existed that an attorney was in contempt when the attorney claimed ineffectiveness against themselves, but no such per se rule existed and, therefore, it was error to have adjudicated the attorney in contempt. Morris v. State, 295 Ga. App. 579, 672 S.E.2d 531 (2009).

erwise was improper because, inter alia, the trial court immediately imposed punishment and did not provide the attorney the opportunity to speak in the attorney's own behalf, the attorney was not put on notice that a continuation of the offending conduct would have constituted contempt, it was highly unlikely that the attorney's allegedly offending conduct should have had any impact on the deliberations of the factfinder, a juvenile judge, and the trial court acted without warning and had obviously lost the court's patience with the attorney and the attorney's client and imposed sanctions for contempt when other actions might have achieved the same result without the disruption to the case that these contempt citations had caused. In re Hughes, 299 Ga. App. 66, 681 S.E.2d 745 (2009).

2. Civil and Criminal Contempt

Civil and criminal contempt compared. — Contempt may be civil or criminal; in the former, the proceeding in attachment is to enforce compliance with an order of court made for the protection of some right of the complaining party, while in criminal contempt, the proceeding is to punish the offender for disrespect to or contumacious conduct towards the court. Wagner v. Commercial Printers, Inc., 203 Ga. 1, 45 S.E.2d 205 (1947).

Contempt of court may be either civil or criminal, and criminal contempt, either direct or indirect. A direct criminal contempt relates to contumacious conduct, whether by word or deed, committed in the actual presence of the court. An indirect, or constructive contempt, consists of contumacious conduct outside the presence of the court which amounts to an obstruction of the administration of justice. Clark v. State, 90 Ga. App. 330, 83 S.E.2d 45 (1954).

Basis for contempt action. — Basis for contempt action is "willful" refusal to comply with judgment or order of court. Griggers v. Bryant, 239 Ga. 244, 236 S.E.2d 599 (1977).

Attachment for contempt is either civil or criminal, or both; in the former, the attachment, being remedial, is merely to compel obedience to an order requiring the payment of money, or to do some act for the benefit of a party litigant, and when the party ordered fails to comply, not out of disrespect to the court, but for other causes within or outside the party's control. Evans v. White, 178 Ga. 262, 172 S.E. 913 (1934).

"Criminal contempt" defined. — "Criminal contempt" is that which involves some disrespectful or contumacious conduct toward the court. It involves action by the court to compel respect thereto, to vindicate the court's authority, and to enforce the lawful processes and actions of the court. It is direct and punishable summarily without notice and opportunity to be heard if committed in the presence of the court, and is exempt from those due process requirements. Farmer v. Holton, 146 Ga. App. 102, 245 S.E.2d 457 (1978), cert. denied, 440 U.S. 958, 99 S. Ct. 1499, 59 L. Ed. 2d 771 (1979), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985).

"Direct criminal contempt" defined. — "Direct criminal" contempt is one involving misbehavior in presence of court or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979); In re Jones, 198 Ga. App. 228, 401 S.E.2d 278 (1990), aff'd, 205 Ga. App. 166, 421 S.E.2d 538 (1992).

"Criminal contempt" with unconditional imprisonment. — "Criminal contempt" with unconditional imprisonment may be used to preserve the court's authority and to punish disobedience of the court's orders. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 244 Ga. 66, 257 S.E.2d 900 (1979).

"Civil contempt" defined. — "Civil contempt" is conditional punishment which coerces contemnor to comply with court order. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 244 Ga. 66, 257 S.E.2d 900 (1979).

Civil contempt for failing to pay child support and alimony. — Trial court's orders finding an ex-husband in civil contempt for failing to pay his ex-wife child support and alimony and incarcerating him until he purged the contempt were affirmed because the evidence established he was willfully failing or refusing to pay as he was living a comfortable life, drew a significant salary per month, had cash accounts with thousands of dollars in them, and no evidence of debt or borrowing money was presented. Bernard v. Bernard, 347 Ga. App. 429, 819 S.E.2d 688 (2018).

Proceedings originating as "civil contempt" may require "criminal contempt" treatment. — Court may find that a contempt proceeding originated and pursued by a party seeking "civil contempt" should be treated as one for "criminal contempt." Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

No right to counsel in direct criminal contempt case against court officer. — Trial court had the power to inflict summary punishment on the contemnor as the contemnor was, as required by statute, an officer of the court (an attorney) who committed misbehavior in representing a client in the courtroom as the contemnor refused to proceed with the client's defense once the trial court denied the contemnor's request for continuance; also, the trial court did not violate the contemnor's rights as the contemnor did not have a right to a hearing or a right to counsel in the contemnor's direct criminal contempt case. In re Willis, 259 Ga. App. 5, 576 S.E.2d 22 (2002).

Authority to enforce child support. — Given the court's continuing, exclusive jurisdiction, a trial court possessed authority to enforce the child support provisions of a divorce decree prospectively and as to past violations. In exercising that authority, the trial court, as a matter of Georgia law, was able to impose contempt sanctions for willful violations of the court's decree. Baars v. Freeman, 288 Ga. 835, 708 S.E.2d 273 (2011).

Contempt power in divorce action. — Trial court erred in holding that the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to hold the daughter in contempt of the divorce decree under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-4(a)(3) because the daughter, acting as the ex-husband's power of attorney, had full knowledge of the order requiring the payment of the retirement benefits and aided in the non-payment of the funds in violation of the divorce decree and settlement agreement. Sullivan v. Bunnell, 340 Ga. App. 283, 797 S.E.2d 499 (2017).

Evidence of criminal contempt sufficient. — Evidence that the defendant directed loud, threatening comments toward several of the state's witnesses, engaging in behavior that created a clear and present danger to the orderly administration of justice was sufficient to support the trial court's finding that the defendant was guilty of criminal contempt. Moton v. State, 332 Ga. App. 300, 772 S.E.2d 393 (2015).

Evidence was sufficient to support the trial court's finding of criminal contempt because the attorney voluntarily signed three petitions for scire facias without ensuring that the proper case number had been assigned to them; the attorney's actions were not merely negligent as the actions were in derogation of the attorney's responsibilities and duties as an officer of the court; although the attorney took some steps to remedy the discrepancy, the attorney did not follow through and personally ensure that the proper case number was utilized before filing the fourth petition; and the attorney did not do everything the attorney could have to ensure compliance with the trial court's orders not to file a fourth identical petition. In re Dillon, 344 Ga. App. 200, 808 S.E.2d 436 (2017), cert. denied, No. S18C0718, 2018 Ga. LEXIS 517 (Ga. 2018).

No waiver of counsel shown in contempt proceeding. — Trial court judgment finding the defendant, an attorney, in criminal contempt was reversed because there was no evidence that the attorney waived the right to counsel. In re Thompson, 339 Ga. App. 106, 793 S.E.2d 462 (2016).

No right to jury trial for contempt in paying support. — Ex-husband was not entitled to a jury trial because the Supreme Court of Georgia has long held that a person is not entitled to a jury trial on the issue of ability to pay or contempt for failure to pay alimony and child support. Bernard v. Bernard, 347 Ga. App. 429, 819 S.E.2d 688 (2018).

3. Acts Not Constituting Contempt

not be held in contempt when court order violated was not directed at that person or there was no active interference with the performance of the court order. Yarbrough v. First Nat'l Bank, 143 Ga. App. 399, 238 S.E.2d 758 (1977).

Absence of judgment on jury verdict. — While the failure to comply with a judgment of court ordering one to pay alimony as found by a jury is punishable as a contempt, if, in the trial of a divorce action, before the jury's verdict is made the judgment of the court, the defendant, in whose favor a verdict for alimony has been returned, moves for a mistrial which is granted, the plaintiff cannot subsequently be held in contempt of court for failure to pay alimony as found by the jury since no judgment was ever entered upon the verdict. Harris v. Harris, 213 Ga. 751, 101 S.E.2d 706 (1958).

Failure to pay money judgment. — If a court of equity should render a simple decree for money on a simple money verdict, the failure to pay the decree would not be contempt, nor could compulsory process against the person of the party in default be resorted to in order to enforce payment. London v. London, 149 Ga. App. 805, 256 S.E.2d 33 (1979).

Refusal or failure to pay money judgments is in no sense a contempt of court and imprisonment for such failure would be imprisonment for debt pure and simple. London v. London, 149 Ga. App. 805, 256 S.E.2d 33 (1979).

Agreement with court by one not party to pending cause. — Mere informal and voluntary agreement which is entered into with the court by one who is not a party to a cause pending before the court and in which there is no express command or prohibition of court directed to such volunteer may not constitute the basis for contempt proceedings predicated upon the failure of the volunteer to honor the agreement. In re Norris, 154 Ga. App. 173, 267 S.E.2d 788 (1980).

Remarks by nonparty to separation agreement that allegedly violate the agreement. — It was error to hold a mother's friend in criminal contempt of a separation agreement on the ground that the friend had made disparaging remarks to a child about the child's father. The alleged comments did not occur in the trial court's presence, but were repeated by the child in an in camera conference, so there was no direct contempt; furthermore, there was no constructive contempt because the friend was not a party to the separation agreement and was not shown to have had notice of the provision the friend allegedly violated; moreover, the friend had not received due process in that the friend had no notice of the allegations and was not given the opportunity to defend against the allegations or even to respond to the allegations. In re Harris, 289 Ga. App. 334, 657 S.E.2d 259 (2008).

Failure to obey order of court without jurisdiction not contempt. — While an unsuperseded order within the jurisdiction of a court must be obeyed, even though erroneous, and disobedience thereof is a contempt of court, yet if the court is without jurisdiction the order is a nullity, and a failure to obey the order is not a contempt. Campbell v. Gormley, 185 Ga. 65, 194 S.E. 177 (1937).

Failing and refusing to appear in accordance with bond. — If one indicted for a bailable offense has been arrested and has given bond for one's appearance and fails to appear, one can be rearrested on a new warrant, but there is no law in this state authorizing one's punishment for contempt of court for failing and refusing to appear in accordance with the terms of the bond. Paseur v. State, 152 Ga. App. 599, 263 S.E.2d 500 (1979).

Publication in newspaper about pending case. — Because the United States Supreme Court opinion construed language, "or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice," in a federal statute similar to language in this section so as to refer only to geographical nearness and not to an act committed away from the courthouse, the Georgia Court of Appeals was constrained to hold that a publication made in a newspaper about a pending case cannot be contempt of court so as to be summarily punishable. Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. v. State, 101 Ga.

App. 105, 113 S.E.2d 148 (1960) for comment, see 12 Mercer L. Rev. 284 (1960).

Null decree. — Remarriage of the parties to original divorce decree nullified that decree and restored the parental rights of the parties to the same extent as if no divorce had been granted; consequently, the defendant could not be held in contempt for failing to comply with that decree. Warren v. Warren, 213 Ga. 81, 97 S.E.2d 349 (1957).

No contempt when once enjoined act now permitted. — If the basis for an injunction no longer exists because the authority to do that which was prohibited is subsequently granted, an action for contempt will not lie. Partain v. City of Royston, 248 Ga. 420, 284 S.E.2d 15 (1981).

Refusal to obey unreasonable visitation order. — Mother would not be held in contempt of court for denying father court-ordered child visitation rights since the order was unreasonable in that the father had been indicted for molesting the child, the child was to be a witness against the father, and the child became physically ill when told about the impending visit. Beckham v. O'Brien, 176 Ga. App. 518, 336 S.E.2d 375 (1985).

Late arrival of district attorney for court appearance. — A 15-minute delay in county solicitor's (now district attorney) arrival for a court appearance while the solicitor was conducting business of the State Court of Coffee County, Georgia, did not constitute a sufficient predicate from which any rational trier of fact would find the essential elements of the criminal contempt charge against the solicitor without reasonable doubt. In re Hayes, 185 Ga. App. 818, 366 S.E.2d 204 (1988).

Evidence of contempt not sufficient. — Children of the fiduciary's incompetent ward failed to show that the fiduciary was in contempt of a settlement agreement since the fiduciary, who was the ward's second wife, failed to turn over the family heirloom silver to the children, but the agreement only required that the fiduciary do so "to the extent such heirlooms can be located," and the children failed to carry the children's burden of proof that the fiduciary had the silver and would not or could not turn the silver over to the children. Head v. Head, 234 Ga. App. 469, 507 S.E.2d 214 (1998).

Order regarding custody of a child directed to natural mother, not to prospective parent and counsel. — Trial court erred in holding a prospective adopter and the adopter's attorney in criminal contempt for purportedly willfully violating an order regarding the custody of the minor child at issue as the trial court's order regarding custody of the child was directed to the obligations of the natural mother only and no willful disobedience of the order was shown by the adopter and the attorney filing for a change of custody in another county to which the adopter had moved. In re Hadaway, 290 Ga. App. 453, 659 S.E.2d 863 (2008).

4. Contempt and Free Speech

No protection for contempt of court. — Constitutional right of freedom of speech or of press was not intended as refuge for the contemner or slanderer or libelor. Contempt of court, slander, and libel constitute abuses of the privilege for the commission of which the offenders are justly and lawfully punishable. In re Fite, 11 Ga. App. 665, 76 S.E. 397 (1912).

Constitutional guaranties do not bar punishment for contempt. — Due process, freedom of speech, and equal protection clauses of the Constitution of the United States do not bar punishment for contempt of court. Wood v. State, 103 Ga. App. 305, 119 S.E.2d 261 (1961), rev'd on other grounds, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

No protection under free speech for certain acts. — If an order of court forbidding the use of threats, violence, and intimidation for the purpose of preventing others from engaging in employment during a labor strike is violated, the violator can find no protection under the constitutional guaranty of free speech. Lassiter v. Swift & Co., 204 Ga. 561, 50 S.E.2d 359 (1948).

Contempt of court is abuse of liberty of free speech. — Punishment for contempt of court is not prevented by the constitutional guaranty of freedom of speech since contempt of court is an abuse of the liberty of speech. Wood v. State, 103

4. Contempt and Free Speech (Cont'd)

Ga. App. 305, 119 S.E.2d 261 (1961), rev'd on other grounds, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

Contempt not to be used to expose errors in judgment. — Errors in judgment or unsubstantiated opinions may be exposed, but not through punishment for contempt for expression. Under our system of government, counterargument and education are the weapons available to expose these matters, not abridgment of the rights of free speech and assembly. Wood v. Georgia, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

Procedure

1. In General

Divorce and alimony proceedings. — Contempt applications must be filed in county where divorce and alimony decree was entered, and this is so regardless of the fact that the respondent (the alleged contemnor) may not be a resident of that county, either having moved therefrom after the decree was entered or perhaps having never resided there. Austin v. Austin, 245 Ga. 487, 265 S.E.2d 788 (1980).

Rulings on motions to dismiss. — Contempt of court cannot be properly punished by rulings upon demurrers (now motions to dismiss) to the petition. Atlantic Ref. Co. v. Farrar, 171 Ga. 371, 155 S.E. 327 (1930).

Whether undisputed conduct amounts to contempt is question of law. — It is a question of law for the court to decide whether the courtroom conduct which is factually undisputed amounts to criminal contempt of court. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Knowledge of restraining order. — An order restraining the defendant from indorsing and cashing a check fairly comprehended disposition of the proceeds in the event of the collection of the funds by the defendant; and if the defendant, having cashed the check and received the proceeds before being served and informed of the restraining order, disposed of such proceeds after knowledge of the restraining order, the court did not err in adjudging the defendant in contempt for so doing. Reid v. McRae, 190 Ga. 323, 9 S.E.2d 176 (1940).

Violator may be held in contempt until court order set aside. — Until a court order concerning a divorce settlement is set aside for whatever reason, the party protesting the order can be held in contempt for violating the order's provisions. Paisley v. Huddlestun, 244 Ga. 418, 260 S.E.2d 478 (1979).

O.C.G.A. § 9-11-6(d) has no application to citation for contempt. — Ga. L. 1967, p. 226, §§ 5 and 6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-11-6(d)) applied to written motions in a pending case and had no application to a citation for contempt which was an independent proceeding authorized under former Code 1933, § 24-105 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-1-4). Gibson v. Gibson, 234 Ga. 528, 216 S.E.2d 824 (1975).

When court should call upon fellow judge to adjudicate contempt charges. — In a criminal contempt proceeding in which the trial judge has been called upon to rule on an attack on the judge's own impartiality and when marked personal feelings are manifested on both sides, the court should call upon one of the trial judge's fellow judges to adjudicate the contempt charges. In re McLarty, 152 Ga. App. 399, 263 S.E.2d 194 (1979).

Substitute judge may be preferable to handle contempt after trial. — If a judge does not act the instant the contempt is committed, but waits until the end of the trial, on balance, it is generally wise if the marks of the unseemly conduct have left personal stings to ask a fellow judge to take the judge's place. Spruell v. State, 148 Ga. App. 99, 250 S.E.2d 807 (1978).

Summary punishment for contempt may be delayed until after trial. — While the trial judge, upon the occurrence in the judge's presence of contempt, may immediately and summarily punish the contempt, summary punishment may be delayed until after trial if the trial judge believes that the exigencies of the trial require such action. Spruell v.

State, 148 Ga. App. 99, 250 S.E.2d 807 (1978).

Award of custody of minor child to plaintiff was erroneous in proceeding for contempt as the question of custody of a child was not before the court. Warren v. Warren, 213 Ga. 81, 97 S.E.2d 349 (1957).

Contempt punishment cannot be mingled with judgment in proceeding to obtain damages and injunction. — Court can apply the proper punishment for any contempt that exists, but that cannot be mingled with a judgment in a proceeding to obtain damages and injunction ad interim. Atlantic Ref. Co. v. Farrar, 171 Ga. 371, 155 S.E. 327 (1930).

No appeal absent final judgment. — If the trial court issues an order finding the appellant in contempt of court but does not impose punishment, no final judgment has been entered and the case is still pending in the court below and an appeals court cannot review the lower court's decision. In re Crudup, 149 Ga. App. 214, 253 S.E.2d 802 (1979).

Compelling disclosure of attorney's knowledge as to client. — Though, as a general rule, all communications on the part of the client to an attorney are privileged, and therefore the attorney cannot be compelled to disclose the communications, still, in a civil proceeding, if there is evidence sufficient to authorize the court to adjudge that the attorney knows the identity and residence of the client, and the injury is restricted to that question alone, the attorney may be compelled to disclose the attorney's knowledge as to the residence of the client in order that the client may be served with a copy of the petition and process since otherwise the rights of the petitioner, if any, would be denied. West v. Field, 181 Ga. 152, 181 S.E. 661 (1935).

Right to rule attorney is limited to client. — Provision of law for a summary rule against an attorney at law is penal in its nature and must be strictly construed; consequently, the right to rule an attorney for money alleged to be in the attorney's hands as such attorney depends on the existence of the relation of attorney and client and is limited to the client. Blanch v. Roberson, 69 Ga. App. 423, 25 S.E.2d 720 (1943).

Right to rule an attorney at law and compel the attorney to pay over money which the attorney has collected is limited to the client. It follows that if, as the result of a lawsuit instituted by an attorney for the client, money has come into the hands of the attorney, the defendant in that suit who claims title to the money, but who is not the client of the attorney, cannot enforce the client's claim by rule against the attorney. Blanch v. Roberson, 69 Ga. App. 423, 25 S.E.2d 720 (1943).

2. Procedural Issues

A. Proof

Burden and standard of proof. — Under the law, the burden is on the moving party to show the facts necessary to establish contempt. This burden must be carried by clear and convincing evidence. While proof beyond a reasonable doubt is not required, the authorities sometimes say that more than preponderance of proof is required. FTC v. Blaine, 308 F. Supp. 932 (N.D. Ga. 1970).

Burden of establishing the fact of contempt is on the party asserting contempt. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979).

Charge imposed additional burden on plaintiffs. — Only burden resting on the plaintiffs was to prove that the defendants disobeyed the injunction in the manner alleged in the petition. If the charge imposed upon the plaintiffs the additional burden of establishing the right to have the plant closed, this was an additional burden of proof impossible to carry, for as this court has pointed out, under the law of contempt, such relief was not available in the proceedings to have the defendants cited for disobedience of an injunction granted in a case when no money or other property was sued for. A charge imposing a heavier or different burden than that required by the law of the case is hurtful error and requires the granting of a new trial. Bennett v. Bagwell & Stewart, Inc., 216 Ga. 290, 116 S.E.2d 288 (1960).

Burden of proof in civil contempt case. — Defendant was charged with civil contempt in that the act complained of was one in violation of an injunctive order which was issued to protect the right of the employer to be free from violence towards the employer's property or the employer's employees and those persons seeking to work for the employer, either upon the employer's property or at any place; being a civil case a preponderance of the evidence would be sufficient to authorize a verdict against the defendant. Wagner v. Commercial Printers, Inc., 203 Ga. 1, 45 S.E.2d 205 (1947).

Order recited facts which warranted contempt finding. — If the order holding the defendant in contempt recited that the conduct found to be contumacious occurred in open court and in the presence of the court and that the contemnee willfully refused to obey the court's orders and repeatedly attempted to argue after having been fully heard, and after the opinion of the court had been pronounced, and that the conduct of defendant was intended by the defendant to be contemptuous of the court and that the conduct interfered with the lawful administration of justice, the order recited facts which warranted the trial judge in holding the defendant in contempt of court. Boatright v. State, 106 Ga. App. 801, 128 S.E.2d 559 (1962).

Evidence that individuals had actual knowledge of court order necessary for finding of contempt. — To sustain a judgment holding individuals who were not parties to main suit and were not named in court order forbidding the use of threats, violence, and intimidation in labor dispute in contempt, the evidence must show that those individuals acted after having actual knowledge of the court's order. Lassiter v. Swift & Co., 204 Ga. 561, 50 S.E.2d 359 (1948).

Sufficient evidence to establish contempt if defendant's purpose to influence juror. — Evidence authorized a finding that the defendant was guilty of contempt in that there was a deliberate purpose or calculation to improperly influence a juror designate (one who had been drawn as a juror), and that that purpose or calculation was accompanied by a definite act or declaration on the part of the contemnor in an effort to carry that purpose of calculation into effect; the failure of the undertaking was immaterial except as to the punishment to be inflicted. Summers v. State ex rel. Boykin, 66 Ga. App. 648, 19 S.E.2d 28 (1942).

Violation of decree presumed deliberate. — Without evidence to show otherwise, it is assumed that a person violates a decree deliberately. Sanborn v. Sanborn, 224 Ga. 792, 164 S.E.2d 563 (1968).

Contempt committed in judge's presence. — If the contumacious conduct is committed in the presence of the court in the immediate view of the judge, it is unnecessary for the court to apply any evidentiary standard of proof in order to summarily hold the contemnor in contempt of court. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

When the contempt occurs totally in the presence of the judge, there is no necessity for the production of evidence. Indeed, there is no burden of persuading the trier of fact as there is no fact-finding process to be conducted. Farmer v. Strickland, 652 F.2d 427 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 944, 102 S. Ct. 1440, 71 L. Ed. 2d 656 (1982).

Elements of proof in child support cases. — Both a parent's ability to pay child support and a parent's willful refusal to do so are essential to finding the parent in contempt for failure to pay such support in accordance with a court order. Floyd v. Floyd, 247 Ga. 551, 277 S.E.2d 658 (1981).

B. Defenses

Defenses to both civil and criminal contempt are that the order was not sufficiently definite and certain, was not violated, or that the violation was not willful (e.g., inability to pay or comply). Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

Inability to comply with order. — Ordinarily, one charged with contempt of court for failure to comply with a court order makes a complete defense by proving that one is unable to comply. A court will not imprison a witness for failure to produce documents which one does not have unless one is responsible for the document's unavailability, or is impeding justice by not explaining what happened to the documents. FTC v. Blaine, 308 F. Supp. 932 (N.D. Ga. 1970).

Thing ordered done must be within power against whom order directed. — It is essential to constitute contempt that thing ordered to be done be within power of person against whom order is directed. In re Brookins, 153 Ga. App. 82, 264 S.E.2d 560 (1980).

Court's sentence in defendant's absence is void. — Sentence of court, imposed upon defendant in defendant's absence, is absolutely void, and cannot be enforced against the defendant. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979).

C. Enforcement of Orders

Tardiness or failure of party or witness to appear. — If a witness or litigant who has been ordered to appear at a given time is tardy in arrival, or does not make an appearance as ordered, the question arises whether the delay or nonappearance was a willful and contumacious flaunting of the appearance ordered by the rule nisi, whether it was accidental, or whether it was due to some unavoidable cause; the normal procedure when a party or witness who has been ordered to appear does not do so is to arrest a party or witness under a bench warrant at which time the cause of the delay can be inquired. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979).

Procedure when person failed to respond to rule nisi. — Proper course to pursue is to issue an attachment for the person who has failed to respond to the rule nisi for contempt, have the person arrested and brought into court, and to deal with the person in the manner provided by law. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979).

Court retains jurisdiction to enforce payment of alimony by attachment for contempt. — Superior court awarding alimony by virtue of the court's jurisdiction originally invoked by plaintiff in a divorce suit had jurisdiction to enforce payment by attachment for contempt against plaintiff after plaintiff changed plaintiff's residence to another county. Curtright v. Curtright, 187 Ga. 122, 200 S.E. 711 (1938).

Enforcement of alimony judgment through contempt for nonpayment. — Valid judgment for alimony may be enforced by attachment for contempt for nonpayment not arising from lack of ability to pay since the judgment goes further and expressly commands the payment of support which is a duty in which society has a substantial interest. Wilson v. Chumney, 214 Ga. 120, 103 S.E.2d 552 (1958).

Attachment of county court judge by superior court. — When a person has been tried and convicted in the county court, and has petitioned the judge of the superior court for a writ of certiorari, and the petition is sanctioned, and the writ issued, and the judge of the county court refuses to answer as required by the writ, the judge of the superior court, in term time, has power to attach the county court judge for contempt. Pittman v. Hagans, 91 Ga. 107, 16 S.E. 659 (1892).

Appropriation of funds by receiver. — If a receiver has been directed by the court to deposit a fund arising from the sale of the property of the debtor in banks, subject to be withdrawn only on the debtor's check when the check has been countersigned by the judge presiding in the court which appointed the receiver, and in violation of the receiver's duty, and in disregard of the order of the court, the receiver obtains such fund from the banks on checks not countersigned, and appropriates the checks to the receiver's own use, then, regardless of the question whether or not the bank is liable for such wrongful payment, such receiver is in direct contempt of the court, whose officer the judge is. The receiver may be attached and punished for contempt in disregarding the orders of the court, and also for a failure or refusal, when so ordered, to pay into court the fund so misappropriated. Evans v. White, 178 Ga. 262, 172 S.E. 913 (1934).

Failure to recognize custody of receiver. — If a receiver is appointed for goods which are stored in a warehouse, such goods are in the possession of the receiver, and the custody of the property by the receiver of the court is the custody of the court, and a failure of the warehouseman to recognize such possession by the receiver and by the court would subject the warehouseman to attachment for contempt. United Bonded Whse., Inc. v. Jackson, 208 Ga. 552, 67 S.E.2d 761 (1951).

Refusal to comply with order. — If a judgment is passed in a habeas corpus case, awarding the custody of a minor child to the child's grandparents, and requiring the grandparents to surrender the child to the child's father at stated intervals upon the father's application therefor, and the grandparents refuse to comply with this provision in the order, the grandparents may be attached and punished for contempt. Crawford v. Manning, 12 Ga. App. 54, 76 S.E. 771 (1912).

Acts of attorneys which do not constitute misbehavior as officer of court. — While attorneys as officers of the court are under a duty to maintain the integrity and dignity of the court and respect for the court's authority, for acts committed outside the presence of the court which do not constitute misbehavior as an officer of the court in an official transaction or disobedience or resistance of any lawful writ, etc., of the court, attorneys are no more amenable to attachment and summary punishment for contempt of court than are other persons. Townsend v. State, 54 Ga. App. 627, 188 S.E. 560 (1936).

Misbehavior of attorney as officer of court may properly be punished by attachment for contempt. West v. Field, 181 Ga. 152, 181 S.E. 661 (1935).

Enforcement of order against representative of party. — Since a court has the authority to hold any witness in contempt for failing or refusing to appear and testify on a relevant matter, a fortiori the power lies to enforce the court's order as to a matter in furtherance of the jurisdiction of the court to one representing oneself to be counsel for a party before the court. In re Boswell, 148 Ga. App. 519, 251 S.E.2d 596 (1978).

3. Due Process

Contemnor entitled to due process requirements. — Due process demands that the contemnor be cited, given notice, and allowed an opportunity to defend or excuse oneself. Moody v. State, 131 Ga. App. 355, 206 S.E.2d 79 (1974).

Opportunity to be heard. — If a criminal contempt act is not in the court's immediate presence, due process requires that the accused be given an opportunity to be heard. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979).

Written notice of alleged indirect contempt. — Requirement of reasonable notice in a case involving an alleged indirect contempt is not satisfied by a showing that the accused was present in court at the time of trial and adjudication and had actual notice then and there of what was going on, but rather contemplates and necessitates a written notice fairly and fully informing the accused of the specific acts of contempt with which the accused is charged, and so given as to afford a reasonable time to make a defense. Crocker v. Crocker, 132 Ga. App. 587, 208 S.E.2d 602 (1974).

Respondent entitled to notice of allegations of contempt. — Respondent in a citation for contempt is entitled to be apprised of the acts which respondent is charged with committing in violation of the injunctive order so that the respondent may be prepared to defend against such allegations on the hearing. Hortman v. Georgia Bd. of Dental Exmrs., 214 Ga. 560, 105 S.E.2d 732 (1958).

Moving party's pleadings put contemnor on notice that proceeding is civil and criminal. — If a person is on notice that the person is being tried for contempt and the movant seeks "such other sanctions as is appropriate to ensure the enforcement and the observance" of the court's order or seeks "such other relief as may be appropriate," the contemnor is on notice that the proceeding is both civil and criminal in nature and that criminal sanctions may be imposed in an appropriate case. Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

Issuance and service of rule nisi required if constructive contempt alleged. — In cases of constructive contempt of court, if the alleged contumacious conduct is disobedience to a mandate of the court, not an act in the presence of the court or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice, the law requires that a rule nisi issue and be served upon the accused, giving the accused notice of the charges against the accused, and that the accused be given an opportunity to be heard. Crocker v. Crocker, 132 Ga. App. 587, 208 S.E.2d 602 (1974).

Failure to give requisite rule nisi to alleged contemner may be waived. Crocker v. Crocker, 132 Ga. App. 587, 208 S.E.2d 602 (1974).

Waiver of failure to give requisite rule nisi cannot be imputed unless it be shown that the notice was unequivocally waived. Crocker v. Crocker, 132 Ga. App. 587, 208 S.E.2d 602 (1974).

Purpose of notice given by rule nisi. — Notice given by rule nisi is to afford accused reasonable time in which to prepare the accused's defense to the charge that the accused violated the court's order. Crocker v. Crocker, 132 Ga. App. 587, 208 S.E.2d 602 (1974).

No requirement for service of rule nisi if contemner voluntarily appears. — If a contemner voluntarily appears and defends against the contempt proceedings, it is not required that the contemner be served with a rule nisi. Crocker v. Crocker, 132 Ga. App. 587, 208 S.E.2d 602 (1974).

Omission of word "criminal" in notice of contempt proceeding is not fatal if the notice fully described the conduct charged, there is no showing that the contemnor was prejudiced by the failure to clearly denominate the nature of the contempt proceeding, and the contemnor was accorded all rights due a defendant in a "criminal contempt" proceeding. Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

Direct summary criminal contempt in presence of court is exempt from two due process requirements. — There is a type of contempt of court which is exempt from the due process requirements of notice and hearing. This is the direct summary criminal contempt "arising in the presence of the court which tends to scandalize it and hinder or obstruct the orderly processes of the administration of justice, the preservation of order and decorum in the court," etc., and which is committed "in the face of" or "in the immediate presence of" the judge. Moody v. State, 131 Ga. App. 355, 206 S.E.2d 79 (1974).

Direct summary criminal contempt which arises in the presence of the court and tends to scandalize it and hinder or obstruct the orderly processes of the administration of justice, the preservation of order and decorum in the court, etc., is exempt from the due process requirements of notice and hearing. Spruell v. State, 148 Ga. App. 99, 250 S.E.2d 807 (1978); In re McLarty, 152 Ga. App. 399, 263 S.E.2d 194 (1979).

Discretion of court to allow hearing if direct contempt. — If a direct contempt is committed in the presence of the court, the offender is not entitled as a matter of right to a hearing before the court; the court may act on the court's own knowledge of the facts and proceed to impose punishment for the contempt; or the court may in the court's discretion allow a hearing; the refusal to allow a hearing does not deprive the defendant of the due process of law guaranteed by the state and federal Constitutions. Martin v. Waters, 151 Ga. App. 149, 259 S.E.2d 153 (1979).

If contempt is direct or in presence of court, no service of any commitment is necessary. Hall v. Martin, 177 Ga. 238, 170 S.E. 41 (1933).

4. Jury Trials

No constitutional right to jury trial. — Power to punish contempts summarily is incident to courts of record, and to try a case of contempt without the intervention of a jury violates no constitutional provision. In re Fite, 11 Ga. App. 665, 76 S.E. 397 (1912).

Defendants in a contempt case do not have a constitutional right to a jury trial even on pure questions of fact. Bennett v. Bagwell & Stewart, Inc., 216 Ga. 290, 116 S.E.2d 288 (1960).

Right to a jury trial did not extend to special summary proceedings including show cause hearings since the issue was whether a party should be held in civil contempt for violation of a previously issued injunction or order. Peacock v. Spivey, 278 Ga. App. 338, 629 S.E.2d 48 (2006).

Trial court did not err in refusing to allow for a jury trial regarding the contempt action against the ex-husband relating to a child support and attorney fee arrearage because the Georgia Supreme Court has long held that a person is not entitled to a jury trial on the issue of ability to pay or contempt for failure to pay alimony and child support. McCarthy v. Ashment, 353 Ga. App. 270, 835 S.E.2d 745 (2019).

No trial by jury except if expressly provided by statute. — Respondent in contempt proceedings is not entitled to a trial by jury except if a jury trial is expressly provided by statute. Branch v. Branch, 219 Ga. 601, 135 S.E.2d 269 (1964).

Determination of questions of fact. — Every court has power to compel obedience to the court's judgments, orders, and processes; and in a proceeding for contempt growing out of the alleged violation by the defendant therein of a mandamus absolute, the judge can determine all questions of fact without the intervention of a jury, except in the cases provided for in this section. Gaston v. Shunk Plow Co., 161 Ga. 287, 130 S.E. 580 (1925).

Class of contempt proceedings wherein jury trial is required. — Respondent was not entitled to a trial by a jury in a contempt proceeding on the issue of whether or not the respondent violated an injunctive order prohibiting the respondent from practicing dentistry without a license as such case did not fall within the class of proceedings for contempt provided for in this section wherein a jury trial was required. Hortman v. Georgia Bd. of Dental Exmrs., 214 Ga. 560, 105 S.E.2d 732 (1958).

Refusal to pay alimony. — If there is a refusal to pay alimony, a court of record may punish for contempt without a jury trial. Lee v. Lee, 97 Ga. 736, 25 S.E. 174 (1896); Briesnick v. Briesnick, 100 Ga. 57, 28 S.E. 154 (1896); Stokes v. Stokes, 126 Ga. 804, 55 S.E. 1023 (1906).

This section does not require a jury trial if the respondent was cited for refusing to pay alimony judgment. Branch v. Branch, 219 Ga. 601, 135 S.E.2d 269 (1964).

Proceedings in chancery. — Presiding judge, if the judge deems it proper, may determine for oneself, without aid of a jury, all questions of fact arising upon the auditor's report; but inasmuch as the case upon which the contempt proceedings were founded is one in which the court is exercising chancery powers, this court sees no reason why the judge may not, if such course seems advisable to the judge, invoke the aid of a jury in arriving at a proper conclusion upon the questions of fact presented. It is a matter of discretion as to what method the judge will adopt to arrive at the actual truth to be ascertained. Bennett v. Bagwell & Stewart, Inc., 216 Ga. 290, 116 S.E.2d 288 (1960).

Interference with Administration of Justice

Misbehavior and disobedience that obstructs administration of justice. — This section shall extend only to cases of misbehavior of any person or persons in the presence of the courts or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice, the misbehavior of any of the officers of the courts in the officer's official transactions, and the disobedience or resistance by any officer of the courts, party, juror, witness, or other person or persons to any lawful writ, process, order, rule, decree, or command of the courts. Wood v. State, 103 Ga. App. 305, 119 S.E.2d 261 (1961), rev'd on other grounds, 370 U.S. 375, 82 S. Ct. 1364, 8 L. Ed. 2d 569 (1962).

Because sufficient evidence existed to support a criminal contempt finding against an attorney based on that attorney's refusal to obey the trial judge's order to continue the representation of the attorney's criminal client, the trial judge was authorized to summarily find the attorney in contempt of court for directly disobeying an order of the court, misbehaving in the presence of the court, and obstructing the administration of justice.

Lee v. State, 283 Ga. App. 369, 641 S.E.2d 615 (2007).

Misbehavior not in immediate presence of court. — Although misbehavior so as to obstruct the administration of justice is being subject to "summary punishment," that must yield to the fundamental constitutional right to due process of law if the misbehavior is not in the immediate presence of the court, so that it may "act on its own knowledge of the facts," summary punishment is not authorized, and due process demands that the contemnor be cited, given notice, and allowed an opportunity to defend or excuse the contemnor. McDaniel v. State, 202 Ga. App. 409, 414 S.E.2d 536 (1992).

Disobedience to lawful order of court is obstruction of justice, and for such a violation the court, in order to compel respect or compliance, may punish for contempt. Griggers v. Bryant, 239 Ga. 244, 236 S.E.2d 599 (1977).

Obstruction of justice is abuse of liberty of speech and press. — Constitution of Georgia guarantees the liberty of speech and of the press but does not protect an abuse of that liberty and obstructing the administration of justice by the courts of this state is an abuse of that liberty and will subject the abuser to punishment for contempt of court. McGill v. State, 209 Ga. 500, 74 S.E.2d 78 (1953); Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. v. State, 216 Ga. 399, 116 S.E.2d 580 (1960).

Liberty of press subordinate to independence of judiciary and administration of justice. — Inherent power of the courts to punish any publication calculated to interfere with the administration of justice is not restricted by the constitutional guaranties of liberty of the press for liberty of the press is subordinate to the independence of the judiciary and the proper administration of justice. McGill v. State, 209 Ga. 500, 74 S.E.2d 78 (1953).

No contempt if newspaper articles do not obstruct administration of justice. — Criticisms in newspaper articles which do not obstruct the administration of justice in the court do not constitute contempt of court. Townsend v. State, 54 Ga. App. 627, 188 S.E. 560 (1936).

Defective rule for contempt when publications could not have obstructed justice. — Rule for contempt issued by superior court judge based on a series of newspaper articles is fatally defective if the publications complained of were true, the publication related to a matter in another court and in no wise referred to the court issuing the rule and if the publication could not have obstructed or impaired the administration of justice in the court. McGill v. State, 209 Ga. 500, 74 S.E.2d 78 (1953).

Sufficient showing that alleged conduct could obstruct administration of justice needed. — Alleged conduct of the defendant in uttering a certain phrase to the solicitor general (now district attorney) in the presence of the grand jury was not in the immediate presence or "face" of the court, but was under this section "so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice," provided the alleged conduct of the contemnor showed that such conduct could obstruct the administration of justice. Adams v. State, 89 Ga. App. 882, 81 S.E.2d 507 (1954).

Objectionable question by attorney. — Attorney's question in a criminal trial that purportedly "elicited testimony that his client was not found guilty at ... previous trial" did not justify a finding of contempt. In re Healy, 241 Ga. App. 266, 526 S.E.2d 616 (1999).

Misbehavior by attorney found. — Trial court did not err in the manner in which the court handled the defendant's summary punishment for contempt of court for misbehavior in the court's presence or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice after the defendant failed to appear before the trial court with the client the defendant was representing, particularly given the defendant's representation to the trial court via telephone that the defendant would be in court in a few minutes. In re Omole, 258 Ga. App. 725, 574 S.E.2d 912 (2002).

Discretion of Court

Regulating behavior of court officers. — Trial court has very wide discretion in regulating and controlling the behavior of court officers in the conduct of the proceedings before the court, and this discretion will not be interfered with unless flagrantly abused. In re McLarty, 152

Ga. App. 399, 263 S.E.2d 194 (1979).

Determining whether orders violated. — In cases of contempt, the trial judge is vested with discretion in determining whether the judge's orders have been violated and how such infringements should be treated, and the Supreme Court will not disturb the judge's judgment unless it appears that the judge has abused the judge's discretion. Reid v. McRae, 190 Ga. 323, 9 S.E.2d 176 (1940).

Trial court in contempt case has wide discretion to determine whether orders have been violated. The court's determination will not be disturbed on appeal in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Kaufmann v. Kaufmann, 246 Ga. 266, 271 S.E.2d 175 (1980).

Judgment not disturbed absent abuse of discretion. — Judgment rendered on a hearing of a contempt case will not be disturbed by the Supreme Court unless the judge has grossly abused the sound discretion vested in the judge in such a case. Wagner v. Commercial Printers, Inc., 203 Ga. 1, 45 S.E.2d 205 (1947).

Trial court's adjudication of contempt will not be interfered with unless there is a gross, enormous, or flagrant abuse of discretion. Renfroe v. State, 104 Ga. App. 362, 121 S.E.2d 811 (1961), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985), for comment, see 24 Ga. B. J. 544 (1962).

Discretion of the judges of the superior courts in all matters pertaining to contempt of the judges' authority and mandates will never be controlled unless grossly abused. White v. State, 105 Ga. App. 616, 125 S.E.2d 239, rev'd on other grounds, 218 Ga. 290, 127 S.E.2d 668 (1962); Miller v. Kaylor, 116 Ga. App. 668, 158 S.E.2d 260 (1967).

It is fundamental that every court possesses the inherent power to preserve and enforce order and compel obedience to the court's judgments and orders, to control the conduct of the court's officers and all other persons connected with the judicial proceedings before the court, and to inflict summary punishment for contempt upon any person failing and refusing to obey any lawful order of such court. An appellate court will not undertake to control the wide discretion vested in the trial court in the exercise of this fundamental power unless it is made to appear that wrong or oppression has resulted from an abuse of such discretion reposed in the court. Jackson v. State, 225 Ga. 553, 170 S.E.2d 281 (1969); Young v. Champion, 142 Ga. App. 687, 236 S.E.2d 783 (1977).

Questions of contempt if committed in the actual presence of the court are for the court treated with contempt, and the trial court's adjudication of contempt will not be interfered with unless there is a flagrant abuse of discretion. Farmer v. Holton, 146 Ga. App. 102, 245 S.E.2d 457 (1978), cert. denied, 440 U.S. 958, 99 S. Ct. 1499, 59 L. Ed. 2d 771 (1979), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985).

Denial of sanctions for defense counsel's improper remarks informing the jury that opposing counsel was representing plaintiffs on a contingent-fee basis was not an abuse of discretion since issues as to the amount of damages, addressed by the improper remarks, were not reached by the jury, and therefore no harm resulted. Stoner v. Eden, 199 Ga. App. 135, 404 S.E.2d 283, cert. denied, 199 Ga. App. 907, 404 S.E.2d 283 (1991).

Failure to establish conflict of interest. — Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by not disqualifying the ex-wife's attorney after an alleged conflict of interest was established because the attorney denied there was a conflict after having talked briefly to the ex-husband's mother, and filed an affidavit from the law firm's administrator to that effect. McCarthy v. Ashment, 353 Ga. App. 270, 835 S.E.2d 745 (2019).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Magistrate may prevent interference with constable. — Justice of peace (now magistrate) may prevent interference with a constable in making a levy through contempt processes. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-63.

15-1-5. Effect of rules of court.

The rules of the respective courts, legally adopted and not in conflict with the Constitution of the United States or of this state, or the laws thereof, are binding and must be observed.

History. — Orig. Code 1863, § 198; Code 1868, § 192; Code 1873, § 204; Code 1882, § 204; Civil Code 1895, § 4044; Civil Code 1910, § 4641; Code 1933, § 24-106.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Rules are binding on practitioners and must be observed. — Rules of the Court of Appeals, promulgated by the court pursuant to the court's rule-making authority, are binding on those who practice in the court and must be observed. Crider v. State, 115 Ga. App. 347, 154 S.E.2d 743 (1967).

Construction placed upon the court's own rules by court is generally conclusive. Roberts v. Kuhrt, 119 Ga. 704, 46 S.E. 856 (1904).

Common-law rule may apply to equity case. Central Bank v. Johnson & Smith, 56 Ga. 225 (1876); Fletcher v. Renfroe, 56 Ga. 674 (1876).

Superior court rules may apply in city court. Chance v. State, 97 Ga. 346, 23 S.E. 832 (1895).

Untimeliness under local rule. — If there was no pretrial order issued in a case, an amended complaint supported by affidavit which was filed and served on the day preceding the hearing could not properly be disallowed based upon untimeliness under the local rule. Gilbert v. Decker, 165 Ga. App. 11, 299 S.E.2d 65 (1983).

Result of failure to follow rules. — Appellants successfully argued that the record was utterly devoid of any indication that the procedure in O.C.G.A. § 15-9-13 was followed in order to authorize the superior court judge to sit over the probate of the decedent's will. No written order was entered pursuant to Uniform Probate Court Rule 3 for the appointment of the superior court judge to act in the probate judge's absence. Thus, the superior court judge was not sitting over the probate proceedings in replacement for the recused probate court judge. Because the superior court lacks subject matter jurisdiction to hear the probate of a will, it follows that the judgment rendered by the superior court here was a nullity and void. Carpenter v. Carpenter, 276 Ga. 746, 583 S.E.2d 852 (2003).

(a) No judge or Justice of any court, magistrate, nor presiding officer of any inferior judicature or commission shall:

(1) Sit in any case or proceeding in which he is pecuniarily interested;

(2) Preside, act, or serve in any case or matter when such judge is related by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree as computed according to the civil law to any party interested in the result of the case or matter; or

(3) Sit in any case or proceeding in which he has been of counsel, nor in which he has presided in any inferior judicature, when his ruling or decision is the subject of review, without the consent of all parties in interest. (b) No judge or Justice of any court, magistrate, nor presiding officer of any inferior judicature or commission shall be disqualified from sitting in any case or proceeding because of the fact that he is a policyholder or is related to a policyholder of any mutual insurance company which has no capital stock.

(c) Nothing in this Code section shall be construed as applying to the qualifications of trial jurors.

(d) In all cases in which a part-time judge has a conflict because such judge or his or her partner or associate represents a governmental agency or entity, a subdivision of government, or any other client, the judge will recuse himself or herself or, with the permission of the parties, transfer the case to the state or superior court, but such judge will not otherwise be disqualified or prohibited from serving as attorney for such governmental entities.

General Consideration

Opinions limiting grounds for disqualification to only those enumerated in O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 overruled. — Because in Stephens v. Stephens, 249 Ga. 700, 292 S.E.2d 689 (1982) the Supreme Court made clear that Canon 3E of The Code of Judicial Conduct provides "a broader rule of disqualification" than that provided in O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8, and both the statute and the canon provide grounds for recusal, to the extent that the below cases follow the prior rule, the following opinions are overruled: Bevil v. State, 220 Ga. App. 1, 467 S.E.2d 586 (1996); Johnson v. State, 208 Ga. App. 453, 430 S.E.2d 821 (1993); Brannen v. Prince, 204 Ga. App. 866, 421 S.E.2d 76 (1992); Mapp v. State, 204 Ga. App. 647, 420 S.E.2d 615 (1992). Gillis v. City of Waycross, 247 Ga. App. 119, 543 S.E.2d 423 (2000).

Timing of objection relative to judge's disqualification. — Objection relative to the disqualification of a judge by reason of relationship or interest should generally be brought to the judge's attention before petitioning for the writ of prohibition. Riner v. Flanders, 173 Ga. 43, 159 S.E. 693 (1931).

Circumstances under which justice disqualified. — When the Constitution under consideration increased the membership of the Supreme Court from six to seven, and a justice had been appointed to fill the seventh place, and thus the very existence of the office the justice occupied was dependent upon the outcome of the case under consideration, since the justice's participation in the case would presuppose the validity of the instrument under attack the justice should not participate because the validity of the instrument should be determined by the court as constituted prior to the alleged adoption of the instrument under which the justice claimed office. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

When considering the issue of disqualification, both O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 and Canon 3C of the Code of Judicial Conduct should be considered and applied. Kurtz v. State, 233 Ga. App. 186, 504 S.E.2d 51 (1998).

Workers' compensation. — Since former Code 1933, § 114-101 et seq. (see now O.C.G.A. T. 34, C. 9) provided for a different judicial procedure than cases at common law, the apparent conflict between former Code 1933, § 114-708 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-9-103), wherein provision was clearly made for the single director who made the workers' compensation award to participate with the full board in review of the award, and former Code 1933, § 24-102 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8), providing for the disqualification of a judicial officer in a case in which the officer had presided in any inferior judicature, when the officer's ruling or decision was the subject of review, must be resolved in favor of the participation of the single director with the full board in accordance with the plain intention of the General Assembly as disclosed by the language of former Code 1933, § 114-708 (see now O.C.G.A. § 34-9-103). Wiley v. Bituminous Cas. Co., 76 Ga. App. 862, 47 S.E.2d 652 (1948).

Effect of judge's disqualification. — Granting of a motion to make a later term the appearance term and to perfect service in the meantime necessarily requires the exercise of a judicial function, facts are to be considered, and the judgment should be made accordingly, and therefore it cannot be said that the orders drawn into question in this case were mere formal or ministerial acts such as could have been performed irrespective of the judge's disqualification to preside at other stages of the proceeding. Smith v. Queen Ins. Co. of Am., 41 Ga. App. 587, 153 S.E. 785 (1930).

Disqualification does not extend to formal acts for bringing case. — Disqualification will not extend to mere formal acts designed to bring a case before a proper tribunal for adjudication, but will prohibit the hearing of the case or the making or passing of any order in relation thereto which is justiciable in its nature including orders for the purpose of extending time for service and appearance and issuance of new process. Smith v. Queen Ins. Co. of Am., 41 Ga. App. 587, 153 S.E. 785 (1930).

Act of judicial nature by disqualified judge is voidable. Allen v. State, 102 Ga. 619, 29 S.E. 470 (1897).

Violation of basic philosophy for judge to act as own trier of fact. — For a judicial officer to bring one's own case before oneself as a trier of fact violates the basic philosophy on which the judicial system is founded, that every phase of litigation is to be heard and decided by a disinterested magistrate. Bonds v. Powl, 140 Ga. App. 140, 230 S.E.2d 133 (1976).

Disqualification of trial judge will not cause release of prisoner on writ of habeas corpus. — Prisoner under sentence by a court of competent jurisdiction will not be released on writ of habeas corpus because of the disqualification of the judge who presided in the trial court. Wood v. Clarke, 188 Ga. 697, 4 S.E.2d 659 (1939).

Construction of Statutory Language

1. In General

Language of this Code section, being remedial in nature, should be liberally construed, and the word "cause" (now "case") should not be limited to a suit or proceeding in court. Murray County v. Pickering, 195 Ga. 182, 23 S.E.2d 436 (1942).

Liberal construction of words "of counsel" intended. — Words "of counsel" in this section cannot be so restricted as to include only representation in a suit or proceeding in court. That section must be given a liberal construction so as to effect the intent of the legislature. Scogin v. State, 138 Ga. App. 859, 227 S.E.2d 780 (1976); King v. State, 246 Ga. 386, 271 S.E.2d 630 (1980).

2. Party

"Party" construed. — Word "party" referred to would include any one pecuniarily interested in the result of the case, and would not be limited to a person who is a party to the record. Dobbins v. City of Marietta, 148 Ga. 467, 97 S.E. 439 (1918); Parks v. Citizens Bank, 40 Ga. App. 523, 150 S.E. 438 (1929).

Word "party" will include any person who is pecuniarily interested in the result of the suit, although not a party to the record and not necessarily bound by the judgment therein. Smith v. Queen Ins. Co. of Am., 41 Ga. App. 587, 153 S.E. 785 (1930).

Proper construction to be placed upon the word "party" is the broad meaning which would include any one pecuniarily interested in the result of the case, and not the narrow and technical meaning which would limit the rule to a person who was a party to the record. Dennard v. State, 46 Ga. App. 513, 168 S.E. 311 (1933).

Word "party" as used in this section is not restricted to technical limitation of party to case, but includes those who are interested in the result of the case, although not parties to the case. Georgia Power Co. v. Watts, 184 Ga. 135, 190 S.E. 654 (1937); Gray v. Barlow, 241 Ga. 347, 245 S.E.2d 299 (1978).

Interest of person not party to record which will disqualify judge is pecuniary interest in result of litigation. Gray v. Barlow, 241 Ga. 347, 245 S.E.2d 299 (1978).

3. Pecuniary Interest

Construction of "pecuniarily interested." — Words "pecuniarily interested," as employed in this section, should be construed to mean pecuniarily interested "in one side or the other of the case — a loss in the subject matter, or a gain dependent upon the result of the issue." Dennard v. State, 46 Ga. App. 513, 168 S.E. 311 (1933).

"Pecuniary interest" means direct pecuniary interest in result of particular case. Robinson v. State, 86 Ga. App. 375, 71 S.E.2d 677 (1952).

"Pecuniary interest" does not include interest in costs. — History of this section confirms the view that the "pecuniary interest" in a cause or proceeding referred to does not include an interest in the costs. Dennard v. State, 46 Ga. App. 513, 168 S.E. 311 (1933).

Pecuniary interest in costs is not synonymous with "pecuniary interest" in case. — Costs are the fees allowed officers of courts for their services in a judicial proceeding; though incidental to a suit are independent of the issue. There is no liability upon a party for costs until judgment, fixing that liability, and pecuniary interest in costs, the amount of which is fixed by law, is not synonymous with "pecuniary interest" in a case. Wellmaker v. Terrell, 3 Ga. App. 791, 60 S.E. 464 (1908).

Exhaustive Grounds for Disqualification

Statutory grounds exclusive. — It is the general rule that statutory grounds of disqualification are exclusive. Elliott v. Hipp, 134 Ga. 844, 68 S.E. 736, 137 Am. St. R. 272, 20 Ann. Cas. 423 (1910); Luke v. Batts, 11 Ga. App. 783, 76 S.E. 165 (1912).

Statutory grounds are exhaustive. — Statutory grounds of disqualification of judicial officer, as contained in this section, are exhaustive. York v. State, 42 Ga. App. 453, 156 S.E. 733 (1931); Scott v. State, 53 Ga. App. 61, 185 S.E. 131 (1936), aff'd, 184 Ga. 164, 190 S.E. 582 (1937); De Krasner v. Boykin, 54 Ga. App. 38, 186 S.E. 749 (1936); Blakeman v. Harwell, 198 Ga. 165, 31 S.E.2d 50 (1944); Jones v. State, 219 Ga. 848, 136 S.E.2d 358, cert. denied, 379 U.S. 935, 85 S. Ct. 330, 13 L. Ed. 2d 345 (1964); Daniel v. Yow, 226 Ga. 544, 176 S.E.2d 67 (1970).

This section sets forth the statutory grounds for disqualification of a judicial officer. Those grounds have been held to be exhaustive. J.B. v. State, 139 Ga. App. 545, 228 S.E.2d 712 (1976).

Prejudice or bias not based on pecuniary or relationship interest. — Grounds of disqualification of a judge, set forth in this section, are exhaustive, and do not include alleged prejudice or bias that is not based on a pecuniary or relationship interest. Elder v. Camp, 193 Ga. 320, 18 S.E.2d 622 (1942); Columbian Peanut Co. v. Pope, 69 Ga. App. 26, 24 S.E.2d 710 (1943); Smith v. State, 74 Ga. App. 777, 41 S.E.2d 541, cert. denied, 332 U.S. 772, 68 S. Ct. 86, 92 L. Ed. 357 (1947); Yeargin v. Hamilton Mem. Hosp., 229 Ga. 870, 195 S.E.2d 8 (1972).

Bias or prejudice is not legal ground for disqualification. — Circumstances in which a trial judge may be disqualified are set out in this section. These grounds are exhaustive, and bias or prejudice on the part of a judge is not legal ground for disqualification. Stevenson v. Stevenson, 222 Ga. 47, 148 S.E.2d 388 (1966).

Courts may not add other grounds of disqualification. — In order to disqualify a judge there must exist a ground authorized by law to disqualify the judge; it is not for the courts to add other grounds of disqualification. Blakeman v. Harwell, 198 Ga. 165, 31 S.E.2d 50 (1944); Mapp v. State, 204 Ga. App. 647, 420 S.E.2d 615 (1992).

Pecuniary Interest or Relationship

1. In General

Relationship to one of defendants. — If an injunction was granted against several defendants, and later an attachment proceeding was brought against some of the defendants for an alleged violation of such injunction, the judge of the superior court was not disqualified to hear and determine the attachment proceeding because of a relationship to one of the defendants against whom the injunction was issued, but who was not among the parties charged in the attachment proceeding, and who did not appear to have any interest therein. Tomlin v. Rome Stove & Range Co., 183 Ga. 183, 187 S.E. 879 (1936).

Relationship of defendant to wife of judge. — Fact that the wife of the judge who entered the default was a first cousin to the wife of the defendant does not disqualify the judge. Edison Provision Co. v. Armour & Co., 51 Ga. App. 213, 179 S.E. 829 (1935).

Judge not disqualified by having worked with crime victim. — Judge is not prohibited from presiding over a criminal case in which the alleged victim is one with whom the judge has worked by either O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 or Canon 3 of the Code of Judicial Conduct. Smith v. State, 189 Ga. App. 27, 375 S.E.2d 69 (1988).

Membership in organization not per se disqualification. — Judge is not per se disqualified to try a cause when one of the parties to which is a church, lodge, or society of which the judge is a member. Blakeman v. Harwell, 198 Ga. 165, 31 S.E.2d 50 (1944).

Son of judge prosecuting not disqualifying. — If in a criminal prosecution, the son of the judge trying the case is assisting in the prosecution of the case but would not reap any pecuniary gain personally by reason of the conviction, such an interest is one which is not direct, certain, and immediate so as to require the judge to disqualify oneself. DeLoach v. State, 78 Ga. App. 482, 51 S.E.2d 539 (1949).

Judge erred in holding oneself qualified to preside if prohibited relationship existed. — If the judge of the trial court was disqualified by virtue of a relationship within the prohibited degree to one of the attorneys for the plaintiff, who was the judge's brother, and who, by virtue of the nature of the attorney's employment, had a pecuniary interest in the subject matter of the litigation, the trial judge erred in holding oneself qualified to preside in the case. Western & Atl. R.R. v. Michael, 43 Ga. App. 703, 160 S.E. 93 (1931), aff'd, 175 Ga. 1, 165 S.E. 37 (1932).

No new trial when relationship to judge discovered after trial. — If a judge presiding in the trial of a criminal case is related to the defendant within the fourth (now sixth) degree of consanguinity, and neither the defendant nor defendant's counsel has knowledge of the existence of such relationship until after the trial, the mere fact that such relationship existed will not require the grant of a new trial. Parker v. State, 146 Ga. 131, 90 S.E. 859 (1916); Dixon v. State, 26 Ga. App. 13, 105 S.E. 39 (1920).

Writ of prohibition will lie to restrain judge from proceeding in action in which the judge is disqualified by reason of interest or relationship, although the court over which the judge presides may have jurisdiction of the cause. Riner v. Flanders, 173 Ga. 43, 159 S.E. 693 (1931).

Circumstances where pecuniary interest disqualification ineffective. — Although the justices of the Supreme Court may be disqualified on account of pecuniary interest in the subject matter of the litigation, nevertheless the Supreme Court justices must decide such a case if there is no other tribunal to do so, and none can be legally constituted. Wheeler v. Board of Trustees, 200 Ga. 323, 37 S.E.2d 322 (1946).

2. Interest of Judge

At common law, judge must have had interest in case, or the judge was not disqualified. Roberts v. Roberts, 115 Ga. 259, 41 S.E. 616, 90 Am. St. R. 108 (1902); Tibbs v. City of Atlanta, 125 Ga. 18, 53 S.E. 811 (1906).

Judge is not disqualified because judge is interested in subject to be decided if judge has no direct and immediate interest in the judgment to be pronounced. To work a disqualification, the interest must be a direct, certain, and immediate interest, and not one which is indirect, incidental, or remote. DeLoach v. State, 78 Ga. App. 482, 51 S.E.2d 539 (1949).

To work disqualification, interest must be direct, certain, and immediate interest, and not one which is indirect, incidental, or remote. A judge is not disqualified because the judge is interested in the question to be decided if the judge has no direct and immediate interest in the judgment to be pronounced. Beasley v. Burt, 201 Ga. 144, 39 S.E.2d 51 (1946).

Interest which disqualifies a judge from presiding in case is a direct pecuniary, or direct property interest, or one which involves some individual right or privilege in the subject matter of the litigation whereby a liability or pecuniary gain must occur on the event of the suit. Blakeman v. Harwell, 198 Ga. 165, 31 S.E.2d 50 (1944).

Interest which disqualifies judge from presiding in case is a direct pecuniary or property interest in the subject matter of the litigation whereby a liability or pecuniary gain would occur on the outcome of the suit. Adams v. McGehee, 211 Ga. 498, 86 S.E.2d 525 (1955).

O.C.G.A. §§ 15-1-8, 15-6-4, and 15-19-58 did not conflict with one another so as to be unconstitutional because O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 provided that judges should not be disqualified from sitting in a proceeding because the judge was a policyholder of any mutual insurance company; O.C.G.A. § 15-6-4 provided for qualifications for state superior court judges, and O.C.G.A. § 15-19-58 allowed the state bar to seek injunctive relief against parties engaging in the unauthorized practice of law. Alyshah v. Georgia, No. 1:06-CV-0928-TWT, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 66546 (N.D. Ga. Sept. 1, 2006), aff'd, 230 Fed. Appx. 949 (11th Cir. Ga. 2007).

Disqualifying interest may be personal one to judge, but the general rule is that the interest must be pecuniary in nature, and not remote, uncertain, speculative, or merely incidental with a distinction between a property interest and such interest as results from a feeling of sympathy or bias that would disqualify a juror. Blakeman v. Harwell, 198 Ga. 165, 31 S.E.2d 50 (1944).

To work disqualification, liability or pecuniary gain or relief to judge must occur upon event of suit, not result remotely in the future from the general operation of laws and government upon the status fixed by the decision. Beasley v. Burt, 201 Ga. 144, 39 S.E.2d 51 (1946).

Requirement of impartiality disqualifies judge from acting in case in which judge has interest. Blakeman v. Harwell, 198 Ga. 165, 31 S.E.2d 50 (1944).

Interest of judge in bank not party to proceeding does not act as disqualification. — Fact that the judge was a stockholder in a different bank which held a lien on a portion of the land in controversy would not disqualify the judge to preside in a proceeding to enjoin trespass, such other bank not being a party, and no question as to the validity or priority of the bank's lien being involved. Manry v. First Nat'l Bank, 195 Ga. 163, 23 S.E.2d 662 (1942).

Depositor creditor relationship to bank disqualified judge to act in proceedings. — Judge of the superior court, who is a depositor creditor of an insolvent bank in the charge of the state superintendent of banks (now commissioner of banking and finance) for purposes of liquidation, is pecuniarily interested and therefore disqualified to act in a suit for accounting, injunction, and receiver instituted by a principal against an agent and the superintendent of banks seeking to recover an interest in dividends due to an estate in control of the agent for the principal, which the superintendent of banks has wrongfully applied to the individual debt of the agent, and enjoining other similar impending misapplication of dividends due to the estate. Gaskins v. Gaskins, 181 Ga. 124, 181 S.E. 850 (1935).

Salary supplement from county did not constitute a pecuniary interest or partiality. — Although the judges of a judicial circuit received a salary supplement from a county, the judges did not have a direct pecuniary interest in the outcome of a lawsuit, accordingly, there was no basis for recusal of the judges based on a financial interest or partiality under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8(a)(1) and Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canon 3(E)(1)(c)(iii). Jones County v. A Mining Group, LLC, 285 Ga. 465, 678 S.E.2d 474 (2009).

Common interest with general taxpayers not disqualification. — Interest which a judge has in a public matter in common with other general taxpayers is not sufficient to disqualify the judge. The judge's interest must be direct and immediate before the judge will be disqualified. City of Valdosta v. Singleton, 197 Ga. 194, 28 S.E.2d 759 (1944).

Crime victim's relationship to a county commissioner did not require disqualification of superior court judges because the commission provided supplemental salaries to sitting judges. Kelly v. State, 238 Ga. App. 691, 520 S.E.2d 32 (1999).

Signing petition did not disqualify probate judge from calling and holding special election. — Fact that the ordinary (now probate judge) was one of those who signed, as an individual, a petition requesting the call of a special election for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of the county the question of taxing, legalizing, and controlling alcoholic beverages and liquors did not show that the ordinary (now probate judge) was disqualified because the ordinary (now probate judge) was pecuniarily interested in the matter before the ordinary (now probate judge), or that the ordinary (now probate judge) was otherwise disqualified from calling and holding the special election. McCluney v. Stembridge, 206 Ga. 321, 57 S.E.2d 203 (1950).

Judge's ownership of stock. — Probate court judge's ownership of stock in a bank which was a party to the proceeding disqualified the judge from hearing the matter pursuant to paragraph (a)(1) of

Pecuniary Interest or Relationship (Cont'd)
2. Interest of Judge (Cont'd)

O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 and the judge should have granted a motion to recuse. White v. SunTrust Bank, 245 Ga. App. 828, 538 S.E.2d 889 (2000).

3. Disqualification

It is pecuniary interest of attorney in result of case which disqualifies judge when one or more of the counsel for a party in whose behalf the fees are asked is related to the judge within the degree referred to in the statute declaring when a judge should be disqualified. Roberts v. Roberts, 115 Ga. 259, 41 S.E. 616, 90 Am. St. R. 108 (1902); Chadwick v. State, 87 Ga. App. 900, 75 S.E.2d 260 (1953).

Relationship to counsel for party will disqualify judge only when counsel has pecuniary interest in case. Young v. Harris, 146 Ga. 333, 91 S.E. 37 (1916).

Judge not disqualified unless related attorney has interest in litigation. — Judge is not disqualified to preside in a case on ground of relationship to one of the attorneys for the plaintiff within the degree of relationship that would disqualify the judge, unless the attorney related to the judge has an interest in the litigation. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. v. McDonald, 50 Ga. App. 856, 179 S.E. 185, cert. denied, 296 U.S. 621, 56 S. Ct. 143, 80 L. Ed. 441 (1935).

Disqualification required when judge's spouse an equity partner in law firm representing a party to a case. — Supreme court justice disqualified self from any case in which lawyers from a law firm represented a party because the justice's spouse was an equity partner who normally shared the firm's profits from all cases, and O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 and Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canon 3(E)(1)(c)(iii) required disqualification from all cases in which the firm represented a party; disqualification is required when a judge has a spouse who is an equity partner at the law firm representing a party to a case because it is imperative that the public has faith and trust in the impartiality of the justice system, and any appearance of impropriety that may exist is enhanced when the relative at issue is the judge's spouse. Friends of the Chattahoochee, Inc. v. Longleaf Energy Assocs., LLC, 285 Ga. 859, 684 S.E.2d 632 (2009).

Close relationship of party to presiding judge will be presumed beneficial, and not prejudicial, to that party, and if waived by the opposite party affords no ground for a new trial. Guthrie v. Peninsular Naval Stores Co., 26 Ga. App. 458, 107 S.E. 260, cert. denied, 26 Ga. App. 801 (1921).

Relationship to stockholder of corporation. — Judge is disqualified to sit in a case in which a corporation is a party, when a holder of stock of the corporation is related to the judge by consanguinity or affinity within the sixth degree, according to the civil law, whether the stockholder is a party to the case or not, and that is true of the holder of "preferred stock" which pays a fixed dividend of income out of the earned profits of the corporation. Georgia Power Co. v. Watts, 184 Ga. 135, 190 S.E. 654 (1937).

Relationship to mayor of city as party. — Close familial relationship between the mayor, who was the judge's mother, and the judge could impede the impartiality of the judge's judgment in presiding over the adjudication of matters involving the city; such a perceived bias or prejudice suffices for disqualification. In re Judge No. 97-61, 269 Ga. 425, 499 S.E.2d 319 (1998).

Judge not disqualified if relative's interest is insufficient. — Just as a judge is not disqualified merely because of an interest in some abstract legal question that is presently involved and which may arise in some future litigation affecting the judge or the judge's property rights, so an interest of like nature by the judge's relative would not disqualify the judge. In neither case would there be pecuniary interest in the result of the litigation within the meaning of the law. City of Valdosta v. Singleton, 197 Ga. 194, 28 S.E.2d 759 (1944).

Plaintiff unharmed by defendant's wife's relationship to judge. — It was not an abuse of discretion to deny the plaintiff's motion to set aside the verdict and judgment on the ground that the original trial judge, as the second cousin of the defendant's wife, was disqualified because the judge was allegedly related within a prohibited degree of consanguinity since the relationship was not revealed to the parties until after the verdict, and since the plaintiff was not harmed by the alleged disqualification in that the trial judge to whom the case was assigned after the original judge disqualified oneself entered judgment for the plaintiff. Roper v. Durham, 256 Ga. 845, 353 S.E.2d 476 (1987).

Payment of bonus to judge's son. — Mere fact that attorney representing party to pending case might give a bonus to a judge's son, the judge's new associate, at end of year is too remote and speculative to work disqualification of the judge. Stephens v. Stephens, 249 Ga. 700, 292 S.E.2d 689 (1982).

Disqualification not removed by death of family member. — Disqualification of a judge to preside in a case in which the husband of the judge's sister is a stockholder in a corporation which is a party is not removed upon the death of the sister, if she leaves children, issue of the marriage, in life at the time of the trial. Georgia Power Co. v. Moody, 186 Ga. 343, 197 S.E. 844 (1938).

Bias or Prejudice

Bias or prejudice not disqualification. — This section does not provide that bias or prejudice is a ground to disqualify a trial judge from presiding in the case. Jones v. State, 219 Ga. 848, 136 S.E.2d 358, cert. denied, 379 U.S. 935, 85 S. Ct. 330, 13 L. Ed. 2d 345 (1964); P.D. v. State, 151 Ga. App. 662, 261 S.E.2d 413 (1979).

Personal bias or prejudice is not ground of disqualification, and the statutory grounds of disqualification are exhaustive. Clenney v. State, 229 Ga. 561, 192 S.E.2d 907 (1972).

Prejudice, bias, or prejudgment ordinarily not ground of disqualification. — Prejudice or bias on the part of the judge, not based on interest, nor on any other ground not named in the statute, is, as a general rule, not assignable as a ground for disqualification. Tibbs v. City of Atlanta, 125 Ga. 18, 53 S.E. 811 (1906).

This section, providing under what circumstances judges shall be disqualified, specifies only matters in which the judges have a pecuniary interest or are related within the sixth degree to any party interested in the result of the matter. The statutory grounds named in that section are exhaustive. Prejudice, bias, or prejudgment or even an exhibition or partisan feeling, when not arising from these grounds, is ordinarily not assignable as a ground of disqualification. Robinson v. State, 86 Ga. App. 375, 71 S.E.2d 677 (1952).

Prejudice or bias not based on pecuniary or relationship interest. — Prejudice or bias, not based on interest, will not disqualify the ordinary (now probate judge) from presiding in a contest. Moore v. Dugas, 166 Ga. 493, 143 S.E. 591 (1928).

Alleged prejudice or bias of a judge, which is not based on an interest either pecuniary or relationship to a party within a prohibited degree, affords no legal ground of disqualification. Jones v. State, 219 Ga. 848, 136 S.E.2d 358, cert. denied, 379 U.S. 935, 85 S. Ct. 330, 13 L. Ed. 2d 345 (1964); McRae v. State, 116 Ga. App. 407, 157 S.E.2d 646 (1967); Daniel v. Yow, 226 Ga. 544, 176 S.E.2d 67 (1970); P.D. v. State, 151 Ga. App. 662, 261 S.E.2d 413 (1979).

Prejudice or bias against party's attorney not per se grounds for disqualification. — Any alleged prejudice or bias against the party's attorney rather than the party personally is not, per se, grounds for disqualification. Mann v. State, 154 Ga. App. 677, 269 S.E.2d 863 (1980); Head v. State, 160 Ga. App. 4, 285 S.E.2d 735 (1981); Baxter v. State, 176 Ga. App. 154, 335 S.E.2d 607 (1985).

Requirements for alleged bias to be disqualifying. — In order to be disqualifying, alleged bias of judge must stem from an extrajudicial source and result in an opinion on the merits on some basis other than what the judge learned from the judge's participation in the case. Carter v. State, 246 Ga. 328, 271 S.E.2d 475 (1980).

For recusal, the alleged bias or prejudice of the trial judge needed to be of such a nature and intensity to prevent the defendant from obtaining a trial uninfluenced by the court's prejudgment. Bitt Int'l Co. v. Fletcher, 259 Ga. App. 406, 577 S.E.2d 276 (2003).

Allegations of prejudice which are insufficient grounds for disqualification. — Allegations of judicial prejudice against counsel based upon events or circumstances occurring outside the ambit of the then pending action are not sufficient grounds for disqualification of the judge. Mann v. State, 154 Ga. App. 677, 269 S.E.2d 863 (1980).

Prior knowledge of facts of case has relevance merely as to any bias or prejudice of judge. It does not make the judge an "invisible witness" or a visible witness and provides no legal ground for the judge's disqualification. Stevenson v. Stevenson, 222 Ga. 47, 148 S.E.2d 388 (1966).

Approval of order by judge does not show bias or prejudice to prevent review. — Simply because a judge has approved the order in a case does not show bias or prejudice so as to prevent the judge from reviewing the judge's action fairly and impartially. Daniel v. Yow, 226 Ga. 544, 176 S.E.2d 67 (1970).

State of Georgia did not violate O.C.G.A. § 9-4-7 or O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 by arresting and incarcerating plaintiff for contempt after the plaintiff willfully violated a consent order enjoining the unauthorized practice of law because such claims were barred by the Eleventh Amendment in that the state had not waived sovereign immunity. Alyshah v. Georgia, No. 1:06-CV-0928-TWT, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 66546 (N.D. Ga. Sept. 1, 2006), aff'd, 230 Fed. Appx. 949 (11th Cir. Ga. 2007).

Circumstances under which judge should disqualify oneself. — Under Canon 3C(1)(a) of the Georgia Code of Judicial Conduct, a judge should disqualify oneself in a proceeding in which the judge's impartiality might reasonably be questioned, including but not limited to instances when the judge has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party or the party's lawyer; consequently, if bias or prejudice of a judge has been shown concerning a party, it is error for the judge to hear and decide the case. Savage v. Savage, 234 Ga. 853, 218 S.E.2d 568 (1975); Mann v. State, 154 Ga. App. 677, 269 S.E.2d 863 (1980).

Judicial prejudice does not arise from unfavorable rulings. — Defendant's complaints of bias and prejudice stemmed from the trial court's rulings with which the defendant did not agree, such as allowing into evidence the document defendant signed agreeing not to return to the airport and not allowing into evidence a prior judge's statements in a trial for a similar charge that resulted in an acquittal; these rulings did not show bias against the defendant simply because the rulings were favorable to the prosecution and violated neither O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 nor Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canon 3(E). Williams v. State, 257 Ga. App. 589, 571 S.E.2d 571 (2002).

Cases in Which Judge Has Served of Counsel

Case where judge "has been of counsel" means particular case being tried, and the fact that the judge has represented the party in another case will not disqualify the judge. Cox v. State, 85 Ga. App. 702, 70 S.E.2d 100 (1952).

Judge in case in which judge was consulted at bar. — Trial judge should have had no part of case concerning which the judge had been consulted while at bar. Mendenhall v. Hopper, 453 F. Supp. 977 (S.D. Ga. 1978), aff'd, 591 F.2d 1342 (5th Cir. 1979).

Earlier representation of party. — If judge participated in negotiations on plaintiff's behalf, such judge is disqualified from sitting on case to which plaintiff is a party. Smith v. Queen Ins. Co. of Am., 41 Ga. App. 587, 153 S.E. 785 (1930).

If an attorney advises a person that a certain instrument or permit or license gives the person a legal right, and afterwards a controversy arises between such person and another as to whether or not it does confer such right, and the attorney has come to the bench, the attorney cannot sit in judgment between those persons in that controversy, but is disqualified to do so by virtue of such professional relation to the former party on the subject of that controversy. Smith v. Queen Ins. Co.

No disqualification if representation not in same cause or matter. — Fact that the ordinary (now probate judge) of county of administratrix's residence had as a practicing attorney represented administratrix in the application as an individual for appointment as administratrix in another county did not disqualify the ordinary (now probate judge) to approve the new bond and to issue the certificate necessary in transferring the administration of administratrix's residence since these acts were not in the same cause or matter in which the ordinary (now probate judge) had been of counsel. Head v. Waldrup, 197 Ga. 500, 29 S.E.2d 561 (1944).

"Of counsel" disqualification not applicable. — Judge is not disqualified to preside in a given case merely because previously, as an attorney at law for one or both of the parties, the judge may have drawn the contract on which the action or defense is founded. Luke v. Batts, 11 Ga. App. 783, 76 S.E. 165 (1912); Carson v. Blair, 31 Ga. App. 60, 121 S.E. 517 (1923), cert. denied, 31 Ga. App. 811, 122 S.E. 260 (1924).

Georgia district attorney is "of counsel" in all criminal cases or matters pending in the district attorney's circuit; this includes the investigatory stages of matters preparatory to the seeking of an indictment as well as the pendency of the case. King v. State, 246 Ga. 386, 271 S.E.2d 630 (1980).

Judge who was district attorney when defendant was sentenced should not have participated in later ex parte proceedings by defendant to correct alleged clerical errors in the court's records of the judge's sentence, although the judge did not personally prosecute the defendant. Prater v. State, 222 Ga. App. 486, 474 S.E.2d 684 (1996).

Previous activities of judge would serve as grounds for disqualification. — Investigation of criminal activities in the county, including those of the defendant, conducted by the G.B.I. under authorization from the trial court judge during the judge's former tenure as district attorney was a matter in which the judge "served as a lawyer" within the meaning of Canon 3C(1)(b) of the Georgia Code of Judicial Conduct, and "in which the judge has been of counsel" within the meaning of this section. King v. State, 246 Ga. 386, 271 S.E.2d 630 (1980).

No violation if record does not show judicial officer has been "of counsel" in proceeding. — If the record did not show that the attorney who acted as the judicial officer in an appealed attachment proceeding ever acted as attorney for the appellee in any way which involved the subject matter of the appeal, there was no violation of this section. Kitson v. Hawke, 231 Ga. 157, 200 S.E.2d 703 (1973).

Judge may sit in cause or proceeding if agreement in writing. — No judge or justice of any court can sit in any cause or proceeding in which the judge has been of counsel unless the opposite party or that party's counsel agrees in writing that the judge may preside. Faulkner v. Walker, 36 Ga. App. 636, 137 S.E. 909 (1927).

Order ratifying sale based on original order when judge was counsel is voidable. East Rome Town Co. v. Cochran, 81 Ga. 359, 8 S.E. 737 (1889).

Previous Judicial Contact

Presiding at earlier criminal inquiry. — Judge of the superior court is not disqualified from presiding at the trial of an indictment merely because previously thereto the judge held a court of inquiry and bound the prisoner over. Smith v. State, 74 Ga. App. 777, 41 S.E.2d 541, cert. denied, 332 U.S. 772, 68 S. Ct. 86, 92 L. Ed. 357 (1947).

Presiding at earlier hearing on request for restraining order. — In a prosecution for family violence aggravated assault, the fact that the trial court had issued the victim a temporary restraining order (TRO) did not require the court to recuse itself sua sponte because: 1) it did not violate O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8(a)(3) since the TRO was not the subject of review at the defendant's criminal trial; and 2) there was no showing under Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canon 3(E)(1) that the trial court's "impartiality might reasonably be questioned."

Previous Judicial Contact (Cont'd)

Hargrove v. State, 299 Ga. App. 27, 681 S.E.2d 707 (2009).

Trial judge not disqualified to preside over perjury charge. — Trial judge in a charge of perjury is not disqualified for the reason that the judge presided in the trial of a case in which the alleged perjury was committed. Smith v. State, 74 Ga. App. 777, 41 S.E.2d 541, cert. denied, 332 U.S. 772, 68 S. Ct. 86, 92 L. Ed. 357 (1947).

No error in overruling motion to disqualify. — Since the only ground in a motion to disqualify a judge in a criminal trial was that the judge's decision at the interlocutory hearing would depend on the "legality and constitutionality" of the judge's own previous order, which the movant attacked, the judge did not err in overruling the motion and in declining to have another judge pass upon the case. Elder v. Camp, 193 Ga. 320, 18 S.E.2d 622 (1942).

Court properly denied the defendant's motion for an out-of-time appeal based on the defendant's contention that, four days before the defendant entered the defendant's guilty plea in 2000, the trial judge erroneously denied the defendant's motion to recuse the trial judge because the fact that the trial judge in the judge's previous capacity as district attorney prosecuted the defendant on another charge not currently pending before the judge was not, alone, a ground for disqualification and the trial judge ensured that the judge's name was redacted as district attorney from the previous indictment. Leverette v. State, 291 Ga. 834, 732 S.E.2d 255 (2012).

Trial of case if judge drew indictment. — Judge is not qualified to try a criminal case in which the judge personally drew the indictment and otherwise participated. Faulkner v. Walker, 36 Ga. App. 636, 137 S.E. 909 (1927).

Judge who is party to contract cannot determine if the contract has been completed. Mayor of Macon v. Huff, 60 Ga. 221 (1878).

Personal knowledge of facts in case. — Judge is not disqualified because judge may have personal knowledge of some facts involved in case. Atlantic & Birmingham Ry. v. Mayor of Cordele, 128 Ga. 293, 57 S.E. 493 (1907).

No disqualification if judge consulted on another matter or cause. — Judge is not disqualified to try a murder case merely because the judge was consulted as to the method of distribution of the estate before the judge's appointment. Woolfolk v. State, 85 Ga. 69, 11 S.E. 814 (1890).

Knowing waiver required to allow participation. — By requiring the consent of the parties, paragraph (a)(3) of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 requires a knowing waiver; thus, an employer did not waive the employer's right to challenge the review board's decision regarding a workers' compensation award since it was not disclosed that the administrative law judge who originally issued the award would be participating in the matter as a member of the review board. Arrow Co. v. Hall, 212 Ga. App. 365, 441 S.E.2d 794 (1994).

Denial of due process if judge fails to disqualify. — Failure by a judge to disqualify oneself which serves to deprive the defendant of an unbiased trier of fact is a denial of due process. Mendenhall v. Hopper, 453 F. Supp. 977 (S.D. Ga. 1978), aff'd, 591 F.2d 1342 (5th Cir. 1979).

Judge's former law firm's pecuniary interests in recovery as disqualification. — While the judge might not have been required to grant a motion to recuse under the circumstances in the case, it could not be concluded that by a voluntary recusal the judge acted improperly, based on the possible appearance of impropriety resulting from the judge's former law firm's pecuniary interests in recovering against defendant hospital's insurer. Head v. Brown, 259 Ga. App. 855, 578 S.E.2d 555 (2003).

Judge's prior prosecution of defendant. — Trial court did not err by denying defendant's motion for a new trial which asserted that the trial court erred since the county district attorney's office and the trial judge should have recused themselves from the case, sua sponte, as a result of a district attorney previously representing defendant on unrelated criminal charges, and the trial judge's prior prosecution of the defendant in 1994 as the evidence undisputedly showed that the defendant and defense counsel were aware of the potential conflicts at the onset of the prosecution and made deliberate, strategic decisions not to seek disqualification of either the county district attorney's office or the trial judge. Lemming v. State, 292 Ga. App. 138, 663 S.E.2d 375 (2008).

Recusal

Procedure when trial judge presented with motion to recuse. — When a trial judge in a case pending in that court is presented with a motion to recuse accompanied by an affidavit, the judge's duty will be limited to passing upon the legal sufficiency of the affidavit, and if, assuming all the facts alleged in the affidavit to be true, recusal would be warranted, then another judge must be assigned to hear the motion to recuse. State v. Fleming, 245 Ga. 700, 267 S.E.2d 207 (1980); Mann v. State, 154 Ga. App. 677, 269 S.E.2d 863 (1980); Penney v. State, 157 Ga. App. 737, 278 S.E.2d 460 (1981); Riggins v. State, 159 Ga. App. 791, 285 S.E.2d 579 (1981).

Judge did not err in failing to recuse oneself. — Trial judge did not err in refusing to recuse oneself, and in failing to refer the matter to an appropriate forum, although the defendant sued the judge in connection with this prosecution, since the defendant had shown no cause for speculation that the judge was so influenced by the filing of a lawsuit as to have infected the trial with personal bias and prejudice. Mapp v. State, 204 Ga. App. 647, 420 S.E.2d 615 (1992).

If the judge in a criminal prosecution had no knowledge during the trial of the judge's spouse's representation of the victim in a civil action against the defendant, the judge was not obligated to recuse oneself. Robertson v. State, 225 Ga. App. 389, 484 S.E.2d 18 (1997).

Juvenile court judge was not required to grant a recusal motion because of the judge's "contempt" for home schooling since the hearing transcript did not show any bias, much less contempt, but that the judge attempted to clarify the exact terms of the juvenile's probation; such did not exemplify a display of deep antagonism which made a fair trial impossible. In the Interest of A.H., 259 Ga. App. 608, 578 S.E.2d 247 (2003).

Defendant's argument on appeal that the trial judge should have been recused because the judge had previously heard the evidence during an earlier probation revocation hearing was waived because the defendant failed to make a written motion; further, there was no duty for the judge to have recused oneself sua sponte as there was no violation of a specific standard of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 or of Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canon 3(E)(1)(a), which was the only possibly applicable prohibition in that Canon, as no bias or prejudice was shown. Phillips v. State, 267 Ga. App. 733, 601 S.E.2d 147 (2004).

In a drug trafficking case, the trial judge did not err in failing to sua sponte move for recusal because the judge was the district attorney when the defendant was previously convicted of drug charges and because the judge had recently presided over the defendant's probation revocation hearing. The defendant failed to present any citations to the record showing specific conduct or remarks by the trial judge that would have supported a claim that the judge harbored a bias toward the defendant to the extent that sua sponte recusal was necessary. Brown v. State, 307 Ga. App. 99, 704 S.E.2d 227 (2010).

Trial judge's refusal to sua sponte recuse oneself after being made aware that the judge was named as a defendant in a federal lawsuit the defendant filed pro se on the same day that the defendant's criminal trial commenced was not error since the defendant failed to show any cause for speculation that the judge was so influenced by the filing of a lawsuit as to have been infected with a bias of such intensity that it prevented the defendant from obtaining a fair trial. Robinson v. State, 312 Ga. App. 736, 719 S.E.2d 601 (2011).

Trial judge did not err by failing to recuse oneself because the defendant did not move for a recusal and there was no duty for a trial judge to sua sponte recuse oneself absent a violation of a specific standard of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 or Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canon 3. Fitzpatrick v.

Recusal (Cont'd)

Judge was not related to the mother in a divorce action as it was the judge's son that was married to the mother's aunt and, thus, the judge was not required to be recused. Lacy v. Lacy, 320 Ga. App. 739, 740 S.E.2d 695 (2013).

Trial judge in a divorce case was not required to be recused because the mother's reference on a social networking website to a meeting between the judge and the mother's father did not support a conclusion that a reasonable person would have considered the judge biased and impartial in the divorce action. Lacy v. Lacy, 320 Ga. App. 739, 740 S.E.2d 695 (2013).

Trial court did not err by failing to recuse based on the trial judge's alleged extra-judicial professional contact and involvement with the county school superintendent, about whom the defendants made the false report of a crime, through the trial judge's position at a local college because the defendants cited to no evidence that the two had any actual contact or involvement, much less of the extent of such a relationship; and the defendants cited to no evidence regarding actual involvement between the trial court and the school board; thus, the defendants' allegations simply were not enough reasonably to call into question the trial judge's impartiality. Marlow v. State, 339 Ga. App. 790, 792 S.E.2d 712 (2016).

Trial judge did not err in failing to recuse based on having been previously involved in a serious automobile accident with the defendant's uncle because the defendant never filed a motion to recuse the judge despite knowing about an alleged auto accident before the trial and only waited until being tried, convicted, and sentenced to raise the issue. Shelton v. State, 350 Ga. App. 774, 830 S.E.2d 335 (2019).

Defendant could not use defendant's own misconduct, in engaging in harassing telephone calls to the judge's chambers and the judge's appropriate response thereto, as grounds to compel the judge to recuse oneself. Baptiste v. State, 229 Ga. App. 691, 494 S.E.2d 530 (1997).

Remarks which are ill-advised, but not heard by jury. — Even though judge's remarks may be ill-advised, if the remarks are not expressed before the jury that tried the case and could not have influenced the decision of the jury, no reversible error appears. Harkey v. State, 159 Ga. App. 112, 282 S.E.2d 648 (1981).

Judge has duty to deny legally insufficient motion. — It is as much the duty of a judge not to grant the motion to recuse when the motion is legally insufficient as it is to recuse when the motion is meritorious. The simple filing of an affidavit does not automatically disqualify a judge. Penney v. State, 157 Ga. App. 737, 278 S.E.2d 460 (1981).

Motion to recuse properly denied. — In a buyer's action against sellers and an executor for specific performance of land purchase agreements, the trial court did not err when the court denied the buyer's motion to recuse on the ground that the presiding judge had previously sold property to the executor because the real estate transaction that formed the basis of the motion to recuse was completed on April 12, 2004, which was well before the outbreak of the dispute in January 2007; there is no Georgia authority for the proposition that a judge previously represented by counsel in an unrelated matter must be recused from a case in which the same counsel represents a party now appearing. Simprop Acquisition Co. v. L. Simpson Charitable Remainder Unitrust, 305 Ga. App. 564, 699 S.E.2d 860 (2010).

Judge should have assigned motion to recuse to another judge. — Trial judge erred in not assigning a motion to recuse to another judge as a reasonable question about the judge's impartiality was raised by affidavits stating that: 1) the judge's nephew had represented a party in the dispute that led to the lawsuit; 2) a partner from the nephew's law firm represented that party in the litgation; and 3) the partner talked to the trial judge about the case. Mayor & Aldermen of Savannah v. Batson-Cook Co., 291 Ga. 114, 728 S.E.2d 189 (2012).

Strategic decision not to move for recusal was not ineffective assistance and did not warrant a new trial. — Defendant's ineffective assistance of counsel claim did not warrant a new trial in a prosecution for rape, kidnapping, aggravated stalking, and two counts of stalking; because of a variety of factors including the limited nature of a state witness's trial testimony, defense counsel made a strategic decision not to seek recusal of the trial judge, who was the brother of the challenged witness, and counsel discussed with the defendant the reasons for not seeking recusal. Pirkle v. State, 289 Ga. App. 450, 657 S.E.2d 560 (2008).

Motion to recuse improperly denied. — Decisions to deny a motion to recuse because the motion and affidavit did not meet the requirements of Ga. Unif. Super. Ct. R. 25.3 are reviewed de novo. Therefore, the following appellate decisions that employed the abuse of discretion standard were overruled: Moore v. State, 722 S.E.2d 160 (2012); Grant v. State, 695 S.E.2d 420 (2010); Ga. Kidney & Hypertension Spec. v. FreseniuUSA Marketing, 662 S.E.2d 245 (2008); Adams v. State, 659 S.E.2d 711 (2008); Keller v. State, 648 S.E.2d 714 (2007); Hill v. Clayton County Bd. of Commrs., 640 S.E.2d 38 (2006); and In re J.E.T., 604 S.E.2d 623 (2004). Mayor & Aldermen of Savannah v. Batson-Cook Co., 291 Ga. 114, 728 S.E.2d 189 (2012).

Sexual relationship with public defender meant judge should be recused. — Trial court properly granted five defendants a new trial because the trial judge violated both O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8 and Ga. Code Jud. Conduct Canon 3 by failing to be recused for each trial as a result of a sexual relationship between the judge and the public defender who represented either the defendants or their codefendants. State v. Wakefield, 324 Ga. App. 587, 751 S.E.2d 199 (2013).

Waiver

Disqualification of judge may be waived. — While a judge is disqualified when related to any party interested in the results of the case by consanguinity or affinity within the sixth degree, according to the civil law, whether a party to the case or not, that disqualification may be waived. Georgia Power Co. v. Watts, 184 Ga. 135, 190 S.E. 654 (1937).

Waiver may be express or implied. — Disqualification of a presiding judge on account of relationship to a party or to one of the attorneys who has a contingent fee in the case may be waived, expressly or impliedly. Shuford v. Shuford, 141 Ga. 407, 81 S.E. 115 (1914).

Waiver of disqualification of judge may be effected expressly by agreement, or impliedly by proceeding without objection with the trial of the case with knowledge of the disqualification. Georgia Power Co. v. Watts, 184 Ga. 135, 190 S.E. 654 (1937); J.B. v. State, 139 Ga. App. 545, 228 S.E.2d 712 (1976).

Disqualification is waived by failing to make point, having knowledge of disqualification, during trial. Shuford v. Shuford, 141 Ga. 407, 81 S.E. 115 (1914); Morris v. State, 18 Ga. App. 759, 90 S.E. 729 (1916).

Consent of parties. — No judge can preside in any case in which the judge is related to either party within the fourth (now sixth) degree of consanguinity or affinity, without the consent of all the parties at interest. Burch v. State, 18 Ga. App. 290, 89 S.E. 341 (1916); Dennard v. State, 46 Ga. App. 513, 168 S.E. 311 (1933).

This section expressly contemplates that disqualified judge may preside with consent of parties at interest; such disqualification may be waived, and it is not essential that the waiver be made expressly or in writing. Wood v. Clarke, 188 Ga. 697, 4 S.E.2d 659 (1939).

Written consent of the parties is necessary if the judge was formerly counsel, while a waiver based on relationship may be oral. Shope v. State, 106 Ga. 226, 32 S.E. 140 (1898).

Waiver of disqualification need not be in writing. — Provision that no ordinary (now probate judge) may preside in any case or matter when the ordinary (now probate judge) is related by affinity or consanguinity to any party interested in the result of the case within the sixth degree may be waived, and such waiver need not be in writing. Byrd v. Riggs, 211 Ga. 493, 86 S.E.2d 285 (1955).

Disqualification does not absolutely rob court of jurisdiction. — Since disqualification is a thing which may be waived, the disqualification's existence does not absolutely rob the court of jurisdiction in the particular case so that the court's action is coram non judice and may be collaterally attacked. Wood v. Clarke, 188 Ga. 697, 4 S.E.2d 659 (1939).

Judge of other circuit may act and preside in absence of waiver of disqualification. — When the judge is disqualified because of relationship "to any party interested in the result of the case or matter," the judge's disqualification may be waived by all of the parties, and in the absence of such a waiver, the judge of any other circuit, who is qualified, may act and preside for the disqualified resident judge. Howard v. Warren, 206 Ga. 838, 59 S.E.2d 503 (1950).

15-1-9.1. Requesting judicial assistance from other courts.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term:

(1) "Administrative judge" means a superior court judge or senior judge of the superior court elected within an administrative district as provided by Code Section 15-5-4.

(2) "Chief judge" means the judge most senior in time of service or, if applicable, the judge to whom the administrative duties of a court have been assigned.

(3) "Judge" includes Justices, judges, senior judges, magistrates, and every other such judicial officer of whatever name existing or created.

(4) "Part-time judge" means a judge who serves on a continuing or periodic basis but who is permitted by law to devote time to some other profession or occupation and whose compensation for that reason is less than that of a full-time judge.

(b)(1) If assistance is needed from a judge outside of the county, a superior court judge of this state or the chief judge of a class of courts other than an appellate court may make a request for judicial assistance in the court served by said requesting judge to the administrative judge of the judicial administrative district in which said requesting judge's court is located, if any of the following circumstances arises:

(A) A judge of the requesting court is disqualified for any cause from presiding in any matter pending before the court;

(B) A judge of the requesting court is unable to preside because of disability, illness, or absence;

(C) A judge of the requesting court is unable to preside because such judge is performing ordered military duty as such term is defined in Code Section 38-2-279; or

(D) A majority of the judges of the requesting court determines that the business of the court requires the temporary assistance of an additional judge or additional judges.

(2) If assistance is needed from a judge from the same county, the chief judge of any court within such county of this state may make a written request for assistance to the chief judge of any other court within such county, a senior judge of the superior court, a retired judge, or a judge emeritus of any court within the county. The request by the chief judge may be made if any of the following circumstances arises:

(A) A judge of the requesting court is disqualified for any cause from presiding in any matter pending before the court;

(B) A judge of the requesting court is unable to preside because of disability, illness, or absence;

(C) A judge of the requesting court is unable to preside because such judge is performing ordered military duty as such term is defined in Code Section 38-2-279;

(D) A majority of the judges of the requesting court determines that the business of the court requires the temporary assistance of an additional judge or additional judges; or

(E) A majority of the judges of the requesting court determines that the business of the court requires the permanent assistance of an additional judge or additional judges. If the requesting court is a state or superior court, the assisting judge or assisting judges may hear and decide matters otherwise in the exclusive jurisdiction of the state or superior court without regard to time, type of case, or limitations contained in the rules of such state or superior court; provided, however, that a chief magistrate or magistrate may serve as a permanent assisting judge only in counties having a population of 180,000 or more according to the United States decennial census of 1990 or any future such census.

(3) When a petition for habeas corpus is filed challenging for the first time state court proceedings resulting in a death sentence, the clerk of the superior court acting on behalf of the chief judge shall make a request for judicial assistance to the president of The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia. Within 30 days of receipt of a request for judicial assistance, the president of The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia shall, under guidelines promulgated by the executive committee of said council, assign the case to a judge of a circuit other than the circuit in which the conviction and sentence were imposed.

(4) In petitions under this article challenging for a second or subsequent time a state court proceeding resulting in a death sentence, the chief judge of the court where the petition is filed may make a request for judicial assistance to the president of The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia upon certifying that the business of the court will be impaired unless assistance is obtained. Within 30 days of receipt of a request for judicial assistance, the president of The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia shall, under guidelines promulgated by the executive committee of said council, assign the case to a judge of a circuit other than the circuit in which the conviction and sentence were imposed.

(c) A chief judge of a requesting court or assisting court shall be presumed to act with the consent of all judges of the court. However, if a judge of a court shall insist, all judges of that court shall vote upon whether to ratify the action taken by the chief judge under this Code section.

(d)(1) If the chief judge is unable because of disability, illness, or absence to make a request for assistance, a majority of the judges of the court may make such a request for him. If a court is served by only one judge who, himself, is unable to make a request because of disability, illness, or absence, or when the judge or judges of the court fail to procure assistance in the event of the absence, illness, disability, or disqualification of one of the judges, and it is satisfactorily made to appear to the Governor that any regular or special term of any court will not be held or continued in session because of such failure to procure assistance, the Governor shall request the administrative judge of the judicial administrative district within which district the court in need of assistance lies to assign another judge to hold the regular or special term of such court. However, no judge shall be named or assigned to hold court when the time fixed by law for holding the term of court conflicts with the holding of any regular or special term already called by him in his own court.

(2) If a vacancy shall occur in the judicial office for which the Governor has had to request assistance from the administrative judge of the judicial administrative district in a situation wherein the conditions exist as provided in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the Governor may appoint a judge of a court of record as an interim judge to fill temporarily such vacancy until the vacancy is permanently filled as provided by law.

(e) The administrative judge of the district receiving a request for assistance shall designate a judge to preside as requested. The designated judge may consent to preside in the requesting court provided he is otherwise qualified to serve as a judge in the requesting court. The qualifications of residency within a particular political or geographic subdivision of the state shall not apply to a designated judge. The designation shall be made in writing and delivered to the judge requesting assistance.

(f) The written designation shall identify the court in need of assistance, the county where located, the time period covered, the specific case or cases for which assistance is sought if applicable, and the reason that assistance is needed. The written designation shall be filed and recorded on the minutes of the clerk of the court requesting assistance. Any amendment to the designation shall be written, filed, and recorded as is the original designation.

(g) A judge rendering assistance in accordance with this Code section shall discharge all the duties and shall exercise all of the powers and authority of a judge of the court in which he is presiding.

(h) The governing authority responsible for funding the operation of the requesting court shall bear the expenses of the judge rendering assistance in accordance with this Code section, except that such judges presiding in the appellate or superior courts in accordance with this Code section shall be compensated by state funds appropriated or otherwise available for the operation of these courts.

(i) Senior judges of the superior courts, senior judges appointed pursuant to Code Section 15-1-9.3, part-time judges, and retired judges or judges emeritus of the state courts shall receive the amount of compensation and payment for expenses as provided by Code Section 15-1-9.2. All other judges rendering assistance in accordance with this Code section shall be entitled to actual travel and lodging expenses but shall not be entitled to any additional compensation for this assistance.

(j) The court reporter, support personnel, facilities, equipment, and supplies necessary to perform the duties requested shall be provided to any judge rendering assistance in accordance with this Code section by the requesting court, unless otherwise agreed.

(k) In the event that the judge requesting assistance is a superior court judge other than a chief judge, then a copy of the assignment shall also be filed with the chief judge of the court to be assisted.

(l) As an alternative to the other provisions of this Code section, any judge other than a superior court judge may, under the circumstances described in subparagraph (b)(1)(B) or (b)(1)(C) of this Code section, request judicial assistance from any other judge who is not a superior court judge and who is otherwise qualified; and the judge so requested may agree to so serve. When one judge serves in the court of another pursuant to this subsection, a written designation by the requesting judge shall be filed and recorded on the minutes in the same general manner as provided for in subsection (f) of this Code section and the provisions of subsection (h) of this Code section shall apply with respect to the payment of expenses. The provisions of this subsection are supplementary to the provisions of the other subsections of this Code section.

(m) This Code section shall be supplementary to other laws relating to the authorization of replacement judges.

(n) Notwithstanding the provisions of this Code section, a senior judge shall not be assigned, designated, or preside in any criminal case involving a capital offense for which the death penalty may be imposed once the state has filed a notice of its intention to seek the death penalty; provided, however, that a senior judge may be assigned, designated, or preside in such a case if the judge had previously been assigned or designated and presided over such case while serving as an elected superior court judge prior to attaining senior judge status.

General Consideration

Code section permits appointment without apparent limitation. — O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1 permits the mutual appointment of judges by judges to sit in every judicial office in the state without apparent limitation. Dominguez v. Enterprise Leasing Co., 197 Ga. App. 664, 399 S.E.2d 269 (1990).

Procedure on vacation of judgeship while habeas action pending. — Capital habeas corpus cases assigned to a superior court judge who vacates the judgeship while the habeas action is pending should be returned to the president of the Council of Superior Court Judges for reassignment. Potts v. Zant, 263 Ga. 634, 437 S.E.2d 325 (1993).

Judge appointed to fill vacancy created by resignation. — Judgment entered by a judge, who was appointed by the chief county magistrate judge upon a request for "assistance" made by the superior court chief judge, was not void, even though the judge was appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of a superior court judge, which vacancy should have been filled by the governor. Dominguez v. Enterprise Leasing Co., 197 Ga. App. 664, 399 S.E.2d 269 (1990).

Effect of failure to object to appointment. — If there was no objection to the appointment of a magistrate sitting as a superior court judge prior to the commencement of the trial, the issue of whether the order of appointment complied with the statute was not preserved for appeal. Bennett v. Jones, 218 Ga. App. 714, 463 S.E.2d 158 (1995); Albright v. Peterson, 247 Ga. App. 203, 539 S.E.2d 919 (2000).

Substitution of trial judge after death was proper. — Defendant failed to show any harm resulting from the substitution of the trial judge after the death of the original trial judge, and O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2)(B) permitted the substitution by necessity. Collins v. State, 326 Ga. App. 181, 756 S.E.2d 269 (2014).

Appellate review precluded. — Defendants' failure to raise defendant's O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1 claims prior to the trial precluded appellate review of issues relating to the appointment of the trial judge. Oliver v. State, 273 Ga. App. 754, 615 S.E.2d 846 (2005).

Defendant was not entitled to a new trial merely because the order appointing the senior judge under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2) was defective as that issue was raised for the first time in the new trial motion which precluded appellate review. Williams v. State, 290 Ga. App. 829, 661 S.E.2d 563 (2008).

Cited in Hornsby v. Odum, 198 Ga. App. 472, 402 S.E.2d 56 (1991); Moore v. American Suzuki Motor Corp., 203 Ga. App. 189, 416 S.E.2d 807 (1992); Hernandez v. Resolution Trust Corp., 210 Ga. App. 538, 436 S.E.2d 534 (1993); Lucas v. Lucas, 273 Ga. 240, 539 S.E.2d 807 (2000); Smith v. Guest Pond Club, Inc., 277 Ga. 143, 586 S.E.2d 623 (2003); Lewis v. McDougal, 276 Ga. 861, 583 S.E.2d 859 (2003); Fraser v. State, 283 Ga. App. 477, 642 S.E.2d 129 (2007).

Authority of Court

Authority of recused judge to select replacement. — Although a recused state court judge was without authority to select the judge's own replacement, defendants waived any objection to the appointed judge sitting as trial judge since the parties stipulated to the qualification of the specially appointed judge to preside over the trial. State v. Evans, 187 Ga. App. 649, 371 S.E.2d 432 (1988), overruled on other grounds, 268 Ga. 75, 485 S.E.2d 491 (1997).

Senior judge had authority to sign an order to conclude a matter the senior judge had earlier presided over, even though the senior judge had been authorized by the chief judge of the circuit "to preside" on four specific days prior to the date the senior judge signed the order. Morris v. Clark, 189 Ga. App. 228, 375 S.E.2d 616 (1989).

Validity of designation. — O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1 does not require that the designation of a judge be made by the chief judge of the requesting court and the fact that a designation was not filed in the court minutes until the day after commencement of a trial did not violate the authority of the designated judge such that the entire proceeding would be rendered void. Marsh v. Resolution Trust Corp., 211 Ga. App. 216, 439 S.E.2d 75 (1993).

Order designating magistrate judge to assist the Superior Court of Fulton County was valid since: (1) the order explicitly provided the length of service; (2) the order designated the scope of the magistrate judge's duties such as assisting with the routine matters that would normally appear before the presiding judge, and other matters arising therefrom; and (3) the order cloaked the magistrate judge with all the authority and powers exercised by the Fulton County Superior Court judges regularly presiding in the Atlanta Judicial Circuit. Giles v. State, 257 Ga. App. 65, 570 S.E.2d 375 (2002).

Magistrate presiding over petitioner's trial for rape and kidnapping with bodily harm was not tainted by fact that the trial court designated the magistrate to preside over the trial; the designation involved an intra-county designation and intra-county designations were not required to comply with O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(f) in order for the magistrate to validly preside over a trial. Lewis v. McDougal, 276 Ga. 861, 583 S.E.2d 859 (2003).

Georgia Supreme Court's overruling of Hicks v. State, 231 Ga. App. 552, 499 S.E.2d 341 (1998) to the extent the decision held that an intra-county designation order had to comply with O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(f), the Georgia appellate courts' rejection of the contention that the failure to file the designation on the minutes of the court prior to the commencement of the proceedings voided the proceedings, and defendant's failure to challenge the designation of the trial court to preside over defendant's trial until after the trial occurred meant that the validity of the trial court's presiding over the trial could not be reviewed on appeal, and, thus, could not be a ground for reversal. Cammer v. State, 263 Ga. App. 277, 587 S.E.2d 656 (2003).

There was no error in a magistrate presiding over the defendant's trial as O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(f) applied only when a request for magistrate judges to assist trial court judges was for a judge outside the county. Salgado v. State, 268 Ga. App. 18, 601 S.E.2d 417 (2004).

O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2) requires only that one judge of the requesting court be unable to preside over the case because the plaintiff presented no evidence to show that this requirement was not met, the judge held proper jurisdiction to preside over the plaintiff's case and was immune from the plaintiff's lawsuit. Bush v. Reeves, No. 1:05-CV-1315-TWT, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38050 (N.D. Ga. Dec. 22, 2005).

Authority of superior court judge to reconsider and revoke order of designated judge. — Superior court judge had the authority to reconsider and revoke a pretrial bond that was set by another judge who was presiding in the superior court judge's place by designation; the designated judge should not have granted the bond to the defendant after expressly finding that the defendant was likely to intimidate witnesses or otherwise interfere with the administration of justice. Rooney v. State, 217 Ga. App. 850, 459 S.E.2d 601 (1995).

Magistrate judge had authority to issue permanent restraining order. — Defendant's stalking convictions, based on violations of a permanent restraining order (PRO), were not invalid on grounds the PRO was issued by a magistrate judge, as the chief judge of superior court, as authorized by O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2), had requested magistrates to assist the superior court by hearing petitions under the Georgia Stalking Statute, O.C.G.A. § 16-5-94. Seibert v. State, 294 Ga. App. 202, 670 S.E.2d 109 (2008).

Magistrate had authority to accept guilty plea, but superior court judge could set aside sentence. — Although a magistrate who was appointed to preside at a county drug court pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2) had authority to accept a defendant's guilty plea to marijuana possession, the superior court judge had the power to set aside the sentence, which was not reduced to writing, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 17-7-93(b), and give notice of intent to impose a harsher sentence. Surh v. State, 303 Ga. App. 380, 693 S.E.2d 501, cert. denied, No. S10C1274, 2010 Ga. LEXIS 705 (Ga. 2010).

Appointment not improper. — Because defendant's claim that a trial judge was not properly appointed under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2) was first raised on a motion for new trial, the motion was thus untimely; in any event, the judge's previous appointments by separate orders to preside over other superior court matters for specified periods of time did not render the judge a de facto superior court judge in violation of the constitutional requirement that all superior court judges be elected, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. I, and thus defendant failed to establish that counsel's failure to object to the allegedly improper appointment of the judge was ineffective assistance. Moreland v. State, 279 Ga. 641, 619 S.E.2d 626 (2005).

It was proper under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2) for the chief judge of the magistrate court to appoint one of the magistrates to hear superior court cases after the chief judge of the superior court made a written request for judicial assistance. Dorsey v. State, 291 Ga. App. 706, 662 S.E.2d 800 (2008).

Duration of Appointment

Request for assistance was temporary. — Trial court erred in ruling on the constitutionality of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2)(D) as the intra-county request for judicial assistance was for temporary assistance pursuant to § 15-1-9.1(b)(2)(C) since the judicial order setting forth the request and response for judicial assistance was of limited duration and was subject to termination at any time, upon receipt of 30 days' notice from the superior, state, or juvenile court announcing that court's withdrawal. Earl v. Mills, 278 Ga. 128, 598 S.E.2d 480 (2004).

Indefinite appointment of assistant judges or district attorney. — State court judge does not have the authority to order the indefinite appointment of assistant judges or solicitors (now district attorneys) whose positions are not authorized by local law or to finance those positions through a court-created fund comprised of moneys withheld from the county treasury. Cramer v. Spalding County, 261 Ga. 570, 409 S.E.2d 30 (1991).

Order appointing judge held invalid. — Trial court correctly granted the defendant's motion to suppress evidence seized from the defendant's computer because the order appointing a visiting judge to sign the warrant for the search failed to specify either the scope or length of the assisting judge's service, violating the standards required under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(f), and rendering the warrant null. State v. Kelley, 302 Ga. App. 850, 691 S.E.2d 890 (2010).

Request for intra-county judicial assistance not permanent. — Superior, state, and juvenile courts did not take improper permanent action by renewing an order requesting intra-county judicial assistance, which made the order span two terms of court. Earl v. Mills, 278 Ga. 128, 598 S.E.2d 480 (2004).

Other

Separate court not created. — Intra-county request for judicial assistance under O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(b)(2)(C) did not create a separate court, but was a constitutionally-permitted request for intra-county judicial assistance since the request and response set out the matters to be handled by the two juvenile court judges, who had agreed to assist the superior court; accordingly, the intra-county request and response were neither an unconstitutional creation of a class of court in violation of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. I, nor an unconstitutional usurpation of legislative authority by members of the judiciary in violation of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. VII. Earl v. Mills, 278 Ga. 128, 598 S.E.2d 480 (2004).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Part-time judges of magistrate court and part-time referees of juvenile court. — Both part-time judges of the magistrate court and part-time referees of the juvenile court may be assigned to hear cases in the superior court so long as they meet the qualifications of judges of the superior court as provided in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-4. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7.

"Judge" does not include administrative law judges. — Term "judge" as used in O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(a)(3) does not include administrative law judges or other quasi-judicial officers not within the judicial branch of government. 1992 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U92-16.

Assistance to state courts by replacement probate judge. — Replacement probate judge appointed in good faith pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-9-13(a) may provide assistance to state courts so long as that individual satisfies the qualifications of judges of the state courts under O.C.G.A. § 15-7-21(a)(1), and the request for assistance complies with the terms specified by subsection (f) of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-12.

Appointment of superior court judge on retirement. — Senior superior court judge, who is not being appointed in that senior judge capacity pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1, may be appointed to serve as a part-time state-funded juvenile court judge and, so long as the hours worked annually do not exceed 1040 hours, there is no effect on the senior judge's retirement. 2000 Op. Atty. Gen. No. U2000-9.

Authority to set and amend bonds. — Once the clerk of the superior court properly files an indictment or once a valid accusation is entered, the superior court has exclusive jurisdiction over the case, including all bond issues, unless the court invokes the court's authority to delegate jurisdiction to the magistrate court under subsection (e) of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1 or O.C.G.A. § 17-6-1. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 97-19.

15-1-9.2. Senior judge of superior courts.

(a) The office of senior judge of the superior courts is created, and judges of the superior courts or former judges of the superior courts may become senior judges as follows:

(1) Any judge of the superior courts who retires pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 8 or Chapter 23 of Title 47 and any such judge who receives a disability retirement benefit under such chapter may become a senior judge beginning on the effective date of the judge's retirement; and

(2) Any judge of the superior courts, whether or not said judge is a member of the retirement system created by Chapter 23 of Title 47, who ceases holding office as a judge of the superior courts and who has at least ten years of service as a judge of the superior courts at the time of ceasing to hold office and who is not eligible for appointment to the office of senior judge under any other law of this state may become a senior judge.

(a.1) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section, any Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia, Judge of the Court of Appeals, superior court judge, state court judge, magistrate court judge, or juvenile court judge who ceases holding office as a judge and who has a total of ten years of service in any combination of such offices or a total of nine years of service in any combination of such offices plus at least one year of service as chairperson of the State Board of Workers' Compensation may become a senior judge. Said combination must include at least five years' service as a Justice of the Supreme Court, Judge of the Court of Appeals, or judge of the superior court or at least five years as total served in combination as Justice of the Supreme Court, Judge of the Court of Appeals, or judge of the superior court.

(a.2) Senior judge status as provided in this Code section shall be acquired by a qualified former judge's applying to the Governor for appointment as senior judge. The Governor shall appoint each qualified applicant as a senior judge.

(b) The chief judge of any appellate or superior court of this state may make a written request for assistance to a senior judge. The request by the chief judge may be made if one of the following circumstances arise:

(1) A judge of the requesting court is disqualified for any cause from presiding in any matter pending before the court;

(2) A judge of the requesting court is unable to preside because of disability, illness, or absence; or

(3) A majority of the judges of the requesting court determines that the business of the court requires the temporary assistance of an additional judge or additional judges as provided for in Code Section 15-1-9.1.

(c) An active judge may call upon a senior judge to serve in an emergency or when the volume of cases or other unusual circumstances cause such service to be necessary in order to provide for the speedy and efficient disposition of the business of the circuit.

(d)(1) Senior judges serving as judges of an appellate or superior court under this Code section or any other provision of law shall receive compensation from state funds for each day of service, in the amount of the annual state salary of a judge of the applicable court, divided by 235. In addition to such compensation, such senior judges shall receive their actual expenses or, at the judge's option, in the event of service outside the county of the judge's residence, the same per diem expense authorized by law for members of the General Assembly and shall receive mileage at the same rate as other state employees for such services. Such compensation, expenses, and mileage shall be paid from state funds appropriated or otherwise available for the operation of the appellate or superior courts, upon a certificate by the senior judge as to the number of days served or the expenses and mileage. Such compensation shall not affect, diminish, or otherwise impair the payment or receipt of any retirement or pension benefits, when applicable, of such judge.

(2) Senior judges serving as judges of any court other than an appellate or superior court under this Code section or any other provision of law shall receive compensation for each day of service, in the amount of the annual salary of a judge of the applicable court, divided by 235. In addition to such compensation, such senior judges shall receive their actual expenses or, at the judge's option, in the event of service outside the county of the judge's residence, the same per diem expense authorized by law for members of the General Assembly and shall receive mileage at the same rate as state employees for such services. Such compensation, expenses, and mileage shall be paid from funds appropriated or otherwise available for the operation of the applicable court, upon a certificate by the senior judge as to the number of days served or the expenses and mileage. Such compensation shall not affect, diminish, or otherwise impair the payment or receipt of any retirement or pension benefits, when applicable, of such judge.

(e) Notwithstanding the provisions of this Code section, a senior judge shall not be assigned, designated, or preside in any criminal case involving a capital offense for which the death penalty may be imposed once the state has filed a notice of its intention to seek the death penalty; provided, however, that a senior judge may be assigned, designated, or preside in such a case if the judge had previously been assigned or designated and presided over such case while serving as an elected superior court judge prior to attaining senior judge status.

Code Commission notes. — In 1998, Ga. L. 1998, p. 513, § 3 and Ga. L. 1998, p. 1666, § 1 both amended subsection (d). Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, subsection (d) is set out as amended by Ga. L. 1998, p. 1666, § 1.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — Even though the position of senior judge is not an elected position, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. III, allows a senior judge to exercise judicial power in the superior courts when the assistance of a senior judge is necessary. O.C.G.A. §§ 15-1-9.2 and 47-8-61 are simply the statutory enactments pursuant to the constitution. Smith v. Langford, 271 Ga. 221, 518 S.E.2d 884 (1999).

There is no merit to the argument that the authorization for the service of senior judges conflicts with Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. I, vesting judicial power in designated courts, because creation of the position of senior judge does not establish a separate judicial forum. Smith v. Langford, 271 Ga. 221, 518 S.E.2d 884 (1999).

Waiver of challenge to senior judge. — Defendant's claim that defendant's conviction was void because the senior judge who presided over the trial was not properly appointed pursuant to the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.2 had to be rejected as defendant's claim that the appointment was not properly made was waived by defendant's failure to raise the claim until defendant filed defendant's motion for a new trial. Hurst v. State, 260 Ga. App. 708, 580 S.E.2d 666 (2003).

Claim of insufficiency of judicial appointment untimely. — Defendant's claim that defendant's convictions were void because the order appointing the senior judge who presided over defendant's trial was insufficient under O.C.G.A § 15-1-9.2(b) was not asserted until the motion for new trial and was therefore untimely. Strozier v. State, 277 Ga. 78, 586 S.E.2d 309 (2003).

15-1-9.3. Senior judge of state court, probate court, or juvenile court; capital cases.

(a)(1) Any state court judge or juvenile court judge who retires pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 23 of Title 47 after having served for ten or more years in any combination of service as a judge of a state court or juvenile court may be appointed a senior judge of the type of court from which the judge retired.

(2) Any state court or juvenile court judge, whether or not said judge is a member of the retirement fund created by Chapter 23 of Title 47, who ceases holding office as a judge and who has at least ten years in any combination of service as judge of a state court or juvenile court at the time of ceasing to hold office and who is not eligible for appointment to the office of senior judge under any other law of this state may be appointed as a senior judge as provided in this Code section.

(3) No judge of a state court or juvenile court who retires because of disability pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 23 of Title 47 shall be eligible for appointment as a senior judge pursuant to the provisions of this Code section.

(4) In this paragraph, "probate court" has the same meaning as set out in paragraph (2) of Code Section 15-9-120. Any judge of the probate court who ceases holding office as a judge of the probate court after serving as such for at least ten years and who has not been appointed to the office of senior judge under any other law of this state may be appointed as a senior judge as provided in this Code section.

(b) Upon becoming eligible for appointment pursuant to the provisions of this Code section, a judge who ceases to hold office may become a senior judge and in that capacity may be called upon to serve as a justice or judge in any court of this state.

(c) Senior judge status shall be acquired by a qualified former judge's applying to the Governor for appointment as senior judge. The Governor shall appoint each qualified applicant as a senior judge.

(d) The judge of any court of this state may make a written request for assistance to a senior judge. The request by the judge may be made if one of the following circumstances arise:

(1) A judge of the requesting court is disqualified for any cause from presiding in any matter pending before the court;

(2) A judge of the requesting court is unable to preside because of disability, illness, or absence; or

(3) A majority of the judges of the requesting court determines that the business of the court requires the temporary assistance of an additional judge or additional judges as provided for in Code Section 15-1-9.1.

(e) An active judge may call upon a senior judge to serve in an emergency or when the volume of cases or other unusual circumstances cause such service to be necessary in order to provide for the timely and efficient disposition of the business of the court.

(f) A senior judge shall receive compensation and expenses as provided in subsection (d) of Code Section 15-1-9.2.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of this Code section, a senior judge shall not be assigned, designated, or preside in any criminal case involving a capital offense for which the death penalty may be imposed once the state has filed a notice of its intention to seek the death penalty; provided, however, that a senior judge may be assigned, designated, or preside in such a case if the judge had previously been assigned or designated and presided over such case while serving as an elected superior court judge prior to attaining senior judge status.

15-1-10. Removal of court records; storage.

(a) No records or papers of any court shall be removed out of the county, except in cases of invasion whereby the same may be endangered, by order of the court, or as otherwise provided in this Code section.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Code section, such records may be stored in accordance with the provisions of subsection (b) of Code Section 15-6-86 or subsection (c) of this Code section.

(c) With the prior written consent of the governing authority of the county or municipality and the prior written consent of the chief judge, judge of the probate court, or chief magistrate of the affected court, the clerk of each superior court, state court, probate court, magistrate court, juvenile court, or municipal court in this state is authorized, but not required, to create and maintain digital copies of records, pleadings, orders, writs, process, and other documents submitted to or issued by the court in criminal, quasi-criminal, juvenile, or civil proceedings or in any proceedings involving the enforcement of ordinances of local governments. All digital copies created pursuant to this subsection shall be accurate copies of the original documents and shall be stored and indexed in such manner as to be readily retrievable in the office of the clerk during normal business hours. It shall be the duty of the clerk to provide and maintain software and computers, readers, printers, and other necessary equipment in sufficient numbers to permit the retrieval, duplication, and printing of such digitally stored documents in a timely fashion when copies are requested. A copy of such digitally stored document retrieved by the clerk shall be admissible in all courts in the same manner as the original document. If a backup copy is created pursuant to the process prescribed by subsections (b) and (c) of Code Section 15-6-62, the clerk is authorized to destroy the original document. This subsection shall not apply to documents or records which have been ordered sealed by the court nor to documents which are placed in evidence in a proceeding. The costs of creating and storing digital copies of documents and providing the necessary software and equipment to retrieve and reproduce such documents shall be paid from funds available for the operation of the court. The provisions of this subsection shall constitute an additional and alternative method of records management and shall not supersede or repeal Code Section 15-6-62, 15-6-62.1, 15-6-86, or 15-6-87.

15-1-10.1. Standards in determining grant of requests for televising, videotaping, or motion picture filming of judicial proceedings.

(a) It is declared to be the purpose and intent of the General Assembly that certain standards be considered by the courts in determining whether to grant requests for the televising, videotaping, or motion picture filming of judicial proceedings. Such standards are intended to provide an evaluation of the impact on the public interest and the rights of the parties in open judicial proceedings, the impact upon the integrity and dignity of the court, and whether the proposed activity would contribute to the enhancement of or detract from the ends of justice.

(b) In considering a request for the televising, videotaping, or motion picture filming of judicial proceedings, the court shall consider the following factors in determining whether to grant such request:

(1) The nature of the particular proceeding at issue;

(2) The consent or objection of the parties or witnesses whose testimony will be presented in the proceedings;

(3) Whether the proposed coverage will promote increased public access to the courts and openness of judicial proceedings;

(4) The impact upon the integrity and dignity of the court;

(5) The impact upon the administration of the court;

(6) The impact upon due process and the truth finding function of the judicial proceeding;

(7) Whether the proposed coverage would contribute to the enhancement of or detract from the ends of justice;

(8) Any special circumstances of the parties, victims, witnesses, or other participants such as the need to protect children or factors involving the safety of participants in the judicial proceeding; and

(9) Any other factors which the court may determine to be important under the circumstances of the case.

(c) The court may hear from the parties, witnesses, or other interested persons and from the person or entity requesting coverage during the court's consideration of the factors set forth in this Code section.

(d) This Code section shall not apply to the use of electronic or photographic means for the presentation of evidence or the perpetuation of a record.

(e) The court in its discretion may grant requests made under this Code section for all or portions of judicial proceedings.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Discretion of court. — Decision whether electronic media will be allowed in the courtroom is not governed by the principle that there must be "clear and convincing proof" that closure is necessary to prevent a "clear and present danger" to the right of a fair trial, rather, the decision is a question for the trial court's discretion. WALB-TV, Inc. v. Gibson, 269 Ga. 564, 501 S.E.2d 821 (1998).

In ruling on a request for electronic and photographic coverage of judicial proceedings, a trial court should bear in mind Georgia's policy favoring open judicial proceedings, and, although the decision whether to allow electronic and photographic coverage of a trial is within the discretion of the trial court, if a trial court denies such coverage, there must be a factual basis in the record that supports the denial. Morris Communs., LLC v. Griffin, 279 Ga. 735, 620 S.E.2d 800 (2005).

Although O.C.G.A. § 15-1-10.1(b)(2) permits a trial court to consider the objection of the parties or witnesses whose testimony will be presented in the proceedings, when considering a request for electronic media coverage of a trial, a party's objection must set forth an adequate ground for denying the request and the record must contain some factual basis supporting that ground. Morris Communs., LLC v. Griffin, 279 Ga. 735, 620 S.E.2d 800 (2005).

Despite finding that the presence of cameras in the courtroom during a pending criminal trial would be harmful to the rights of the defendant, the state, and the potential jurors, given the small and limited space in the courtroom, because the superior court failed to provide a factual basis for denying a newspaper's request to record those proceedings, the court abused the court's discretion, warranting reversal of the denial. Savannah Morning News v. Jeffcoat, 280 Ga. App. 634, 634 S.E.2d 830 (2006).

Trial court erred in excluding a camera and denying a purported student's request to make video recordings of the criminal calendar proceedings because the trial court erred in the court's application of O.C.G.A. § 15-1-10.1 and did not properly consider the factors set forth therein. McLaurin v. Ott, 327 Ga. App. 488, 759 S.E.2d 567 (2014).

Consent of parties or witnesses. — Consent of the parties is not a prerequisite to the trial court's decision with regard to the televising of proceedings; O.C.G.A. § 15-1-10.1(b)(2) provides that the consent or objection of the parties or witnesses is but one factor for the trial court to consider in making the court's discretionary determination. Smith v. Gwinnett County, 270 Ga. 424, 510 S.E.2d 525, cert. denied, 527 U.S. 1003, 119 S. Ct. 2338, 144 L. Ed. 2d 236 (1999).

Findings sufficient to support denial of coverage. — Because the murder trials of two defendants were to be conducted separately, denial of coverage of the first trial was justified based on findings that due process rights would be jeopardized because testimony at the first trial would be similar to that introduced at the later trial and could create a tainted jury pool for the second trial. WALB-TV, Inc. v. Gibson, 269 Ga. 564, 501 S.E.2d 821 (1998).

O.C.G.A. § 15-1-10.1 does not specifically list jurors' desire for privacy as a factor to be considered in ruling on a request for photographic and electronic coverage of a trial, but it does authorize a trial court to consider any special circumstances of the participants in the proceedings, including concerns regarding the safety of the participants, and to consider any other factors which the court may determine to be important under the circumstances of the case. Morris Communs., LLC v. Griffin, 279 Ga. 735, 620 S.E.2d 800 (2005).

Findings insufficient to support denial of coverage. — Since the murder trials of two defendants were to be conducted separately, denial of coverage of the second trial was not justified based on due process concerns and the distraction posed by the camera's presence. WALB-TV, Inc. v. Gibson, 269 Ga. 564, 501 S.E.2d 821 (1998).

When a newspaper moved for still camera coverage of a murder trial, it was error, under Ga. Unif. Super. Ct. R. 22 and O.C.G.A. § 15-1-10.1, to deny the motion because no facts supported the trial court's findings that the motion should be denied because: (1) defendant objected, and to insure due process and a fair trial; (2) jurors wanted to protect their privacy; (3) a camera would not increase the openness of the proceedings; and (4) a camera would impact on the court's administration and detract from the ends of justice, given the courtroom's small size. Morris Communs., LLC v. Griffin, 279 Ga. 735, 620 S.E.2d 800 (2005).

Cameras allowed in courtroom. — Although the defendant's allegations that the defendant was harassed and abused by officers at the jail where the defendant was held were troubling if true, the defendant failed to demonstrate how such actions, which (even if true) occurred outside the courtroom, impacted upon the due process and the truth-finding function of the judicial proceedings; thus, the trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in allowing cameras in the courtroom. Roberts v. State, 344 Ga. App. 324, 810 S.E.2d 169 (2018).

15-1-11. Attendance of judges and court personnel at educational programs.

(a) Judges of the courts of this state, the clerks thereof, and the prosecuting officials and public defenders, both full-time and part-time, attached thereto are authorized to attend institutes, seminars, conferences, and other programs of an educational nature in order to become better informed and better qualified relative to the duties of their offices and the more effective administration thereof.

(b) The expense incurred in connection with the attendance at such institutes, seminars, conferences, and other programs shall be a proper expenditure of public funds. Any such person, prior to attendance at any of the above, must obtain approval therefor from the governing authority of any county or municipality located in whole or in part within the jurisdiction of the court to which the applicant is attached. When approval has been received, the expense of attendance shall be paid out of the public funds of such county or municipality or out of the funds provided for the operation of the court involved, upon the proper itemized expense voucher's being submitted.

(c) This Code section shall be cumulative of other provisions of law and shall not be construed as repealing, restricting, or limiting alternative provisions for accomplishing the same purpose.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Legislature intended for governing authority to bear expense. — Legislature, in granting to counties and municipalities sole authority to approve such attendance, intended for the approving county or municipal authority to bear the expense incurred in connection with such attendance; the judge should seek reimbursement from the governing authority which approved the judge's attendance. 1969 Op. L. 1978, p. 894. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-14.

15-1-12. Compensation of probate court judges and superior court clerks for certain services.

(a) The judges of the probate court who by law are vested with the management of the county business and for whom no compensation is provided and the clerks of the superior courts, for public services in relation to which no compensation is provided by law, shall be compensated in accordance with this Code section.

(b) Such officers shall state their respective claims in writing and make an affidavit to the correctness and justice thereof. After the services are rendered, the claims so made out and verified shall be submitted to the grand juries of their respective counties at any regular term at which a grand jury is impaneled, provided that, if the statement is not submitted at that term or at the next succeeding term at which a grand jury is impaneled, such claim for services shall be barred. The grand juries may in their discretion require other proof of the justness and correctness of such claims and, when satisfied that the claims are just and correct, may allow the sum claimed or so much thereof as they may deem right and proper. When allowed, the judge of the probate court of the county or other authority levying county taxes shall assess so much with the other county taxes as will pay the same, which, when collected and paid over to the county treasurer of such county, shall be paid to the parties without further order, he taking a proper receipt therefor.

(c) The compensation provided for in this Code section shall be in full compensation of such officers for such services.

Compensation not charge on county funds. — This section requires the imposition of a tax to pay claims for extra compensation and does not render them a charge upon the general funds of the county. Lumpkin County v. Williams, 94 Ga. 657, 21 S.E. 849 (1894).

Local law not in conflict. — Local Act of February 21, 1873, imposing upon the Board of County Commissioners of Franklin County the duty "to audit and allow all claims against the county for extra service rendered by any county officer," was not repealed by the general Act of 1881 contained in this section. Franklin County v. Crow, 128 Ga. 458, 57 S.E. 784 (1907).

Claim must be for public services. — If it does not appear that claims are for public services, the claims will not be allowed. Greer v. Turner County, 138 Ga. 558, 75 S.E. 578 (1912).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Compensation of probate judge if no appropriation made. — Ordinary (now probate judge) was not authorized to assess the costs incurred in examining the nomination petition against the candidate submitting the petition; if no appropriations are made to cover such expenses, the ordinary (now probate judge) may be compensated for the ordinary's (now probate judge) services pursuant to the method prescribed in this section. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-233.

Payment of sheriff for attending and assisting with inquest. — If there was no law which authorizes the payment or fixed the fee for a sheriff attending and assisting in the holding of an inquest, the sheriff could be paid under this section. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 99.

Sheriff and justice of peace (now magistrate) are entitled to certain fees in criminal cases whether or not cases are nolle prossed. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 126.

15-1-15. Drug court divisions.

(a)(1) Any court that has jurisdiction over any criminal case which arises from the use, sale, possession, delivery, distribution, purchase, or manufacture of a controlled substance, noncontrolled substance, dangerous drug, or other drug may establish a drug court division to provide an alternative to the traditional judicial system for disposition of such cases.

(2) In any case which arises from the use, addiction, dependency, sale, possession, delivery, distribution, purchase, or manufacture of a controlled substance, noncontrolled substance, dangerous drug, or other drug or is ancillary to such conduct and the defendant meets the eligibility criteria for the drug court division, the court may assign the case to the drug court division:

(A) Prior to the entry of the sentence, if the prosecuting attorney consents;

(B) As part of a sentence in a case; or

(C) Upon consideration of a petition to revoke probation.

(3) Each drug court division shall establish a planning group to develop a work plan. The planning group shall include the judges, prosecuting attorneys, public defenders, community supervision officers, and persons having expertise in the field of substance abuse. The work plan shall address the operational, coordination, resource, information management, and evaluation needs of the drug court division. The work plan shall include drug court division policies and practices related to implementing the standards and practices developed pursuant to paragraph (4) of this subsection. The work plan shall ensure a risk and needs assessment is used to identify the likelihood of recidivating and identify the needs that, when met, reduce recidivism. The work plan shall ensure that drug court division eligibility shall be focused on moderate-risk and high-risk offenders as determined by a risk and needs assessment. The drug court division shall combine judicial supervision, treatment of drug court division participants, and drug testing.

(4)(A) The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall establish standards and practices for drug court divisions taking into consideration guidelines and principles based on current research and findings published by the National Drug Court Institute and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, relating to practices shown to reduce recidivism of offenders with drug abuse problems. Standards and practices shall include, but shall not be limited to, the use of a risk and needs assessment to identify the likelihood of recidivating and identify the needs that, when met, reduce recidivism. The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall update its standards and practices to incorporate research, findings, and developments in the drug court field. Each drug court division shall adopt policies and practices that are consistent with the standards and practices published by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia.

(B) The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall provide technical assistance to drug court divisions to assist them with the implementation of policies and practices, including, but not limited to, guidance on the implementation of risk and needs assessments in drug court divisions.

(C) The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall create and manage a certification and peer review process to ensure drug court divisions are adhering to the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia's standards and practices and shall create a waiver process for drug court divisions to seek an exception to the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia's standards and practices. In order to receive state appropriated funds, any drug court division established on and after July 1, 2013, shall be certified pursuant to this subparagraph or, for good cause shown to the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia, shall receive a waiver from the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia.

(D) On and after July 1, 2013, the award of any state funds for a drug court division shall be conditioned upon a drug court division attaining certification or a waiver by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia. On or before September 1, the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall publish an annual report listing certified drug court divisions.

(E) The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia and the Georgia Council on Criminal Justice Reform shall develop and manage an electronic information system for performance measurement and accept submission of performance data in a consistent format from all drug court divisions. The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall identify elements necessary for performance measurement, including, but not limited to, recidivism, the number of moderate-risk and high-risk participants in a drug court division, drug testing results, drug testing failures, participant employment, the number of participants who successfully complete the program, and the number of participants who fail to complete the program.

(F) On or before July 1, 2015, and every three years thereafter, the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall conduct a performance peer review of the drug court divisions for the purpose of improving drug court division policies and practices and the certification and recertification process.

(5) The court instituting the drug court division may request the prosecuting attorney for the jurisdiction to designate one or more prosecuting attorneys to serve in the drug court division and may request the public defender, if any, to designate one or more assistant public defenders to serve in the drug court division.

(6) The clerk of the court instituting the drug court division or such clerk's designee shall serve as the clerk of the drug court division.

(7) The court instituting the drug court division may request community supervision officers and other employees of the court to perform duties for the drug court division. Such employees shall perform duties as directed by the judges of the drug court division.

(8) The court instituting the drug court division may enter into agreements with other courts and agencies for the assignment of personnel from other courts and agencies to the drug court division.

(9) Expenses for salaries, equipment, services, and supplies incurred in implementing this Code section may be paid from state funds, funds of the county or political subdivision implementing such drug court division, federal grant funds, and funds from private donations.

(10) As used in this Code section, the term "risk and needs assessment" means an actuarial tool, approved by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia and validated on a targeted population, scientifically proven to determine a person's risk to recidivate and to identify criminal risk factors that, when properly addressed, can reduce that person's likelihood of committing future criminal behavior.

(b)(1) Each drug court division shall establish criteria which define the successful completion of the drug court division program.

(2) If the drug court division participant successfully completes the drug court division program prior to the entry of judgment, the case against the drug court division participant may be dismissed by the prosecuting attorney.

(3) If the drug court division participant successfully completes the drug court division program as part of a sentence imposed by the court, the sentence of the drug court division participant may be reduced or modified.

(4) Any plea of guilty or nolo contendere entered pursuant to this Code section may not be withdrawn without the consent of the court.

(c) Any statement made by a drug court division participant as part of participation in such court, or any report made by the staff of the court or program connected to the court, regarding a participant's substance usage shall not be admissible as evidence against the participant in any legal proceeding or prosecution; provided, however, if the participant violates the conditions of his or her participation in the program or is terminated from the drug court division, the reasons for the violation or termination may be considered in sanctioning, sentencing, or otherwise disposing of the participant's case.

(d) Nothing contained in this Code section shall be construed to permit a judge to impose, modify, or reduce a sentence below the minimum sentence required by law.

(e) Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, drug court division staff shall be provided, upon request, with access to all records relevant to the treatment of the drug court division participant from any state or local government agency. All such records and the contents thereof shall be treated as confidential, shall not be disclosed to any person outside of the drug court division, and shall not be subject to Article 4 of Chapter 18 of Title 50, relating to open records, or subject to subpoena, discovery, or introduction into evidence in any civil or criminal proceeding. Such records and the contents thereof shall be maintained by the drug court division and originating court in a confidential file not available to the public.

(f) Any fees received by a drug court division from a drug court division participant as payment for substance abuse treatment and services shall not be considered as court costs or a fine.

(g) The court may have the authority to accept grants and donations and other proceeds from outside sources for the purpose of supporting the drug court division. Any such grants, donations, or proceeds shall be retained by the drug court division for expenses.

15-1-16. Mental health court divisions.

(a) As used in this Code section, the term:

(1) "Developmental disability" shall have the same meaning as set forth in Code Section 37-1-1.

(2) "Mental illness" shall have the same meaning as set forth in Code Section 37-1-1.

(3) "Risk and needs assessment" means an actuarial tool, approved by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia and validated on a targeted population, scientifically proven to determine a person's risk to recidivate and to identify criminal risk factors that, when properly addressed, can reduce that person's likelihood of committing future criminal behavior.

(b)(1) To achieve a reduction in recidivism and symptoms of mental illness among mentally ill offenders in criminal cases and to increase their likelihood of successful rehabilitation through early, continuous, and intense judicially supervised treatment, any court that has jurisdiction over a criminal case in which a defendant has a mental illness or developmental disability, or a co-occurring mental illness and substance abuse disorder, may establish a mental health court division to provide an alternative to the traditional judicial system for disposition of such cases. A mental health court division will bring together mental health professionals, local social programs, and intensive judicial monitoring.

(2) In any criminal case in which a defendant suffers from a mental illness or developmental disability, or a co-occurring mental illness and substance abuse disorder, and the defendant meets the eligibility criteria for the mental health court division, the court may refer the case to the mental health court division:

(A) Prior to the entry of the sentence, if the prosecuting attorney consents;

(B) As part of a sentence in a case; or

Defendants charged with murder, murder in the second degree, armed robbery, rape, aggravated sodomy, aggravated sexual battery, aggravated child molestation, or child molestation shall not be eligible for entry into the mental health court division, except in the case of a separate court supervised reentry program designed to more closely monitor mentally ill offenders returning to the community after having served a term of incarceration. Any such court supervised community reentry program for mentally ill offenders shall be subject to the work plan as provided for in this paragraph.

(4)(A) The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall establish standards and practices for mental health court divisions taking into consideration guidelines and principles based on current research and findings published by expert organizations, including, but not limited to, the United States Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, the Council of State Governments Consensus Project, and the National GAINS Center, relating to practices shown to reduce recidivism of offenders with mental illness or developmental disabilities. Standards and practices shall include, but shall not be limited to, the use of a risk and needs assessment to identify the likelihood of recidivating and identify the needs that, when met, reduce recidivism. In order to receive state appropriated funds, any mental health court division established on and after July 1, 2013, shall be certified pursuant to this subparagraph or, for good cause shown to the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia, shall receive a waiver from the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia.

(D) On and after July 1, 2013, the award of any state funds for a mental health court division shall be conditioned upon a mental health court division attaining certification or a waiver by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia. On or before September 1, the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall publish an annual report listing certified mental health court divisions.

(E) Pursuant to Code Section 15-5-24, the Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop and manage an electronic information system for performance measurement and accept submission of performance data in a consistent format from all mental health court divisions. (9) Expenses for salaries, equipment, services, and supplies incurred in implementing this Code section may be paid from state funds, funds of the county or political subdivision implementing such mental health court division, federal grant funds, and funds from private donations.

(c)(1) Each mental health court division shall establish written criteria that define the successful completion of the mental health court division program.

(2) If the mental health court division participant successfully completes the mental health court division program prior to the entry of judgment, the case against the mental health court division participant may be dismissed by the prosecuting attorney.

(3) If the mental health court division participant successfully completes the mental health court division program as part of a sentence imposed by the court, the sentence of the mental health court division participant may be reduced or modified.

(4) Any plea of guilty or nolo contendere entered pursuant to this Code section shall not be withdrawn without the consent of the court.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2014, p. 79, § 1/SB 320, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "The General Assembly recognizes that veterans have provided and continue to provide an invaluable service to our country and this state. In connection with a veteran's service, some servicemen and servicewomen have incurred physical, emotional, or mental impairments which cause or contribute to behaviors that may draw a veteran into the criminal justice system. The General Assembly has determined that having dedicated veterans court divisions is important to address the specialized treatment needs of veterans and that there are resources, services, and treatment options that are unique to veterans that may best facilitate a veteran's reentry into society."

(a)(1) As used in this subsection, the term "risk and needs assessment" means an actuarial tool, approved by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia and validated on a targeted population, scientifically proven to determine an individual's risk to recidivate and to identify criminal risk factors that, when properly addressed, can reduce such individual's likelihood of committing future criminal behavior.

(2) Any superior, state, or juvenile court that has jurisdiction over a violation of Code Section 40-6-391 or 52-7-12 may establish an operating under the influence court division to provide an alternative to the traditional judicial system for disposition of such cases.

(3) In any case which arises from a violation of Code Section 40-6-391 or 52-7-12 or is ancillary to such conduct and the defendant meets the eligibility criteria for the operating under the influence court division, the court may assign the case to the operating under the influence court division:

(A) Prior to the entry of the sentence, if the prosecuting attorney consents;

(B) As part of a sentence in a case; or

(C) Upon consideration of a petition to revoke probation.

(4) Each operating under the influence court division shall establish a planning group to develop a work plan. The planning group shall include the judges, prosecuting attorneys, public defenders, community supervision officers, probation officers serving pursuant to Article 6 of Chapter 8 of Title 42, and persons having expertise in the field of substance abuse. The work plan shall address the operational, coordination, resource, information management, and evaluation needs of the operating under the influence court division. The work plan shall include operating under the influence court division policies and practices related to implementing the standards and practices developed pursuant to paragraph (5) of this subsection. The work plan shall ensure a risk and needs assessment is used to identify the likelihood of recidivating and identify the needs that, when met, reduce recidivism. The work plan also shall ensure that operating under the influence court division eligibility shall be focused on moderate-risk and high-risk offenders as determined by a risk and needs assessment. The operating under the influence court division shall combine judicial supervision, treatment of operating under the influence court division participants, and drug testing.

(5)(A) The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall establish standards and practices for operating under the influence court divisions, taking into consideration guidelines and principles based on current research and findings that are published by the National Drug Court Institute, the National Center for DWI Courts, and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and related to practices shown to reduce recidivism of offenders with alcohol or drug abuse problems. Standards and practices shall include, but shall not be limited to, the use of a risk and needs assessment to identify the likelihood of recidivating and identify the needs that, when met, reduce recidivism. The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall update its standards and practices to incorporate research, findings, and developments in the operating under the influence court field. Each operating under the influence court division shall adopt policies and practices that are consistent with the standards and practices published by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia.

(D) On and after July 1, 2017, the award of any state funds for an operating under the influence court division shall be conditioned upon an operating under the influence court division attaining certification or a waiver by the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia. On or before September 1, the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall publish an annual report listing certified operating under the influence court divisions.

(E) The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall develop and manage an electronic information system for performance measurement and accept submission of performance data in a consistent format from all operating under the influence court divisions. The Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall identify elements necessary for performance measurement, including, but not limited to, recidivism, the number of moderate-risk and high-risk participants in an operating under the influence court division, drug testing results, drug testing failures, participant employment, the number of participants who successfully complete the program, and the number of participants who fail to complete the program.

(F) On or before July 1, 2017, and every three years thereafter, the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia shall conduct a performance peer review of the operating under the influence court divisions for the purpose of improving operating under the influence court division policies and practices and the certification and recertification process.

(6) A court instituting the operating under the influence court division may request the prosecuting attorney for the jurisdiction to designate one or more prosecuting attorneys to serve in the operating under the influence court division and may request the public defender, if any, to designate one or more assistant public defenders to serve in the operating under the influence court division.

(7) The clerk of court for the court that is instituting the operating under the influence court division or such clerk's designee shall serve as the clerk of the operating under the influence court division.

(8) The court instituting the operating under the influence court division may request community supervision officers, probation officers serving pursuant to Article 6 of Chapter 8 of Title 42, and other employees of the court to perform duties for the operating under the influence court division. Such individuals shall perform duties as directed by the judges of the operating under the influence court division.

(9) The court instituting the operating under the influence court division may enter into agreements with other courts, agencies, and private corporations, private enterprises, private agencies, or private entities providing services pursuant to Article 6 of Chapter 8 of Title 42 for the assignment of personnel from such other entities to the operating under the influence court division.

(10) Expenses for salaries, equipment, services, and supplies incurred in implementing this Code section may be paid from state funds, funds of the county or political subdivision implementing such operating under the influence court division, federal grant funds, and funds from private donations.

(d) Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, operating under the influence court division staff shall be provided, upon request, with access to all records relevant to the treatment of the operating under the influence court division participant from any state or local government agency. All such records and the contents thereof shall be treated as confidential, shall not be disclosed to any person outside of the operating under the influence court division, and shall not be subject to Article 4 of Chapter 18 of Title 50, relating to open records, or subject to subpoena, discovery, or introduction into evidence in any civil or criminal proceeding. Such records and the contents thereof shall be maintained by the operating under the influence court division and originating court in a confidential file not available to the public.

(e) Any fees received by an operating under the influence court division from an operating under the influence court division participant as payment for substance abuse treatment and services shall not be considered as court costs or a fine.

(f) The court may have the authority to accept grants, donations, and other proceeds from outside sources for the purpose of supporting the operating under the influence court division. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Rulemaking authority. — Supreme Court has the authority under the Constitution to determine cases under such regulations as are prescribed by it. This was so because former Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VII, prevailed over this section. Fuller v. State, 232 Ga. 581, 208 S.E.2d 85 (1974).

Although former Ga. Const. 1945, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VII, relied upon in Fuller v. State, 232 Ga. 581, 208 S.E.2d 85 (1974), was not included in either the 1976 or the 1983 Constitution, the Supreme Court still may establish under the Supreme Court's inherent power whatever rules are necessary to determine the cases which come before the court. Shore v. Shore, 253 Ga. 183, 318 S.E.2d 57 (1984).

Power to suspend rules. — Inherent power to make rules includes the concomitant power to suspend the rules in an appropriate case, enabling the Supreme Court to decide a case within the last 15 days of a term. Shore v. Shore, 253 Ga. 183, 318 S.E.2d 57 (1984).

15-2-6. Duty of Justices to attend; quorum; adjournment.

It shall be the duty of all the Justices of the Supreme Court to attend each term thereof. However, if, from providential cause, any of the Justices cannot attend the court, the court may be held by a quorum as defined by Article VI, Section VI, Paragraph I of the Constitution of this state. If less than a quorum attend, the Justices attending may adjourn the court to any time agreed upon by the attending Justices.

(1) To exercise appellate jurisdiction, and in no appellate case to hear facts or examine witnesses;

(2) To hear and determine all cases, civil and criminal, that may come before it; to grant judgments of affirmance or reversal, or any other order, direction, or decree required therein; and, if necessary, to make a final disposition of a case in the manner prescribed elsewhere in this Code;

(3) To grant any writ necessary to carry out any purpose of its organization or to compel any inferior tribunal or officers thereof to obey its order;

Analysis

General Consideration
Affirmance and Reversal
Powers over Inferior Tribunals
Power to Establish Rules of Practice and Regulate Admission to Bar

General Consideration

Not a court of first instance. — Supreme Court is in no respect a court of first instance. Vanderford v. Brand, 126 Ga. 67, 54 S.E. 822, 9 Ann. Cas. 617 (1906).

No review of questions not ruled on by trial judge. — Supreme Court is a court for the correction of errors, and has no original jurisdiction; the Supreme Court will not pass upon questions on which no ruling has ever been made by a trial judge. South View Cem. Ass'n v. Hailey, 199 Ga. 478, 34 S.E.2d 863 (1945).

If defendant in custody proceeding raises for first time on appeal, factual issues and an attack on the validity of the divorce, the questions cannot be considered by the Supreme Court. Beggs v. Beggs, 208 Ga. 415, 67 S.E.2d 135 (1951).

Constitutionality of statutes. — If constitutional questions are raised for the first time in a petition for certiorari to the superior court from a judgment rendered in a recorder's court of Atlanta, the superior court could not consider, and the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction to review, the assignment of error that the ordinance under which the plaintiff in error was convicted in the recorder's court is unconstitutional. Worth v. Borough of Atlanta, 175 Ga. 377, 165 S.E. 245 (1932).

If statutes are not attacked as being unconstitutional in the trial court, such an attack, enumerated as error and argument in the brief of counsel before the Supreme Court, will not be passed upon. Turk v. State Hwy. Dep't, 226 Ga. 245, 174 S.E.2d 791 (1970).

Certification of question authorized. — Court of Appeals was authorized to certify a question to the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of retroactive application of the cap on damages recoverable against the state provided in O.C.G.A. § 50-21-26. Department of Human Resources v. Phillips, 223 Ga. App. 520, 478 S.E.2d 598 (1996).

Case sent by mistake to Court of Appeals retained on docket of Supreme Court. — If a case is sent to the Court of Appeals by mistake, and the case is transmitted therefrom and decided to be within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, such case will be retained and entered on the docket of that court for hearing and determination. Dawson v. State, 130 Ga. 127, 60 S.E. 315 (1908); Mitchell v. Masury, 132 Ga. 360, 64 S.E. 275 (1909).

Affirmance and Reversal

Duty of Supreme Court. — It is the duty of the Supreme Court not only to grant judgments of affirmance or reversal, but any other order, direction, or decree required, and if necessary to make a final disposition of the cause. Harris v. Hull, 70 Ga. 831 (1883).

General authority of Supreme Court. — Supreme Court is authorized to make final disposition of a case and to give the case such direction as is consistent with the law and justice applicable to the case, and as will prevent the unnecessary protraction of litigation. Robinson v. Wilkins, 74 Ga. 47 (1884); Ross v. Rambo, 195 Ga. 100, 23 S.E.2d 687 (1942).

One great purpose in establishing the Supreme Court (or the Court of Appeals) was to terminate suits, and with this view, it is made the court's duty not only to grant judgments of affirmance or reversal, but any other order, direction, or decree required, and if necessary to make a final disposition of the cause, and the court is empowered to give to the cause in the court below such direction as may be consistent with the law and justice of the case. Gray v. Watson, 54 Ga. App. 885, 189 S.E. 616 (1936).

General authority of Court of Appeals. — Under Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V, Para. III), the Court of Appeals has, as to cases within the court's peculiar jurisdiction, the same powers as the Supreme Court has within that court's jurisdiction. Finley v. Southern Ry., 5 Ga. App. 722, 64 S.E. 312 (1909).

Court of Appeals may make final disposition of the case and give such directions as are consistent with the law and justice applicable to the cause and as will prevent unnecessary protraction of litigation. Parks v. Parks, 89 Ga. App. 725, 80 S.E.2d 837 (1954).

Amendment of judgment by Court of Appeals. — Court of Appeals has power to direct that verdict and judgment be so amended as to meet the ends of justice and comply with the law. Parks v. Parks, 89 Ga. App. 725, 80 S.E.2d 837 (1954).

Reviewing court to apply law existing at time of judgment. — Reviewing court should apply law as the law exists at the time of the court's judgment rather than the law prevailing at rendition of judgment under review, and may therefore reverse a judgment that was correct at the time the judgment was rendered and affirm a judgment that was erroneous at the time, if the law has been changed in the meantime and if such application of the new law will impair no vested right under the prior law. Osteen v. Osteen, 244 Ga. 445, 260 S.E.2d 321 (1979).

Judgment affirmed when in accordance with direction of Supreme Court. — If judgment of a lower court is in accordance with the direction of the Supreme Court, the judgment will be affirmed. Loyd v. Hicks, 32 Ga. 499 (1861).

Distinction between reversals for different reasons. — Dismissal of a writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) because a judgment of reversal would be in effect a nullity is a different thing from the reversal of a judgment upon proof of facts which have transpired since the judgment was rendered. In the one instance, review is refused because review would be useless, while in the other instance, to reverse the judgment of the lower court would be to hold that the judge erred because of the proof of the existence of facts which have occurred since the judge's judgment was rendered, and hence were not before the judge when the judge made the decision. Marietta Chair Co. v. Henderson, 119 Ga. 65, 45 S.E. 725 (1903).

Harmless error if execution of amended judgment conforms to original judgment. — If court erred in amending judgment but execution conformed to the original judgment, the error was harmless and correctible. Kicklighter v. Burkhalter, 177 Ga. 187, 170 S.E. 75 (1933) (decided prior to Civil Practice Act of 1966).

If sentence is partly illegal, Supreme Court will direct that illegal part be stricken out. Newman v. State, 101 Ga. 534, 28 S.E. 1005 (1897).

If fine imposed is excessive, the sentence may be corrected by reducing the fine. Phillips v. City of Atlanta, 87 Ga. 62, 13 S.E. 201 (1891).

Fine for contempt that exceeds the legal amount may be corrected by reducing the fine. Warner v. Martin, 124 Ga. 387, 52 S.E. 446 (1905).

Reversal of judgment in cases of multiple defendants. — Appellate court can reverse the judgment as to only one of three defendants if a joint motion for new trial is filed, and, a fortiori, it can reverse the judgment as to one defendant only if the appellants themselves separate the appellants' cause by filing separate motions for new trial and coming to the court on separate bills of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50). Gray v. Watson, 54 Ga. App. 885, 189 S.E. 616 (1936).

Powers over Inferior Tribunals

Power to compel signing of bill of exceptions. — Supreme Court has power to compel a judge to sign a bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50), if the judge unlawfully refuses to do so. Taylor v. Reese, 108 Ga. 379, 33 S.E. 917 (1899).

Appellate courts have authority to require judge of trial court to sign bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) by means of mandamus. Garland v. Tanksley, 99 Ga. App. 201, 107 S.E.2d 866 (1959).

Limits on authority to grant mandamus. — Appellate courts do not have the authority to grant mandamus to compel a superior court judge to approve brief of evidence presented to the judge in connection with a motion for new trial pending in that court. Central R.R. v. Miller, 91 Ga. 83, 16 S.E. 256 (1892).

Limits on authority to compel grant of supersedeas. — Appellate courts do not have the authority to compel grant of supersedeas to stay execution of judgment in criminal case while pending on bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50). Spann v. Clark, 47 Ga. 369 (1872); Vanderford v. Brand, 126 Ga. 67, 54 S.E. 822, 9 Ann. Cas. 617 (1906).

Power of Supreme Court greater than superior court. — Powers of the Supreme Court are much more ample in the matter of awarding direction than are those of the superior court to shape what may be termed special proceedings or results without direction from the Supreme Court. Powell v. Augusta & S.R.R., 77 Ga. 192, 3 S.E. 757 (1886).

Appellate court may not aid litigant absent writ of error. — Appellate court cannot aid a petitioner in taking any step in the superior court in a case pending in that court if no writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) has been sued out or applied for, except for the purpose of preventing the case from becoming moot and thus divesting the court of jurisdiction. Garland v. Gray, 108 Ga. App. 303, 132 S.E.2d 834 (1963).

Power to Establish Rules of Practice and Regulate Admission to Bar

For discussion of constitutionality of Ga. L. 1963, p. 70, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-19-30 et seq.), relating to establishment of a unified bar, and the relative power of the legislative and judiciary to establish disciplinary rules and regulations for attorneys, see Sams v. Olah, 225 Ga. 497, 169 S.E.2d 790 (1969), cert. denied, 397 U.S. 914, 90 S. Ct. 916, 25 L. Ed. 2d 94 (1970).

Creation of unified state bar is judicial function. — In proposing that the Supreme Court create a unified bar, the General Assembly did not have the authority to circumscribe the court by denying the court the right to adopt rules and regulations on the court's own initiative. Since the court had the power to create the State Bar, the court must necessarily also have the power to make rules for the government of this administrative arm of the court. Sams v. Olah, 225 Ga. 497, 169 S.E.2d 790 (1969), cert. denied, 397 U.S. 914, 90 S. Ct. 916, 25 L. Ed. 2d 94 (1970).

State Bar Act authorizes adoption of disciplinary rules and regulations. — Purpose of Ga. L. 1963, p. 70, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-19-30 et seq.) was to initiate the creation of the State Bar of Georgia. That law eliminated any conflicting claims of coordinate branches of government to such power. Furthermore, that law's adoption encouraged the court to exercise the court's inherent power in this regard. In response thereto, but in the exercise of an inherent judicial function, the Supreme Court acted and the State Bar of Georgia was created. Although the article was not essential for such action, it is a valid legislative enactment and not subject to constitutional attack. The rules and regulations are therefore not a nullity. Sams v. Olah, 225 Ga. 497, 169 S.E.2d 790 (1969), cert. denied, 397 U.S. 914, 90 S. Ct. 916, 25 L. Ed. 2d 94 (1970).

Promulgation of rule absent statutory provision. — In absence of statutory provision, when no rule has been prescribed, the Supreme Court will promulgate a rule. McCowan v. Brooks, 113 Ga. 384, 39 S.E. 112 (1901).

Disqualification of an attorney to represent codefendants must be raised prior to trial; otherwise, any disqualification could result in manufactured error. Brown v. State, 247 Ga. 298, 275 S.E.2d 52 (1981), overruled on other grounds, Wilson v. Zant, 249 Ga. 373, 290 S.E.2d 442 (1982).

15-2-9. Answers to questions certified by federal courts.

(a) The Supreme Court of this state, by rule of court, may provide that when it shall appear to the Supreme Court of the United States, to any circuit court of appeals or district court of the United States, or to the Court of Appeals or the District Court of the District of Columbia that there are involved in any proceeding before it questions of the laws of this state which are determinative of the case and there are no clear controlling precedents in the decisions of the Supreme Court of this state, such federal court may certify the questions of the laws of this state to the Supreme Court of this state for answers to the questions of state law, which certificate the Supreme Court of this state may answer by written opinion.

(b) The Court of Appeals shall not have jurisdiction to consider any question certified under this Code section by transfer or otherwise.

No federal rule requires use of certification. Miree v. United States, 242 Ga. 126, 249 S.E.2d 573 (1978).

No certification for moot questions. — While federal district courts could certify open questions of law under the Georgia state constitution and relevant state statutes to the Supreme Court of Georgia under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. IV, O.C.G.A. § 15-2-9, and Ga. Sup. Ct. R. 46 — 48, because the direct actions by plaintiff insureds against defendant insurer were barred by O.C.G.A. § 33-7-11 for failure to have first obtained a judgment against their uninsured motorists, the insureds' request for certification of a question of law to the Supreme Court of Georgia, to determine whether Georgia precedent prohibited the insurer from asserting set-offs in the payment of uninsured motorist personal injury claims, was not warranted. Harden v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., No. 08-15008, 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 16095 (11th Cir. July 22, 2009) (Unpublished).

Question certified as to state insurance law. — Question was certified to the state supreme court pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-2-9 as to whether a notice of cancellation, properly given by an insurer after the premium was past due, was ineffective under O.C.G.A. § 33-24-44 because the notice provided the insured an opportunity to keep the policy in force by paying the past due premium within the 10-day statutory period. Infinity Gen. Ins. Co. v. Reynolds, 570 F.3d 1228 (11th Cir. 2009).

Question certified. — Because the question of whether bank directors and officers might be subject to claims for ordinary negligence was debatable under Georgia law, the issue was certified to the state supreme court. FDIC v. Skow, 741 F.3d 1342 (11th Cir. 2013).

Because the appeal seemed to present questions of state law that had not yet been decided by the Georgia appellate courts, three questions were certified to the Supreme Court of Georgia. Piedmont Office Realty Trust v. Xl Speciality Ins. Co., 769 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 2014).

Question not certified. — Court's reasoning was not transformed from a principled decision to a conjectural conclusion simply because the court chose not to rely on legal theories that had either not been recognized in this state or that did not apply to the facts presented. As such, certification to the Georgia Supreme Court was inappropriate. Gold Cross EMS, Inc. v. Children's Hosp. of Ala., No. 113-081, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 70564 (S.D. Ga. June 1, 2015), aff'd, No. 15-14369, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 7622 (11th Cir. Ga. 2016).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 6-1611, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Trial court affirmed if Supreme Court evenly divided. — In case of a decision by entire court of six justices, if the court is evenly divided, the judgment of the trial court stands affirmed by operation of law. Inter-City Coach Lines v. City of Atlanta, 170 Ga. 905, 154 S.E. 352 (1930) (decided under Ga. Const. 1877, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII).

"Full bench rule" repealed. — "Full bench rule" wherein unanimous decisions of Supreme Court could not be overruled except by unanimous decisions has been repealed; stability and certainty in law are desirable, but when a majority of the court determines that stability must give way to justice, then justice prevails. Hall v. Hopper, 234 Ga. 625, 216 S.E.2d 839 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 6-1611).

15-2-17. Rules for regulating Supreme Court's proceedings.

The Supreme Court shall have full power and authority to make all rules, not in conflict with the Constitution or laws of this state, as may be necessary for carrying the Constitution into effect and regulating the court's proceedings thereunder. To these ends it may, by rules, provide and declare when the court shall sit, how its minutes shall be kept, and how the cases upon its dockets shall be apportioned; and it generally may make all regulations as to practice and procedure which experience may show to be convenient and expedient for the proper transaction of its business, with due regard to the rights of the parties and counsel concerned.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Time for filing enumeration of errors and briefs is fixed by court rules and not by law alone. Horton v. Western Contracting Corp., 113 Ga. App. 613, 149 S.E.2d 542 (1966).

15-2-18. Power to prescribe and revise rules of practice and procedure in courts of state; ratification by General Assembly; assistance of bar committee.

(a) The Supreme Court and the Justices thereof shall have the power to prescribe, modify, and repeal rules of procedure, pleading, and practice in civil actions and proceedings in the courts of this state and of practice and procedure for appeal or review in all cases, civil and criminal, to or from any of the courts or tribunals of this state. The rules shall not abridge, enlarge, or modify the substantive rights of any litigant.

(b) Whenever the Supreme Court adopts or prescribes any rules under this Code section, the rules shall be reported by the court to the General Assembly at the next regular session thereof or at an extraordinary session authorized by law to consider and ratify them. The rules shall not take effect until they have been ratified and confirmed by the General Assembly by an Act or resolution thereof.

(c) The Supreme Court is authorized to repeal, modify, or amend any rule adopted or prescribed by it, but no repeal, modification, or amendment shall be effective until it has been ratified by an Act or resolution of the General Assembly.

(d) The Supreme Court shall appoint a committee or committees from the bar of this state to aid in the preparation of rules.

(e) This Code section shall not be construed as constituting an abandonment or disclaimer of the power of the General Assembly to enact laws regulating procedure in the courts of this state.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Rule making authorization applies to any court or tribunal. — This section does not limit rule making authorization to "appeal or review" to appellate courts, but specifically states "to or from any of the courts or tribunals of this state." Fair v. State, 220 Ga. 750, 141 S.E.2d 431 (1965).

Authority to prescribe motions for new trials. — This section authorizes court to prescribe rules as to motions for new trial in criminal or civil cases. Fair v. State, 220 Ga. 750, 141 S.E.2d 431 (1965).

No authority to prescribe criminal rules of procedure. — This section does not authorize court to prescribe rules of procedure, pleading, and practice in trial of criminal cases. Wilson v. State, 215 Ga. 775, 113 S.E.2d 607 (1960); Fair v. State, 220 Ga. 750, 141 S.E.2d 431 (1965).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Costs of case brought in forma pauperis. — Parties who bring cases to the Supreme Court upon pauper affidavits are not altogether relieved from liability for the costs. It follows that when a judgment of reversal is entered in such a case it is the duty of the clerk of the Supreme Court to tax the costs in the case and enter the costs on the remittitur. Sigman v. Austin, 112 Ga. 570, 37 S.E. 894 (1901).

15-3-1. Composition; divisions; how case is heard; decisions as precedent; oral arguments; assistance of other judges.

(a) Composition. The Court of Appeals shall consist of 15 Judges who shall elect one of their number as Chief Judge, in such manner and for such time as may be prescribed by rule or order of the court.

(b) Divisions. The court shall sit in divisions composed of three Judges in each division. The assignment of Judges to each division shall be made by the Chief Judge, and the personnel of the divisions shall from time to time be changed in accordance with rules prescribed by the court. The Chief Judge shall designate the Presiding Judges of the divisions and shall, under rules prescribed by the court, distribute the cases among the divisions in such manner as to equalize their work as far as practicable.

(c) How cases heard.

(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, each division shall hear and determine, independently of the others, the cases assigned to it. Two Judges shall constitute a quorum of a division.

(2) The Court of Appeals may provide by rule for certain cases to be heard and determined by more than a single division and the manner in which those Judges will be selected for such cases. When a case is heard and determined by more than a single division, nine Judges shall be necessary to constitute a quorum.

(d) Decisions as precedent. The Court of Appeals shall provide by rule for the establishment of precedent and the manner in which prior decisions of the court may be overruled.

(e) Oral arguments. The Court of Appeals may hear oral arguments at places other than the seat of government. Reasonable notice shall be given of such hearings.

(f) Assistance of other judges; procedure. Whenever the court unanimously determines that the business of the court requires the temporary assistance of an additional judge or additional judges or one additional panel, the court may request the assistance of senior appellate judges as provided in Chapter 3A of this title or senior superior court judges. The Judge whose case assignment is transferred to the additional judge shall not vote on the case.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — This section does not violate Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VIII (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. V) on grounds that the General Assembly did not have power to provide for the appointment of additional judges, or power to divide the court into two divisions giving each division power to decide cases independently of the other division, or to assign all criminal cases to one of the divisions. Joseph v. State, 148 Ga. 166, 96 S.E. 229 (1918); Fountain v. State, 149 Ga. 519, 101 S.E. 294 (1919); McCall v. State, 150 Ga. 81, 103 S.E. 428 (1920).

Quo warranto denied challenging appointment of judges. — Trial court's denial of the challenger's petition for a writ of quo warranto was affirmed because the newly created positions on the Georgia

Court of Appeals qualified as vacancies under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec, VII, Para. III; thus, the governor had the authority to appoint judges to the vacancies created by amended O.C.G.A. § 15-3-1(a). Clark v. Deal, 298 Ga. 893, 785 S.E.2d 524 (2016).

Under this Code section, the rule of stare decisis applies, which means that older case law must control. Sharpe v. Seaboard Coast Line R.R., 528 F.2d 546 (5th Cir. 1976).

When the Court of Appeals created two competing lines of cases that stood for opposing propositions with respect to the application of Georgia's Rape Shield Statute, O.C.G.A. § 24-4-412, to evidence introduced by the state, the Court of Appeals was obligated to continue to rely on the older precedent from that court until such time as the older law was properly overruled by that court or reversed or overruled by the Supreme Court of Georgia. White v. State, 305 Ga. 111, 823 S.E.2d 794 (2019).

Power of judges to decide case. — Since two (now five or six) judges constitute a quorum, the judges may decide cases pending before the judges. Fountain v. State, 149 Ga. 519, 101 S.E. 294 (1919).

Dissent requires consideration by full court. — This section requires that full court consider any case in which one of the judges of a division may dissent. Fortson v. Caudell, 74 Ga. App. 276, 39 S.E.2d 579 (1946); Jones v. Cannady, 78 Ga. App. 453, 51 S.E.2d 551 (1949); Irvindale Farms, Inc. v. W.O. Pierce Dairy, Inc., 78 Ga. App. 670, 51 S.E.2d 712 (1949); Hall v. Beavers, 78 Ga. App. 722, 51 S.E.2d 879 (1949); Atlanta & W. Point R.R. v. Gilbert, 82 Ga. App. 244, 60 S.E.2d 787 (1950); Dorsey v. Georgia R.R. Bank & Trust Co., 82 Ga. App. 237, 60 S.E.2d 828 (1950).

Overruling by a single division of court. — Prior decision of the court of appeals was overruled in part by a single division of the court after consultation with the other nondisqualified judges. Temple v. Hillegass, 344 Ga. App. 454, 810 S.E.2d 625 (2018).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Supreme Court had jurisdiction over post conviction motion seeking transcript in murder case. — Supreme Court of Georgia had jurisdiction over an appeal from a post-conviction motion seeking a transcript from a defendant's original murder case under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(8), and the motion was not a motion in the nature of mandamus subject to the Court of Appeals' jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 15-3-3.1. Henderson v. State, 303 Ga. 241, 811 S.E.2d 388 (2018).

Jurisdiction in death penalty proceedings. — Prisoner's appeal in a suit seeking records from the prisoner's criminal case, which was not filed under the criminal docket numbers but as a separate civil mandamus petition, was not within the Supreme Court of Georgia's murder jurisdiction under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VI, Para. III(8); however, it was within the court's jurisdiction over extraordinary remedies in death penalty proceedings under O.C.G.A. § 15-3-3.1(4). Still, the appeal was dismissed for failure to comply with O.C.G.A. § 42-12-8. Brock v. Hardman, 303 Ga. 729, 814 S.E.2d 736 (2018).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Quo warranto denied challenging appointment of judges. — Trial court's denial of the challenger's petition for a writ of quo warranto was affirmed because the newly created positions on the Georgia Court of Appeals qualified as vacancies under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. III; thus, the governor had the authority to appoint judges to the vacancies created by amended O.C.G.A. § 15-3-1(a). Clark v. Deal, 298 Ga. 893, 785 S.E.2d 524 (2016).

15-3-5. Oath of Judges; compensation.

(a) Before entering on the discharge of their duties, the Judges shall take the oath prescribed for judges of the superior courts, along with all other oaths required for civil officers.

(b)(1) The annual salary of each Judge of the Court of Appeals shall be as specified in Code Section 45-7-4. Such salary shall be paid in equal monthly installments.

(2) The Judges shall receive expenses and allowances as provided in Code Section 45-7-20. If a Judge resides 50 miles or more from the judicial building in Atlanta, such Judge shall also receive a mileage allowance for the use of a personal motor vehicle when devoted to official business as provided for in Code Section 50-19-7, for not more than one round trip per calendar week to and from the Judge's residence and the judicial building in Atlanta by the most practical route, during each regular and extraordinary session of court. In the event a Judge travels by public carrier for any part of a round trip as provided above, such Judge shall receive a travel allowance of actual transportation costs for each such part in lieu of the mileage allowance. Transportation costs incurred by a Judge for air travel to and from the Judge's residence to the judicial building in Atlanta shall be reimbursed only to the extent that such costs do not exceed the cost of travel by personal motor vehicle. All allowances provided for in this paragraph shall be paid upon the submission of proper vouchers.

(3) If a Judge resides 50 miles or more from the judicial building in Atlanta, such Judge shall also receive the same daily expense allowance as members of the General Assembly receive, as set forth in Code Section 28-1-8, for not more than 35 days during each term of court. Such days shall be utilized only when official court business is being conducted. All allowances provided for in this paragraph shall be paid upon the submission of proper vouchers.

(c) The salary provided for in subsection (b) of this Code section shall be the total compensation to be paid by the state to the officials named in subsection (b) of this Code section and shall be in lieu of any and all other amounts to be paid from state funds.

Simultaneous service of judicial secretary. — A judicial secretary appointed pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-25 may not simultaneously serve the same court as an official court reporter because such an arrangement would prevent the secretary from complying with O.C.G.A. § 45-10-1 and providing the state with a full day's work for a full day's pay. 2016 Op. Appropriations for state reports directed to reporter. — Because the reporter is primarily responsible for the production of the reports, and because it is the reporter's responsibility to furnish a manuscript of the decisions to the state publisher and to ascertain proper performance by the publisher, and because failure of a report to be published is directly attributable to the reporter, the state reporter is the proper budget unit to which appropriations for the state reports should be directed. 1971 Op. ARTICLE 1

JUDICIAL ADMINISTRATION

Law reviews. — For article, "Courts: Juvenile Justice Reform," see 30 Ga. St. U. L. Rev. 63 (2013).

15-5-1. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as "The Judicial Administration Act of 1976."

History. — Ga. L. 1976, p. 782, § 1.

15-5-2. Judicial administration districts.

Ten judicial administration districts of more or less equal population in each district are created within this state. The boundaries of the ten judicial administration districts, to the extent possible, shall follow the boundaries existing on July 1, 1976, of the ten United States congressional districts, except that each judicial circuit existing on July 1, 1976, shall remain intact and shall not be placed in more than one judicial administration district. The Governor, after conferring with the superior court judges, shall establish by July 1, 1976, the original boundaries of each judicial administration district pursuant to this Code section. The ten administrative judges provided for in this article may provide for any necessary changes in the boundaries of such districts not inconsistent with this Code section.

15-5-3. District councils created.

A district council for each judicial administration district is created, composed of all judges of the superior courts within the district. The superior court judge in each district having seniority in number of years as a superior court judge shall serve as presiding officer of the district council. Each district council shall meet at least once a year and as often as required to discuss administrative problems peculiar to the district and otherwise to perform its duties. Each district council shall establish rules, by majority vote, which shall cover the right to call additional meetings and procedures for handling the administrative work of the council.

History. — Ga. L. 1976, p. 782, § 3.

15-5-4. Election of district administrative judge; term; removal.

The judges of each district council shall elect a superior court judge or a senior judge of the superior court to serve for a two-year term as an "administrative judge" within the district. The district administrative judge shall serve until his successor is elected and qualified; provided, however, that the district administrative judge may be removed at any time by a two-thirds' vote of all judges comprising the district council.

The duties of the administrative judge shall be additional duties which shall not be construed to diminish his other responsibilities.

15-5-5. Duties of district administrative judge.

The duties and authority of each district administrative judge shall be as follows:

(1) To request, collect, and receive information from the courts of record within his district pursuant to uniform rules promulgated by the ten administrative judges; and

(2) To authorize and assign any superior court judge within the district to sit on any type of case or to handle other administrative or judicial matters within the district; provided, however, that the assignment shall be made with the consent of the assigned judge and with the consent of the majority of the judges of the circuit to which the assignment is made and that the assignment shall be made subject to rules promulgated by the district council by a majority vote of the superior court judges within the district.

History. — Ga. L. 1976, p. 782, § 6.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Procurement of senior judge from outside district. — O.C.G.A. § 15-5-5(2) does not prevent an administrative judge from procuring the services of a senior judge from outside the administrative district because superior court judges, including senior judges, have jurisdiction to act in any circuit other than their own when the resident judge is disqualified. Shoemake v. Woodland Equities, Inc., 252 Ga. 389, 313 S.E.2d 689 (1984).

Assignment of a senior judge from outside the administrative district is valid under the provisions of paragraph (2) of O.C.G.A. § 15-5-5. Henderson v. Glen Oak, Inc., 179 Ga. App. 380, 346 S.E.2d 842 (1986), aff'd, 256 Ga. 619, 351 S.E.2d 640 (1987).

15-5-6. Administrative assistant; duties; compensation.

Each district administrative judge is authorized to hire a full-time assistant adequately trained in the duties of court administration. The assistant shall assist in the duties of the district administrative judge, provide general court administrative services to the district council, and otherwise perform such duties as may be assigned to him or her by the district administrative judge. Each assistant shall be an employee of the judicial branch of the state government and shall be in the unclassified service as defined by Code Section 45-20-2. The assistant shall be compensated in an amount and manner to be determined by uniform rules adopted by the ten administrative judges. Each assistant shall be compensated out of funds made available for such purposes within the judicial branch of the government. Additional funds shall be made available for needed clerical and other office operating costs of the assistant.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2012, p. 446, § 3-1/HB 642, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "Personnel, equipment, and facilities that were assigned to the State Personnel Administration as of June 30, 2012, shall be transferred to the Department of Administrative Services on the effective date of this Act." This Act became effective July 1, 2012.

Ga. L. 2012, p. 446, § 3-2/HB 642, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "Appropriations for functions which are transferred by this Act may be transferred as provided in Code Section 45-12-90."

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Judicial Council of Georgia and Board of Court Reporting were part of the judiciary and therefore excluded from coverage. — Judicial Council of Georgia and the Board of Court Reporting of the Judicial Council of Georgia fell within "the judiciary," as that term was used in O.C.G.A. § 50-13-2(1) of the Administrative Procedure Act, O.C.G.A. § 50-13-1 et seq., and therefore were exempt from the coverage of the Act and immune from a suit challenging a court

(1) Provide for and set the fees to be charged by all official court reporters in this state for attending court, taking stenographic notes, and recording the evidence;

(2) Provide for and set the fees to be charged by all official court reporters in this state for furnishing transcripts of the evidence and for other proceedings furnished by the official court reporters in all civil and criminal cases in this state;

(3) Provide for a minimum per diem fee for official court reporters, which fee may be supplemented by the various counties within the circuits to which the court reporters are assigned; and

(4) Provide for the form and style of the transcripts, which shall be uniform throughout the state.

(b) The Judicial Council shall amend its rules and regulations providing for and setting the fees to be charged by all official court reporters whenever the council shall deem it necessary and proper.

(c) This Code section shall not apply to those court reporters taking and furnishing transcripts of depositions or taking and furnishing transcripts of nonjudicial functions, nor to any independent contracts of any reporters.

(d) A rule or regulation promulgated by the Judicial Council pursuant to this Code section shall not become effective unless that council provides to the chairperson of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, the chairperson of the Judiciary, Non-civil Committee of the House of Representatives, the chairperson of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, and the chairperson of the Special Judiciary Committee of the Senate, at least 30 days prior to the date that the council intends to adopt such rule or regulation, written notice which includes an exact copy of the proposed rule or regulation and the intended date of its adoption. After July 1, 1986, no rule or regulation adopted by the Judicial Council pursuant to this Code section shall be valid unless adopted in conformity with this subsection. A proceeding to contest any rule or regulation on the grounds of noncompliance with this subsection must be commenced within two years from the effective date of the rule or regulation.

amended pleading, motion, order, or other document from which the party petitioning to transfer may first ascertain that the case is transferable. The judge of the Georgia State-wide Business Court, after considering the petition to transfer and all timely responses from the other party or parties in the case, shall thereafter determine whether the case is within the jurisdiction of the Georgia State-wide Business Court, and with a presumption that the civil action remains in the court of filing, the judge may enter an order compelling transfer of the case to the Georgia State-wide Business Court unless a party objects within 30 days of the filing of the petition to transfer.

(c) Notwithstanding any other law, when the superior court or state court where a claim is pending receives a certified copy of an order issued by the Georgia State-wide Business Court transferring or removing such civil action to the Georgia State-wide Business Court pursuant to paragraph (2) or (3) of subsection (a) of this Code section, such superior court or state court shall certify the transfer or removal from the superior court or state court to the Georgia State-wide Business Court.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Code section is an alphabetical list of circuits. — This section simply listed in alphabetical order the various judicial circuits and gave the counties composing the different circuits. Norris v. McDaniel, 207 Ga. 232, 60 S.E.2d 329 (1950).

Banishment as condition of probation must be to at least one entire judicial circuit. — Although the legislature has expressly provided that banishment is a valid term and condition of probation, the trial court cannot banish a probationer to any area within the state that does not consist of at least one entire judicial circuit. Because Toombs County was part of the five-county Middle Judicial Circuit, which also included Emanuel, Jefferson, Washington, and Candler Counties, the trial court was not statutorily authorized to banish the defendant from the entire state, except for Toombs County. The 2018 amendment, effective January 1, 2019, deleted "second Monday in" preceding "October" in subparagraph (41)(A); substituted "February and August" for "January and second Monday in September" in subparagraph (41)(B); in subparagraph (41)(C), substituted "Second" for "Fourth", and substituted "August" for "September"; in subparagraph (41)(D), substituted "Second" for "Third", and substituted "September" for "October"; substituted "Third Monday in March and September" for "First Monday in May and first Monday in December" in subparagraph (41)(E); substituted "Second Monday in April and October" for "First Monday in April and second Monday in November" in subparagraph (41)(F); and substituted "the grand jury shall not be required to be impaneled on the first day of each new term but upon a date and time as scheduled by the court" for "if any term of court in the Waycross Circuit begins on an official state holiday, the term of court shall commence on the following Tuesday; and if any other day within the term of court shall be an official state holiday, the court shall be closed for that holiday" in the proviso of the ending undesignated paragraph of paragraph (41).

The 2019 amendment, effective July 1, 2019, substituted "Second Monday in January, April, and July, and first Monday in October" for "First Monday in May and November and second Monday in January and July" in subparagraph (26)(B).

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1998, paragraph (18.1) was redesignated as paragraph (5.1).

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 1999, punctuation was revised in subparagraphs (29)(B) and (29)(C) and in subparagraph (40.1)(A).

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 67, §§ 1-10, not codified by the General Assembly, provided for the creation of the Towaliga Judicial Circuit, for the offices of the judge and district attorney, for transfer of pending litigation from the superior courts of Butts, Lamar, and Monroe counties, and other similar matters.

Ga. L. 2002, p. 468, § 4, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "As Section 2 of this Act provides for the Tifton Judicial Circuit, the November, 2002, term of court in Irwin County shall continue until the second Monday in February, 2003; the December, 2002, term of court in Tift County shall continue until the second Monday in March 2003; the October, 2002, term of court in Turner County shall continue until the second Monday in April 2003; and the October, 2002, term of court in Worth County shall continue until the second Monday in January, 2003." The reference to Section 2 of the Act should be to Section 3 of the Act.

Equal protection. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-3, combined with O.C.G.A. § 17-7-171, does not deprive defendants of equal protection of the law despite the possibility of relatively longer trial waitings than in those circuits with more terms of court per year. Henry v. State, 263 Ga. 417, 434 S.E.2d 469 (1993).

Ga. L. 1996, p. 627, which establishes two terms of court for the City Court of Atlanta, is constitutional and does not violate equal protection. Cross v. State, 272 Ga. 282, 528 S.E.2d 241 (2000).

When the legislature deals with superior courts in fixing the terms at which the courts are to be held in the several counties, the legislature does so by general and not by special legislation. Burge v. Mangum, 134 Ga. 307, 67 S.E. 857 (1910); Geer v. Bush, 146 Ga. 701, 92 S.E. 47 (1917); Geer v. Colquitt Hdwe. & Furn. Co., 146 Ga. 811, 92 S.E. 515 (1917); Norris v. McDaniel, 207 Ga. 232, 60 S.E.2d 329 (1950).

Act fixing terms of a superior court and providing for attendance of grand juries thereat is a general law. Long v. State, 160 Ga. 292, 127 S.E. 842 (1925); Brown v. State, 242 Ga. 602, 250 S.E.2d 491 (1978).

Effect of amendment changing dates of terms of court. — Amendment of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-3, so as to change the dates of commencement of terms of court, was not an ex post facto law as applied to the defendant, who was not at any time entitled to discharge and acquittal of the offenses with which the defendant was charged. Aspinwall v. State, 201 Ga. App. 203, 410 S.E.2d 388 (1991).

If, due to an error in the enactment, an amendment changing the terms of court from four to two had not gone into effect at the time the defendant moved for acquittal, the defendant was entitled to acquittal for failure to try the defendant within the term when the defendant's speedy trial demand was made. Houston v. State, 217 Ga. App. 783, 459 S.E.2d 583 (1995).

Reconvening did not require re-swearing. — Although alternate jurors were substituted during the January term of court, the defendant pointed to no evidence that the January grand jury was ever formally discharged from the jury's duties prior to the end of the grand jury's term, thus, it continued to act within the jury's term of court and remained empowered to act until the last day of the jury's term and did not need to be re-sworn prior to returning to the defendant's second indictment. Durden v. State, 299 Ga. 273, 787 S.E.2d 697 (2016).

Speedy trial demand untimely. — Defendant was indicted for felony murder and other charges during the June 2014 term of the trial court; the defendant did not file a valid demand in that term or the subsequent September 2014 term; and the December 2014 term began on December 1, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-3(20), making the defendant's December 5 speedy trial demand untimely under O.C.G.A. § 17-7-171(a). Johnson v. State, 300 Ga. 252, 794 S.E.2d 60 (2016).

Motions and Judgments

Effect of motion filed before end of term. — Trial court did not err when the court modified an order granting defendant's motion for a new trial since the modification was made after the expiration of the term in which the order was entered and the state's motion for reconsideration, which sought to revive the conviction, was filed before the end of the term in which the court entered the order granting a new trial. Platt v. State, 200 Ga. App. 784, 409 S.E.2d 878, cert. denied, 200 Ga. App. 897, 409 S.E.2d 878 (1991).

Employee's motion for reconsideration of the dismissal of the employee's petition for judicial review of a denial of unemployment benefits, and the Fulton County Superior Court's order concerning the employee's motion, were untimely because the motion and decision were filed after the term of court in which the initial denial was made. Fed v. Butler, 327 Ga. App. 637, 760 S.E.2d 642 (2014).

After expiration of the term at which a judgment is entered, it is out of the power of the court to modify and revise the judgment in any matter of substance or in any matter affecting the merits; however, a default judgment may be set aside when the limited requirements of O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(d)(2) are met. Lee v. Restaurant Mgt. Servs., 232 Ga. App. 902, 503 S.E.2d 59 (1998).

Regardless of whether O.C.G.A. § 17-10-1(f) applied to defendant's December 2003 motion to set aside a sentence, that motion, filed four-and-one-half years after the sentence was imposed, was far too late; the motion was not filed in the term in which the sentence was entered, within a year of the date upon which the sentence was imposed, nor within 120 days of the trial court's receipt of a

Trial court erred by entering a second final decree of divorce pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) after the term of court in which the first final decree had been entered had already expired because there were no clerical mistakes made with respect to the first final decree; the alleged mistake by the clerk, if any, related to the clerk's failure to file the husband's premature motion for new trial and had nothing to do with any alleged clerical errors in the first order and, accordingly, the trial court could not "correct" any mistake relating to the handling of the husband's motion for new trial by issuing a "corrected" second order based on a first order that contained no clerical mistakes. Tremble v. Tremble, 288 Ga. 666, 706 S.E.2d 453 (2011).

Assuming that a clerk made a "clerical mistake" by failing to later stamp file a husband's premature motion for new trial as a "response" to the trial court's first final decree of divorce, such a clerical mistake could not be "corrected" by the trial court issuing a second final divorce decree after the May term of court had ended; in order for a clerical mistake to be corrected, the clerical mistake must appear and be corrected in the actual judgment, order, or other part of the record in which the mistake has arisen, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g). Tremble v. Tremble, 288 Ga. 666, 706 S.E.2d 453 (2011).

Buyer of property at a sheriff's sale who was awarded attorney's fees against the former owner and the owner's attorney's limited liability partnership (LLP) was not entitled to amend the judgment to include the attorney and the attorney's later-formed limited liability company (LLC) because it did not seek to amend the order until a year later, outside the term of court of the original order. The addition of the attorney and the substitution of the LLP was substantive. Davis v. Crescent Holdings & Invs., LLC, 336 Ga. App. 378, 785 S.E.2d 51 (2016).

Court was without authority to vacate order outside of the term in which the order was entered. — Superior court was without jurisdiction to entertain an untimely motion to withdraw a guilty plea, filed outside the term of court in which the plea was entered; hence, the trial court properly denied the relief sought. Davis v. State, 274 Ga. 865, 561 S.E.2d 119 (2002).

Defendant's motion to vacate and set aside an order denying the defendant's motion in arrest of judgment was properly denied after the motion to vacate was filed 11 months after the denial of the motion in arrest of judgment, which was well beyond the respective terms of court in which the judgment of conviction and the denial of the motion in arrest of judgment were entered. Smith v. State, 257 Ga. App. 468, 571 S.E.2d 446 (2002).

Trial court improperly vacated the court's own order outside of the term in which the order was entered, so the order vacating the initial order was a nullity, but, as the initial order, which denied an application to modify or vacate an arbitration award, did not address a counterclaim seeking to confirm the arbitration award, it was not a final order, and so the later order confirming the award was affirmed. Tanaka v. Pecqueur, 268 Ga. App. 380, 601 S.E.2d 830 (2004).

Because the trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to modify a sentence in a term other than the term in which the sentence was imposed, and there was no claim that the sentence entered was void, an order vacating one sentence and reinstating another sentence was vacated and the matter was remanded with instructions for the trial court to dismiss the action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Barthell v. State, 286 Ga. App. 160, 648 S.E.2d 412 (2007).

Trial court properly denied a motion to withdraw a guilty plea to two counts of armed robbery because the motion was made after expiration of the term of court under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-3(11) in which the defendant was sentenced; thus, the trial court did not have jurisdiction to rule on the motion. Williams v. State, 301 Ga. App. 849, 689 S.E.2d 124 (2010).

Order dismissing the defendant's motion to withdraw a guilty plea was affirmed because the trial court properly vacated only a discrete portion of the sentence relating to an improper parole condition and the remainder of the sentence was still in force; thus, the defendant had no absolute right to withdraw the plea since the motion to withdraw had to be filed within the term of court in which sentencing under the plea occurred. Thompson v. State, 348 Ga. App. 807, 824 S.E.2d 685 (2019).

Incorrectly styled motion timely filed due to court term. — When a trial court issued a child support order on February 14, 2012 and the father filed a motion for relief on February 28, 2012, the father's motion (although incorrectly styled a motion for J.N.O.V.) was timely as a new trial motion under O.C.G.A. § 5-5-40; it was also timely because, in DeKalb County, the January term of court ran from the first Monday in January until the first Monday in March, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-3(37). Wheeler v. Akins, 327 Ga. App. 830, 761 S.E.2d 383 (2014).

Other

Withdrawal of guilty pleas. — Trial court properly denied defendant's motion to modify the defendant's sentence for theft by taking because, even assuming that defendant's motion could be treated as a motion to withdraw defendant's guilty plea, the court lost jurisdiction to grant the motion on that basis when the term of court in which the defendant was sentenced expired. Martin v. State, 266 Ga. App. 190, 596 S.E.2d 705 (2004).

Trial court lacked jurisdiction to allow the defendant to withdraw the defendant's guilty plea when the term of court in which that defendant was sentenced expired. Tabatabaee v. State, 266 Ga. App. 462, 597 S.E.2d 518 (2004).

Because the term of court when the defendant was sentenced expired, the trial court lacked jurisdiction to allow the defendant to withdraw a guilty plea. Thompson v. State, 279 Ga. App. 375, 631 S.E.2d 422 (2006).

Because Crisp County had multiple terms of court each year, and eight years passed before the defendant sought to withdraw the defendant's guilty plea, the trial court had no authority to permit the defendant to withdraw the plea. Brown v. State, 280 Ga. 658, 631 S.E.2d 687 (2006).

Because Rockdale County had four terms of court each year, and two full years passed before the defendant sought to withdraw a guilty plea, the trial court had no jurisdiction to permit withdrawal of the plea. Turner v. State, 281 Ga. 435, 637 S.E.2d 384 (2006), overruled on other grounds by Collier v. State, 834 S.E.2d 769, 2019 Ga. LEXIS 708 (Ga. 2019).

Defendant's challenge of the trial court's denial of the defendant's motion to withdraw the defendant's guilty plea failed because the defendant's motion was filed after the expiration of the term of court in which the plea was entered. Belcher v. State, 304 Ga. App. 645, 697 S.E.2d 300 (2010).

Plea counsel did not perform deficiently for failing to investigate a robbery charge in another county because the defendant's only available means to withdraw the defendant's guilty plea to the robbery charge was through habeas-corpus proceedings; the defendant's first mention of any challenge to the defendant's plea of guilty to the robbery charge was well beyond the term of court in which the defendant was sentenced. Murray v. State, 307 Ga. App. 621, 705 S.E.2d 726 (2011).

Because the court of appeals was unable to determine from the record upon which of two Mondays the May term of Walton Superior Court began, the court assumes, without deciding, that the defendant's motion to withdraw a guilty plea was timely filed; the language of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-3(2)(B) indicates that there are four terms in Walton County, Georgia and the superior court is authorized to begin the court's terms on either of those two Mondays. Burnett v. State, 309 Ga. App. 422, 710 S.E.2d 624 (2011).

Trial court lacked jurisdiction to entertain a defendant's motion to withdraw the defendant's guilty plea because, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-3(39)(A), the defendant's motion was filed three weeks beyond the term of court in which the defendant was sentenced. Additionally, trial counsel was not required to advise the defendant of the effects of parole on the sentence. Hall v. State, 313 Ga. App. 670, 722 S.E.2d 392 (2012).

Judgment denying the defendant's motion to withdraw the guilty plea was vacated and the case remanded with direction to dismiss the motion because the term of court had expired and, therefore, the trial court lacked jurisdiction to permit the withdrawal of a guilty plea since the term of court in which the defendant was sentenced had expired. Branner v. State, 355 Ga. App. 137, 843 S.E.2d 26 (2020).

Defendant's attorney did not waive demand by agreeing to continuance. — Although a defendant's attorney agreed to a continuance in early December 2004, there was no evidence that the attorney agreed to continue the case past that term of court, which, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-5-3, did not end until February 2005, and in which the case could have been tried and was required to be tried following defendant's speedy trial demand under O.C.G.A. § 17-7-170 in the prior court term. Thornton v. State, 301 Ga. App. 784, 689 S.E.2d 361 (2009).

15-6-4. Qualifications of judges.

(a) No individual shall be judge of the superior courts unless, at the time of his or her election, he or she has attained the age of 30 years, has been a citizen of the state for three years, has practiced law for seven years, and is a member in good standing with the State Bar of Georgia and has been duly reinstated to the practice of law in the event of his or her disbarment therefrom.

(b) The office of any superior court judge shall be vacated upon the disbarment or suspension from the practice of law of such judge by the Supreme Court whether voluntary or involuntary and upon order of the Supreme Court providing for such removal from office.

Plaintiff's challenge to the trial judge is without merit since it is not contested that this trial judge did not meet the qualifications to serve as a superior court judge. Moore v. American Suzuki Motor Corp., 203 Ga. App. 189, 416 S.E.2d 807 (1992).

O.C.G.A. §§ 15-1-8, 15-6-4, and 15-19-58 did not conflict with one another so as to be unconstitutional because § 15-1-8 provided that judges should not be disqualified from sitting in a proceeding because the judge was a policyholder of any mutual insurance company, § 15-6-4 provided for qualifications for state superior court judges, and § 15-19-58 allowed the state bar to seek injunctive relief against parties engaging in the unauthorized practice of law. Alyshah v. Georgia, No. 1:06-CV-0928-TWT, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 66546 (N.D. Ga. Sept. 1, 2006), aff'd, 230 Fed. Appx. 949 (11th Cir. Ga. 2007).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Confirmation by Senate not necessary. — Individuals who are appointed by the Governor to the office of judge of the superior court, judge of the superior court emeritus (now senior judge), solicitor general (now district attorney), and solicitor general emeritus (now district attorney emeritus) do not have to be submitted to the state Senate for confirmation. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 101.

Part-time judges or referees. — Both part-time judges of the magistrate court and part-time referees of the juvenile court may be assigned to hear cases in the superior court so long as they meet the qualifications of judges of the superior court as provided in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-4. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7.

15-6-5. Restrictions on practice of law.

Following their election, the judges of the superior courts are prohibited from practicing law in any of the courts of this state, provided that they may practice until their qualification in any case in which they may have been actually employed before their election. They are also prohibited from practicing as attorneys, proctors, or solicitors in any district or circuit courts of the United States after their election or while in commission.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Judge of superior court subject to disbarment proceedings. — That a lawyer is also a judge of the superior court and hence a constitutional officer and must have practiced law seven years at the time of the judge's election and is prohibited from practicing law while serving as judge does not mean that the judge cannot at the same time be disbarred and the judge's license to practice law canceled as provided in former Code 1933, Ch. 5, T. 9 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-19-30 et seq.). The two proceedings are provided for the accomplishment of entirely different results. Gordon v. Clinkscales, 215 Ga. 843, 114 S.E.2d 15 (1960).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Duties of district attorney constitute practice of law. — Although a solicitor general (now district attorney) has only the state for a client in the performance of public duties, the solicitor general (now district attorney) is necessarily a "partisan in the cases" when appearing on behalf of the state; these duties do constitute the practice of law. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-189.

Before entering on the duties of their office, superior court judges must take the oath required of all civil officers and in addition they must take the following oath:

> "I swear that I will administer justice without respect to person and do equal rights to the poor and the rich and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as judge of the superior courts of this state, according to the best of my ability and understanding, and agreeably to the laws and Constitution of this state and the Constitution of the United States. Duties as to bond issuance. — Duties of judge of superior court with respect to issuance of bonds by counties or other political subdivisions are set forth in the statutes. Clinkscales v. State, 102 Ga. App. 670, 117 S.E.2d 229 (1960).

Motion for mistrial must be made at time of objectionable remarks. — Because a landlord did not waive a tenant's obligation to obtain casualty insurance, the tenant did not move for a mistrial based on the trial court's alleged objectionable remarks under O.C.G.A. §§ 9-10-7 and 15-6-6, and the trial court's jury instructions were proper, the trial court did not err in denying the tenant's motions for a JNOV or a new trial. General Consideration

Power of superior court is limited by this section. General Teamsters Local 528 v. Allied Foods, Inc., 228 Ga. 479, 186 S.E.2d 527 (1971), cert. denied, 405 U.S. 1041, 92 S. Ct. 1313, 31 L. Ed. 2d 582 (1972).

Power to issue injunctions. — Superior courts are empowered to issue injunctions, Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. IV; O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8, and nothing in O.C.G.A. § 48-4-40(1) deprives the courts of that power in the arena of redemption of property following a tax sale. Am. Lien Fund, LLC v. Dixon, 286 Ga. 562, 690 S.E.2d 415 (2010).

Trial court had subject matter jurisdiction over a landowner's action seeking an interlocutory injunction requiring neighbors to move the neighbor's dock because the neighbors did not point to any federal law that would preempt the trial court as an appropriate forum for adjudicating the rights and remedies of the parties; there was no Congressional intent to preclude state action concurrently with the statutory and regulatory scheme establishing the authority of the Army Corps of Engineers over docks on the lake where the parties lived. Dillon v. Reid, 312 Ga. App. 34, 717 S.E.2d 542 (2011).

Jurisdiction of the superior courts is clearly defined by the Georgia Constitution and former Code 1873, § 246 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8). Trial of misdemeanor cases may be conferred upon inferior courts. Porter v. State, 53 Ga. 236 (1874).

Judicial powers historically vested in superior courts. — Superior courts have forever in history been the great reservoir of judicial power in which the judicial powers of the state were vested, and however other courts might be erected as a relief to it, to take cognizance of minor matters, the practice has been uniform to retain in this tribunal concurrent, and generally, even supervisory power over them. Smith v. State, 62 Ga. App. 733, 9 S.E.2d 714 (1940).

Limitation on supervisory control of superior courts. — Supervisory control of the superior court over inferior judicatories exists only for specified purposes, viz., either to correct errors in their proceedings in a particular case, or to command them to fulfill their official duties in such a case when, from any cause, a defect of legal justice would ensue from a failure or improper discharge of such duties; or to prohibit or arrest illegal proceedings by any officer of such courts when no other legal remedy or relief is given, and when such interference is required by some principle of right, necessity, and justice. This jurisdiction is exercised by writs designated by the statutes, such as the writ of certiorari, mandamus, or prohibition. Darden v. Ravan, 232 Ga. 756, 208 S.E.2d 846 (1974), overruled on other grounds Ricks v. State, 303 Ga. 567, 814 S.E.2d 318, 2018 Ga. LEXIS 288 (2018).

Jurisdiction over habeas corpus cases by all courts. — All superior courts have jurisdiction over subject matter of habeas corpus cases or cases in nature of habeas corpus. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 237 Ga. 845, 229 S.E.2d 751 (1976).

Jurisdiction over felony trials. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8 vests superior courts with exclusive subject matter jurisdiction over all felony trials. Goodrum v. State, 259 Ga. App. 704, 578 S.E.2d 484 (2003).

State did not have the right to appeal sentences imposed by the trial court contrary to a plea agreement under O.C.G.A. § 5-7-1(a)(6) because the sentences were not void; the sentences were within the 20-year range of punishments for robbery and aggravated assault, O.C.G.A. §§ 16-5-21(b) and 16-8-40(b), and the trial court had jurisdiction over the case, pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I, and O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(1). State v. Harper, 279 Ga. App. 620, 631 S.E.2d 820 (2006) was overruled. State v. King, 325 Ga. App. 445, 750 S.E.2d 756 (2013).

Subject matter jurisdiction over employment cases. — Superior courts have subject matter jurisdiction over timely Title VII claims under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 filed pursuant to Equal Employment Opportunity Commission notification to the claimant that, the federal prerequisites for suit having been fulfilled, suit may be filed. Collins v. DOT, 208 Ga. App. 53, 429 S.E.2d 707 (1993).

Subject matter jurisdiction of breach of contract and fraud action. — Superior court had jurisdiction of an action for breach of contract and fraud involving an agreement between an employer and employee, even though the agreement provided that the parties "submit to the exclusive jurisdiction of the English Courts." Bradley v. British Fitting Group, Plc, 221 Ga. App. 621, 472 S.E.2d 146 (1996).

Subject matter jurisdiction over probate matter. — Trial court had subject matter jurisdiction to review the probate court's decision under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(4)(E) to deny probate of the decedent's 1988 will and the parties' waiver of the statutory right to a jury trial did not deprive the trial court of subject matter jurisdiction to deny probate of the will. Mosley v. Lancaster, 296 Ga. 862, 770 S.E.2d 873 (2015).

Superior courts have concurrent jurisdiction with all inferior courts over misdemeanors. Smith v. State, 62

Ga. App. 733, 9 S.E.2d 714 (1940); Allen v. State, 85 Ga. App. 887, 70 S.E.2d 543 (1952); Lee v. State, 222 Ga. App. 389, 474 S.E.2d 281 (1996).

Extent of concurrent jurisdiction with magistrate courts. — Superior court is a court of general jurisdiction, and has concurrent jurisdiction with the justices' (now magistrate) courts in all civil cases if the amount involved is less than $100.00 (now $2,500.00). Phillips v. Rawls, 46 Ga. App. 200, 167 S.E. 189 (1932) (See now O.C.G.A. § 15-10-2 for jurisdiction of magistrate courts.).

Court first acquiring jurisdiction of prosecution retains jurisdiction. — While this section granted superior courts the power to exercise concurrent jurisdiction with inferior tribunals, the court first acquiring jurisdiction of the prosecution retained the jurisdiction to the exclusion of the others, so long as the court did not voluntarily and legally abandon the jurisdiction. McAuliffe v. Outz, 139 Ga. App. 62, 227 S.E.2d 807 (1976).

Superior court to review decisions only when presented under proper writ. — This section empowered the superior courts only to review the proceedings of inferior courts when the question was presented under the proper statutory writ, and if the court finds the proceedings to be irregular or invalid, to remand to the tribunal having jurisdiction of the case for reconsideration in accordance with the court's instructions. McAuliffe v. Outz, 139 Ga. App. 62, 227 S.E.2d 807 (1976).

Removing record from inferior court. — Entire record cannot be removed from inferior court to superior court by notice to officers to produce the record, or by a subpoena duces tecum directed to and served upon the court. In re Lester, 77 Ga. 143 (1886).

Authority to order expert evaluation of criminal defendant. — Superior court of the county in which defendant was convicted of murder had authority, on defendant's motion for new trial, to order an expert evaluation of defendant, who was incarcerated beyond the boundaries of the county in which the court sat. Zant v. Brantley, 261 Ga. 817, 411 S.E.2d 869 (1992).

Defendant in city court may apply to superior court. — If a suit for damages arising ex contractu is pending in a city court, the defendant, in order to avail oneself of an equitable setoff, may apply to the superior court to enjoin the proceeding in the city court and take jurisdiction of the entire controversy. Bibb Basket Co. v. Eufaula Bank & Trust Co., 42 Ga. App. 394, 156 S.E. 310 (1930).

Review of recorder's court decision lies in the superior court by writ of certiorari. McMillian v. City of Rockmart, 653 F.2d 907 (5th Cir. 1981).

Power of judge to appoint foreperson of grand jury. — In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the judge of the superior court has inherent power as the presiding officer of the court to appoint the foreperson of a grand jury from the number of those duly selected and required to serve. This authority vested in the judge by law is not affected by the custom of permitting the members of the grand jury to elect a foreperson. Peeples v. State, 178 Ga. 675, 173 S.E. 850 (1934).

Local Act providing for bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) from city court to superior court is unconstitutional. Pope v. Jones, 79 Ga. 487, 4 S.E. 860 (1887), overruled on other grounds Ricks v. State, 303 Ga. 567, 814 S.E.2d 318 (2018).

Regulation of prices by court of products made and sold in this state not permitted. Southern Ice & Coal Co. v. Atlantic Ice & Coal Corp., 143 Ga. 810, 85 S.E. 1021 (1915).

Breach of payment bond contract. — Subcontractor's action against surety for breach of payment bond contract, bad faith, and attorney fees was within superior court's subject matter jurisdiction. Harry S. Peterson Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 209 Ga. App. 585, 434 S.E.2d 778 (1993).

Subject matter jurisdiction over business dispute. — In an action brought by a partner against another, the court did not err by vacating a consent order that incorporated a settlement agreement as the trial judge to whom the case had been reassigned had subject matter jurisdiction to vacate the previously entered order since the trial judge had subject matter jurisdiction over a cause of action pending before the court and control over orders and judgments during the term or following the term if the case is still pending. Further, since no final order had been entered in the matter and the case remained pending, the trial court had authority to reconsider the ruling made on the consent order, vacate the order, and order that the matter proceed to trial, irrespective of whether the case has been reassigned to a different trial judge. Internal Med. Alliance, LLC v. Budell, 290 Ga. App. 231, 659 S.E.2d 668 (2008).

Protection of judgments. — Trial court was empowered to protect a judgment the court entered by enjoining an arbitration proceeding on the grounds of res judicata and collateral estoppel. Mitcham v. Blalock, 268 Ga. 644, 491 S.E.2d 782 (1997).

Review by writ of certiorari precluded. — Defendant's petition for writ of certiorari was fatally and fundamentally flawed since the petition did not recite the provisions of the county statute under which the defendant was convicted, which prohibited loitering for drug-related purposes; thus, the appellate court had no context within which to review the evidence. Collier v. Merck, 261 Ga. App. 831, 584 S.E.2d 1 (2003).

Appellate jurisdiction lacking. — Since the superior court did not have appellate jurisdiction over rulings of a state court, there was no error in the state court's failure to process an appeal to the superior court within 10 days. Columbus Transmission Co. v. Murry, 277 Ga. App. 243, 626 S.E.2d 202 (2006).

Contempt

Applicability to separate contemptuous acts. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8 is applicable to each separate act found by trial judge to be contemptuous. In re Pruitt, 249 Ga. 190, 288 S.E.2d 208 (1982).

Breach of restraining order. — This section applies when breach of temporary restraining order treated as single act, and costs may be awarded. Warner v. Martin, 124 Ga. 387, 52 S.E. 446, 4 Ann. Cas. 180 (1905).

Inapplicability to continuing contempt. — This section did not apply to a refusal to deliver funds or property to receiver appointed by court pending litigation. Cobb v. Black, 34 Ga. 162 (1865).

This section does not apply if the doing of an act is necessary to the administration of justice, and breach is treated as continuing. Howard v. Durand, 36 Ga. 346, 91 Am. Dec. 767 (1867); Drakeford v. Adams, 98 Ga. 722, 25 S.E. 833 (1896).

This section does not apply to a continuing contempt resulting from failure to comply with order requiring payment of alimony. Tindall v. Westcott, 113 Ga. 1114, 39 S.E. 450, 55 L.R.A. 225 (1901); Gray v. Gray, 127 Ga. 345, 56 S.E. 438 (1907).

Failure or refusal to comply with an order of court requiring the payment of alimony and attorney's fees was a continuing contempt, and the court may enter a judgment that the party so refusing be imprisoned until the party shall comply. In such case, the time of imprisonment was not within the limitation of this section that the duration of imprisonment must not exceed 20 days. Adkins v. Adkins, 242 Ga. 248, 248 S.E.2d 646 (1978).

Mother held in criminal contempt. — Order holding a mother in criminal contempt was upheld on appeal as a result of the mother's interference with the father's visitation time and since the trial court did not exceed the limit of 20 days of imprisonment as set forth in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(5), the punishment imposed did not exceed that which was authorized. Stanford v. Pogue, 340 Ga. App. 86, 796 S.E.2d 313 (2017).

Failure to pay ordered child support. — Parent who willfully refuses to pay child support which the parent is able to pay and which is required by an order of court may be found guilty of either civil or criminal contempt of court, or both. Ensley v. Ensley, 239 Ga. 860, 238 S.E.2d 920 (1977).

Party who has failed to pay child support under a court order when the party has the ability to pay may be found guilty of civil or criminal contempt and incarcerated under either. Hughes v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources, 269 Ga. 587, 502 S.E.2d 233 (1998).

Lack of money and property impacting contempt. — Trial court erred in continuing the incarceration of a party for civil contempt since the party lacked the ability to purge oneself because the party lacked money and property. Hughes v. Georgia Dep't of Human Resources, 269 Ga. 587, 502 S.E.2d 233 (1998).

Continuous contempt. — Confinement may be extended indefinitely if the contempt is continuous. In re Pruitt, 249 Ga. 190, 288 S.E.2d 208 (1982).

Incarceration for over 20 days. — If the trial court ordered a party incarcerated for more than 20 days, the contempt order should have contained sufficient facts to support the court's finding of more than one contemptuous act. Gay v. Gay, 268 Ga. 106, 485 S.E.2d 187 (1997).

Contempt proceedings require due process. — Punishment of barring an attorney from a division of a superior court is not available for criminal contempt; the superior court's power to punish is limited by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8. In re Siemon, 264 Ga. 641, 449 S.E.2d 832 (1994).

Defenses to contempt. — Defenses to both civil and criminal contempt are that the order was not sufficiently definite and certain, was not violated, or that the violation was not willful (e.g., inability to pay or comply). Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

Counterclaim to contempt petition not permitted. — In a proceeding wherein a neighbor filed a contempt petition against another neighbor and the responding neighbor filed a counterclaim to the petition, the trial court upheld the finding of contempt on the part of the responding neighbor with regard to that party failing to comply with prior orders of the trial court in the parties' long-standing boundary dispute, but reversed the contempt finding with regard to the petitioning neighbor on the counterclaim. The trial court erred in allowing the responding neighbor to file a counterclaim to the contempt petition as a contempt proceeding was an ancillary matter related to the primary action and was more in the nature of a motion proceeding, not a situation where a pleading was allowed. Reece v. Smith, 292 Ga. App. 875, 665 S.E.2d 918 (2008).

Distinction between civil and criminal contempt. — If the contemnor is imprisoned for a specified unconditional period, the purpose is punishment and thus the contempt is criminal. If the contemnor is imprisoned only until the contemnor performs a specified act, the purpose is remedial and hence the contempt is civil. Ensley v. Ensley, 239 Ga. 860, 238 S.E.2d 920 (1977).

Most important factor in distinguishing civil and criminal contempt is the purpose of the contempt judgment. If the judgment's purpose is to coerce the contemnor into compliance with the court's order or to compensate the complainant for losses sustained, then the proceeding is civil; on the other hand, if the judgement's purpose is to punish or to vindicate the authority of the court, then the proceeding is criminal. Hopkins v. Jarvis, 648 F.2d 981 (5th Cir. 1981).

Despite the Georgia Supreme Court previously suggesting the ex-husband could be assessed for damages and repairs to the rental property, such a remedy could no longer serve the purpose of civil contempt to obtain future compliance with the divorce decree since the rental property was foreclosed upon and sold; thus, future compliance was no longer at issue and the trial court was authorized to impose unconditional criminal punishment for the ex-husband's prior acts of contumacy. Sponsler v. Sponsler, 353 Ga. App. 627, 838 S.E.2d 921 (2020).

Treating civil contempt as criminal contempt. — Court may find that contempt proceedings originated and pursued by party seeking civil contempt should be treated as one for criminal contempt. Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

Findings of fact and conclusions of law are not required in motion for contempt. Adkins v. Adkins, 242 Ga. 248, 248 S.E.2d 646 (1978).

General phrasing of notice sufficient as to both civil and criminal charges. — If a person is on notice that the person is being tried for contempt and the movant seeks "such other sanctions as is appropriate to ensure the enforcement and the observance" of the court's order or seeks "such other relief as may be appropriate," the contemnor is on notice that the proceeding is both civil and criminal in nature and that criminal sanctions may be imposed in an appropriate case. Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

When omission of word "criminal" in notice of contempt not fatal. — Omission of the word "criminal" in a notice of contempt proceeding is not fatal if the notice fully describes the conduct charged, there is no showing that the contemnor was prejudiced by the failure to clearly denominate the nature of the contempt proceeding, and the contemnor was accorded all rights due a defendant in a criminal contempt proceeding. Schiselman v. Trust Co. Bank, 246 Ga. 274, 271 S.E.2d 183 (1980).

Appeal must be filed with application pursuant to § 5-6-35. — Notice of appeal from a judgment of contempt regarding a domestic relations decree (finding violations by harassment, abuse, threats, assaults, annoyances, and willful refusal to make house payments as ordered), which judgment imposed a 20-day unconditional imprisonment, must be dismissed for failure to file an application for appeal pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(2). Russo v. Manning, 252 Ga. 155, 312 S.E.2d 319 (1984).

Attorney fees. — Trial court was authorized to award attorney fees in a contempt action arising out of a divorce and alimony case, but the court should not have made payment a condition for purging the contempt without first allowing a reasonable time to pay the fees. Gay v. Gay, 268 Ga. 106, 485 S.E.2d 187 (1997).

Attorney fees are not awardable in conjunction with a citation for criminal contempt. Rolleston v. Cherry, 237 Ga. App. 733, 521 S.E.2d 1, cert. denied, 528 U.S. 1046, 120 S. Ct. 580, 145 L. Ed. 2d 482 (1999).

Contempt order requiring the plaintiff to pay $ 17,296.53 in attorney fees and litigation costs under O.C.G.A. § 9-15-14 was affirmed on appeal because the trial court expressly stated that the amount was intended to prevent future violations of, and to coerce compliance with, the injunction issued against the plaintiff and no case law prohibited such a civil contempt sanction. Shooter Alley, Inc. v. City of Doraville, 341 Ga. App. 626, 800 S.E.2d 588 (2017).

Attorney fees cannot be awarded. — Trial court does not have authority to award attorney fees as punishment for contempt. Ragsdale v. Bryan, 235 Ga. 58, 218 S.E.2d 809 (1975).

Power of the superior court to punish contempt is limited by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8, and there is no power to award attorney fees in contempt proceedings. DeKalb County v. Bolick, 249 Ga. 843, 295 S.E.2d 92 (1982); Eckerd Corp. v. Fayette County Bd. of Tax Assessors, 220 Ga. App. 454, 469 S.E.2d 285 (1996); Johnson v. Kaplan, 225 Ga. App. 53, 483 S.E.2d 292 (1997).

Attorney fees are not included in the permissible sanctions for contempt and may not be awarded. Rapaport v. Buckhead, 234 Ga. App. 363, 506 S.E.2d 690 (1998).

Attorney fees not permissible sanction for criminal contempt. — Contempt sanction against the redeeming creditor in the amount of $5,000.00 was vacated as the sanction related to the award of attorney fees as attorney fees were not permissible sanctions for criminal contempt, nor were attorney fees awardable in conjunction with a citation for criminal contempt. J. Michael Vince, LLC v. SunTrust Bank, 352 Ga. App. 791, 835 S.E.2d 809 (2019).

Attorney held in contempt. — "Sentence" of criminal defense attorney in trial court's order to conduct oneself properly as an attorney was actually the method by which the attorney could purge oneself of the contempt. Nothing in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(5) prohibits such an order. In re Booker, 195 Ga. App. 561, 394 S.E.2d 791 (1990).

Because the attorney's motion hearings in one county conflicted with what the attorney thought would be the simple entry of a plea in a second county, but the matter in the second county went to trial (partly because of the attorney's lack of communication with the client), and the attorney failed to appear, or give the second county seven days notice or prompt notice of the conflict, a contempt conviction was proper, a $500 fine, and a requirement to complete 25 hours of community service was not excessive. In re Holt, 262 Ga. App. 730, 586 S.E.2d 414 (2003).

Sanction included removal of attorney from appointed counsel list. — After a trial court held defendant, an attorney, in contempt for allegedly intentionally misstating information about a client during a bond hearing, the trial court acted within the court's authority under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(5) in directing that defendant's name was to be removed from the county appointed counsel list as the sanction simply addressed the administration of the court's business. In re Schoolcraft, 274 Ga. App. 271, 617 S.E.2d 241 (2005).

Suspension of sheriff not authorized. — Superior court was authorized to inflict summary punishment for contempt predicated upon the willful failure of a sheriff, an officer of the court, to obey an oral direction by the court to transfer a defendant to a jail in another county, but was not authorized to temporarily suspend the sheriff, an elected officer, from the position as sheriff. In re Irvin, 171 Ga. App. 794, 321 S.E.2d 119 (1984), modified on other grounds, 254 Ga. 251, 328 S.E.2d 215 (1985).

Willful violation of court order by sheriff. — Trial court did not err in finding a sheriff in criminal contempt for willful violation of the court's order directing the sheriff to transport to the county courthouse four named criminal defendants imprisoned at the county jail for the purpose of hearings in criminal cases because the trial court was empowered to determine that the orderly administration of justice required the presence of the four prisoners at the courthouse and to order the sheriff to transfer the prisoners from the jail to the courthouse; the order was clear and did not direct the sheriff to send one deputy with four prisoners, and the sheriff had ample deputies and resources under the sheriff's control to comply with the court order. In re Bowens, 308 Ga. App. 241, 706 S.E.2d 694 (2011), cert. denied, No. S11C1123, 2011 Ga. LEXIS 581 (Ga. 2011).

Review of trial court decision. — Judgment of trial court in punishing contempt will not be disturbed unless it appears that there is no evidence to support the finding. Shafer v. State, 139 Ga. App. 360, 228 S.E.2d 382 (1976).

Trial court's adjudication of contempt will not be interfered with unless there is a gross, enormous, or flagrant abuse of discretion. Renfroe v. State, 104 Ga. App. 362, 121 S.E.2d 811 (1961), overruled on other grounds, In re Crane, 253 Ga. 667, 324 S.E.2d 443 (1985); Shafer v. State, 139 Ga. App. 360, 228 S.E.2d 382 (1976).

All violations of order need not be proved. — Fact that a petition for citation for contempt also charged a violation of a restraining order not based on the contempt order, which the evidence may have failed to show, did not render erroneous a judgment finding the party guilty and imposing penalties within the provisions of this section as for a single act. Carroll v. Celanese Corp. of Am., 205 Ga. 493, 54 S.E.2d 221 (1949), cert. denied, 338 U.S. 937, 70 S. Ct. 345, 94 L. Ed. 578 (1950).

Punishments not applicable to civil contempt. — Punishments which may be imposed for a criminal contempt set forth in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(5) do not apply to civil contempt sanctions. In re Harvey, 219 Ga. App. 76, 464 S.E.2d 34 (1995).

When the trial court ordered an appellant to pay a receiver's fees in order to be purged of civil contempt, this did not violate O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(5) as the limitations imposed by this provision were not applicable to sanctions imposed for civil contempt. Huffman v. Armenia, 284 Ga. App. 822, 645 S.E.2d 23 (2007), cert. denied, 2007 Ga. LEXIS 554 (Ga. 2007).

Monetary limit of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(5) addresses the circumstance of criminal contempt and is not applicable to sanctions imposed for civil contempt; accordingly, the statute did not apply to an order requiring a husband to pay his wife $1,500 per day until he paid her certain insurance proceeds as the sanction was clearly remedial and thus was civil. Chatfield v. Adkins-Chatfield, 282 Ga. 190, 646 S.E.2d 247 (2007).

Fine in excess of statutory maximum. — Superior court's order punishing contempt by fine of $25,000 was vacated as in excess of the statutory maximum. Mathis v. Corrugated Gear & Sprocket, Inc., 263 Ga. 419, 435 S.E.2d 209 (1993).

Trial court's imposition of punishment for landlord's contempt, that of ordering the landlord to relocate the tenant to another apartment, pay all the expenses associated with the relocation, and reimburse the tenant for the cost of a new mattress and box-spring comparable to that which the tenant owned, not to exceed $500, was vacated as the trial court's contempt punishment could not exceed $500 and the court's order did not make it clear whether the sanction exceeded that amount. H. J. Russell & Co. v. Manuel, 264 Ga. App. 273, 590 S.E.2d 250 (2003).

Appellate court reversed that portion of the trial court's order imposing a fine of more than $1,500, which was the statutorily permitted amount for the professor's three acts adjudicated as criminal contempt at $500 per act. Murtagh v. Emory Univ., 321 Ga. App. 411, 741 S.E.2d 212 (2013), overruled on other grounds by SRM Group, Inc. v. Travelers Prop. Cas. Co. of Am., 308 Ga. 404, 841 S.E.2d 729 (2020).

Excessive criminal contempt fines prohibited. — Probate court's award of damages was reversed because the court could not construe the imposition of more than $19,000 as a fine for criminal contempt as acts of criminal contempt could be punished by fines not exceeding $500, and the imposing of damages for civil contempt violated the law because the probate court imposed damages unconditionally and there was no complaint in the record. In re Estate of Butler, No. A20A1272, 2020 Ga. App. LEXIS 430 (July 17, 2020).

Reduction of excessive fine. — If the fine initially imposed by the trial court was in excess of the fine authorized by this section, the trial court had authority to amend the court's order, reducing the fine to the statutory maximum. Shafer v. State, 139 Ga. App. 360, 228 S.E.2d 382 (1976); Mathis v. Corrugated Gear & Sprocket, Inc., 263 Ga. 419, 435 S.E.2d 209 (1993).

Order for a fine exceeding $500 was not in accord with O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8 because the trial court did not find more than one specific violation of the court's injunction. Lee v. Environmental Pest & Termite Control, Inc., 243 Ga. App. 263, 533 S.E.2d 116 (2000).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Discretion of sheriff to choose when bond of traffic violator returnable. — Sheriff has the discretionary right to choose, from the circumstances involved in the offense, whether a misdemeanor violator of the traffic laws shall be required to give bond returnable to the superior court or shall be taken before the probate court upon request. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 51.

Appeal by Public Service Commission. — Public Service Commission as defendant in superior court action for injunction has right to appeal to Georgia Supreme Court. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-40.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Duties of all judges. — Every court's judges are charged with the duty of administering justice and maintaining dignity and authority of the court. Johnson v. State, 177 Ga. 881, 171 S.E. 699 (1933).

Phrase "all other powers necessarily appertaining to their jurisdictions" is broad and comprehensive. Johnson v. State, 177 Ga. 881, 171 S.E. 699 (1933).

Sua sponte dismissals. — Trial court has inherent authority to dismiss sua sponte a complaint in an appropriate case. Georgia Receivables, Inc. v. Williams, 218 Ga. App. 313, 461 S.E.2d 280 (1995).

Trial court did not err in dismissing sua sponte a patient's battery claims in the absence of a motion for dismissal by the defendants, a dentist and related professional entities. A trial court had the inherent authority to dismiss sua sponte a complaint in an appropriate case; moreover, all of the defendants alleged the patient's failure to state a claim as an affirmative defense in their respective answers, and the entities specifically argued that the patient failed to state a claim for battery in the entities brief filed in response to the patient's motion to place the case on a trial calendar. Paden v. Rudd, 294 Ga. App. 603, 669 S.E.2d 548 (2008).

Blanket restrictions on pro se right of access. — Although a court may in some circumstances issue sua sponte dismissals pursuant to the court's inherent authority recognized in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-9, a blanket prefiling order entered outside of a pending suit, imposing restrictions on the pro se right of access, may not be issued without a hearing on the court's contemplated action. In re Carter, 235 Ga. App. 551, 510 S.E.2d 91 (1998).

Nature of writ of supersedeas. — Supersedeas is either a matter of statutory right, or vested in the discretion of the judge of the superior court under former Penal Code 1895, § 792 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-9). Gustoso Cigar Mfg. Co. v. Ray, 117 Ga. 565, 43 S.E. 984 (1903); Montgomery v. King, 125 Ga. 388, 54 S.E. 135 (1906).

Granting supersedeas if no regular attempt made. — Under the power conferred upon judges of the superior courts by former Civil Code 1910, § 4850 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-9) to grant supersedeas, the judge may, in the exercise of sound discretion, grant a supersedeas if the prevailing party is insolvent and irreparable injury is about to flow from enforcement of the judgment, although the losing party has made no attempt to obtain a supersedeas under former Civil Code 1910, § 6165 (see now O.C.G.A. § 5-6-46 or O.C.G.A. § 5-6-47) at or before the filing of a bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50). Biggers v. Hope, 176 Ga. 141, 167 S.E. 176 (1932).

Filing of notice of appeal in injunction cases does not serve as supersedeas. Citizens to Save Paulding County v. City of Atlanta, 236 Ga. 125, 223 S.E.2d 101 (1976).

Discretion in allowing writ of quo warranto. — Judge may refuse to allow a writ of quo warranto filed unless the writ makes out a prima facie case in favor of the petitioner. Stone v. Wetmore, 44 Ga. 495 (1871).

Appeal from denial of writ of quo warranto. — Writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) lies from the refusal of a judge of the superior court to grant leave to file an information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto. McWilliams v. Jacobs, 128 Ga. 375, 57 S.E. 509 (1907).

Court's discretionary power to appoint attorneys. — Courts have discretionary power independent of any statutory power to appoint attorneys to assist a prosecuting attorney in criminal cases. Mach v. State, 109 Ga. App. 154, 135 S.E.2d 467 (1964).

Authority to order expert evaluation of criminal defendant. — Superior court of the county in which defendant was convicted of murder had authority, on defendant's motion for new trial, to order an expert evaluation of the defendant, who was incarcerated beyond the boundaries of the county in which the court sat. Zant v. Brantley, 261 Ga. 817, 411 S.E.2d 869 (1992).

Authority to question defendant about motion to withdraw guilty plea. — Defendant lost the statutory right to withdraw an Alford plea when the trial court announced the court's sentence, and the trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by denying the defendant's motion or by questioning the defendant about defendant's motion before the court issued the ruling. Harpe v. State, 254 Ga. App. 458, 562 S.E.2d 521 (2002).

Judge of superior court has power to appoint grand jury foreperson, notwithstanding the practice that the grand jury selects its own foreperson. Johnson v. State, 177 Ga. 881, 171 S.E. 699 (1933).

If judge of superior court requires grand jury to elect the jury's own foreperson, it is based upon authority delegated by the judge to the grand jury, and is equivalent to the exercise of the authority of the judge. Johnson v. State, 177 Ga. 881, 171 S.E. 699 (1933).

In the absence of any statute to the contrary, the judge of the superior court has inherent power as the presiding officer of the court to appoint the foreprson of a grand jury from the number of those duly selected and required to serve. This authority vested in the judge by law is not affected by the custom of permitting the members of the grand jury to elect a foreperson. Peeples v. State, 178 Ga. 675, 173 S.E. 850 (1934).

Authority of superior court judge replacing disqualified judge. — If the superior court judge was disqualified, the superior court judge of the other circuit may pass on an injunction without previous designation by the disqualified judge. Galloway v. Mitchell County Elec. Membership Corp., 190 Ga. 428, 9 S.E.2d 903 (1940).

If a superior court judge is disqualified, the superior court judge of another circuit may at interlocutory hearing pass chambers order on demurrer (now motion to dismiss). Galloway v. Mitchell County Elec. Membership Corp., 190 Ga. 428, 9 S.E.2d 903 (1940).

Bail amount. — Sheriff of city court bound to obey mandate of superior court lowering amount of bail fixed by the sheriff. Maddox v. Cowart, 155 Ga. 606, 118 S.E. 39 (1923).

Grant of bail not authorized. — While the trial court had authority to hear and determine the question of the inmate's request for bail under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-9(5)(A), the trial court exceeded the court's authority by granting bail to the inmate since the challenged sentence was originally imposed in a trial court of a different county. Under O.C.G.A. § 9-14-52(c), only the trial court that imposed the original sentence had authority to grant or deny the inmate's bail request. O'Donnell v. Durham, 275 Ga. 860, 573 S.E.2d 23 (2002).

Lower court to approve or disapprove certiorari bond before review. — Judge of superior court, at time of sanctioning petition for certiorari, has no authority to approve certiorari bond if the bond has not been approved or disapproved by the judge who tried the case. Clark v. Morris Plan Bank, 194 Ga. 522, 22 S.E.2d 147, answer conformed to, 68 Ga. App. 174, 22 S.E.2d 415 (1942).

Restraining order within court's power even though not requested. — Once the validity of a temporary restraining order (TRO) was established, there was no error in continuing the TRO in effect until another hearing could be held for a resolution of the issues in the case, this being within the trial judge's inherent power in order to preserve the status quo and the court's jurisdiction pending the final ruling; thus, the fact that the TRO had not been specifically prayed for by the plaintiffs did not invalidate the order. Stewart v. Brown, 253 Ga. 480, 321 S.E.2d 738 (1984).

Suspension of sheriff not authorized. — Superior court was authorized to inflict summary punishment for contempt predicated upon the willful failure of a sheriff, an officer of the court, to obey an oral direction by the court to transfer a defendant to a jail in another county, but was not authorized to temporarily suspend the sheriff, an elected officer, from the sheriff's position. In re Irvin, 171 Ga. App. 794, 321 S.E.2d 119 (1984), modified on other grounds, 254 Ga. 251, 328 S.E.2d 215 (1985).

Post-judgment discovery in aid of execution. — In action brought by bank against corporation seeking recovery on several notes and trade acceptances, as well as to recover an overdraft on a checking account, the trial court was without authority to direct the appellants, sole stockholders in the corporation, to either return all collateral to the premises of the corporation or to provide a list of the equipment. The proper procedure for obtaining such information is by post-judgment discovery in aid of execution, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-69 and appellee's contention that the order to provide a list was authorized pursuant to the trial court's inherent power to issue orders necessary to the exercise of the court's jurisdiction was without merit. Ponderosa Granite Co. v. First Nat'l Bank, 173 Ga. App. 105, 325 S.E.2d 591 (1984).

Appeal from civil contempt order. — While the appeal of an order finding a limited liability company (LLC) in civil contempt was pending, the LLC obtained a supersedeas under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-9, which stayed the application of the civil contempt order during the appeal. Therefore, the trial court erred in imposing civil contempt fines after issuance of the supersedeas. Stewart v. Tricord, LLC, 296 Ga. App. 834, 676 S.E.2d 229 (2009).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Power of nonresident judge to hear matters when originating court in vacation. — Former Code 1933, §§ 24-2613 and 24-2617 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-12), when read in light of former Code 1933, § 24-2616 and Ga. L. 1968, p. 1104, § 9 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 9-11-40 and 15-6-9) conferred authority on a nonresident superior court judge in chambers in that judge's own circuit to hear and determine by interlocutory or final judgment, in accordance with Ga. L. 1968, p. 1104, § 9 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-11-40(b)), any matter in a case from the originating superior court which arises while the originating superior court is in vacation. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Court having jurisdiction may invalidate fraudulent judgment. — An exception to the general rule that the several superior courts of this state have no extraterritorial jurisdiction enabling the court of one county to set aside a judgment rendered by that of a different county is the rule which provides that a court having jurisdiction of the person of one who has obtained a judgment by fraud may invalidate and set aside such judgment. 15-6-11. Electronic filings of pleadings and documents; electronic payments and remittances; access; public disclosure.

(a) Pursuant to rules promulgated by the Criminal Case Data Exchange Board, on and after January 1, 2019, a superior court shall provide for the filing of pleadings in criminal cases and any other document related thereto and for the acceptance of payments and remittances by electronic means.

(b)(1) On and after January 1, 2019, except as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection, all pleadings and any other document related thereto filed by an attorney to initiate a civil action or in a civil case in a superior court shall be filed by electronic means through the court's electronic filing service provider. Except as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection, once a court has commenced mandatory electronic filings in civil cases, a clerk shall not accept, file, or docket any pleading or any other form of paper document related thereto from an attorney in a civil case.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, a court's electronic filing service provider may charge a fee which shall be a recoverable court cost and only include a:

(i) One-time fee for electronically filing pleadings or documents in a civil action and the electronic service of pleadings, regardless of how many parties shall be served, which shall not exceed $30.00 per filer, per party. Such fee shall be paid at the time of the first filing on behalf of a party; provided that when filings are submitted via a public access terminal, upon the first filing not using such terminal, such fee shall be paid;

(ii) Supplemental fee of $5.00 for each filing made in a civil action after a party has made ten electronic filings in such civil action; and

(iii) Convenience fee for credit card and bank drafting services, which shall not exceed 3.5 percent plus a 30¢ payment services fee per transaction.

(B) No electronic filing service provider shall charge a fee pursuant to this paragraph for the filing of:

(i) Pleadings or documents filed by the Department of Law, the Office of Legislative Counsel, the Office of the Secretary of State, a district attorney in his or her official capacity, or a public defender in his or her official capacity;

(ii) Pleadings or documents filed on behalf of municipal corporations or county governments; or

(iii) Leave of absence or conflict notices filed pursuant to the Uniform Rules for the Superior Courts.

(C) With respect to the fee charged pursuant to division (i) of subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, the clerk of superior court shall retain $2.00 of the transaction fee and remit it to the governing authority of the county. No other portion of the transaction fee shall be remitted to any other office or entity of the state or governing authority of a county or municipality.

(D) An attorney, or party if he or she is pro se, shall be allowed unlimited access to view and download any pleading or document electronically filed in connection to the civil action in which he or she is counsel of record or pro se litigant, and an electronic service provider shall not be authorized to charge or collect a fee for such viewing or downloading.

(3) This subsection shall not apply to filings:

(A) In connection with:

(i) A pauper's affidavit;

(ii) Any validation of bonds as otherwise provided for by law;

(iii) Pleadings or documents filed under seal or presented to a court in camera or ex parte; or

(iv) Pleadings or documents to which access is otherwise restricted by law or court order;

(B) Made physically at the courthouse by an attorney or his or her designee or an individual who is not an attorney; provided, however, that the clerk shall require such pleadings or documents made physically at the courthouse by an attorney or his or her designee be submitted via a public access terminal in the clerk's office. The clerk shall not charge the fee as set forth in division (2)(A)(i) of this subsection for such filing but when payment is submitted by credit card or bank draft, the clerk may charge the convenience fee as set forth in division (2)(A)(iii) of this subsection;

(C) Made in a court located in an area that has been declared to be in a state of emergency pursuant to Article 3 of Chapter 3 of Title 38. The Judicial Council of Georgia shall provide rules for filings in such circumstances; or

(D) Made prior to the commencement of mandatory electronic filing for such court, wherein the filer shall continue to pay fees applicable to the case on the date of the first filing; provided, however, that a party may elect to make future filings through the court's electronic filing service provider and pay the applicable fees.

(4) The Judicial Council of Georgia shall make and publish in print or electronically such statewide minimum standards and rules as it deems necessary to carry out this Code section. Each clerk of superior court shall develop and enact policies and procedures necessary to carry out the standards and rules created by the Judicial Council of Georgia.

(c) Nothing in this Code section shall be construed to prevent a clerk's acceptance of payments and remittances by electronic means under the clerk's own authority.

(d) A superior court judge to whom the case is assigned and his or her staff shall, at all times, have access to all pleadings and documents electronically filed and such access shall be provided upon the physical acceptance of such pleadings and documents by the clerk.

(e) Any pleading or document filed electronically shall be deemed filed as of the time of its receipt by the electronic filing service provider.

A pleading or document filed electronically shall not be subject to disclosure until it has been physically accepted by the clerk. Upon such acceptance as provided for in this subsection, such pleading or document shall be publicly accessible for viewing at no cost to the viewer on a public access terminal available at the courthouse during regular business hours.

The 2018 amendment, effective July 1, 2018, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: "By court rule or standing order, any superior court may provide for the filing of pleadings and any other documents and for the acceptance of payments and remittances by electronic means. Nothing in this Code section shall be construed to prevent a clerk's acceptance of payments and remittances by electronic means under the clerk's own authority."

The 2019 amendment, effective May 7, 2019, rewrote paragraphs (2) and (3) of subsection (b).

Editor's notes. — Former Code Section 15-6-11, pertaining to authority of certain courts to sit in sections, the clerk's duties, and the discretion of judges, was repealed by Ga. L. 1981, p. 3, § 2, effective April 1, 1982. The former Code section was based on Ga. 15-6-11.1. Superior court judges performing ordered military duty.

(a) Any judge of superior court who is performing ordered military duty, as defined in Code Section 38-2-279, shall be eligible for reelection in any primary or general election which may be held to elect a successor for the next term of office and may qualify in absentia as a candidate for reelection to such office. The performance of ordered military duty shall not create a vacancy in such office during the term for which such judge was elected.

(b) Where the giving of written notice of candidacy is required, any judge of superior court who is performing ordered military duty may deliver such notice by mail, agent, or messenger to the proper elections official. Any other act required by law of a candidate for public office may, during the time such official is on ordered military duty, be performed by an agent designated in writing by the absent public official.

Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2008, a comma was deleted following "office" in the first sentence of subsection (a).

15-6-12. Judges' jurisdiction coextensive with limits of state; authority when serving in other circuits.

(a) The jurisdiction of the judges of the superior courts is coextensive with the limits of this state; they may act in circuits other than their own when authorized by law, but they are not compelled to alternate unless required by law.

(b) The authority granted in subsection (a) of this Code section to each judge in his own circuit may be exercised by any judge of another circuit whenever the resident judge is absent from the circuit so that the business thereof cannot be done as speedily as necessary, or is indisposed, or is interested in a case, or is laboring under any disqualification or inability to serve, or in case the circuit is, from any cause, without a judge. The grounds for the exercise of such authority should be shown.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Superior court judge may preside in any circuit. Daniels v. Towers, 79 Ga. 785, 7 S.E. 120 (1887).

Superior court judges may alternate though neither are disqualified. Harrison & Co. v. Hall Safe & Lock Co., 64 Ga. 558 (1880).

Powers to which Code section applicable. — This Code section is applicable to the power of applying for mandamus. Glover v. Morris, 122 Ga. 768, 50 S.E. 956 (1905).

Former Civil Code 1895, § 5839 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-12) was expressly applicable to powers conferred on judge by former Civil Code 1895, § 4321 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-9). Burge v. Mangum, 134 Ga. 307, 67 S.E. 857 (1910).

This section is applicable to the power of granting injunctions. Carson v. Ennis, 146 Ga. 726, 92 S.E. 221, 1917E L.R.A. 650 (1917).

Designation of judge to act if resident judge is sick is not required. Pendergrass v. Duke, 144 Ga. 839, 88 S.E. 198 (1916).

Disqualification may be waived by all parties. — When the judge is disqualified because of a relationship "to any party interested in the result of the case or matter," the judge's disqualification may be waived by all of the parties, and in the absence of such a waiver, the judge of any other circuit, who is qualified, may act and preside for the disqualified resident judge. Howard v. Warren, 206 Ga. 838, 59 S.E.2d 503 (1950).

Effect of disqualification. — If the superior court judge was disqualified, the superior court judge of the other circuit may pass on an injunction without the previous designation by the disqualified judge. Galloway v. Mitchell County Elec.

Membership Corp., 190 Ga. 428, 9 S.E.2d 903 (1940).

Superior court judge of another circuit may at interlocutory hearing pass chambers order on demurrer (now motion to dismiss). Galloway v. Mitchell County Elec. Membership Corp., 190 Ga. 428, 9 S.E.2d 903 (1940).

Complaint seeking extraordinary relief must be sanctioned by resident judge of circuit before the complaint can be filed unless the resident judge is disqualified to act, and, in case of the judge's disqualification, by the judge of some other circuit, who is qualified. Howard v. Warren, 206 Ga. 838, 59 S.E.2d 503 (1950).

Example of interested judge. — Judge of the superior court, who is a depositor creditor of an insolvent bank in charge of the Superintendent of Banks (now commissioner of banking and finance) for purposes of liquidation, is pecuniarily interested and therefore disqualified to act in an action for accounting, injunction, and receiver, instituted by a principal against an agent and the superintendent (now commissioner), seeking to recover an interest in dividends due to an estate in control of the agent for the principal, which the superintendent (now commissioner) has wrongfully applied to the individual debt of the agent, and enjoining other similar impending misapplication of dividends due to the estate. Gaskins v. Gaskins, 181 Ga. 124, 181 S.E. 850 (1935).

Administrative judge may obtain senior judge from another district. — O.C.G.A. § 15-5-5(2) does not prevent an administrative judge from obtaining the services of a senior judge from outside the administrative district because superior court judges, including senior judges, have jurisdiction to act in any circuit other than their own when the resident judge is disqualified. Shoemake v. Woodland Equities, Inc., 252 Ga. 389, 313 S.E.2d 689 (1984).

Judge serving in another circuit may sign sentence as member of circuit. — If it appeared from the certificate of a judge overruling a motion to vacate a sentence that the judge was presiding in Fulton Superior Court at the time of resentencing, the passing and signing of the sentence by the judge was valid and the fact that the judge signed with the addition of the letters "A.J.C.," meaning the Atlanta Judicial Circuit, where the judge was at that time presiding, presented no reason why the sentence should have been set aside. Fluker v. State, 187 Ga. 418, 1 S.E.2d 29 (1939).

Court having jurisdiction may invalidate fraudulent judgment. — An exception to the general rule, that the several superior courts of this state have no extraterritorial jurisdiction enabling the court of one county to set aside a judgment rendered by that of a different county, is the rule which provides that a court having jurisdiction of the person of one who obtained a judgment by fraud may invalidate and set aside such judgment. Boroughs v. Belcher, 211 Ga. 273, 85 S.E.2d 422 (1955).

Absence of regular judge does not appear on record. — Since the record of a certiorari case showed that the petition was sanctioned by the judge of another circuit than that in which the case was pending, but did not show that the judge of the latter circuit was absent therefrom, but, upon a subsequent motion to dismiss the writ on that ground before the resident judge certified that the resident judge had, in fact, been absent and overruled the motion, such ruling was not error. Prescott v. Carter, 76 Ga. 103 (1885).

Motions to dismiss. — Petition presented to judge acting under authority of this section not subject to demurrer (now motion to dismiss) on ground that the petition did not allege that judge had jurisdiction. Roberson v. Orr, 158 Ga. 34, 122 S.E. 781 (1924).

Courts have no compulsory process outside boundaries of this state. Wallace v. State, 134 Ga. App. 708, 215 S.E.2d 703 (1975).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Power of nonresident judge to hear matters when originating court in vacation. — Former Code 1933, §§ 24-2613 and 24-2617 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-12), when read in light of former Code 1933, § 24-2616 and Ga. L. 1968, p. 1104, § 9 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 9-11-40(b) and 15-6-9), confers authority on the nonresident superior court judge in chambers in the judge's own circuit to hear and determine by interlocutory or final judgment, in accordance with Ga. L. 1968, p. 1104, § 9, any matter in a case from the originating superior court which arises while the originating superior court is in vacation. (However, see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-19.) 1975 Op. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Former Civil Code 1910, §§ 4855, 4856, 4857, and 4858 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-13 and 15-6-14) provided three methods to secure judge of another circuit, if the resident judge is disqualified for any of the reasons specified by former Civil Code 1910, § 4642 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-1-8). Shuford v. Shuford, 141 Ga. 407, 81 S.E. 115 (1914).

Former Civil Code 1895, §§ 4326 and 4328 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-13) did not apply to proceedings originating and triable in chambers, but former Civil Code 1895, §§ 4316, 4322, and 5839 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-12) governed such cases. Glover v. Morris, 122 Ga. 768, 50 S.E. 956 (1905); Burge v. Mangum, 134 Ga. 307, 67 S.E. 857 (1910)

(decided prior to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. VIII; see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. VI).

Third judge may hear rule nisi motion granted by replacement judge. — If rule nisi on motion is granted by a judge presiding for a regular judge, the motion may be heard by still another judge, procured by the disqualified judge of the circuit. Allen v. State, 102 Ga. 619, 29 S.E. 470 (1897).

Duty of judge limited if motion to recuse. — When a trial judge in a case pending in that court is presented with a motion to recuse accompanied by an affidavit, the judge's duty will be limited to passing upon the legal sufficiency of the affidavit, and if, assuming all the facts alleged in the affidavit to be true, recusal would be warranted, then another judge must be assigned to hear the motion to recuse. State v. Fleming, 245 Ga. 700, 267 S.E.2d 207 (1980).

If trial judge is disqualified in case, it is the trial judge's duty to provide a qualified judge. Dupriest v. Reese, 104 Ga. App. 805, 123 S.E.2d 161 (1961).

Exercise of discretion by disqualified judge with regard to selection of successor judge is properly limited to the disqualified judge's participation in the adoption by the judicial district of an impartial procedure for the selection. Ferry v. State, 245 Ga. 698, 267 S.E.2d 1 (1980).

This section does not apply to multi-judge judicial circuits and consequently a successor judge can be selected from the disqualified judge's own judicial circuit or judicial administrative district. Ferry v. State, 245 Ga. 698, 267 S.E.2d 1 (1980).

Assignment to judge in another circuit not required. — While this section empowers a judge to assign any case in which the judge is disqualified for any reason, there is no requirement that the case must be assigned to a judge in another circuit if there is a judge in the disqualified judge's own circuit who is not disqualified from hearing the case. Ferry v. State, 151 Ga. App. 436, 260 S.E.2d 351 (1979), aff'd, 245 Ga. 698, 267 S.E.2d 1 (1980).

State court judge may preside when properly designated. — State court judge is a member of the bar, and when properly designated, is competent to preside in the seat of a senior superior court judge who is unable to preside due to illness. Fielding v. Fielding, 236 Ga. 114, 223 S.E.2d 85 (1976).

Senior judge without jurisdiction to certify bill of exceptions. — Because a superior court judge emeritus (now senior judge) has not been granted constitutional or statutory authority to serve as a superior court judge, except when the Governor is authorized to call upon the judge to do so or the judge is selected to serve as such in a civil case under former Code 1933, § 24-2625 or § 24-2626 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-13 or O.C.G.A. § 15-6-14), it necessarily follows that a superior court judge emeritus (now senior judge) not within these exceptions is wholly without jurisdiction or power to certify a bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) in a case tried by a superior court judge. Chambers v. Wynn, 217 Ga. 381, 122 S.E.2d 571 (1961).

15-6-14. Selection of replacement judge when disqualified judge fails to act.

(a) When from any cause the judge of the superior court or any city court is disqualified from presiding in any civil case and has failed to procure the services of a judge to try the case, then the parties litigant, by consent, may select any attorney of this state to preside in the case; the attorney so selected, when the consent is entered on the minutes, shall exercise all the functions of a judge in that case. Any senior judge of the superior courts may likewise be selected.

(b) In all cases mentioned in subsection (a) of this Code section, when the case or cases are reached in their order on the docket without an agreement by the parties as to the selection of an attorney to preside as judge, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court or in his absence, the deputy clerk to select some competent attorney practicing in that court, who shall likewise have authority and preside in the case as aforesaid. Any senior judge of the superior courts may likewise be selected.

History of Code section. — This Code section is partly derived from the decision in Steam Laundry Co. v. Thompson, 91 Ga. 47, 16 S.E. 198 (1892).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — This section was not violative of either the letter or the spirit of the Constitution. Henderson v. Pope, 39 Ga. 361 (1869); Drawdy v. Littlefield, 75 Ga. 215 (1885); Bivins v. Bank of Richland, 109 Ga. 342, 34 S.E. 602 (1899).

There is no provision for appointment of member of the bar as judge pro hac vice in a criminal case. Castleberry v. State, 68 Ga. 49 (1881), overruled on other grounds, Ricks v. State, 303 Ga. 567, 814 S.E.2d 318, 2018 Ga. LEXIS 288 (2018).

Clerk need not attempt to secure services of other judge. — It is not essential to the validity of the act of the clerk in selecting the attorney to try the case that an effort should have been made by the judge to procure the services of another judge; or that the parties must have attempted and failed to agree in the selection of an attorney to try the case; or that the order appointing the attorney should first be spread upon the minutes of the court; or that one of the parties who was absent at the time of the selection by the clerk was not notified by the adversary of the party's intention to demand that the clerk select an attorney to preside in the case. Beck v. Henderson, 76 Ga. 360 (1886); Steam Laundry Co. v. Thompson, 91 Ga. 47, 16 S.E. 198 (1892); Robinson v. McArthur, 166 Ga. 611, 144 S.E. 19 (1928).

Judge pro hac vice cannot be selected by disqualified judge. Bedingfield v. First Nat'l Bank, 4 Ga. App. 197, 61 S.E. 30 (1908).

Deputy clerk may make appointment if clerk absent. Steam Laundry Co. v. Thompson, 91 Ga. 47, 16 S.E. 198 (1892).

State court judge may preside when properly designated. — State court judge is a member of the bar, and when properly designated, is competent to preside in the seat of a senior superior court judge who is unable to preside due to illness. Fielding v. Fielding, 236 Ga. 114, 223 S.E.2d 85 (1976).

Selecting senior judge to hear case. — This section authorized parties' litigant to select any judge of superior courts emeritus (now senior judge) to preside in the cause. Chambers v. Wynn, 217 Ga. 381, 122 S.E.2d 571 (1961).

Senior judge without jurisdiction to certify bill of exceptions. — Because a superior court judge emeritus (now senior judge) has not been granted constitutional or statutory authority to serve as a superior court judge, except when the Governor is authorized to call upon the judge to do so or the judge is selected to serve as such in a civil case under former Code 1933, §§ 24-2625, 24-2626, §§ 24-2623, or 24-2624 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-13 or O.C.G.A. § 15-6-14) it necessarily followed that a superior court judge emeritus (now senior judge) not within these exceptions is wholly without jurisdiction or power to certify a bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) in a case tried by a superior court judge. Chambers v. Wynn, 217 Ga. 381, 122 S.E.2d 571 (1961).

Judge pro hac vice has all powers of regular judge over case wherein the judge presides, not only with respect to the jury trial of the case, but also with respect to matters of review and appeal, and other matters subsequent to the judgment. Norris v. Pollard, 75 Ga. 358 (1885); Gainesville Buggy & Wagon Co. v. Morrow, 23 Ga. App. 268, 98 S.E. 100 (1919).

Judge pro hac vice has all powers of regular judge when, by consent, verdict was not received by regular judge. Roberts v. Bank of LaGrange, 23 Ga. App. 660, 99 S.E. 145 (1919), later appeal, 25 Ga. App. 343, 103 S.E. 176 (1920).

Judge pro hac vice may hear motion for new trial in superior court. Clayton & Co. v. Wallace, 41 Ga. 268 (1870).

Decision subject to review. — Writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) will lie from the Supreme Court to correct such errors as may be committed by the pro hac vice judge holding the superior court in a case in which the judge of the circuit is an interested party. Henderson v. Pope, 39 Ga. 361 (1869).

Objection to person appointed by clerk to act as judge must be made to that judge. Kimbrough v. Pitts, 63 Ga. 496 (1879).

Necessity of appearance of appointment on records. — If appointment of judge pro hac vice does not appear on the record, the judge's refusal to dismiss the case will be reversed on appeal. Worsham v. Murchison, 66 Ga. 715 (1881).

Attorney acting as judge pro hac vice not required to be sworn as such. Reeves v. Graffling, 67 Ga. 512 (1881).

15-6-15. Assignment by Governor of alternate for disabled judge; duty of judge assigned.

(a) Whenever it is satisfactorily made to appear to the Governor that any regular term of the superior court, as fixed by law, in any county, will not be held or continued in session because of the bodily or mental sickness or other disability of the judge of the superior court of the circuit in which such county is located and when it is likewise made to appear that any special term of the superior court, in any county, for like causes, will not be held or continued in session, it shall be the duty of the Governor to name and assign another superior court judge to proceed to the county and to hold the regular or special term of the court. However, no judge shall be named or assigned to hold such court when the time fixed for holding the same conflicts with the time fixed by law for the holding of any regular or special term already called by him in his circuit.

(b) It shall be the duty of any judge of the superior courts, when named and assigned by the Governor as provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, to proceed to the county where the court in question is to be held and to open and hold the same in the manner prescribed by law or by the order of the presiding judge of that circuit in the calling of a special term.

15-6-17. Time and place of holding court generally; habeas corpus and other nonjury proceedings; satellite courthouses.

(a) One or more of the judges of the superior courts must hold the superior court of each circuit at the county site and courthouse, if any, of each county in the respective judicial circuit or at some other place at the county site designated by law not less than twice each year, at such times as are prescribed by the General Assembly; provided, however, that, in any county in which a state correctional institution, county correctional institution, or jail is located, one or more judges of the superior court of such county shall be authorized to conduct habeas corpus and other nonjury proceedings pursuant to Article 2 of Chapter 14 of Title 9 involving inmates of such state correctional institution, county correctional institution, or jail in a suitable room at the institution. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed or interpreted to require any judge to conduct habeas corpus and other nonjury proceedings pursuant to Article 2 of Chapter 14 of Title 9 involving inmates of such state correctional institution, county correctional institution, or jail nor to establish any right of any inmate of any such correctional institution to have any habeas corpus and other nonjury proceedings pursuant to Article 2 of Chapter 14 of Title 9 involving inmates of such correctional institutions.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, in a county where the county site is located in an unincorporated area of the county, the county governing authority may construct one or more permanent satellite courthouses within the county and designate each such structure as a courthouse annex or otherwise establish each such structure as an additional courthouse to the courthouse located at the county site. The judges of the superior court in such county may hold sessions of superior court and conduct all other superior court business at the additional courthouse locations or at the courthouse at the county site. One or more of the judges of the superior court must hold a session of superior court at the county site not less than twice each year. All actions taken by a superior court judge at any additional courthouse in accordance with this subsection shall be fully valid and binding as though taken and performed at the county site.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided prior to the amendment to Code Section 15-6-19 passed by Ga. L. 1972, p. 713, which changed the terms of court, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Judgment not void if rendered at courthouse but not in regular court room. Walton v. Wilkinson Bolton Co., 158 Ga. 13, 123 S.E. 103 (1924) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Local Acts may provide for varying number of sessions. Burge v. Mangum, 134 Ga. 307, 67 S.E. 857 (1910); Spooner v. Coachman, 18 Ga. App. 705, 90 S.E. 373 (1916); Geer v. Bush, 146 Ga. 701, 92 S.E. 47 (1917) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Notice must be taken of meetings and adjournments of superior court. Rawson v. Powell, 36 Ga. 255 (1867) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Notice requirement rule applies though there may be no judge for circuit which embraces that place. Rutledge v. Bullock, 44 Ga. 23 (1871) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Limitation on place of holding court. — Judges of the superior courts must hold the superior courts of each circuit at the county site and courthouse (if any) of each county, or other place therein designated by law; and orders passed in one county on matters over which the superior court of another county has jurisdiction are mere nullities. Goodman v. Little, 96 Ga. App. 110, 99 S.E.2d 517 (1957) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Superior court without power on appeal in another county. — When certain appeals from the court of ordinary (now probate court) of one county are entered to the superior court of that county, the trial court is without jurisdiction to pass orders, or to hold hearings concerning such appeals in another county, and when upon appeal to the Court of Appeals error is assigned on such procedure, the orders so entered will be reversed. Goodman v. Little, 96 Ga. App. 110, 99 S.E.2d 517 (1957) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Effect of sitting in wrong county. — Charter granted by a court sitting in a county other than the one prescribed by law is void. Rogers v. Toccoa Power Co., 161 Ga. 524, 131 S.E. 517, 44 A.L.R. 534 (1926) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Grand jury is but an arm of superior court which sits within the county. Gates v. State, 73 Ga. App. 824, 38 S.E.2d 311 (1946) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

Two superior courts not open on same day when one adjourning. — If the Superior Court of Pike County is adjourned on the third Monday in October and the Superior Court of Henry County is open on the same day, both being in the same circuit, the two courts are not in session at the same time. Perdue v. State, 134 Ga. 300, 67 S.E. 810 (1910) (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1972, p. 713).

15-6-18. Alternative locations.

(a) If for any cause it shall or may be impracticable to hold any session or sitting of any superior or state court at the courthouse or other place provided by law therefor, it shall be lawful to hold court and any session or sitting thereof at such place as the proper authorities of the county in and for which the court is to be held may from time to time provide for such purpose, provided that except as provided in subsection (b) of this Code section no session or sitting of any superior court may be held under this subsection at any place other than the county site of the county of such court.

(b) The provisions of this subsection shall apply only in a county in which there exists a state court with one or more courtrooms regularly utilized by the state court outside the county site. In any such county any session of superior court may be held outside the county site in a courtroom of the state court, subject to the following conditions and limitations:

(1) The senior judge or chief judge of superior court (such terms meaning the active judge who is senior in time of service) must enter a written order for such session of superior court to be so held outside the county site, and such order must incorporate a written finding that it is impracticable for the session of court to be held at the county site;

(2) A judge of the state court must enter a written order consenting for such session of superior court to be held in the courtroom of the state court;

(3) The holding of superior court sessions shall not affect the place of filing of documents to be filed with the superior court, except for documents filed in open court which may be filed where the session of court is held; and

(4) Any state court making courtroom space available to the superior court under this subsection shall be authorized under the same rules to hold sessions of state court in facilities of the superior court.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsections (a) and (b) of this Code section:

(1) In each county of this state having a population of not more than 50,000 according to the United States decennial census of 1990 or any future such census, if for any cause it shall or may be impractical to hold any session or sitting of any superior or state court at the courthouse or other place provided by law therefor or if it should appear to the governing authority of the county that the best interest of the public would be served by the furnishing of alternate or additional facilities for the holding of any session or sitting of any superior or state court, it shall be lawful to hold court and any session or sitting thereof at such place or places as the governing authority of the county in and for which the court is to be held may from time to time, by appropriate resolution, provide for such purpose, provided that no session or sitting of any superior court or state court may be held under this subsection at any place that is not open to and accessible by the public; provided, further, that no criminal jury trial shall be conducted in such alternate or additional facility unless such location is a facility owned or leased by the governing authority of the county; and

(2) In each county of this state where the county site is located in an unincorporated area of the county and the governing authority of such county determines by appropriate resolution that the best interest of the citizens of such county would be served by the construction of a courthouse annex or satellite courthouse outside the county site, it shall be lawful to hold any session or sitting of superior or state court or grand jury and to conduct all other related business of the courts at such annex or satellite courthouse.

(d) All acts of a superior court or state court done at a place provided therefor by the county authorities, other than at the county courthouse or other place of holding such court as fixed by law, shall have the same force and effect as if the same had been done at the regular courthouse or other place fixed by law for the holding of such court, including the satisfaction of the requirements of Code Section 15-6-17.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Consent required to conduct criminal jury trial in alternate or additional facility. — Because O.C.G.A. § 15-6-18(c)(1) expressly states that no criminal jury trial shall be conducted in such alternate or additional facility without the consent of the accused, the plain language of § 15-6-18(c)(1) requires that the accused's consent be obtained in order to conduct a criminal jury trial in an alternate or additional facility; while nothing in § 15-6-18(c)(1) requires that the accused's consent be in writing, in order for the appellate courts to verify that the state has complied with this statutory mandate, an accused's consent to having his or her criminal jury trial conducted in an alternate or additional facility must be established by the record. Purvis v. State, 288 Ga. 865, 708 S.E.2d 283 (2011).

Failure to obtain defendant's consent not reversible error. — Although the supreme court found that the trial court violated O.C.G.A. § 15-6-18(c)(1) by holding the defendant's trial at a location other than the county courthouse without the defendant's consent, the error did not constitute reversible error because the defendant failed to allege harm or attempt to support a finding of such by evidence. Goodman v. State, 293 Ga. 80, 742 S.E.2d 719 (2013).

Validity of decisions at locations other than courthouse. — This section contemplated that cases tried at places other than at courthouse shall be valid. Davis v. State, 240 Ga. 763, 243 S.E.2d 12 (1978), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1010, 103 S. Ct. 189, 74 L. Ed. 2d 153 (1982); Pittman v. State, 196 Ga. App. 864, 397 S.E.2d 302 (1990).

Waiver of error in holding trial at unauthorized location. — If trial held at unauthorized location, presence of counsel does not waive error. Bankers' Health & Life Ins. Co. v. James, 45 Ga. App. 346, 164 S.E. 684 (1932).

Defendant's failure to object at trial to the propriety of holding trial in city hall rather than in superior court building barred the defendant from raising the issue for the first time on appeal. Jefferson v. State, 196 Ga. App. 770, 397 S.E.2d 129 (1990).

Grand jury is but an arm of superior court which sits within the county. Gates v. State, 73 Ga. App. 824, 38 S.E.2d 311 (1946).

Criminal trial held in county jail. — It was improper to hold the defendant's trial at a county jail because no consent was obtained from the defendant for conducting the criminal jury trial in a courtroom located inside the county jail, i.e., an alternate or additional facility under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-18(c)(1); Drake v. State, 231 Ga. App. 776 (1998), is also overruled. Purvis v. State, 288 Ga. 865, 708 S.E.2d 283 (2011).

No harm shown. — Although there was no record that the County Board of Commissioners authorized moving defendant's trial to a courthouse in a different county, there was no evidence that the conduct of the trial was negatively impacted. Dubose v. State, 294 Ga. 579, 755 S.E.2d 174 (2014).

15-6-19. Length of terms of courts.

The regular terms of the superior and state courts shall continue until the commencement of the next regular term, at which time they shall stand adjourned.

This section was directory, and not mandatory. Horkan v. Beasley, 11 Ga. App. 273, 75 S.E. 341 (1912); Luke v. Luke, 32 Ga. App. 738, 124 S.E. 556 (1924).

Motion for new trial goes to next term. — Preceding term of the court stands adjourned by operation of law five days prior to the commencement of the succeeding term; and a motion for new trial made in one term automatically goes over to the next regular term, and the judge is without jurisdiction to dismiss the motion in vacation. Marshall v. State, 34 Ga. App. 434, 129 S.E. 665 (1925) (decided prior to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. VIII; see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. VI).

Power to modify final judgment during term. — Trial court has the power to modify a final judgment including a fee award in a divorce case during the term in which the judgment was entered. Haim v. Haim, 251 Ga. 618, 308 S.E.2d 179 (1983).

Attempt to retain jurisdiction of final order beyond term. — Attempt to retain jurisdiction of a final order to the extent of allowing any party to file objections and thereby have the matter reconsidered by the court beyond the term in which the final order is entered is contrary to law and is a nullity. Long v. Long, 247 Ga. 624, 278 S.E.2d 370 (1981).

No power to modify merits of decree after term. — After the expiration of the term at which a decree was entered, it is out of the power of the court to modify and revise the decree in any matter of substance or in any manner affecting the merits. Long v. Long, 247 Ga. 624, 278 S.E.2d 370 (1981).

Continuation of term until five days before next scheduled term. — Term of the superior court of a county at which an original divorce and alimony decree is entered continues until five days before commencement of the next regularly scheduled term, unless adjourned. Dover v. Dover, 205 Ga. 241, 53 S.E.2d 492 (1949) (decided prior to the 1972 amendment to this Code section).

Extra trial week scheduled during a term of court does not create a new term of court; terms of court are created by statute. Proveaux v. State, 198 Ga. App. 119, 401 S.E.2d 12 (1990), cert. denied, 198 Ga. App. 898, 401 S.E.2d 12 (1991).

Release of jurors not adjournment. — Mere fact that the court released the jurors in a criminal case did not amount to an express adjournment of the term, especially since the trial court indicated at the hearing on defendant's motion for acquittal that, by releasing the jurors, the court did not intend to adjourn the term prematurely. Bailey v. State, 209 Ga. App. 390, 433 S.E.2d 610 (1993), overruled on other grounds, Walker v. State, 290 Ga. 696, 723 S.E.2d 894 (2012).

15-6-20. Special terms.

The judges of the superior courts may, in their discretion, hold special terms of court in any county within their respective circuits when the business requires it to close the dockets and may, in the exercise of a sound discretion, cause new juries to be drawn for the same or may order the juries drawn for the regular term to give their attendance upon such special terms. The judges are authorized to hold special terms of court for the trial of criminal cases or for the disposition of civil business, or both, in any county of their circuits, at their discretion, and either to compel the attendance of grand or trial jurors of a previous term or to draw new jurors, according to law.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided prior to the amendment to Code Section 15-6-19 passed by Ga. L. 1972, p. 713, which changed the terms of court, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Distinction between adjourned and special terms. — Distinction between an adjourned term and a special term lies in the fact that the latter is called after the adjournment of one regular term and before the time for the next regular term. McGinnis v. Ragsdale, 116 Ga. 245, 42 S.E.2d 492 (1902).

Special term is one that is called after the adjournment of a regular term and before the time for the next regular term. Proveaux v. State, 198 Ga. App. 119, 401 S.E.2d 12 (1990).

Distinction between special and regular terms. — Former Code 1933, § 24-3009 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-20) referred to special terms, and former Code 1933, § 59-710 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-12-127) referred to the regular terms and to counties where, by law, a court sits for two weeks. Peacock v. State, 53 Ga. App. 599, 186 S.E. 882 (1936).

Terms prescribed by law could not be considered special terms. — If the law provided for four terms without restriction to their being jury or non-jury, criminal or civil, and each of the four terms was prescribed by law, none of the terms could be considered a special term. Campbell v. State, 199 Ga. App. 25, 403 S.E.2d 882 (1991).

City courts may hold special terms if Acts creating the terms so provide. Brinson v. Tennessee Chem. Co., 32 Ga. App. 456, 123 S.E. 731 (1924).

Code section authorizes recall of grand jury. — This section authorized a judge, in the judge's discretion, to call a special term and to compel attendance of the grand jury that served at the April term, notwithstanding the term was called during the July term and the April term did not "immediately precede" the special term. Haden v. State, 176 Ga. 304, 168 S.E. 272 (1933).

Presumption of legality with respect to jury attendance. — If defendant shows no error in the trial court's denial of defendant's challenge to the array with respect to orders that the juries drawn for the regular term give the juries' attendance upon adjourned terms, it is presumed that the trial court proceeded legally, since it is incumbent on the defendant to show that the trial court was not meeting pursuant to adjournment. Dickerson v. State, 151 Ga. App. 429, 260 S.E.2d 535 (1979).

Holding jurors over to adjourned session. — The trial judge may adjourn court and hold jurors over to adjourned session. Gunter v. State, 243 Ga. 651, 256 S.E.2d 341 (1979).

Referring to previously adjourned term on jury list. — If term is called as a special term, it is not illegal if it refers to a previously adjourned term on the list of jurors. Hulsey v. State, 172 Ga. 797, 159 S.E. 270 (1931).

Process and pleading of adjourned term is same as in regular term. Hodnett v. Stone, 93 Ga. 645, 20 S.E. 43 (1894).

Order for special term may be passed on day illegally set for convening of adjourned term, providing for a special session on that day. Walker v. O'Connor, 23 Ga. App. 22, 97 S.E. 276 (1918).

Effect of Code section on speedy trial provisions. — If defendant filed a demand for trial during the July 1986 term of the superior court and defendant was tried during the January 1987 term of court, i.e., during the second regular term of court following the term in which defendant's demand was filed, notwithstanding that special juries had been empanelled in the interim, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-20, the defendant was given a trial before more than two regular terms of court were convened and adjourned after the term at which the demand was filed, as required by O.C.G.A. § 17-7-171. Wade v. State, 258 Ga. 324, 368 S.E.2d 482 (1988), cert. denied, 502 U.S. 1060, 112 S. Ct. 941, 117 L. Ed. 2d 111 (1992).

If a superior court has four successive terms, and if, in January, after the jury panels used in the regular November term had been excused, a "Special Term Jury Trial Calendar" was issued and jurors were summoned for January 30 for a murder trial commencing that day and continuing to February 1, the January trial was conducted in a special session of the November term, not in a separately called special term. Kirk v. State, 194 Ga. App. 801, 392 S.E.2d 249 (1990).

Cited in Harris v. State, 191 Ga. 243, 12 S.E.2d 64 (1940); Oliver v. Crawford, 194 Ga. 168, 21 S.E.2d 62 (1942); Green v. State, 246 Ga. 598, 272 S.E.2d 475 (1980).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Drawing of grand jurors for special term. — This section did not require that grand jurors drawn for special term must be drawn at close of the regular term; to do so would greatly inhibit the court's use of special terms for the court's business. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-304.

Per diem charge by sheriff and clerk for attending transferred court. — Superior court of one county may be held in another county of the district, and sheriff and clerk of former county may charge per diem for attending superior court of their county. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 66.

15-6-21. Time for deciding motions; filing and notification; noncompliance as ground for impeachment.

(a) In a county with less than 100,000 inhabitants, it shall be the duty of the judge of the superior, state, or city court, unless providentially hindered or unless counsel for the plaintiff and the defendant agree in writing to extend the time, to decide promptly, within 30 days after the same have been argued before him or submitted to him without argument, all motions for new trials, injunctions, demurrers, and all other motions of any nature.

(b) In all counties with more than 100,000 inhabitants, it shall be the duty of the judge of the superior, state, or city court, unless providentially hindered or unless counsel for the plaintiff and the defendant agree in writing to extend the time, to decide promptly, within 90 days after the same have been argued before him or submitted to him without argument, all motions for new trials, injunctions, demurrers, and all other motions of any nature.

(c) When he or she has so decided, it shall be the duty of the judge to file his or her decision with the clerk of the court in which the cases are pending and to notify the attorney or attorneys of the losing party of his or her decision. Said notice shall not be required if such notice has been waived pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 9-11-5.

(d) If any judge fails or refuses, unless providentially hindered or unless counsel for the plaintiff and the defendant agree in writing to extend the time, to obey the provisions of subsections (a) through (c) of this Code section, or if any judge repeatedly or persistently fails or refuses to decide the various motions, demurrers, and injunctions coming before him in the manner provided by such subsections, such conduct shall be grounds for impeachment and the penalty therefor shall be his removal from office.

General Consideration

Superior court judge is named as respondent. — Although there may occasionally appear to be a need to file an original petition in the Supreme Court to issue process in the nature of mandamus, and perhaps quo warranto or prohibition, if a superior court judge is named as the respondent, such as if the petitioner seeks to require the judge to enter an order in a matter allegedly pending more than 30 days in violation of subsection (a) of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21, such a petition may in fact be filed in the appropriate superior court. Being the respondent, the superior court judge will be disqualified, another superior court judge will be appointed to hear and determine the matter, and the final decision may be appealed to the Supreme Court for review. Brown v. Johnson, 251 Ga. 436, 306 S.E.2d 655 (1983).

Failure to enter written ruling not error on discovery motion. — Trial court did not err by not entering a written ruling upon a debtor's motion for additional discovery since the trial court ruled on the first motion for additional discovery verbally, without objection, granting the debtor the additional discovery, and no objection was made contemporaneously with regard to the renewed motion when no written ruling was made. Murphy v. Varner, 292 Ga. App. 747, 666 S.E.2d 53 (2008).

Out of state attorney lacked standing. — Florida attorney who had been admitted pro hac vice to represent a defendant in a tire case, but whose duties were limited by the trial court due to the attorney's misleading statements, and whose client was later dismissed from the case, did not have standing to seek mandamus compelling the trial court to rule on motions under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(b) so the attorney could appeal the ruling as to the attorney's conduct. Fein v. Bessen, 300 Ga. 25, 793 S.E.2d 76 (2016).

Failure to notify of denial of motion to withdraw. — Judgment denying the appellant's request for reprieve from the appellant's guilty plea was vacated because the record did not show that the trial court notified the appellant of the denial of the motion to withdraw the guilty plea and also erred by refusing to grant the appellant an out-of-time appeal. Williams v. State, 339 Ga. App. 158, 793 S.E.2d 485 (2016).

Duty to notify satisfied. — Court's order denying the motion to set aside and re-enter the court's order denying the defendant's motion for a new trial contained findings supported by evidence in the record sufficient to support denial of the motion on the basis that the court satisfied the court's duty to notify under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c), thus, the defendant's right to file an out-of-time appeal from the defendant's conviction on the traffic offenses expired 30 days after entry of the court's order granting the out-of-time appeal. McCurley v. State, 345 Ga. App. 856, 815 S.E.2d 188 (2018).

Notice

Lack of notice of entry of a judgment does not extend the time for filing a notice of appeal. Atlantic-Canadian Corp. v. Hammer, Siler, George Assocs., 167 Ga. App. 257, 306 S.E.2d 22 (1983); Dashiell v. Standard Mgt. Co., 174 Ga. App. 442, 330 S.E.2d 179 (1985); Brown v. E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., 240 Ga. App. 893, 525 S.E.2d 731 (1999).

Trial court's denial of a surety's motion to set aside a judgment of forfeiture absolute was properly denied since: (1) defendant and the surety were ordered to appear before the trial court and show cause why the bond should not be forfeited; (2) neither defendant nor the surety appeared; (3) the surety did not receive notice of the judgment until five months after the hearing; (4) the trial court followed O.C.G.A. §§ 17-6-70 and 17-6-71 to the letter; and (5) even if O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c) obligated the trial court to serve notice of the judgment absolute, the surety failed to exercise any diligence whatsoever, and any harm the surety suffered was self-imposed. Reliable Bonding Co. v. State, 262 Ga. App. 280, 585 S.E.2d 192 (2003).

In an application to recover seized currency under O.C.G.A. § 16-13-49(q)(4), a trial court erred in denying the owner's motion to set aside the order denying the application without making the finding required by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c) as to whether the owner or the owner's counsel had received notice of the order. Grant v. State, 302 Ga. App. 739, 691 S.E.2d 623 (2010).

Trial court failed to make the necessary inquiry and findings as to whether a pro se defendant received notice of the trial court's denial of the defendant's motion for new trial as required by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c). If no notice was received, the trial court was required to grant the defendant's motion for an out-of- time appeal. Whitfield v. State, 313 Ga. App. 297, 721 S.E.2d 211 (2011).

Action to set aside under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g). — If a personal injury case was dismissed without prejudice when neither party appeared for a peremptory calendar call, the trial court failed to notify the parties of the dismissal, and the parties did not learn the case had been dismissed until nine months later, it was proper to grant plaintiff's motion to set aside the judgment and reenter a new order dismissing the case, thereby enabling plaintiff to refile plaintiff's action within six months. Morgan v. Starks, 214 Ga. App. 265, 447 S.E.2d 651 (1994).

In considering whether the trial court's denial of a motion to set aside was erroneous because a party did not receive notice of the entry of judgment, the issue is not whether the losing party had knowledge that the judgment was entered, but rather whether the duty imposed on the court by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c) was carried out; it is necessary that the trial court first make a finding regarding whether such duty was met and, if not, the earlier judgment must be set aside before judgment is reentered to commence a new 30-day period for appeal. Kendall v. Peach State Mach., Inc., 215 Ga. App. 633, 451 S.E.2d 810 (1994).

If no notice is sent by trial court or by clerk to losing party, an action may be brought under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) to set aside an earlier judgment; and upon a finding that notice was not provided as required by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21, the motion to set aside may be granted, the judgment reentered, and the 30-day period within which the losing party must appeal will begin to run from the date of the reentry. Cambron v. Canal Ins. Co., 246 Ga. 147, 269 S.E.2d 426 (1980), overruled on other grounds, Wright v. Young, 297 Ga. 683, 777 S.E.2d 475 (2015); Fremichael v. Doe, 221 Ga. App. 698, 472 S.E.2d 440 (1996); Downs v. C.D.C. Fed. Credit Union, 224 Ga. App. 869, 481 S.E.2d 903 (1997).

Notice (Cont'd)

If a dismissal order was never served upon the plaintiff because the trial court's staff misaddressed the envelope, the court properly set aside and then reentered the dismissal order and the order was effective as of the date the order was actually reentered. Carnes Bros., Inc. v. Cox, 243 Ga. App. 863, 534 S.E.2d 547 (2000).

Judgment was entered by the trial court, based on a jury verdict in favor of defendant, and the trial court instructed defendant to mail notice of the judgment to plaintiff, which plaintiff admittedly timely received, thus, the mandate of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c) was met and the trial court properly denied the plaintiff's motion to set aside the judgment pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g); although the trial court did not make a specific finding as to whether the notice requirements of § 15-6-21(c) were met, the facts that supported denial of the motion to set aside were set out and those indicated compliance with the notice statute. Woods v. Savannah Rest. Corp., 267 Ga. App. 387, 599 S.E.2d 338 (2004).

Because an appeal by the parents from the juvenile court's order denying the parents motion to rescind and re-enter the dismissal order under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) on the grounds that the trial court failed to give proper notice of the court's decision, in accordance with O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c), failed to challenge the juvenile court's error in denying the motion, but rather, challenged specific rulings entered by the juvenile court in the deprivation proceedings, denial of the motion to rescind and re-enter was affirmed on appeal as the appellate court lacked jurisdiction to consider the errors asserted by the parents in the underlying deprivation case. In the Interest of S.C., 283 Ga. App. 387, 641 S.E.2d 618 (2007).

In a workers' compensation case, when the trial court failed to send the parties the court's judgment as required by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c), the court erred in denying the employer's motion under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) to vacate and re-enter the judgment so that the employer could file a timely appeal. O.C.G.A. § 34-9-105(b) did not prevent granting of the motion because the trial court had complied with the provision's time limitations. It was improper for the trial court to decide the motion based upon the court's determination that the employer knew or should have known that a judgment had been entered. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Parker, 283 Ga. App. 708, 642 S.E.2d 387 (2007).

Trial court properly set aside the dismissal of a declaratory judgment action brought by putative heirs against two trustees of an estate as the trial court failed to provide notice of a peremptory calendar call the case was placed on, which led to the dismissal. The court's failure to comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c), that the court provide counsel with notice of the court's orders, provides justification for the court to later set aside such an order. Andrus v. Andrus, 290 Ga. App. 394, 659 S.E.2d 793 (2008).

Probate court violated O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c)'s notice requirements by setting aside a partial final consent order sua sponte without notice to the parties' counsel. If the intent of the final order the court later entered was to supplement and not supplant the partial final order, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) allowed the fact-finder to correct "at any time" the mistaken omission of the partial final order's provision concerning appointment of an executor from the final order. Harwell v. Harwell, 292 Ga. App. 339, 665 S.E.2d 33 (2008).

Court of appeals was unable to determine whether the trial court's denial of a plaintiff's motion under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) to set aside an order dismissing a lawsuit was proper because the trial court made no findings of fact about whether the court sent the notice of the order of dismissal to the plaintiff as required by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c); the plaintiff submitted affidavits, in which members and employees of the plaintiff's law firm attested that the firm did not receive notice of the order of dismissal, which also was some evidence that notice was not sent. Tyliczka v. Chance, 313 Ga. App. 787, 723 S.E.2d 27 (2012).

Although a bicyclist failed to comply with the trial court's order to notify a driver of a default judgment against the driver for $2.9 million, such failure did not permit the trial court to vacate the judgment under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) because the trial court had no duty to notify the driver of the judgment, pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 9-11-5(a) and 15-6-21(c). Winslett v. Guthrie, 326 Ga. App. 747, 755 S.E.2d 287 (2014).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion in denying the plaintiff's motion to set aside a judgment pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) because it was unrefuted that the trial court mailed the order to the address on record, although it was later returned stamped undeliverable and the court followed through with the duty imposed upon the court by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c). Syed v. Merchant's Square Office Bldgs., LLC, 354 Ga. App. 365, 841 S.E.2d 8 (2020).

Proper notice of order given. — Husband was not prevented by the trial court clerk from filing a timely motion for new trial after the trial court issued a final divorce decree because there was no evidence of record that the husband was not given proper notice of the order. Tremble v. Tremble, 288 Ga. 666, 706 S.E.2d 453 (2011).

Trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by denying the appellant's motion to set aside based on not being given proper notice of the September 2017 order of the denial because the record showed that the court clerk testified that adequate postage was used to mail a copy of the order to the appellant at the appellant's record address and that the copy was never returned to the clerk's office. Moore v. State, 842 S.E.2d 65, No. S20A0344, 2020 Ga. LEXIS 291 (2020).

Notice of attorney's withdrawal. — Issuance of an order of withdrawal of an attorney by the trial court completed the involvement of the court with the withdrawal; if the order did not reach the client, it was through no fault of the court, and the client's redress, if any, was with the client's attorney. Dunn v. Duke, 216 Ga. App. 829, 456 S.E.2d 65 (1995).

Findings

Absence of findings as to receipt of notice. — Trial court erred by denying the borrowers' motion under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(g) to set aside the order granting a bank summary judgment because while the trial court established that notice was sent, the court failed to make any findings as to whether the attorneys for the borrowers had received notice of the order. C & R Fin. Lenders, LLC v. State Bank & Trust Co., 320 Ga. App. 660, 740 S.E.2d 371 (2013).

Trial court's order entered on remand had to be reversed because the court made no finding as to whether the court's statutory duty to notify all parties of the judgment was carried out. Wright v. Wright, 300 Ga. 114, 793 S.E.2d 96 (2016).

Because the trial court did not make any findings as to whether the defendant was given notice of the September 2017 order denying the defendant's motion for an out-of-time appeal, and the trial court denied the defendant's motion to set aside that order on the ground that the supreme court had affirmed an order denying a different motion, the trial court erred in denying the defendant's motion to set aside the court's September 2017 order denying the defendant's motion for an out-of-time appeal. Moore v. State, 305 Ga. 699, 827 S.E.2d 657 (2019).

Remand for willfulness issue when trial court failed to make explicit willfulness finding. — Because the trial court failed to explicitly make a finding of willfulness in the court's order dismissing the plaintiff's damages complaint for failure to comply with an order to compel, the matter was remanded directing the trial court to conduct a hearing on the issue of willfulness. Because the matter was remanded on the issue of willfulness, it was unnecessary for the appeals court to consider the plaintiff's claim that counsel did not receive notice of the trial court's order granting the defendant's motion to compel. Rouse v. Arrington, 283 Ga. App. 204, 641 S.E.2d 214 (2007).

Construction with O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(d)(2). — Because the trial court failed to make an explicit finding of wilfulness in the court's order dismissing the plaintiff's case for failure to comply with an order compelling discovery, dismissal was reversed, and the case was remanded for a hearing on the issue; as a result, the appeals court declined to consider an argument that the plaintiff's counsel did not receive notice of the order compelling discovery, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(c), as any remedy for an alleged lack of notice was to pursue a motion to set aside pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-60(d)(2). Rouse v. Arrington, 283 Ga. App. 204, 641 S.E.2d 214 (2007).

Inherent finding of lack of notice. — Although there was no specific finding that notice to a party's counsel was not made, such a finding was inherent in the trial court's action granting the party's motion to set aside the judgment because counsel did not learn that the judgment had been filed until after the time for filing a notice of appeal expired. Intertrust Corp. v. Fischer Imaging Corp., 198 Ga. App. 812, 403 S.E.2d 94 (1991).

Timeliness

Remedies upon judge's refusal to obey subsection (a). — Prior to the effective date of the 1983 Constitution, the only sanction provided by law for the failure or refusal of a judge to obey the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(a), requiring prompt judicial action, was found in § 15-6-21(d), impeachment and removal from office. The Constitution of 1983 (Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. IV) now provides that the superior and appellate courts shall have the power to issue process in the nature of mandamus. Graham v. Cavender, 252 Ga. 123, 311 S.E.2d 832 (1984).

Attorney not relieved of responsibility to pursue appeal. — Failure of court to rule on judgment notwithstanding the verdict for almost 13 months did not excuse counsel from failing to check on the motion's status, the subject of a malpractice suit against the attorney. Hipple v. Brick, 202 Ga. App. 571, 415 S.E.2d 182 (1992).

Conclusion of time period does not close record. — There is no provision in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21 for closing the record as a result of a trial court's failure to make a timely ruling; therefore, the tardiness of the trial court's ruling did not close the record and was not a valid basis for objecting to the admission of the trial counsel's affidavit. Brooks v. State, 265 Ga. 548, 458 S.E.2d 349 (1995).

Supreme court was unable to determine whether the trial court's denial of the defendant's motion to set aside an order denying an out-of-time appeal was proper because the order denying the motion made no findings of fact whatsoever; in the defendant's motion to set aside, the defendant stated that the defendant never received the trial court's 2008 order until 2010, that the defendant made numerous written inquiries and several telephone calls concerning the status of the motion for out-of-time appeal, and that in 2009, the defendant filed a motion for a ruling thereon. Pierce v. State, 289 Ga. 893, 717 S.E.2d 202 (2011).

Failure to timely decide motion. — Trial court erroneously dismissed the insured party's uninsured motorist action against the insurer. The insured party, by attempting service twice, showed due diligence under O.C.G.A. § 33-7-11(e) in determining that the defendant, who allegedly struck the insured party, had either departed from the state or could not, after due diligence, be found within the state. The insured party made all three requests for service by publication before the statute of limitations under O.C.G.A. § 9-3-33 expired, and the latter two requests were pending for decision by the trial court for more than three months in violation of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(b). Luca v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 281 Ga. App. 658, 637 S.E.2d 86 (2006).

Trial court properly dismissed a landowners' petition for mandamus filed against a judge as premature and for failing to state a claim because the landowner opted to file the petition, but could have requested a hearing to allow the judge an opportunity to rule on the previously filed motions; the 90-day ruling period applicable to the motions pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(b) had not yet expired at the time the petition had been filed. Voyles v. McKinney, 283 Ga. 169, 657 S.E.2d 193 (2008).

Defendant was not entitled to relief based on the trial judge's 954-day delay in ruling on the defendant's motion to open a prejudgment default, which the defendant contended increased three-fold the defendant's liability for prejudgment interest because: (1) there was no evidence that the defendant ever sought a ruling after the 90-day period set out in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(b) had expired; and (2) the only remedies for a violation of § 15-6-21 were mandamus and impeachment of the trial judge. Water Visions Int'l, Inc. v. Tippett Clepper Assocs., 293 Ga. App. 285, 666 S.E.2d 628 (2008).

Speedy trial demand is not motion to be decided in 90 days. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-21(b), requiring that motions be decided within 90 days, did not require ruling on the defendant's speedy trial demand within 90 days, because the demand was simply the required notice of the assertion of the right, and the trial court ruled on the defendant's actual motion for discharge and acquittal based on that demand on the same day the motion was filed; further, if a judge fails to rule within the 90-day period, the remedy is not to require the motion to be granted. Johnson v. State, 300 Ga. 252, 794 S.E.2d 60 (2016).

Nine month delay in ruling on motion for mandamus. — Trial court's order denying the filing of a mandamus petition was error because a justiciable issue was patent from the face of the petition, namely, whether the judge failed to comply with the duty to timely rule on the pending motion since the record established that the petitioner had been waiting to rule on the motion for nine months, which was considerably outside the maximum period during which the judge was required to decide the pending motion. Bellamy v. Rumer, 305 Ga. 638, 827 S.E.2d 269 (2019).

15-6-22. Adjournments.

(a) The judge may, during a term of court, adjourn the court to such time as he may think fit.

(b) In case of unavoidable accidents, whereby the superior court in any county is not held at the time appointed for holding the same, the clerk of court shall adjourn the court from day to day, not exceeding two days. Unless the presiding judge orders to the contrary within the two days, the clerk shall then adjourn the court to the next term.

(c) When the clerk of the superior court is informed by the presiding judge that it is not possible for the judge to attend the regular term of the court, from sickness of himself or his family or other unavoidable cause which shall be expressed in the order of adjournment, and the judge for proper reasons in his discretion does not procure another judge to preside in his absence, the clerk shall adjourn the court to such time as the judge may direct and shall advertise the same at the courthouse of the county in which the court is to be held and one or more times in a public newspaper.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, annotations decided prior to the amendment to Code Section 15-6-19 passed by Ga. L. 1972, p. 713, which changed the terms of court, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Purpose of this section was to protect parties to causes. Hoye v. State, 39 Ga. 718 (1869).

Order adjourning court is nullity if the order does not state reason therefor. Martin v. Scott, 118 Ga. 149, 44 S.E. 974 (1903).

Application to criminal cases. Osgood v. State, 63 Ga. 791 (1879).

Parties are bound to take notice of adjournment. Rawson v. Powell, 36 Ga. 255 (1867).

Adjournment by clerk. — Clerk, or the clerk's deputy, cannot adjourn an adjourned term if the judge's absence has not been caused by an unavoidable accident. Cogswell v. Schley, 50 Ga. 481 (1873); Norrie & Johnson v. McCullough, 74 Ga. 602 (1885).

Failure to advertise adjournment. — Failure of the clerk to advertise adjournment will not prevent the court from meeting at the time fixed in the order. Wise v. State, 34 Ga. 348 (1866).

Suspension for judge's tiredness. — Court may be suspended until next morning if the judge is too tired to proceed with the night session. Hoye v. State, 39 Ga. 718 (1869).

Illness or unavailability of judges. — Defendant's motion to declare the defendant's indictment void on the ground that the grand jury which indicted the defendant was not convened in accordance with the law was properly denied since the defendant did not show either that the trial court abused the court's discretion in not convening a July term at the scheduled time because one judge was critically ill and two remaining judges had made plans to attend a seminar on that date, or that the defendant was harmed by the trial court's failure to do so. Peek v. State, 250 Ga. 50, 295 S.E.2d 834 (1982).

Sunday as day appointed for hearing applications. — If day appointed to hear application falls on Sunday, the case automatically stands for hearing on the next day. Cheeseborough, Stearns & Co. v. Van Ness, 12 Ga. 380 (1852).

Death of prominent bar member no excuse. — Death of a prominent member of the bar shortly before the time for convening a term of a court is not such cause as will legally adjourn the term of a court. Frank & Co. v. Horkan, 122 Ga. 38, 49 S.E. 800 (1905); Walker v. O'Connor, 23 Ga. App. 22, 97 S.E. 276 (1918).

Time for filing answer when court adjourned illegally. — If an illegal order of adjournment passed in vacation, the defendant may file an answer any time prior to the following term of court. Frank & Co. v. Horkan, 122 Ga. 38, 49 S.E. 800 (1905).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Application to hold court of inquiry and issue search warrants. — Judicial officer who was authorized to hold a court of inquiry under former Code 1933, § 27-401 (see now O.C.G.A. § 17-7-20) and to issue a search warrant under Ga. L. 1966, p. 567, § 14 (see now O.C.G.A. § 17-5-20) would, under Ga. L. 1971, p. 363, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-23), be authorized to do so in any county of the officer's circuit. Allison v. State, 129 Ga. App. 364, 199 S.E.2d 587 (1973), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1145, 94 S. Ct. 899, 39 L. Ed. 2d 101 (1974).

Municipal judge's cross-county reach. — Authority of a municipal court judge to issue a search warrant does not stop at the county line where the municipality crosses that line into another county. Campbell v. State, 207 Ga. App. 366, 428 S.E.2d 111 (1993).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

In order for a search warrant or arrest warrant to be valid, the search warrant must be signed by a magistrate who is authorized to hold a court of inquiry under O.C.G.A. § 17-7-20 and who is physically present in the county in which he or she serves. 2000 Op. Atty. Gen. No. U2000-11.

(b) Any costs incurred in providing defense services pursuant to Chapter 12 of Title 17, the "Georgia Indigent Defense Act of 2003," for persons accused of crimes shall not be considered contingent expenses of the superior court for purposes of this Code section.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

County's filing of a protest over an expenditure ordered by the superior court judge to whom the case was assigned did not divest the court of the court's jurisdiction over the case. DeKalb County v. Adams, 272 Ga. 401, 529 S.E.2d 610 (2000).

Payment of committee appointed under Penal Code 1895, §§ 837 and 838 to examine county officers was authorized by former Civil Code 1895, § 4341 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-24). Chatham County v. Gaudry, 120 Ga. 121, 47 S.E. 634 (1904).

Former Penal Code 1895, §§ 841, 842 and 843 contemplated services by resident individuals composing committees appointed by grand juries, and compensation for such services, and, considered in connection with former Civil Code 1895, § 4872 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-24), authorized payment by the county of compensation for such services of the committee by order of the court as a part of the expenses of the court. Watkins v. Tift, 177 Ga. 640, 170 S.E. 918 (1933).

Contingent expenses. — In an indigent criminal defendant's death penalty case, a county was improperly ordered to pay the costs, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-24, of transcribing telephone conversations made by or to the criminal defendant at the jail or presenting demonstrative evidence in the courtroom in a digital format as those were not expenses typically incurred at trial. Fulton County v. State, 282 Ga. 570, 651 S.E.2d 679 (2007).

Necessity for the installation of fire sprinklers for a ten-story building is not within the judge's unique knowledge about the functioning of his or her court. In re DeKalb County Courthouse Fire Sprinkler Sys., 265 Ga. 96, 454 S.E.2d 126 (1995).

Payment of fees of appointed attorneys. — Legislature, by authorizing payment of certain fees and expenses of appointed attorneys in capital-felony cases, has created an expense of court, and the judges of the superior courts have the inherent power and authority to order the expenses paid out of the county treasury. Bibb County v. Hancock, 211 Ga. 429, 86 S.E.2d 511 (1955).

Payments of fees of accountants in criminal case. — Fees or charges of expert accountants, employed on behalf of the state in a criminal case by the solicitor general (now district attorney), with the approval of the trial judge, were not such contingent expenses in the holding of any and all sessions of the superior court as were within the meaning of former Code 1933, § 24-3005 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-24). Freeney v. Geoghegan, 177 Ga. 142, 169 S.E. 882 (1933).

Statute did not confer power upon the grand jury or the court to employ expert accountants, whose compensation was to be paid out of the county treasury, to render services under direction of the committee in performing the duties imposed upon that body. Watkins v. Tift, 177 Ga. 640, 170 S.E. 918 (1933).

One claiming right to money must show authority. — Counties have only such powers as may be prescribed by law, and that one who claims the right to receive money from the treasury of the county must show the law which authorizes the expenditure. Freeney v. Geoghegan, 177 Ga. 142, 169 S.E. 882 (1933).

Certificate approving payment of court reporter. — Order of judge including in the judge's approval of compensation certain work done by the person assisting the court reporter becomes a judgment by a court of competent jurisdiction, and not being void on the judgment's face cannot be collaterally attacked. Walden v. Smith, 203 Ga. 207, 45 S.E.2d 660 (1947), overruled on other grounds, McCorkle v. Judges of Superior Court, 260 Ga. 315, 392 S.E.2d 707 (1990).

Certificate of the judge of the superior court approving bills for compensation to the court reporter is a judgment of that court and cannot be collaterally attacked. Nichols v. Floyd County, 76 Ga. App. 792, 47 S.E.2d 163 (1948).

Transcript costs for indigents. — It was error to hold that under O.C.G.A. § 17-12-34 of the Georgia Indigent Defense Act of 2003, the Georgia Public Defender Standards Council was required to pay for indigent defendants' costs of transcripts in criminal cases; under laws existing before the act, counties were required to pay for such transcripts, and the act does not repeal these laws by implication. Ga. Public Defender Stds. Council v. State of Ga., 284 Ga. App. 660, 644 S.E.2d 510 (2007).

Review of certificates. — Certificates issued pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-24 are reviewable through an appeal from a mandamus action filed by the party to whom the money was due, and may also be reviewed through the filing by the county of a protest to the certificate. McCorkle v. Judges of Superior Court, 260 Ga. 315, 392 S.E.2d 707 (1990).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Equal treatment amongst judges for support services. — Fulton County's obligation to accord equal treatment to all superior court judges of the Atlanta Judicial Circuit is applicable to all county funded support services, including staffing (e.g., law clerks, secretaries, court reporters, case managers and the like) and the operating budget required for a superior court judge to properly perform his or her constitutional and statutory duties. 2002 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U2002-6.

Establishment of special master for divorce settlement improper. — Establishing a special master, employed by the court to hear evidence in a divorce settlement and paid from court funds, is not permissible in view of the mechanisms capable of handling this type of problem already in place under O.C.G.A. § 9-7-2 and in view of the lack of a specific statutory basis for such an expense of court under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-24. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. U84-19.

Expenditure for presentence psychological evaluations. — Superior court may order psychological evaluations of criminal defendants prior to sentencing and at county expense. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-29.

Expenditure for interpreter for indigent criminal defendant. — When the superior court exercises the court's discretion to appoint an interpreter for an indigent criminal defendant who neither speaks nor understands English, the court has the inherent power to assess the cost of the interpreter against the county. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-24.

15-6-25. Employment of secretary authorized.

(a) Each superior court judge is authorized to employ a secretary.

(b) All personnel actions involving secretaries appointed pursuant to this Code section shall be in accordance with the provisions of Code Section 15-6-27.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Intent. — Intent of the General Assembly in authorizing the employment of secretaries was to ensure that superior court judges and district attorneys were provided with adequate assistance so they could accomplish their official tasks in an efficient manner without being burdened by clerical problems. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-104.

Code section does not apply to senior judges. — Ga. L. 1972, p. 617, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-25) applies only to full-time judges and not to judges emeritus (now senior judges) called upon to preside in a particular case under Ga. L. 1970, p. 204, §§ 1-4 (see now O.C.G.A. § 47-8-64). 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U72-129.

Simultaneous service of judicial secretary. — A judicial secretary appointed pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-25 may not simultaneously serve the same court as an official court reporter because such an arrangement would prevent the secretary from complying with O.C.G.A. § 45-10-1 and providing the state with a full day's work for a full day's pay. 2016 Op. (g) Personnel compensated by the state pursuant to this article are authorized to purchase such supplies and equipment as may be necessary to enable them to carry out their duties and responsibilities. The funds necessary to pay for such supplies and equipment shall come from funds appropriated or otherwise available for the operation of the superior courts.

The county shall be reimbursed, from funds appropriated or otherwise available for the operation of the superior courts, for the compensation paid to the personnel plus any employer contribution paid for the personnel under the act of Congress, approved August 14, 1935, 49 Stat. 620, known as the Social Security Act, as amended, but the payments shall not exceed the maximum amount payable directly to or for the personnel as promulgated by The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia for state paid personnel. In the event of any vacancy which occurs after July 1, 1997, in a position compensated by a county pursuant to this Code section, the vacancy may be filled as provided in Code Section 15-6-25.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Full-time nature of judicial secretary job. — Both O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-27 and 45-10-1 reinforce the understanding that the job of judicial secretary is a full time job to which the employee is expected to give his or her "earnest effort and best thought." 2016 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U16-2.

15-6-28. Law assistants and court administrators for judicial circuits; circuits having institutions for carrying out death sentences.

(b) The chief judge of a judicial circuit wherein there is located an institution of the state designated by the Department of Corrections for carrying out the death sentence is authorized to employ a law assistant Delegation of power to excuse jurors. — If the clerk delegated the duty of handling excusals to the court administrator and the chief deputy clerk, the court administrator (who excused some veniremen) did not have such power if the court administrator was not authorized expressly by the chief judge to excuse jurors, but there was no such disregard of the essential and substantial provisions of the statute as would vitiate the arrays. 15-6-29. Salary of judges.

(a) The annual salary of the judges of the superior courts shall be as provided in Code Section 45-7-4 and may be as provided in Code Section 15-6-29.1. The annual salary provided by Code Section 45-7-4 shall be paid by The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia in 12 equal monthly installments.

(b) The annual salary shall be the total compensation to be paid by the state to the superior court judges and shall be in lieu of any and all other amounts to be paid from The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia, except as provided in Code Sections 15-6-29.1, 15-6-30, and 15-6-32.

A publication of notice of intention to introduce local legislation as provided for in Code Section 28-1-14 shall be required for any local legislation granting, changing the amount of, or removing a salary supplement; but no publication of notice of intention shall be required for a bill creating one or more new superior court judgeships.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Method of payment if operating account of superior court judges insufficient. — If there is a surplus in the operating account of the district attorneys, but if a warrant were paid in the full amount of the payroll for the superior court judges, a deficit would occur in the operating account of the superior court judges, the Department of Administrative Services may request and pay a warrant drawn on the account of the district attorney's operating account to cover the needed funds in the operating account of the superior court judges for the final payroll of the fiscal year. 1971 Op. 15-6-29.1. Accountability court supplement; limitation.

(a) Whenever a circuit has implemented a drug court division, mental health court division, or veterans court division, then on and after January 1, 2016, the state shall pay each superior court judge in such circuit an annual accountability court supplement of $6,000.00. Such supplement shall be paid from state funds by The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia in equal monthly installments as regular compensation.

(c) Notwithstanding subsection (c) of Code Section 15-6-29, on and after January 1, 2016, no county or counties comprising the circuit shall increase an aggregate county salary supplement paid to a superior court judge, if such supplement is $50,000.00 or more.

15-6-30. Travel expenses.

(a) The judges of the superior courts of this state shall be entitled to receive, in addition to the compensation provided by law, reimbursement of travel expenses incurred when such a judge attends any court in his or her judicial circuit other than the court in the county of the residence of the judge or when the judge is required to be in any county in his or her circuit other than the county of his or her residence in the discharge of any judicial duty or function, required by law, pertaining to the superior court of such county. Judges and senior judges of the superior courts shall also be entitled to receive reimbursement under this Code section of travel expenses incurred when any such judge is designated to preside in the place of an absent Justice of the Supreme Court or attends a meeting of a judicial administrative district, The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia, the Judicial Council of Georgia, the Council of Accountability Court Judges of Georgia, the Board of Community Supervision, the Judicial Qualifications Commission, or any committee or subcommittee of any such body, or when any such judge attends a meeting with the personnel of any state department or other state agency when such meeting is held to carry out a public purpose; provided, however, that any expenses for which reimbursement is received under this subsection shall not be eligible for reimbursement under Code Section 15-6-32.

(c) The expenses provided for in this Code section shall be paid for the following purposes and in the following manner:

(1) For transportation to and from a county outside of the residence of the judge, if the same is by privately owned motor vehicle, the judge shall receive and be paid a travel expense allowance for each mile traveled in the same amount as is paid and received by the officers, officials, and employees of the various departments, institutions, boards, bureaus, and agencies of the state;

(2) Actual cost of transportation shall be allowed to and from a county outside of the residence of the judge, if same is by public conveyance; and

(3) Actual cost of meals and lodging for self shall be allowed if incurred in a county outside of the residence of the judge.

(d) The several judges of the superior courts shall, once a month, submit a detailed and certified statement of the items of expense, as authorized by this Code section, to the state auditor; and the state auditor is directed to audit each account and approve same for payment, if found correct, and to transmit the total amount to The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia for payment from the funds available for the operation of the superior courts of this state. Senior judges of the superior courts shall, once a month, submit a detailed and certified statement of the items of expense, as authorized by Code Sections 47-8-64 and 47-23-100, to the state auditor; and the state auditor is directed to audit each account and approve same for payment, if found correct, and to transmit the total amount to The Council of Superior Court Judges of Georgia for payment from the funds available for the operation of the superior courts of this state.

Application of word "actual." — Use of the word "actual" in this section shows that superior court judges may be reimbursed for their travel expenses when traveling within their respective circuits, but are not allowed reimbursement for meals based upon estimated cost as opposed to actual cost; however, current submissions for reimbursement for current expenditures need not reflect the full actual cost paid and such submissions meet the requirements of the statutes as long as the amount for which reimbursement is sought is not in excess of the actual expenditure. 1975 Op. 15-6-32. Expenses for attendance at educational programs.

Any other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the judges and senior judges of the superior courts of this state are authorized to accept and receive from funds appropriated for the operation of the superior courts to the extent not eligible for reimbursement from funds appropriated for the operation of the Institute of Continuing Judicial Education or from funds appropriated for the operation of the Institute of Continuing Judicial Education reimbursement for the actual expenses of continuing judicial education within the state and out-of-state in the same manner as members of the General Assembly in attendance at conferences and meetings. Such reimbursement, whether for education within or outside the state, shall further include any tuition fees, registration fees, or other similar expenses necessary to receive such education. All requests for attendance at educational seminars shall be submitted to the Institute of Continuing Judicial Education for prior approval.

History. — Code 1933, § 24-2606.3, enacted by Ga. L. 1978, p. 1370, § 1; Ga. L. 1980, p. 596, § 1; Ga. L. 1986, p. 794, § 2; Ga. L. 1987, p. 385, § 3.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions rendered prior to Ga. L. 1980, p. 596 are included in the annotations for this Code section. Current law makes no mention of any limitation on reimbursement to five days of judicial education per year.

Cumulative grant of authority. — This provision authorizes superior court judges to accept state funds for up to five days' continuing education and cannot be construed to prohibit superior court judges from accepting reimbursement, from all sources combined, for more than five days of continuing education per year. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-28 (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1980, p. 596).

Meaning of term "five days annually." — Expression "five days annually" should be construed to mean "five days in any one fiscal year," and the five-day limitation applies to any reimbursement attributable in whole or in part to state funds. In the case of reimbursements made from matched funds, the limitation would remain five days, and would not be extended to ten days; the remaining language of this section expands the authorization to cover nonstate governmental sources, and confirms the existing authorization as set forth in the Georgia Code of Judicial Conduct. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-28 (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1980, p. 596).

General Assembly intended that the reimbursement ceiling operate according to fixed periods. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-87 (decided prior to passage of Ga. L. 1980, p. 596).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Limitation on powers of judges to sit in convention. — Any and all rights, powers, and authority of judges of the superior courts to sit in convention and as a convention of judges to establish "uniform rules of practice throughout the several circuits" could be no greater than was conferred by the statute authorizing such a convention and defining its powers. Jones v. Boykin, 185 Ga. 606, 196 S.E. 900 (1938).

Each judge should conform to the rules, whether the rules meet with the judge's approval or not. Wilson v. State, 33 Ga. 207 (1862).

Any action by convention cannot be taken or construed as orders of court. Jones v. Boykin, 185 Ga. 606, 196 S.E. 900 (1938).

Judges may amend rules the judges have established. Snipes v. Parker, 98 Ga. 522, 25 S.E. 580 (1896).

Construction placed upon rules by superior court is conclusive, unless clearly erroneous and injustice will result. Roberts v. Kuhrt, 119 Ga. 704, 46 S.E. 856 (1904); Frost v. Pennington, 6 Ga. App. 298, 65 S.E. 41 (1909).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Breach of duty. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment in favor of a former clerk and a deputy clerk in an inmate's action alleging that the clerks breached the clerks' duty to notify the department of corrections of the inmate's amended sentence as required by O.C.G.A. § 42-5-50(a) because the court of appeals previously ruled in the case that the clerks were not entitled to official immunity in the clerks' individual capacities for failing to perform the ministerial act of communicating the inmate's sentence to the DOC, and nothing in the record following remand changed that ruling; § 42-5-50(a) is imperative, and the statute's performance is neither discretionary nor dependent upon a direction from the parties at interest. McGee v. Hicks, 303 Ga. App. 130, 693 S.E.2d 130 (2010), aff'd, 289 Ga. 573, 713 S.E.2d 841 (2011).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Annual training requirements as set by the 1983 amendment apply to all superior court clerks and not just those who took office after July 1, 1981. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-18.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-54 and 15-6-56, as amended, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions of this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Commencement and termination of six months period. — Six months provision refers to period of time starting from when election can be held and ending with date existing term expires; when the election could be held would be determined by the provisions of the election laws (Title 21); if there is not more than six months time between the date when the election can be held and when the present time expires, then there is no need for a special election. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-71 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-6-54).

When probate judge may act as clerk. — Judge of the probate court cannot legally hold the office of superior court clerk; however, if a vacancy occurs at a time other than during the term of the superior court and the vacancy results from an emergency and the probate judge cannot otherwise fill the vacancy in the manner allowed by statute, the judge may act as clerk. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-42 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-6-54).

Special election and special primary. — If vacancy occurs after qualification deadline but before 30 days (now 60 days) prior to general election, then a special election and, time permitting, a special primary must be held. 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. 82-59 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-6-56).

Reasonable time to hold election. — Election to fill vacancy must be called within reasonable period of time after vacancy occurs. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 75 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-6-56).

15-6-55. Emergency service by probate court judge; appointment of interim deputy clerk.

(a) If as a result of any sudden emergency there is a vacancy in the office of clerk of superior court, and a person who meets the qualifications for a clerk of superior court as set forth in Code Section 15-6-50 cannot immediately fill the vacancy pursuant to Code Section 15-6-53, the judge of the probate court shall act as clerk of superior court for a period not to exceed 120 days. Any act done by the probate judge during such period that the clerk could have done shall be valid.

(b) If there is a temporary absence of the clerk of superior court for any reason not specified in Code Section 15-6-53 or if the clerk of superior court for any reason does not act as clerk at the time provided by law for holding a term of the superior courts and there is no chief deputy clerk to perform such duties, notwithstanding local law, the judges of the superior court of the judicial circuit by a majority vote shall appoint an interim deputy clerk who shall hold the office of clerk during the term of court and for ten days thereafter. If a majority of the judges do not agree to the selection of the interim deputy clerk, the chief judge of the superior court shall select the interim deputy clerk. Any act which the chief deputy clerk or the appointed clerk does during such time which the clerk could have done shall be valid.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

When probate judge may act as clerk. — Judge of the probate court cannot legally hold the office of superior court clerk; however, if a vacancy occurs at a time other than during the term of the superior court and the vacancy results from an emergency and the probate judge cannot otherwise fill the vacancy in the manner allowed by statute, the judge may act as clerk. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-42.

15-6-56. Election to fill vacancy; term of office; filling of vacancies in counties with chief deputy clerk.

15-6-57. Election to break tie.

Should any two or more candidates at an election to fill a vacancy in the office of superior court clerk, or at a regular election, have the highest and an equal number of votes, the judge of the probate court shall set a date and advertise another election in the manner prescribed in Code Section 15-6-53 and shall do so until a choice is made.

15-6-58. Oath of office.

(a) The clerks of superior courts, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, whether appointed, elected, or acting by operation of law besides the oath required of all civil officers, must take and subscribe to the following oath:

"I do swear or affirm that I will truly and faithfully enter and record all the orders, decrees, judgments, and other proceedings of the Superior Court of the County of _____, and all other matters and things which I am required by law to record; and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties required of me, to the best of my understanding. So help me God."

(b) The clerks of superior courts shall have the power to appoint a deputy or deputies and, upon making such appointment, shall require from such deputies a bond with good security. The deputies shall take the same oaths as the clerks do before entering upon the discharge of their duties. Powers and duties of deputy clerks shall be the same as those of the clerks, as long as their principals continue in office and not longer, for faithful performance of which they and their securities shall be bound. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

General Consideration
Deputy Clerks

General Consideration

Authorizing recovery on official bond of superior court. — To authorize recovery on official bond of clerk of superior court there must be concurrence of breach of duty and of damage sustained because of breach. Dysart v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 63 Ga. App. 432, 11 S.E.2d 363 (1940).

When liability of clerk attaches. — Clerk's liability on bond attaches once clerk accepts illegal bond dissolving garnishment. Spain v. Clements, 63 Ga. 786 (1879).

Liability on bond attaches once clerk negligently damages another by breach of clerk's duties. Collins v. McDaniel & Strong, 66 Ga. 203 (1880).

Clerk's liability on bond attaches once clerk fails to enter attachment on docket. Stewart, Dunholter & Co. v. Sholl, 99 Ga. 534, 26 S.E. 757 (1896).

Clerk's liability on bond attaches once clerk fails to enter materialman's claim of lien. Neal-Blun Co. v. Rogers, 141 Ga. 808, 82 S.E. 280 (1914).

Nonliability of clerk. — Clerk's liability does not attach for breach of duty as administrator. McNeil v. Smith, 55 Ga. 313 (1875).

Clerk's liability does not attach for failure to record execution when not directed by plaintiff. Broyles v. Young, 19 Ga. App. 294, 91 S.E. 437 (1917).

Cited in Hendrick v. State, 257 Ga. 17, 354 S.E.2d 433 (1987).

Deputy Clerks

Deputy clerk who fails to make oath is de facto officer. Ledbetter v. State, 2 Ga. App. 631, 58 S.E. 1106 (1907).

Deputy clerks as alter ego of clerk. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-59 effectively makes deputy clerks the alter ego of the clerk. Zellner v. Ham, 735 F. Supp. 1052 (M.D. Ga. 1990).

In a 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action, the county clerk and other defendants unsuccessfully argued that O.C.G.A. § 15-6-59 established that deputy clerks were "alter egos" of the county clerk and the position of deputy clerk is one for which patronage action is appropriate. A deputy clerk was not a policy maker nor a confidential employee, a deputy clerk's function was largely ministerial and involved mostly tasks of processing documents, a clerk exercised little discretion in job performance, and consequently, political affiliation was not an appropriate requirement for the effective performance of the duties of a deputy clerk. Calvert v. Hicks, 510 F. Supp. 2d 1164 (N.D. Ga. 2007).

Clerk cannot confer authority orally. — Clerk cannot by oral authority confer power on another, not clerk's deputy, to sign executions in clerk's name during clerk's absence. Biggers v. Winkles, 124 Ga. 990, 53 S.E. 397 (1906).

Deputy clerk may sign process. Goodwyn v. Goodwyn, 11 Ga. 178 (1852); Graves v. Warner, 26 Ga. 620 (1859).

Clerk as necessary party to traverse proceeding. — Deputy clerk, who made entry of filing attacked by traverse, is necessary party to traverse proceeding. Swift v. Swift, 191 Ga. 129, 11 S.E.2d 660 (1940).

Termination of deputy clerk by court clerk. — Court clerk's termination of a deputy clerk, who had advised the clerk that the deputy clerk planned to run against the clerk for the position of clerk in the upcoming election, did not violate the deputy's free speech rights as guaranteed by the First Amendment. Zellner v. Ham, 735 F. Supp. 1052 (M.D. Ga. 1990).

Deputy court clerk's First Amendment rights were not violated when the deputy was terminated for running against the court clerk in a primary election; under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-59(b), the deputy had the same powers and duties as the clerk and was therefore the type of confidential employee who could be fired for opposing the clerk in the election. Underwood v. Harkins, 698 F.3d 1335 (11th Cir. 2012).

Stigmatizing terminated deputy clerk. — Court clerk's placing of a terminated deputy's separation notice in the confidential files of the Department of Labor did not amount to "stigmatizing" the deputy so as to deprive the deputy clerk of a liberty interest without due process. Zellner v. Ham, 735 F. Supp. 1052 (M.D. Ga. 1990).

Breach of duty. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment in favor of a former clerk and a deputy clerk in an inmate's action alleging that they breached their duty to notify the department of corrections of the inmate's amended sentence as required by O.C.G.A. § 42-5-50(a), because the court of appeals previously ruled in the case that the clerks were not entitled to official immunity in their individual capacities for failing to perform the ministerial act of communicating the inmate's sentence to the DOC, and nothing in the record following remand changed that ruling; § 42-5-50(a) is imperative, and the statute's performance is neither discretionary nor dependent upon a direction from the parties at interest. McGee v. Hicks, 303 Ga. App. 130, 693 S.E.2d 130 (2010), aff'd, 289 Ga. 573, 713 S.E.2d 841 (2011).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Minimum age of deputy clerk. — Since the authorization in former Code 1933, § 24-2713 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-59) for appointment of deputies makes a deputy clerk a public officer of this state under former Code 1933, § 89-101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-2-1), a deputy clerk of the superior court must be at least 21 years of age. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 43.

Power of deputy clerk to appoint notary public. — Because former Code 1933, § 24-2713 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-59) provided that the powers and duties of a deputy clerk shall be the same as those of the clerk, a deputy clerk under former Code 1933, § 71-101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 45-17-1.1) may appoint a notary public in the same manner as the clerk; no other person has this authority. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 60.

15-6-60. Powers of clerks.

The clerks of the superior courts have authority:

(1) To administer oaths and take affidavits in all cases permitted by law or where such authority is not confined to some other officer;

(2) To receive the amounts of all costs due in the court of which they are clerks and to receive other sums whenever required to do so by law or by order of the judge, and not otherwise;

(3) To advertise under the same rules and restrictions as apply to sheriffs;

(4) To demand and collect in advance their fees for recording deeds, mortgages, and other instruments which are legally entitled to be recorded on the deed and mortgage records of their counties; and

(5) To exercise such other powers as are or may be conferred upon them by law.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Duty of receiving all costs due in the court are charged to superior court clerks. Whitsett v. Hester-Bowman Enters., Inc., 94 Ga. App. 78, 93 S.E.2d 788 (1956).

Clerk cannot administer attachment affidavit. Heard v. National Bank, 114 Ga. 291, 40 S.E. 266 (1901).

Oaths may be administered by deputy clerk. Graves v. Warner, 26 Ga. 620 (1859); Ellis v. Ellis, 134 Ga. 287, 67 S.E. 819 (1910).

Act creating city court may confer power in clerk thereof to administer oaths, and attest on affidavits as basis of an accusation. Wright v. Davis, 120 Ga. 670, 48 S.E. 170 (1904); Griffin v. State, 3 Ga. App. 476, 60 S.E. 277 (1908).

Sole compensation of clerk is salary payable by county, and the clerk is inhibited to receive to the clerk's own use any fees or perquisites of office. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

Nature of deposits. — Moneys incidentally coming into the hands of the clerk from parties to cases in court are deposits for safe-keeping to meet the requirements of the orders or judgments of the court. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

Clerk's speculation with deposits forbidden. — Clerk does not acquire authority to substitute for the court a different depository, or to speculate by putting the money out at interest, thereby taking risk of a loss. If the clerk does so, and collects interest under color of the clerk's office, such interest should be regarded merely as enlargement of the original deposits, and not for the clerk's individual enrichment. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

Failure to charge sufficient costs not to affect rights of parties. — In cases where the clerks are on a salary basis and the costs belong to the county, failure to charge sufficient costs would be a matter between the clerk and the county, and might subject the clerk to a contempt proceeding, but would not affect the rights of parties litigant. Whitsett v. Hester-Bowman Enters., Inc., 94 Ga. App. 78, 93 S.E.2d 788 (1956).

Dormancy not prevented by entry of clerk. — Mere entry by a clerk upon an execution acknowledging that the clerk received the cost due thereon will not suffice to relieve from dormancy the judgment upon which the execution was based. Lewis v. Smith, 99 Ga. 603, 27 S.E. 162 (1896).

Employment of counsel. — General Assembly has not expressly granted clerks of superior court the power to hire attorneys, and there is no legislative grant of power from which it is necessarily implied that clerks have the power to contract for the services of an attorney. Stephenson v. Board of Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 399, 405 S.E.2d 488 (1991).

County governing authority's employment of counsel to represent a superior court clerk did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Para. I(c)(1) or (7), which preclude the authority from exercising any power in a manner affecting "any elective county office" or "any court or the personnel thereof." Stephenson v. Board of Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 399, 405 S.E.2d 488 (1991).

(f) Records provided by the clerk of superior court to the Georgia Superior Court Clerks' Cooperative Authority shall be used by the authority only for the performance of its statutory duties, including providing online access to such records.

(g) Nothing in this Code section shall be construed to require or otherwise affect the appropriation of public funds by a local governing authority to a clerk of superior court.

General Consideration

Execution dockets are in their essence public records. — Clerk is under a duty to keep dockets and to record such entries therein. In making such entries with the dates shown, the clerk is presumed as a public officer to faithfully and accurately perform the duties devolving upon the clerk by law, and being public records, these dockets are to be taken as speaking the truth and as justifying an examiner to rely on their contents, as otherwise the examiner might be misled to the examiner's injury and damage. Pope v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 200 Ga. 69, 35 S.E.2d 899 (1945).

Appearance docket should not be dispensed with. Rock Island Paper Mills Co. v. Todd & Rafferty, 37 Ga. 667 (1868).

Dismissal for want of appearance improper when incorrect docket. — If a case belongs on the issue docket and is entered on the motion docket, the case should not, on the calling of the latter docket, be dismissed for want of appearance. Harris & Bussey v. Lowe & Bro., 81 Ga. 676, 8 S.E. 419 (1888).

Entry on the general execution docket operates as notice under former Civil Code 1910, § 3321 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-12-81). Merrick v. Taylor, 14 Ga. App. 81, 80 S.E. 343 (1913).

Defect in fieri facias amount may be cured by amendment. — If a judgment for alimony is payable in installments, and more than one fieri facias has been issued, no fieri facias can lawfully include any amount which has been included in a previous fieri facias; but, if such is done, it is a defect which may be cured by amendment. Stephens v. Stephens, 171 Ga. 590, 156 S.E. 188 (1930).

City court clerk not authorized to issue distress warrant. — Act which establishes a city court and gives the clerk thereof the same powers as the clerk of the superior court does not authorize such clerk to issue a distress warrant. Woolsey v. Lawshe, 1 Ga. App. 817, 57 S.E. 1039 (1907).

Time of commencement of suit is date of filing as entered upon the petition when such filing is followed by appropriate service. Thompson v. Thompson, 214 Ga. 776, 107 S.E.2d 655 (1959).

No defense that process not signed by clerk when clerk is defendant. — In an action against an individual who is the clerk of the court in which the action is filed, the individual defendant is estopped to assert as a defense that the process attached to the petition was not signed by the clerk of the court. Jones v. Bland, 69 Ga. App. 883, 27 S.E.2d 102 (1943).

Contracts to publish public records. — Contract between the county and a company allowing that company to obtain copies of certain public indices and records and make those copies available for a fee is not invalid as an attempt to control or expand the clerk's duties. Price v. Fulton County Comm'n, 170 Ga. App. 736, 318 S.E.2d 153 (1984).

Foreclosure confirmation proceeding. — Filing of a confirmation petition with the clerk of court was insufficient to meet the mandates of O.C.G.A. § 44-14-161(a). Lanier Bank & Trust Co. v. Nix, 221 Ga. App. 323, 471 S.E.2d 229 (1996).

Attorney for defendant cannot sign clerk's name. Horton v. State, 112 Ga. 27, 37 S.E. 100 (1900).

Workers' compensation case is civil case. — Every civil case of whatever nature must be entered on either the issue docket or the motion docket, and a workmen's (now workers') compensation case which has been appealed to the superior court from the State Board of Workmen's (now Workers') Compensation is a civil case. Bryant v. Fidelity & Cas. Co., 114 Ga. App. 853, 152 S.E.2d 759 (1966).

Entry on minutes by clerk is required in transcript of judgment of Supreme Court. Walker v. Dougherty, 14 Ga. 653 (1854).

Brief of evidence may be agreed upon and entered on minutes nunc pro tunc. Hardin v. Inferior Court, 10 Ga. 93 (1851); Bliss v. Stevens, 13 Ga. 403 (1853).

Brief of evidence in motions for new trial must be filed, and need not be entered on the minutes. Spears v. Smith, 7 Ga. 436 (1849); Tomlinson v. Cox, 8 Ga. 111 (1850); Powell v. Howell, 21 Ga. 214 (1857).

Clerk may appoint deputy to perform the clerk's duties. Biggers v. Winkles, 124 Ga. 990, 53 S.E. 397 (1906).

Deputy clerk may attest a mortgage. Ballard v. Orr, 105 Ga. 191, 31 S.E. 554 (1898).

Clerk to number separately distinct and separate actions. — Since an action in attachment is separate and distinct from a common law action, failure to number and document the entries separately is error on the part of a clerk. Dollar v. Fred W. Amend Co., 184 Ga. 432, 191 S.E. 696 (1937).

Subpoena must be signed by clerk. Horton v. State, 112 Ga. 27, 37 S.E. 100 (1900).

Duty of clerk to sign all processes on all suits filed is ministerial solely, and it is beyond the duties or powers of the clerk to pass on the legal sufficiency of pleadings. The clerk could not be protected in the exercise of a judicial function which the clerk did not possess by virtue of the clerk's office. Jones v. Bland, 69 Ga. App. 883, 27 S.E.2d 102 (1943).

Presumption that clerk fully and properly performed duties. — Attorneys have the right to presume that a clerk of the court has fully and properly performed the clerk's official duties as to docketing a case. Dollar v. Fred W. Amend Co., 184 Ga. 432, 191 S.E. 696 (1937).

Clerk required by law to issue fieri facias for payment of alimony award on request of plaintiff; and a judgment need not be obtained from the court for that purpose. Stephens v. Stephens, 171 Ga. 590, 156 S.E. 188 (1930).

Duty of clerk for validation certificate and validated county bonds. — It is the duty of the clerk of the superior court to sign a validation certificate and attach the seal of the clerk's office to all county bonds regularly validated; the law contemplates, however, that a certification by the clerk shall speak the truth, and the clerk may not be required by a mandamus, or otherwise, to certify an instrument that does not conform to the records in the clerk's office. Touchton v. Echols County, 211 Ga. 85, 84 S.E.2d 81 (1954).

Clerk of court authorized to sign rule nisi allowing former city attorney to seek writ of quo warranto. — Former city attorney followed correct procedure to obtain a writ of quo warranto by filing an application for leave of court to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto, and the trial court issued a rule nisi granting leave to file the petition; the order granting leave was not improper because it was signed by the clerk of court, because under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-61(a)(3), the clerk was authorized to sign orders at the direction of a superior court judge. Jones v. Boone, 297 Ga. 437, 774 S.E.2d 668 (2015).

Presence in courtroom not required. — Duties of a superior court clerk do not require his or her presence in the courtroom nor the provision of aid to criminal defendants during trial. Williams v. State, 233 Ga. App. 70, 503 S.E.2d 324 (1998).

Dead Docket

Placing case on dead docket does not terminate case. — There is no language whatsoever in this section which states that the case can be reinstated at the pleasure of the court, or any other language indicating that a case is terminated in favor of the defendant when the case is placed upon the dead docket. Courtenay v. Randolph, 125 Ga. App. 581, 188 S.E.2d 396 (1972).

Cases on dead docket still pending in court. — Since no reinstatement of the case is necessary before the case can be called for trial, the case must, as a necessity, still be pending in the court. Courtenay v. Randolph, 125 Ga. App. 581, 188 S.E.2d 396 (1972).

Placing a case upon the dead docket under this section constitutes neither a dismissal nor a termination of the prosecution in the accused's favor; such case is still pending and can be called for trial at the judge's pleasure, or the accused can make a demand for trial. Courtenay v. Randolph, 125 Ga. App. 581, 188 S.E.2d 396 (1972).

Order placing case on dead docket not appealable. — Trial court's order placing a case on the court's dead docket was not a dismissal of the accusation from which the state could bring an appeal.

State v. Creel, 216 Ga. App. 394, 454 S.E.2d 804 (1995).

Court's discretion to transfer cases to dead docket may not be used in unlawful manner, for instance, to keep an indictment hanging over the head of the defendant merely to toll the running of the statute of limitations. Underhill v. State, 129 Ga. App. 65, 198 S.E.2d 703 (1973).

Defendant's recourse when dead docket device delays trial. — When mere lapse of time, less than that set out in the statute of limitations, is involved, and the defendant has not objected to the case being dead docketed, and has made no demand for early trial, it will take a showing of prejudice to the defendant's interests or oppressive and harassing tactics by the government to justify a finding of encroachment on the constitutional right to a speedy trial. Three such interests have been identified: (1) to prevent oppressive pretrial incarceration; (2) to minimize anxiety and concern of the accused; and (3) to limit the possibility that the defense will be impaired. Underhill v. State, 129 Ga. App. 65, 198 S.E.2d 703 (1973).

Evidence and Admissibility

Presumption that facts do not exist. — If the facts do not appear on the minutes, the legal presumption is that those facts do not exist. Garner v. State, 42 Ga. 203 (1871).

Unsigned entry on deed is not evidence of time it was filed. First Nat'l Bank v. Cody, 93 Ga. 127, 19 S.E. 831 (1894).

Clerk's execution docket is admissible as evidence. Ross v. Davis, 30 Ga. 823 (1860).

Fieri facias as evidence. — Fieri facias issuing from justice of the peace court may be admitted in evidence in claim case. Turner v. Duncan, 152 Ga. 54, 108 S.E. 532 (1921).

Execution dockets not affected by parol evidence. — Execution dockets come within rule that what ought to be of record must be proved by record. The record cannot be contradicted or enlarged by parol evidence. The necessary presumption arising from a record cannot be contradicted by parol evidence any more than the express words of the record itself. Pope v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 200 Ga. 69, 35 S.E.2d 899 (1945).

Entries on execution dockets conclusive as to facts and dates. — Entries on the general execution dockets required by law to be kept by the clerk of the superior court, in the absence of a timely direct attack as to their verity, supported by proof, are conclusive as to the facts and dates recited in such public records. Pope v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 200 Ga. 69, 35 S.E.2d 899 (1945).

In equitable proceedings evidence can impeach record. — Certain limitations upon doctrine that parol evidence inadmissible to vary or contradict record. In direct attacks upon these records, in the nature of equitable proceedings, evidence has been held admissible to impeach the record. Pope v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 200 Ga. 69, 35 S.E.2d 899 (1945).

Incomplete record not to be certified. — This section does not contemplate that an incomplete record, or one that does not represent the whole truth, shall be certified by the clerk as being the record on file in the clerk's office. Touchton v. Echols County, 211 Ga. 85, 84 S.E.2d 81 (1954).

Other Personnel

Process signed by assistant of city court clerk not necessarily void. Rucker v. Tabor & Almand, 126 Ga. 132, 54 S.E. 959 (1906).

County commissioners are not authorized to employ nonofficers to copy worn and faded deed records. Henry v. Means, 137 Ga. 153, 72 S.E. 1021 (1911).

Employment of counsel. — General Assembly has not expressly granted clerks of superior court the power to hire attorneys, and there is no legislative grant of power from which it is necessarily implied that clerks have the power to contract for the services of an attorney. Stephenson v. Board of Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 399, 405 S.E.2d 488 (1991).

County governing authority's employment of counsel to represent a superior court clerk did not violate Ga. Const. 1983, Art. IX, Sec. II, Paras. I(c)(1) or (7), which preclude the authority from exercising any power in a manner affecting "any elective county office" or "any court or the personnel thereof." Stephenson v. Board of Comm'rs, 261 Ga. 399, 405 S.E.2d 488 (1991).

Authority of officers over expenditures. — County commissioners approved a budget for the office of the superior court clerk that included a miscellaneous line item for a specified amount of money for certain years; thus, the item had already been budgeted to the clerk by the commission in the exercise of the commission's authority over the clerk's budget and the decision of how to spend this money fell solely to the clerk in the exercise of the clerk's duties, not to the commission. Griffies v. Coweta County, 272 Ga. 506, 530 S.E.2d 718 (2000).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — Some of the following annotations are taken from opinions rendered prior to the 1989 amendment, which rewrote this Code section.

Clerk responsible for own negligence if failure to publish notice. — If the clerk fails to publish the notice pursuant to Ga. L. 1958, p. 686, §§ 1 and 2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-12-81), the clerk would be responsible for the clerk's own negligence under former Code 1933, §§ 24-2721, 24-2714, and 24-2715 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-61 and 15-6-81). 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 107 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Requirements for final recording of civil proceedings by microfilm. — Former Code 1933, §§ 24-2714 and 24-2715 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-61), when construed with Ga. L. 1962, p. 639, § 2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-87), can be interpreted to permit the final recording of civil proceedings by microfilm in lieu of in "well-bound" volumes provided proper indices and adequate equipment are maintained in addition to the necessary personnel for viewing these records. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-23 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Instruments evidencing title to real property not kept on microfilm. — Clerks of the superior court may microfilm and keep all instruments and records in the clerks' court "excepting only instruments evidencing the title to real property." 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-125 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Clerk of the superior court must keep the dockets identified and described in paragraph (4) of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-61 either by microfilm, photographic or photostatic process, or in well-bound books, except that all instruments evidencing the title to real property, including the docket identified and described in O.C.G.A. § 44-2-2(a), and title instruments for personal property if recorded for ten years or less, must be kept and recorded in well-bound books only. For real property instruments which identify a grantor and a grantee, either a duplex index book or a cross-referenced card index system for indexing such instruments must be maintained. The clerk may use the computer services of the county in which the clerk's office is located as a supplemental means of providing access to the information contained in the dockets and indexes maintained by the clerk. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-26 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Once indictment filed, consent required to nolle prosequi. — Once an indictment or accusation has been filed, a district attorney's motion to nolle prosequi or dead docket requires consent of the court. If the trial court refuses to grant the district attorney's motion to nolle prosequi or dead docket the case, the district attorney is not thereby disqualified. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-25 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Trial judge is ultimately responsible for reducing sentence to writing, even though this duty may be delegated to another officer; in any event, the judge must sign the sentence. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-85 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Control over dead docket reposes in court as opposed to the prosecuting attorney of the court. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen.

No. U74-70 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Pauper's affidavit. — Clerk of superior court has no discretion as to acceptance and transmittal of pauper's affidavit. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-169 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

Clerks through whom documents are transmitted under O.C.G.A. § 17-7-32 have no duty to file or record the documents. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-38 (decided prior to 1989 amendment).

15-6-62. Additional clerk duties.

(a) The clerk of superior court is required to record all the proceedings relating to any civil action or criminal case within six months after the final determination of the case. Such recording may be in well-bound books, on microfilm, or in digital format. If a clerk elects to record proceedings on microfilm or in digital format, he or she shall make available to the public a machine for reading and reproducing such microfilmed or digitally formatted records. If a clerk elects to record proceedings in digital format, the provisions of Code Section 15-6-62.1 shall apply.

(b) Every clerk of superior court shall record, microfilm, or digitally image for the purpose of permanently preserving:

(1) Every part of the pleadings in every case;

(2) All garnishments, affidavits, bonds, and answers thereto;

(3) All attachment affidavits, bonds, and writs of attachment; and

(4) All claim affidavits and bonds and all bonds given in any judicial proceeding.

The clerk shall not allow any record to be taken from his or her office before recording them as required in this Code section.

(c) Where any paper becomes lost or destroyed, a certified copy thereof from the clerk of superior court may be substituted. No fee shall be charged or collected for any such copy if the loss of the same is caused by or results from any negligence or fault of the clerk.

(d) This Code section shall not apply to cases dismissed and settled before the record is made.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Authority of legislature regarding form of permanent records. — General Assembly has the authority to provide that such records as are required to be kept by courts of record may be kept in any reasonable form so long as the form adopted appears to be reasonably calculated to be one which lends itself to permanency. Crosby v. Dixie Metal Co., 227 Ga. 541, 181 S.E.2d 823 (1971).

There is a presumption that the clerk did the clerk's duty. Benton v. Maddox, 56 Ga. App. 132, 192 S.E. 316 (1937).

Actual date of filing is the date upon which the paper is handed to the clerk to be filed. Brinson v. Georgia R.R. Bank & Trust Co., 45 Ga. App. 459, 165 S.E. 321 (1932).

Items consisting a record. — Record in a case consists of the declaration, process, return of service by the sheriff, and other official entries, plea, verdict, judgment, and all interlocutory orders passed by the court during the pendency of the case, and in case of a motion for an order nisi, and an order granting or refusing a new trial, together with any order passed by the court, setting it down for a hearing in vacation, or adjourning the hearing from time to time, and in case a new trial is granted, all subsequent orders passed by the court, including the final judgment. White v. Newton Mfg. Co., 38 Ga. 587 (1869); Cloer v. Vulcan Elec. Co., 113 Ga. App. 766, 149 S.E.2d 722 (1966).

Scope of duty of clerk to record proceedings. — Duty of the clerk of the superior court to record all the proceedings relating to the suit does not embrace the evidence given in the trial. If so, it would be necessary for the clerk in all cases to take down the oral evidence on the trial, and record it as part of the proceedings. Cloer v. Vulcan Elec. Co., 113 Ga. App. 766, 149 S.E.2d 722 (1966).

Clerk's writ record not conclusive as to what the record lacks. — Clerk's writ record, although presumably correct, and possibly conclusive as against parol testimony as to what the record does contain, is not conclusive as to what the record does not contain. Benton v. Maddox, 56 Ga. App. 132, 192 S.E. 316 (1937).

Effect of defendant's evidence of lack of service. — If the defendant introduced the writ record which contained a copy of the petition, the process, and the judgment taken, and the record was silent as to service, defendant's testimony that defendant had not been served was not subject to objection, as being incompetent, for the reason that evidence had been introduced which tended to disprove that any entry of service had been made, to wit, the silence of the writ record. Benton v. Maddox, 56 Ga. App. 132, 192 S.E. 316 (1937).

Record not notice of liens. — Object of the records required by this section is not to give notice of liens by judgments. Plant v. Gunn, 7 F. 751 (S.D. Ga. 1881).

When clerk excused from recording pleadings in writ book. — Applying the maxim that when certain things are expressly required others are excluded, this section should be construed as providing that only when a case is dismissed or settled, and thereby finally terminated, and not otherwise, would the clerk be excused from recording the pleadings in the writ book. Reeve Bros. v. Allen, 67 Ga. App. 514, 21 S.E.2d 244 (1942).

Proceedings only stayed in city court when removal to federal court. — Under the law, and under an order removing cases to the federal court, the proceedings are only stayed in the city court. This certainly does not contemplate that the cases are dismissed or settled or finally disposed of in the city court. The situation is the same as it would have been had the cases, instead of being removed to the federal court, been taken to the Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court of this state. In the later event, on the certification and the filing of the bill of exceptions, the court in which the cases were pending would temporarily lose jurisdiction until the cases were passed on by the appellate court and remanded to the trial court. Reeve Bros. v. Allen, 67 Ga. App. 514, 21 S.E.2d 244 (1942).

Case not necessarily finally settled or disposed of when removed to federal court. — When a case is removed from the state court to the federal court on an order of the state court, it is not necessarily finally settled or disposed of as respects the state court. The cases may possibly afterwards be remanded by the federal court to the state court, and the cases would then resume their positions in the state court as originally filed therein together with all the pleadings. Reeve Bros. v. Allen, 67 Ga. App. 514, 21 S.E.2d 244 (1942).

Costs of recording cases on removal to federal court. — Requisite costs of the recording of the cases on the writ book in the city court were legally collectible by the clerk on the removal of the cases to the federal court, notwithstanding at the time of the removal the clerk had not in fact recorded the pleadings on the writ book. This ruling applies only as respects pleadings actually filed in the city court before the court lost jurisdiction on removal to the federal court. No papers could have been legally filed in the city court after the removal of the cases and no costs of recording such papers could be exacted by the clerk. Reeve Bros. v. Allen, 67 Ga. App. 514, 21 S.E.2d 244 (1942).

Removing party liable for costs of filing existing pleadings. — On removal to a federal court as required by an act of Congress of a case pending in a state court, if the law requires the accrued costs in the state court to be paid, the party removing the case is liable for the costs of placing on the writ book or docket of the state court the existing pleadings on file in the office of the clerk of the state court, notwithstanding at the time the clerk has not in fact placed such pleadings on the writ book or docket. Reeve Bros. v. Allen, 67 Ga. App. 514, 21 S.E.2d 244 (1942).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Purpose of this section is to preserve precise history of each case, including conclusions of law drawn by the proper officer; the proceedings which are to be recorded are the complaint, process, return of service, and other official entries, the plea and answer, the verdict, judgment, all interlocutory orders, and any motions and orders relating to new trial. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-232.

Clerk not required to record transcript in administrative law appeals. — Since the transcript of testimony and other evidence taken in administrative law cases on appeal to the superior court would not be part of the proceedings in the superior court, the clerk of the superior court is not required to record the transcript of testimony and other evidence in administrative law cases that are on appeal to the court. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U79-3 but see Opinion No. U82-29, annotated below.

Recording of workers' compensation proceedings. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-62 requires recordation of pleadings and proceedings filed during pendency of workers' compensation appeals in superior courts, and the clerk is authorized to collect fees for such recordation pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77. 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U82-29.

Transcripts and other evidence introduced in case do not have to be recorded in writ record; all subsequent papers such as notice of appeal, enumeration of errors, etc., as well as the remittitur, should be recorded in the writ record. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-64.

Collection of appropriate fee for pleadings. — Clerk may collect the appropriate fee for all pleadings which have been filed and recorded prior to the dismissal of a case. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-200.

No county governing authority under duty to purchase microequipment. — Language of Ga. L. 1962, p. 639, § 2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-87) was employed only to make it clear that no county governing authority was under any duty to purchase microequipment. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-23.

Clerks through whom documents are transmitted under O.C.G.A. § 17-7-32 have no duty to file or record the documents. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-38.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Liability of surveyor for inaccuracies. — Consulting firm was not liable for damages based on a surveyor's use of an inaccurate plat map since the firm prepared the plat in accordance with requirements of the party who ordered the plat, not showing the width or rights-of-way and easements which were not pertinent, and since there was no evidence the firm knew how the plat was to be used, or that the firm intended to induce other surveyors to rely on the inaccurate plat. Gudger Surveying, Inc. v. Paul Lee Consulting Eng'g Assocs., 214 Ga. App. 770, 449 S.E.2d 331 (1994).

Admissibility of plat not meeting recordation requirement. — If a plat was admitted as evidence in a boundary dispute even though the plat did not meet the technical requirements for recordation, the admission of the plat was proper for the purpose of illustrating other competent evidence about the boundary. Purcell v. C. Goldstein & Sons, 264 Ga. App. 443, 448 S.E.2d 174 (1994).

Survey sufficient. — Trial court properly granted appellee property owners' motion to enforce a settlement agreement with respect to a boundary dispute between the parties as the settlement agreement authorized a surveyor to establish the boundary lines between the properties, and the survey was sufficient to satisfy former paragraph (b)(4) O.C.G.A. § 15-6-67; moreover, even if the plat failed to meet the technical requirements of O.C.G.A. § 15-5-67, the admissibility of the plat would not have been affected. Vickers v. Meeks, 273 Ga. App. 293, 615 S.E.2d 158 (2005).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Requirements for recording map or plat. — Clerk of the superior court has no duty to file and record a map or plat which does not meet the requirements of subsection (b) of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-67, nor does a land surveyor have a right to insist that a map or plat not meeting those requirements be filed by the clerk. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-13.

Clerks not authorized to record photocopies of plats. — Clerks of superior courts are not authorized under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-67, O.C.G.A. § 15-6-68 or O.C.G.A. § 15-6-69 to record photocopies of plats, although such a recording will not affect or invalidate any legal description or legal instrument based on such plat. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-4.

Reference in O.C.G.A. § 15-6-67(b)(1)(A) to "a good legible print" does not include a photocopy. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-4.

Maximum size of plat not limited by section. — Former Code 1933, §§ 24-2716 through 24-2719 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-67 through 15-6-69) did not prescribe a maximum uniform size of plat to be filed with the clerks of superior courts of this state which did not use microfilming procedures for the recording of plats, and the only maximum limitation on the size of plats was that the plats must be capable of being recorded in binders provided by the clerk of court without being folded in any way. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-80.

Plats reduced in size are acceptable. — Clerks of superior courts may accept for recording plats which have been reduced in size if the plats comply with the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-67. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-4.

Fingerprinting not required. — Offenses arising under O.C.G.A. § 15-6-67 are not designated as offenses for which those charged are to be fingerprinted. 2017 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 17-1.

(c) In counties of this state that are divided into land lots, the clerk of superior court shall provide an electronic, computer-based system for maintaining and searching a record for each land lot and land district by listing all surveys made for each lot and where they are recorded.

(d) The clerk shall electronically note the filing date, book, and page numbers on the image and shall electronically transmit a copy of the map, plat, or plan with such filing information to the e-mail address of the person filing the same for record.

Att'y Gen. No. 78-80.

15-6-69. Effect of map and plat recordation requirements.

(a) Failure to meet the requirements of Code Sections 15-6-67 and 15-6-68 or the recording of an improper plat by the clerk shall not, in and of itself, affect or invalidate any legal description or legal instrument based on such plat.

(b) Nothing in Code Sections 15-6-67 and 15-6-68 shall be deemed to invalidate any map or plat made prior to July 1, 1978, nor shall anything in those Code sections be deemed to require the clerk of the court to prepare or maintain a record of each individual land lot for any plat of survey recorded in the clerk's office prior to July 1, 1978.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Superior court clerks are charged with duty of receiving amounts of all costs due in court. Whitsett v. Hester-Bowman Enters., Inc., 94 Ga. App. 78, 93 S.E.2d 788 (1956).

Construction with O.C.G.A. § 44-14-361.1(a)(3). — Because a notice under O.C.G.A. § 44-14-361.1(a)(3) was not filed within 14 days of a lien claimant's suit being initiated, the lien was unenforceable, and the trial court did not err in granting a developer's motion for partial summary judgment against the lien claimant; while the appeals court sympathized with the lien claimant's argument that the claimant received a file-stamped copy and as a result believed no fee was due, ultimately it was the responsibility of plaintiff and plaintiff's counsel to see that the appropriate fees were paid in a timely manner. Kendall Supply, Inc. v. Pearson Cmtys., Inc., 285 Ga. App. 863, 648 S.E.2d 158 (2007).

Right to make examinations or abstracts when paying fees. — Private citizen has no right without consent of the clerk and payment of fees to make abstracts of books of record. Buck & Spencer v. Collins, 51 Ga. 391, 21 Am. R. 236 (1874).

This section does not deny the right of members of the public to make examinations and abstracts, but only imposed charges or fees for services which the clerk may render in making such examination and abstracts. Atlanta Title & Trust Co. v. Tidwell, 173 Ga. 499, 160 S.E. 620 (1931).

When cases are consolidated, clerk is entitled to fee in each case. Williams, Birnie & Co. v. Officers of Court, 61 Ga. 95 (1878).

Clerk not authorized to charge for copy retained by clerk. — Under paragraph (g)(12) of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77, the clerk should only have charged for preparing the record to be sent to this court and was not authorized to charge the additional fee for preparing the copy of the record to be retained by the clerk. Rewis v. Shaw, 208 Ga. App. 876, 432 S.E.2d 617 (1993).

Clerk not entitled to costs for transmitting surplus parts of record not specified in bill of exceptions (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50), unless the transmission was at instance of party or counsel. Waldrop v. Wolff & Happ, 114 Ga. 610, 40 S.E. 830 (1902); Riley v. Wrightsville & T.R.R., 133 Ga. 413, 65 S.E. 890, 24 L.R.A. (n.s.) 379, 18 Ann. Cas. 208 (1909).

Fee for entering case on docket cannot be claimed in advance. Ball v. Duncan, 30 Ga. 938 (1860).

Clerk required to file motion to compel discovery under original case number. — Trial court did not err in granting the petition for a writ of mandamus because the filing party had a clear legal right to compel the clerk to fulfill the clerk's ministerial duty of filing the motion to compel discovery under the original case number as the motion was directly related to that case; O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77 did not deal with the assignment of case numbers, but the calculation of costs for post-judgment motions filed more than 30 days after a judgment was entered; and the clerk was legally required to file the motion to compel upon collecting appropriate costs, without attempting to determine whether the document should legally be filed under the previously assigned case number of the original complaint. Alexander v. Gibson, 300 Ga. 394, 794 S.E.2d 597 (2016).

Under this section, word "summons" meant "subpoena" and did not refer to civil process or a summons issued by a justice of the peace, or to summons issued by municipal forums. Owens v. Maddox, 80 Ga. App. 867, 57 S.E.2d 826 (1950).

Failure to charge sufficient costs not to affect rights of parties. — In cases when the clerks are on a salary basis and the costs belong to the county, failure to charge sufficient costs would be a matter between the clerk and the county, and might subject the clerk to a contempt proceeding, but would not affect the rights of parties litigant. Whitsett v. Hester-Bowman Enters., Inc., 94 Ga. App. 78, 93 S.E.2d 788 (1956); Sirmans v. Sirmans, 222 Ga. 202, 149 S.E.2d 101 (1966).

Clerk's filing without fees is not a waiver of fees. — Clerk's filing of complaint without having received deposit or affidavit of indigence did not constitute a waiver of assessment of court costs against complainant. Whitehead v. Lavoie, 176 Ga. App. 666, 337 S.E.2d 357 (1985).

No further affidavit of indigence required for renewal action. — Provision in O.C.G.A. § 9-15-2(a) that an affidavit of indigence relieves a party of "any deposit, fee, or other cost" requires that, when a plaintiff files such an affidavit upon bringing an action, takes a voluntary dismissal, then seeks to renew the action, no payment of accrued costs and no further affidavit of indigence are required for the filing of the renewal action. McKenzie v. Seaboard Sys. R.R., 173 Ga. App. 402, 326 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

No application to chain of title. — In arguing that cross-indexing served to pull a corrective deed into a property's chain of title, a bank's reliance on O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77 was unsupported as that statute did not authorize cross-indexing or say anything about the effect of cross-indexing. Rather, the statute merely set out the fee charged for cross-indexing and when cross-indexing was legally required. Bank of Am., N.A. v. Adams (In re Adams), 583 B.R. 541 (Bankr. N.D. Ga. 2018).

No private cause of action. — In a suit challenging a court's electronic filing fee system, the trial court did not err when the court granted the motion to dismiss the plaintiff's claims because none of the statutes or rules cited by the plaintiff provided a private cause of action for damages arising from any violation of the respective statute or rule. Best Jewelry Mfg. Co. v. Reed Elsevier Inc., 334 Ga. App. 826, 780 S.E.2d 689 (2015), cert. denied, No. S16C0502, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 286 (Ga. 2016).

Contempt action not new civil action. — Provision of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77 defining "civil cases" for determining when clerks may charge and collect fees was not authority for a court to designate a contempt notice as a new civil action requiring 30 days notice of a hearing. Brown v. King, 266 Ga. 890, 472 S.E.2d 65 (1996).

Contempt motion filed more than 30 days after judgment. — Plaintiff's motion for contempt for failure to comply with court-ordered postjudgment discovery that was submitted more than 30 days after judgment was considered a new proceeding within the meaning of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77(e)(1) for purposes of calculating the costs the superior court clerk was entitled to charge and collect. McFarland & Assocs., P.C. v. Hewatt, 242 Ga. App. 454, 529 S.E.2d 902 (2000).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Clerk may collect appropriate fee for all pleadings which have been filed and recorded prior to dismissal of case. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-200.

Clerk of superior court must refund that portion of advance costs deposit that exceeds actual costs. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-61.

Superior court clerk cannot charge less than prescribed. — Superior court clerk does not have discretion to charge less than fees prescribed by this section for preparation of case records on appeal when the clerk is on salary as opposed to "fee system." Under such circumstances, the statutory fees are no longer the property of the clerk, but are public property for which the clerk is responsible. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U73-43.

Failure of superior court clerk to collect costs on appeal did not affect outcome of appeal despite former Code 1933, § 24-2729 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-80). 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U73-43.

Passport application fees to be paid into county treasury. — Passport application fees collected by superior court clerk who is compensated on a salary basis must be paid into county treasury. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-20.

Filing fee based on original number of pages. — This section permits the clerk to charge a filing fee for each lien, mortgage, and deed recorded; this fee is based upon original (typed) pages, and if the matter is printed so as to reduce the number of pages filed, the fee should still be based upon what space would have been occupied by the material if on original pages. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-88.

Burden of cost deposit on party filing notice of appeal. — Party who filed notice of appeal under former Code 1933, § 92-6912 (see now O.C.G.A. § 48-5-311(f)) was party bearing burden of cost of deposit. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U74-46.

Notice of arraignment to be treated as summons. — Notice of arraignment required by former Code 1933, § 27-1401 (see now O.C.G.A. § 17-7-91) to be sent to all defendants in criminal cases was to be treated as a summons rather than as a subpoena in determining the correct fee to be charged by the clerk of court pursuant to former Code 1933, § 24-2727 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77). 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-42.

No filing or recording fee can be charged for depositions or interrogatories. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-232.

O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77 does not prescribe a fee for filing interrogatories or answers to interrogatories. It follows that no fee may be charged for this service. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-50.

No fee can be collected for the filing of interrogatories. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-93.

How fee for entering fieri facias to be charged. — Intent of the General Assembly in enacting the provision entitling clerks of superior courts to charge a fee for entering fieri facias on a general execution docket is that for each fieri facias entered against a given defendant the clerk is entitled to charge the authorized fee. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-51.

Clerk is entitled only to fee for each accusation, and not for each warrant. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 49.

In no case is fee collectible from Board of Offender Rehabilitation for per diem court attendance. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 450.

Fee in nolle prosequi case. — Fee for services in cases "where the defendant is tried, or pleads guilty, or there is a settlement" would certainly be applicable in a situation whereby the nolle prosequi was contingent upon payment of costs. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 609.

Bond forfeiture case is not "settlement". 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 486.

Superior court clerk not entitled to fee for each juror summoned by sheriff. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 99.

Additional filing fee for corporate documents. — Additional sum authorized by Ga. L. 1977, p. 1098, §§ 1 and 2 and former Code 1933, § 24-2727 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-77 and 47-14-51) to be paid to the clerks of the superior courts should be charged and collected upon the filing of articles of amendment, articles of merger, and articles of dissolution. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-63.

Fees for recording of workers' compensation proceedings. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-62 requires recordation of pleadings and proceedings filed during pendency of workers' compensation appeals in superior courts, and the clerk is authorized to collect fees for such recordation pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77. 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U82-29.

When filing fees not required. — When child support petitions and other documents on behalf of the state are filed in the superior courts, filing fees may not be required. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-7.

Authorization to charge more supersedes court-ordered fee. — Authorization to charge maximum fee for processing alimony or child support payments supersedes previous court-ordered fees for the same purpose, insofar as they are inconsistent. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-216.

Sheriff's fees set forth in former Code 1933, § 24-2823 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-16-21) should be paid at clerk's office at time of filing, if required in a particular case, and that payment of the sheriff's fees was required in addition to the deposit for the clerk's fees which was payable at the time of filing in appropriate cases. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-37.

Applicability to Department of Labor. — Department of Labor is liable for fees and costs in superior court except for recordation fees for records of the Board of Review in unemployment insurance cases and fees in civil cases as set forth in subsection (b) of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 86-43.

Advance court cost deposit. — Appellants contesting a decision rendered by a county board of equalization in superior court must pay the advance court cost deposit set forth in O.C.G.A. §§ 9-15-4 and 15-6-77. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-17.

Appellants contesting the award of a special master need not pay the advance court cost deposit set forth in O.C.G.A. §§ 9-15-4 and 15-6-77 if the appellants have properly paid the required costs for filing the initial condemnation petition. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-17.

Taxpayers appealing from decisions of the state revenue commissioner pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 48-2-59 need only comply with the specific requirements of that section with regard to court costs; taxpayers need not pay the advance court cost deposit set forth in O.C.G.A. §§ 9-15-4 and 15-6-77. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-17.

Filing fee for Family Violence Act petitions. — Former paragraphs (b)(1) and (2) of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-77, which provide that the total cost for all services rendered by the clerk of superior court in civil cases shall be either $40 or $55, should be construed together with, and do not repeal, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-3, which provides for a $16 filing fee for petitions filed under the Family Violence Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-13-1 et seq. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-11.

15-6-77.4. Additional divorce case filing fee for Children's Trust Fund.

(a) In addition to any fees required in Code Sections 15-6-77 and 47-14-51, for filing each divorce case, the clerk of superior court shall charge an additional fee of $5.00. Each clerk of the superior court shall collect the additional fees for divorce cases as provided in this Code section and shall pay such moneys over to the Georgia Superior Court Clerks' Cooperative Authority by the last day of the month there following, to be deposited by the authority into the general treasury. The authority shall, on a quarterly basis, make a report and accounting of all funds collected pursuant to this Code section and shall submit such report and accounting to the Office of Planning and Budget, the House Budget and Research Office, and the Senate Budget and Evaluation Office no later than 60 days after the last day of the preceding quarter.

(b) When any such person whose duty it is to collect and pay over such moneys fails to remit the sums within 60 days of the date they are required to be paid over, the same shall be delinquent and there may be imposed, in addition to the principal amount due, a specific penalty in the amount of 5 percent of said principal amount per month for each month during which the money is continued to be delinquent, not to exceed a total of 25 percent of the principal amount.

15-6-78. Veterans not to be charged for recordation of discharge certificates.

(a) All clerks of the superior courts are prohibited from charging any veteran a fee for recording his discharge certificate pursuant to Code Section 15-6-72.

(b) In all counties where the clerk of a superior court is exclusively on a fee basis, the clerk shall be paid the sum of $1.50 for each discharge certificate recorded by him. This sum is to be paid out of the county treasury by the proper county fiscal authority on the first day of each month, based on the number of discharge certificates filed and recorded by the clerk during the preceding month.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Veteran liable for costs of certified copies. — County is authorized to pay only for the recording of the discharge; if the clerk issues any certified copies of the recorded discharge to the veteran, the clerk is authorized to charge the usual fee for such service, payable by the veteran. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 423.

15-6-79. Payment of unpaid costs in felony cases.

15-6-80. Payment of transcript costs to clerk before transmittal.

In all cases certified to the appellate courts, the costs for preparing the transcript of the record shall be paid by the appellant to the clerk before the same is transmitted unless the judge presiding over the case being appealed approves an affidavit submitted to the judge by the appellant certifying that the appellant is unable to pay such costs or upon the appellant providing adequate security for such costs.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

All costs shall be paid in court below or appellant shall make affidavit of inability to pay such costs before the clerk transmits record to the appellate court. Pickett v. Paine, 139 Ga. App. 508, 229 S.E.2d 90 (1976).

Appeal based on unauthorized transfer of transcript improper. — If an appeal is inadvertently transmitted to an appellate court by the clerk of the trial court at a time when the clerk was not authorized to transmit the appeal since the appellant had neither paid the costs of preparing the transcript nor made a pauper's affidavit, the appeal is improper and must be dismissed. Rogers v. International Mineral & Chem. Corp., 120 Ga. App. 54, 169 S.E.2d 659 (1969).

No dismissal when record sent without opportunity to pay costs. — Dismissal of appeal because clerk sent record to supreme court before appellant had opportunity to pay costs is improper. J.D. Jewell, Inc. v. Hancock, 226 Ga. 480, 175 S.E.2d 847 (1970).

Rights of parties not affected by breach of duty to collect costs. — If the clerk breaches the clerk's duty to collect the costs before sending the record to the supreme court, this would be a matter between the clerk and the county, and would not affect the rights of parties litigant. J.D. Jewell, Inc. v. Hancock, 226 Ga. 480, 175 S.E.2d 847 (1970).

Clerk's waiver of benefits. — In a county where the clerk is on a fee basis, the clerk's waiver of the benefits of this section, passed for the purpose of insuring the clerk's collection of the costs prior to sending the record to the supreme court, would not affect the rights of litigants. J.D. Jewell, Inc. v. Hancock, 226 Ga. 480, 175 S.E.2d 847 (1970).

If pauper's affidavit is held not to be good and appellant fails to make supersedeas bond in three days, appeal is dismissed. George v. American Credit Control, Inc., 222 Ga. 512, 150 S.E.2d 683 (1966).

Appellate court not to police procedures of trial courts. — This section does not require appellate court to police procedures of trial courts if issue is not directly before the court on appeal, as it would be, for example, in a contempt action against the clerk. City of Atlanta v. Akins, 116 Ga. App. 230, 156 S.E.2d 665 (1967).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Failure of superior court clerk to collect costs on appeal does not affect outcome of appeal. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U73-43.

Payment of other costs not to be condition precedent. — Clerk may demand payment of costs for preparing the transcript of a pauper's affidavit as a condition precedent to preparation and transmittal of the transcript and record to the appellate courts; the clerk may not, however, require payment of other costs as a condition precedent. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U72-16.

Code section does not always require payment by county. — O.C.G.A. § 17-8-5 makes it the duty of the court, or county officials, to require that testimony be taken down and that a written record be filed with the clerk, but does not require that all transcripts be paid for by the county. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-22.

In nonindigent cases, appellant pays if requesting transcript. — If the appellant requests that transcript be filed as part of the record on appeal in a nonindigent criminal case, appellant is responsible for payment of court reporter fees for preparation of the transcript. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-22.

County becomes requesting party if defendant does not appeal. — If no appeal is filed by the defendant, then the county would be the requesting party responsible for the preparation of the transcript and for the payment of court reporter fees under O.C.G.A. § 17-8-5. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-22.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

If clerk failed to publish notice pursuant to Ga. L. 1959, p. 424, §§ 1 and 2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-12-81), the clerk is responsible for negligence under former Code 1933, § 24-2721 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-81). 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 107.

Clerk who is on salary basis must collect indexing fee prescribed by former Code 1933, § 39-705 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-12-94); any failure to collect such fee and make proper disposition of the money could subject the clerk to a fine under former Code 1933, § 24-2721 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-81). 1970 Op. 15-6-82. Governor ordering investigation of clerk of court; suspension of clerk.

(a) Whenever the Governor determines that an investigation of a clerk of superior court of this state should be made as a result of criminal charges, alleged misconduct in office, or alleged incapacity of the clerk of superior court to perform the functions of his or her office, the Governor shall appoint an investigative committee consisting of two clerks of superior court who are members of The Council of Superior Court Clerks of Georgia and the Attorney General to conduct an investigation. Such clerks of superior court may be from any two counties in the state other than the county of the clerk of superior court under investigation. The members of any such committee shall receive no compensation for their services but shall be reimbursed for any expenses incurred in connection with an investigation. The funds necessary to conduct an investigation shall come from the funds appropriated to the executive branch of the state government.

(b) Any member of the committee shall be authorized to administer oaths to any witness before the committee. The committee shall make a report of its investigation to the Governor within 30 days from the date of the appointment of both clerk members by the Governor.

(c) If the committee recommends the suspension of the clerk of superior court, the Governor shall be authorized to suspend the clerk of superior court for a period of up to 60 days. In any case where a clerk of superior court has been suspended for 60 days, the Governor may extend the period of suspension for an additional 30 days. Upon such recommendation, the Governor shall also be authorized to request the district attorney of the county of the clerk's residence to bring a removal petition against the clerk in superior court based upon the evidence reported by the committee. After the filing of such petition, a clerk of superior court is subject to being removed from office by the judge of the court for any sufficient cause, including incapacity or misbehavior in office. The charges must be exhibited to the court in writing, and the facts tried by a jury. The clerk shall be entitled to a copy of the charges three days before trial. In the event that the Governor determines that further investigation should be made, the Governor may then order additional investigation by the committee, the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, other law enforcement agencies of this state, or any special committee appointed by the Governor for such purpose. During any period of suspension, the clerk shall continue to hold office; however, the chief deputy clerk shall perform the duties of the clerk of superior court or, in the absence of a chief deputy clerk, an interim clerk shall be appointed as provided in paragraph (1) of subsection (b) of Code Section 15-6-53 to perform the duties of the clerk during the period of suspension.

(d) If the clerk of superior court is indicted for a felony, the provisions of Code Section 45-5-6 shall apply.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Proceedings under this section are quasi-criminal and acquittal was final. Cobb v. Smith, 102 Ga. 585, 27 S.E. 763 (1897).

Applicability to sheriff. — Former Code 1933, §§ 24-2813, 24-2814, 77-110, and 77-111 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-16-10 and 42-4-4) and the provisions of former Code 1933, § 24-2724 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-82) apply to the removal of sheriffs from office. Adamson v. Leathers, 60 Ga. App. 382, 3 S.E.2d 871 (1939).

What is sufficient cause for removal of clerk. — Sufficient cause for removal from office means legal cause, and that which specially relates to and affects the administration of the office, and must be restricted to something of a substantial nature, directly affecting the rights and interests of the public. Adamson v. Leathers, 60 Ga. App. 382, 3 S.E.2d 871 (1939).

What is sufficient cause for removal of sheriff. — Under former Code 1933, § 24-2724 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-82), sheriffs were subject to be removed from office for "any sufficient cause," and sufficient cause means a cause relating to and affecting the administration of the office and material to the interests of the public. Adamson v. Leathers, 60 Ga. App. 382, 3 S.E.2d 871 (1939).

Mere rudeness will not suffice to remove clerk. Lancaster v. Hill, 136 Ga. 405, 71 S.E. 731, 1912C Ann. Cas. 272 (1911).

Allegations of conduct constituting crime of extortion are sufficient allegations of official misbehavior. Lancaster v. Hill, 136 Ga. 405, 71 S.E. 731, 1912C Ann. Cas. 272 (1911).

Applicability to misconduct in other office. — Clerk cannot be removed from office for any misconduct of duties as ex officio clerk of city court. Wallace v. State, 34 Ga. App. 281, 129 S.E. 299 (1925).

Particularity of charges. — If the petition alleges that the acts of misconduct which are grounds for removal are illustrated in detail by a certain auditor's report on file in the office of the clerk of the superior court (who is the defendant), and which is referred to in the petition as an exhibit, the charges are alleged with a degree of particularity sufficient to put the defendant on notice. Wallace v. State, 34 Ga. App. 281, 129 S.E. 299 (1925).

Jurisdiction of appeal. — Court of appeals has jurisdiction of writ of error (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-6-49 and 5-6-50) sued out by a clerk when a motion for a new trial was overruled by the trial judge. Wallace v. State, 155 Ga. 414, 117 S.E. 243 (1923).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Misconduct sufficient as grounds for removal under former Code 1933, §§ 24-2724, 24-2813, and 24-2814 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-82 and 15-16-10) did not also constitute grounds for quo warranto, unless such misconduct resulted in conviction and consequent loss of civil rights. 1954-56 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 116.

15-6-83. Clerk's liability.

If any of the clerks of the superior courts receive any money on any action or judgment from their courts, or otherwise, and do not faithfully account for it, they are liable to rule as sheriffs are, and they and their sureties are likewise liable on their official bonds.

History. — Orig. Code 1863, § 265; Code 1868, § 259; Code 1873, § 270; Code 1882, § 270; Civil Code 1895, § 4364; Civil Code 1910, § 4895; Code 1933, § 24-2722.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Duties of clerk with respect to deposits are purely ministerial. — Clerk's actual possession of the money, arising from the money's receipt from the party paying the money in, is not in the clerk's own right, nor does the clerk acquire an individual interest; neither does the clerk acquire authority to substitute for the court a different depository, or to speculate by putting the money out at interest, thereby taking the risk of a loss. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

Role of clerk as statutory receiver. — Under the law the clerk, as regards deposits of money by litigants in pending cases, is a statutory receiver and occupies a position similar to a receiver in equity, therefore, the clerk's duties are to hold the money for the court and pay the money out on the order of the court to those entitled thereto, and the possession is that of bailee for reward, the clerk's salary being the clerk's reward for all duties assumed in taking office. Puckett v. Chambers, 66 Ga. App. 513, 18 S.E.2d 20 (1941), aff'd sub nom. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

Applicability to city court clerk. — If act creating city court makes the clerk thereof amenable to all the duties and liabilities attached to the office of clerk of the superior court, the clerk may be ruled under former Code 1933, § 24-2722 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-83) upon the clerk's failure to faithfully account for money coming into the clerk's hands, and under the general provisions of former Code 1933, §§ 24-201, 24-206, and 24-207 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-13-1 and 15-13-3). Ivester v. Mozeley, 89 Ga. App. 578, 80 S.E.2d 197 (1954).

If sole compensation of clerk is salary payable by county, the clerk is inhibited to receive to the clerk's own use any fees or perquisites of office. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

Moneys incidentally coming into hands of clerk from parties to cases in court are deposits for safekeeping to meet requirements of the orders or judgments of court. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

Interest on wrongful deposits become part of principal. — If the clerk of a municipal court receives deposits of moneys from litigants in cases pending in the clerk's court and deposits money in a bank in the clerk's individual name and withdraws the interest earned on the principal sums and deposits those funds in the bank in the clerk's own name, the interest becomes a part of the principal amounts and does not become the property of the clerk. If the clerk dies, the clerk's successor is entitled to the possession of such interest deposit and the executrix is not. Puckett v. Chambers, 66 Ga. App. 513, 18 S.E.2d 20 (1941), aff'd sub nom. Puckett v. Walker, 194 Ga. 401, 21 S.E.2d 713 (1942).

15-6-86. Location of clerk's office in place other than courthouse; storage of archival or inactive records in different location; county documents exception.

(a) In the event that the space at the courthouse is inadequate for the clerk's office and the things belonging thereto, the clerk, in writing, may request the governing authority of the county to move his or her office to some other designated place in the county. In his or her request, the clerk shall state the inadequacy which exists. The governing authority shall be authorized to comply with the request but may only designate another place as the office of the clerk with the approval of the clerk. Such place must be owned by the county or a body politic and shall not be more than 500 feet from the courthouse at their nearest points. Notwithstanding local law, the judges of the superior court of the judicial circuit by a majority vote must give written consent before the clerk shall be authorized to move his or her office to such place; provided, however, that failing a majority agreement the chief judge of the judicial circuit shall make such determination.

(b) In the event that space at the courthouse or other place where the office of the clerk is located is inadequate to ensure the safe storage of archival or inactive records, the clerk, after obtaining written approval from the governing authority of the county, may cause the records to be stored at a data storage and retrieval facility within the State of Georgia. The clerk shall give public notice of the place of storage by posting notice at the courthouse. If documents are stored in any place other than the location where the documents were created, filed, or recorded, the government entity shall:

(1) Bear all costs of transporting such documents back to the county of origin for purposes of responding to requests under Article 4 of Chapter 18 of Title 50, relating to inspections of public records; and

(2) Provide by contract for:

(A) Specific retrieval times in which documents requested shall be delivered; and

(B) Payment of additional fees by the person requesting the document from the clerk for expedited service.

(c) In a county where the county site is located in an unincorporated area of the county and the county governing authority has constructed one or more permanent satellite courthouses within the county and has further designated each such structure as a courthouse annex or has otherwise established each such structure as an additional courthouse to the courthouse located at the county site, the clerk of superior court shall be authorized to maintain his or her offices and all things belonging thereto including the permanent records at one of the additional courthouse locations or at the courthouse at the county site. The clerk of superior court may, but shall not be required to, maintain a satellite office at an additional courthouse which is not the location of the clerk of superior court's main office where the permanent records are kept. No one may for any purpose remove records of the clerk of superior court from the courthouse or the clerk's satellite office without the written consent of the clerk; provided, however, that a judge or the judge's designee may check out a record or file for a case assigned to such judge upon providing a written receipt for such record or file to the clerk.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Code section, county documents, as defined in subsection (c) of Code Section 36-9-5, shall be stored only in accordance with the provisions of Code Section 36-9-5.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Entitlement to county cost of living adjustments. — Trial court did not err in entering an order finding the county superior court clerk was entitled to state-mandated longevity increases and state cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) and to county COLAs provided by local legislation, without setting off those increases from the amount the county supplemented the clerk's salary over the statutory minimum, because the 2007 Local Act was not unconstitutional; and nothing in subsection (c) of the 2007 Local Act stated that the county COLAs required by that subsection applied only to salaries paid in accordance with the minimum set forth in subsection (a) of the 2007 Local Act. Chatham County v. Massey, 299 Ga. 595, 791 S.E.2d 85 (2016).

Constitutionality of local legislation. — 2007 Local Act was not unconstitutional based on the fact that subsection (a) of the 2007 Local Act authorized the superior court clerk to be paid less than what was required by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-88 because, according to the statute's plain language, the 2007 Local Act did not establish $56,000 as the salary for the clerk as the statute simply stated that the clerk's salary could not be less than $56,000; thus, it was not inconsistent on its face with the terms of the statute requiring a clerk to be paid no less than the amount set by the county population schedule set forth in § 15-6-88. Chatham County v. Massey, 299 Ga. 595, 791 S.E.2d 85 (2016).

According to the plain language of O.C.G.A. § 15-6-88, the 2007 Local Act does not establish $56,000 as the salary for the clerk. It simply states that the clerk's salary may not be less than $56,000; consequently, it is not inconsistent on its face with the terms of the general statute requiring a clerk to be paid no less than the amount set by the county population schedule set forth in the statute, and is not unconstitutional. Chatham County v. Massey, 299 Ga. 595, 791 S.E.2d 85 (2016).

Statutory interpretation as to cost-of-living adjustments. — Order finding that the county court clerk was entitled not only to state-mandated longevity increases and cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) but also to county COLAs provided by local legislation was affirmed because O.C.G.A. § 15-6-88 was constitutional and applied to the court clerk's compensation, entitling the court clerk to both. Chatham County v. Massey, 299 Ga. 595, 791 S.E.2d 85 (2016).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Salary for person both superior and state court clerk. — Legislature intended that minimum salary of person serving as both superior court clerk and state court clerk be the sum of the amounts fixed by Ga. L. 1973, p. 256, §§ 1 and 2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-88 and 15-6-89). 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U73-42.

Effect of new census on salary. — If the census puts a superior court clerk in a higher minimum annual salary bracket, that salary relates back to the effective date of the census. For a clerk who completes a four-year term on December 31, and commences a new term on January 1, the longevity increase under Ga. L. 1978, p. 937, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-90) should be based on the increased minimum annual salary, inasmuch as the longevity increase serves merely to increase the applicable minimum annual salary. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-59.

Effect of cost-of-living increases adopted by State Personnel Board. — Cost-of-living increases for sheriffs, probate judges, clerks of superior court, tax collectors, and tax commissioners adopted by the State Personnel Board for fiscal year 1989-1990 should take the same form as the corresponding cost-of-living increases for classified employees of the Merit System so that those salaries less than $18,000 in the schedules for sheriff, clerk, probate judge, tax collector, and tax commissioner would be increased $450, the rest 2½%. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. 89-33.

When clerk also serving as clerk of state court ineligible. — Superior court clerk also serving as clerk of state court who is receiving a salary under local legislation greater than the minimum provided by O.C.G.A. §§ 15-6-88 and 15-6-89 is not entitled to the additional $100.00 (now $200.00) per month provided by § 15-6-89. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-46 (decided prior to 1984 amendment to § 15-6-89).

(b)(1) Whenever the state employees subject to compensation plans authorized and approved in accordance with Code Section 45-20-4 receive a cost-of-living increase or general performance based increase of a certain percentage or a certain amount, the amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in subsection (a) of this Code section, in Code Section 15-6-89, and in subsection (b) of Code Section 15-10-105, or the amounts derived by increasing each of said amounts through the application of longevity increases pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 15-6-90, where applicable, shall be increased by the same percentage or same amount applicable to such state employees. If the cost-of-living increase or general performance based increase received by state employees is in different percentages or different amounts as to certain categories of employees, the amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in subsection (a) of this Code section, in Code Section 15-6-89, and in subsection (b) of Code Section 15-10-105, or the amounts derived through the application of longevity increases, shall be increased by a percentage or an amount not to exceed the average percentage or average amount of the general increase in salary granted to the state employees. The Office of Planning and Budget shall calculate the average percentage increase or average amount increase when necessary. The periodic changes in the minimum salary schedule in subsection (a) of this Code section, in Code Section 15-6-89, in subsection (b) of Code Section 15-10-105, or the amounts derived through the application of longevity increases, as authorized by this subsection, shall become effective on the first day of January following the date that the cost-of-living increases or general performance based increases received by state employees become effective; provided, however, that if the cost-of-living increases received by state employees become effective on January 1, such periodic changes in the amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in subsection (a) of this Code section, in Code Section 15-6-89, and in subsection (b) of Code Section 15-10-105, or the amounts derived by increasing each of said amounts through the application of longevity increases pursuant to subsection (a) of Code Section 15-6-90, shall become effective on the same date that the cost-of-living increases or general performance based increases received by state employees become effective.

(2) The amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in subsection (a) of this Code section shall not be increased by any state cost-of-living or general performance based increases that have been applied or are effective prior to January 1, 2020. Any state cost-of-living or general performance based increases effective on or after January 1, 2020, shall be calculated as provided in this Code section.

(c) This Code section shall not be construed to reduce the salary of any clerk of the superior court in office on July 1, 1991; provided, however, that successors to such clerks in office on July 1, 1991, shall be governed by the provisions of subsections (a) and (b) of this Code section.

(d) The county governing authority may supplement the minimum annual salary of the clerk of the superior court in such amount as it may fix from time to time; but no clerk's compensation supplement shall be decreased during any term of office. Any prior expenditure of county funds to supplement the clerk's salary in the manner authorized by this subsection is ratified and confirmed. Nothing contained in this subsection shall prohibit the General Assembly by local law from supplementing the annual salary of the clerk.

The 2019 amendment, effective January 1, 2021, in subsection (a), substituted "census of 2010" for "census of 2000" in the introductory language and modified the salary amounts in the minimum salary schedule; and, in subsection (b), designated the existing language as paragraph (b)(1), deleted "the amounts fixed in" following "The periodic changes in" at the beginning of the fourth sentence of paragraph (b)(1), and added paragraph (b)(2).

The 2020 amendments. — The first 2020 amendment, effective July 29, 2020, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, revised punctuation twice in paragraph (b)(1); and substituted "performance based" for "performance-based" twice in paragraph (b)(2). The second 2020 amendment, effective January 1, 2021, rewrote paragraph (b)(2) which read: "Any cost-of-living or general performance-based increases that have been applied prior to January 1, 2021, shall cease to be applied. Effective January 1, 2021, any new cost-of-living or general performance-based increases shall be calculated as provided in this Code section."

Ga. L. 2020, p. 493, § 54(e)/SB 429, part of an Act to revise, modernize, and correct the Code, effective July 29, 2020, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "In the event of an irreconcilable conflict between a provision in Sections 1 through 53 of this Act and a provision of another Act enacted at the 2020 regular session of the General Assembly, the provision of such other Act shall control over the conflicting provision in Sections 1 through 53 of this Act to the extent of the conflict." Accordingly, the amendments to paragraph (b)(2) of Code Section 15-6-88 by Ga. L. 2020, p. 493, § 15(6)/SB429, were not given effect.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Entitlement to county cost of living adjustments. — Trial court did not err in entering an order finding the county superior court clerk was entitled to state-mandated longevity increases and state cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) and to county COLAs provided by local legislation, without setting off those increases from the amount the county supplemented the clerk's salary over the statutory minimum, because the 2007 Local Act was not unconstitutional; and nothing in subsection (c) of the 2007 Local Act stated that the county COLAs required by that subsection applied only to salaries paid in accordance with the minimum set forth in subsection (a) of the 2007 Local Act. Chatham County v. Massey, 299 Ga. 595, 791 S.E.2d 85 (2016).

Constitutionality of local legislation. — 2007 Local Act was not unconstitutional based on the fact that subsection (a) of the 2007 Local Act authorized the superior court clerk to be paid less than what was required by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-88 because, according to the statute's plain language, the 2007 Local Act did not establish $56,000 as the salary for the clerk as the statute simply stated that the clerk's salary could not be less than $56,000; thus, it was not inconsistent on its face with the terms of the statute requiring a clerk to be paid no less than the amount set by the county population schedule set forth in § 15-6-88. Chatham County v. Massey, 299 Ga. 595, 791 S.E.2d 85 (2016).

Statutory interpretation as to cost-of-living adjustments. — Order finding that the county court clerk was entitled not only to state-mandated longevity increases and cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) but also to county COLAs provided by local legislation was affirmed because O.C.G.A. § 15-6-88 was constitutional and applied to the court clerk's compensation, entitling the court clerk to both. Additional compensation for service of juvenile court clerk. — When the clerk of superior court serves as a juvenile court clerk, additional compensation for such service is not less than $200.00 per month. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-35.

15-6-90. Longevity increases; operational expenses; local laws.

(a) The amounts provided in subsection (a) of Code Section 15-6-88 and Code Sections 15-6-89 and 15-10-105, as increased by subsection (b) of Code Section 15-6-88, shall be increased by multiplying said amounts by the percentage which equals 5 percent times the number of completed four-year terms of office served by any clerk after December 31, 1976, effective the first day of January following the completion of each such period of service.

(b) The minimum salaries provided for in Code Sections 15-6-88 and 15-6-89, this Code section, and Code Section 15-6-91 shall be considered as salary only. Expenses for deputy clerks, equipment, supplies, copying equipment, and other necessary and reasonable expenses for the operation of a clerk's office shall come from funds other than the funds specified as salary in such Code sections.

(c) This Code section shall not be construed to affect any local legislation, except where such local legislation provides for a salary lower than the salary provided in Code Sections 15-6-88 and 15-6-89, this Code section, and Code Section 15-6-91, in which event such Code sections shall prevail.

(d) Code Sections 15-6-88 and 15-6-89, this Code section, and Code Section 15-6-91 shall not be construed to reduce the salary of any clerk of superior court presently in office.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

"Figured at the end of each such period of service" construed. — Phrase "figured at the end of each such period of service" means only that the 5 percent increase becomes available at the end of the term. It does not mean that the increase is permanently fixed at a set dollar amount based upon the salary provided at the end of the term. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-19.

Increase effective at beginning of new term. — All clerks who have completed four-year terms of office are entitled to 5 percent longevity increases in the clerk's pay at the time the clerks commence the clerks' new terms. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-19.

Recipients of salaries under section not entitled to longevity salary increases. — Those superior court clerks who receive salaries in accordance with the minimum annual salaries specified by Ga. L. 1973, p. 256, §§ 1 through 5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-6-88 et seq.) are no longer entitled to longevity salary increases and the clerks' right to longevity salary increases formerly authorized has terminated. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-21 (decided prior to 1978 amendment to this section).

Repeal of local acts. — If a local act establishing salaries for certain officials was repealed by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-91, the 1975 and 1977 amendments to that local act providing for cost-of-living increases should be read in pari materia with the amended act and should also be considered repealed by O.C.G.A. § 15-6-91. 15-6-93. Office hours.

(a) The office of each clerk of superior court shall be open to conduct business Monday through Friday from at least 9:00 A.M. until 5:00 P.M. and shall not close for any period of time during such hours, unless such office has less than two employees, in which case such office shall be permitted to be open from at least 8:00 A.M. until noon and from at least 1:00 P.M. until 5:00 P.M.

(b) Any office of clerk of superior court which is open for operation on Saturday may close on one day Monday through Friday for a period of time equal to that period of time during which the office is open on Saturday. Nothing in this Code section shall be construed as requiring any office of clerk of superior court to be open on any public holiday, legal holiday, day of rest, or other similar time that is recognized and designated as such by Georgia law or by the governing authority of the county.

(c) This Code section shall only apply to the office of clerk of superior court if there is employed in that office at least one employee other than the clerk.

(d) In any county of this state having a population of fewer than 10,000 persons according to the United States decennial census of 1980 or any future such census, the clerk of superior court may close such office for a designated lunch period if all other county offices in the county courthouse simultaneously close for a lunch period. The period of closing of the clerk's office shall coincide with the period for closing the other county offices.

(e) Nothing in this Code section shall be construed to require the office of clerk of superior court to be open if all other county offices are closed because of inclement weather or any other reason.

(f) When it is necessary for the clerk of superior court to conduct necessary training of employees, the clerk may close his or her office for up to eight hours during any six-month period, provided that he or she gives at least ten days' notice to the public, or sooner with the approval of the chief judge of the superior court, prior to such closing, and provided, further, that there are no proceedings scheduled in superior court during the time of the closing. Proceedings shall include all civil or criminal hearings or trials, whether or not a jury is required.

(g) When the clerk's office is closed for training purposes, the period of closure shall be deemed a legal holiday for such office and, therefore, all deadlines provided for by law for filing in the clerk's office any pleading, process, summons answer, or other document shall be extended to the next regular business day of the clerk's office. "Business day" means a day on which the clerk's office is open for business and shall not include any Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday officially observed by the office as provided in this Code section.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Order entered two hours before closure of clerk's office. — Trial court's entry of the order confirming the arbitration award in favor of the former employer was premature because the order was entered without providing the former employee the time to respond as proof of service was filed more than five days after service was accepted, and the trial court signed the order over two hours before the closure of the clerk's office on the date the employee had to file the employee's answer. (A) The public interest in providing cost-efficient access to record management systems, information, services, supplies, and materials, and a pool which will provide related resources and uniformity;

All members shall serve for terms of three years each and until their successors are appointed and qualified. All acts performed by the authority prior to April 1, 1994, shall have the same force and effect as if this paragraph had been in effect since the creation of the authority.

(2) Each member of the authority who is not otherwise a state officer or employee may be authorized by the authority to receive an expense allowance and reimbursement from funds of the authority in the same manner as provided for in Code Section 45-7-21. Each member of the authority who is otherwise a state officer or employee may be reimbursed by the agency of which he or she is an officer or employee for expenses actually incurred in the performance of his or her duties as a member of the authority. The executive director, with the concurrence and approval of the board, shall hire officers, agents, and employees; prescribe their duties, responsibilities, and qualifications and set their salaries; and perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the authority. Such officers, agents, and employees shall serve at the pleasure of the executive director.

(5) The authority may promulgate rules and regulations for its own government and for discharging its duties as may be permitted or required by law or applicable rules and regulations.

(e) The creation of the authority and the carrying out of its corporate purposes are in all respects for the benefit of the people of this state and are public purposes and in no event shall the authority assess a fee against a superior court clerk's office or local government of this state for access to the information compiled by the authority. The authority will perform an essential government function in the exercise of the powers conferred upon it by this Code section. The authority shall not be required to pay taxes or assessments upon any property acquired or under its jurisdiction, control, possession, or supervision.

(f) Any action against the authority shall be brought in the Superior Court of Gwinnett County, Georgia, and such court shall have exclusive, original jurisdiction of such actions; provided, however, actions seeking equitable relief may be brought in the county of residence of any member of the authority.

(g) All money received by the authority pursuant to this Code section shall be deemed to be trust funds to be held and applied solely as provided in this Code section.

(h) The provisions of this Code section shall be deemed to provide an additional and alternative method for doing things authorized by this Code section and shall be regarded as supplemental and additional to powers conferred by the Constitution and laws of the State of Georgia and shall not be regarded as in derogation of any powers now existing.

(i) This Code section, being for the welfare of the state and its inhabitants, shall be liberally construed to effect the purposes thereof.

Code Commission notes. — This Code section was enacted as Code Section 15-6-94, but has been renumbered as Code Section 15-6-95, since Ga. L. 1993, p. 1544, § 1, also enacted a Code Section 15-6-94.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2015, p. 675, § 1-1/SB 8, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall be known and may be cited as the 'Safe Harbor/Rachel's Law Act.'"

Ga. L. 2015, p. 675, § 1-2/SB 8, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "(a) The General Assembly finds that arresting, prosecuting, and incarcerating victimized children serves to retraumatize children and increases their feelings of low self-esteem, making the process of recovery more difficult. The General Assembly acknowledges that both federal and state laws recognize that sexually exploited children are the victims of crime and should be treated as victims. The General Assembly finds that sexually exploited children deserve the protection of child welfare services, including family support, crisis intervention, counseling, and emergency housing services. The General Assembly finds that it is necessary and appropriate to adopt uniform and reasonable assessments and regulations to help address the deleterious secondary effects, including but not limited to, prostitution and sexual exploitation of children, associated with adult entertainment establishments that allow the sale, possession, or consumption of alcohol on premises and that provide to their patrons performances and interaction involving various forms of nudity. The General Assembly finds that a correlation exists between adult live entertainment establishments and the sexual exploitation of children. The General Assembly finds that adult live entertainment establishments present a point of access for children to come into contact with individuals seeking to sexually exploit children. The General Assembly further finds that individuals seeking to exploit children utilize adult live entertainment establishments as a means of locating children for the purpose of sexual exploitation. The General Assembly acknowledges that many local governments in this state and in other states found deleterious secondary effects of adult entertainment establishments are exacerbated by the sale, possession, or consumption of alcohol in such establishments.

"(b) The purpose of this Act is to protect a child from further victimization after he or she is discovered to be a sexually exploited child by ensuring that a child protective response is in place in this state. The purpose and intended effect of this Act in imposing assessments and regulations on adult entertainment establishments is not to impose a restriction on the content or reasonable access to any materials or performances protected by the First Amendment of the United States Constitution or Article I, Section I, Paragraph V of the Constitution of this state."

Ga. L. 2015, p. 675, § 6-1(b)/SB 8, provides that the 2015 amendment becomes effective on January 1, 2017, provided that a constitutional amendment is passed by the General Assembly and is ratified by the voters in the November, 2016, General Election amending the Constitution of Georgia to authorize the General Assembly to provide specific funding to the Safe Harbor for Sexually Exploited Children Fund. The constitutional amendment (Ga. L. 2015, p. 1497, § 1/SR 7) was ratified at the general election held on November 8, 2016.

Ga. L. 2015, p. 693, § 4-1/HB 233, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "This Act shall become effective on July 1, 2015, and shall apply to seizures of property for forfeiture that occur on or after that date. Any such seizure that occurs before July 1, 2015, shall be governed by the statute in effect at the time of such seizure."

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Payments to higher priority recipients. — Amount owing to a higher priority recipient must be paid in the entirety before distribution is made to a lower priority recipient. 2003 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2003-4.

Amendment of original fine. — If the sentencing court amends the fine to the amount paid rather than merely suspending payment of the remaining balance, the clerk of court must amend the additional penalty and surcharge amounts so as to make the fines statutorily consistent with the amended original fine. 2003 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2003-4.

In the event partial payments are distributed from each fund in a proportional amount to the sums collected as each payment is received, and the sentencing court subsequently amends the original fine amount, the amount due each particular fund would need to be recalculated and any excess distributions redistributed by the court officer charged with the duty of collecting moneys arising from fines. 2003 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2003-4.

Proportional distribution system. — Proportional or pro rata distribution system is appropriate for any court that is legally required to collect fines and moneys arising from fines. 2003 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2003-4.

Local ordinances. — Local governing authorities are not authorized to enact local ordinances that differ from O.C.G.A. § 15-6-95. 2004 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2004-10.

15-6-96. Clerk as custodian of records; contracts to market records or computer generated data for profit.

The clerk of the superior court is the custodian of the records of his or her office. Any contract to distribute, sell, or otherwise market records or computer generated data of the office of the clerk of the superior court for profit shall be made by the clerk of the superior court. If the clerk of the superior court also serves as the clerk of any other court, the provisions of this Code section shall be applicable to the records and data of such other court. A report summarizing contracts entered into pursuant to this Code section along with any revenues received therefrom shall be prepared by the clerk of the superior court and submitted to the governing authority of the county on a monthly basis.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Code section prevails over Open Records Act. — O.C.G.A. § 15-6-96 prevails over O.C.G.A. § 50-18-71 and any other part of the Open Records Act, O.C.G.A. § 50-18-70 et seq., to the extent those laws conflict with the ability of superior court clerks to contract to market records of the clerk's offices for profit. Powell v. VonCanon, 219 Ga. App. 840, 467 S.E.2d 193 (1996).

The number of prior year indexes to be re-created shall be determined by the Georgia Superior Court Clerks' Cooperative Authority in cooperation with the clerks of the superior courts who shall provide copies of such county indexes or access to copies of such indexes for re-creating such indexes. A copy of the re-created index shall be furnished to each county but shall not replace or supersede the original county index.

ARTICLE 1

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Law reviews. — For article, "Courts: Juvenile Justice Reform," see 30 Ga. St. U. L. Rev. 63 (2013).

15-7-1. "State court" defined.

As used in this chapter, the term "state court" shall mean any court created pursuant to the provisions of this chapter or any court continued as a state court by Article VI, Section X of the Constitution of the State of Georgia.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-7-1, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 1419, § 2; Ga. L. 1984, p. 22, § 15.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Jurisdiction of recorder's courts over misdemeanor traffic offenses. — Under the 1983 Georgia Constitution, the recorder's courts continue to possess limited jurisdiction over state misdemeanor traffic offenses until otherwise provided by law. Wojcik v. State, 260 Ga. 260, 392 S.E.2d 525 (1990).

15-7-2. Creation of state courts.

The General Assembly may by local law create a state court in any county or counties of this state in which there is no state court, and such court shall be the "State Court of (whatever county or counties in which the court is located)."

History. — Code 1981, § 15-7-2, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 1419, § 2.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1999, p. 830, § 1, effective April 28, 1999, amends Ga. L. 1996, p. 627, § 3, and re-creates a system of state courts of limited jurisdiction and venue for each city having a population of 300,000 or more so as to give such courts jurisdiction to try offenses against certain traffic laws and ordinances.

Ga. L. 2004, p. 885, § 1, not codified by the General Assembly, effective January 1, 2005, repeals Ga. L. 1996, p. 627 as amended by Ga. L. 1999, p. 830, effective April 28, 1999, which re-created a system of state courts of limited jurisdiction and venue for each city having a population of 300,000 or more so as to give such courts jurisdiction to try offenses against certain traffic laws and ordinances; thus, all courts created pursuant to such Act are abolished.

Ga. L. 2004, p. 885, § 2, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "On the effective date of this Act, all cases and matters pending in any court abolished by Section 1 of this Act shall be transferred to the municipal court of the city in which such abolished court was located. The chief judge of such municipal court shall then transfer those cases over which the municipal court does not have jurisdiction to the appropriate court. All records, books, minutes, files, and documents relating to such cases or prior cases of the city court shall be likewise transferred. This Act shall be applicable only with an executed intergovernmental agreement between all affected jurisdictions." This Act became effective January 1, 2005.

Ga. L. 2004, p. 885, § 3, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "On the effective date of this Act, each judge of a court abolished by Section 1 of this Act shall become a judge in the municipal court of the city in which such abolished court was located and shall be subject to retention until the expiration of the judge's current term of office. On the effective date of this Act, each judge pro hac vice or senior judge of a court abolished by Section 1 of this Act shall become a judge pro hac vice in the municipal court of the city in which such abolished court was located and shall retain such position until at least December 31, 2010." This Act became effective January 1, 2005.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Speedy trial provisions. — As O.C.G.A. § 15-7-43(b), enacted in 1983, incorporates the speedy trial provisions of O.C.G.A. § 17-7-170 by reference, those provisions supersede a 1981 local law provision entitling a defendant in a state court to discharge and acquittal if no trial is had at the term when the demand is made or within the next two succeeding regular terms thereafter. Majia v. State, 174 Ga. App. 432, 330 S.E.2d 171, aff'd, 254 Ga. 660, 333 S.E.2d 834 (1985); Parks v. State, 239 Ga. App. 333, 521 S.E.2d 370 (1999).

15-7-4. Jurisdiction.

(a) Each state court shall have jurisdiction, within the territorial limits of the county or counties for which it was created and concurrent with the superior courts, over the following matters:

(1) The trial of criminal cases below the grade of felony;

(2) The trial of civil actions without regard to the amount in controversy, except those actions in which exclusive jurisdiction is vested in the superior courts;

(3) The hearing of applications for and the issuance of arrest and search warrants;

(4) The holding of courts of inquiry;

(5) The punishment of contempt by fines not exceeding $1,000.00, by imprisonment not exceeding 20 days, or both; and

(6) Review of decisions of other courts as may be provided by law.

(b) Each state court shall have jurisdiction, within the territorial limits of the county or counties for which it was created and concurrent with other courts having such jurisdiction, over possession of one ounce or less of marijuana, in accordance with Code Sections 16-13-2 and 16-13-30.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-7-4, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 1419, § 2; Ga. L. 1997, p. 1377, § 1; Ga. L. 2013, p. 561, § 2/SB 66.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarities of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code Section 15-7-7 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

State court has jurisdiction over all misdemeanor violations of the Uniform Rules of the Road dealing with traffic offenses. Diamond v. State, 151 Ga. App. 690, 261 S.E.2d 434 (1979).

State Court of Troup County had jurisdiction over city code misdemeanor violations. Poole v. State, 229 Ga. App. 406, 494 S.E.2d 251 (1997).

Superior courts retain exclusive jurisdiction as to declaratory judgment actions. EVI Equip., Inc. v. Northern Ins. Co., 178 Ga. App. 197, 342 S.E.2d 380 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Mitchell v. Southern Gen. Ins. Co., 185 Ga. App. 870, 366 S.E.2d 179 (1988).

Jurisdiction over issues involving Telephone Consumer Protection Act. — Radio station properly raised an "as applied" attack upon the constitutionality of the Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA), 47 U.S.C. § 227, as a defense to a civil action, and the trial court erred in ruling that the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider the issue; judicial review of federal statutes by state courts was especially appropriate when, as here, Congress granted to state courts exclusive jurisdiction over private actions brought to enforce the challenged federal statute. Schneider v. Susquehanna Radio Corp., 260 Ga. App. 296, 581 S.E.2d 603 (2003).

Jurisdiction of recorder's court limited. — Because the recorder's court does not impanel juries, the court's jurisdiction over state misdemeanor traffic offenses is limited to cases in which the defendant waives the right to a jury trial; if the defendant demands a jury trial, the case is then forwarded to the solicitor's office (now district attorney's office) for docketing in the state court, which also has jurisdiction to hear cases involving misdemeanor state traffic offenses. State v. Serio, 257 Ga. App. 369, 571 S.E.2d 168 (2002).

Equitable remedies are beyond the jurisdiction of the state court. Forest Villas Condominium Ass'n v. Camerio, 205 Ga. App. 617, 422 S.E.2d 884 (1992).

Court lacked jurisdiction. — State court lacked jurisdiction to provide the lessee with the remedy of equitable rescission of a commercial lease and a return of the security deposit because the lessee did not sue on rescission based upon a tender already made as the lessor never delivered possession of the property, and the lessee never paid any rent, and there was nothing for the lessee to tender or offer to tender to effectuate a rescission at law; because the lessee instead sought the affirmative powers of a court of equity to rescind, or undo, the contractual transaction, and the state court did not have jurisdiction over equity matters, the state court's order was vacated and the case was remanded with direction that the case be transferred to the superior court. Thor Gallery at South DeKalb, LLC v. Monger, 338 Ga. App. 235, 789 S.E.2d 806 (2016).

Fines for past violations deemed to be for criminal contempt. — Fines imposed as punishment for violations of injunctive order occurring prior to entry of a contempt order were for criminal contempt and were limited to the maximum of $500. Grantham v. Universal Tax Sys., 217 Ga. App. 676, 458 S.E.2d 870 (1995).

No jurisdiction over § 16-8-18 offense. — While O.C.G.A. § 16-8-18 (entering automobile with intent to commit theft) grants the trial judge discretion to impose misdemeanor punishment, former O.C.G.A. § 15-7-7 did not reduce the offense to a misdemeanor so as to give a state court jurisdiction. Bass v. State, 169 Ga. App. 520, 313 S.E.2d 776 (1984) (decided under former § 15-7-7).

State court judges may hear affidavit for dispossessory warrant. — Affidavit required by former Code 1933, § 61-301 (see now O.C.G.A. § 44-7-50), for the initiation of dispossessory warrant proceedings against tenants holding over is to be made before the judge of the superior court or any justice of the peace, including judges of the state courts of each county. Howington v. W.H. Ferguson & Sons, 147 Ga. App. 636, 249 S.E.2d 687 (1978).

State court has jurisdiction over county ordinance violations. — State Court of Cobb County has jurisdiction over cases involving alleged violations of county ordinances that constitute misdemeanors. Floyd v. State, 168 Ga. App. 645, 310 S.E.2d 749 (1983).

State Court of DeKalb County has jurisdiction over misdemeanor crimes. — There was undisputed testimony that the misdemeanor crimes with which the defendant was charged and convicted occurred in DeKalb County, Georgia, and that the defendant was identified as the perpetrator of the offenses; thus, the record affirmatively established that the state court of DeKalb County exercised both personal and subject matter jurisdiction over the defendant. Freeman v. State, 194 Ga. App. 905, 392 S.E.2d 330 (1990).

Commission in portion of city airport within county. — State court had jurisdiction over misdemeanor offenses which took place at that part of a city airport within the county. Hope v. State, 226 Ga. App. 392, 486 S.E.2d 658 (1997).

O.C.G.A. § 19-5-13 does not divest state courts of jurisdiction over trover or conversion actions in which the alleged trover or conversion results from the defendant's retention of property awarded to the plaintiff in a final divorce decree. Dunlap v. Pope, 177 Ga. App. 539, 339 S.E.2d 662 (1986).

Fine for past violations of discovery order is criminal contempt. — Imposition of a $500 fine per day for past violations of a court's discovery order was an adjudication of criminal contempt and, therefore, the contempt order was affirmed on condition that the fines in excess of $500 be stricken. Carey Can., Inc. v. Hinely, 257 Ga. 150, 356 S.E.2d 202, cert. denied, 484 U.S. 898, 108 S. Ct. 233, 98 L. Ed. 2d 192 (1987).

Action on note given for federally funded student loan. — State court was competent to adjudicate an action brought by the Georgia Higher Education Assistance Corporation on a note given for a federally funded student loan. Garrett v. Georgia Higher Educ. Assistance Corp., 217 Ga. App. 415, 457 S.E.2d 677 (1995).

State court had jurisdiction over unjust enrichment claim. — State court had jurisdiction to give an award based on the equitable theory of unjust enrichment because the plaintiffs, the buyers of a sports bar, sought only damages against the sellers, not equitable relief. Lee v. Shim, 310 Ga. App. 725, 713 S.E.2d 906 (2011).

Application of Code section. — O.C.G.A. § 15-7-4 sets forth the subject matter jurisdiction of state courts and is not applicable to a guarantor's claim of lack of jurisdiction; if the principal borrower resided in the county in which the action on the note was brought, default judgment against the choice of the guarantor was also authorized. Browne v. Trust Co. Bank, 205 Ga. App. 499, 422 S.E.2d 669 (1992).

When an out-of-state seller sued an in-state buyer in Georgia, despite a provision in the parties' contract for the jurisdiction of the courts of Texas, the courts of Georgia had subject matter jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 15-7-4(a)(2); Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. I, Para. I; Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I; and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I; the parties waived the forum selection clause by either filing suit in Georgia or not responding. Euler-Siac S.P.A. (Creamar Spa) v. Drama Marble Co., 274 Ga. App. 252, 617 S.E.2d 203 (2005).

Inasmuch as it was established that a violation of O.C.G.A. § 40-6-395 was alleged to have occurred in Douglas County, the State Court of Douglas County had subject matter jurisdiction over the case; thus, the denial of defendant's motion in arrest of judgment was not error. Harbuck v. State, 280 Ga. 775, 631 S.E.2d 351 (2006).

Review of prior court's summary judgment ruling. — Losing party had the right to bring a direct appeal from the order granting summary judgment and the party was not required to follow the discretionary application process under O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(1) as, given the plenary authority to revise and modify prior rulings, the transferee court was allowed to revisit the prior denial of a motion for summary judgment. (a) Pursuant to rules promulgated by the Criminal Case Data Exchange Board, on and after January 1, 2019, a state court shall provide for the filing of pleadings in criminal cases and any other document related thereto and for the acceptance of payments and remittances by electronic means.

(b)(1) On and after January 1, 2019, except as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection, all pleadings and any other document related thereto filed by an attorney to initiate a civil action or in a civil case in a state court shall be filed by electronic means through the court's electronic filing service provider. Except as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection, once a court has commenced mandatory electronic filings in civil cases, a clerk shall not accept, file, or docket any pleading or any other form of paper document related thereto from an attorney in a civil case.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, a court's electronic filing service provider may charge a fee which shall be a recoverable court cost and only include a:

(i) One-time fee for electronically filing pleadings or documents in a civil action and the electronic service of pleadings, regardless of how many parties shall be served, which shall not exceed $30.00 per filer, per party. Such fee shall be paid at the time of the first filing on behalf of a party; provided that when filings are submitted via a public access terminal, upon the first filing not using such terminal, such fee shall be paid;

(ii) Supplemental fee of $5.00 for each filing made in a civil action after a party has made ten electronic filings in such civil action; and

(iii) Convenience fee for credit card and bank drafting services, which shall not exceed 3.5 percent plus a 30¢ payment services fee per transaction.

(B) No electronic filing service provider shall charge a fee pursuant to this paragraph for the filing of:

(i) Pleadings or documents filed by the Department of Law, the Office of Legislative Counsel, the Office of the Secretary of State, a solicitor-general in his or her official capacity, or a public defender in his or her official capacity;

(ii) Pleadings or documents filed on behalf of municipal corporations or county governments; or

(iii) Leave of absence or conflict notices filed pursuant to the Uniform Rules for the State Courts.

(C) With respect to the fee charged pursuant to division (i) of subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, the clerk of state court shall retain $2.00 of the transaction fee and remit it to the governing authority of the county. No other portion of the transaction fee shall be remitted to any other office or entity of the state or governing authority of a county or municipality.

(D) An attorney, or party if he or she is pro se, shall be allowed unlimited access to view and download any pleading or document electronically filed in connection to the civil action in which he or she is counsel of record or pro se litigant, and an electronic service provider shall not be authorized to charge or collect a fee for such viewing or downloading.

(3) This subsection shall not apply to filings:

(A) In connection with:

(i) A pauper's affidavit;

(ii) Pleadings or documents filed under seal or presented to a court in camera or ex parte; or

(iii) Pleadings or documents to which access is otherwise restricted by law or court order;

(B) Made physically at the courthouse by an attorney or his or her designee or an individual who is not an attorney; provided, however, that the clerk shall require such pleadings or documents made physically at the courthouse by an attorney or his or her designee be submitted via a public access terminal in the clerk's office. The clerk shall not charge the fee as set forth in division (2)(A)(i) of this subsection for such filing but when payment is submitted by credit card or bank draft, the clerk may charge the convenience fee as set forth in division (2)(A)(iii) of this subsection;

(C) Made in a court located in an area that has been declared to be in a state of emergency pursuant to Article 3 of Chapter 3 of Title 38. The Judicial Council of Georgia shall provide rules for filings in such circumstances; or

(D) Made prior to the commencement of mandatory electronic filing for such court, wherein the filer shall continue to pay fees applicable to the case on the date of the first filing; provided, however, that a party may elect to make future filings through the court's electronic filing service provider and pay the applicable fees.

(4) The Judicial Council of Georgia shall make and publish in print or electronically such statewide minimum standards and rules as it deems necessary to carry out this Code section. Each clerk of state court shall develop and enact policies and procedures necessary to carry out the standards and rules created by the Judicial Council of Georgia.

(c) Nothing in this Code section shall be construed to prevent a clerk's acceptance of payments and remittances by electronic means under the clerk's own authority.

(d) A state court judge to whom the case is assigned and his or her staff shall, at all times, have access to all pleadings and documents electronically filed and such access shall be provided upon the physical acceptance of such pleadings and documents by the clerk.

(e) Any pleading or document filed electronically shall be deemed filed as of the time of its receipt by the electronic filing service provider. A pleading or document filed electronically shall not be subject to disclosure until it has been physically accepted by the clerk. Upon such acceptance as provided for in this subsection, such pleading or document shall be publicly accessible for viewing at no cost to the viewer on a public access terminal available at the courthouse during regular business hours.

Constitutionality. — Former Code 1933, § 24-2111a did not deny equal protection of the law, but simply limits eligibility to hold office to a class of persons with a quantum of experience. Nathan v. Smith, 230 Ga. 612, 198 S.E.2d 509 (1973) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2111a).

Repeal of inconsistent provisions of local acts. — Former Code 1933, § 24-2111a should be construed to repeal by implication inconsistent provisions of local Acts; it covered the whole subject matter of qualifications for the office of judge of state court. 1972 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 72-57 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2111a).

Residency requirement. — State court judge must continue to maintain residency in the county from which he or she is elected in order to retain his or her office and, if he or she fails to do so, then the office becomes vacant as a matter of law. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-6.

Assistance to state courts by replacement probate judge. — Replacement probate judge appointed in good faith pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-9-13(a) may provide assistance to state courts so long as that individual satisfies the qualifications of judges of the state courts under O.C.G.A. § 15-7-21(a)(1), and the request for assistance complies with the terms specified by O.C.G.A. § 15-9-9.1(f). 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-12.

ADVISORY OPINIONS OF THE STATE BAR

Part-time judges may represent defendants in criminal cases. However, regular or exclusive representation of such defendants by a judge whose responsibilities include the issuance of criminal warrants or the trial of criminal cases might destroy the appearance of impartiality and integrity essential to the administration of justice and, therefore, be inappropriate. Adv. Op. No. 86-2 (Aug. 23, 1989).

Part-time judges cannot practice in own court. — Part-time judges are not allowed to practice before their own court thus creating an analogous situation to that in which a law clerk is also prohibited from representing clients before a present employer-judge. Adv. Op. No. 05-3 (April 26, 2006).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

County not entitled to reimbursement of salary supplement that was not paid in violation of law. — In a dispute between a county and a county state court judge over a supplement to the judge's salary, summary judgment for the judge was proper on the county's claim for reimbursement of the judge's salary supplement because the county failed to show that the supplement was paid with the total absence or want of power. Even if the supplement was paid in violation of the Open Meetings Act, O.C.G.A. § 50-14-1 et seq., the county's counterclaim was filed well outside the 90-day limitation period in § 50-14-1(b)(2). Heiskell v. Roberts, 342 Ga. App. 109, 802 S.E.2d 385 (2017).

State court judge not entitled to additional compensation under local law. — Trial court erred in finding that all of a a state court judge's claims to recover compensation under state law, O.C.G.A. § 15-7-22, a local law, 2006 Ga. Laws 206, and a county ordinance, were barred by laches; the judge's claims were subject to the two-year limitations period in O.C.G.A. § 9-3-22, meaning the judge could pursue claims on or after October 6, 2015; however, the judge was not entitled to mandamus because the judge had received all the compensation to which the judge was entitled. The performance of ordered military duty shall not create a vacancy in such office during the term for which such judge was elected.

(b) Where the giving of written notice of candidacy is required, any judge of state court who is performing ordered military duty may deliver such notice by mail, agent, or messenger to the proper elections official. No duty of misdemeanor defendant to arrange for court reporter. — Defendant in misdemeanor case is not required to make advance arrangements for court reporter if the defendant desires the trial to be recorded. When the defendant in a misdemeanor case asks that the case be recorded at the defendant's expense, the court must make sure that the court reporter is available. Thompson v. State, 240 Ga. 296, 240 S.E.2d 87 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2105).

Former Code 1933, §§ 6-805, 24-2105(a) and 24-3102 did not put a duty upon a defendant who was charged with a misdemeanor to ensure prior to trial that the court reporter was complying with the reporter's statutory duty to attend court sessions. The dockets and other records of the municipal court shall be kept separately from those of the state court.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-7-83, enacted by Ga. L. 1992, p. 1161, § 1.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Lack of evidence that a state court was in compliance with O.C.G.A. § 15-7-83 required a finding that the court was acting as a state court and not a municipal court in the handling of city code misdemeanor prosecution and, accordingly, the Court of Appeals had jurisdiction of a direct appeal from the court's decision. Poole v. State, 229 Ga. App. 406, 494 S.E.2d 251 (1997).

Failure to introduce municipal ordinance. — Even though a state court judge had authority to sit as a municipal court judge pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-7-80, but was not, in fact, sitting as a municipal judge in the prosecution of a municipal ordinance violation, the state court judge could not exercise concurrent jurisdiction and authority as a municipal judge, and the prosecutor's failure to introduce the ordinance rendered the evidence insufficient as a matter of law to warrant a conviction. Reed v. State, 229 Ga. App. 817, 495 S.E.2d 313 (1998).

15-7-84. Violation of municipal ordinances.

Any limitations upon the punishment which may be imposed for violations of municipal ordinances which are contained in the charter of the municipality shall continue to control in municipal courts operated under this article, and if no such limitation exists the maximum punishment imposed shall not exceed a fine of $1,000.00 or six months' imprisonment or both, unless some other general law authorizes greater punishment. Other charter provisions not in conflict with this article shall continue to apply in municipal courts operated under this article.

15-7-85. Limitations on authority granted to municipalities.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this Code section, the authority granted to municipalities by this article shall not apply to:

(1) A municipality whose charter does not authorize a municipal court;

(2) A municipality whose charter provides for the election, as judge or judges and not as members of the municipal governing authority, of the judge or judges of a court having jurisdiction over municipal ordinance violations; or

(3) A municipality whose charter expressly provides that the municipality shall not have the authority granted by this article.

(b) The authority granted to municipalities by this article shall, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this Code section, apply to any municipality if as of June 30, 1983, jurisdiction over violation of its ordinances was by law vested in a state court in existence on that date.

such individual has qualified to seek the office of judge of the probate court prior to or at the time of qualifying as a candidate. The affidavit shall affirm that the individual meets all the qualifications required by subparagraphs (A), (C), (D), (E), and (F) of paragraph (1) of this subsection and either subparagraph (B) of paragraph (1) of this subsection or subsection (c) of this Code section.

(b) The judge of the probate court shall not, during his or her term of office, be executor, administrator, or guardian, or other agent of a fiduciary nature required to account to his or her court. When any individual holding such trust is elected judge of the probate court, his or her letters and powers immediately abate upon his or her qualification. However, a judge of the probate court may be an administrator, guardian, or executor in a case where the jurisdiction belongs to another county or in a special case when he or she is allowed by law and required to account to the judge of the probate court of another county.

(c) In all counties of this state which have a population of 550,000 or more according to the United States decennial census of 1980 or any future such census, a chief deputy clerk of the probate court having served as chief deputy clerk for more than two years shall be eligible to fill a vacancy in the office of probate judge for the remainder of the unexpired term without regard to whether such chief deputy clerk meets any residency requirements otherwise imposed by law if the chief deputy clerk becomes a resident of the county before taking office as probate judge. Any probate judge taking office as authorized by the preceding sentence shall thereafter be eligible to succeed himself or herself so long as he or she remains a resident of the county.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Residence requirement. — Although party seeking the office of judge of the probate court, during a portion of the two-year period prior to qualifying for election, lived in another county while serving in the army and applied for and received a homestead exemption for the party's residence there, the party did not intend to change the party's domicile since the party did not cancel the homestead exemption for the party's residence in the county where the party sought election and canceled the homestead exemption claimed in the later county and paid the taxes that were owed on the nonexempt residence. Johnson v. Byrd, 263 Ga. 173, 429 S.E.2d 923 (1993).

Probate judge cannot act as executor in county serving. — This section denies an ordinary (now probate judge) the right to act as executor in the county where the person is an ordinary (now probate judge). Wilson v. Wilson, 139 Ga. 771, 78 S.E. 41 (1913).

Appointment of such officer as executor is null and void. Marshall v. Walker, 47 Ga. App. 195, 170 S.E. 267 (1933).

If, at any time during the term of the judge of the probate court, it is made satisfactorily to appear to the judge of the superior court that the bond of the judge of the probate court is insufficient or the security thereof insolvent, it shall be his or her duty to require other security. On failure of the judge of the probate court to comply with the order of the superior court judge, a vacancy shall be declared as if such judge had failed to give security in the first instance.

15-9-10. Temporary filling of vacancy; order of priority; compensation.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Service by other officers when probate judge disqualified. — If an ordinary (now probate judge) of a given county is disqualified in any matter coming before the court, the county judge or the city court judge, and, if there be neither of such courts, then the clerk of the superior court of such ordinary's (now probate judge's) county may exercise all the jurisdiction of the ordinary (now probate judge) in such case. Maddox v. First Nat'l Bank, 191 Ga. 106, 11 S.E.2d 662 (1940) (decided prior to 1983 amendment).

Probate judge of adjoining county not to assume jurisdiction of disqualified judge. — Since the adoption of the Code of 1933 there is no authority in the ordinary (now probate judge) of an adjoining county to assume jurisdiction when an ordinary (now probate judge) of a given county is disqualified, the previous law as to the authority of the ordinary (now probate judge) of an adjoining county, as contained in the Civil Code of 1910, § 4785 having been repealed by the Code of 1933. Maddox v. First Nat'l Bank, 191 Ga. 106, 11 S.E.2d 662 (1940).

Parol evidence of disqualification on account of relationship to parties to the probate of a will is admissible. McAfee v. Flanders, 138 Ga. 403, 75 S.E. 319 (1912).

Failure to follow procedures results in nullity. — Appellants successfully argued that the record was utterly devoid of any indication that the procedure in O.C.G.A. § 15-9-13 was followed in order to authorize the superior court judge to sit over the probate of the decedent's will. No written order was entered pursuant to Uniform Probate Court Rule 3 for the appointment of the superior court judge to act in the probate judge's absence. Thus, the superior court judge was not sitting over the probate proceedings in replacement for the recused probate court judge. Because the superior court lacks subject matter jurisdiction to hear the probate of a will, it follows that the judgment rendered by the superior court here was a nullity and void. Carpenter v. Carpenter, 276 Ga. 746, 583 S.E.2d 852 (2003).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Assistance to state courts by replacement probate judge. — Replacement probate judge appointed in good faith pursuant to subsection (a) of

O.C.G.A. § 15-9-13 may provide assistance to the state courts so long as that individual satisfies the qualifications of judges of the state courts under O.C.G.A. § 15-7-21(a)(1), and the request for assistance complies with the terms specified by O.C.G.A. § 15-1-9.1(f). 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-12.

Neither attorneys nor clerks may perform marriage ceremonies. — Neither attorneys appointed pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-9-13(a), nor the clerks of the probate court, may perform marriage ceremonies, in that such power is inherently a personal one of the probate judge pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-3-30(c). 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-22.

(c) To assure proper administration of the court's duties, the judge of the probate court of each county shall be furnished a copy of the Official Code of Georgia Annotated and annual supplements to the Code to keep it current. The costs of such Code and maintenance thereof shall be paid by the governing authority of each such county from the county library fund, if sufficient, otherwise any additional amount required shall be paid from the general funds of the county.

General Consideration

Judgment is nullity if probate court has no jurisdiction. — If, the fact which alone gives jurisdiction to a court of ordinary (now probate court) be recited, and from that fact it appears that the court has no jurisdiction on the face of the record, then the judgment is a nullity. Davis v. Melton, 51 Ga. App. 685, 181 S.E. 300 (1935).

Judgment nullity when illegal procedure followed. — Judgment and appointment of a guardian was a nullity since the record showed the applicants themselves in a proceeding involving the validity of a will attempted to waive the ten day notice and the court proceeded to declare the testatrix incompetent and appointed a guardian for the testatrix (two of the applicants) in two days without complying with the law. English v. Shivers, 220 Ga. 737, 141 S.E.2d 443 (1965).

Court-appointed guardian need not seek court approval of settlement. — Probate court clearly has jurisdiction to appoint a guardian for a minor. However, a guardian, once appointed, need not obtain the approval of the probate court to settle a contested or doubtful claim for or against the minor. Accordingly, any settlement of the tort claims of minors to which their duly appointed guardian agreed would not have to be approved by the probate court. King Cotton, Ltd. v. Powers, 200 Ga. App. 549, 409 S.E.2d 67 (1991).

Facts considered in exercise of jurisdiction. — Want of jurisdiction in the court of ordinary (now probate court) to grant letters of administration in a particular case is not shown by allegations that at the time of the grant of administration a will was on file in the office of the ordinary (now probate judge), which had been previously propounded, but, no caveat having been interposed, probate was refused on account of failure of the propounder to produce evidence that was accessible to establish the will, and that the will was subsequently probated; such facts may be considered in the exercise of jurisdiction, but those facts are not jurisdictional facts. Scarborough v. Long, 186 Ga. 412, 197 S.E. 796, cert. denied, 305 U.S. 637, 59 S. Ct. 107, 83 L. Ed. 410 (1938).

Court of equity may not impede exclusive jurisdiction of probate court. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) has original and exclusive jurisdiction, in the first instance, of the probate of wills; and a court of equity in the exercise of the court's equity powers has no jurisdiction to enjoin the custodian of an alleged will from offering the will for probate, or for any reason to decree cancellation of an alleged will on which no action has been taken by the court of ordinary (now probate court). The rule that equity seeks to do complete justice will not bring into equitable jurisdiction matters on which another court has exclusive jurisdiction. Furr v. Jordan, 196 Ga. 862, 27 S.E.2d 861 (1943).

While probate proceeding pending, probate court had jurisdiction. — Trial court properly granted the defendant's motion to dismiss the complaint because to the extent the plaintiff's fraud claim was based on the execution of the 2013 will, the trial court did not have jurisdiction to consider that claim since a probate proceeding was pending over which the trial court had no jurisdiction. Copeland v. Miller, 347 Ga. App. 123, 817 S.E.2d 692 (2018).

Probate court may vacate fraudulent judgment probating will. — Both prior to, and since, the Civil Practice Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-11-1 et seq.), the court of ordinary (now probate court) has had jurisdiction to vacate the court's judgment probating a will in solemn form which was obtained by fraud or other irregularity that renders the judgment voidable. Dennis v. McCrary, 237 Ga. 605, 229 S.E.2d 367 (1976).

Court of equity can grant relief from fraudulent scheme without usurping jurisdiction of ordinary's (now probate judge's) court by declaring the return of the appraisers in the court of ordinary (now probate court) null and void, and enjoining the defendants from using a year's support proceeding as a device to defraud the creditors of the defendant son. Dukes v. Cairo Banking Co., 220 Ga. 507, 140 S.E.2d 182 (1964).

Court of equity may set aside appointment of administrator obtained by fraud in falsely representing that necessary jurisdictional facts existed. Neal v. Boykin, 129 Ga. 676, 59 S.E. 912, 121 Am. St. R. 237 (1907).

Person not qualified voter cannot be probate judge. — Under application of the provisions of the Constitution and laws of this state, a person who is not a qualified voter is not eligible for the office of ordinary (now probate judge) of a county. Lee v. Byrd, 169 Ga. 622, 151 S.E. 28 (1929).

Superior court had concurrent jurisdiction with probate court. — Executor of the estate and partnership head faced uncertainty with respect to conflicting duties to the partnership and to the estate and beneficiaries; thus, a declaratory judgment was an appropriate vehicle to clarify the executor's obligations, and the Georgia superior court had concurrent jurisdiction with the probate court to address those issues as well as was authorized to exercise the court's concurrent and equitable jurisdiction to decide the requests for the temporary restraining orders. Rentz v. Rentz, 339 Ga. App. 66, 793 S.E.2d 112 (2016).

Concurrent jurisdiction over counterclaim for accounting of estate. — Because the plaintiffs asserted claims for conversion of property and sought a court order requiring the defendants to turn over certain items of personal property, such claims were properly heard by the superior court, as the court of equity and, accordingly, the superior court properly exercised concurrent jurisdiction over the counterclaim for accounting of an estate. Braswell v. Benton, 351 Ga. App. 372, 830 S.E.2d 758 (2019).

Superior court lacks jurisdiction of expected inheritance and gift. — To the extent that the sons' claim concerning their mother's will is one based upon expected inheritance or gift, the superior court has no jurisdiction over the claim while probate proceedings are pending. Morgan v. Morgan, 256 Ga. 250, 347 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Issue that belongs in probate court. — Trial court in a condemnation action exceeded the court's authority in ruling that the state's tax lien did not have priority over an attorney fee claim against a landlord's estate when the issue belonged first in a probate court proceeding. State Revenue Comm'r v. Fleming, 172 Ga. App. 887, 324 S.E.2d 821 (1984).

Trial court did not err in dismissing a purported beneficiary's complaint alleging that the executors breached the fiduciary duties owed to the beneficiary by wasting the assets of the beneficiary's parents' estates and failing to distribute assets because the claims would be more properly heard by the probate court which had original and exclusive jurisdiction over such matters; the probate court was equipped to handle such claims and had the authority to grant the relief requested, if necessary. Benefield v. Martin, 276 Ga. App. 130, 622 S.E.2d 469 (2005).

Superior court erred in granting an aunt and uncle custody of minor children because the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider the petition for custody since a probate court had exclusive jurisdiction to issue and revoke letters of testamentary guardianship, and O.C.G.A. § 29-2-4(b) mandated the issuance of letters of testamentary guardianship to the brother of the children's father without notice and a hearing and without consideration of the children's best interests; equity afforded no valid basis for the superior court's exercise of jurisdiction because the aunt and uncle had an appropriate remedy in the probate court to challenge the testamentary guardianship: a petition for revocation or suspension of the brother's letters of testamentary guardianship. Zinkhan v. Bruce, 305 Ga. App. 510, 699 S.E.2d 833 (2010).

Improper advisory opinion on validity of will. — Guardian's declaratory judgment action seeking to have an elderly woman's 2013 last will and testament deemed invalid and void was properly dismissed by the trial court because the elderly woman was still alive and may still revoke the 2013 will; therefore, any ruling determining the will's validity constituted an improper advisory opinion. Kellar v. Davis, 350 Ga. App. 385, 829 S.E.2d 466 (2019), cert. denied, No. S19C1423, 2020 Ga. LEXIS 26 (Ga. 2020).

Jurisdiction to remove executrix. — Probate court had jurisdiction to remove the decedent's niece as executrix, due to an alleged conflict of interest; the order did not attempt to determine title to property. In re Estate of Coutermarsh, 325 Ga. App. 288, 752 S.E.2d 448 (2013).

Res judicata. — Court of appeals did not err in holding that res judicata barred a daughter's complaint for breach of contract against a widow because the relevant facts pled in the daughter's prior attempt to set aside the year's support granted to the widow on the basis of fraud were identical to those the daughter alleged in support of the breach of contract claim; the daughter's fraud claim was determined on the merits on appeal to the superior court, and the daughter had a full and fair opportunity to have litigated any related claims against the widow in the action the daughter initially filed in the probate court. Crowe v. Elder, 290 Ga. 686, 723 S.E.2d 428 (2012).

General Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction and powers of probate court. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) has jurisdiction of matters pertaining to the estates of deceased persons, jurisdiction over administrators, jurisdiction to compel administrators to account for the assets of an estate in the administrator's possession or custody, and jurisdiction in such cases to attach and punish for contempt. Melton v. Jenkins, 50 Ga. App. 615, 178 S.E. 754 (1935).

Jurisdiction to render judgment presumed. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) is one of general jurisdiction. Hence, jurisdiction to render a judgment is presumed. Stuckey v. Watkins, 112 Ga. 268, 37 S.E. 401, 81 Am. St. R. 47 (1900); Jones v. Smith, 120 Ga. 642, 48 S.E. 134 (1904).

Facts for jurisdiction need not appear on face or record. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) is a court of general jurisdiction, and therefore the facts which give the court jurisdiction need not appear on the face of the judgment or record; for instance, the publication of a citation for appointment or removal of an administrator need not appear upon the face of the judgment; and if nothing to the contrary appears, it will be presumed that all of the essential prerequisites have been complied with before the ordinary (now probate judge) entered the judgment or order. Davis v. Melton, 51 Ga. App. 685, 181 S.E. 300 (1935).

Probate court has jurisdiction over legal and fact questions. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) has jurisdiction to hear and determine issues of facts and to apply legal principles in a citation for settlement brought against an administrator; no construction of a will being involved, the court does not lose jurisdiction because questions of law as well as of fact are involved. Porter v. Watson, 51 Ga. App. 848, 181 S.E. 680 (1935).

Jurisdiction over claim for breach of fiduciary duty. — Probate court had jurisdiction over a claim against executors of an estate in which the claimants sought payment of damages for breach of a fiduciary duty. Heath v. Sims, 242 Ga. App. 691, 531 S.E.2d 115 (2000).

Probate court properly revoked letters testamentary, ordered reimbursement to a decedent's estate of excessive expenses, and ordered a settling of the estate's accounts after the decedent's executor committed 17 breaches of fiduciary duty including failing to wind up the estate and failing to provide the decedent's other child with an accounting. Fowler v. Cox, 264 Ga. App. 880, 592 S.E.2d 510 (2003).

Extent of probate court jurisdiction over insane persons. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) is vested with original, exclusive, and general jurisdiction over insane persons and the appointment and removal of their guardians. Shea v. Gehan, 70 Ga. App. 229, 28 S.E.2d 181 (1943).

Jurisdiction of out-of-state persons of unsound mind. — Former Code 1933, § 24-1901 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-9-30) was not confined solely to persons of unsound mind who reside in this state, but was comprehensive enough to embrace persons of unsound mind who live beyond the confines of Georgia. Shea v. Gehan, 70 Ga. App. 229, 28 S.E.2d 181 (1943).

Jurisdiction over guardianship for mentally disabled ward. — Probate court had the authority to establish a set visitation schedule between an adult mentally disabled ward and the ward's father in order to protect the ward's rights and best interests under the broad powers granted in O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-30(a), 29-4-40, and 29-4-41, despite the mother's/guardian's objection to the visitation. In re Estate of Wertzer, 330 Ga. App. 294, 765 S.E.2d 425 (2014).

Judgment by judge or court. — If a proceeding has been instituted before the ordinary (now probate judge), it is the act of the ordinary (now probate judge), and not the title, which determines whether the judgment is that of a court of ordinary (now probate court) or of the ordinary (now probate judge). In a proceeding for the appointment or removal of a guardian, the ordinary (now probate judge) was acting as a court under the jurisdiction conferred by former Code 1933, § 24-1901 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-9-30). Morse v. Caldwell, 55 Ga. App. 804, 191 S.E. 479 (1937).

Limited jurisdiction to determine necessity of guardian. — For examination inquiring into a person's capacity to manage the person's own estate the jurisdiction of the ordinary (now probate judge) is extremely limited, the proceedings are summary and must be strictly construed, and must show on the proceedings face such facts especially as to the giving of notice, the issuance of the commission, and the return thereof, as will authorize the judgment appointing the guardian. Milam v. Terrell, 214 Ga. 199, 104 S.E.2d 219 (1958).

In a controversy as to the right of guardianship, the probate court is not an appropriate court to take action under O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4, which provides for the loss of parental custody. Brown v. King, 193 Ga. App. 495, 388 S.E.2d 400 (1989).

Probate judge has judicial, ministerial, and clerical duties. — Ordinary (now probate judge) is official charged with performance of judicial, ministerial, and clerical duties. On admitting a will to probate, the ordinary (now probate judge) acts as a judicial officer, the subject matter being one over which the ordinary (now probate judge) has jurisdiction. Castleberry v. Horne, 220 Ga. 691, 141 S.E.2d 394 (1965).

Probate court may fix interlocutory and administration costs. — Petition to fix interlocutory costs and expenses of administration is within the jurisdiction of the court of ordinary (now probate court) as a necessary matter to the administration of an estate of a deceased person. Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

Court of ordinary (now probate court) has jurisdiction of a petition of former executors of an estate, which is being administered in that court, to cite the administrator de bonis non cum testamento annexo to show cause why certain disputed items, claimed by the former legal representatives to be proper items of interlocutory costs or expenses of administration incurred by them or owing to them in connection with their administration of the estate, should not be allowed and paid as items of costs and expenses of administration and to determine such. Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

Plaintiffs have remedy in probate court if executor unfit. — If the executor is unfit to handle the estate or there is cause for the executor's removal, plaintiffs have a remedy for such in the court of ordinary (now probate court). Tinsley v. Maddox, 176 Ga. 471, 168 S.E. 297 (1933).

Probate judge determines whether audit was necessary. — Whether an audit delivered by the former representative of the estate to the administrator along with the other assets of the estate is a proper and necessary item and expense of administration and should be paid as such out of the assets of the estate is a matter to be determined by the ordinary (now probate court judge). Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

Lack of Jurisdiction

Construction of will is not within jurisdiction of probate court. Lowell v. Bouchillon, 246 Ga. 357, 271 S.E.2d 498 (1980).

No jurisdiction to adjudicate claims of title to property. — Probate court does not have the jurisdiction to adjudicate conflicting claims of title to property; thus, if the decedent's widow asserted an ownership interest in property sought by the executor of the estate, an order of the probate court giving possession of such property to the executor was void, and the widow could not be found in contempt for noncompliance with the order. In re Estate of Adamson, 215 Ga. App. 613, 451 S.E.2d 501 (1994).

No jurisdiction to issue execution against distributee. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) is without jurisdiction to issue an execution in favor of an administrator against one of the distributees of the estate for a claimed overpayment as that is a personal issue between the administrator and the distributee to be adjudicated in a court of law. Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

No jurisdiction to award judgment against legatees. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) is without jurisdiction to award a judgment in favor of an administratrix of the executor of an estate against the children of the testator, who were legatees under the will, for money paid by the executor for the use and maintenance of such children. Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

No jurisdiction in property set apart claim. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) has no jurisdiction of a claim to property set apart to a widow as a 12-month's support. Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

Probate court has no jurisdiction to try conflicting claims of title to real property on an application for a year's support. Johnson v. Johnson, 199 Ga. App. 549, 405 S.E.2d 544 (1991).

No jurisdiction to try title claims on application for year's support. — Probate court erred by allowing the objections of a bank and a decedent's parents solely on the basis of adverse title and by denying a year's support to the widow when the widow failed to meet the resulting burden of proof because the probate court lacked the jurisdiction under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 15-9-30 to determine that the relevant money-market account and real property were not part of the estate; despite the jurisdictional limitation and the lack of an appropriate objection, the probate court proceeded to conduct a hearing as to the amount necessary for the widow's support, thereby inappropriately placing upon the widow a burden of proof that was contrary to O.C.G.A. § 53-3-7(a) and otherwise lacking in the absence of the jurisdictionally defective objections to the petition. In re Mahmoodzadeh, 314 Ga. App. 383, 724 S.E.2d 797 (2012).

No jurisdiction over fraud claims. — Trial court erred by granting summary judgment to an estate executor in a suit asserting fraud and other claims brought by two siblings as the trial court incorrectly determined that the privileges set forth in O.C.G.A. §§ 51-5-7(2) and 51-5-8 applied to the fraud claims. Moreover, neither collateral estoppel nor res judicata barred the action since a prior probate court proceeding did not involve the same issues. Further, the probate court had no jurisdiction over the fraud and intentional interference with a gift claims. Morrison v. Morrison, 284 Ga. 112, 663 S.E.2d 714 (2008).

Petition for order of sale of life estate. — To entertain a petition from a widow seeking a judgment of the court that she was in dire need and an order of sale of the property left to her for life by her husband's will does not fall within the provisions giving the court of ordinary (now probate court) jurisdiction of the sale and disposition of property belonging to deceased persons' estates. Castleberry v. Horne, 220 Ga. 691, 141 S.E.2d 394 (1965).

Procedure

Application for letters of administration must be made to the ordinary (now probate judge). The granting of letters is by the court of the ordinary (now probate court), not by the ordinary (now probate judge). Barclay v. Kimsey, 72 Ga. 725 (1884).

Probate court controls administration of estate pending litigation. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) has ample power to conserve the estate, and require bond and returns by the executor, and otherwise control the administration pending the litigation and a federal court cannot interfere. Heath v. Jones, 168 F.2d 460 (5th Cir. 1948).

Question validity of will in probate court. — Son of deceased should have applied to the ordinary (now probate judge) for a citation calling on the propounder to prove the will in solemn form and by a caveat in that proceeding could have questioned the validity of the deceased's will, but the son was not later entitled to a suit in equity to enjoin the administrator on the grounds that the will was probated in common and not solemn form. Crockett v. Oliver, 218 Ga. 620, 129 S.E.2d 806 (1963).

Equitable claims in superior court versus probate proceedings. — If a claimant is simply asking a superior court to exercise equitable powers to set aside various inter vivos transfers that were allegedly induced through undue influence, the fact that the property that was the subject of such transfers might end up in an estate that is currently the subject of pending probate proceedings does not mean that the superior court's adjudication of the claims in equity would encroach upon the probate court's exclusive jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 15-9-30(1) over the probate of wills. Lewis v. Van Anda, 282 Ga. 763, 653 S.E.2d 708 (2007).

Examine person alleged incapable before appointing of guardian. — Appointment of guardians for persons of unsound mind who are incapable of managing their estates shall occur only after formal examination of such person. Milam v. Terrell, 214 Ga. 199, 104 S.E.2d 219 (1958).

Heirs may not disregard probate court partition judgment. — When parties holding as heirs an undivided interest in lands have abandoned, without formally dismissing, a proceeding instituted in the superior court for partition, and agreed among themselves to institute such a proceeding in the court of ordinary (now probate court) to bring about a partition of the same lands, and this is done by appropriate proceeding in that court, resulting in a judgment confirming the assignment of the various parcels by the appraisers, no objection being filed or appeal taken, the parties are bound by such judgment. The parties will not subsequently be permitted to disregard such judgment, and seek, by amendment to the original petition in superior court, another partitioning of such lands. Zeagler v. Zeagler, 192 Ga. 453, 15 S.E.2d 478 (1941).

Executor or administrator may be called to accounting. — Only an executor or administrator standing in the relationship of an officer of court, to the court of ordinary (now probate court), may be called to an accounting in that court with respect to the executor's acts in the management of the estate. Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

Commissions of legal representatives of estate. — Amount of commissions of a legal representative of an estate, whether or not the commissions have been forfeited by the representative in one of the ways provided by law, or paid, in whole or in part, by a previous representative, or retained by such representative on a final return made by the representative in that court, are all matters peculiarly within the purview of the (probate) court wherein the estate is being administered and are matters which may be determined in that court. Murphy v. Hunt, 73 Ga. App. 707, 37 S.E.2d 823 (1946).

Court of ordinary (now probate court) may order sale of real estate and provide for disposition thereof. Davis v. Howard, 56 Ga. 430 (1876).

Distribution of estate by probate court. — Probate court was authorized to refrain from distributing the decedent's automobile and furniture to decedent's brother in spite of the brother's claim that that was decedent's stated desire since the decedent's will did not so provide. Sherard v. Aldridge, 251 Ga. App. 445, 554 S.E.2d 590 (2001).

Probate court may award reasonable attorney fees. — In an action by a plaintiff heir of an estate to recover from the assets of the estate reasonable attorney fees to pay counsel who prosecuted an action for the heir against an administrator holding property adversely to the estate, which action was successful and resulted in bringing into the estate a large fund which would not otherwise have been recovered for administration, the court of ordinary (now probate court) having jurisdiction of the administration of the estate may award reasonable attorney fees out of the fund recovered for the use of such counsel regardless of the terms of an express contract between the plaintiff heir and the attorneys as to their fees, since such heir, not being an administrator, had no power to bind the estate for services in the absence of an order of the ordinary (now probate judge) allowing the same. Estes v. Collum, 91 Ga. App. 186, 85 S.E.2d 561 (1954).

Probate court may determine question of court's own jurisdiction. — Court of ordinary (now probate court) to which application is made for a grant of administration is the proper tribunal to determine the question of the court's own jurisdiction. Arnold v. Arnold, 62 Ga. 627 (1879).

Collateral attack of judgments of court of ordinary (now probate court) is forbidden. Medlin & Sundy v. Downing Lumber Co., 128 Ga. 115, 57 S.E. 232 (1907); Bowen v. Gaskins, 144 Ga. 1, 85 S.E. 1007 (1915).

Judgments rendered in exercise of court's jurisdiction in all controversies as to right of guardianship cannot be collaterally attacked. Beavers v. Williams, 194 Ga. 875, 23 S.E.2d 171 (1942).

Judgments rendered in the exercise of the probate court's jurisdiction over the appointment and removal of guardians cannot be collaterally attacked. Bennett v. Bennett, 194 Ga. App. 197, 390 S.E.2d 276 (1990).

Court of ordinary (now probate court) is court of general jurisdiction in matter of year's support to the extent that there is every presumption in favor of an ordinary's (now probate judge's) judgment in such matter, and to the extent that such a judgment cannot be collaterally attacked except if the record shows want of jurisdictional facts; but a court of ordinary (now probate court) does not have general jurisdiction as to all subject matters. Trusco Fin. Co. v. Crowley, 86 Ga. App. 268, 71 S.E.2d 294 (1952).

Appeal from probate to superior court. — Ordinary (now probate judge) in commitment proceedings is vested with the powers of and really acts as a court of ordinary (now probate court) from which an appeal might be made to the superior court. Shiflett v. Dobson, 180 Ga. 23, 177 S.E. 681 (1934).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Probate court jurisdiction to set bail. — Because a probate court may hold a court of inquiry pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 17-7-20, that court may also set bail for any criminal offense not included in O.C.G.A. § 17-6-1(a). 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

Probate judges continue to exercise jurisdiction over traffic cases. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

Probate court, having jurisdiction over traffic offenses pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-30 and 40-13-21, has jurisdiction over violations of county traffic ordinances. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen No. U95-1.

No jurisdiction over criminal cases. — Probate judge may not employ an attorney to prosecute criminal cases in probate court. 1999 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U99-6.

No jurisdiction over violations of waste management or air pollution statutes. — Probate court does not have jurisdiction to try cases arising under provisions concerning waste management or air pollution. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

Jurisdiction to issue warrants and require bond. — Because a probate court may hold a court of inquiry pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 17-7-20, a probate court may also issue warrants and require bond pursuant to either O.C.G.A. § 17-6-90 or O.C.G.A. § 17-6-110. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-1.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Residence of testator at death confers exclusive jurisdiction on ordinary (now probate judge) of that county. City of Blakely v. Hilton, 150 Ga. 27, 102 S.E. 340 (1920).

Administration of estate of county property of nonresident decedent. — If a nonresident of the state dies, owning bonds and promissory notes, which are in the possession of one residing in a county of this state, such person may be said to have property in that county, and the probate judge of that county may grant administration on the deceased's estate. Robbins v. National Bank, 241 Ga. 538, 246 S.E.2d 660 (1978).

Cause of action is personalty, and because the situs of personalty follows the owner thereof and is controlled by the domicile of the owner, a cause of action belonging to a nonresident could not be probated, and an attorney's files that made up that cause were likewise not property subject to probate. Escareno v.

Noltina Crucible & Refractory Corp., 172 F.R.D. 522 (N.D. Ga. 1997).

Bonds and notes of nonresident held by person in county are property. McLaren v. Bradford, 52 Ga. 648 (1874).

Cause of action or injury sufficient basis. — Administration of a nonresident's estate does not require ownership of tangible property in the state, but rather, the presence of a cause of action or injury to the decedent is a sufficient basis. Escareno v. Carl Nolte Sohne GmbH, 270 Ga. 264, 507 S.E.2d 743 (1998).

Pending lawsuit of decedent. — Statute authorized the appointment of an administrator for an estate in the county where the decedent had a pending lawsuit. Escareno v. Noltina Crucible and Refractory Corp., 163 F.3d 1257 (11th Cir. 1998).

Jurisdiction is not lost because of prior appointment of administrator in the state where the nonresident owner was domiciled at the time of death. Ott v. Hutchinson, 91 Ga. 31, 16 S.E. 106 (1892); Jones v. Cooner, 142 Ga. 127, 82 S.E. 445 (1914).

Administrator should be appointed when estate may be created. — If there is no tangible estate, but when there is something to be done by an administrator which in contemplation of law may create an estate, such as suing for the death of a decedent, an administrator should be appointed. Robbins v. National Bank, 241 Ga. 538, 246 S.E.2d 660 (1978).

Exclusive jurisdiction when granting temporary letters of administration. — Granting of temporary letters of administration upon the estate of a deceased nonresident of the state in a county vests exclusive jurisdiction in the ordinary (now probate judge) of that county so as to preclude the subsequent granting of temporary or permanent letters of administration upon such estate in another county of this state in which such nonresident may also have property, and this is true even though the application for permanent letters of administration may have been filed in the second county prior to the grant of the temporary letters in the first county. (a) Where any guardian, conservator, personal representative, surety on their bonds, or other person removes himself or herself beyond the limits of this state or absconds or conceals himself or herself, the judge of the probate court shall have the power to cite such guardian, conservator, personal representative, surety, or other person to appear before the judge relative to the performance of his or her duties or any other matter related to the probate court pertaining to such person. Service may be had upon the guardian, conservator, personal representative, surety, or other person by publication in the manner prescribed in subsection (b) of this Code section.

(b) The judge of the probate court shall cause to be published the judge's order calling upon a person described in subsection (a) of this Code section to appear, in the newspaper of the county in which sheriff's advertisements are published, once a week for four weeks immediately preceding the court day on which the person is cited to appear. The published order shall be directed to the guardian, conservator, personal representative, surety, or other person, shall set the date and time on which the matter in question will be heard, shall indicate all matters to be passed upon at such time, and shall be signed by the judge of the probate court in the judge's official capacity. Where the address of the guardian, conservator, personal representative, surety, or other person is known, a copy of the order, as published, shall be mailed to the party named in the order. The judge of the probate court shall make an entry of his or her actions upon the minutes of the court.

(c) With respect to a guardianship order or conservatorship order from another state that has been registered with and recorded by the probate court under Article 4 of Chapter 11 of Title 29, in addition to any action such court may take under subsection (a) of this Code section or under subsection (b) of Code Section 29-11-32, the judge of the probate court may communicate with the appointing court in such other state under subsection (a) of Code Section 29-11-4 to inform such appointing court of the citation to appear issued by such judge under subsection (a) of this Code section, stating the reasons therefor.

15-9-36. Judges of probate courts as clerks thereof; chief clerk; powers of clerks; uncontested matters.

(a) The judges of the probate courts are, by virtue of their offices, clerks of their own courts; but they may appoint one or more clerks, for whose conduct they are responsible, who hold their offices at the pleasure of the judge. The judges of the probate courts shall also have the authority to appoint one of their clerks as chief clerk of the probate judge unless otherwise provided by local law.

(b) The appointed clerks, including the chief clerk of the probate judge, may do all acts the judges of the probate courts could do which are not judicial in their nature. The chief clerk of the probate judge shall also have the authority prescribed in Code Section 15-9-10.

(c)(1) In addition to other powers granted to appointed clerks, the chief clerk of the probate judge or, if there is no chief clerk, a clerk designated by the judge may exercise all the jurisdiction of the judge of the probate court concerning uncontested matters in the probate court. Such clerk may exercise such power regardless of whether the judge of the probate court is present.

(2) The powers granted by paragraph (1) of this subsection shall be exercised only by a chief clerk or designated clerk who has been a member of the State Bar of Georgia for at least three years or has been a clerk in the probate court for at least five years.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Clerk of probate court judge is not employee of county, but is solely the employee of the judge of the probate court, who personally is on a fee system as an independent officer, and any compensation paid the clerk is paid from any fees that the judge may derive from performing the judge's duties. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 232.

Probate judge not entitled to fees for services as clerk. — No fees are provided for clerks of the court of the ordinary (now probate judge), but the clerk's appointment is at the judge's expense and, therefore, the judge of probate court, as ex-officio clerk, is not entitled to fees for any services rendered as clerk. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 83.

Special authorization for employment of clerks at county expense. — Some "population acts" authorize judges of the probate court in counties within a specified population range to employ clerks at county expense with the approval of the grand jury and county governing authorities. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-10.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Probate judge acts as clerk when performing ministerial duties. — This section specifically provided that issuing all citations required by law is a ministerial duty which the clerk was authorized to perform, and that when there was no clerk and the ordinary (now probate judge) performs this duty, the ordinary (now probate judge) acts in the capacity of clerk. Head v. Waldrup, 193 Ga. 165, 17 S.E.2d 585 (1941).

Sufficiency of certificate by probate judge. — Paragraph (a)(11) of this section was complied with since the ordinary (now probate judge) stated in the certificate that the person was the ordinary (now probate judge) and ex officio clerk, and signed in that manner. Sellers v. Page, 127 Ga. 633, 56 S.E. 1011 (1907); Weeks v. Hosch Lumber Co., 133 Ga. 472, 66 S.E. 168, 134 Am. St. R. 213 (1909).

Ordinary's (now probate judge's) certificate sufficiently authenticates the record when it appears affirmatively in the certificate that the ordinary (now probate judge) had no clerk, and was acting personally as the clerk of the ordinary's (now probate judge's) own court. Powell v. Hansard, 206 Ga. 505, 57 S.E.2d 677 (1950).

Sufficiency of certificate affects admissibility into evidence. — Certificate by an ordinary (now probate judge) does not render the copy admissible in evidence, unless it is made affirmatively to appear that there is no clerk other than the ordinary (now probate judge). A certificate by the ordinary (now probate judge) that the ordinary (now probate judge) has no clerk would be in substantial compliance with the requirements of the rule. Powell v. Hansard, 206 Ga. 505, 57 S.E.2d 677 (1950).

Certificate of probate judge must disclose identity of clerk. — Certificate signed by an ordinary (now probate judge) for the purpose of authenticating a transcript from a record of file in court does not conform to law unless the certificate affirmatively discloses whether or not such ordinary (now probate judge) was also the clerk of that court. Lay v. Sheppard, 112 Ga. 111, 37 S.E. 132 (1900).

Certificate by the ordinary (now probate judge) does not conform to law, unless it affirmatively discloses whether or not such ordinary was also the clerk of that court, but a certificate by the ordinary (now probate judge) in which the ordinary (now probate judge) states that by virtue of the ordinary's (now probate judge's) office the ordinary (now probate judge) is clerk of the ordinary's (now probate judge's) own court would comply with the requirements of this section. Powell v. Hansard, 206 Ga. 505, 57 S.E.2d 677 (1950).

Performance of duty showing order entered. — Order was entered when independent evidence of record in the form of testimony of the clerk of the probate court that the clerk entered the order by entering the notation "granted" in the docket book and an extract of a "granted" entry appearing in the probate court docket. Jabaley v. Jabaley, 208 Ga. App. 179, 430 S.E.2d 119 (1993).

Copy of will lacking certificate not evidence of title. — If a copy of a will is not certified by the clerk of the court of ordinary (now probate court) nor does such certified copy show probate of the will, such copy cannot be legal evidence of title. This is true even though this evidence was introduced without objection since the evidence does not have any probative value, and, as such, is no good for the purpose offered. Goolsby v. Nails, 217 Ga. 348, 122 S.E.2d 248 (1961).

Certified copy of will needed to be used as muniment of title. — In order to use a will as a muniment of title, a copy certified by the clerk of the court of ordinary (now probate court) must be introduced showing the probate of the will. However, a copy of a will duly certified that it came from the court of ordinary's (now probate court's) office raises the presumption that such will has been probated. But such copy must be certified by the clerk of the court of ordinary (now probate court), who has jurisdiction over such records. Goolsby v. Nails, 217 Ga. 348, 122 S.E.2d 248 (1961).

Petition for mandamus failed to state cause of action. — When petition for mandamus to compel ordinary (now probate judge) as clerk of own court to certify certain papers, nowhere alleges that the ordinary (now probate judge) did not certify that the ordinary (now probate judge) had no clerk, or that the ordinary (now probate judge) was acting personally as the clerk of the ordinary's (now probate judge's) own court, or that the ordinary (now probate judge) was also the clerk of that court, the petition failed to state a cause of action for mandamus. Powell v. Hansard, 206 Ga. 505, 57 S.E.2d 677 (1950).

Appointment of temporary administrator is clerical. — Action of ordinary (now probate judge) in appointing temporary administrator is merely clerical. Irvine v. Wiley, 145 Ga. 867, 90 S.E. 69 (1916); Collins v. Henry, 155 Ga. 886, 118 S.E. 729 (1923).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Duty to enter documents and proceedings. — Clerks of probate courts must enter documents and proceedings in set of books established by O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-37(8) and 53-5-21 and must also enter the documents and proceedings in minutes of court, O.C.G.A. § 15-9-37(7), if such matters are applications to court, orders of court, or otherwise show what was done in probate court. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-41.

15-9-38. Filing of wills; confidentiality of files; public docket.

(a) Any person who has made a will may file it in the office of the judge of the probate court of the county of his residence. The judge shall maintain a docket in which he shall register the will, the date on which it was deposited in his office, and the date of withdrawal of the will by the person making the same or some other person, as the case may be, if the same is withdrawn. The files shall be confidential, and no person other than the person depositing the same, his legal representative, or his attorney in fact shall have access to the file prior to the death of the person making and depositing the will. The docket maintained by the judge shall be public as are other dockets in his office.

(b) Nothing in this Code section shall be construed so as to prohibit any person from revoking such will by the execution of a subsequent will or so as to change the ambulatory nature of the will of any person.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Recording of proceedings in probate court. — Proceedings in incompetency matters in the probate court should be handled in observance with the provisions of former Code 1933, §§ 24-2105 and 24-2109 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-86 and 15-9-40), including that the proceedings be recorded in a book to be kept for that purpose. 1960-61 Op. (b) Nothing in this Code section shall restrict or otherwise prohibit a clerk or a probate judge acting as such from electing to store for computer retrieval any or all books, records, dockets, files, or indices; nor shall a clerk or a probate judge acting as such be prohibited from combining or consolidating any books, records, dockets, files, or indices in connection with the filing for record of papers of the kind specified in this Code section or in any other law; provided, however, that any automated or computerized record-keeping method or system shall provide for the systematic and safe preservation and retrieval of all books, records, dockets, files, or indices. 15-9-47. (For effective date, see note.) Default judgments; governing provisions.

(a) If in any case pending before the probate court an answer, caveat, or other responsive pleading has not been filed within the time required by law or by lawful order of the court, the case shall automatically become in default unless the time for filing the answer, caveat, or other responsive pleading has been extended as provided by law. The petitioner at any time thereafter shall be entitled to verdict and judgment by default, in open court or in chambers, as if every item and paragraph of the petition or other pleadings filed in the matter were supported by proper evidence. At any time before final judgment, the court, in its discretion, upon payment of costs, may allow the default to open for providential cause preventing the filing of required pleadings or for excusable neglect or where the judge, from all the facts, shall determine that a proper case has been made for the default to open, on terms to be fixed by the court. In order for the default to be thus opened, the showing shall be made under oath, shall set up a meritorious defense, shall offer to plead instanter, and shall announce ready to proceed with the hearing in the matter.

(b) The provisions of this Code section shall govern in proceedings pertaining to defaults in the probate court, and the provisions of Code Section 9-11-55 shall not be applicable to such proceedings.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Timely objection to amendment of year's support order. — In a probate matter, a trial court erred by dismissing an executor's objection to the setting aside of certain real property as year's support in favor of an estate as the executor had filed an objection within 15 days of the default order amending the year's support order, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-55(a), and by paying costs. The provisions of § 9-11-55(a) relating to the opening of default judgments as a matter of right within 15 days of default applied to a year's support proceedings in probate court. In re Estate of Ehlers, 289 Ga. App. 14, 656 S.E.2d 169 (2007).

Waiver of right to default. — Because the executrix took the decedent's son's deposition and opposed the son's requests for a continuance, and did not seek to dismiss the son's caveat until 15 months after the caveat was untimely filed, the conduct of the executrix was inconsistent with an intent to raise or rely upon a default judgment and it resulted in a waiver of the right to default. In re Estate of Hill, 340 Ga. App. 39, 795 S.E.2d 748 (2016).

This section requires filing of cost deposit prior to institution of proceeding in probate court; a proceeding should be defined to include the filing of any petition or application in probate court which seeks action independent of the matters then pending before the court and which cannot be obtained without the filing of such petition or application. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-23.

Relief from filing deposits for indigents not permanent if indigents later able to pay. — Purpose of statutory provisions allowing indigent persons relief from the filing of deposits such as Ga. L. 1952, p. 584, §§ 1 and 2 and former Code 1933, §§ 24-2716.1 and 24-2716.2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 9-15-2, 15-9-60, and 15-9-61) was to provide an indigent access to the courts, and it did not appear that the General Assembly intended to permanently relieve a litigant from responsibility to pay any probate court costs regardless of the litigant's ultimate ability to pay those costs; accordingly, a party allowed to proceed in forma pauperis without the filing of such an advance cost deposit can be required to pay court costs if the party later becomes able to pay the costs by virtue of receipt of estate funds through probate proceedings. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-48.

Probate judge compensated on fee basis is entitled to fees prescribed in this section in connection with the services rendered in a recall effort. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-37.

Upon filing of application for recall petition, judge entitled to deposit. — Probate judge compensated on a fee basis is entitled to a deposit upon the filing of an application for a recall petition except in those instances when the applicant is unable by reason of poverty to pay the deposit and files an affidavit to that effect. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-37.

Fee for probate judge when recall election is called. — If a recall petition is successful and a recall election is called, the probate judge would be entitled to a fee for each ballot box for the preparation of all papers, appointing managers, and consolidating returns associated with such recall election. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-37.

Compensation of probate judge computed under schedule. — Ordinary (now probate judge), compensated under the fee system, may properly include in the ordinary's (now probate judge's) budget of election expenses, the ordinary's (now probate judge's) compensation computed from the schedule found in the statute. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-274.

Fee for probate judge for conveying year's support. — Fee set forth in the statute is proper fee for ordinary (now probate judge) for conveying or incumbering a year's support and supersedes Ga. L. 1937, p. 861. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 61.

Probate judge entitled to certain fees if none specifically prescribed. — The probate judge was entitled to receive $8.00 for any application, petition, or case if no costs were prescribed and was entitled to receive $8.00 for filing and docketing any application, petition, or case if no costs were otherwise prescribed. The probate judge was entitled to both of these fees upon the filing of an application for a recall petition. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-37.

Traffic cases. — Costs applicable to traffic cases brought in probate courts pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 40-13-21, or when a judge of a probate court issues a warrant in a traffic case pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 17-4-23, are those enumerated in paragraph (a)(27) of O.C.G.A. § 15-9-60, plus costs allowed for other services actually performed. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-36.

Filing campaign financing disclosure reports. — Former Code 1933, § 24-1716.2 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-9-60), in authorizing the probate judge to charge a fee for the filing of any application, petition, or case when no costs were prescribed, did not authorize charging this fee for the filing of campaign financing disclosure reports by candidates for county office pursuant to the provisions concerning ethics in government. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U80-29.

15-9-61. Payment of fees prerequisite to filing; affidavit of indigence.

The judges of probate courts shall not be required to file any proceedings until the deposit specified in Code Section 15-9-60, relating to court costs of probate courts, has been deposited with the probate judge on account of cost, provided that the deposit shall not be required if the party desiring to file the proceeding is unable because of his indigence to pay the deposit and the party files with the probate court an affidavit to that effect. If the proceeding is dismissed or withdrawn or if the total cost incurred in the proceeding is less than the deposit required by Code Section 15-9-60, any of the sum remaining in the hands of the judge of the probate court shall be repaid. The deposit required to be filed by this Code section shall not affect any Code section or Act of the General Assembly which requires a deposit in excess or in addition to the deposit of cost required by this Code section. Nothing contained in this Code section shall be deemed to require the deposit of cost by the state, its agencies, or its political subdivisions.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Affidavit of trustee must contain statement of poverty of trust. — Trustee, by the trustee's affidavit, must state that the trustee's inability to give security arises from the poverty of the trust estate. Scott v. Turpin & Volker, 30 Ga. 964 (1860).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Relief for indigents not permanent if indigents later able to pay. — Purpose of statutory provisions allowing indigent persons relief from the filing of deposits such as Ga. L. 1952, p. 584, §§ 1 and 2 and former Code 1933, §§ 24-2716.1 and 24-2716.2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 9-15-2, 15-9-60, and 15-9-61) was to provide an indigent access to the courts, and it did not appear that the General Assembly intended to permanently relieve a litigant from responsibility to pay any probate court costs regardless of the litigant's ultimate ability to pay those costs; accordingly, a party allowed to proceed in forma pauperis without the filing of such an advance cost deposit can be required to pay court costs if the party later becomes able to pay those costs by virtue of receipt of estate funds through probate proceedings. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-48.

(3) The county governing authority may supplement the minimum annual salary of the judge of the probate court in such amount as it may fix from time to time; but no probate judge's compensation supplement shall be decreased during any term of office. A county governing authority shall not be required to pay a local supplement to a judge beyond the term of office for which such supplement was approved. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Probate judge of Calhoun County is an elected official whose salary is controlled by Ga. L. 1971, p. 2914, O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-63 and 15-9-64. Porter v. Calhoun County, 250 Ga. 566, 300 S.E.2d 143 (1983).

Effect on person serving as probate judge and magistrate. — Section 7-2 of Ga. L. 1983, p. 884 does not mean that a person who served in the dual capacity of probate judge and small claims court judge prior to the effective date of the Magistrate Courts Act, and who now serves in the dual capacity of probate judge and magistrate by virtue of that Act, cannot be required to take a reduction in pay. The section has no applicability to the compensation of the office of magistrate, regardless of whether a person holding that office also serves as a probate judge. Porter v. Calhoun County Bd. of Comm'rs, 252 Ga. 446, 314 S.E.2d 649 (1984).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Intent of this section is to establish minimum, uniform salaries for probate judges based upon the population of the county in which the judges serve. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-99.

Salaried probate judges may not retain fees for maintaining and certifying vital records absent express legislative authorization. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-53.

Current term counted in determining salary, but not for 5 percent increase. — Current term of office of judges of probate court should be counted for determining salaries under this article, but probate judges are not entitled to a 5 percent increase provided for in O.C.G.A. § 15-9-65 above minimum salaries set forth in O.C.G.A. § 15-9-63 by virtue of service in the judges' current term of office. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-43.

Effect of cost-of-living increases. — Cost-of-living increases for sheriffs, probate judges, clerks of superior court, tax collectors, and tax commissioners adopted by the State Personnel Board for fiscal year 1989-1990 should take the same form as the corresponding cost-of-living increases for classified employees of the Merit System so that those salaries less than $18,000 in the schedules for sheriff, clerk, probate judge, tax collector, and tax commissioner would be increased $450, the rest 2½ percent. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. 89-33.

Alternative salary provisions. — Probate judges who were placed on salaries by former T. 15, C. 22 (repealed) were entitled to receive an applicable salary set pursuant to that chapter or by O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-63 through 15-9-67 (minimum salary statute), whichever was greater. 1982 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-45.

(2)(A) Whenever the state employees subject to compensation plans authorized and approved in accordance with Code Section 45-20-4 receive a cost-of-living increase or general performance based increase of a certain percentage or a certain amount, the amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in paragraph (1) of this subsection and in Code Section 15-9-64, or the amounts derived by increasing each of said amounts through the application of longevity increases pursuant to Code Section 15-9-65, where applicable, shall be increased by the same percentage or same amount applicable to such state employees. If the cost-of-living increase or general performance based increase received by state employees is in different percentages or different amounts as to certain categories of employees, the amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in paragraph (1) of this subsection, and in Code Section 15-9-64, or the amounts derived through the application of longevity increases, shall be increased by a percentage or an amount not to exceed the average percentage or average amount of the general increase in salary granted to the state employees. The Office of Planning and Budget shall calculate the average percentage increase or average amount increase when necessary. The periodic changes in the minimum salary schedule in paragraph (1) of this subsection, and in Code Section 15-9-64, or the amounts derived through the application of longevity increases, as authorized by this paragraph, shall become effective on the first day of January following the date that the cost-of-living increases or general performance based increases received by state employees become effective; provided, however, that if the cost-of-living increases received by state employees become effective on January 1, such periodic changes in the amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in paragraph (1) of this subsection and in Code Section 15-9-64, or the amounts derived by increasing each of said amounts through the application of longevity increases pursuant to Code Section 15-9-65, where applicable, as authorized by this paragraph, shall become effective on the same date that the cost-of-living increases or general performance based increases received by state employees become effective.

(B) The amounts fixed in the minimum salary schedule in this subsection shall not be increased by any state cost-of-living or general performance based increases that have been applied or are effective prior to January 1, 2020. Any state cost-of-living or general performance based increases effective on or after January 1, 2020, shall be calculated as provided in this Code section.

(3) The county governing authority may supplement the minimum annual salary of the judge of the probate court in such amount as it may fix from time to time; but no probate judge's compensation supplement shall be decreased during any term of office. A county governing authority shall not be required to pay a local supplement to a judge beyond the term of office for which such supplement was approved. Any prior expenditure of county funds to supplement the probate judge's salary in the manner authorized by this paragraph is ratified and confirmed. Nothing contained in this paragraph shall prohibit the General Assembly by local law from supplementing the annual salary of the probate judge.

(b) In any county in which more than 70 percent of the population of the county according to the United States decennial census of 1990 or any future such census resides on property of the United States government which is exempt from taxation by this state, the population of the county for purposes of subsection (a) of this Code section shall be deemed to be the total population of the county minus the population of the county which resides on property of the United States government.

Accordingly, the amendments to subpara-

15-9-65. Longevity increases.

The amounts provided in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) of Code Section 15-9-63 and Code Section 15-9-64, as increased by paragraph (2) of subsection (a) of Code Section 15-9-63, shall be increased by multiplying said amounts by the percentage which equals 5 percent times the number of completed four-year terms of office served by any judge of a probate court after December 31, 1976, effective the first day of January following the completion of each such period of service. This Code section shall not be construed to affect any local legislation except when the local legislation provides for a salary lower than the salary provided in Code Sections 15-9-63, 15-9-64, 15-9-66, and this Code section, in which event Code Sections 15-9-63, 15-9-64, 15-9-66, and this Code section shall prevail.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Salary increase is based on full terms, not partial terms. — O.C.G.A. § 15-9-65 provides for longevity salary increases for judges of probate courts based upon completed four-year terms of office and not upon partial terms of office served. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-3.

15-9-66. Effect of minimum salary provisions on judges in office on July 1, 1991; expenses not covered by salary.

Code Sections 15-9-63 through 15-9-65 and this Code section shall not be construed to reduce the salary of any judge of a probate court in office on July 1, 1991; provided, however, that successors to such judges of the probate courts in office on July 1, 1991, shall be governed by the provisions of said Code sections. The minimum salaries provided for in Code Sections 15-9-63 through 15-9-65 and this Code section shall be considered as salary only. Expenses for deputy clerks, equipment, supplies, copying equipment, and other necessary and reasonable expenses for the operation of a probate court shall come from funds other than the funds specified as salary in Code Sections 15-9-63 through 15-9-65 and this Code section.

The 2018 amendment, effective July 1, 2018, substituted "15-9-65 and this Code section" for "15-9-65, this Code section, and Code Section 15-9-67" three times in this Code section.

15-9-67. Fee systems continued until enactment of local legislation.

15-9-68. Limitation of probate judge's fees.

Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (e) of Code Section 31-10-8 and subsection (c) of Code Section 31-10-27, unless local law or an agreement between a judge of the probate court and the county governing authority provides for the retention of a greater amount, a county governing authority may, by ordinance or resolution, limit the total amount of fees authorized to be retained as personal compensation by a probate judge who serves as local custodian, local registrar, or special abstracting agent pursuant to Code Section 31-10-8 or 31-10-27 to an aggregate amount not less than an amount equal to the fees collected or $7,500.00, whichever is less, in any calendar year beginning on or after January 1, 1997. Any probate judge whose fees are limited pursuant to this Code section shall prepare and submit a report at least quarterly to the county governing authority specifying the amount received during the quarter for which the report is submitted.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Cannot reinstate caveat at subsequent term of court. — If one who has filed a caveat to an application for a year's support and at the first term of the court voluntarily dismisses the claim, and moves at the second or third term thereafter to have the caveat reinstated on the sole ground that the claim had been dismissed "inadvertently and through mistake," it is error to grant such motion over timely objection by the applicant. Orders presumed valid. — Orders of court of ordinary (now probate court) are prima facie presumed to be valid. Wright v. Clark, 139 Ga. 34, 76 S.E. 565 (1912).

Failure to order adjournment does not void another order. — Failure of the ordinary (now probate judge) or the ordinary's clerk to make an entry of an order of adjournment of the court of ordinary (now probate court), granted at a regular term to some subsequent day, where the business of the court requires it, does not render void an order passed for the sale of land, upon the petition of an administrator, provided such adjournment was duly ordered during the regular term of the court. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Conduct and recordation of incompetency matters in probate court. — Proceedings in incompetency matters (see now O.C.G.A. § 29-5-1 et seq.) in the probate court should be handled in observance with the provisions of former Code 1933, §§ 24-2105 and 24-2109 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-40 and 15-9-86) including that the proceedings be recorded in a book to be kept for that purpose. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 93.

15-9-86.1. Citations and responsive pleadings in certain types of proceedings.

(a) In any of the proceedings specified in this Code section with respect to which no citation is required to be published, notice of an application to the judge of the probate court for the granting of an order may, instead of stating the time of the hearing as provided in Code Section 15-9-86 and other specific laws, state that the party served must file with the court his or her response to the petition within ten days after personal service of the notice upon him or her, or 13 days after mailing if served by mail, and that if no responses are filed the petition will be granted without a hearing.

(b) If the specific laws governing a particular proceeding subject to this Code section require that a citation be published, such citation may, instead of stating the time of hearing, state that any party who is not ordered to be served personally or by mail must file with the court his or her response to the petition on or prior to a date certain, which shall be a date for which a hearing could be set according to the laws governing the particular proceeding.

(c) The citation or the caption of the citation shall identify all parties upon whom service has been ordered whose names are known. Failure of a party served as provided in subsection (a) or (b) of this Code section to file with the court his or her response to a petition within the time required for his or her response shall constitute a waiver of the right of such party to object to the petition and a waiver of any right of such party to receive notice of any further proceedings with respect to such petition.

(d) If no party serves a response to the petition, the judge of the probate court may grant the petition without a hearing. If a response is filed, the judge of the probate court shall set the matter for hearing and shall by regular first-class mail send a notice of the time of hearing to the petitioner and all parties who have served responses at the addresses given by them in their pleadings.

(e) The proceedings to which this Code section shall apply are:

(1) Proceedings for sale, lease, exchange, or encumbrance of a ward's property, as provided in Code Section 29-3-35 or 29-5-35;

(2) Proceedings for citation of a conservator for failure to make returns, as provided in Code Section 29-3-60 or 29-5-60;

(3) Proceedings involving the revocation or suspension of letters or the imposition of sanctions on a guardian or conservator, as provided in Code Section 29-2-42, 29-3-82, 29-4-52, or 29-5-92;

(4) Proceedings for discharge of a surety on a conservator's bond, as provided in Code Section 29-3-49 or 29-5-49;

(5) Proceedings for resignation of trust by a guardian or conservator, as provided in Code Section 29-2-40, 29-3-80, 29-4-50, or 29-5-90;

(6) Proceedings for settlement of accounts of a conservator, as provided in Code Section 29-3-71 or 29-5-81;

(7) Proceedings for appointment of a guardian or conservator of a minor, as provided in Code Sections 29-2-14 through 29-2-18 or Code Sections 29-3-6 through 29-3-10;

(8) Proceedings for requiring a conservator to give additional bond, as provided in Code Section 29-3-43 or 29-5-42;

(10) Proceedings for determination of heirs at law, as provided in former Code Sections 53-4-30, et seq. as such existed on December 31, 1997; and

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Applicability. — O.C.G.A. § 15-9-86.1 was not applicable if a notice of petition for accounting and distribution served with a notice of the time of the hearing did not state that the party served must respond or the petition would be granted. Simon v. Bunch, 260 Ga. 201, 391 S.E.2d 648 (1990).

O.C.G.A. § 15-9-86.1 is not applicable to a petition for accounting and distribution by an executor who has not been removed. Simon v. Bunch, 260 Ga. 201, 391 S.E.2d 648 (1990).

Citation in a proceeding for probate in solemn form that tracked the language of former O.C.G.A. § 53-3-14(c) and stated specifically that the recipient needed to appear before the court on a date certain was sufficient notice that the named date was the deadline for appearing in probate court or filing a written objection. Higginbotham v. Rice, 271 Ga. 262, 517 S.E.2d 784 (1999), reversing Rice v. Higginbotham, 235 Ga. App. 378, 508 S.E.2d 736 (1998).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

When burden of proof shifts to caveators. — Once the propounder of a will establishes a prima facie case, the burden of proof shifts to the caveators to prove the grounds of their caveat. Bryan v. Norton, 245 Ga. 347, 265 S.E.2d 282 (1980).

Law is silent as to any necessity vel non that caveat be sworn; the sole statutory requirement is that it be written. Glad v. Scott, 187 Ga. App. 748, 371 S.E.2d 271 (1988).

15-9-89. Amendment of petition and caveat.

The petition and caveat shall be amendable at all times and in every particular.

History. — Orig. Code 1863, § 4016; Code 1868, § 4045; Code 1873, § 4116; Code 1882, § 4116; Civil Code 1895, § 4256; Civil Code 1910, § 4814; Code 1933, § 24-2108.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Amendment to homestead application allowed. — Amendment to a homestead application could be allowed so as to state the residence of the applicant, and that the applicant was the head of the family. Hardin v. McCord, 72 Ga. 239 (1884).

Amendment to raise issue of revocation by subsequent will. — If caveator attempted to amend the caveat in the superior court to raise the issue of revocation by a subsequent will, the trial court erred in granting the proponent's motion in limine to exclude the later will or any reference to that will from evidence on the ground that the will was not part of the record below on appeal and that the caveator was estopped to amend the caveat by adding a ground outside the record, although it is undisputed that the caveator was aware of the existence of the later will at the time the caveator filed the caveat to the earlier will but did not raise this issue in the probate court. Lee v. Wainwright, 256 Ga. 478, 350 S.E.2d 238 (1986).

Amendment to raise issue not raised in probate court. — If the validity of the will itself was the only issue raised and addressed in the probate court, the caveators could not add the issue of removal of the executor on appeal to the superior court. Yancey v. Hall, 265 Ga. 466, 458 S.E.2d 121 (1995).

Amendment proper. — It was error to dismiss an amended objection to the probate of a will on the ground that the original objection was legally insufficient, as an amendment to a caveat was permitted even when it was the amendment that sustained the validity of the caveat; the original objection put the proponent on notice of the objection, and its amendment the next day to include the grounds of undue influence and mental incapacity was proper under O.C.G.A. §§ 9-11-15 and 15-9-89. Deering v. Keever, 282 Ga. 161, 646 S.E.2d 262 (2007).

15-9-90. Forms for probate court; local alteration.

(a) The Supreme Court of Georgia is authorized to adopt rules governing the use of forms in the probate courts and standard forms to be used in proceedings before the probate courts. Any such rules and forms shall be in such a manner as to facilitate the use of word processing and computer technology.

(b) The rules adopted pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section shall provide that the forms so adopted may be altered locally in a particular petition or proceeding in such items as grammar, gender usage, the use of singular and plural nouns and pronouns, the omission of optional or alternate language, the inclusion of variable information such as names and addresses, and other nonmaterial ways.

(c) The rules adopted pursuant to subsection (a) of this Code section shall provide that the forms so adopted may be altered locally in a particular petition or proceeding by making material additions or deletions, provided that:

(1) Any material additions or deletions are clearly identified;

(2) The altered form is accompanied by the certificate of an attorney licensed to practice law in this state stating that the form, as altered, complies with the standard form in every material respect except for the identified additions or deletions; and

(3) The altered form is accompanied by the certificate of an attorney licensed to practice law in this state stating that the form, as altered, complies with the statutory requirements relating to the matter which is submitted to probate, and if such conditions are satisfied, then such forms shall be filed for probate notwithstanding the material alterations.

(d) No state or local rules governing the use of forms in the probate courts shall be adopted which do not comply with the provisions of this Code section.

(d) The training council shall establish such auditing procedures as may be required in connection with the handling of public funds. The state auditor is authorized and directed to make an annual audit of the acts and doings of the training council and to make a complete report of the same to the General Assembly. The state auditor shall not be required to distribute copies of the audit to the members of the General Assembly but shall notify the members of the availability of the audit in the manner which he or she deems to be most effective and efficient. The president of The Council of Probate Court Judges of Georgia shall be a voting member of the training council ex officio.

(2) The Council of Probate Judges of Georgia may add up to four additional members to the training council. Such members shall be selected from the members of The Council of Probate Judges of Georgia at large and serve for two-year terms. As used in this article, the term:

(1) "Civil case" means those civil matters:

(A) Over which the judge of the probate court exercises judicial powers;

(B) Within the original, exclusive, or general subject matter jurisdiction of the probate court; and

(C) Which, if not for this article and Code Section 5-6-33, could be appealed to superior court for a de novo investigation with the right to a jury trial under Code Sections 5-3-2 and 5-3-29.

(2) "Probate court" means a probate court of a county having a population of more than 90,000 persons according to the United States decennial census of 2010 or any future such census in which the judge thereof has been admitted to the practice of law for at least seven years.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Statute was not an unconstitutional special law. — O.C.G.A. § 15-9-120(2), granting the right to a jury trial in the probate courts of counties with a certain population according to the 1990 decennial census "or any future such census" was not an unconstitutional special law, under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. III, Sec. VI, Para. IV(a), because the statute's use of the disjunctive "or" gave the statute the elasticity required to make the statute a general law as this allowed counties to move into or out of this class of counties according to the latest census. Ellis v. Johnson, 291 Ga. 127, 728 S.E.2d 200 (2012).

County that did not have a population of more than 100,000 persons according to either the 1980 or 1990 decennial census lacked authority to entertain a motion for new trial, and any such motion therefore being without legal force and effect before the county probate court would not serve to extend the time for filing a notice of appeal under either O.C.G.A. § 5-3-20 or O.C.G.A. § 5-6-38(a). Jabaley v. Jabaley, 208 Ga. App. 179, 430 S.E.2d 119 (1993).

Construction with O.C.G.A. § 5-3-30. — Because appeals from the probate court to the superior court continue without special limitations on the right to a jury trial and de novo appeals to the superior court from the probate court are tried by a jury unless the right to a jury trial is waived, the trial court erred in denying the widow's request for a jury trial. Montgomery v. Montgomery, 287 Ga. App. 77, 650 S.E.2d 754 (2007).

Dougherty County probate court allowed to hold jury trials. — Dougherty County, Ga., Probate Court (Probate Court) had jurisdiction to hold jury trials because: (1) the 2010 census, which dropped the county's population below that required by O.C.G.A. § 15-9-120(2) to allow jury trials in probate court was not effective until July 1, 2012, under O.C.G.A. § 1-3-1(d)(2)(D); and (2) a statutory amendment, effective on that date, decreased the population requirement. Ellis v. Johnson, 291 Ga. 127, 728 S.E.2d 200 (2012).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

O.C.G.A. § 15-9-120 et seq. does not affect mental health cases heard by probate courts under O.C.G.A. §§ 37-3-150, 37-4-110, and 37-7-150. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U86-18.

Right to jury trial in proceedings to appoint emergency guardian. — If the appointment of an emergency guardian under former O.C.G.A. § 29-5-8 is only for that period of time pending the outcome either of the emergency guardianship hearing or the permanent guardianship hearing, the order would not be final or appealable to a jury in superior court under current law, and hence would not be subject to Ga. L. 1986, p. 982, affecting procedures before the probate court in certain counties; on the other hand, if the petition before the probate court seeks only an emergency guardian for a period not to exceed 45 days, as in a situation where immediate surgical or other medical consent is required for a seriously ill proposed ward, an order granting such a petition, which would leave nothing further to be decided by the probate court, would be final, appealable to a superior court jury under current law, and hence would be a "civil case" under the 1986 Act, giving a party a right to demand a jury trial. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U86-18.

15-9-121. Jury trials in civil cases.

(a) A party to a civil case in the probate court shall have the right to a jury trial if such right is asserted by a written demand for jury trial within 30 days after the filing of the first pleading of the party or within 15 days after the filing of the first pleading of an opposing party, whichever is later, except that with respect to a petition pursuant to Code Sections 29-4-10 and 29-5-10, relating to guardianship of an incapacitated adult, if any interested party desires a trial by jury, such party must make such request for a jury within ten days after the date of mailing of the notice provided for by subsection (c) of Code Section 29-4-12 and subsection (c) of Code Section 29-5-12. If a party fails to assert the right to a jury trial, the right shall be deemed waived and may not thereafter be asserted.

(b) Notwithstanding other laws, for any civil case in which a jury trial is demanded, the determination of issues of fact shall not be made by the probate judge but shall be for the jury as in cases in the superior courts.

(c) If the civil case could not be appealed to a jury in superior court from a probate court not meeting the definition provided in paragraph (2) of Code Section 15-9-120, the right to a jury trial shall not be available in a probate court which meets such definition.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-9-121, enacted by Ga. L. 1986, p. 982, § 6; Ga. L. 1990, p. 1421, § 2; Ga. L. 2004, p. 161, § 2.1.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 2004, p. 161, § 16, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that "all appointments of guardians of the person or property made pursuant to former Title 29 shall continue in effect and shall thereafter be governed by the provisions of this Act."

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Construction with O.C.G.A. § 5-3-30. — Because appeals from the probate court to the superior court continue without special limitations on the right to a jury trial and de novo appeals to the superior court from the probate court are tried by a jury unless the right to a jury trial is waived, the trial court erred in denying the widow's request for a jury trial. Montgomery v. Montgomery, 287 Ga. App. 77, 650 S.E.2d 754 (2007).

Based on the absence of a transcript of a hearing on the dismissal of a sibling's caveat to the petition to probate the decedent's will in solemn form, in which the probate court also held that the sibling lacked standing to proceed on that caveat, the Supreme Court of Georgia refused to hold that the probate court's orders were erroneous. Moreover, based on the probate court's finding that the sibling lacked standing, no jury trial was warranted. Smith v. Wyatt, 282 Ga. 902, 655 S.E.2d 581 (2008).

Timing of jury trial demand. — In a probate proceeding wherein the ex-spouse of the decedent contested the appointment of the decedent's parent as the permanent administrator of the estate, the trial court did not err by denying the ex-spouse's demand for a jury trial because the ex-spouse failed to file a jury trial demand within the statutorily appointed time frame. In re Estate of Sands-Kadel, 292 Ga. App. 343, 665 S.E.2d 46 (2008).

Probate court erred when the court stated written demands for a jury trial filed more than 30 days after the filing of the petition for probate were untimely because O.C.G.A. § 15-9-121 provided for the filing of a timely demand for jury trial more than 30 days after the filing of the petition for probate. Simmons v. Harms, 287 Ga. 176, 695 S.E.2d 38 (2010).

Probate court did not err in denying as untimely a child's demand for a jury trial because the child was required to file the child's jury demand by June 29, which was 30 days after the child filed the child's first pleading on May 30, the child's caveat to probate in solemn form, making the child's written jury demand due by June 29, but the child did not file the demand for jury trial until July 16. Simmons v. Harms, 287 Ga. 176, 695 S.E.2d 38 (2010).

Beneficiary could not claim an intervening niece untimely demanded a jury in a probate case, under O.C.G.A. § 15-9-121(a), because: (1) the beneficiary did not object in the trial court on the grounds raised on appeal, waiving the grounds; (2) the niece was not a party until the niece was allowed to intervene, after which the niece timely demanded a jury; and (3) the niece's motion to intervene was not a "pleading" triggering the jury trial demand deadline. Ellis v. Johnson, 291 Ga. 127, 728 S.E.2d 200 (2012).

Waiver of right to jury trial in probate proceeding. — Trial court had subject matter jurisdiction to review the probate court's decision under Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I and O.C.G.A. § 15-6-8(4)(E) to deny probate of the decedent's 1988 will and the parties' waiver of the statutory right to a jury trial did not deprive the trial court of subject matter jurisdiction to deny probate of the will. Mosley v. Lancaster, 296 Ga. 862, 770 S.E.2d 873 (2015).

The 2020 amendment, effective January 1, 2021, inserted "or by Titles 29 and 53" near the beginning and substituted "that" for "which" in the middle.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Opening of default judgments. — O.C.G.A. § 9-11-55(a), a provision of the Civil Practice Act regarding the opening of default judgments, governs an application for year's support and caveat filed in probate court. Greene v. Woodard, 198 Ga. App. 427, 401 S.E.2d 617 (1991).

Cited in In re Estate of Ehlers, 289 Ga. App. 14, 656 S.E.2d 169 (2007).

15-9-123. (For effective date, see note.) Appeal.

(a) Either party to a civil case in the probate court shall have the right of appeal to the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals from any decision made by the probate court, except an order appointing a temporary administrator or an order appointing an emergency guardian or emergency conservator, as provided by Chapter 6 of Title 5.

(b) The general laws and rules of appellate practice and procedure that are applicable to cases appealed from the superior courts of this state shall be applicable to and govern appeals of civil cases from the probate courts.

Delayed effective date. — This Code section, as set out above, becomes effective January 1, 2021. For version of this Code section in effect until January 1, 2021, see the 2020 amendment note.

The 2020 amendment, effective January 1, 2021, inserted "from any decision made by the probate court, except an order appointing a temporary administrator or an order appointing an emergency guardian or emergency conservator" in the middle of subsection (a) and substituted "that" for "which" near the beginning of subsection (b).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Claims filed after effective date. — Although O.C.G.A § 15-9-120 et seq. is effective for all cases filed on or after July 1, 1986, a petition filed prior to July 1, 1986, predated that date even though some of the claims were filed after that date; hence, jurisdiction of the appeal lay with the superior court, not the supreme court. Porter v. Frazier, 257 Ga. 614, 361 S.E.2d 825 (1987); Walker v. Yarus, 258 Ga. 346, 369 S.E.2d 32 (1988).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Appointment of emergency guardian pending appeal. — Under O.C.G.A. § 29-5-11(d), the probate courts, which are authorized to hold jury trials under Ga. L. 1986, p. 982, will not be authorized to appoint an emergency guardian pending appeal. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U86-18.

Appeal of an order of emergency guardianship under O.C.G.A. § 29-5-11, which can be considered a "final order," will act as a supersedeas upon payment of the costs by the appellant. 1986 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U86-18.

15-9-124. Enforcement of judgments.

The general laws and rules applicable to the execution and enforcement of judgments in the superior courts of this state shall be applicable to and govern civil cases in the probate courts.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-9-124, enacted by Ga. L. 1986, p. 982, § 6.

15-9-125. Jurors.

For services rendered in jury trials, in the probate court's exercise of concurrent jurisdiction pursuant to Code Section 15-9-127, and in appeals to the Supreme Court or Court of Appeals, if a fee is not prescribed by Code Section 15-9-60, the judge or clerk of the probate court shall be entitled to charge and collect the same sums as those of the clerk of the superior court provided in Code Section 15-6-77 or other applicable law for similar services in superior court.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-9-126, enacted by Ga. L. 1986, p. 982, § 6; Ga. L. 2020, p. 377, § 2-21/HB 865.

Delayed effective date. — This Code section, as set out above, becomes effective January 1, 2021. For version of this Code section in effect until January 1, 2021, see the 2020 amendment note.

The 2020 amendment, effective January 1, 2021, inserted ", in the probate court's exercise of concurrent jurisdiction pursuant to Code Section 15-9-127,", inserted "or clerk", inserted "charge and collect", substituted "sums as those" for "fee as that", and inserted "or other applicable law".

15-9-127. (For effective date, see note.) Concurrent jurisdiction with superior courts; probate court jurisdiction.

(4) Adjudication of actions concerning trusts, trustees, and trust directors authorized by the provisions of Chapter 12 of Title 53;

(5) Adjudication of petitions under Code Section 10-6B-16 to construe a power of attorney, review an agent's conduct, and grant appropriate relief;

(6) Adjudication of petitions under subsection (i) of Code Section 10-6B-40 to grant an agent authority under a power of attorney; and

(7) Adjudication of petitions for direction or construction of a will or trust instrument pursuant to Code Section 23-2-92, 53-4-55, 53-4-56, 53-7-75, or 53-12-27, or other applicable law.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Declaratory judgment involving fiduciaries. — Fulton County Probate Court had jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment in a case involving whether a guardian appointed at the request of the Department of Veteran Affairs could receive a bequest under the ward's will because the probate court had concurrent jurisdiction with the superior courts with regard to proceedings for declaratory judgments involving fiduciaries, pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-4-4. Cross v. Stokes, 275 Ga. 872, 572 S.E.2d 538 (2002).

Removal of trustee. — Probate court did not have jurisdiction to remove a trustee. Moring v. Moring, 228 Ga. App. 662, 492 S.E.2d 558 (1997).

Successor trustee properly appointed. — Probate court did not err by appointing a successor trustee pursuant to O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-127 and 53-12-170 as even if a corporation had not rejected the trust property, the corporation did not have the power to act as a trustee in Georgia since the corporation had not received approval from the Georgia Department of Banking and Finance to act as a trust company; a county board of commissioners was properly appointed as the successor trustee in spite of the corporation's speculation over a possible future event that might result in a conflict of interest. Chattowah Open Land Trust, Inc. v. Jones, 281 Ga. 97, 636 S.E.2d 523 (2006).

Province of probate court versus proper trial court. — In a child's appeal of a trial court's declaratory judgment that the will of a parent was republished by a codicil and that a portion of a prior order of a probate court that the ex-spouse of the testator was to be treated as if having predeceased the testator was null and void was upheld on appeal as the issue regarding the construction of the will regarding the ex-spouse was a question of law for the trial court and was not within the jurisdiction of the probate court. Honeycutt v. Honeycutt, 284 Ga. 42, 663 S.E.2d 232 (2008).

PROBATE COURT JUDGES

Law reviews. — For article, "Courts: Juvenile Justice Reform," see 30 Ga. St. U. L. Rev. 63 (2013).

For note on 2000 enactment of O.C.G.A. §§ 15-9-140 and 15-9-141, see 17 Ga. St. U.L. Rev. 76 (2000).

15-9-140. Jurisdiction of judges.

Except as otherwise provided by law, any judge of a probate court is authorized to serve as a judge of any other probate court in which such judge would otherwise be qualified to serve, but only upon the written request of the judge of such other probate court. When serving in a probate court other than his or her own court, the judge shall exercise the same jurisdiction, power, and authority as the regular judge of the court. Judges rendering assistance in accordance with this Code section shall be entitled to receive actual expenses or, at such judge's option, the same per diem expense authorized by law for members of the General Assembly and shall receive mileage at the same rate as state employees for such services but shall not be entitled to any further compensation for such services. The governing authority responsible for funding the operation of the requesting court shall bear the expenses of the assisting judge.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-9-140, enacted by Ga. L. 2000, p. 838, § 3.

15-9-141. Retired judges; senior judge appointment; written request for assistance.

(a)(1) Any judge of a probate court who retires pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 11 of Title 47 may be appointed a senior judge of the probate courts.

(2) Any judge of a probate court, whether or not said judge is a member of the retirement fund created by Chapter 11 of Title 47, who ceases holding office as a judge and who has at least eight years of service as a judge of a probate court at the time of ceasing to hold such office and who is not eligible for appointment to the office of senior judge under any other law of this state may be appointed as a senior judge of the probate courts.

(b) Upon becoming eligible for appointment pursuant to the provisions of this Code section, a judge who ceases to hold office may become a senior judge of the probate courts and in that capacity may be called upon to serve as a judge in any probate court in which the judge is otherwise qualified to serve.

(c) Any qualified former judge of a probate court may petition the Governor for appointment as senior judge. The Governor shall appoint each qualified applicant as a senior judge of the probate courts.

Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. X, Para. I and Code Section 15-10-120 for transfer of functions of justice of the peace courts, small claims courts, and other specified courts to magistrate courts.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Magistrate could not hold office while seeking election to city council. — 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-55, which stated that there was no statutory, constitutional, nor common-law prohibition against a person simultaneously holding the offices of magistrate and city councilman, was issued prior to the ratification of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. II, Sec. II, Para. V, which provides that the test for simultaneously holding two offices is specific authorization, rather than prohibition; since there is no law specifically authorizing a person to simultaneously hold the offices of magistrate and city councilman, a chief magistrate could not hold office as chief magistrate while seeking election to the city council. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-41.

15-10-2. General jurisdiction.

Each magistrate court and each magistrate thereof shall have jurisdiction and power over the following matters:

(10) The issuing of subpoenas to compel attendance of witnesses in the magistrate court and subpoenas for the production of documentary evidence before the magistrate court;

(11) Such other matters as are committed to their jurisdiction by other general laws;

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions rendered under pre-1983 provisions of this chapter pertaining to justices of the peace are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of this chapter regarding transfer of justices' functions to magistrates.

Dispossessory proceedings. — Magistrate court had jurisdiction over dispossessory proceedings involving a property owner who, by remaining in possession of the premises after a lawful foreclosure of the property owner's deed to secure debt, became a tenant at sufferance and subject to summary dispossession by the purchaser at the foreclosure sale. California Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Day, 193 Ga. App. 690, 388 S.E.2d 727 (1989).

Powers and Duties Generally

1. In General

Judgments at illegal places. — Judgments not rendered at place where court can lawfully be held are void. Bozeman v. Singer Mfg. Co., 70 Ga. 685 (1883) (decided under former law).

Judgment of the justice of the peace, void because rendered at some place other than the regular place of holding the court, may be attacked by affidavit of illegality in a proper case, but a writ of certiorari will not lie to such a judgment. Courson v. Land, 54 Ga. App. 534, 188 S.E. 360 (1936) (decided under former law).

Right to declare mistrial. — It is an inherent right of all courts where jury trials obtain, including justice of the peace courts, to declare a mistrial when justice demands a mistrial. Decatur Chevrolet Co. v. White, 51 Ga. App. 362, 180 S.E. 377 (1935) (decided under former law).

Superior court may refuse to enforce fraudulent judgment. — Although a justice of the peace has no authority to grant a new trial or to set aside a judgment, if the judgment was procured by fraud practiced by the plaintiff upon such officer and the opposite party, the superior court would be justified for this reason in refusing to grant mandamus on the petition of the plaintiff in such judgment to compel the justice of the peace to issue an execution thereon. Ward v. Montgomery Ward & Co., 181 Ga. 228, 181 S.E. 664 (1935) (decided under former law).

Dispossessory proceedings. — Landlord's contention that the magistrate did not have the power to order the landlord to perform repairs to tenant's apartment in the landlord's dispossessory action was rejected as statutory law expressly gave the magistrate jurisdiction over dispossessory proceedings. H. J. Russell & Co. v. Manuel, 264 Ga. App. 273, 590 S.E.2d 250 (2003).

2. Contempt of Court

Refusal to surrender to arresting officer of one named in warrant issued by justice cannot be dealt with as contempt of court by a justice of the peace who has done nothing more than issue the warrant. Ormond v. Ball, 120 Ga. 916, 48 S.E. 383 (1904) (decided under former law).

3. Administration of Oaths and Taking of Affidavits

Proof that oath was not administered is admissible to rebut contrary statement in jurat attached to affidavit. Green v. Rhodes, 8 Ga. App. 301, 68 S.E. 1090 (1910) (decided under former law).

Affidavit attached to jurat furnishes no basis for issuing distress warrant. Britt v. Davis, 130 Ga. 74, 60 S.E. 180 (1908); Bryan v. Madison Supply Co., 135 Ga. 171, 68 S.E. 1106 (1910) (decided under former law).

When reading of oath by another person is in presence of the court, competency of person reading oath is immaterial. Richards v. State, 131 Ga. App. 362, 206 S.E.2d 93 (1974) (decided under former law).

If caption of affidavit sets forth name of another county court, affidavit presumed to be illegal. Hutchins v. State, 8 Ga. App. 301, 69 S.E. 309 (1910) (decided under former law).

4. Keeping Docket

Contents of docket entries. — Entries on docket should contain every fact transpiring in case essential to validity of judgment. Scott v. Bedell, 108 Ga. 205, 33 S.E. 903 (1899) (decided under former law).

Unsigned docket entry not void. — To determine whether there is a valid judgment in the justice's court, resort must be had to the docket entry and to that alone. When so entered it is not void because unsigned, nor is an unsigned verdict on which a judgment has been entered void. Sullivan v. Douglas Gibbons, Inc., 187 Ga. 764, 2 S.E.2d 89 (1939) (decided under former law).

Judgment may be entered on docket after adjournment. — Rendering of a judgment by a justice of the peace, when the issue is tried before the justice without a jury, is a judicial act; when such judgment is rendered at the time and place required by law, the written judgment may be entered by the justice on the docket of the justice court at any time thereafter even though the justice's court has adjourned. Chandler v. Hammett, 73 Ga. App. 325, 36 S.E.2d 184 (1945) (decided under former law).

Docket determines validity of judgment. — Only docket can be resorted to in order to determine if judgment valid. Gittens v. Whelchel, 12 Ga. App. 141, 76 S.E. 1051 (1913); Barnes v. Mechanics' Sav. Bank, 22 Ga. App. 214, 95 S.E. 757 (1918) (decided under former law).

Plea of res judicata can not be predicated upon a verdict upon which no judgment has been entered. Brown v. Bonds, 125 Ga. 833, 54 S.E. 933 (1906) (decided under former law).

Entry on docket necessary before execution can be issued. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Brown, 3 Ga. App. 561, 60 S.E. 319 (1908) (decided under former law).

Entry on papers if case reopened after judgment entered on docket is nullity. Greene v. Oliphant & Hannah, 64 Ga. 565 (1880) (decided under former law).

Powers and Duties Generally (Cont'd)
4. Keeping Docket (Cont'd)

When docket must show appearance. — If a judgment has been rendered in a justice's court against a person who was not named in the summons, and the judgment is sought to bind that person on the ground that the person appeared and pleaded in the cause and thus made the person a party thereto, the fact of appearance and pleading must appear from a docket entry, and cannot be shown by parol evidence. Shearouse v. Wolf, 117 Ga. 426, 43 S.E. 718 (1903) (decided under former law).

Entry in judgment on promissory note must specify amount. — If entry is made upon docket of justice of the peace court with design of setting forth terms of judgment in favor of plaintiff in action upon promissory note, and such entry in no manner specifies any amount, either as principal or interest, the judgment is void for uncertainty, and there is no valid judgment. McCandless v. Inland Acid Co., 112 Ga. 291, 37 S.E. 419 (1900) (decided under former law).

How entry of service construed. — If a case was docketed by a justice of the peace and specifically named the defendant and a garnishee, a signed and dated statement that the summons had been served on the named garnishee was construed as an entry of service of summons of garnishment upon the garnishee. Southern Fertilizer & Chem. Co. v. Kirby, 52 Ga. App. 688, 184 S.E. 363 (1936) (decided under former law).

Jurisdiction Generally

1. In General

Civil claim jurisdiction. — The 1987 amendment to O.C.G.A. § 15-10-2(5) is remedial in the amendment's operation and effect and applied to a judgment entered after its effective date in an action filed before such date. Russell v. Flynn, 191 Ga. App. 196, 381 S.E.2d 142 (1989).

Distinction between the criminal court and civil court of the justice of the peace. Ormond v. Ball, 120 Ga. 916, 48 S.E. 383 (1904) (decided under former law).

Dispossessory proceedings and distress warrant proceedings. — Magistrate court's jurisdiction in dispossessory proceedings and distress warrant proceedings under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-2(6) is not circumscribed by the $5,000 limitation set forth in § 15-10-2(5). Atlanta J's, Inc. v. Houston Foods, Inc., 237 Ga. App. 415, 514 S.E.2d 216 (1999).

Justice of the peace may issue distress warrant for greater sum than the justice can entertain action for. Smith v. Turnley, 44 Ga. 243 (1871) (decided under former law).

Cannot try case beyond jurisdiction. — Consent of parties for justice of the peace to try case beyond the justice's jurisdiction cannot confer on the justice jurisdiction to do so. Yon v. Baldwin, 76 Ga. 769 (1886) (decided under former law).

If debt has been reduced credit may be set up by amendment. Smith v. Puett, 124 Ga. 921, 53 S.E. 457 (1906) (decided under former law).

Jurisdiction in first action makes second action res judicata. — Owners chose the forum for the owner's initial litigation and the magistrate court had jurisdiction to hear the questions presented, notwithstanding its limitation as to remedies; therefore, the owners' subsequent counterclaim involving the same party and issues was properly dismissed based on res judicata. Mahan v. Watkins, 256 Ga. App. 260, 568 S.E.2d 130 (2002).

2. Amount in Controversy

Amount is principal sum claimed. — Amount in controversy which fixes the jurisdiction of justice of the peace court is principal sum claimed. Bowers v. Williams, 17 Ga. App. 779, 88 S.E. 703 (1916) (decided under former law).

Pleadings will generally control as to amount claimed. Browne v. Edwards, 122 Ga. 277, 50 S.E. 110 (1905) (decided under former law).

Favorable construction of all petitions will be adopted. Fine & Bro. v. Southern Express Co., 10 Ga. App. 161, 73 S.E. 35 (1911) (decided under former law).

If evidence warrants finding of damages below jurisdiction, that construction will be adopted. Georgia Ry. &

Elec. Co. v. Knight, 122 Ga. 290, 50 S.E. 124 (1905) (decided under former law).

Amount that plaintiff finally recovers is immaterial. Ashworth v. Harper, 95 Ga. 660, 22 S.E. 670 (1895); Forbes Piano Co. v. Owens, 120 Ga. 449, 47 S.E. 938 (1904) (decided under former law).

Combination of small claims may oust court of jurisdiction. Yon v. Baldwin, 76 Ga. 769 (1886) (decided under former law).

Subsequent suit not barred when damages sought exceed jurisdictional limit. — Although the magistrate court had jurisdiction over the lessor's dispossessory action, it did not have jurisdiction to render a binding judgment on the lessee's counterclaims, which sought money damages that exceeded the $15,000 jurisdictional limit of the magistrate court; because the magistrate court was not a court of competent jurisdiction to resolve those claims on the merits, the trial court correctly ruled that the doctrine of res judicata did not bar the lessee from reasserting the same claims in the current suit, and correctly denied the lessor's motion for summary judgment on that ground. WPD Ctr., LLC v. Watershed, Inc., 330 Ga. App. 289, 765 S.E.2d 531 (2014).

Effect of addition of interest. — If sum sued for does not exceed jurisdictional amount, the court has jurisdiction even if addition of interest increases amount in controversy over jurisdictional amount. Southern Express Co. v. Hilton, 94 Ga. 450, 20 S.E. 126 (1894); Dumas v. Barnesville Bank, 38 Ga. App. 293, 143 S.E. 794 (1928) (decided under former law).

Total amount may oust court of jurisdiction. — If, in action on note, principal, interest, and attorney's fees exceed jurisdictional amount, justice of the peace court has no jurisdiction. Searcy v. Tillman, 75 Ga. 504 (1885); Beach v. Atkinson, 87 Ga. 288, 13 S.E. 591 (1891); Almand v. Almand & George, 95 Ga. 204, 22 S.E. 213 (1894); Peeples v. Strickland, 101 Ga. 829, 29 S.E. 22 (1897) (decided under former law).

Attorney's fees are ascertained by adding principal and interest and calculating 10 percent. Morgan v. Kiser & Co., 105 Ga. 104, 31 S.E. 45 (1898); Hamilton v. Rogers, 126 Ga. 27, 54 S.E. 926 (1906) (decided under former law).

Attorney's fees are waived unless defendant is notified as required by Ga. L. 1900, p. 53, § 1 (see now O.C.G.A. § 13-1-11). Godfree & Dellinger v. Brooks, 126 Ga. 627, 55 S.E. 938 (1906) (decided under former law).

If claim is liquidated, creditor cannot relinquish part of damages without consent of debtor. Stewart v. Thompson & Co., 85 Ga. 829, 11 S.E. 1030 (1890) (decided under former law).

Relinquishment principle is applicable to notes. Cox, Hill & Thompson v. Stanton, 58 Ga. 406 (1877) (decided under former law).

Relinquishment principle is applicable to open accounts. Ex parte Gale, 1 Ga. Rpt. Ann. (RMC 214) 193 (1822) (decided under former law).

Relinquishment principle has no application if damages not fixed by agreement or implied by law. Jennings v. Stripling, 127 Ga. 778, 56 S.E. 1026 (1907) (decided under former law).

Suit for damages to personalty. Velvin v. Hall, 78 Ga. 136 (1886) (decided under former law).

Breach of forthcoming bond. Bowden v. Taylor, 81 Ga. 199, 6 S.E. 277 (1887) (decided under former law).

Breach of contract to carry goods. Southern Express Co. v. Hilton, 94 Ga. 450, 20 S.E. 126 (1894) (decided under former law).

Account composed of unliquidated demands. Jennings v. Stripling, 127 Ga. 778, 56 S.E. 1026 (1907) (decided under former law).

Defense that account has been split into separate parts in order to bring amount of each part within jurisdiction of court must be pled. Smith v. Pope, 100 Ga. App. 369, 111 S.E.2d 155 (1959) (decided under former law).

Default judgment for one part waives defense for other part. — If the debtor, knowing that an account has been divided to bring each part within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace court, withdraws the debtor's pleadings and suffers a default judgment, the debtor waives any defense to another part of the account so divided. Smith v. Pope, 100 Ga. App. 369, 111 S.E.2d 155 (1959) (decided under former law).

Claim for damages greater than $15,000. — In an action between a same-sex couple regarding equity in a home, the girlfriend's claims against the homeowner were not barred by res judicata because the claims could not have been litigated in magistrate court in the homeowner's action for dispossession as the magistrate court lacked jurisdiction over the girlfriend's claims because the damages sought were more than $15,000. Smith v. Bell, 346 Ga. App. 152, 816 S.E.2d 698 (2018).

3. Specific Causes of Action

Justice of the peace court can hear action on express or implied bailment. Bates v. Bigby, 123 Ga. 727, 51 S.E. 717 (1905) (decided under former law).

Action on claim interposed to levy on personalty, under execution issued therefrom. Everett v. Brown, 117 Ga. 342, 43 S.E. 735 (1903) (decided under former law).

Criminal Jurisdiction

Criminal jurisdiction limited to administration of justice. — While justice courts have jurisdiction with respect to certain matters in the administration of criminal law, such courts did not have jurisdiction in criminal actions as the word was defined in former Code 1933, § 3-101 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-2-1). Pate v. Taylor Chem. Co., 88 Ga. App. 127, 76 S.E.2d 131 (1953) (decided under former law).

Extent of municipal court criminal jurisdiction. — If local Act creating municipal court provides that the criminal jurisdiction of the court would not exceed the jurisdiction of the justice courts of this state, but would extend over the entire county, such municipal court is not thereby given jurisdiction of criminal actions, though it might have jurisdiction with respect to certain matters in connection with the administration of criminal law. Pate v. Taylor Chem. Co., 88 Ga. App. 127, 76 S.E.2d 131 (1953) (decided under former law).

Personal Jurisdiction

Prolonged visit will not confer jurisdiction on justice of the peace court.

Fain v. Crawford, 91 Ga. 30, 16 S.E. 106 (1892) (decided under former law).

Service outside city limits proper. — Service on a partner by a deputy marshal of a municipal court is valid though made outside the city limits, but within the county. Heyman v. Decatur St. Bank, 16 Ga. App. 14, 84 S.E. 483 (1915) (decided under former law).

Principal on bond may be sued in court that has jurisdiction of surety even though surety waived jurisdiction in consideration of release. Mumford v. Solomon, 8 Ga. App. 286, 68 S.E. 1075 (1910) (decided under former law).

Judgments Rendered Outside Jurisdiction

Application. — This section applies when judgment is not rendered at place selected by justice in performance of the justice's statutory duty. Carter v. Atkinson, 12 Ga. App. 390, 77 S.E. 370 (1913) (decided under former law).

Judgment rendered outside jurisdiction may be attacked by affidavit of illegality. Mills v. Anderson, 20 Ga. App. 806, 93 S.E. 535 (1917) (decided under former law).

Writ of certiorari will not lie. Gravitt v. Mullins, 28 Ga. App. 806, 113 S.E. 61 (1922) (decided under former law).

Failure to notify as required voids judgment. — Judgment void if rendered at a place where the statutorily required notice of change of location is not given. Hilson v. Kitchens, 107 Ga. 230, 33 S.E. 71, 73 Am. St. R. 119 (1899) (decided under former law).

An order rendered by the trial judge of the civil court of a county in a bail trover action at a place outside of that county, and without notice to a party against whose interest the judgment was rendered, was a mere nullity, void and of no effect, and could be ignored as such by any party purportedly adversely affected thereby. Zachos v. Rowland, 80 Ga. App. 31, 55 S.E.2d 166 (1949) (decided under former law).

Judgment rendered out of term. White v. Mandeville, 72 Ga. 705 (1884) (decided under former law).

Judgment should be signed in courthouse. Bowden v. Taylor, 81 Ga. 199, 6 S.E. 277 (1888) (decided under former law).

Division of Debts

Term "liquidated" is equivalent to settled, acknowledged, or agreed. Parris v. Hightower, 76 Ga. 631 (1886) (decided under former law).

No division of running open account. — Running open account, the items of which have all matured at the time of the suit, cannot be divided into separate parts for the purpose of bringing each part within the jurisdiction of a justice's court without the consent of the defendant. Floyd v. Cox, 72 Ga. 147 (1883); Teat v. Westmoreland, 19 Ga. App. 60, 90 S.E. 1025 (1916) (decided under former law).

This rule has no application to legality or illegality of contracts so as to render prima facie illegal an entire running open account, composed of several contractual transactions during a period of years, merely for the reason that the evidence showed that certain older items of the account were illegal because the trade name of the plaintiff was not registered before the items were contracted, when the evidence also showed that the remaining items were legally contracted after due registration by the plaintiff. Gower v. Ozmer, 55 Ga. App. 81, 189 S.E. 540 (1936) (decided under former law).

Recovery on part of account will bar subsequent action for remainder. Johnson v. Klassett, 9 Ga. App. 733, 72 S.E. 174 (1911) (decided under former law).

Burden is on plaintiff to prove that accounts are different transactions. Parks v. Oskamp, Nolting & Co., 97 Ga. 802, 25 S.E. 369 (1895) (decided under former law).

Liens of other creditors cannot be prejudiced. Bell & Bro. v. Rich, 73 Ga. 240 (1884) (decided under former law).

Shares of stock represented by one certificate may be exchanged. — If one holds a certificate representing five $50.00 shares of preferred stock one may exchange it for five certificates so that a justice of the peace court will have jurisdiction. Savannah Real Estate, Loan & Bldg. Co. v. Silverberg, 108 Ga. 281, 33 S.E. 908 (1899) (decided under former law).

Not necessary to unite claims for rent. — If a landlord has two demands for rent, due for consecutive years, the amounts being liquidated, the landlord is not compelled to unite the demands in one distress warrant, although the landlord has the option to do so. McCray v. Samuel, 65 Ga. 739 (1880) (decided under former law).

Actions on Several Notes

Justice of the peace courts have jurisdiction of actions on distinct evidences of debt although they are given for one and the same debt or consideration. Parker v. Timberlake Grocery Co., 71 Ga. App. 280, 30 S.E.2d 650 (1944) (decided under former law).

If one is indebted to another on an open account in excess of $200.00 and gives two checks for a part thereof, which are credited on the account, an action against that person by the creditor for less than $200.00 to recover the full amount of the balance of the open account will lie, and is within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace court, even though another action has been filed to recover on the checks which have been dishonored. Parker v. Timberlake Grocery Co., 71 Ga. App. 280, 30 S.E.2d 650 (1944) (decided under former law).

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former § 15-10-52, former Code 1933, §§ 24-602, 24-1001, and 24-1004 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Choice of forum. — Courts of Georgia may not restrict the suitor's choice of forum when jurisdiction of a cause of action is vested in more than one court. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-50.

Arrest warrants for persons under 17 years. — Magistrate may issue arrest warrants for persons under the age of 17. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-30.

Ordering prejudgment attachment or garnishment. — Because magistrate courts are not "courts of record" magistrate courts may not order prejudgment attachment or garnishment. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-28.

Foreclosure of motor vehicle mechanic's lien. — Justice of the peace court does not have subject matter jurisdiction to foreclose a motor vehicle mechanic's lien under O.C.G.A. § 40-3-54 since such lien is statutory rather than one arising ex contractu. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U81-27 (decided under former § 15-10-52).

Definitions of classes referred to. — This section, in referring to persons "resident of their respective districts," covers those persons who are actually residing in the militia district. The provision relating to "itinerant persons" would cover persons falling in the category similar to traveling lightning rod salespeople, jewelry salespeople, and others who are only traveling through the district; the statute would not apply to a person who was actually a resident of an adjoining district because the jurisdiction of that person would be in the justice court of the adjoining district; the last part of this section, which applies to persons of other districts and particular cases, refers generally to suits against makers and endorsers, coendorsers, and others. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 311 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-1004).

Justices of the peace court have jurisdiction in bail trover cases up to the amount of $200.00. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 77 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-1001).

Counties required to furnish dockets and forms. — Counties are not required to furnish justices of the peace everything the justices may need in the performance of the justices duties; however, counties are required to furnish justices and constables dockets and necessary forms used for process and service by them. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 33 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-602).

No modification of judicial order specifying cash bond. — Sheriff does not have the authority to modify a judicial order and accept a property or surety bond after a magistrate has specified a cash bond. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U87-22.

Dispossessory and distress warrant proceedings. — Magistrate court has jurisdiction to try cases and issue writs and judgments in dispossessory and distress warrant proceedings when the amount in controversy exceeds $3,000.00. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-18.

Release of arrestees. — Magistrate court may, sua sponte, order the release of arrestees who have been arrested without a warrant and if no warrant has been procured as required by O.C.G.A. § 17-4-62, and also if an individual has been arrested with a warrant, but has not been afforded a first appearance hearing within 72 hours of the individual's arrest as required by O.C.G.A. § 17-4-26. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-14.

Powers and Duties Generally

Commissioned notary public ex officio justice of the peace may only serve in that district in which the person resides. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-205 (decided under former law).

Jurisdiction over possession of open container of alcohol in vehicle. — In counties in which there is a state court, both the state court and the magistrate court of the county possess concurrent jurisdiction over the prosecution of individuals charged with violating a county ordinance prohibiting the possession of open containers of alcohol while operating a motor vehicle. 1992 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U92-3.

No jurisdiction outside district. — Justice of the peace is required to hold court and to maintain an office within the district; the justice does not have jurisdiction of the person or of subject matter in any trial held outside such district. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-44 (decided under former law).

Justice of the peace may prevent interference with a constable in making a levy through contempt processes. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-63 (decided under former law).

Justice of the peace plays no part in actual collection of back taxes of either county or state. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-263 (decided under former law).

Justice of the peace has authority to administer oaths and take acknowledgments unless power is expressly restricted to some other officer. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 47 (decided under former law).

Justice of the peace may only administer such oaths in county in which the person is so authorized as justice of the peace. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 47 (decided under former law).

Authority of justice of the peace to serve as sheriff. 1963-65 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 6 (decided under former law).

No special requirement as to form of jurat. — If the officer is a commissioned justice of the peace of the county and state wherein the oath is administered, the form under which the officer shows the officer's authority to execute the jurat, or whether or not the jurat is attached, is of little consequence and without special requirement as to form. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 47 (decided under former law).

Criminal Jurisdiction

Conservator of the peace is officer authorized to preserve and maintain public peace and comes within definition of peace officer. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 473 (decided under former law).

Criminal Jurisdiction (Cont'd)

Duty of arrest should be delegated. — Although a justice of the peace in the exercise of the justice's duties as conservator of the peace may carry the necessary implements for self protection in the discharge of the justice's duties, the duties of arresting persons for violation of laws should be delegated to the constable of the district and the justice should confine activities to the issuing of warrants and such processes as the justice deems necessary to preserve the peace since the offender when arrested may be brought before the justice for a committal hearing; the justice should not be the arresting officer and the magistrate, passing judgment upon the offender arrested by the justice. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 473 (decided under former law).

Justice of the peace may issue warrant for traffic offenses if warrant has not otherwise been issued by judge of the probate court. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-57 (decided under former law).

15-10-2.1. Jurisdiction over certain cases involving litter.

(a) Subject to the provisions of subsection (b) of this Code section, in addition to any other jurisdiction vested in the magistrate courts, such courts shall have the right and power to conduct trials, receive pleas of guilty, and impose sentence upon defendants for violating any provision of Part 2, Part 3, or Part 3A of Article 2 of Chapter 7 of Title 16 or Code Section 32-6-51 or 40-6-248.1 that is punishable for its violation as a misdemeanor. Editor's notes. — This Code section was based on Code 1981, § 15-10-2.1, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1. The Code section continued, until July 1, 1985, the jurisdiction of those magistrate courts which as of June 30, 1983, had jurisdiction over misdemeanor cases and over enforcement of municipal ordinances. Subsection (b) of the Code section provided for its repeal effective July 1, 1985, but provided that any case in which a court assumed jurisdiction under the Code section prior to July 1, 1985, may be retained for disposition by that court after that date.

Ga. L. 1985, p. 352, § 1, repealed former Code Section 15-10-2.1, pertaining to continuation of certain existing magistrate courts. The former Code section was based on Code 1981, § 15-10-2.1, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1.

Ga. L. 2006, p. 275, § 5-1/HB 1320, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that the Act shall become effective

(b)(1) The clerk of superior court shall make an entry of the oath of each officer on the minutes of the superior court.

(2) In the case of constables and clerks, the chief judge of the superior court shall issue to the officer taking the oath a certificate which shall serve as the officer's commission.

(3) All magistrates shall be issued a commission under the seal of the office of the Governor as provided in Code Section 45-3-31. In the case of magistrates or an appointed chief magistrate, the appointing authority shall issue to the magistrate or chief magistrate taking the oath a certificate of appointment. A copy of such certificate shall be forwarded to the office of the Secretary of State.

(c) In the case of a probate judge serving as a magistrate, a clerk of superior court serving as clerk of magistrate court, or a sheriff or sheriff's deputy serving as constable, no oath, certificate, or commission shall be required except the oath and commission of the probate judge as probate judge, clerk of superior court as clerk of superior court, or sheriff or deputy as such.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarities of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 24-601 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Availability of certiorari if judgment rendered at illegal place. — Judgment of the justice of the peace, void because rendered at some place other than the regular place of holding the court, may be attacked by affidavit of illegality in a proper case, but a writ of certiorari will not lie to such judgment. Courson v. Land, 54 Ga. App. 534, 188 S.E. 360 (1936) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-601).

Office must be open for sufficient periods to perform duties required by law. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

Justice of the peace has no authority to change time for holding court without legislative sanction and any judgments rendered at times or places other than those fixed by law are void. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 65-34 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-901).

Justice of the peace may not change time of holding court without posting public notice. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 53 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-901).

No jurisdiction outside own district. — Justice of the peace is required to hold court and to maintain the justice's office within the justice's district; the justice does not have jurisdiction of the person or of the subject matter in any trial held outside such district. 1970 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U70-44 (decided under former Code 1933, §§ 24-601 and 24-903).

Splitting compensation into salary and expenses of court improper. — Method of simply "splitting" the compensation of a small claims court judge/magistrate into separate payments for "salary" and "expenses" would not comport with O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-5 and 15-10-23. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-39.

Counties required to furnish dockets and forms. — Counties are not required to furnish justices of the peace everything justices may need in the performance of their duties; however, counties are required to furnish justices of the peace and constables with dockets and necessary forms used for process and service by the justices. 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 33 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-602).

Words "necessary furniture and other materials" construed broadly. — Phrase "necessary furniture and other materials necessary for the conduct of such courts" is a very broad and comprehensive coverage of furniture and materials which would necessarily cover writing instruments such as pens, ink, pencils, and, if the volume of business required it, may include a typewriter which is merely a mechanical improvement upon the other writing devices. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 313 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-904).

County governing authority is responsible for all expenses necessary for a small claims/magistrate court's operation, distinct from the compensation paid to the individual magistrates. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-39.

The council shall be composed of the chief magistrates, magistrates, and senior magistrates of the magistrate courts of this state. The council is authorized to organize itself and to develop a constitution and bylaws.

(b) It shall be the purpose of the council to effectuate the constitutional and statutory responsibilities conferred upon it by law, to further the improvement of the magistrate courts and the administration of justice, to assist the chief magistrates, magistrates, and senior magistrates throughout the state in the execution of their duties, and to promote and assist in the training of chief magistrates, magistrates, and senior magistrates.

(c) Expenses of the administration of the council shall be paid from state funds appropriated for that purpose, from federal funds available to the council for that purpose, or from other appropriate sources.

The council shall have an executive committee composed of two representatives from each judicial administrative district. 15-10-20. Number; selection; term; filling vacancies; chief magistrate; bonds.

(a) Each magistrate court shall have a chief magistrate and may have one or more other magistrates. Such magistrates shall be the judges of the magistrate court and shall be known as magistrates of the county. Unless otherwise provided by local law, the number of magistrates in each county shall be fixed from time to time by majority vote of the judges of the superior court of the county, but no magistrate shall be removed from office during a term of office except for cause as provided by Code Sections 15-10-24 and 15-10-25. The number of magistrates authorized for the county shall be one magistrate until increased by the judges of superior court or by local law; but this subsection shall not operate to remove a magistrate from office during his or her term of office.

(b) The term of office of any magistrate taking office on or after January 1, 1985, shall be for four years beginning on the first day of an odd-numbered year, except that in selecting magistrates to fill newly created positions or if otherwise necessary, a magistrate may be selected for a term of less than four years to expire on the last day of an even-numbered year.

(c) Unless otherwise provided by local law, all magistrates taking office on or after January 1, 1985, shall be selected as provided in this subsection. The chief magistrate shall be elected by the voters of the county at the general election next preceding the expiration of the term of the incumbent chief magistrate, in a partisan election in the same manner as county officers are elected, for a term beginning on the first day of January following his or her election. His or her successors shall likewise be elected quadrennially thereafter for terms beginning on the first day of January following their election. Magistrates other than the chief magistrate shall be appointed by the chief magistrate with the consent of the judges of superior court. The term of a magistrate so appointed shall run concurrently with the term of the chief magistrate by whom he or she was appointed.

(d) Unless otherwise provided by local law, a vacancy in the office of chief magistrate shall be filled by an appointment by majority vote of the judges of superior court for the remainder of the unexpired term; and a vacancy in the office of any other magistrate shall be filled by an appointment by the chief magistrate with the consent of the judges of superior court for the remainder of the unexpired term. If, however, a vacancy occurs which does not reduce the number of magistrates for the county below the number of magistrates authorized for the county, then such vacancy shall not be filled.

(e) The General Assembly may by local law provide for the number of magistrates of a county, provide for a different method of selecting magistrates than that specified in subsection (d) of this Code section, and provide for a different method of filling vacancies than that specified in subsection (d) of this Code section.

(f) The General Assembly may at any time provide by local law that the probate judge shall serve as chief magistrate or magistrate and provide for compensation of the probate judge in his or her capacity as chief magistrate or magistrate; and in such a case the chief magistrate or magistrate shall not be separately elected but shall be the probate judge.

(g) Each magistrate taking office after July 1, 1985, shall before entering on the performance of his or her duties execute bond in the amount of $100,000.00 for the faithful performance of his or her duties. Each magistrate in office on July 1, 1985, shall execute such a bond not later than September 1, 1985. The amount of bond required of the magistrate or magistrates of any county may be increased by local law. Such bonds shall be subject to all provisions of Chapter 4 of Title 45 in the same manner as bonds of other county officials. The premiums due on such bonds shall be paid by the fiscal authority of the county out of county funds.

The 2019 amendment, effective July 1, 2019, inserted "or her" near the end of the last sentence of subsection (a); deleted the former first sentence of subsection (b), which read: "The term of office of any magistrate taking office prior to January 1, 1985, shall expire on December 31, 1984, except that this subsection shall not operate to shorten any term of office in violation of Article VI, Section X, Paragraph II of the Constitution."; deleted former subsection (c); redesignated former subsections (d) through (h) as present subsections (c) through (g), respectively; inserted "or she" throughout present subsection (c); in present subsection (e), substituted "subsection (d)" for "subsections (c) and" in the middle and substituted "subsection (d)" for "subsection (e)" near the end; in present subsection (g), in the first sentence, twice inserted "or her" and substituted "$100,000.00" for "$25,000.00"; and deleted former subsection (i), relating to removal of judge of the superior courts of this state and powers and duties of special judge of the magistrate court.

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 7-4, not codified by the General Assembly, provides: "With respect to each officer other than a probate judge who becomes a magistrate on July 1, 1983, pursuant to Article VI, Section X, Paragraph II of the Constitution, the position or office in which such officer was formerly serving shall be abolished for all purposes immediately upon the expiration of the term of the incumbent; and no person shall be selected to fill such office thereafter. This section shall not operate to shorten the term which any such officer will serve as magistrate pursuant to said paragraph of the Constitution and shall not operate to prevent any such officer from thereafter being selected as a magistrate."

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarities of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Civil Code 1895, § 4072 and Civil Code 1910, §§ 4658 and 6524 are included in the annotations for this Code section. Many of the following decisions were rendered under former Code Section 15-10-57 or predecessors thereof, relating to procedure when justices of the peace are disqualified.

Constitutionality. — As the constitution permits selection and terms of offices of magistrate judges to be varied by local law, the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-20, 15-10-23, 15-10-100, and 15-10-105 are not unconstitutional. In re Magistrate Court, 262 Ga. 334, 418 S.E.2d 42 (1992).

Constitutional jurisdictional requirements. — Requirement of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I, that "magistrate … courts shall have uniform jurisdiction as provided by law" relates to jurisdiction rather than to the method of selection and terms of office of magistrates. State v. Boatright, 256 Ga. 23, 342 S.E.2d 674 (1986).

If justice of the peace is disqualified, another justice of the peace may preside in that justice's district. Simpkins & Co. v. Hester, 3 Ga. App. 160, 59 S.E. 322 (1907) (decided under former Civil Code 1895, § 4072).

Hearing must be at regular place of holding court. McClatchey v. Bryan, 144 Ga. 292, 86 S.E. 1085 (1915) (decided under former Civil Code 1910, § 6524).

Effect of judgment of unauthorized justice of the peace. — Judgment rendered by a justice of the peace unauthorized to preside in the district where it was rendered is a nullity and of no effect. Simpkins & Co. v. Hester, 3 Ga. App. 160, 59 S.E. 322 (1907) (decided under former Civil Code 1895, § 4072).

Disqualification after appeal. — Justice of the peace of the same district may preside where the justice of the peace who tried the case is disqualified, after an appeal from the justice's judgment has been entered. Harrison v. Perry, 90 Ga. 206, 15 S.E. 742 (1892) (decided under former law).

If justice of the peace presides in another's court, the justice's authority will be presumed in the absence of proof to the contrary. Carter & Ford v. Griffin, 113 Ga. 633, 38 S.E. 946 (1901) (decided under former Civil Code 1895, § 4072).

Justice of the peace related to a party may issue execution to foreclose landlord's lien. Savage v. Oliver, 110 Ga. 636, 36 S.E. 54 (1900) (decided under former Civil Code 1895, § 4072).

Mandamus to compel calling of election. — Mandamus will lie to compel justice of the peace to call election on application of citizens. Killorin v. Mitchell, 141 Ga. 524, 81 S.E. 443 (1914) (decided under former Code 1910, § 4658).

Office of assistant magistrate not created. — In a defendant's prosecution on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of cocaine with intent to distribute, a search warrant issued by an assistant magistrate at the magistrate's direction was invalid because the assistant magistrate could not be considered a de facto officer as no such office had been created by the county commissioners or by the superior court judges under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-20(a). Beck v. State, 283 Ga. 352, 658 S.E.2d 577 (2008).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Code 1933, §§ 24-408 and 24-1008 and former Code Section 15-10-6 or predecessors thereof, relating to filling of vacancies in office of justice of the peace, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Effect of certification under former Georgia Justice Courts Training Council Act. — Justice of the peace who was certified under the former Georgia Justice Courts Training Council Act as of July 1, 1983, became a magistrate on that date. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

Justice of the peace in office on June 30, 1983, who was not certified under the former Georgia Justice Courts Training Council Act as of that date, did not become a magistrate of the successor court on July 1, 1983. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

If a justice of the peace position is vacant on June 30, 1983, it may not be filled. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

Term of office. — Magistrate assuming office on July 1, 1983, by virtue of the magistrate's previous position serves a term as magistrate identical to the original term of the magistrate's former judicial office. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

Resignation procedures. — Chief magistrates should submit their resignations to the judges of the superior court and magistrates should submit their resignations to the chief magistrate. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

If no one is elected in special election, the offices of justice of the peace and constable must be filled by election rather than appointment. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-59 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-408).

Call another election if vacancy not filled. — If an election has been legally ordered to fill a vacancy in the office of justice of the peace, and none is bona fide held at the time and place designated, such vacancy would have to be filled by another special election called by the ordinary (now probate judge) rather than by appointment by the ordinary. 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 68-508 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-408).

It is the duty of the probate judge to fill vacancies in office of justice of the peace when an election does not fill the vacancy. 1945-47 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 78; 1957 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 54 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-408).

Acts of justice of the peace holding over valid. — Generally, the acts of a de facto officer are valid and if the term of a justice of the peace has expired and no one has been duly elected and commissioned to fill the office, the official acts of the justice whose term has expired would be those of a de facto officer. 1948-49 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 479 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-408).

Duty to ascertain if justice of the peace refuses to act. — Justice of the peace, when presented with an action stating that the other justice of the peace refuses to serve, should satisfy oneself by taking the matter up with the justice of the peace in the adjoining district and actually ascertain if the justice refuses to act in the matter. 1950-51 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 20 (decided under former Code 1933, §§ 24-408 and 24-1008).

State court judge may not simultaneously hold the office of chief magistrate. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-36.

Sitting magistrate may be a candidate for chief magistrate but would be required to resign the former magistrate position before assuming the new office. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

Probate judge as chief magistrate. — If the General Assembly has so provided by local law, the probate judge is to serve as the chief magistrate. If there is no such local law, with the consent of the probate judge, the superior court may appoint the probate judge as chief magistrate until January 1, 1985. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

Probate judge may be chief magistrate. — General law does not prohibit the probate judge from being separately elected and simultaneously holding the office of chief magistrate even if there is no specific authorization by local Act under subsection (g) (now subsection (f)) of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-20. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-26.

Justice of the peace as chief magistrate. — Certified justice of the peace is eligible to be appointed chief magistrate pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-10-120 but a noncertified justice of the peace is eligible for appointment only if the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-22 have been met. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

Chief magistrate seeking election to city council. — Since the office of member of the City Council of Lincolnton began more than 30 days prior to the expiration of the candidate's office as Chief Magistrate for Lincoln County and since there was no specific authorization by law permitting a person to hold the offices of magistrate and city councilmember simultaneously, the candidate's office as Chief Magistrate for Lincoln County would be declared vacant by operation of law pursuant to Ga. Const. 1983, Art. II, Sec. II, Par. V, upon the candidate qualifying to seek the office of member of the City Council of Lincolnton. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-41.

Resignation of probate judge as chief magistrate. — When the probate judge also serves as chief magistrate by operation of law, the office holder may not resign as chief magistrate while continuing to hold the office of probate judge. 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-46.

15-10-20.1. Qualifying in absentia for magistrates serving on active military duty.

(a) Any elected chief magistrate or elected magistrate who is performing ordered military duty, as defined in Code Section 38-2-279, shall be eligible for reelection in any primary or general election which may be held to elect a successor for the next term of office, and may qualify in absentia as a candidate for reelection to such office. The performance of ordered military duty shall not create a vacancy in such office during the term for which such judge was elected.

(b) Where the giving of written notice of candidacy is required, any elected chief magistrate or elected magistrate who is performing ordered military duty may deliver such notice by mail, agent, or messenger to the proper elections official. Any other act required by law of a candidate for the office of chief magistrate or magistrate judge may, during the time such official is on ordered military duty, be performed by an agent designated in writing by the absent chief magistrate or magistrate judge.

15-10-21. Powers and duties of chief magistrate.

The chief magistrate shall assign cases among the several magistrates of the county and shall decide any disputes between the magistrates of the county.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-21, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1.

15-10-22. Qualifications; restrictions on practice of law.

(a) Each magistrate taking office on or after July 1, 2019, shall:

(1) Have been a resident of the county for two years next preceding the beginning of his or her term of office;

(2) Be at least 25 years of age;

(3) Remain a resident of such county during his or her term of office;

(4) Be a citizen of the United States;

(5) Be a registered voter; and

(6) Have obtained a state accredited high school diploma or general educational development (GED) diploma.

(b) Additional qualifications for the office of chief magistrate or magistrate or both may be imposed by local law.

(c) A magistrate who is an attorney may practice in other courts but may not practice in the magistrate's own court or appear in any matter as to which that magistrate has exercised any jurisdiction.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-22, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1; Ga. L. 1984, p. 1096, § 3; Ga. L. 1987, p. 430, § 1; Ga. L. 2019, p. 658, § 3/HB 257.

The 2019 amendment, effective July 1, 2019, substituted the present provisions of this Code section for the former provisions, which read: "Each magistrate shall have been a resident of the county for one year next preceding the beginning of his term of office and shall as of such date be at least 25 years of age and shall possess a high school diploma or its equivalent. However, an officer becoming a magistrate pursuant to Code Section 15-10-120 shall be eligible to the office of magistrate without the necessity of meeting these qualifications. Additional qualifications for the office of chief magistrate or magistrate or both may be imposed by local law.

"(b) A magistrate who is an attorney may practice in other courts but may not practice in the magistrate's own court or appear in any matter as to which that magistrate has exercised any jurisdiction."

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

There is no requirement that a magistrate be an attorney. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-53.

Eligibility of justice of the peace for appointment. — Certified justice of the peace is eligible to be appointed chief magistrate pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 15-10-120 but a noncertified justice of the peace is eligible for appointment only if the requirements of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-22 have been met. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

ADVISORY OPINIONS OF THE STATE BAR

Part-time judges may represent defendants in criminal cases; however, regular or exclusive representation of such defendants by a judge whose responsibilities include the issuance of criminal warrants or the trial of criminal cases might destroy the appearance of impartiality and integrity essential to the administration of justice and, therefore, be inappropriate. Adv. Op. No. 86-2 (Aug. 23, 1989).

15-10-23. Minimum compensation; annual salary; increases; supplements.

(a)(1) As used in this Code section, the term "full-time capacity" means, in the case of a chief magistrate, a chief magistrate who regularly exercises the powers of a magistrate as set forth in Code Section 15-10-2 at least 40 hours per workweek. In the case of all other magistrates, such term means a magistrate who was appointed to a full-time magistrate position and who regularly exercises the powers of a magistrate as set forth in Code Section 15-10-2 at least 40 hours per workweek.

(2) Unless otherwise provided by local law, effective January 1, 2006, the chief magistrate of each county who serves in a full-time capacity other than those counties where the probate judge serves as chief magistrate shall receive a minimum annual salary of the amount fixed in the following schedule:

Population	Minimum Salary
0 — 5,999	$ 29,832.20
6,000 — 11,889	40,967.92
11,890 — 19,999	46,408.38
20,000 — 28,999	49,721.70
29,000 — 38,999	53,035.03
39,000 — 49,999	56,352.46
50,000 — 74,999	63,164.60
75,000 — 99,999	67,800.09
100,000 — 149,999	72,434.13
150,000 — 199,999	77,344.56
200,000 — 249,999	84,458.82
250,000 — 299,999	91,682.66
300,000 — 399,999	101,207.60
400,000 — 499,999	105,316.72
500,000 or more	109,425.84

The minimum salary for each affected chief magistrate shall be fixed from the table in this subsection according to the population of the county in which the chief magistrate serves as determined by the United States decennial census of 2000 or any future such census; provided, however, that such annual salary shall be recalculated in any year following a census year in which the Department of Community Affairs publishes a census estimate for the county prior to July 1 that is higher than the immediately preceding decennial census. Notwithstanding the provisions of this subsection, unless otherwise provided by local law, effective January 1, 1996, in any county in which more than 70 percent of the population according to the United States decennial census of 1990 or any future such census resides on property of the United States government which is exempt from taxation by this state, the population of the county for purposes of this subsection shall be deemed to be the total population of the county minus the population of the county which resides on property of the United States government.

(3) All other chief magistrates shall receive a minimum monthly salary equal to the hourly rate that a full-time chief magistrate of the county would receive according to paragraph (2) of this subsection multiplied by the number of actual hours worked by the chief magistrate as certified by the chief magistrate to the county governing authority.

(4) Unless otherwise provided by local law, each magistrate who serves in a full-time capacity other than the chief magistrate shall receive a minimum monthly salary of $3,851.46 per month or 90 percent of the monthly salary that a full-time chief magistrate would receive according to paragraph (2) of this subsection, whichever is less.

(5) All magistrates other than chief magistrates who serve in less than a full-time capacity or on call shall receive a minimum monthly salary of the lesser of $22.22 per hour for each hour worked as certified by the chief magistrate to the county governing authority or 90 percent of the monthly salary that a full-time chief magistrate would receive according to paragraph (2) of this subsection; provided, however, that notwithstanding any other provisions of this subsection, no magistrate who serves in less than a full-time capacity shall receive a minimum monthly salary of less than $592.58 unless a magistrate waives such minimum monthly salary in writing.

(6) Magistrates shall be compensated solely on a salary basis and not in whole or in part from fees. The salaries and supplements of all magistrates shall be paid in equal monthly installments from county funds.

(b) The amounts provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, as increased by the supplement, if any, provided by subsection (d) of Code Section 15-10-105, shall be increased by multiplying said amounts by the percentage which equals 5 percent times the number of completed four-year terms of office served by any chief magistrate or magistrate where such terms have been completed after December 31, 1995, effective the first day of January following the completion of each such period of service.

(c) Whenever the state employees subject to compensation plans authorized and approved in accordance with Code Section 45-20-4 receive a cost-of-living increase or general performance based increase of a certain percentage or a certain amount, the amounts provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, as increased by the supplement, if any, provided by subsection (d) of Code Section 15-10-105 and as increased by the application of longevity increases pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, shall be increased by the same percentage or same amount applicable to such state employees. If the cost-of-living increase or general performance based increase received by state employees is in different percentages or different amounts as to certain categories of employees, the amounts provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, as increased by the supplement, if any, provided by subsection (d) of Code Section 15-10-105 and as increased by the application of longevity increases pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, shall be increased by a percentage or an amount not to exceed the average percentage or average amount of the general increase in salary granted to the state employees. The Office of Planning and Budget shall calculate the average percentage increase or average amount increase when necessary. The periodic changes in the amounts provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, as increased by the supplement, if any, provided by subsection (d) of Code Section 15-10-105 and as increased by the application of longevity increases pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, as authorized by this subsection, shall become effective on the first day of January following the date that the cost-of-living increases or general performance based increases received by state employees become effective; provided, however, that if the cost-of-living increases received by state employees become effective on January 1, such periodic changes in the amounts provided in subsection (a) of this Code section, as increased by the supplement, if any, provided by subsection (d) of Code Section 15-10-105 and as increased by the application of longevity increases pursuant to subsection (b) of this Code section, as authorized by this subsection, shall become effective on the same date that the cost-of-living increases or general performance based increases received by state employees become effective.

(d) The county governing authority may supplement the minimum annual salary of the chief or other magistrate in such amount as it may fix from time to time, but no such magistrate's compensation or supplement shall be decreased during any term of office. Nothing contained in this subsection shall prohibit the General Assembly by local law from supplementing the annual salary of any magistrates.

(e) The General Assembly may by local law fix the compensation of any or all of a county's magistrates. The chief magistrate or magistrate shall be entitled to the greater of the compensation established by local law, including any supplement by the county governing authority, or the minimum annual salary stated in subsection (a) of this Code section but in no event to both.

(f) This Code section shall apply to any chief magistrate who is also serving as a judge of a civil court which is provided for in Article VI, Section I, Paragraph I of the Constitution of the State of Georgia of 1983. In such case, the salary of such chief magistrate shall be as provided by the local governing authority of the county.

(g) The salaries and supplements of senior magistrates shall be paid from county funds at a per diem rate equal to the daily rate that a full-time chief magistrate of the county would receive under paragraph (2) of subsection (a) of this Code section; provided, however, that the minimum annual and monthly salaries provided for in this Code section shall not apply to senior magistrates.

Code Commission notes. — Pursuant to Code Section 28-9-5, in 2001, "means, in the case of a chief magistrate, a" was substituted for "means in the case of a chief magistrate means a" in the first sentence of paragraph (a)(1).

Editor's notes. — Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 7-2, not codified by the General Assembly, provides for both the establishment and minimum compensation of officials, including justices of the peace, who become magistrates by operation of law pursuant to other provisions of the Act (see Code Section 15-10-120).

Ga. L. 2012, p. 446, § 3-1/HB 642, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "Personnel, equipment, and facilities that were assigned to the State Personnel Administration as of June 30, 2012, shall be transferred to the Department of Administrative Services on the effective date of this Act." This Act became effective July 1, 2012.

Ga. L. 2012, p. 446, § 3-2/HB 642, not codified by the General Assembly, provides that: "Appropriations for functions which are transferred by this Act may be transferred as provided in Code Section 45-12-90."

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — As the constitution permits selection and terms of offices of magistrate judges to be varied by local law, the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-20, 15-10-23, 15-10-100, 15-10-105 and Ga. L. 1983, p. 4027, are not unconstitutional. In re Magistrate Court, 262 Ga. 334, 418 S.E.2d 42 (1992).

Chief magistrate was entitled to the salary provided by law for the chief magistrate's position, and not to a higher judicial salary based upon an erroneously computed qualifying fee which the chief magistrate paid prior to running for office. Rowland v. Tattnall County, 260 Ga. 109, 390 S.E.2d 217 (1990).

Appointment as assistant magistrate. — Judge was not entitled to be compensated as a full-time magistrate under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23 when the written contract pursuant to which the judge was engaged expressly provided that the judge was hired as an assistant magistrate. Brown v. Blackmon, 272 Ga. 435, 530 S.E.2d 712 (2000); DeLoach v. Evans County, 272 Ga. 479, 532 S.E.2d 376 (2000).

Petition for increased compensation denied. — Chief Magistrate has a statutory duty to certify hours worked by a magistrate. Thus, when the Chief Magistrate attempted to certify hours for the magistrate which the magistrate did not work, the Chief Magistrate was acting outside the sphere of legally delegated authority, and the required certification was not made. Furthermore, there was no obligation to pay the magistrate for hours for which the certification was suspect. Jennings v. McIntosh County Bd. of Comm'rs, 276 Ga. 842, 583 S.E.2d 839 (2003).

Attorney fees. — When a magistrate sued to require the county to provide compensation in accordance with the statutory guidelines of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23, and prevailed on the principal claim in the petition for a writ of mandamus, even though the magistrate did not obtain all the relief requested, the magistrate was still entitled to attorney's fees. Jennings v. McIntosh County Bd. of Comm'rs, 276 Ga. 842, 583 S.E.2d 839 (2003).

Appointment to fill unexpired term. — County board of commissioners violated O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23 and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Par. V in reducing the salary of a chief magistrate following the magistrate's appointment to fill the unexpired term of the magistrate's predecessor. Lee v. Peach County Bd. of Comm'rs, 269 Ga. 380, 497 S.E.2d 562 (1998).

Reduction of erroneously calculated salary proper. — County was not barred from reducing a judge's salary when the salary had been inflated erroneously; the fact that the inflated salary was calculated by the same method as used previously did not estop the county from paying the reduced salary that the judge was actually due. Maddox v. Hayes, 278 Ga. 141, 598 S.E.2d 505 (2004).

Reduction of magistrate's compensation not authorized. — County commissioners violated the mandates of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Par. V and O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23 by reducing a magistrate's compensation during the term for which the magistrate was elected. Dudley v. Rowland, 271 Ga. 176, 517 S.E.2d 326 (1999).

Chief magistrate was entitled to recover salary because the magistrate was an incumbent, having performed the duties of chief magistrate before the salary reduction, and defendants reduced the magistrate's salary in violation of Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. VII, Para. V, and O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23(d). Pike County v. Callaway-Ingram, 292 Ga. 828, 742 S.E.2d 471 (2013).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Splitting compensation into salary and expenses of court improper. — Method of simply "splitting" the compensation of a small claims court judge/magistrate into separate payments for "salary" and "expenses" would not comport with O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-5 and 15-10-23. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-39.

Eligibility for 5 percent longevity increase. — First-term magistrate, who previously completed a 4-year term as a magistrate after December 31, 1995, was entitled to a 5-percent longevity increase under former subsection (j) of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23. 1997 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U97-26.

15-10-23.1. Monthly contingent expense allowance for the operation of the magistrate court.

In addition to any salary, fees, or expenses now or hereafter provided by law, unless a magistrate waives such expenses in writing, the governing authority of each county is authorized to provide as contingent expenses for the operation of the office of magistrate court, and payable from county funds, a monthly expense allowance to each magistrate of not less than the amount fixed in the following schedule:

Population	Minimum Monthly Expenses
0 — 11,889	$ 100.00
11,890 — 74,999	200.00
75,000 — 249,999	300.00
250,000 — 499,999	400.00

(b) In any county subject to this Code section the judge of such civil court shall serve as chief magistrate for a term of office concurrent with his term as judge of civil court. The chief judge of superior court of any such county shall fix the compensation to be received by the chief magistrate for his services as chief magistrate, and such compensation may be less than the minimum salary otherwise specified by this chapter.

(c) In any county subject to this Code section the clerk of civil court shall serve as clerk of magistrate court and the sheriff and deputies of civil court shall serve as constables of magistrate court.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Civil court independent from sheriff. — If the sheriff of a civil court is a constable of the magistrate court and functions independently of the sheriff of the superior court under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-27, the civil court is exempt from collecting and remitting fees to the Sheriff's Retirement Fund under subsection (b) of O.C.G.A. § 47-16-61. 1992 Op. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Voluntary dismissal rule did not apply in magistrate court. — Trial court erred in relying on O.C.G.A. § 9-11-41 in finding that a tenant failed to object to the landlord's voluntary dismissal of its magistrate court dispossessory action, resulting in the dismissal of the tenant's counterclaim to that action; the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-1 et seq., did not apply to magistrate court suits, O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-40 and 15-10-42, and there was nothing to indicate that the magistrate court opted to follow the Civil Practice Act as permitted by O.C.G.A. § 15-10-44. Howell v. Beauly, LLC, 337 Ga. App. 898, 789 S.E.2d 214 (2016).

15-10-41. No jury trials; appeal.

(a) There shall be no jury trials in the magistrate court.

(b)(1) Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, appeals may be had from judgments returned in the magistrate court to the state court of the county or to the superior court of the county and the same provisions now provided for by general law for appeals contained in Article 2 of Chapter 3 of Title 5 shall be applicable to appeals from the magistrate court, the same to be a de novo appeal. The provisions of said Article 2 of Chapter 3 of Title 5 shall also apply to appeals to state court.

(2) No appeal shall lie from a default judgment or from a dismissal for want of prosecution after a nonappearance of a plaintiff for trial. Any voluntary dismissal by the plaintiff or by order of the court for want of prosecution shall be without prejudice except that the filing of a second such dismissal shall operate as an adjudication upon the merits. Review, including review of a denial of a postjudgment motion to vacate a judgment, shall be by certiorari to the state court of that county or to the superior court of that county.

Law reviews. — For article, "The Endangered Right of Jury Trials in Dispossessories," see 24 Ga. St. B. J. 126 (1988).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutional right to jury trial in dispossessory actions. — After the appellants had sought a jury trial in a local magistrate court on the issue of possession in a landlord-tenant dispute, the appellee denied the appellants' request, the appellants filed a writ of prohibition against the appellee in the superior court, and the superior court denied the appellants' writ and issued a certificate of immediate review to the Supreme Court of Georgia, the magistrate court did not err in denying the appellants a jury trial since the right to jury trial on appeal is expressly given in O.C.G.A. § 5-3-30, and the appellants are not being denied a jury trial, but instead, only endure a procedural delay in the magistrate court before receiving a jury trial on appeal to the state or superior court. Hill v. Levenson, 259 Ga. 395, 383 S.E.2d 110 (1989).

New trials. — Magistrate courts are not courts of record with the power to grant new trials; thus, a motion for a new trial in the magistrate court did not toll the time for filing an appeal to state or superior court. Bowen v. Ball, 215 Ga. App. 640, 451 S.E.2d 502 (1994).

No statutory provision to remand case. — Once a de novo appeal from a magistrate court in proper form is taken to a state or superior court, there is no statutory provision for the remand of the case or for reinstatement of the judgment of the magistrate court nor may the appeal be dismissed simply because of the absence of one of the parties. Scott v. Aaron, 221 Ga. App. 254, 471 S.E.2d 55 (1996).

Availability of direct appeal. — Although it was not denominated a "final judgment," a magistrate's involuntary dismissal of a case constituted a final judgment subject to direct appeal. Brown v. Adams, 233 Ga. App. 813, 506 S.E.2d 135 (1998).

Appellant could not appeal, under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-43(g), from the entry by a magistrate court of a default judgment against the appellant in favor of the appellee, in a new suit, as under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-41(b)(2), the appellant could not appeal from the entry of the default judgment in the original suit. Shelley v. Shannon, 267 Ga. App. 582, 601 S.E.2d 131 (2004).

In a customer's suit against a company, as the latter filed the company's answer late, the case was initially placed on the "default judgment" trial calendar. However, as the magistrate later held a hearing at which both parties appeared, and entered a "judgment," rather than a "default judgment," in favor of the customer, the customer properly filed a direct appeal to the state trial court under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-41(b)(1). Infinite Energy, Inc. v. Cottrell, 295 Ga. App. 306, 671 S.E.2d 294 (2008).

In a bankruptcy trustee's eviction action on behalf of the debtor in magistrate court, the magistrate court judgment against the tenant was a judgment on the merits and was therefore subject to the provisions of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-41(b)(1), allowing a direct appeal. The trial court erred in dismissing the appeal based on the last sentence of paragraph (b)(2), which applied only to dismissals for failure to prosecute and default judgments. McKeever v. Scarver, 348 Ga. App. 12, 821 S.E.2d 98 (2018).

De novo appeal is exclusive avenue. — Only avenue of appeal available from a magistrate court judgment is provided by O.C.G.A. § 15-10-41(b)(1), which allows for a de novo appeal to the state or superior court. Handler v. Hulsey, 199 Ga. App. 751, 406 S.E.2d 225, cert. denied, 199 Ga. App. 906, 406 S.E.2d 225 (1991).

Application for appeal. — Regardless of whether the litigation was subsequently erroneously expanded in state court to include matters beyond the parameters of a de novo investigation, after the litigation reached the state court by means of a de novo appeal from the magistrate court, in order to obtain appellate review of the state court judgment in the Court of Appeals, an application for appeal must be sought as required by O.C.G.A. § 5-6-35(a)(11). Handler v. Hulsey, 199 Ga. App. 751, 406 S.E.2d 225, cert. denied, 199 Ga. App. 906, 406 S.E.2d 225 (1991); Southtowne Hyundai-Isuzu-Suzuki v. Hooper, 216 Ga. App. 214, 453 S.E.2d 756 (1995).

Scope of appeal. — In a de novo appeal of an action from magistrate to state court, the issues to be litigated are framed by the claims raised below. Handler v. Hulsey, 199 Ga. App. 751, 406 S.E.2d 225, cert. denied, 199 Ga. App. 906, 406 S.E.2d 225 (1991).

Dismissal and renewal statutes applicable in appeal. — O.C.G.A. § 9-11-41(a), the voluntary dismissal statute, could be exercised by either party in a de novo appeal filed in superior court following the entry of a judgment in magistrate court, regardless of which party appealed. Once a landlord filed the landlord's voluntary dismissal, the landlord was also entitled to file a renewal action pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-2-61(a). Jessup v. Ray, 311 Ga. App. 523, 716 S.E.2d 583 (2011).

Default judgment. — Because no appeal lay from entry of a default judgment in magistrate court, a tenant's filing of a notice of appeal in a dispossessory action did not divest the magistrate court of the court's authority over the action. Abushmais v. Erby, 282 Ga. 619, 652 S.E.2d 549 (2007).

Voluntary dismissal of magistrate court action was not res judicata. — Trial court erred by granting the debtors' motion to dismiss by applying res judicata to the voluntary dismissal of the prior magistrate court actions because the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 15-10-42, was inapplicable to magistrate courts, thus, the voluntary dismissal under O.C.G.A. § 9-11-41(a)(1) did not operate as an adjudication upon the merits of the case. Target Nat'l Bank v. Luffman, 324 Ga. App. 442, 750 S.E.2d 750 (2013).

Review of denial of motion to vacate judgment. — Superior court erred in concluding that the court could not review an appeal from a default judgment in magistrate court because O.C.G.A. § 15-10-41(b)(2) specifically allowed review of a denial of a postjudgment motion to vacate a judgment by certiorari. Jorree v. PMB Rentals, LLC, 349 Ga. App. 332, 825 S.E.2d 817 (2019).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Magistrate courts may follow Civil Practice Act. — Language of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-42, that magistrate courts are not subject to the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-1 et seq., must be read to permit, rather than require, magistrate courts to follow the provisions of the Civil Practice Act, or any other appropriate rules and regulations relating to pleading, practice, and procedure when to do so would "administer justice" under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-44. Howe v. Roberts, 259 Ga. 617, 385 S.E.2d 276 (1989).

Voluntary dismissal rule did not apply in magistrate court. — Trial court erred in relying on O.C.G.A. § 9-11-41 in finding that a tenant failed to object to the landlord's voluntary dismissal of its magistrate court dispossessory action, resulting in the dismissal of the tenant's counterclaim to that action; the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-1 et seq., did not apply to magistrate court suits, O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-40 and 15-10-42, and there was nothing to indicate that the magistrate court opted to follow the Civil Practice Act as permitted by O.C.G.A. § 15-10-44. Howell v. Beauly, LLC, 337 Ga. App. 898, 789 S.E.2d 214 (2016).

Buyer's denial of liability or indebtedness to seller satisfied O.C.G.A. § 15-10-43(c). — In magistrate court proceedings, the buyers were not required to specifically answer each allegation in a seller's complaint, and the buyers were permitted to controvert liability through a general denial pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-8(b); thus, pretermitting whether the buyers' answer met the requirements for a general denial under the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-1 et seq., the answer amounted to a sufficient response in the magistrate court, denying any liability or indebtedness to the seller. Jones v. Equip. King Int'l, 287 Ga. App. 867, 652 S.E.2d 811 (2007).

Relation back of amendment. — Magistrate court was authorized to allow an amendment adding a corporate defendant to relate back to the initial filing. Howe v. Roberts, 259 Ga. 617, 385 S.E.2d 276 (1989).

Constitutional right to jury trial in dispossessory actions. — After the appellants sought a jury trial in a local magistrate court on the issue of possession in a landlord-tenant dispute, the appellee denied the appellants' request, the appellants filed a writ of prohibition against the appellee in the superior court, and the superior court denied the appellants' writ and issued a certificate of immediate review to the Supreme Court of Georgia, the magistrate court did not err in denying the appellants a jury trial since the right to jury trial on appeal is expressly given in O.C.G.A. § 5-3-30, and the appellants are not being denied a jury trial, but instead, only endure a procedural delay in the magistrate court before receiving a jury trial on appeal to the state or superior court. Hill v. Levenson, 259 Ga. 395, 383 S.E.2d 110 (1989).

Voluntary dismissal of magistrate court action was not res judicata. — Trial court erred by granting the debtors' motion to dismiss by applying res judicata to the voluntary dismissal of the prior magistrate court actions because the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 15-10-42, was inapplicable to magistrate courts, thus, the voluntary dismissal under O.C.G.A.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Discovery is not available in post-judgment matters before the magistrate court. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-24.

15-10-43. Statement of claim; service of process; answer to claim; default judgments; opening of default; relief in magistrate court.

(a) Actions shall be commenced by the filing of a statement of claim, including the last known address of the defendant, in concise form and free from technicalities. The plaintiff or his or her agent shall sign and verify the statement of claim by oath or affirmation. At the request of any individual, the judge or clerk may prepare the statement of claim and other papers required to be filed in an action. The statement of claim shall include a brief statement of the claim giving the defendant reasonable notice of the basis for each claim contained in the statement of claim and the address at which the plaintiff desires to receive the notice of hearing.

(b) A copy of the verified statement of claim shall be served on the defendant personally, or by leaving a copy thereof at the defendant's dwelling or usual place of abode with some person of suitable age and discretion then residing therein, or by delivering a copy of the claim to an agent authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process, and such service shall be sufficient. Service of said process shall be made within the county as provided in this Code section. Service outside the county shall be by second original as provided in Code Section 9-10-72. Said service shall be made by any official or person authorized by law to serve process in the superior court, by a constable, or by any person sui juris who is not a party to, or otherwise interested in, the action, who is specially appointed by the judge of said court for that purpose. When the claim and notice are served by a private individual, such individual shall make proof of service by affidavit, showing the time and place of such service on the defendant.

(c) An answer to the claim shall be filed with the court or orally presented to the judge or clerk of the court within 30 days after service of the statement of claim on the defendant to avoid a default. The answer shall be in concise form and free from technical requirements, but shall admit or deny the claim of the plaintiff. The answer shall contain the address at which the defendant desires to receive the notice of hearing. If the answer is presented to the judge or clerk orally, the judge or clerk shall reduce the answer to writing. Verification of an answer shall not be required. A copy of the answer shall be forwarded to the plaintiff and defendant with the notice of hearing. If an answer is timely filed or presented, the court shall within ten days of filing or presentation of the answer notify the defendant and the plaintiff of the calling of a hearing on the claim. The notice shall include the date, hour, and location of the hearing, which date shall be not less than 15 nor more than 30 days after the date the notice is given. The notice shall be served on the plaintiff and the defendant by mail or personal service to the address given by the plaintiff at the time he or she files his or her claim and the address given by the defendant at the time he or she files or presents his or her answer. The date of mailing shall be the date the notice is given. The clerk shall enter a certificate of service.

(d) Upon failure of the defendant to answer the claim within 30 days after service of the statement of claim, the defendant shall be in default. The defaulting party may open the default upon filing an answer and upon payment of costs within 15 days of default. If the defendant is still in default after the expiration of 15 days after the answer is due, the plaintiff shall be entitled to a default judgment without further proof if the claim is for liquidated damages. When the claim is for unliquidated damages, the plaintiff must offer proof of the damage amount. Separate notice of the date and time of the unliquidated damages hearing shall be sent to the defendant at his or her service address. The defendant shall be allowed to submit evidence at that hearing on the issue of the amount of damage only.

(e)(1) When a hearing is scheduled pursuant to subsection (c) of this Code section, upon failure of the defendant to appear for the hearing, the plaintiff shall be entitled to have the defendant's answer stricken and a default judgment entered; provided, however, that no default judgment shall be granted if the defendant appears at trial through counsel. If the claim is for liquidated damages, the plaintiff shall be entitled to take a judgment in the amount set forth in the complaint without further proof. If the claim is for unliquidated damages, the plaintiff shall proceed to prove his or her damages and take judgment in an amount determined by the judge.

(2) When a hearing is scheduled pursuant to subsection (d) of this Code section, upon failure of the defendant to appear, the plaintiff shall be entitled to submit proof of the damages and take judgment in an amount determined by the judge.

(3) If the plaintiff fails to appear for a hearing scheduled pursuant to either subsection (c) or (d) of this Code section, the court on motion of the defendant, or on its own motion, may dismiss the plaintiff's complaint, with or without prejudice, in the discretion of the court.

(f) At any time before final judgment, the court, in its discretion, upon payment of costs, may allow the default to be opened for providential cause preventing the filing of required pleadings or for excusable neglect or where the judge, from all the facts, shall determine that a proper case has been made for the default to be opened, on terms to be fixed by the court. In order to allow the default to be thus opened, the showing shall be made under oath, shall set up a meritorious defense, shall offer to plead instanter, and shall announce ready to proceed with the trial.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of Code Section 15-10-42, the magistrate court may grant relief from a judgment under the same circumstances as the state court may grant such relief. Requests for relief from judgments pursuant to this Code section in the magistrate court shall be by filing a written motion which sets forth the issues with reasonable specificity. The procedure shall then be the same as in other cases except the court may assess costs as seem just.

(h) A complaint in equity to set aside a judgment of the magistrate court may be brought under the same circumstances as a complaint to set aside a judgment in a court of record.

(i) Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prohibit an employee of any corporation or other legal entity from representing the corporation or legal entity before the magistrate court.

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions decided under pre-1983 provisions of this chapter pertaining to justices of the peace are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Appeal of default judgment could not be brought in separate action. — Appellant could not appeal, under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-43(g), from the entry by a magistrate court of a default judgment against the appellant in favor of the appellee, in a new suit as, under O.C.G.A, § 15-10-41(b)(2), the appellant could not appeal from the entry of the default judgment in the original suit. Shelley v. Shannon, 267 Ga. App. 582, 601 S.E.2d 131 (2004).

Buyer's denial of liability or indebtedness to seller satisfied O.C.G.A. § 15-10-43(c). — In magistrate court proceedings, the buyers were not required to specifically answer each allegation in a seller's complaint, and the buyers were permitted to controvert liability through a general denial pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 9-11-8(b); thus, pretermitting whether the buyers' answer met the requirements for a general denial under the Civil Practice Act, the answer amounted to a sufficient response in the magistrate court, denying any liability or indebtedness to the seller. Jones v. Equip. King Int'l, 287 Ga. App. 867, 652 S.E.2d 811 (2007).

Magistrate judge could grant relief from default. — Magistrate court erred in denying as untimely a motion to set aside a default judgment for lack of personal jurisdiction asserting that the defendant was improperly served by publication; under O.C.G.A. §§ 9-11-60(f) and 15-10-43(g), a motion to attack a void judgment could be filed at any time. Jorree v. PMB Rentals, LLC, 349 Ga. App. 332, 825 S.E.2d 817 (2019).

Erby, 282 Ga. App. 86, 637 S.E.2d 725 (2006).

Commencement of Action

Only pleading required is summons to which is attached cause of action on which plaintiff sues. Shuford v. Alexander, 74 Ga. 293 (1884) (decided under former law).

Judgment rendered without summons void. — Summons, duly signed by the justice of the peace, calling the defendant into court to answer the plaintiff's demand, is indispensable to give jurisdiction to the justice of the peace court, and a judgment rendered without any summons having been so issued is void. Wilbanks v. Bowman, 212 Ga. 809, 96 S.E.2d 255 (1957) (decided under former law).

Judgment may be attacked by anyone. Jeffers v. Ware, 72 Ga. 135 (1883); Martin v. Mundy & Mundy, 17 Ga. App. 699, 87 S.E. 1092 (1916) (decided under former law).

Technical pleading not required. — While the plaintiff, in a suit in a justice's court, must set forth with some degree of certainty the plaintiff's cause of action, technical pleading is not required. Rich v. Belcher, 43 Ga. App. 377, 158 S.E. 643 (1931) (decided under former law).

Scanty documents acceptable. — Summons in a justice of the peace court need not state the cause of action with the particularity required in regular pleading in courts of record, and the summons may be a very scanty document. Fountain v. Louisville & N.R.R., 61 Ga. App. 180, 6 S.E.2d 105 (1939) (decided under former law).

Rule as to strictness of pleading required in superior and city courts has no application to justice of the peace courts. Pidcock v. Stripling, 66 Ga. App. 692, 19 S.E.2d 178 (1942) (decided under former law).

Requirement of this section was met if the defendant was informed of the nature of the plaintiff's demand. Hendrix v. Elliott, 2 Ga. App. 301, 58 S.E. 495 (1907); Kinney v. Kinney, 20 Ga. App. 816, 93 S.E. 496 (1917); Ladd Lime & Stone Co. v. Case & Cothran, 34 Ga. App. 190, 129 S.E. 6 (1925); Rich v. Belcher, 43 Ga. App. 377, 158 S.E. 643 (1931); Southern Ry. v. Grizzle, 45 Ga. App. 428, 165 S.E. 149 (1932); Fountain v. Louisville & N.R.R., 61 Ga. App. 180, 6 S.E.2d 105 (1939) (decided under former law).

Summons is sufficient if it puts defendant on notice of what the defendant is being sued for so that the defendant may intelligently defend. Pidcock v. Stripling, 66 Ga. App. 692, 19 S.E.2d 178 (1942) (decided under former law).

Specific allegations of negligence need not be pled. — Terms of the former statute did not necessitate specific allegations of negligence, or a detailed relation of the acts from which negligence could be inferred, or by which the negligence was to be proved, or that the plaintiff set out a statement of facts which constituted negligence. Southern Ry. v. Grizzle, 45 Ga. App. 428, 165 S.E. 149 (1932) (decided under former law).

Word "account" used in the word's ordinary sense. Macon & B. Ry. v. Walton, 121 Ga. 275, 48 S.E. 940 (1904) (decided under former law).

Open account sued on is sufficiently itemized if the account shows the month and year of each purchase, specifies each article, and price of each article making up the account. Rich v. Belcher, 43 Ga. App. 377, 158 S.E. 643 (1931) (decided under former law).

Averment of word "rent" sufficiently identifies the nature of the proceedings to withstand general demurrer (now motion to dismiss). Chitwood v. Ament, 114 Ga. App. 352, 151 S.E.2d 515 (1966) (decided under former law).

Pleading of statute of frauds. — Defense of the statute of frauds cannot be raised by demurrer (now motion to dismiss) unless the petition affirmatively shows that the contract is oral. Marks & Powell v. Talmadge's Sons & Co., 8 Ga. App. 557, 69 S.E. 1131 (1911); Kinney v. Kinney, 20 Ga. App. 816, 93 S.E. 496 (1917) (decided under former law).

If words "intentionally, willfully, wantonly, and maliciously" are included in summons those words may be rejected as surplusage and need not be proved for only so much of the allegation need be proved as constitutes the cause of action set forth. Fountain v. Louisville & N.R.R., 61 Ga. App. 180, 6 S.E.2d 105 (1939) (decided under former law).

Copy of cause of action may be contained in body of summons. Southern Ry. v. Oliver & Morrow, 1 Ga. App. 734, 58 S.E. 244 (1907) (decided under former law).

Summons specifies appearance and answer date. Hines v. Wingo, 120 Ga. App. 614, 171 S.E.2d 905 (1969) (decided under former law).

No specific form of direction of execution is required. Oliver v. Warren, 124 Ga. 549, 53 S.E. 100, 110 Am. St. R. 188, 4 L.R.A. (n.s.) 1020 (1905) (decided under former law).

Direction of summons to defendant is amendable defect, cured by judgment. Telford v. Coggins, 76 Ga. 683 (1886) (decided under former law).

Failure of justice of the peace to sign summons may be waived. Peoples v. Strickland, 101 Ga. 829, 29 S.E. 22 (1897) (decided under former law).

Failure to sign copy of summons served not fatal. — If in a justice of the peace court the process was regularly and duly signed by the justice of the peace as required by law, the fact that the purported copy served on the defendant did not indicate such signature does not render the service void. Gilbert v. F.M. Brotherton, Inc., 48 Ga. App. 368, 172 S.E. 800 (1934) (decided under former law).

Actions in municipal court are commenced in same manner as in justice of the peace court. Hines v. Malone, 25 Ga. App. 781, 105 S.E. 37 (1920) (decided under former law).

Relief from judgment. — Since the record showed that a pro se party requested a continuance, albeit improperly, because of a conflict with another court appearance, the failure of the pro se party to appear for trial was not a sufficient basis to warrant granting a default judgment. Davalos v. Perdue, 215 Ga. App. 27, 449 S.E.2d 861 (1994).

Trial court abused the court's discretion in not granting the vehicle owner's motion for a directed verdict and setting aside the default judgment entered against the vehicle owner as the evidence showed that the wrecker service which found the vehicle owner's vehicle abandoned did not send notice of the foreclosure action against the vehicle owner to the vehicle owner's correct address; rather, the wrecker company sent notice of that action to an incorrect address located in a state other than where the vehicle owner was located through no fault of the vehicle owner. Mitsubishi Motors Credit of Am., Inc. v. Robinson & Stephens, Inc., 263 Ga. App. 168, 587 S.E.2d 146 (2003).

Service of Summons

Law relating generally to service is exclusively statutory and must be substantially followed and complied with. Cawthon v. McCord, 83 Ga. App. 158, 63 S.E.2d 287 (1951) (decided under former law).

Statutory method of service is exclusive, and a defendant cannot be served by leaving a copy at the defendant's office unless the defendant's office is also the defendant's most notorious place of abode, or residence. Bennett v. Taylor, 36 Ga. App. 752, 138 S.E. 273 (1927) (decided under former law).

Entry of service made at most notorious place of abode is identical with usual place of abode. Wood v. Callaway, 119 Ga. 801, 47 S.E. 178 (1904); Hays v. Fourth Nat'l Bank, 17 Ga. App. 409, 87 S.E. 147 (1915) (decided under former law).

Effective service obtained if copy left at residence though defendant was away visiting the defendant's sick wife. Moye v. Walker, 96 Ga. 769, 22 S.E. 276 (1895) (decided under former law).

Effective service obtained if copy read to defendant in presence of officer. Woodley v. Jordan, 112 Ga. 151, 37 S.E. 178 (1900) (decided under former law).

Effective service obtained if copy left with clerk of hotel. McLeay v. Davison-Paxon-Stokes Co., 18 Ga. App. 134, 88 S.E. 992 (1916) (decided under former law).

Service is waived by personal appearance of defendant, which must be recorded on the docket. Shearouse v. Wolf, 117 Ga. 426, 43 S.E. 718 (1903) (decided under former law).

Service is waived by entry of appeal from judgment. Talbott & Sons v. Collier, 102 Ga. 550, 28 S.E. 225 (1897) (decided under former law).

Only personal service on defendant will suffice when the defendant has filed a sworn plea in an action on open account. Sims v. Thomas, 18 Ga. App. 212, 89 S.E. 163 (1916) (decided under former law).

No form for entry of return. — Civil Code 1910, § 4717 designates the manner in which service of a suit shall be made, but does not prescribe a form for the entry of the return thereof. Hays v. Fourth Nat'l Bank, 17 Ga. App. 409, 87 S.E. 147 (1915) (decided under former law).

Constable may serve sheriff. Hayden & Nealy v. Atlanta Sav. Bank, 66 Ga. 150 (1880) (decided under former law).

Power to levy in other militia district. — Constable of a militia district other than that in which the justice of the peace court sits which issued execution may levy an execution upon property of the defendant in any militia district of the same county, although at the time there was a lawful constable in the latter district. Lapsley v. Georgia Loan, Sav. & Banking Co., 99 Ga. 459, 27 S.E. 717 (1896) (decided under former law).

Entry of service on docket is not required. Gray v. McNeal, 12 Ga. 424 (1853); Telford v. Coggins, 76 Ga. 683 (1886) (decided under former law).

Entry of service may be made by constable. Fitzgerald v. Adams, 9 Ga. 471 (1851) (decided under former law).

Entry of service may be made by justice of the peace acting as scribe. Ellis v. Francis, 9 Ga. 325 (1851) (decided under former law).

Service of Summons (Cont'd)

Waiver of service by proper officer is permitted, and the defendant may accept service from the justice of the peace. Bell v. Bowdoin, 109 Ga. 209, 34 S.E. 339 (1899); Williams v. Cumberland Fertilizer Co., 18 Ga. App. 558, 89 S.E. 1091 (1916) (decided under former law).

Service same for resident and nonresident. — Original summons served on resident defendant should state same term as summons served on nonresident obligor. Bailey v. Almand & George, 98 Ga. 133, 26 S.E. 495 (1896) (decided under former law).

Entry of service may be set aside on traverse but cannot be collaterally attacked. Patterson v. Drake, 126 Ga. 478, 55 S.E. 175 (1906) (decided under former law).

Informal entry is amendable. Telford v. Coggins, 76 Ga. 683 (1886) (decided under former law).

Defenses

Plea of non est factum. — For decision holding that plea of non est factum must be filed at first term, see Searcy v. Tillman, 75 Ga. 504 (1885) (decided under former law).

Plea of non est factum may be filed for first time on appeal as amendment to prior pleadings but different rule applies to dilatory pleas as those pleas cannot be filed for the first time on appeal under the guise of an amendment to other pleadings previously filed. Garrison v. McGuire, 114 Ga. App. 665, 152 S.E.2d 624 (1966) (decided under former law).

Plea to jurisdiction is of dilatory nature. Bass v. Stevens, 17 Ga. 573 (1855) (decided under former law).

Plea alleging failure of justice of the peace to notify mortgagor, as required by former Civil Code 1910, § 3296 (see now O.C.G.A. § 44-14-301), is of dilatory nature. Spooner v. Coachman, 18 Ga. App. 705, 90 S.E. 373 (1916) (decided under former law).

Plea in abatement is of dilatory nature. Adams & Johnson v. Branan, 120 Ga. 530, 48 S.E. 128 (1904) (decided under former law).

Plea cannot be filed unless the plea is reduced to writing. Garrison v. McGuire, 114 Ga. App. 665, 152 S.E.2d 624 (1966) (decided under former law).

Motion to suppress must be timely made or else the motion is waived. Burnley v. State, 159 Ga. App. 651, 285 S.E.2d 49 (1981) (decided under former law).

Acceptance is admissible without proof of its execution if plea of non est factum is not filed. Lowe Bros. Cracker Co. v. Ginn, 94 Ga. 408, 20 S.E. 106 (1894) (decided under former law).

Plea filed after the first term may be stricken on appeal. McCall v. Tufts, 85 Ga. 619, 11 S.E. 886 (1890); Shope v. Fite & Boston, 91 Ga. 174, 16 S.E. 990 (1893) (decided under former law).

Only agent may act for nonresident codefendant. — Defendant cannot file or verify plea for codefendant residing in another county, but agent of the latter may do so. Tennessee Chem. Co. v. Harper, 30 Ga. App. 789, 119 S.E. 448 (1923) (decided under former law).

Contradictory pleas may be filed. Glessner v. Longley, 125 Ga. 676, 54 S.E. 753 (1906) (decided under former law).

Amendment to plea may be treated as new plea if it constitutes complete answer. Glessner v. Longley, 125 Ga. 676, 54 S.E. 753 (1906) (decided under former law).

In order for judgment to bind person not named in summons the person's appearance and pleading must be shown by docket entry. Shearouse v. Wolf, 117 Ga. 426, 43 S.E. 718 (1903) (decided under former law).

Plea of breach of warranty or recoupment to attach for purchase money need not be in writing. Casey v. Crane & Co., 122 Ga. 318, 50 S.E. 92 (1905) (decided under former law).

Pendency of foreclosure of laborer's lien is not bar to action on account for same debt since, even when the lien is contested and the property replevied, no general judgment can be rendered in foreclosure proceedings. In such a case, the lien foreclosure is not converted into a proceeding in personam by the filing of a replevy bond; the actions are entirely different and each involves a different kind of judgment. McKellar v. Childs, 95 Ga. App. 237, 97 S.E.2d 616 (1957) (decided under former law).

Actions on Open Accounts

Plea may be verified by amendment. Standard Fashion Co. v. Newton-Hart Co., 12 Ga. App. 62, 76 S.E. 760 (1912); Moore v. American Nat'l Bank, 156 Ga. 724, 120 S.E. 2 (1923) (decided under former law).

If defendant refuses to amend unverified plea of payment the plea should be stricken and judgment entered for plaintiff. Columbia Drug Co. v. Goodman, 119 Ga. 474, 46 S.E. 647 (1904); Peeples v. Sethness, 119 Ga. 777, 47 S.E. 170 (1904); Nix v. Bruton, 10 Ga. App. 278, 73 S.E. 350 (1912); Lee v. Perry, 19 Ga. App. 48, 90 S.E. 988 (1916) (decided under former law).

Sufficiency of answer. — Answer denying that defendant is indebted to plaintiff, but admitting that the defendant had not paid balance alleged to be due, is sufficient as against motion to strike. Cason v. Armour Fertilizer Works, 14 Ga. App. 208, 80 S.E. 679 (1914) (decided under former law).

Defendant's plea of no indebtedness must allege that defendant is not indebted "in any sum" or specify amount of indebtedness admitted. Walker v. Seawell, 42 Ga. App. 511, 156 S.E. 475 (1931) (decided under former law).

Account verified by copy affidavit does not require verification of plea. General Specialty Co. v. Tifton Ice & Power Co., 3 Ga. App. 502, 60 S.E. 121 (1908) (decided under former law).

Provisions allowing continuance intended for benefit of plaintiff. — Provisions of former Code 1933, § 24-1302 relative to a continuance of the case upon the filing of the counter-affidavit or verified defense are intended for the benefit of the plaintiff, not the defendant. Greene v. Gulf Oil Corp., 119 Ga. App. 87, 166 S.E.2d 626 (1969) (decided under former law).

Sworn statement of account may be taken as true unless its fairness is denied under oath. Sanderson v. Bibb Collection Serv., Inc., 132 Ga. App. 865, 210 S.E.2d 29 (1974) (decided under former law).

Account verified by attorney at law is evidence of plaintiff's demand. Coffee v. McCaskey Register Co., 7 Ga. App. 425, 66 S.E. 1032 (1910) (decided under former law).

Account barred on account's face must be dismissed if is not verified by plaintiff. Wimbush v. Curry, 8 Ga. App. 223, 68 S.E. 951 (1910) (decided under former law).

If plea was not sworn to it did not amount to counter-affidavit provided by former Civil Code 1910, § 4730. Dixon v. Holliman, 37 Ga. App. 352, 140 S.E. 384 (1927) (decided under former law).

Affidavit insufficient if no personal service. — In an undefended suit on a verified account in a justice of the peace court, the affidavit is sufficient proof if the defendant is served personally, but if service has been made by leaving a copy of the writ at the defendant's residence, other evidence is necessary; however, the lack of other proof in case of service by leaving a copy at the defendant's residence does not render a judgment for the plaintiff void, but merely erroneous, and subject to correction by a timely and proper proceeding at law. Phaup v. Jervey, 180 Ga. 677, 180 S.E. 490 (1935) (decided under former law).

Service at abode of defendant cannot be substituted for personal service. Sapp Bros. v. Mathis, 12 Ga. App. 273, 77 S.E. 102 (1913) (decided under former law).

Loss or damage to personalty by a carrier was not covered by former Civil Code 1895, § 4130. Caudell v. Southern Ry., 119 Ga. 21, 45 S.E. 712 (1903); Lowe Co. v. Central of Ga. Ry., 123 Ga. 712, 51 S.E. 653 (1905); Georgia F. & A. Ry. v. Sheppard, 3 Ga. App. 241, 59 S.E. 717 (1907) (decided under former law).

Defendant can introduce no evidence if plea is not sworn. Stafford v. Wilson, 122 Ga. 32, 49 S.E. 800 (1905);

Actions on Open Accounts (Cont'd)

Entry of judgment for plaintiff is proper if defense is not sworn. Low v. Foster, 12 Ga. App. 575, 77 S.E. 878 (1913) (decided under former law).

Action on verified accounts need not be written. — Construing former Code 1933, §§ 6-303 and 24-1302 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 5-3-26 and 15-10-92) in pari materia, the conclusion is inescapable that former Code 1933, § 6-303 did not require an action on verified accounts to be written if there had been personal service on the defendant in superior court on appeal from the justice of the peace court, former Code 1933, § 6-303 required defenses to be written on appeal. Athens Truck & Tractor Co. v. Kennedy, 91 Ga. App. 49, 84 S.E.2d 608 (1954) (decided under former law).

Defenses by demurrer (now motion to dismiss), under former Civil Code 1910, § 4730, could be raised by defendant. Pope v. Wilson, 9 Ga. App. 197, 70 S.E. 977 (1911) (decided under former law).

Defense need not be filed at first term. Barnes v. Coker, 112 Ga. 137, 37 S.E. 104 (1900) (decided under former law).

Defense may be filed by amendment. Brierton v. Smith, 7 Ga. App. 69, 66 S.E. 375 (1909); Couch v. White, 18 Ga. App. 198, 89 S.E. 183 (1916) (decided under former law).

Defense may be filed when case is ready for trial. O'Dell v. Meacham, 114 Ga. 910, 41 S.E. 41 (1902) (decided under former law).

Method of service. — In justice of the peace court, the defendant must be served with summons by constable, sheriff, or sheriff's deputy by either giving the defendant a copy in person or by leaving a copy at the defendant's usual and most notorious abode. 1973 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U73-69 (decided under former Code 1933, §§ 24-1106 and 24-1107).

15-10-44. Trial procedure.

(a) The trial shall be conducted on the day set for the hearing, or at such later time as the judge may set. Immediately prior to the trial of any case, the judge shall counsel the parties to make an earnest effort to settle the controversy by conciliation. If the parties fail to settle their differences without a trial, the judge shall proceed with the hearing on its merits.

(b) The judge shall conduct the trial in such manner as to do substantial justice between the parties according to the rules of substantive law. All rules and regulations relating to pleading, practice, and procedure shall be liberally construed so as to administer justice.

(c) If the plaintiff fails to appear, the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution, the defendant may proceed to a trial on the merits, or the case may be continued as the judge may direct. JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code Sections 15-10-94 through 15-10-97 and 15-10-111 or predecessors thereof, pertaining to subpoenas, time of trial, continuances, and other procedural matters relating to justice courts are included in the annotations for this Code section. See Editor's notes at beginning of chapter.

Magistrate courts may follow Civil Practice Act. — Language of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-42, that magistrate courts are not subject to the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-1 et seq., must be read to permit, rather than require, magistrate courts to follow the provisions of the Civil Practice Act, or any other appropriate rules and regulations relating to pleading, practice, and procedure, when to do so would "administer justice" under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-44. Howe v. Roberts, 259 Ga. 617, 385 S.E.2d 276 (1989).

Trial court erred in relying on O.C.G.A. § 9-11-41 in finding that a tenant failed to object to the landlord's voluntary dismissal of its magistrate court dispossessory action, resulting in the dismissal of the tenant's counterclaim to that action; the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-11-1 et seq., did not apply to magistrate court suits, O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-40 and 15-10-42, and there was nothing to indicate that the magistrate court opted to follow the Civil Practice Act as permitted by O.C.G.A. § 15-10-44. Erroneous answer as to continuance is not a defense to judgment. Watkins v. Ellis, 105 Ga. 796, 32 S.E. 131 (1898) (decided under former law).

No injunction for reliance on person purporting to be clerk. — If person purporting to act as clerk of court informed party that case would not be tried at certain term, and judgment was issued, equity will not enjoin levy of execution issued thereon. Park v. Callaway, 128 Ga. 119, 57 S.E. 229 (1907) (decided under former law).

Continuance granted for more than ten days does not put case out of court. Wolff & Bro. v. Marietta Paper Mfg. Co., 61 Ga. 463 (1878) (decided under former law).

Motion to establish lost papers. — Copies of lost papers belonging to or pertaining to a suit pending in court may be established on motion; and it is not indispensably essential to the validity of an order of court establishing lost papers that a formal rule nisi should issue or that the opposite party should be served with notice of the proceeding. Southern Fertilizer & Chem. Co. v. Kirby, 52 Ga. App. 688, 184 S.E. 363 (1936) (decided under former law).

Presumption that sufficient evidence produced for a lost paper. — If it does not appear what evidence was introduced in the justice of the peace court in establishing a lost paper, the presumption arises, from the proceedings and the judgment thereon, that sufficient evidence was produced. Humphrey v. Johnson, 143 Ga. 703, 85 S.E. 830 (1915) (decided under former law).

Copies of lost papers for pending suit may be established instanter on motion; and it is not indispensably essential to the validity of an order of court establishing lost papers that a formal rule nisi should issue, or that the opposite party should be served with notice of the proceeding. 15-10-45. Compulsory and permissive counterclaims.

(a) If any defendant has a counterclaim against the plaintiff arising out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim, which counterclaim does not require for its adjudication the presence of third parties over whom the court cannot obtain jurisdiction, such counterclaim shall be asserted by the defendant at or before the hearing on the plaintiff's claim or thereafter be barred.

(b) If any defendant has a counterclaim against the plaintiff other than a compulsory counterclaim described in subsection (a) of this Code section, such counterclaim may be asserted by the defendant at or before the hearing on the plaintiff's claim.

(c) If any defendant asserts a counterclaim against the plaintiff, the defendant shall file with the court a statement of the counterclaim in concise form and free from technicalities. The defendant's counterclaim shall give the plaintiff reasonable notice of the basis for each claim contained in the counterclaim. The defendant shall sign the counterclaim. At the request of a defendant, the judge or clerk may prepare the counterclaim. Verification of a counterclaim shall not be required.

(d) If the amount of a counterclaim exceeds the jurisdictional limits of the magistrate court, the case shall be transferred to any court of the county which has jurisdictional limits which exceed the amount of the counterclaim. If there is more than one court to which the action may be transferred, the parties may agree on the court to which the action shall be transferred, and, in the absence of any agreement, the judge of the magistrate court shall determine the court to which the action shall be transferred. If there is no other court to which the action may be transferred, it shall be transferred to the superior court of the county.

(e) A counterclaim may in the discretion of the magistrate be tried either separately or jointly with the plaintiff's claim.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions decided under former Code 1873, § 4166 and former Code Section 15-10-99, relating to setoff in actions in justice courts are included in the annotations for this Code section. See Editor's notes at beginning of chapter.

If claim of setoff exceeds jurisdiction of court, defendant cannot write off part of judgment, but may sue in superior court for balance due. Ware v. Fambro, 67 Ga. 515 (1881) (decided under former Code 1873, § 4166).

Damages in tort cannot be set off to contract demand. Hecht v. Snook &

Austin Furn. Co., 114 Ga. 921, 41 S.E. 74 (1902) (decided under former law).

Plea of recoupment will be construed as one based on breach of warranty rather than deceit. Bowers v. Williams, 17 Ga. App. 779, 88 S.E. 703 (1916) (decided under former law).

No notice to plaintiff of filing of plea of recoupment is necessary to authorize trial if plaintiff is absent. Bowers v. Williams, 17 Ga. App. 799, 88 S.E. 703 (1916) (decided under former law).

No error in failing to transfer dispossessory action to superior court while transferring the counterclaim to superior court. — Civil court properly refused to transfer a dispossessory action from the county civil court to the superior court under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-45(d) based on the tenant filing a counterclaim as that statute only applied to magistrate courts, not the county civil court. Further, whether the trial court erred by failing to inquire as to whether the parties were willing to consent to consolidation of the claims could not be determined because the appealing tenant failed to provide a transcript of the bifurcated or dispossessory hearings. Roberts v. Strong, 293 Ga. App. 466, 667 S.E.2d 632 (2008).

Cited in Oh v. Bell, 221 Ga. App. 276, 470 S.E.2d 807 (1996); Setlock v. Setlock, 286 Ga. 384, 688 S.E.2d 346 (2010).

15-10-46. Ordering deferred partial payment of judgment.

(a) When the judgment is to be rendered and the party against whom it is to be entered requests it, the judge shall inquire fully into the earnings and financial status of such party and shall have full discretionary power to stay the entry of judgment, to stay execution, and to order partial payments in such amounts, over such periods, and upon such terms as seem just under the circumstances and as will assure a definite and steady reduction of the judgment until it is fully and completely satisfied.

(b) The judge of the magistrate court shall not be obligated to collect such deferred partial payments on judgments so rendered but, if the plaintiff so requests, he may do so at the expense of the plaintiff for clerical and accounting costs incurred thereby, not to exceed 10 percent of each payment.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-46, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1.

Cross references. — Deferred partial payments, Uniform Rules for the Magistrate Courts, Rule 44.

15-10-47. Effect, recordation, execution, and enforcement of money judgments; fee for recordation.

(a) Except where otherwise provided by law, the general laws and rules applicable to the effect, recordation, execution, and enforcement of money judgments in civil cases in the superior courts of this state shall be applicable to and govern the magistrate courts.

(b) Upon the issuance of any execution by the magistrate court, the clerk of the magistrate court shall immediately transmit a copy of the execution to the clerk of superior court of the county. The fee of the clerk of superior court for recording the execution on the general execution docket shall be charged and collected by the magistrate court contemporaneously with or prior to the issuance of the execution but not before the entry of judgment in the action; and such fee shall be transmitted by the clerk of magistrate court to the clerk of superior court together with the copy of the execution. The clerk of the superior court shall immediately enter the execution upon the general execution docket in the same manner as executions issued by the superior court, without the necessity of any action by the plaintiff in fi. fa.

Endorsement by justice of the peace of the justice's signature on execution is sufficient. Dickson v. Burwell, 113 Ga. 93, 38 S.E. 319 (1901); Wilcher v. Pool & Gunn, 121 Ga. 305, 48 S.E. 956 (1904) (decided under former law).

IF YOU NEED FURTHER INSTRUCTION OR IF YOU NEED ASSISTANCE IN ANSWERING THE QUESTIONS CONTACT THE COURT AT ONCE.

(e) The court in its discretion may limit the number of times interrogatories may be propounded upon a judgment debtor, may relieve a judgment debtor of the obligation to answer one or more propounded interrogatories, and may for good cause shown enlarge the time for answering any interrogatory. The court may if necessary compel the answering of interrogatories, but the sanction of contempt shall be applied only after notice and an opportunity for hearing and a showing of willful failure to answer or willful failure to answer fully and truthfully.

(f) An evasive or incomplete answer to an interrogatory shall be treated as a failure to answer.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of Code Section 15-10-42, the judgment creditor or a successor in interest when that interest appears of record may, in addition to any other process or remedy provided by law, utilize the discovery provisions set forth in Code Section 9-11-69.

(a) Any magistrate court may provide for the filing of civil, garnishment, distress warrant, dispossessory, foreclosure, abandoned motor vehicle, and all other noncriminal actions, claims, answers, counterclaims, pleadings, postjudgment interrogatories, and other documents by electronic means.

(b) Any pleading or document filed electronically shall be in a format prescribed by the court and shall comply with Code Section 15-10-54.

(c) Any pleading or document filed electronically shall include the electronic signature of the person filing the pleading or document as defined in Code Section 10-12-2.

(d) Any pleading or document filed electronically which is required to be verified, verified under oath, or be accompanied by an affidavit may include such verification, oath, or affidavit by one of the following methods:

Each pleading or document which is required to be served on other parties shall include a certificate of service indicating the method by which service on the other party has been made. (g) Where the authenticity or the integrity of an electronic pleading, document, or signature is challenged, the proponent of the electronic pleading, document, or signature shall have the burden of proving that the electronic pleading, document, or signature is authentic.

15-10-54. Use of personally identifiable data in court documentation; redaction.

(a) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c) of this Code section or unless the court orders otherwise, a filing with the court that contains a social security number, taxpayer identification number, financial account number, or birth date shall include only:

(1) The last four digits of a social security number;

(2) The last four digits of a taxpayer identification number;

(3) The last four digits of a financial account number; and

(4) The year of an individual's birth.

(b) A summons of garnishment that is filed with the court shall only include the last four digits of the defendant's social security number, taxpayer identification number, or financial account number; provided, however, that the plaintiff shall provide the defendant's full social security number, taxpayer identification number, or financial account number, if reasonably available to the plaintiff, on the copies of the summons of garnishment served on the garnishee and defendant.

(c) Subsection (a) of this Code section shall not apply to the following:

(1) The official record of an administrative or agency proceeding;

(2) The official record of a court or tribunal in another case or proceeding; and

(3) A filing made under seal as provided in subsection (d) of this Code section.

(d) The court may order that a filing be made under seal without redaction. The court may later unseal the filing or order the filer to file a redacted version for the public record. A filer may petition the court to file an unredacted filing under seal. The court shall retain all filings made under seal as part of the record.

(e) An inadvertent failure to redact information which is required to be redacted shall be a curable defect and shall not preclude a document from being filed with the court. The court may order an unredacted filing be sealed and may also order that a redacted version of the same filing be filed for the public record.

(f) For good cause, the court may:

(1) Order a filing which contains additional personal or confidential information, other than the information required to be redacted pursuant to this Code section, be sealed and may also order that a redacted version of the same filing be filed for the public record; and

(2) Limit or prohibit a nonparty's remote electronic access to a document filed with the court.

(g) A filing that contains redacted information may be filed together with a reference list that identifies each item of redacted information and specifies an appropriate identifier that uniquely corresponds to each item listed. Such reference list shall be filed under seal and may be amended as of right. Any reference in a civil action to a listed identifier shall be construed to refer to the corresponding item of information.

(h) A filer waives the protections provided by subsection (a) of this Code section to the extent that he or she makes his or her own filing without redaction and not under seal.

ARTICLE 4

VIOLATION OF ORDINANCES OF COUNTIES AND STATE AUTHORITIES

Law reviews. — For article, "Courts: Juvenile Justice Reform," see 30 Ga. St. U. L. Rev. 63 (2013).

15-10-60. Applicability of article; suspended sentences.

(a) This article governs trials of violations of county ordinances and ordinances of state authorities, which violations may be punished by incarceration or monetary penalty. Nothing in this chapter shall grant to any county or state authority more authority to enact or enforce such ordinances than the county or state authority has independently of this chapter. The punishment imposed for any ordinance violation shall not exceed a fine of $1,000.00 or six months' imprisonment or both, provided the judge shall probate not less than 120 days of any sentence imposed, except as otherwise provided by general law, and shall not exceed the maximum punishment specified by the ordinance. In the event a sentence is revoked, a defendant shall not serve more than 60 days in a county jail.

(b) The trial court may suspend the service of the sentence imposed in the case upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe for the payment of the fine, for performance of community service in lieu of a fine or incarceration, for the payment of restitution to a victim, or other condition relating to the underlying offense. Service of the sentence, when so suspended, shall not begin unless and until ordered by the court having jurisdiction thereof, after a hearing as in cases of revocation of probated sentences, because of the failure or refusal of the defendant to comply with the terms and conditions upon which service of a sentence was suspended. Service of all or any part of any sentence suspended upon such conditions may be ordered to commence by the trial court any time before the expiration of one year from the date of the sentence after a hearing and a finding by the court that the defendant has failed or refused to comply with the terms and conditions upon which service of the sentence was suspended.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Sentence not excessive. — Trial court's sentence imposed on the defendant after the jury found the defendant guilty of five ordinance violations, and which consisted of the same fine and same prison sentence for each count, was not excessive as the sentence was within the bounds authorized under the law. Carter v. State, 259 Ga. App. 798, 578 S.E.2d 508 (2003).

15-10-61. No right to trial by jury; right of removal to state or superior court.

There shall be no jury trials in the magistrate court. Any defendant who is charged with one or more ordinance violations may, at any time before trial, demand that the case be removed for a jury trial to the state court of the county or to the superior court of the county if there is no state court. Such a demand shall be written. Upon such a demand the court shall grant the demand. Failure to so demand removal of the case shall constitute a waiver of any right to trial by jury which the defendant may otherwise have.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-61, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1; Ga. L. 1987, p. 448, § 2.

O.C.G.A. § 15-10-61 was not a general law which provided for removal to state court for jury trial, and the local law governing the county recorder's court did not violate the constitutional prohibition against local laws on the same subject as general laws. Smith v. Greene, 274 Ga. 815, 559 S.E.2d 726 (2002).

Transfer to another court. — Because defendant's case for violation of various municipal ordinances for operating a sexually oriented business without a license arose in municipal court, not magistrate court, the defendant was not entitled to have the charges against the defendant bound over to state court and the defendant's constitutional issues were not preserved for appeal. Focus Entm't Int'l, Inc. v. Bailey, 256 Ga. App. 283, 568 S.E.2d 183 (2002).

15-10-62. Prosecution upon citation or accusation; service; arrest.

(a) Prosecutions for violations of county ordinances shall be upon citation as provided in Code Section 15-10-63 or upon accusation by the county attorney or such other attorney as the county governing authority may designate. Prosecutions for violations of ordinances of state authorities shall be upon citation as provided in Code Section 15-10-63 or upon accusation by such attorney as the state authority may designate. Such attorney shall be the prosecuting attorney in cases tried upon accusation.

(b) Except as provided in subsection (c) of this Code section, citations for or accusations of violations of ordinances shall be personally served upon the person accused. Each accusation or citation shall state the time and place at which the accused is to appear for trial. The accused shall not be arrested prior to the time of trial, except for the offenses of public drunkenness or disorderly conduct and except that ordinances of state authorities may provide for immediate arrest; provided, however, that the accused may be arrested prior to the time of trial for the violation of a county ordinance relating to loitering; and provided, further, that except as provided in subsection (c) of this Code section, any accused who fails to appear for trial shall thereafter be arrested on the warrant of the magistrate and required to post a bond for his or her future appearance.

(c)(1) When provided by local law, a citation for or accusation of a violation of an ordinance concerning the condition of real property may be served by:

(A) Posting a copy of it on the door of the premises where the alleged violation occurred;

(B) Mailing a copy of it by registered or certified mail or statutory overnight delivery to the owner of such premises at the address of record maintained by the applicable tax commissioner. The certificate of mailing to the accused shall constitute prima-facie evidence of compliance with this subparagraph; and

(C) Filing a copy of it with the clerk of magistrate court.

(2) Service under paragraph (1) of this subsection shall not be authorized until there has been at least one attempt at personal service on the accused at the address of record of the accused as maintained by the applicable tax commissioner or of the accused's registered agent as maintained by the Secretary of State, provided that such attempt at personal service shall only be required if the accused resides or has a registered agent in this state.

(3) When service is perfected as provided in paragraph (1) of this subsection and the accused fails to appear for trial, an in rem judgment and lien against the real property shall be the exclusive penalty.

15-10-63. Use of citations; arrests.

(a) The governing authority of any county or any state authority may provide that ordinance violations may be tried upon citations with or without a prosecuting attorney as well as upon accusations.

(b) Each citation shall state the time and place at which the accused is to appear for trial, shall identify the offense with which the accused is charged, shall have an identifying number by which it shall be filed with the court, shall indicate the identity of the accused and the date of service, and shall be signed by the county or authority agent who completes and serves it.

(c) Prosecutions for violations of ordinances upon citations shall be commenced by the completion, signing, and service of a citation by any agent of the county who is authorized by the county governing authority to issue citations or by an agent of the state authority who is authorized by the authority to issue citations. Except as provided in subsection (c) of Code Section 15-10-62, a copy of the citation shall be personally served upon the accused; and the original shall promptly be filed with the court.

(d) No person shall be arrested prior to the time of trial, except for the offenses of public drunkenness or disorderly conduct or as authorized by ordinance of a state authority; provided, however, that the accused may be arrested prior to the time of trial for the violation of a county ordinance relating to loitering; and provided, further, that any defendant who fails to appear for trial shall be arrested thereafter on the warrant of the magistrate and required to post a bond for his or her future appearance.

15-10-63.1. Cash bonds.

(a) The chief magistrate of each county may by written order establish a schedule of cash bonds for the personal appearance in court of any person charged with a violation of an ordinance. The chief magistrate shall designate the officer or officers authorized to accept cash bonds pursuant to the schedule of bonds published by the court. In no event shall any officer or agent who is authorized to issue citations be authorized to accept a cash bond at the time of or in conjunction with the issuance of any citation. The officer accepting a cash bond shall issue a receipt for the bond to the person charged with the violation.

(b) Any person who is accused by citation but has not been arrested may, but shall not be required to, give a cash bond for his personal appearance in court for trial. If a person who has given a cash bond fails to appear for trial, the failure to appear shall be deemed to constitute a guilty plea and such cash bond shall be forfeited upon the call of the case for trial. It shall not be necessary for the county to take any further action to forfeit the cash bond. Forfeiture of a cash bond shall be deemed to constitute imposition and payment of a fine and shall be a bar to a subsequent prosecution of the accused for the violation. The court may, however, in any case enter an order pursuant to which bond forfeiture shall not be deemed to constitute imposition of a sentence and subsequent prosecution shall not be barred; and in any such case the amount of the bond forfeited shall be credited against any fine subsequently imposed.

(c) It shall be the duty of the clerk of magistrate court to furnish the officer or officers authorized under the order with a book of blank receipts consecutively numbered in triplicate and readily distinguishable and identifiable. The receipts shall be completed by the officers when accepting a cash bond so as to show the name of the person cited or arrested, the date of citation or arrest, nature of the offense, amount of cash bond given, and the name of the receiving officer. The receiving officer shall deliver a copy of the receipt to the person cited or arrested at the time the cash bond is given and shall file the original together with the cash bond with the clerk of the magistrate court not later than the next succeeding business day following the date of issuance of the receipt.

(a) Upon filing any civil action the plaintiff shall pay a filing deposit as established by local court rule not to exceed $22.00 which shall cover all costs of the action except service of process.

(b) Upon filing any civil action the plaintiff shall pay the actual cost of serving each party required to be served but not more than the amount of the fee charged by sheriffs for serving process for each party to be served.

(c) For issuing a writ of fieri facias the fee charged shall be $4.00 which shall be paid by the person requesting the same. Such fee shall be charged and collected contemporaneously with or prior to the issuance of the writ of fieri facias but not before the entry of judgment in the action.

(d) As between the parties, costs shall be taxed against the losing party.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions decided under former Civil Code 1895, § 5403, former Civil Code 1910, §§ 6002 and 6003, former Code 1933, § 24-1601 and former Code Section 15-10-14, relating to fees for services performed by justices of the peace, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Magistrate's personal practice of billing only for warrants issued did not violate due process principles. Gordon v. State, 150 Ga. App. 862, 258 S.E.2d 664 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-1601).

Provision in this section for each affidavit when no cause pending excludes charge when made in cause which is pending, and which is not considered until entry of final order. McAlpin v. Chatham County, 26 Ga. App. 695, 107 S.E. 74 (1921) (decided under former Civil Code 1910, §§ 6002, 6003).

Additional fee allowed for entering judgment. — In addition to the fee allowed a justice for trying a case without a jury or presiding at the trial of an appeal, the justice is allowed by law a fee for "entering judgment in each case." Brown v. Bonds, 125 Ga. 833, 54 S.E. 933 (1906) (decided under former Civil Code 1895, § 5403).

Fee for answering writ of certiorari. — Justice is allowed a fee for answering writ of certiorari. McMichael v. Southern Ry., 117 Ga. 518, 43 S.E. 850 (1903) (decided under former Civil Code 1895, § 5403).

No fee for examination of witness without trial or demand for trial. — If the defendant is arrested and carried to jail where the sheriff fixes the defendant's bond, but the defendant is not carried before the justice of the peace, and there is no committal trial, no demand for a committal trial, nor any waiver of a committal trial, the justice of the peace is not entitled to a fee for examination of a witness in a criminal case as there was no trial and no witness examined upon a trial, nor is the defendant entitled to a fee for waiving a committal trial as there was no such waiver before the official, but is entitled only to a fee for issuing the warrant. OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions rendered under former Code 1933, § 24-1601 and former Code Section 15-10-14 or predecessors thereof, relating to fees for services performed by justices of the peace, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See also current Code Section 15-10-23, providing that magistrates shall not be compensated from fees.

Writs of fieri facias may be issued to constables. — Writs of fieri facias issued by the magistrate court may be directed to the constables of that court and, in executing these writs, constables may conduct judicial sales of personal property. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-36.

Former justice of the peace may be entitled to certain fees if the fees were charged and due at a time that an official was compensated by fees rather than salary, provided there was legal entitlement to these fees and the delay in collection was not attributable to the former justice of the peace. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-5 (decided under O.C.G.A. § 15-10-23).

Justice of the peace may not lawfully charge fee for collecting bill. 1960-61 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 83 (decided under former law).

Costs to be collected from county if collection from defendant unsuccessful. — One should first look to the payment of all costs by the defendants in cases wherein a conviction is had; if collection from the defendant proves unsuccessful then reliance upon former Code 1933, § 27-2929 for collection of those costs from the county would be appropriate. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-266 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-1601).

15-10-81. Costs upon conviction of violation of ordinance.

15-10-82. Hearing fee on application for search or arrest warrant or deposit account fraud citation; no fee assessed against certain alleged victims.

For hearing an application for an arrest or search warrant or deposit account fraud citation, the fee charged shall not exceed $20.00, but this fee may be waived by the issuing magistrate if he or she finds that because of the financial circumstances of the party applying for the warrant or citation or for other reasons this fee should not be charged in justice, provided that no fee shall be assessed against the alleged victim of a violation of Code Section 16-5-90, 16-5-91, 16-6-1, 16-6-2, 16-6-3, 16-6-4, 16-6-5.1, 16-6-22.1, or 16-6-22.2 or against the alleged victim of any domestic violence offense for costs associated with the filing of criminal charges against the stalking offender, sexual offender, or domestic violence offender or for the issuance or service of a warrant, protective order, or witness subpoena arising from the incident of stalking, sexual assault, or domestic violence.

Unconstitutionality of issuance of search warrant by interested judge. — Issuance of a search warrant by a justice of the peace who has a pecuniary interest in issuing the warrant effects a violation of the protections afforded by the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution. Connally v. Georgia, 429 U.S. 245, 97 S. Ct. 546, 50 L. Ed. 2d 444 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-1601).

See also current Code Section 15-10-23, providing that magistrates shall not be compensated from fees.

Justices of the peace without pecuniary interest in issuing search warrant. — Former Code 1933, §§ 27-2928 and 2932, by making the obligation of counties to pay justices of the peace for search and arrest warrants contingent upon application therefor, and not upon issuance thereof, has eliminated the potential for the financial welfare of a justice of the peace to be enhanced by issuing a warrant. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-51 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-1601).

State officers exempt. — State and the state's officers are not liable for the warrant hearing fees established by O.C.G.A. § 15-10-82. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-70.

Fee waiver. — If the issuing magistrate determines that for financial or other reasons that justice requires, the fee for an arrest or search warrant may be waived. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-59.

If the applicant is a county or municipal police officer, the magistrate has the discretion to waive the warrant hearing fee. 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-70.

Advance payment of warrant application fee is allowed, but not required, by O.C.G.A. § 15-10-82. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U88-24.

Justice not entitled to further fees if person did not return. — Justice of the peace is entitled to a fee for each criminal warrant issued; if the person against whom the warrant was issued is not returned before such justice for committal hearing, such justice of the peace is not entitled to any more fees. 1952-53 Op. Entitled to fee on return of nulla bona. — Constable is entitled to fee for a return of nulla bona, on an insolvent tax execution, but the constable is not entitled to retain the constable's fees for this service out of moneys collected on other executions. Chapman v. Smith, 20 Ga. 572 (1856) (decided under the Tax Act of 1812).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

"Local law" defined. — Term "local law" as the term is used in O.C.G.A. § 15-10-86 means a local act of the General Assembly, and thus that statute does not authorize collection of law library fees in magistrate's court pursuant to an ordinance or resolution of the county governing authority. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-12.

15-10-87. Transfer of filing fee upon transfer of case to state or superior court; failure to transmit fee.

The state court clerk or superior court clerk shall file the case without further deposit against costs or filing fee, but as between the parties the costs shall be as in other cases in the state court or superior court. This subsection shall only apply to actions filed on or before June 30, 2012.

(b) When any case is transferred from the magistrate court to the state court or superior court, the magistrate court shall transmit to the state court clerk or superior court clerk the filing fee paid to the magistrate court. The state court clerk or superior court clerk shall file the case without further deposit against costs or filing fee; provided, however, that all costs and filing fees shall be paid by the parties within 30 days. Failure to pay such costs and filing fees shall result in a dismissal of the transferred case unless there is good cause shown. The magistrate court clerk shall transmit to the clerk of the state court or superior court a certified copy of the contents of the entire file for the case being transferred. This subsection shall only apply to actions filed on or after July 1, 2012.

(a) Unless otherwise provided by local law, the county governing authority may provide for the appointment of constables by the chief magistrate. Constables so appointed shall serve at the pleasure of the chief magistrate. The compensation of constables so appointed shall be fixed by the county governing authority.

Constitutionality. — As the constitution permits selection and terms of offices of magistrate judges to be varied by local law, the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-20, 15-10-23, 15-10-100, 15-10-105 and Ga. L. 1983, p. 4027, are not unconstitutional. In re Magistrate Court, 262 Ga. 334, 418 S.E.2d 42 (1992).

Inaccurate certificate did not have effect of changing term. — If a constable was elected (this section now provides an appointment procedure) at a regular election and qualified by giving bond and taking oath as provided by law, the constable's term of office was fixed by law at four years, and a recital in the certificate of the ordinary (now probate judge) that it was for two years did not have the effect of changing the constable's term from four years. Motes v. Davis, 188 Ga. 682, 4 S.E.2d 597 (1939) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-801).

Discretion to appoint cannot be questioned by writ. — Discretion of a justice of the peace (now magistrate) in making an appointment cannot be questioned by a writ of quo warranto. Locklear v. Harris, 108 Ga. 809, 34 S.E. 183 (1899) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-806).

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Code 1933, §§ 24-814, 24-815, and 24-817 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

"Law enforcement officer" includes constables. — Since, although constables do not have general police powers, constables do have the power to arrest with a warrant and to execute and return all warrants, summons, executions, and other processes directed to the constables by the magistrate court, and constables are to perform all other duties required of the constables by law or which relate to the constable's offices, under O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-102 and 15-10-103, one can logically conclude that the term "law enforcement officer" as used in O.C.G.A. § 15-10-202(c) includes constables of the magistrate court. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U87-21.

Writs of fieri facias may be directed to constables. — Writs of fieri facias issued by the magistrate court may be directed to the constables of that court and, in executing these writs, constables may conduct judicial sales of personal property. 1984 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U84-36.

Constable's territorial jurisdiction to levy under an execution is limited to the county in which the constable's militia district is located. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-112 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-817).

State court judge not to interfere with constable. — State court judge cannot legally interfere with performance of duty by constable. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U71-44 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-817).

Constable has no general duty to enforce criminal laws. — Constable or a small claims court (now magistrate court) bailiff is not charged with the general duty of enforcing the criminal laws of this state. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-17 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-817).

Constable may use marked automobile that is equipped with colored light mounted on cab and a siren if the constable can do so without holding oneself out to the public as a county police officer. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-214 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-817).

Constable failing to pay over any money coming into the constable's possession may be ruled for contempt either in superior court or in the justice of peace court. 1952-53 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 33 (decided under former Code 1933, §§ 24-814 and 24-815).

15-10-103. Constables' power to arrest.

Constables shall exercise the power of arrest only with a warrant or at the direction of and in the presence of a magistrate or the judge of another court.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-103, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarities of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Code 1933, §§ 24-817, 24-820 and 24-822 are included in the annotations for this Code section.

"Law enforcement officer" includes constables. — Since, although constables do not have general police powers, constables do have the power to arrest with a warrant and to execute and return all warrants, summons, executions, and other processes directed to the constables by the magistrate court, and constables are to perform all other duties required of the constables by law or which relate to the constable's offices, under O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-102 and 15-10-103, one can logically conclude that the term "law enforcement officer" as used in O.C.G.A. § 15-10-202(c) includes constables of the magistrate court. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U87-21.

Extent of arrest powers accorded to constables. — Constable is grouped with other "officers" as to arrest powers under former Code 1933, § 27-207 and is required to execute all warrants directed to the constable by lawful authority under former Code 1933, § 24-817; logically, the constable would be authorized to use such force as is necessary to carry out the constable's duties to the same extent as are other officers when serving arrest warrants or lawfully making an arrest without a warrant, but the constable does not possess general police powers, and may carry a pistol only if licensed to do so. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U78-30 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-817).

Constable is authorized to charge and collect fee for serving criminal warrant by arresting the person named in the warrant as a defendant. 1958-59 Op. Att'y Gen. p. 44 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-820).

No authority to enforce motor vehicle laws without warrant. — In the absence of a warrant, a constable does not have authority to enforce the motor vehicle laws of this state. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U75-56 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-822).

15-10-104. Exemption of constables from peace officer training and employment laws.

Constables shall not be subject to Chapter 8 of Title 35 relating to employment and training of peace officers.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-104, enacted by Ga. L. 1983, p. 884, § 2-1.

15-10-105. Selection of clerk; compensation; eligibility.

(a) The General Assembly may provide by local law for the superior court clerk or state court clerk to serve as clerk of magistrate court or for the selection of some other person as the clerk of magistrate court and for the compensation of the clerk of magistrate court. In the absence of local law, the selection and compensation of the clerk of magistrate court shall be as provided by subsections (b), (c), and (d) of this Code section.

(b) With the consent of the clerk of superior court, the county governing authority may provide that the clerk of superior court shall serve as clerk of magistrate court and shall be compensated for his or her service as clerk of magistrate court in an amount not less than $323.59 per month. With the consent of the clerk of the superior court and clerk of the state court, the county governing authority may provide that the state court clerk shall serve as clerk of magistrate court and shall be compensated for his or her service as clerk of magistrate court in an amount not less than $323.59 per month. Such compensation shall be retained by the clerk of superior court as his or her personal funds without regard to whether he or she is otherwise compensated on a fee basis or salary basis or both.

(c) If the clerk of superior court or the clerk of state court does not serve as clerk of magistrate court, then the county governing authority may provide for the appointment by the chief magistrate of a clerk to serve at the pleasure of the chief magistrate. A clerk of magistrate court so appointed shall be compensated in an amount fixed by the county governing authority at not less than $323.59 per month.

(d) If there is no clerk of magistrate court, the chief magistrate or some other magistrate appointed by the chief magistrate shall perform the duties of clerk. A chief magistrate performing the duties of clerk, or another magistrate appointed by the chief magistrate to perform the duties of clerk, shall receive, in addition to any other compensation to which he or she is entitled, compensation for performing the duties of clerk, the amount of which compensation shall be fixed by the county governing authority at not less than $323.59 per month.

(e) The compensation of the clerk or magistrate performing the duties of clerk shall be paid in equal monthly installments from county funds.

(f) The clerk shall be required to be at least 18 years of age and shall possess a high school diploma or its equivalent. The clerk shall not be subject to a residency requirement.

(g) In any case any magistrate may perform any duty to be performed by the clerk.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — As the constitution permits selection and terms of offices of magistrate judges to be varied by local law, the provisions of O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-20, 15-10-23, 15-10-100, 15-10-105 and Ga. L. 1983, p. 4027, are not unconstitutional. In re Magistrate Court, 262 Ga. 334, 418 S.E.2d 42 (1992).

Chief magistrate was entitled to the salary provided by law for the chief magistrate position, and not to a higher judicial salary based upon an erroneously computed qualifying fee which the chief magistrate had paid prior to running for office. Rowland v. Tattnall County, 260 Ga. 109, 390 S.E.2d 217 (1990).

Authority to appoint clerk. — Magistrate was not entitled to mandamus relief requiring the magistrate's restoration to the position of clerk of the magistrate court since the trial court lacked the authority to supercede the lawful acts of the board of county commissioners. Jennings v. McIntosh County Bd. of Comm'rs, 276 Ga. 842, 583 S.E.2d 839 (2003).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

(3) To advertise under the same rules and restrictions as apply to sheriffs.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-105.1, enacted by Ga. L. 1986, p. 701, § 7.

15-10-201. Jury trials.

There shall be no jury trials in the magistrate court. Any person charged with one or more misdemeanor violations of Code Section 16-9-20 may, at any time before trial, demand that the case be removed to the state court of the county or to the superior court of the county if there is no state court. Such demand shall be written. Upon such written demand the court shall grant the demand. Failure to so demand removal of the case shall constitute a waiver of any right to trial by jury which the defendant may otherwise have had and of any other right which could have been secured by such a demand.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-201, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1032, § 2; Ga. L. 1988, p. 13, § 15.

15-10-202. Procedure.

(a) Prosecution for a misdemeanor violation of Code Section 16-9-20 may proceed by arrest, as provided in Chapter 4 of Title 17, and an accusation, as provided in Code Section 17-7-71, or by citation.

(b) Each citation shall be based upon an affidavit as in the issuance of an arrest warrant and said citation shall state the time and place at which the accused is to appear for trial, shall identify the offense with which the accused is charged, shall have an identifying number by which it shall be filed with the court, shall indicate the identity of the accused and the date of service, and shall be signed by a judge or clerk of the magistrate court.

(c) Prosecutions upon citations shall be commenced by the completion and signing of the citation by a judge or clerk of the magistrate court and service of the citation by a law enforcement officer. A copy of the citation shall be personally served upon the accused and the original shall promptly be filed with the court.

(d) If the prosecution is proceeding upon citation, the accused shall not be arrested prior to the time of trial; but any defendant who fails to appear for trial shall be arrested thereafter on the warrant of a judge of the magistrate court and required to post a bond for his future appearance. If the accused demands removal of the case to the state or superior court, the magistrate court may require that the accused post a bond for his future appearance in the state or superior court.

(e) The prosecuting attorney of the court in which the case would have been tried if a demand for removal had been made shall be responsible for the prosecution of the case in the magistrate court.

History. — Code 1981, § 15-10-202, enacted by Ga. L. 1987, p. 1032, § 2; Ga. L. 2000, p. 880, § 3.

Rev. 313 (2005).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

"Law enforcement officer" includes constables. — Since, although constables do not have general police powers, the constables do have the power to arrest with a warrant and to execute and return all warrants, summons, executions, and other processes directed to the constable by the magistrate court, and constables are to perform all other duties required of the constable by law or which relate to the constable's offices, under O.C.G.A. §§ 15-10-102 and 15-10-103, one can logically conclude that the term "law enforcement officer" as used in subsection (c) of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-202 includes constables of the magistrate court, and, therefore, constables can serve citations pursuant to that subsection. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U87-21.

Commencement of prosecution. — Prosecution for a violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-9-20 is commenced within the meaning of the statute of limitations on misdemeanors, O.C.G.A. § 17-3-1(d), when a citation meets the requirements contained in subsections (b) and (c) of O.C.G.A. § 15-10-202, including the signature of the judge or clerk of the magistrate court and personal service of the citation by a law enforcement officer. 1998 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 98-1.

15-10-203. Optional procedure for forfeiture of bonds on misdemeanor deposit account fraud violations; failure to appear at trial; bench warrants; no contest cash bonds and related schedules.

(a) The chief magistrate of each county may by written order establish a schedule of no contest cash bonds which the accused may post when arrested or accused by warrant or citation pursuant to subsection (d) of Code Section 15-10-202. The schedule of no contest cash bond amounts shall be sufficient to cover court costs, minimum fines as set forth in Code Section 16-9-20, and restitution in the full amount of the dishonored check. At the time of posting a no contest cash bond, the receipt shall contain the following language: "IF YOU GIVE A NO CONTEST CASH BOND AND FAIL TO APPEAR FOR TRIAL, THIS BOND MAY BE FORFEITED AND, IF SO FORFEITED, SHALL CONSTITUTE A MISDEMEANOR GUILTY PLEA AND A WAIVER OF CERTAIN CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS," which shall be acknowledged by the person arrested.

(b) A person arrested or accused by warrant or citation pursuant to subsection (d) of Code Section 15-10-202 who does not wish to post a no contest cash bond may post a property bond or standard appearance bond to assure his or her future appearance in court.

(c) If a person who gives a no contest cash bond fails subsequently to appear for trial, such failure shall constitute a guilty plea and the no contest cash bond shall be forfeited, unless the court proceeds under the provisions of subsection (d) of this Code section. It shall not be necessary for the state to take any further action to forfeit the no contest cash bond. Forfeiture of a no contest cash bond shall be considered to constitute imposition and payment of a fine and restitution and, if so considered, shall be a bar to a subsequent prosecution of the accused for the violation in accordance with Code Section 16-9-20.

(d) If the judge determines at the time of the nonappearance at trial of the defendant in his or her sole discretion that substantial justice will not be accomplished by the forfeiture of the no contest cash bond amount and the disposition of the charges with prejudice, the posting of the no contest cash bond shall not be considered a plea of guilty nor constitute a bar to a subsequent prosecution of the defendant for the violation, and any moneys posted under the no contest cash bond shall be held in the court's registry pending subsequent prosecution, and the defendant shall be served with a citation for a reasonable future appearance date, and, in default of the defendant's appearance, the court shall issue a bench warrant for the defendant's arrest.

(e) Upon a conviction under a subsequent prosecution, the proceeds of any no contest cash bond shall be applied and distributed toward restitution, fine, and court costs imposed by the court.

(f) If a defendant posts a property bond or standard appearance bond and thereafter fails to appear at the designated time, a bench warrant shall be issued for such person and the bond shall be forfeited as provided by Code Section 17-6-17.

(d) If the judge determines at the time of the nonappearance at trial of the defendant in his or her sole discretion that substantial justice will not be accomplished by the forfeiture of the no contest cash bond amount and the disposition of the charges with prejudice, the posting of the no contest cash bond shall not be considered a plea of guilty nor constitute a bar to a subsequent prosecution of the defendant for the violation, and any moneys posted under the no contest cash bond shall be held in the court's registry pending subsequent prosecution, and the defendant shall be served with a citation for a reasonable future appearance date, and, in default of the defendant's appearance, the court shall issue a bench warrant for the defendant's arrest.

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former T. 15, C. 11, A. 1, which was subsequently repealed but was succeeded by provisions in this article, are included in the annotations for this article.

Jurisdiction over handicapped or abused children. — Juvenile courts may choose to retain jurisdiction over a handicapped or abused child, and make disposition to a person or agency other than the Department of Human Resources, as contemplated by former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-34, 15-11-35, 15-11-36 and 15-11-40 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-16, 15-11-18, and 15-11-32). In this way, the court could continue to supervise the child's treatment, and the costs could be borne by the county treasury, the parents, guardians, or other persons legally obligated to care for the child. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-6 (decided under former T. 15, C. 11).

Juvenile courts are without authority to compel state agencies or local school systems to provide or fund specialized services for handicapped or abused children, although a child involved is a handicapped child within the meaning of 20 U.S.C. § 1401 et seq., the Education for All Handicapped Act. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-6 (decided under former T. 15, C. 11).

15-11-1. Purpose of chapter.

The purpose of this chapter is to secure for each child who comes within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court such care and guidance, preferably in his or her own home, as will secure his or her moral, emotional, mental, and physical welfare as well as the safety of both the child and community. It is the intent of the General Assembly to promote a juvenile justice system that will protect the community, impose accountability for violations of law, provide treatment and rehabilitation, and equip juvenile offenders with the ability to live responsibly and productively. It is the intent of the General Assembly to preserve and strengthen family relationships, countenancing the removal of a child from his or her home only when state intervention is essential to protect such child and enable him or her to live in security and stability. In every proceeding, this chapter seeks to guarantee due process of law, as required by the Constitutions of the United States and the State of Georgia, through which every child and his or her parent and all other interested parties are assured fair hearings at which legal rights are recognized and enforced. Above all, this chapter shall be liberally construed to reflect that the paramount child welfare policy of this state is to determine and ensure the best interests of its children.

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 24A-101 and former Code Section 15-11-1, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Legislative intent for exclusive custody and control of committed juvenile. — Ga. L. 1963, p. 81 and Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, when construed in pari materia, evidence a legislative intent that, once the juvenile court judge in the judge's discretion commits a juvenile to the Division for Children and Youth (now Department of Human Resources), custody and control of the juvenile is thereby and thereafter exclusively in the department. In re R.D., 141 Ga. App. 843, 234 S.E.2d 680 (1977); In re R.L.M., 171 Ga. App. 940, 321 S.E.2d 435 (1984) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Purpose of Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, as stated in Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1 was to "assist, protect, and restore" a child, and therein was specific statutory intent that Ga. L. 1971, p. 709 shall be liberally construed to that end. P.R. v. State, 133 Ga. App. 346, 210 S.E.2d 839 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-101).

Construction with former juvenile code provisions. — Stated purpose of the juvenile code to protect and restore children whose well-being was threatened supported a finding that the term "subsistence", as used in former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-8 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-36), included expenses that might be incurred due to the need for emergency medical treatment of a child in the physical custody of the Department of Juvenile Justice. In the Interest of J.S., 282 Ga. 623, 652 S.E.2d 547 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Juvenile court's primary responsibility is to consider the welfare of the child. Gardner v. Lenon, 154 Ga. App. 748, 270 S.E.2d 36 (1980) (decided under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 31); In re B.H., 190 Ga. App. 131, 378 S.E.2d 175 (1989) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Authority to require letters of apology. — Juvenile court had the authority to order a juvenile defendant to write a 300-word letter of apology to a bailiff and a 500-word essay on appropriate behavior in court. In the Interest of P.W., 289 Ga. App. 323, 657 S.E.2d 270 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Orders terminating parental rights not beyond reach of court. — Legislature has declared that Ga. L. 1971, p. 709 should be construed toward the end of providing for a child's welfare, "preferably in his own home." To this end, the appellate courts will not declare orders terminating parental rights, removing the child permanently from the child's own home, to be beyond the reach of the court issuing the order. To the contrary, the juvenile court judge who has second thoughts about such an action should take whatever steps necessary to ensure the correctness of the judge's action. In re P.S.C., 143 Ga. App. 887, 240 S.E.2d 165 (1977) (decided under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1).

Preference for preservation of family counsels against deprivation evidence. — Former statute counseled against any unreasoned expansion of the type of evidence which will suffice to show deprivation, and probable continued deprivation, causing or likely to cause serious harm to a child, because of the Code's expressed preference for preservation of the family unit. Leyva v. Brooks, 145 Ga. App. 619, 244 S.E.2d 119 (1978) (decided under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1).

Commitment of delinquent for purpose of rehabilitation or treatment. — Commitment of a delinquent child to a facility operated under the direction of the juvenile court, or to another local public authority, or to the Division of Children and Youth (now Department of Human Resources), or to the Department of Corrections is for essentially the purpose of rehabilitation or treatment. A.B.W. v. State, 231 Ga. 699, 203 S.E.2d 512 (1974) (decided under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1).

Confinement of juvenile implies need of supervision, correction, and training. — Confinement as provided for by the juvenile code necessarily deprives the parents of their prima facie prerogative of training and supervision, and implies that the juvenile is, within the terms of the juvenile law, one who is in need of supervision beyond the control of the juvenile's parents and in need of correction and training which the parents cannot provide. Young v. State, 120 Ga. App. 605, 171 S.E.2d 756 (1969) (decided under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1).

Deprivation was supported by sufficient evidence. — Deprivation finding was supported by sufficient evidence which showed that the child victim suffered multiple fractures all over the body which indicated that the fractures occurred at different times, and the child had no disease predisposing the child to the fractures, and a doctor testified that the injuries were consistent with abusive non-accidental trauma. In the Interest of T.J., 273 Ga. App. 547, 615 S.E.2d 613 (2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Because the Department of Family and Children Services presented clear and convincing evidence of a parent's inability to control a son to the extent necessary for that child's mental, physical, and emotional health, and the parent was afforded sufficient due process, the juvenile court's deprivation finding was upheld on appeal; moreover, absent evidence of a custody dispute, the proceeding was not a pretextual custody battle which divested the juvenile court of jurisdiction. In the Interest of D.T., 284 Ga. App. 336, 643 S.E.2d 842 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Under the circumstances in the mother's case, the juvenile court correctly found that the evidence of the children's deprivation was clear and convincing under former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-1 and 15-11-2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-1 and 15-11-2) in that the evidence demonstrated that the minor children were not receiving adequate support for the children's mental health issues. The uncontrolled behavior of the children related to those issues was negatively affecting the children's academic and social well-being and there was also clear and convincing evidence that the mother was not utilizing available resources to address the children's problems, and that the mother had attempted to have one of the children hospitalized because she could not control the child; moreover, one of the children also exhibited severe mental health issues, including cutting herself and attacking other children, that were not adequately addressed. In the Interest of D. Q., 307 Ga. App. 121, 704 S.E.2d 444 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Custody questions may be resolved by juvenile court. — Generally, the purpose of former O.C.G.A. T. 15, C. 11 was not to settle questions of custody by and between the parents of a minor child or children. However, it was proper for the juvenile court to decide custody issues when properly transferred to that court by the superior court. Neal v. Washington, 158 Ga. App. 39, 279 S.E.2d 294 (1981) (decided under former Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1).

No equal protection violation. — Treating deprived children who were placed in the legal custody of the Department of Families and Children Services because there was no relative committed to the child who was available for immediate placement differently from deprived children who did have a committed parent or guardian available for immediate placement did not violate the equal protection clause or Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. II as the classes were not similarly situated and the laws were rationally related to the goal of minimizing government intervention while ensuring that children were reared in a familial environment. In the Interest of A.N., 281 Ga. 58, 636 S.E.2d 496 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Entry of Alford plea by juvenile. — Juvenile court erred by denying a juvenile's request to enter an Alford plea since the Georgia General Assembly did not expressly prohibit the entry of Alford pleas in juvenile court, and the juvenile court was required to construe O.C.G.A. § 15-11-580 liberally to ensure the juvenile's best interests. In the Interest of B. C., 333 Ga. App. 763, 777 S.E.2d 52 (2015).

Commitment to Department of Juvenile Justice proper. — Contrary to the defendant's contention, the commitment to the Department of Juvenile Justice harmonized with the goals set forth in former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1 and did not constitute cruel and unusual punishment. In the Interest of B. Q. L. E., 297 Ga. App. 273, 676 S.E.2d 742, cert. denied, No. S09C1197, 2009 Ga. LEXIS 787 (Ga. 2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Juvenile court had no authority to impose attorney fees. — Juvenile court properly concluded that the court had no authority to impose attorney fees under the Civil Practice Act, O.C.G.A. § 9-15-14, because the juvenile court had not adopted O.C.G.A. § 9-15-14, and there was no implicit attorney fee award for frivolous litigation in the former Juvenile Court Code, former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1 et seq.; the Act does not apply to juvenile courts. In re T.M.M.L., 313 Ga. App. 638, 722 S.E.2d 386 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1).

Cited in In the Interest of C. A. J., 331 Ga. App. 788, 771 S.E.2d 457 (2015); In the Interest of D. H., 332 Ga. App. 274, 772 S.E.2d 70 (2015).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Appoint guardian in deprivation proceedings. — Under the principle that the former Juvenile Court Code was to be liberally construed toward the protection of the child whose well-being is threatened, deprivation proceedings arising from child abuse and neglect by a parent or caretaker present a conflict of interest, wherein the provisions of Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1 concerning the appointment of a guardian ad litem would apply. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 76-131 (decided under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1).

Juvenile Court Code (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-1 et seq.) and the Children and Youth Act (see now O.C.G.A. § 49-5-1 et seq.) should be read in pari materia. 1980 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 80-53 (decided under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1).

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, §§ 24A-401 and 24A-2701, pre-2000 Code Sections 15-11-37, 15-11-41, 15-11-55, and pre-2014 Code Sections 15-11-2, 15-11-58(a), and 15-11-63(a), which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Appointment of an interested party as a child's guardian ad litem conflicted with the legislative aim of safeguarding a child's interest by providing the child with representation separate from any other interest in the litigation. In re J.S.C., 182 Ga. App. 721, 356 S.E.2d 754 (1987) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-55).

Stated purpose of the juvenile code to protect and restore children whose well-being was threatened supported a finding that the term "subsistence ", as used in former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-8 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-36), included expenses that might be incurred due to the need for emergency medical treatment of a child in the physical custody of the Department of Juvenile Justice. In the Interest of J.S., 282 Ga. 623, 652 S.E.2d 547 (2007) (decided under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Jurisdiction. — Superior court properly declined jurisdiction in a custody action brought by grandparents because once a juvenile court took jurisdiction of a deprivation action concerning the child and, later, a termination action of parental rights, the court took jurisdiction of the entire case of the minor child including the issues of disposition and custody. Segars v. State, 309 Ga. App. 732, 710 S.E.2d 916 (2011) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-58).

Serious injury not required for state intervention. — Georgia law does not require a child to suffer serious injury before state intervention. In the Interest of T. S., 348 Ga. App. 263, 820 S.E.2d 773 (2018).

Foster children. — Former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-13 and 15-11-58 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-30, 15-11-134, and 15-11-200 et seq.), 20-2-690.1, and 49-5-12 were not too vague and amorphous to be enforced by the judiciary and impose specific duties on the state defendants; thus, the federal regulatory scheme embodied in the CSFR process did not relieve the state defendants of the defendants obligation to fulfill the defendants statutory duties to the foster children, nor did the former statute provide a legal excuse for the defendants failure to do so. Kenny A. v. Perdue, No. 1:02-cv-1686-MHS, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27025 (N.D. Ga. Dec. 11, 2004) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-58).

No equal protection violation. — Treating deprived children who were placed in the legal custody of the Department of Families and Children Services because there was no relative committed to the child who was available for immediate placement differently from deprived children who did have a committed parent or guardian available for immediate placement did not violate the equal protection clause or Ga. Const. 1983, Art. I, Sec. I, Para. II. as the classes were not similarly situated and the laws were rationally related to the goal of minimizing government intervention while ensuring that children were reared in a familial environment. In the Interest of A.N., 281 Ga. 58, 636 S.E.2d 496 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-58).

Juvenile proceeding to destination certain not unruly. — Juvenile was not unruly, since the court rejected the notion that a juvenile returning home or proceeding to a destination certain would be "wandering" within the meaning of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(12)(E) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2(ii)(A)(v), 15-11-381, and 15-11-471), as the section only applied to juveniles who were wandering or loitering on the streets, highways, or public places between those hours. In re T.H., 258 Ga. App. 416, 574 S.E.2d 461 (2002) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Desert defined. — "Desert," in its most common verb form, is defined as "to withdraw from or leave usually without intent to return;" accordingly, in order for a child to "desert" the child's home within the meaning of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(12)(D) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-381, and 15-11-471), the child must leave the home without an intent to return to the home. Thus, when the defendant, a juvenile, left home for nearly two days but then returned voluntarily, the defendant's delinquency adjudication for being an unruly child had to be reversed. In the Interest of D.B., 284 Ga. App. 445, 644 S.E.2d 305 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Unruliness based on habitual disobedience. — Parent's testimony that on successive occasions the defendant, a juvenile, disobeyed the parent's instructions to return home at a specific time was sufficient to support the adjudication of the defendant as unruly based on habitual disobedience. In the Interest of B.B., 298 Ga. App. 432, 680 S.E.2d 497 (2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Unruliness based on running away. — Defendant, a juvenile, was properly found unruly based on running away when the defendant went to a grandparent's house without the parent's permission and did not return of the defendant's own volition. In the Interest of B.B., 298 Ga. App. 432, 680 S.E.2d 497 (2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Question in proceeding for termination of parental rights is not that parents must be punished by termination of their parental rights because of their misconduct, though parental misconduct is an essential consideration, but whether children were without proper parental care or control, subsistence, or education as required by law, or other care or control necessary for their physical, mental or emotional health, or morals. Vermilyea v. Department of Human Resources, 155 Ga. App. 746, 272 S.E.2d 588 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Order for termination need not be explicit when facts can be derived. — With regard to an order for termination of parental rights, it is not always necessary to state explicitly that lack of parental care is serious or egregious when the found facts are expressive of that state and conclusions are of deprivation and probable continuation of that condition. Vermilyea v. Department of Human Resources, 155 Ga. App. 746, 272 S.E.2d 588 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Evidentiary standards. — Termination of parental rights is a severe measure. If a third party sues the custodial parent to obtain custody of a child and to terminate the parent's custodial rights in the child, the parent is entitled to custody of the child unless the third party shows by "clear and convincing evidence" that the parent is unfit or otherwise not entitled to custody under O.C.G.A. §§ 19-7-1 and 19-7-4. Former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-33(b) required the court after a hearing to find "clear and convincing evidence" of "deprivation" before an order of deprivation may be entered. Heath v. McGuire, 167 Ga. App. 489, 306 S.E.2d 741 (1983) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Evidence of deprivation sufficient. — Evidence that over the course of about two years after the child was born the mother failed multiple drug tests and missed numerous drug screenings was sufficient to support the juvenile court's findings that the child was deprived and the mother's lack of proper parental care caused the deprivation. In the Interest of S. O. C., 332 Ga. App. 738, 774 S.E.2d 785 (2015) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Evidence sufficient to support dependency finding. — Order finding two children dependent as to their mother was affirmed because sufficient evidence supported the juvenile court's finding of abuse or neglect due in part to the mother's knowing violation of the terms of the safety plan on multiple occasions by failing to keep the children away from the mother's boyfriend, who had shot the children with a toy BB gun. In the Interest of T. S., 348 Ga. App. 263, 820 S.E.2d 773 (2018).

Evidence was sufficient to show by clear and convincing evidence that the child was dependent due to the mother's unfitness and abandonment at the time the juvenile court entered the court's order as the evidence showed that the mother was mentally and economically unstable, lacked stable housing, abused illegal drugs, and actually abandoned the child. In the Interest of A. B., 350 Ga. App. 575, 829 S.E.2d 842 (2019).

Insufficient evidence of dependency. — Juvenile court lacked clear and convincing evidence to support the court's finding of dependency in that the juveniles had been abused or neglected because the evidence showed that the parent had passed all but one of the parent's drug screens, the parent was forthcoming and compliant in the parent's outpatient treatment, and there was no evidence that the parent's probation violations resulted in abuse or neglect of the children. In the Interest of G. M., 347 Ga. App. 487, 819 S.E.2d 909 (2018).

Juvenile court's dependency determination was not supported by clear and convincing evidence because no evidence or testimony was proffered regarding other children in foster care, and any concerns about the mother's residence and the evidence of drug use through two positive hair follicle drug screenings was controverted by the mother presenting three negative hair follicle drug screenings covering the same time period. In the Interest of M. S., 352 Ga. App. 249, 834 S.E.2d 343 (2019).

Juvenile court's conclusion that the child was dependent based on neglect was not supported by clear and convincing evidence in the record that the mother neglected the child or that the mother was unfit, rather the evidence showed that the mother had, at least temporarily, located suitable housing and the evidence did not support a finding of unfitness but rather showed that the mother was taking care of the child, the child was current on vaccinations, appropriately clothed, not underweight or malnourished, and appropriately bonded with the mother. In the Interest of V G., 352 Ga. App. 404, 834 S.E.2d 901 (2019).

Juvenile court erred in concluding there was clear and convincing evidence to support a finding that the father failed to protect and properly supervise the children and that the children were dependent as the trial court indicated that there was no evidence the children had been harmed by the father's actions and the father had been working from home and not left the children alone with the mother, who had a substance abuse problem. In the Interest of L. K., 353 Ga. App. 855, 840 S.E.2d 76 (2020).

Evidence sufficient to support dependency finding. — Evidence that the mother routinely yelled at and threatened the children, disciplined the younger children by striking the children with a hand or belt so hard it left a mark, and frequently bit the children's heads or slapped their lips was sufficient to support a finding that the children were dependent. In the Interest of R. D., 346 Ga. App. 257, 816 S.E.2d 132 (2018).

Poverty and instability did not demonstrate profoundly detrimental parental conduct. — Although evidence showed poverty and instability in the mother's living arrangements, the evidence did not demonstrate the profoundly detrimental and egregious parental conduct which led to termination of rights in previous cases. R.C.N. v. State, 141 Ga. App. 490, 233 S.E.2d 866 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Improvements in housing and employment. — In determining whether the parent's current situation is stable, the juvenile court may consider the parent's past conduct and decide what weight, if any, is to be given to recent improvements in the parent's housing and employment circumstance. In the Interest of T. S., 348 Ga. App. 263, 820 S.E.2d 773 (2018).

Lack of housing and support caused by irregular employment. — Lack of stable housing and lack of support due to a parent's unstable or irregular employment are appropriate factors in determining deprivation. In the Interest of T. S., 348 Ga. App. 263, 820 S.E.2d 773 (2018).

Failure to address child's special immigrant juvenile status. — In a deprivation proceeding, a juvenile court erred by failing to address the child's special immigrant juvenile status under 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(27)(J)(ii) and a remand was necessary since the juvenile court had to determine whether the evidence supported the findings so that the federal government could address the issue in separate deportation proceedings. In the Interest of J. J. X. C., 318 Ga. App. 420, 734 S.E.2d 120 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Non-accidental injuries. — Eighteen-month-old child was properly found to be a dependent child because the child was a victim of abuse under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(2)(A) based on multiple bruises, a skull fracture, and other non-accidental injuries the child suffered while in the care of the mother and her boyfriend, who both acknowledged that no other person had been caring for the child. In the Interest of S. C. S., 336 Ga. App. 236, 784 S.E.2d 83 (2016).

Evidence of deprived child. — Juvenile court did not err in concluding that the child was a deprived child and that the father was the reason for that deprivation because the evidence showing the father's lack of involvement in the child's welfare, leaving the child vulnerable to neglect inflicted by the mother, supported a finding that the father's failure to exercise proper care and control caused the child's deprivation; at the time of the February 2014 deprivation hearing, the father had been unemployed for almost a year, had no source of income, relied on the father's mother for financial support and housing, and was not actively seeking employment; and the father refused to submit to the required home evaluation, which included a drug test. In the Interest of M. R., 333 Ga. App. 30, 775 S.E.2d 281 (2015) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(8)(A)).

Hearing in juvenile court seeking termination of probation must be treated as delinquency trial. K.E.S. v. State, 134 Ga. App. 843, 216 S.E.2d 670 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

One becomes of full age on day preceding anniversary of one's birth, on the first moment of that day. Edmonds v. State, 154 Ga. App. 650, 269 S.E.2d 512 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Age of child at time of arrest. — Delinquency petition against a juvenile was properly transferred to the state court on the ground that the juvenile was arrested for possessing marijuana on the day before the juvenile's seventeenth birthday; pursuant to former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-28 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-10), the juvenile was deemed to have been 17 at the earliest moment of the day before the juvenile's birthday, which was the day the juvenile was arrested. In the Interest of A.P.S., 304 Ga. App. 513, 696 S.E.2d 483 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2 was inapplicable to an unborn fetus who was facing almost certain death because of complications in pregnancy. Jefferson v. Griffin Spalding County Hosp. Auth., 247 Ga. 86, 274 S.E.2d 457 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Statement of 17-year old admissible as not child. — Fact that the defendant was 17 did not affect the admissibility of the defendant's statement. The defendant was not a "child" under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2. Robertson v. State, 297 Ga. App. 228, 676 S.E.2d 871 (2009), cert. denied, No. S09C1300, 2009 Ga. LEXIS 406 (Ga. 2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Carrying weapon on school grounds Class B felony. — Juvenile court erred by modifying the juvenile's disposition after determining that the disposition was void on the ground that the juvenile's conduct did not qualify as a Class-B felony because carrying a weapon in a school zone qualified as a Class-B designated felony under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2 and "firearm" included "handguns" under O.C.G.A. § 16-11-131. In the Interest of D. B., 341 Ga. App. 559, 802 S.E.2d 19 (2017).

Third party must show grounds for custody by clear and convincing evidence. — As between a natural parent and a third party (grandparent), the parent can be deprived of custody only if one of the conditions specified in O.C.G.A. § 19-7-1 or O.C.G.A. § 19-7-4, or some other legal grounds is found to exist by clear and convincing evidence. Brant v. Bazemore, 159 Ga. App. 659, 284 S.E.2d 674 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Admissibility of juvenile's confession. — Issue of whether officer to whom juvenile was taken and to whom the juvenile made confession was a "juvenile court intake officer" did not affect admissibility of the statement when Miranda warnings were given and the juvenile's mother was present. Houser v. State, 173 Ga. App. 378, 326 S.E.2d 513 (1985) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Violation of safety plan. — When evidence shows that a parent violates a safety plan by placing a child in an abusive environment, a court may find dependency and order loss of custody. In the Interest of T. S., 348 Ga. App. 263, 820 S.E.2d 773 (2018).

Jurisdiction of Court

Jurisdiction. — Under former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2(2)(B) and 15-11-28(a)(1)(F) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-381, and 15-11-471), a juvenile court lacked jurisdiction over the defendant, who was over 17 when a probation violation occurred; thus, the defendant's commitment under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-471, and 15-11-602) was void. The state had not filed a petition for probation revocation, but only for a violation of probation. In the Interest of T.F., 314 Ga. App. 606, 724 S.E.2d 892 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63).

Juvenile may receive restrictive custody for the designated felony act of aggravated assault alone. C.P. v. State, 167 Ga. App. 374, 306 S.E.2d 688 (1983) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

If the juvenile court made all the factual findings required by former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37 and (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-471, 15-11-602) and specifically found "the child is in need of restrictive custody" in the juvenile court's order of commitment, there was no error in confining the child in a youth development center. In re T.T., 236 Ga. App. 46, 510 S.E.2d 901 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37).

Trial court did not err in placing the defendants, both juveniles, in restrictive custody, as the aggravated assault that the defendants committed was a designated felony under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63(a) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2) that required a finding under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63(b) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-62) as to whether defendants required restrictive custody; the circumstances under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63(c) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-62) supported the imposition of restrictive custody since the crime was severe, the crime was premeditated, and the crime had a devastating impact on the victim's life. In the Interest of T.K.L., 277 Ga. App. 461, 627 S.E.2d 98 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63).

Juvenile's sentence of four years in custody was proper on six counts of aggravated assault and one count of possession of a handgun by an underage person because the juvenile was not subject to one of the most severe punishments allowed by law, but was sentenced under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-602), which had the central purpose of rehabilitation and treatment of the child and not punishment. In the Interest of T. D. J., 325 Ga. App. 786, 755 S.E.2d 29 (2014) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63).

Petition necessary to revoke probation. — Juvenile court cannot sua sponte revoke probation and order a disposition as for a "designated felony act " after conducting a hearing on a petition which alleges only delinquency by reason of the commission of an act not within the ambit of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-602). Before a juvenile court may revoke an order granting probation, a petition must be filed requesting such relief. In re B.C., 169 Ga. App. 200, 311 S.E.2d 857 (1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37).

No age requirement for previous designated felony acts. — Juvenile court did not err in finding that the defendant committed a designated felony act under subparagraph (a)(2)(D) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-602), although the previous adjudicated delinquent acts were not committed when the defendant was 13 or more years of age. The previous act of burglary to which former subparagraph (a)(2)(D) referred carried no age requirement. The only requirement was that the juvenile commit a felonious act after three previous adjudications for acts which would have been felonies if committed by an adult. In re K.A.B., 188 Ga. App. 515, 373 S.E.2d 395 (1988) (decided under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37).

Child molestation. — Because child molestation was not an offense listed in former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(A) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-401 and 15-11-490), the trial court erred in using former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63(a)(2)(D) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-602) to classify the offense as a designated felony act when the court sentenced a juvenile. In the Interest of M. S., 277 Ga. App. 706, 627 S.E.2d 422 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63).

Sentence vacated. — Although the state argued that a juvenile had been adjudicated on five separate petitions setting out five separate felonies, because the record revealed that adjudication had occurred on only two prior occasions for acts which, if done by an adult, would have been felonies, the juvenile's sentence under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63(a)(2)(B)(vii) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2) was vacated, and the case was remanded for resentencing. In the Interest of P.R., 282 Ga. App. 480, 638 S.E.2d 898 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63).

No exclusive original jurisdiction over certain youthful offenders. — Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1 does not vest exclusive original jurisdiction in the juvenile court over the following class of youthful offenders: persons between the ages of 17 and 21 years, who have committed noncapital felonies, and who are under the supervision of or are on probation to a juvenile court for acts of delinquency committed before reaching the age of 17 years. State v. Crankshaw, 243 Ga. 183, 253 S.E.2d 69 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Former Code 1933, § 24A-401 was intended merely as a device for extending jurisdiction of juvenile courts to take actions against persons between the age of 17 and 21 years authorized under Ga. L. 1971, p. 709, § 1. State v. Crankshaw, 243 Ga. 183, 253 S.E.2d 69 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Noncapital felonies committed by persons over 17 years. — Former statute should not be construed as giving the juvenile courts jurisdiction over noncapital felonies committed by persons after those people have reached the age of 17 years. State v. Crankshaw, 243 Ga. 183, 253 S.E.2d 69 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Age at time of offense controls. — Although a juvenile no longer qualified as a child under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(2)(A) and (B) after the juvenile's seventeenth birthday, it was the juvenile's age at the time of the offense which controls; therefore, because the juvenile was under the age of 17 at the time the act of delinquency occurred, the juvenile court properly exercised exclusive original jurisdiction over the juvenile's case. In the Interest of J.T.D., 242 Ga. App. 243, 529 S.E.2d 377 (2000) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Violation of probation. — Under former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2(2)(B) and 15-11-28(a)(1)(F (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-10), a juvenile court lacked jurisdiction over the defendant, who was over 17 when a probation violation occurred; thus, the defendant's commitment under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63 (In the Interest of T.F., 314 Ga. App. 606, 724 S.E.2d 892 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Court without original jurisdiction of custody and support contest. — Jurisdiction of a custody and support contest between parents, in the nature of habeas corpus, alleging that the children were deprived as defined by former Code 1933, § 24A-401 was governed by former Code 1933, § 50-103 (see now O.C.G.A. § 9-14-4). The juvenile court did not have original jurisdiction of such a contest. Griggs v. Griggs, 233 Ga. 752, 213 S.E.2d 649 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Juvenile court erred by granting custody of child to grandparents instead of father, after mother died, since the petition was not a deprivation action but a custody dispute as the juvenile court had no jurisdiction. In the Interest of K.R.S., 253 Ga. App. 678, 560 S.E.2d 292 (2002) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Juvenile court jurisdiction over both adoption and parental termination proceedings. — Trial court did not err in concluding that the court had jurisdiction over adoption and termination of parental rights proceeding as statutory law granted the trial court jurisdiction over adoption proceedings and other proceedings that were not granted exclusively to the juvenile courts; since the juvenile courts were granted exclusive jurisdiction over deprivation proceedings, those types of matters were to be heard by the juvenile courts, but the trial court had the authority to hear adoption and other matters, such as the adoptive parents' adoption petition filed to adopt the biological parents' minor child. Snyder v. Carter, 276 Ga. App. 426, 623 S.E.2d 241 (2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Jurisdiction of juvenile court in transferred custody proceeding. — Georgia Supreme Court affirmed the transfer of a father's petition for custody from Gwinnett County, Georgia, to Douglas County, Georgia because the "complaint for custody" that the father filed in Gwinnett County fairly was read as a petition to modify, vacate, or revoke the permanent guardianship, a petition over which the Juvenile Court of Douglas County had exclusive jurisdiction under the circumstances. In the Interest of M. F., 298 Ga. 138, 780 S.E.2d 291 (2015).

Jurisdiction over legitimation petition and for placement. — Contrary to a mother's contention, the custody order showed on the order's face such facts as were necessary to give the juvenile court jurisdiction of the person and subject matter because the order referenced and incorporated the legitimation order entered days earlier, reflected on the order's face that all parties were served with a copy of the pleadings and were present, along with their counsel, and the mother did not contest the juvenile court's personal jurisdiction. In the Interest of B. H.-W., 332 Ga. App. 269, 772 S.E.2d 66 (2015).

Transfer from Superior Court needed for permanent custody order. — In a private deprivation action brought by the maternal grandmother of a 9-year-old child, the juvenile court lacked authority to grant the grandmother permanent custody over the child for purposes of adoption because the case was not commenced in the Georgia Superior Court, which had jurisdiction over issues of permanent child custody; therefore, without a transfer order from the Superior Court under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28, the custody award could not stand. In the Interest of C. A. J., 331 Ga. App. 788, 771 S.E.2d 457 (2015).

Delinquency

"Delinquent act" is one designated crime by state or federal law. Hartley v. Clack, 239 Ga. 113, 236 S.E.2d 63 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Probation violation included in justification of delinquency petition. — Juvenile court erred when the court dismissed the state's petition alleging that a child had committed the delinquent act of violating probation as O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(19)(B) plainly included a probation violation in the category of actions that may give rise to a new delinquency petition and O.C.G.A. § 15-11-608(b) plainly permitted the filing of a motion for revocation of probation, and no court is authorized to ignore either a petition brought under the first or a motion brought under the second. In the Interest of H. J. C., 331 Ga. App. 506, 771 S.E.2d 184 (2015).

Crime may be delinquent act when committed by juvenile. — Juvenile court might well find that any act which is designated a crime under Georgia law is a delinquent act when committed by a juvenile. In order to do this, it is not necessary that the juvenile be considered or found guilty of a crime. K.M.S. v. State, 129 Ga. App. 683, 200 S.E.2d 916 (1973) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Crime committed even though child not yet 13 years. — Juvenile court may adjudicate a child a delinquent based upon a petition alleging that the child committed an act designated a crime under Georgia law when the child has not yet attained the age of 13 years. K.M.S. v. State, 129 Ga. App. 683, 200 S.E.2d 916 (1973) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Delinquent act ceases to be "crime" only for proceedings in juvenile court and the resultant effects of its adjudication. A petition designating the act by another name does not destroy the act's essence so as to preclude legitimate proceedings elsewhere. J.E. v. State, 127 Ga. App. 589, 194 S.E.2d 288 (1972) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Delinquent acts including another or coincident crimes. — It is necessary to an adjudication of a "delinquent act" that the act be one which is defined as, and would be, a "crime" if the act were committed by an adult, and this includes "delinquent acts" which would include another or coincident "crime" if committed by an adult, such as the crime of "possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony." In re D.T.C., 226 Ga. App. 364, 487 S.E.2d 21 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Possession of alcohol as delinquent act. — Possession of alcohol by a minor may be either a delinquent or an unruly offense, and, since it may be a delinquent act, violating a court-ordered probation imposed for such an offense may likewise be a delinquent act. In re C.P., 217 Ga. App. 505, 458 S.E.2d 166 (1995) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Unnecessary to find adult intent. — In order to find a juvenile defendant guilty of the delinquent act of attempted aggravated child molestation, the court must find that the defendant attempted aggravated child molestation with an intent to satisfy the defendant's own desires. Whether the juvenile defendant had the sexual intent or knowledge of an adult would be irrelevant. In re W.S.S., 266 Ga. 685, 470 S.E.2d 429 (1996) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Driving without a license. — Although the juvenile court could find that the juvenile was delinquent for driving without a license, the state did not prove that the juvenile was wandering or loitering in violation of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(12)(E) since the juvenile was proceeding to a destination certain. In the Interest of T. H., 258 Ga. App. 416, 574 S.E.2d 461 (2002) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Probation violation a delinquent act. — Juvenile defendant's commitment to the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) was proper because the defendant's violation of probation terms was a delinquent act and the defendant was found in need of treatment or rehabilitation under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-66(a)(4) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-601). In the Interest of B. Q. L. E., 297 Ga. App. 273, 676 S.E.2d 742, cert. denied, No. S09C1197, 2009 Ga. LEXIS 787 (Ga. 2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Juvenile court had jurisdiction to hear and decide the state's petition alleging that the defendant, a juvenile, had committed the new delinquent act of violating probation, irrespective of whether the one-year terms of the defendant's probation ended after the commencement of the new delinquency proceedings. In the Interest of J. M. A., 340 Ga. App. 155, 796 S.E.2d 773 (2017).

Petition insufficient to charge juvenile as unruly. — Juvenile court erred in denying the defendant juvenile's special demurrer to a petition accusing the defendant of being unruly pursuant to former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-67 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-442) because the petition did not allege the defendant's misconduct with particularity, and the defendant was unable to determine what acts of disobedience supported the allegation that the defendant was unruly; although the petition alleged the date the defendant was disobedient, the petition provided no factual details, and the petition merely mirrored the language of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(12)(B). In the Interest of C.H., 306 Ga. App. 834, 703 S.E.2d 407 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Evidence insufficient to support adjudication of delinquency. — Adjudication of children as delinquent for being outside their residence past their probationary curfew was error in the absence of competent proof that either child was subject to court-ordered probation and to a defined curfew as a term of that probation. In re B.K., 239 Ga. App. 822, 522 S.E.2d 255 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Defendant's adjudication of juvenile delinquency based on a charge that the defendant was violating the terms of probation by associating with gang members was reversed; the state failed to prove the predicate acts of a count charging the defendant with participation in criminal street gang activity, and the state admitted that the probation violation count did not contain sufficient factual details to inform the defendant of the nature of the offense charged. In the Interest of L.J.L., 284 Ga. App. 801, 645 S.E.2d 371 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Evidence sufficient to support adjudication of delinquency. — When juvenile defendants confessed to entering a vacant home and causing damage therein, and a police officer testified to the condition of the home and the damage the officer found upon investigation, together with witnesses' statements from people who were with the defendants prior to and after the acts, wherein the witnesses' testified that the defendants indicated their intent to damage the house, there was sufficient evidence to support an adjudication of delinquency pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2. In the Interest of Q.D., 263 Ga. App. 293, 587 S.E.2d 336 (2003) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Officer's testimony that the officer encountered a group of juveniles, including the appellant, at 1:30 A.M., the juveniles could not explain their presence in the area, the juveniles did not have identification, and the juveniles gave conflicting stories about the owner of a vehicle the juveniles were standing around was sufficient to prove the offenses of curfew violation, loitering, and prowling beyond a reasonable doubt. It was immaterial that the appellant did not attempt to flee from the officer, refuse to identify himself, or attempt to conceal himself. In the Interest of R.F., 279 Ga. App. 708, 632 S.E.2d 452 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Trial court did not err in adjudicating the defendant juvenile delinquent for a violation of the Anti-Mask Act, O.C.G.A. § 16-11-38, and a violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-11-36 for loitering or prowling because there was sufficient evidence to permit a rational trier of fact to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant intended to conceal the defendant's identity and to threaten, intimidate, or provoke the apprehension of violence; the circumstances and the defendant's actions, together with a friend's actions, supported the conclusion that a justifiable and reasonable alarm or immediate concern for the safety of the occupants of a house was warranted. In the Interest of I.M.W., 313 Ga. App. 624, 722 S.E.2d 586 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Evidence that the defendant received $775 a month in Supplemental Security Income benefits, was physically able to work from the adjudication of delinquency until a foot injury but failed to try to obtain work, failed to pay the $75 supervision fee, and failed to complete community service hours despite the flexibility afforded by the probation officer was sufficient to support the adjudication as delinquent for violating probation. In the Interest of J. M. A., 340 Ga. App. 155, 796 S.E.2d 773 (2017).

Delinquency adjudication for burglary. — Evidence was sufficient for any rational trier of fact to find the juvenile delinquent due to the juvenile's involvement in the burglary of a pharmacy because an accomplice's testimony that the juvenile participated in the burglary was corroborated; the extraneous evidence, even if slight and entirely circumstantial, connected the juvenile to the burglary. In the Interest of R.W., 315 Ga. App. 227, 726 S.E.2d 708 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Delinquency adjudication for criminal damage to property. — Juvenile court did not err in finding the defendant juvenile delinquent for committing the offense of criminal damage to property in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-7-23(a)(1) because the evidence presented including the extent of the damage and the defendant's admission that the defendant and others kicked and pushed on the door to a rental home was sufficient. In the Interest of C.H., 306 Ga. App. 834, 703 S.E.2d 407 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Delinquency adjudication for gang activity. — There was sufficient evidence to support the defendant juvenile's adjudication of delinquency for participation in criminal street gang activity in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-15-4 because the evidence established that the defendant was a gang member and that there was a nexus between the shooting and an intent to further gang activity; the defendant admitted that the defendant was a member of the gang, and a police detective, who was qualified as an expert in gang investigations, testified that the defendant was a known member of the gang, that the defendant had previously admitted to the detective that the defendant was a member of that gang, that a black bandana was attire associated with the gang, and that wearing such a bandana during a shooting was particularly significant because the bandana proclaimed to the world that the defendant was a member and that the shooting was a gang act. In the Interest of D. M., 307 Ga. App. 751, 706 S.E.2d 683 (2011) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Mental Instability

Evidence of deprived child. — Evidence established that a child was deprived due to parental unfitness under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(8)(A) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-107) because the mother was unable to care for the child from birth due to mental instability, the father was intentionally absent for the first two months of the child's life, and although the parents had married, neither had a job or stable housing, and the mother's mental instability had not been addressed. In re V.D., 303 Ga. App. 155, 692 S.E.2d 780 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

Parent unable to independently parent child due to cognitive deficits. — Judgment of the trial court terminating a mother's parental rights was affirmed because although the mother met most case plan goals, the evidence of parental inability was sufficient to support the termination based on the mother's significant cognitive deficits which left the mother unable to independently parent the child, who, because of developmental issues, presented extraordinary parenting challenges. In the Interest of T. A., 331 Ga. App. 92, 769 S.E.2d 797 (2015).

Sexual Abuse

Evidence of deprived child. — Evidence supported the juvenile court's finding that a father's son and daughter were deprived because, although there was testimony from witnesses stating that the witnesses never saw any problems with the children, the court of appeals neither weighed the evidence nor determined the credibility of witnesses but instead deferred to the juvenile court's factfinding and affirmed unless the appellate standard was not met; the evidence that the father physically abused the son, sexually abused the daughter, and neglected the children's hygiene was sufficient to meet that standard. In the Interest of R. C. H., 307 Ga. App. 774, 706 S.E.2d 686 (2011) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Code 1933, §§ 24A-401, 24A-2301A, 24A-2302A, and 24A-3301, and pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-37, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section.

Statutory rape and the combined offenses of statutory rape and criminal trespass may not be considered designated felony acts under paragraph (a)(2) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-602). 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-17 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37).

Designated felony act. — Unless a juvenile had been adjudicated a delinquent in prior court appearances for acts of burglary, a multiple count petition was not sufficient to fall within former subparagraph (a)(2)(D) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37 (see O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63). 1983 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U83-10 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-37).

Custody of Department of Human Resources may not terminate at age 18. — Under the provisions of the juvenile code, the Department of Human Resources' custody of a child is not necessarily terminated when the child reaches the child's eighteenth birthday; former Code 1933, § 74-104 (see O.C.G.A. § 39-1-1), relating to age of majority, had no effect on the termination of the department's custody. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-139 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

Department of Human Resources' rule for committed child. — Even if the child is committed to the Department of Human Resources before the child's seventeenth birthday, the department cannot confine the child beyond that date and the department's legal responsibility for the child terminates on that day; prior to a committed child's seventeenth birthday the department should notify the sentencing court that a further disposition or a release must be made. 1974 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 74-139 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-401).

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Weekend days excluded. — Trial court properly denied the defendant juvenile's motion to dismiss because the delinquency petition, which was filed on the Tuesday after the Thursday on which the defendant was detained, was timely filed since the 72-hour period was clearly less than seven days and the weekend days were excluded from computation. In the Interest of C. M. B., 335 Ga. App. 456, 781 S.E.2d 570 (2016).

15-11-7. Court of inquiry.

(a) The juvenile court shall have jurisdiction to act as a court of inquiry with all the powers and rights allowed courts of inquiry in this state and to examine or investigate into the circumstances or causes of any conduct or acts of any person 17 or more years of age that may be in violation of the laws of this state whenever such person is brought before the court in the course of any proceeding instituted under this chapter. The court shall cause the person to be apprehended and brought before it upon either a writ of summons, a warrant duly issued, or by arrest.

(b) When, after hearing evidence, the court has reasonably ascertained that there is probable cause to believe that the person has committed a misdemeanor or felony as prescribed under the laws of this state, the court shall commit, bind over to the court of proper jurisdiction in this state, or discharge the person. When justice shall require, the court shall cause the person to make such bail as the court shall deem proper under the circumstances and to cause the person to appear before the court of proper jurisdiction in this state to be acted upon as provided by law.

See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Juvenile courts have all powers and rights of courts of inquiry. — Subsection (a) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-4 granted juvenile courts all the powers and rights of courts of inquiry. This included the power to issue search warrants under O.C.G.A. § 17-5-21 since a juvenile court as a court of inquiry was specifically authorized by former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-4 to examine into the arrest of an offender against the penal laws. State v. Belcher, 157 Ga. App. 137, 276 S.E.2d 649 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-65).

Powers of court supplemented by application to persons not juveniles. — Concluding clause of the first sentence of subsection (a) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-4 did not limit the grant of authority to act as a court of inquiry; the clause merely supplemented those powers by specifically applying those powers to a class of persons who were not, by definition, juveniles. State v. Belcher, 157 Ga. App. 137, 276 S.E.2d 649 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-65).

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-4, which was subsequently repealed but was succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Commitment to Department of Juvenile Justice proper. — Contrary to the defendant's contention, the defendant's commitment to the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-66(a)(4) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-601) was authorized as the defendant was on probation for a delinquent act and violated the terms of probation which was also a delinquent act and commitment to DJJ was found to be the treatment or rehabilitation best suited to the child's needs. In the Interest of B. Q. L. E., 297 Ga. App. 273, 676 S.E.2d 742, cert. denied, No. S09C1197, 2009 Ga. LEXIS 787 (Ga. 2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-4).

15-11-10. Exclusive original jurisdiction.

Except as provided in Code Section 15-11-560, the juvenile court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction over juvenile matters and shall be the sole court for initiating action:

(1) Concerning any child who:

(A) Is alleged to be a delinquent child;

(B) Is alleged to be a child in need of services;

(C) Is alleged to be a dependent child;

(D) Is alleged to be in need of treatment or commitment as a mentally ill or developmentally disabled child;

(E) Has been placed under the supervision of the court or on probation to the court; provided, however, that such jurisdiction shall be for the purpose of completing, effectuating, and enforcing such supervision or a probation begun either prior to such child's seventeenth birthday if the order is entered as a disposition for an adjudication for delinquency or prior to such child's eighteenth birthday if the order is entered for an adjudication for a child in need of services;

(F) Is receiving extended care youth services; provided, however, that such jurisdiction shall be for the purpose of reviewing the status of the case, determining that extended care youth services are in the best interests of such child, adopting a transition plan for such child, ensuring the provision of developmentally appropriate services and supports consistent with such plans, and determining whether reasonable efforts are being made to transition such child to independent living or another planned permanent adult living arrangement; or

(G) Requires a comprehensive services plan in accordance with Code Section 15-11-658;

(2) Concerning any individual under the age of 17 years alleged to have committed a juvenile traffic offense as defined in Code Section 15-11-630; or

(3) Involving any proceedings:

(A) For obtaining judicial consent to the marriage, employment, or enlistment in the armed services of any child if such consent is required by law;

(B) For permanent guardianship brought pursuant to the provisions of Article 3 of this chapter;

(C) Under Chapter 4B of Title 49, the Interstate Compact for Juveniles, or any comparable law, enacted or adopted in this state;

(D) For the termination of the legal parent-child relationship and the rights of the biological father who is not the legal father of the child in accordance with Article 4 of this chapter; provided, however, that such jurisdiction shall not affect the superior court's exclusive jurisdiction to terminate the legal parent-child relationship and the rights of a biological father who is not the legal father of the child as set forth in Chapters 6 through 9 of Title 19;

(E) For emancipation brought pursuant to the provisions of Article 10 of this chapter;

(F) Under Article 8 of this chapter, relating to prior notice to a parent, guardian, or legal custodian relative to an unemancipated minor's decision to seek an abortion; or

(G) Brought by a local board of education pursuant to Code Section 20-2-766.1, relating to court orders requiring that a parent, guardian, or legal custodian attend a conference or participate in programs or treatment to improve a student's behavior.

The 2018 amendment, effective July 1, 2020, substituted the present provisions of subparagraph (1)(F) for the former provisions, which read: "Has remained in foster care after such child's eighteenth birthday or who is receiving independent living services from DFCS after such child's eighteenth birthday; provided, however, that such jurisdiction shall be for the purpose of reviewing the status of such child and the services being provided to such child as a result of such child's independent living plan or status as a child in foster care; or".

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, §§ 24-2402, 24-2408 and 24A-301, pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-5 and pre-2014 Code Section 15-11-28(a), which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Additionally, many of the annotations found under this Code section were taken from cases decided prior to the adoption of the 1983 Constitution. See Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I.

Constitutionality of application. — Defendant's contention that the provision for charging juveniles as adults was applied in an unconstitutionally discriminatory manner against the defendant and other black males was not established by any evidence. Skidmore v. State, 226 Ga. App. 130, 485 S.E.2d 540 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Determination that deprivation proceeding not custody dispute. — Juvenile court did not have jurisdiction of a deprivation proceeding brought against a mother brought by the child's temporary guardian in a transparent attempt to use the juvenile court to seek custody of the child. In re B.C.P., 229 Ga. App. 111, 493 S.E.2d 258 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Deprivation proceeding not a custody dispute. — Because the pleadings established that the petition was a properly filed and factually supported deprivation petition, and due to the presence of unchallenged, valid allegations of deprivation, the deprivation proceeding was not a disguised custody matter; accordingly, the juvenile court properly exercised the court's jurisdiction over the proceeding. In the Interest of K.L.H., 281 Ga. App. 394, 636 S.E.2d 117 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Specific custody controversies not within supreme court appellate jurisdiction. — Custody controversies involving delinquent children, unruly children, or deprived children are not cases "in the nature of habeas corpus" and are not within the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court. Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Superior court had exclusive jurisdiction to terminate the parental rights in the adoption case and the juvenile court's jurisdiction in the termination of parental rights case had no impact on the superior court's ability to exercise jurisdiction. Dep't of Human Servs. v. Wyttenbach, 348 Ga. App. 810, 824 S.E.2d 680 (2019).

Jurisdiction of juvenile court in transferred custody proceeding. — Georgia Supreme Court affirmed the transfer of a father's petition for custody from Gwinnett County, Georgia, to Douglas County, Georgia because the "complaint for custody" that the father filed in Gwinnett County fairly was read as a petition to modify, vacate, or revoke the permanent guardianship, a petition over which the Juvenile Court of Douglas County had exclusive jurisdiction under the circumstances. In the Interest of M. F., 298 Ga. 138, 780 S.E.2d 291 (2015).

Juvenile court required to determine what is in child's best interest. — In a dependency case, sua sponte order dismissing the proceeding was vacated because the juvenile court failed to make proper resolution of the dependency petition as the juvenile court was required to determine what was in the child's best interest. In the Interest of A. L. S., 350 Ga. App. 636, 829 S.E.2d 900 (2019).

Proceeding for termination of parental rights is custody controversy involving deprived child. Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Actions in which one parent seeks termination of the parental rights of the other parent by means of a deprivation petition are not all prima facie custody cases and it is not required that all such actions must be filed in superior court. In re M.C.J., 271 Ga. 546, 523 S.E.2d 6 (1999) reversing In re W. W. W., 213 Ga. App. 732, 445 S.E.2d 832 (1994); (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5); In re M.A., 218 Ga. App. 433, 461 S.E.2d 600 (1995) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5); In re M.C.J., 236 Ga. App. 225, 511 S.E.2d 533 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(2)(C), the superior court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to terminate the husband's parental rights because the biological father's petition to legitimate a child who was born in wedlock was a petition to terminate the parental rights of the legal father; after the superior court determined that the biological father had not abandoned his opportunity interest, the issue became whether the superior court could grant the petition to legitimate the child, and to grant the legitimation petition required the superior court to first terminate the parental rights of the husband, who was the legal father. Brine v. Shipp, 291 Ga. 376, 729 S.E.2d 393 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile court does not lose jurisdiction if agency has custody. — That a "deprived child" may be in agency custody at the time of the hearing on termination of parental rights does not oust the juvenile court from jurisdiction to determine the ultimate issue. In re K.C.O., 142 Ga. App. 216, 235 S.E.2d 602 (1977) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Petition to terminate the parental rights to a child previously adjudicated "deprived" and in agency custody is cognizable in the juvenile court. In re K.C.O., 142 Ga. App. 216, 235 S.E.2d 602 (1977) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Custody dispute of orphaned children. — In a custody dispute involving children orphaned by the murder-suicide of their parents, a superior court did not err in denying an aunt's motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction because the superior court correctly held that, in the absence of an earlier-filed action in juvenile court or probate court, it was the first court to take jurisdiction and properly retained jurisdiction. Stone-Crosby v. Mickens-Cook, 318 Ga. App. 313, 733 S.E.2d 842 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Superior court in habeas corpus action for child custody lacks authority to enter order terminating parental rights. Dein v. Mossman, 244 Ga. 866, 262 S.E.2d 83 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

General requirements necessary to terminate parental rights. — Generally, the requirements necessary to terminate the parental rights of the mother are deprivation, probable continued deprivation, and that the child will probably suffer serious emotional harm. Beasley v. Jones, 149 Ga. App. 317, 254 S.E.2d 472 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Definition of "full age." — One becomes of "full age" on the day preceding the anniversary of one's birth, on the first moment of that day. Edmonds v. State, 154 Ga. App. 650, 269 S.E.2d 512 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Child turned 17 on the earliest moment of the day before juvenile's birthday. — Delinquency petition against a juvenile was properly transferred to the state court on the ground that the juvenile was arrested for possessing marijuana on the day before the juvenile's seventeenth birthday; pursuant to former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-28 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-10, 15-11-11, 15-11-212, and 15-11-560), the juvenile was deemed to have been 17 at the earliest moment of the day before the juvenile's birthday, which was the day the juvenile was arrested. In the Interest of A.P.S., 304 Ga. App. 513, 696 S.E.2d 483 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile subject to criminal adjudication when case transferred to superior court. — Juvenile whose case is properly transferred to the superior court is subject to the criminal sanctions which may be imposed in that court. Thus, an adjudication of guilt of a juvenile in superior court is a criminal adjudication. Carrindine v. Ricketts, 236 Ga. 283, 223 S.E.2d 627 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Confinement implies juvenile in need of supervision, correction, and training. — Confinement necessarily deprives the parents of their prima facie prerogative of training and supervision, and implies that the juvenile is, within the terms of the juvenile law, one who is in need of supervision beyond the control of the parents and in need of correction and training which the parents cannot provide. Young v. State, 120 Ga. App. 605, 171 S.E.2d 756 (1969) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Juvenile court has jurisdiction despite indictment for noncapital felony. — Indictment of a juvenile for a noncapital felony in the superior court does not oust the juvenile court of the court's first obtained jurisdiction under the Georgia Constitution and statute law. J.W.A. v. State, 233 Ga. 683, 212 S.E.2d 849 (1975) commented on in 27 Mercer L. Rev. 335 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Defendant claimed to be under 17 at the time offenses were committed. — Superior court had authority to try the defendant who claimed to be under 17 at the time the offenses were committed since the jury was instructed that the defendant should be found guilty only if the defendant committed the alleged acts after the defendant turned 17. Johnson v. State, 214 Ga. App. 319, 447 S.E.2d 663 (1994) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Juvenile court not divested of jurisdiction unless transfer proceeding held. — Since jurisdiction is first acquired by the juvenile court, a subsequent superior court indictment does not divest the juvenile court of the juvenile court's jurisdiction unless a proper transfer proceeding has been held. Hartley v. Clack, 239 Ga. 113, 236 S.E.2d 63 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Superior court retained jurisdiction when no transfer to juvenile court made. — Superior court erred in concluding that the superior court did not have jurisdiction and therefore erred by dismissing the child custody action because when the superior court did not transfer the custody matter to the juvenile court, the superior court retained jurisdiction and erred by dismissing the aunt and uncle's petition for permanent custody for lack of jurisdiction. Kasper v. Martin, 354 Ga. App. 831, 841 S.E.2d 488 (2020).

Superior court referral of custody case retained juvenile court's jurisdiction. — Jurisdiction of divorce in superior court, and referral by the superior court to the juvenile court for custody determination, gave the juvenile court jurisdiction over the custody issue. Order by the superior court, in response to a party's motion for modification of custody, when the custody issue had not yet been resolved by the juvenile court, was void. Owen v. Owen, 195 Ga. App. 545, 394 S.E.2d 580 (1990) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Referral from superior court to juvenile court for special findings. — Since a custody case was referred to the juvenile court for only an investigation and report with the judgment of the superior court resting on these findings as well as testimony and other evidence before the superior court, the superior court's judgment was not void, but at most was voidable only if an appeal had been perfected. Jackson v. Gamble, 232 Ga. 149, 205 S.E.2d 256 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Exceptions to superior court jurisdiction to try juvenile. — Superior court has jurisdictional power to try a juvenile defendant accused of an offense or offenses for which the maximum criminal penalty is neither life imprisonment nor death. J.J. v. State, 135 Ga. App. 660, 218 S.E.2d 668 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933. § 24A-301).

Jurisdiction in superior court. — Superior court had exclusive jurisdiction over the trial of two persons, 15 and 16 years of age, who were alleged to have committed armed robbery with a rifle, and there was no error in the court's refusal to transfer the case to juvenile court. Bearden v. State, 241 Ga. App. 842, 528 S.E.2d 275 (2000) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Unaccepted offer to reduce armed robbery to robbery did not obligate the state to reduce the charge because armed robbery was punishable by life imprisonment, it was not a transferable offense, and the trial court was without authority to transfer the armed robbery case from superior court to juvenile court. State v. Harper, 271 Ga. App. 761, 610 S.E.2d 699 (2005) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

While an original child molestation charge brought against a juvenile was properly filed in the juvenile court, once the state added an aggravated sexual battery count via an amendment, the superior court gained jurisdiction. Thus, the juvenile's allegations that the state failed to comply with the procedural requirements under former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-49(c)(1) and (e) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-472) should have been raised in the superior court, and had no bearing on the validity of the delinquency petitions or the substantive charges against the juvenile in juvenile court. In the Interest of K.C., 290 Ga. App. 416, 659 S.E.2d 821 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Since an armed robbery was completed when control of the money in a cash register was ceded to the defendant and the other four robbers, the facts were sufficient to indict the defendant, who was 16 years old, for armed robbery under O.C.G.A. § 16-8-41(a); therefore, the superior court lacked authority under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(B) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560) to transfer the case to a juvenile court. Gutierrez v. State, 306 Ga. App. 371, 702 S.E.2d 642 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Trial court did not err in sentencing the defendant to 20 years to serve 10 in prison pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 16-8-41(b) and (d) because, although the defendant was only 13 years old, the defendant participated in an armed robbery; the legislature's determination that the superior court has jurisdiction over minors 13 to 17 years of age who are alleged to have committed certain serious offenses is founded on a rational basis, including the need for secure placement of certain violent juvenile offenders and the safety of students and citizens of Georgia. Cuvas v. State, 306 Ga. App. 679, 703 S.E.2d 116 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Superior court loss of jurisdiction after 180 days. — Because a grand jury did not indict a juvenile within 180 days after the juvenile's detention as required by former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(A)(vii) and no extension of time had been granted as of that date, the grand jury lost authority over the case by operation of law. The trial court's order granting the state's request for an out-of-time extension was void. Nunnally v. State, 311 Ga. App. 558, 716 S.E.2d 608 (2011) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Same 180-day time limitation applied to both former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-28(b) and 15-11-30.2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-560, 15-11-561, 15-11-563, and 15-11-566), and that 180 days began to run on the day the juvenile was detained whenever the superior court was exercising jurisdiction under either section; it necessarily follows that anytime the superior court loses jurisdiction which was conferred by former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b) because the state failed to obtain an indictment within 180 days of the date the juvenile was detained, the time will also have expired within which the state could procure an indictment if the superior court were proceeding under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.2 and, thus, a transfer back to the superior court under those circumstances is pointless since an indictment returned by the grand jury would be void. In the Interest of C.B., 313 Ga. App. 778, 723 S.E.2d 21 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Although O.C.G.A. § 17-7-50.1 allows the state to request one automatic 90-day extension, this extension cannot be granted after the expiration of the 180 days; the legislature intended to set time limitations for the state to act in those situations in which the juvenile is detained and the superior court is exercising jurisdiction over the matter pursuant to either former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b) (see now O.C.G.A. 15-11-560) or former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-561, 15-11-563, and 15-11-566). In the Interest of C.B., 313 Ga. App. 778, 723 S.E.2d 21 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Exceptions to juvenile court's exclusive original jurisdiction. — Former Code 1933, §§ 24A-301 and 24A-401 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-10, 15-11-11, 15-11-212, and 15-11-560) did not vest exclusive original jurisdiction in the juvenile court over the following class of youthful offenders: persons between the ages of 17 and 21 years, who have committed noncapital felonies, and who were under the supervision of or were on probation to a juvenile court for acts of delinquency committed before reaching the age of 17 years. State v. Crankshaw, 243 Ga. 183, 253 S.E.2d 69 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Transfer to superior court not required if no exclusive jurisdiction. — In a child molestation case, it was not necessary for the juvenile court to transfer the charges to the superior court in order for the superior court to have jurisdiction because the juvenile court's finding that there was no evidence that the defendant was under 17 when the acts were committed amounted to a finding that the juvenile court did not have exclusive jurisdiction. Landrum v. State, 210 Ga. App. 275, 436 S.E.2d 40 (1993) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Transfer from superior court. — State did not show that a superior court abused the court's discretion in reaching a decision that a 14-year-old defendant's aggravated sexual assault case was "extraordinary" and should be heard in juvenile court due to the defendant's social immaturity. State v. Ware, 258 Ga. App. 564, 574 S.E.2d 632 (2002) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Collateral estoppel did not prohibit transfer back to superior court. — Disregarding the question of whether collateral estoppel actually applied in the context of a case, the transfer of an involuntary manslaughter case, under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.4 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-567), against a juvenile to the juvenile court did not collaterally estop a later transfer of the case back to the superior court under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-561, 15-11-563, 15-11-566) because the first transfer was based on the jurisdictional restrictions in former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560) and at the time of that transfer, the superior court did not consider or rule on the multiple factors in former § 15-11-30.2 on which the second transfer was based. In the Interest of C.G., 291 Ga. App. 743, 662 S.E.2d 823 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Habeas corpus petition does not confer superior court jurisdiction. — If a juvenile court order entered pursuant to former Code 1933, § 24A-2301 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-211, 15-11-212, 15-11-215) after notice and hearing was still in effect, the superior court had no jurisdiction of the related habeas corpus petition. West v. Cobb County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 243 Ga. 425, 254 S.E.2d 373 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Violation of probation. — Under former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2(2)(B) and 15-11-28(a)(1)(F) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2, 15-11-10, and 15-11-11), a juvenile court lacked jurisdiction over the defendant, who was over 17 when a probation violation occurred; thus, the defendant's commitment under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-602) was void. The state had not filed a petition for probation revocation, but only for a violation of probation. In the Interest of T.F., 314 Ga. App. 606, 724 S.E.2d 892 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile court did not retain jurisdiction to hear grandparents' petition for permanent custody after determining that the mother's four children were deprived since the grandparents' complaint for permanent custody was not in the nature of a deprivation petition and did not allege that the grandparents should be granted permanent custody of the children on the basis that the children were deprived. In re C.C., 193 Ga. App. 120, 387 S.E.2d 46 (1989) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Jurisdiction over children born in U.S. to Mexican citizens. — Juvenile court had jurisdiction to terminate the parental rights of Mexican citizens because, when the termination petition was filed, the children, who were born in the United States, were citizens of Georgia and thereby entitled to the protection of Georgia law, which specifically provides for the termination of parental rights. In the Interest of J.H., 244 Ga. App. 788, 536 S.E.2d 805 (2000) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Custody case could not determine other civil issues. — Because the trial court relied upon documents other than the pleadings, a motion to dismiss should in fact have been treated as a motion for summary judgment; a juvenile court had no jurisdiction over claims of fraud, breach of contract, perjury, and defamation made by a former husband against his former wife, and thus, a custody case between parties which was litigated in juvenile court was not an adjudication of the husband's claim for purposes of res judicata. Litsky v. Schaub, 269 Ga. App. 254, 603 S.E.2d 754 (2004) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Child molestation. — Because child molestation was not an offense listed in former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(A) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560), the trial court erred in using former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-63(a)(2)(D) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2) to classify the offense as a designated felony act when the court sentenced a juvenile. In the Interest of M. S., 277 Ga. App. 706, 627 S.E.2d 422 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Because the indictment alleged and the evidence at trial authorized a finding that the defendant committed aggravated child molestation on some date after July 1, 2006, the trial court could not be divested of jurisdiction pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(B) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-2 and 15-11-560). Therefore, the trial court correctly denied the motion to transfer the case to juvenile court. Adams v. State, 288 Ga. 695, 707 S.E.2d 359 (2011) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Armed robbery. — Denial of the defendant's motion to transfer under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(B) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560) was upheld; the armed robbery was completed at the time the cash register was opened and the flap resting on the top of the cash raised, thereby ceding control of the money to the perpetrators and satisfying the requisite slightest change of location necessary for the armed robbery. Gutierrez v. State, 290 Ga. 643, 723 S.E.2d 658 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Order addressing issue not raised was a nullity. — Since a written order issued by a juvenile court did not show deprivation of the child with regard to the child's father, and since all parties stipulated that the child was not deprived with regard to the child's father, the order was void to the extent the order directed removal of the child from the father's home; moreover, to the extent that a later contempt finding was based on the trial court's void order, it was a nullity; the trial court's direction as to removal of the child was not binding and the court's later contempt finding based on that order was improper. In re Tidwell, 279 Ga. App. 734, 632 S.E.2d 690 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Transfer to superior court was improper. — Juvenile court erred in granting the state's motion to transfer the defendant juvenile's case back to the superior court pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.2 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-561, 15-11-563, and 15-11-566) because the superior court had properly transferred the case to the juvenile court since the defendant was not indicted within 180 days of detention as required by O.C.G.A. § 17-7-50.1; the time limits set forth in § 17-7-50.1 were plainly stated and mandatory and clearly express the legislative intent that when a juvenile was detained and the superior court was exercising jurisdiction under either former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560) or former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.2, the state must obtain an indictment within the specified time or the superior court lost the jurisdiction conferred by those provisions. In the Interest of C.B., 313 Ga. App. 778, 723 S.E.2d 21 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

General Jurisdiction

Transferral of custody habeas corpus case by superior court. — In a custody controversy in the nature of habeas corpus, the juvenile court has concurrent jurisdiction to decide the issue only if the case is transferred to the juvenile court by proper order of the superior court; and in such a transferred case, appellate jurisdiction is lodged in the supreme court of this state. In re J.R.T., 233 Ga. 204, 210 S.E.2d 684 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301). Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Original and appellate jurisdiction in certain custody controversies. — Juvenile court has original jurisdiction in a custody controversy involving a delinquent child, an unruly child, or a deprived child and appellate jurisdiction in such cases is vested in the court of appeals. In re J.R.T., 233 Ga. 204, 210 S.E.2d 684 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301). Moss v. Moss, 233 Ga. 688, 212 S.E.2d 853 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Jurisdiction over offenses committed when juvenile 16. — Juvenile court retained jurisdiction over the defendant for an offense the defendant committed when the defendant was 16 years old until the entry of the court's order transferring the case to the superior court. In re D.L., 228 Ga. App. 503, 492 S.E.2d 273 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Lack of jurisdiction to award permanent custody. — Judgment was reversed because the juvenile court's authority to place a child in the custody of a "willing" and "qualified" relative was not authority to award permanent custody of the child as custody was determined by discerning the best interests of the child and not the willingness or the qualifications of a person to take temporary custody of the child. Ertter v. Dunbar, 292 Ga. 103, 734 S.E.2d 403 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile court is court of special and limited jurisdiction, and the court's judgments must show on the judgment's face such facts as are necessary to give the court jurisdiction of the person and subject matter. If the order of a juvenile court fails to recite the jurisdictional facts, the judgment is void. Williams v. Department of Human Resources, 150 Ga. App. 610, 258 S.E.2d 288 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Juvenile courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, possessing only those powers specifically conferred upon the courts by statute. In re J.O., 191 Ga. App. 521, 382 S.E.2d 214 (1989), overruled on other grounds, In re T.A.W., 265 Ga. 106, 454 S.E.2d 134 (1995) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Order which fails to recite jurisdictional grounds is void. — If the order of the juvenile court taking custody, control, and supervision of a minor child fails to show that it was by reason of one of the several grounds set out in the statute, such order is void for want of jurisdiction. Ferguson v. Hunt, 221 Ga. 728, 146 S.E.2d 756 (1966) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2402).

Jurisdiction of juvenile court, being civil in nature, extends only to those minors who are residents of the county. Giles v. State, 123 Ga. App. 700, 182 S.E.2d 140 (1971) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2402).

Jurisdiction of capital felonies and custody cases distinguished. — Juvenile court and the superior court have concurrent jurisdiction of delinquent acts which constitute capital felonies, but the juvenile court may consider questions of custody only if such issues are transferred to the juvenile court from the superior court. Quire v. Clayton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 242 Ga. 85, 249 S.E.2d 538 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2402).

Jurisdiction of included offenses. — Superior court had jurisdiction to convict a juvenile defendant of aggravated assault since that offense was part of the same transaction as the greater offense of armed robbery over which the court had jurisdiction. Leeks v. State, 226 Ga. App. 227, 483 S.E.2d 691 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5); Houston v. State, 237 Ga. App. 878, 517 S.E.2d 357 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Jurisdiction to enter child support award. — Since a parent's children were found to be deprived and were placed temporarily with relatives, pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(c)(2)(A) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, and 15-11-212), the trial court had jurisdiction to order the parent to pay temporary support. However, the court lacked jurisdiction to enter a final award of support under O.C.G.A. § 19-6-15 as no final order was entered disposing of the case. In the Interest of R.F., 295 Ga. App. 739, 673 S.E.2d 108 (2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Granting of temporary custody of the mother's child to the mother's ex-boyfriend and his wife following their petition to have the boy adjudicated deprived was inappropriate because the juvenile court lacked jurisdiction over the proceeding under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(1)(C) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, and 15-11-212). The petition did not contain valid allegations of deprivation and nothing in the record demonstrated that present drug use on the part of the mother had a negative effect on the child rising to the level of present deprivation; the petition was an attempt to obtain custody of the child. In the Interest of C. L. C., 299 Ga. App. 729, 683 S.E.2d 690 (2009); Mauldin v. Mauldin, 322 Ga. App. 507, 745 S.E.2d 754 (2013) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Jurisdiction over legitimation petition and for placement. — Contrary to a mother's contention, the custody order showed on the order's face such facts as were necessary to give the juvenile court jurisdiction of the person and subject matter because the order referenced and incorporated the legitimation order entered days earlier, reflected on the order's face that all parties were served with a copy of the pleadings and were present, along with their counsel, and the mother did not contest the juvenile court's personal jurisdiction. In the Interest of B. H.-W., 332 Ga. App. 269, 772 S.E.2d 66 (2015).

Exclusive Jurisdiction

Superior court had exclusive jurisdiction to terminate the parental rights in the adoption case and the juvenile court's jurisdiction in the termination of parental rights case had no impact on the superior court's ability to exercise jurisdiction. Dep't of Human Servs. v. Wyttenbach, 348 Ga. App. 810, 824 S.E.2d 680 (2019).

Juvenile Code confers exclusive original jurisdiction to juvenile court over certain juvenile matters, and designates the juvenile court the sole court for initiating action concerning any child that is alleged to be deprived and for the termination of the legal parent-child relationship. Brooks v. Leyva, 147 Ga. App. 616, 249 S.E.2d 628 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Age at time of offense controls. — Although a juvenile no longer qualified as a child under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(2)(A) and (B) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2) after the seventeenth birthday, it is the juvenile's age at the time of the offense that controls; therefore, because the juvenile was under the age of 17 at the time the act of delinquency was committed, the juvenile court properly exercised exclusive original jurisdiction over the juvenile's case. In the Interest of J.T.D., 242 Ga. App. 243, 529 S.E.2d 377 (2000) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

As there was evidence that the defendant molested the victim after turning 17, the juvenile court did not have exclusive jurisdiction over the defendant's sexual molestation case, and the defendant's conviction in a superior court was proper. McGruder v. State, 279 Ga. App. 851, 632 S.E.2d 730 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile court does not have original jurisdiction over custody controversy. — It was not the intention of the General Assembly to give original jurisdiction of the custody of a child to a juvenile court when there is a dispute over the custody between the parents. Bartlett v. Bartlett, 99 Ga. App. 770, 109 S.E.2d 821 (1959) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2402).

Original and appellate jurisdiction in custody disputes between parents. — In a case of dispute over custody between parents, original jurisdiction exists exclusively in courts having jurisdiction of habeas corpus or divorce and alimony actions, in both of which the supreme court has exclusive jurisdiction on appeal. Bartlett v. Bartlett, 99 Ga. App. 770, 109 S.E.2d 821 (1959) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2402).

Termination of parental rights via divorce decree. — Under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(2)(C) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, and 15-11-212), except in connection with an adoption proceeding, a juvenile court was the sole court for an action involving any proceeding for the termination of parental rights. However, the parent affirmatively invoked the jurisdiction of the superior court for the purpose of obtaining the divorce, consented to the superior court's incorporation of the settlement agreement, and then failed to file a motion to set aside the judgment of divorce for four years; thus, the parent's acts and omissions estopped the parent from attacking the divorce judgment. Amerson v. Vandiver, 285 Ga. 49, 673 S.E.2d 850 (2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Superior court had jurisdiction over a biological father's legitimation petition because, although the child was born while the mother was married to another man, that man's responsibility to the child was ended by stipulation of the parties in their divorce; the former husband was no longer the child's legal father, O.C.G.A. § 19-7-21.1(a)(2)(B), he had no parental rights to terminate, and the juvenile court's jurisdiction under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-10(3)(D) was not invaded. Smith v. Pearce, 334 Ga. App. 84, 778 S.E.2d 248 (2015), cert. denied, No. S16C0247, 2016 Ga. LEXIS 33 (Ga. 2016).

Noncapital juvenile cases. — Juvenile courts have exclusive original jurisdiction over noncapital juvenile cases. State v. Crankshaw, 243 Ga. 183, 253 S.E.2d 69 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Deprivation and termination of parental rights. — Juvenile court shall be sole court for initiating action for termination of legal parent-child relationship. Dein v. Mossman, 244 Ga. 866, 262 S.E.2d 83 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Juvenile court has exclusive jurisdiction to hear cases involving deprivation and termination of parental rights. Abrams v. Daffron, 155 Ga. App. 182, 270 S.E.2d 278 (1980) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Superior court has jurisdiction to consider termination of the rights of a putative father only "in connection with adoption proceedings." Alexander v. Guthrie, 216 Ga. App. 460, 454 S.E.2d 805 (1995) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Superior court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider divorced mother's petition for termination of the father's parental rights. In re A.D.B., 232 Ga. App. 697, 503 S.E.2d 596 (1998) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction over actions involving termination of parental rights. The juvenile court properly exercised jurisdiction over a grandmother's petition to terminate a mother's parental rights because the grandmother already had custody of the children and the mother was facing allegations of having deprived her children. In the Interest of K.N.C., 264 Ga. App. 475, 590 S.E.2d 792 (2003) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Jurisdiction over deprivation cases is exclusive. — Subparagraph (a)(1)(C) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, and 15-11-212) clearly placed exclusive jurisdiction in the juvenile court as the sole court for initiating an action concerning any child who is alleged to be deprived. Williams v. Davenport, 159 Ga. App. 531, 284 S.E.2d 45 (1981) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Juvenile court had exclusive original jurisdiction over deprivation proceedings, and the juvenile court had the authority to order the disposition best suited to the needs of the children, including the transfer of temporary legal custody. In re A.L.L., 211 Ga. App. 767, 440 S.E.2d 517 (1994) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Because the action appealed from involved a deprivation proceeding, and the court's order reflected on the order's face that the order was addressing the alleged deprivation of the child at issue, the juvenile court clearly had subject matter jurisdiction over the deprivation petition. In the Interest of T. L., 269 Ga. App. 842, 605 S.E.2d 432 (2004) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Absent evidence of a custody dispute, a deprivation proceeding was not a pretextual custody battle which divested the juvenile court of the juvenile court's exclusive jurisdiction. In the Interest of D.T., 284 Ga. App. 336, 643 S.E.2d 842 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Exclusive jurisdiction for two years over children found deprived. — Juvenile Code vests exclusive jurisdiction in the juvenile court for at least two years over matters concerning children whom the juvenile court has duly found to be deprived. West v. Cobb County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 243 Ga. 425, 254 S.E.2d 373 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Child was not deprived so as to confer jurisdiction since it was admitted that both grandparental homes were suitable as placements for the child. In re C.F., 199 Ga. App. 858, 406 S.E.2d 279 (1991) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Termination-of-rights petition which seeks adoption of child. — If a petition for termination of the rights of a putative father of an illegitimate child specifically states that it is in pursuance of the petitioners' prospective adoption of the child, the petition is "in connection with adoption proceedings" within the meaning of subparagraph (a)(2)(C) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, and 15-11-212). H.C.S. v. Grebel, 253 Ga. 404, 321 S.E.2d 321 (1984) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5). H.C.S. v. Grebel, 172 Ga. App. 819, 325 S.E.2d 925 (1984) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Juvenile court lacked jurisdiction to consider a petition for termination of parental rights because the termination was sought "in connection with" an adoption proceeding. In re B.G.D., 224 Ga. App. 124, 479 S.E.2d 439 (1996) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Termination action in which adoption will be pursued at a later date. — Under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(2)(C) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, and 15-11-212), the juvenile court had exclusive original jurisdiction over a child's grandparents' action seeking termination of the child's parents' parental rights. Although the grandparents planned to adopt the child, the grandparents intended to adopt the child under the laws of Florida, where the grandparents lived. In re J. S., 302 Ga. App. 342, 691 S.E.2d 250 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Speeding is an act designated a crime by O.C.G.A. § 40-6-1 (now subsection (a) of § 40-6-1) and, therefore, a speeding charge against a 16-year-old juvenile could be tried only in juvenile court. In re L.J.V., 180 Ga. App. 400, 349 S.E.2d 37 (1986) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Acts constituting armed robbery with a firearm. — Trial court did not err in denying the defendant's motion to dismiss an indictment on the ground that the prosecution was barred by double jeopardy since the defendant previously had been adjudicated delinquent in juvenile court for the acts alleged in the indictment because the juvenile court's adjudication of the defendant as delinquent was void, and jeopardy did not attach during the juvenile court proceeding; because the superior court had exclusive jurisdiction under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(vii) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560) since the defendant was alleged in the juvenile court to have committed acts constituting armed robbery with a firearm, the juvenile court lacked jurisdiction to adjudicate the defendant delinquent for acts constituting armed robbery, notwithstanding the state's initial participation in the juvenile proceedings or the defendant's admission of the allegations in that court. Bonner v. State, 302 Ga. App. 57, 690 S.E.2d 216 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-528).

Violation of probation. — Although the violation of probation may constitute a "delinquent act" in and of itself, a violation of probation which occurs after the juvenile's 17th birthday will not authorize the initiation of a new delinquency petition against the juvenile. The juvenile court's jurisdiction would extend only to revoking the juvenile's probation for the juvenile's previous adjudication of delinquency. In re B.S.L., 200 Ga. App. 170, 407 S.E.2d 123 (1991) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Juvenile court properly dismissed delinquency petition since transfer hearing did not apply. — Juvenile court properly dismissed a delinquency petition without a hearing, which petition alleged that the juvenile committed aggravated sodomy, as former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.2(f) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-561) expressly provided that the transfer hearing provisions did not apply to any proceeding within the exclusive jurisdiction of a superior court, pursuant to former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(b)(2)(A) (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560), which included aggravated sodomy. In the Interest of N.C., 293 Ga. App. 374, 667 S.E.2d 181 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Exclusive original jurisdiction existed in juvenile court. — Because there was a bona fide allegation that a child was deprived, because the issue of permanent custody or modification of the divorce decree had not been transferred to the juvenile court, and because a mother's temporary custody had expired, the juvenile court had authority to exercise the court's exclusive original jurisdiction under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28(a)(1)(C) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, and 15-11-212); therefore, the habeas court erred in denying the father's petition for relief. Douglas v. Douglas, 285 Ga. 548, 678 S.E.2d 904 (2009) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile court properly exercised jurisdiction over termination proceedings pursuant to former O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-28 and 15-11-94 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-10, 15-11-11, 15-11-212, 15-11-310, 15-11-311, and 15-11-320) as the petition was filed by the mother, who had already been awarded sole physical custody of the child and as the termination petition dealt specifically with factors relating to the father's inability to provide proper care and support for the child such that the father's parental rights should be terminated. In the Interest of A.R.K.L., 314 Ga. App. 847, 726 S.E.2d 77 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile court did not retain jurisdiction. — Although a great aunt and great step-uncle argued that the trial court erred in exercising subject matter jurisdiction in a custody matter at a time when the juvenile court had exclusive original jurisdiction, there was no order of the superior court transferring the petition to the juvenile court, and the jurisdiction obtained during an original deprivation proceeding did not serve to retain such jurisdiction; therefore, the juvenile court did not retain jurisdiction. The complaint for permanent custody filed by the grandmother and the step-grandfather was not in the nature of a deprivation petition. Wiepert v. Stover, 298 Ga. App. 683, 680 S.E.2d 707 (2009), overruled on other grounds, Artson, LLC v. Hudson, 322 Ga. App. 859, 747 S.E.2d 68 (2013) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Code 1933, § 24A-301, pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-5 and pre-2014 Code Section 15-11-28(a), which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Character of proceeding determines jurisdiction. — It is the character of the proceeding, rather than the specific items of relief granted, which determines jurisdiction. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-15 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Scope of exclusive jurisdiction. — Juvenile court has exclusive jurisdiction over the following classes of traffic offenders: (1) offenders under the age of 16 who have committed a "juvenile traffic offense"; (2) offenders under the age of 17 who have committed any traffic offense; and (3) offenders under the age of 21 who have committed any traffic offense, and "who committed an act of delinquency before reaching the age of 17 years, and who have been placed under the supervision of the court or on probation to the court." 1985 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U85-18 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

No conflict with jurisdictional grant over adoptions to superior courts. — Jurisdiction of superior courts over adoptions does not conflict with the general grant of "exclusive original jurisdiction over juvenile matters" to the juvenile courts. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-15 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Magistrate court judge must be designated to serve as a superior court judge in order to issue arrest warrants, conduct a first appearance hearing, and conduct a preliminary or committal hearing for juveniles prosecuted as adults. 1995 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U95-9 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Magistrate court judge may issue arrest warrants for juveniles charged with an offense enumerated in subparagraph (b)(2)(A) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-560). 1998 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U98-9 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Superior court may terminate parent-child relationship only with adoption. — Although both superior and juvenile courts have jurisdiction to terminate the parent-child relationship, the superior court may do so only in conjunction with an adoption proceeding which has been filed in that court; the juvenile court remains the sole court for initiating a parental termination proceeding if there is no concomitant adoption proceeding in process. 1977 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U77-52 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Jurisdiction of superior courts not affected by Interstate Compact on Juveniles. — No provision of the Interstate Compact on Juveniles has any effect on the jurisdiction and authority of superior courts over matters of adoption. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-15 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act proceedings. — Superior court may not transfer a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., proceeding to a juvenile court. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

(1) Any legitimation petition filed pursuant to Code Section 19-7-22 concerning a child alleged to be dependent;

(2) Any legitimation petition transferred to the court by proper order of the superior court;

(3) The issue of custody and support when the issue is transferred by proper order of the superior court; provided, however, that if a demand for a jury trial as to support has been properly filed by either parent, then the case shall be transferred to superior court for the jury trial;

(4) Any petition for the establishment or termination of a temporary guardianship transferred to the court by proper order of the probate court; and

(5) Any criminal case transferred to the court pursuant to subsection (d) of Code Section 15-11-15.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, §§ 24-2402, 24-2408 and 24A-301, pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-5 and pre-2014 Code Section 15-11-28(c) and (e), which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

In light of the reenactment of this chapter, effective January 1, 2014, the reader is advised to consult the annotations following Code Section 15-11-10, which may also be applicable to this Code section.

Additionally, many of the annotations found under this Code section were taken from cases decided prior to the adoption of the 1983 Constitution. See Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. III, Para. I and Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I.

Juvenile court is court of special and limited jurisdiction, and the court's judgments must show on the judgment's face such facts as are necessary to give the court jurisdiction of the person and subject matter. If the order of a juvenile court fails to recite the jurisdictional facts, the judgment is void. Williams v. Department of Human Resources, 150 Ga. App. 610, 258 S.E.2d 288 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Jurisdiction over legitimation petition and for placement. — Contrary to a mother's contention, the custody order showed on the order's face such facts as were necessary to give the juvenile court jurisdiction of the person and subject matter because the order referenced and incorporated the legitimation order entered days earlier, reflected on the order's face that all parties were served with a copy of the pleadings and were present, along with their counsel, and the mother did not contest the juvenile court's personal jurisdiction. In the Interest of B. H.-W., 332 Ga. App. 269, 772 S.E.2d 66 (2015).

Juvenile courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, possessing only those powers specifically conferred upon the courts by statute. In re J.O., 191 Ga. App. 521, 382 S.E.2d 214 (1989), overruled on other grounds, In re T.A.W., 265 Ga. 106, 454 S.E.2d 134 (1995) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Jurisdiction of juvenile court, being civil in nature, extends only to those minors who are residents of the county. Giles v. State, 123 Ga. App. 700, 182 S.E.2d 140 (1971) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2402).

Constitution authorizes concurrent jurisdictional scheme. — Law provides a concurrent jurisdictional scheme that is authorized by Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I). J.W.A. v. State, 233 Ga. 683, 212 S.E.2d 849 (1975), commented on in 27 Mercer L. Rev. 335 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

When the controlling language of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. IV, Para. I) was read with the former Juvenile Code, it was apparent that a harmonious and reasonable system of concurrent jurisdiction between the juvenile courts and superior courts had been achieved. J.W.A. v. State, 233 Ga. 683, 212 S.E.2d 849 (1975), commented on in 27 Mercer L. Rev. 335 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Matters relating to custody and visitation. — Superior and juvenile courts exercise concurrent jurisdiction over all matters relating to custody and visitation, except in those situations in which exclusive jurisdiction is vested in the superior court. In re D.N.M., 193 Ga. App. 812, 389 S.E.2d 336, cert. denied, 193 Ga. App. 910, 389 S.E.2d 336 (1989) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Concurrent jurisdiction over custody issues. — Subsection (c) of this section is applicable only in those cases where the juvenile court and the superior court have concurrent jurisdiction and custody is the subject of controversy. Brooks v. Leyva, 147 Ga. App. 616, 249 S.E.2d 628 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Jurisdiction, once exercised, becomes exclusive. — Jurisdiction, once exercised, becomes exclusive rather than concurrent, subject to the right of either court to transfer to the other. J.T.M. v. State, 142 Ga. App. 635, 236 S.E.2d 764 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

In custody litigation, the juvenile court errs in hearing a case in which there is no order transferring the case from the superior court. Further, if an order of a juvenile court fails to recite the jurisdictional facts (i.e., such facts as are necessary to give it jurisdiction of the person and subject matter), the judgment is void. Lockhart v. Stancil, 258 Ga. 634, 373 S.E.2d 355 (1988) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5); In re W.W.W., 213 Ga. App. 732, 445 S.E.2d 832 (1994), but see In re M.C.J., 271 Ga. 546, 523 S.E.2d 6 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Juvenile court cannot modify superior court's custody determination. — Juvenile court, without proper transfer from superior court, is without authority to modify custody provisions of the final divorce decree in regard to the mother's visitation privileges. In re M.M.A., 174 Ga. App. 898, 332 S.E.2d 39 (1985) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5). Owen v. Owen, 183 Ga. App. 472, 359 S.E.2d 229 (1987) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Juvenile court lacked jurisdiction since there was no order of the superior court transferring the issue of custody so as to meet the requirements of subsection (c) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-212). In re C.F., 199 Ga. App. 858, 406 S.E.2d 279 (1991) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, opinions under former Code 1933, § 24A-301, pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-5 and pre-2014 Code Section 15-11-28(c) and (e), which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Character of proceeding determines jurisdiction. — It is the character of the proceeding, rather than the specific items of relief granted, which determines jurisdiction. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-15 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-301).

Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act proceedings. — Superior court may not transfer a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, O.C.G.A. § 19-11-40 et seq., proceeding to a juvenile court. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

Paternity questions. — Since no provision would permit the transfer of paternity questions to a juvenile court, no case in which paternity is involved may be transferred by a superior court to a juvenile court. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-5).

15-11-12. Dual designation of children; consolidation of proceedings; time limitations.

(a) Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prevent a child from being adjudicated both a dependent child and a delinquent child or both a dependent child and a child in need of services if there exists a factual basis for such a finding.

(b) If a child alleged or adjudicated to be a delinquent child or a child in need of services is also alleged or adjudicated to be a dependent child, dependency proceedings may be consolidated with delinquency or child in need of services proceedings to the extent consistent with due process of law as provided in Articles 3, 5, and 6 of this chapter.

(c) The time frames and requirements of Article 3 of this chapter shall apply to cases in which a child alleged or adjudicated to be a child in need of services or a delinquent child is placed in foster care and has also been alleged or adjudicated to be a dependent child.

15-11-13. Appointment of guardian or conservator.

The court shall have jurisdiction to appoint a guardian of the person of any child in any proceeding authorized by this chapter. Any such appointment shall be made pursuant to the same requirements of notice and hearing as are provided for appointments of guardians of the persons of any child by the probate court. In the event a conservator for a child's property needs to be appointed, the court shall refer that matter to the probate court.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Award of permanent guardianship affirmed. — Award of permanent guardianship to the aunt was affirmed because the parent gave no reason to believe that any objection to taking judicial notice of the deprivation order would have had any merit, nor did the parent identify specific evidence that the parent would have brought forward to challenge the earlier deprivation order. In the Interest of L. B., 319 Ga. App. 173, 735 S.E.2d 162 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.1).

Jurisdiction to appoint guardians for children. — Former statute implicitly recognized that courts other than juvenile courts had jurisdiction to appoint guardians for children. 1976 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U76-15 (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

15-11-14. Transfers from probate court.

(a) The court shall hold a hearing within 30 days of receipt of a case transferred from the probate court pursuant to subsection (f) of Code Section 29-2-6 or subsection (b) of Code Section 29-2-8.

(b) After notice and hearing, the court may make one of the following orders:

(1) That the temporary guardianship be established or continued if the court determines that the temporary guardianship is in the best interests of a child. The order shall thereafter be subject to modification only as provided in Code Section 15-11-32; or

(2) That the temporary guardianship be terminated if the court determines it is in the best interests of a child. A child shall be returned to his or her parent unless the court determines that there is probable cause to believe that he or she will be abused, neglected, or abandoned in the custody of his or her parent.

(c) A case shall proceed as a dependency matter pursuant to the provisions of Article 3 of this chapter if, after notice and hearing, the court determines:

(1) That it is in the best interests of a child that the temporary guardianship not be established or that the temporary guardianship be terminated but there is probable cause to believe that he or she will be abused, neglected, or abandoned if returned to his or her parent; or

(2) That it is in the best interests of a child that the temporary guardianship be continued over the parent's objection.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Burden of proof in termination of parental rights. — In a mother's petition to terminate her parents' temporary guardianship over her child under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-14, the trial court erred in failing to consider whether the grandparents proved by clear and convincing evidence that termination would cause the child physical or long-term emotional harm; therefore, remand was required for further consideration. In the Interest of K. M., 344 Ga. App. 838, 811 S.E.2d 505 (2018).

15-11-15. Transfers from superior court; custody and support.

(a) In handling divorce, alimony, habeas corpus, or other cases involving the custody of a child, a superior court may transfer the question of the determination of custody, support, or custody and support to the juvenile court either for investigation and a report back to the superior court or for investigation and determination.

(b) If the referral is for investigation and determination, then the juvenile court shall proceed to handle the matter in the same manner as though the action originated under this chapter in compliance with the order of the superior court, except that the parties shall not be entitled to obtain an appointed attorney through the juvenile court.

(c) At any time prior to the determination of any question regarding custody, support, or custody and support, the juvenile court may transfer the jurisdiction of the question back to the referring superior court.

(d) In handling criminal cases involving an accused who is in jeopardy of having his or her parental rights terminated due to criminal charges, a superior court may transfer a criminal case to a family treatment court division of a juvenile court for treatment and a report back to the superior court so long as the prosecuting attorney and accused agree to such transfer; provided, however, that such juvenile court may transfer such case back to the referring superior court at any time.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 24A-302, pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-6 and pre-2014 Code Section 15-11-30.1(b), which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Purpose of subsection (b). — Legislature enacted the provisions of former subsection (b) of O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15) simply to provide specific authorization for the transfer of questions concerning custody and support to the juvenile court in those cases over which the superior court otherwise would exercise exclusive jurisdiction. In re D.N.M., 193 Ga. App. 812, 389 S.E.2d 336, cert. denied, 193 Ga. App. 910, 389 S.E.2d 336 (1989) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

No error for juvenile court to make recommendation in report. — Subsection (b) of the former statute permitted superior courts handling divorce cases involving the custody of children to transfer the issue of custody to the juvenile court for investigation and report back to the superior court. It was not error for that report to contain a recommendation. Anderson v. Anderson, 238 Ga. 631, 235 S.E.2d 11 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Term "divorce cases," used in subsection (b) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15), includes contempt proceedings brought to enforce the provisions of a divorce decree. Hancock v. Coley, 258 Ga. 291, 368 S.E.2d 735 (1988) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

Visitation rights controlled by law relating to custody and changes of custody. — Visitation rights are a part of child custody and as such are controlled by the law relating to custody and change of custody. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 237 Ga. 845, 229 S.E.2d 751 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Jurisdiction of juvenile court in transferred custody proceeding. — In a custody proceeding transferred from the superior court, the juvenile court was authorized to issue an order restraining the future disclosure of information contained in the juvenile court's files and records and to punish for contempt any past unauthorized disclosure of that material. In re Burton, 271 Ga. 491, 521 S.E.2d 568 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

Jurisdiction of juvenile court in transferred custody proceeding. — In a custody proceeding transferred from the superior court, the juvenile court was authorized to issue an order restraining the future disclosure of information contained in the juvenile court's files and records and to punish for contempt any past unauthorized disclosure of that material. In re Burton, 271 Ga. 491, 521 S.E.2d 568 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

Jurisdiction of superior courts over habeas corpus cases. — All superior courts of this state have jurisdiction over the subject matter of habeas corpus cases or cases in the nature of habeas corpus. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 237 Ga. 845, 229 S.E.2d 751 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Juvenile and superior court custody cases distinguished. — Proceeding in a juvenile court involving custody is a statutory custody action. A proceeding in the superior court involving custody is in the nature of habeas corpus. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 237 Ga. 845, 229 S.E.2d 751 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Superior court may transfer investigation to juvenile court. — If a change of circumstances is alleged subsequent to a decree of divorce awarding custody of a minor child to one of the two parties, it is not error for the judge of the superior court to transfer the investigation thus called for to the juvenile court for investigation. Slate v. Coggins, 181 Ga. 17, 181 S.E. 145 (1935) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2402(d)).

Upon transfer, substantive and procedural rules followed. — Subsection (b) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15) carefully provided that a referral or transfer for investigation and determination shall proceed in the same manner as though the action originated in the juvenile court. That meant the former Juvenile Code substantive and procedural rules for termination of parental rights must be followed, which carefully delineate the grounds for termination; those persons upon whom summons shall issue, including parents, guardians, lawful custodians, and those in physical custody of the child; and other concerns. Hancock v. Coley, 258 Ga. 291, 368 S.E.2d 735 (1988) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

Concurrent and appellate jurisdiction in habeas corpus custody case. — In a custody controversy in the nature of habeas corpus, the juvenile court has concurrent jurisdiction to decide the issue only if the case is transferred to the juvenile court by proper order of the superior court. In such a transferred case, appellate jurisdiction is lodged in the Supreme Court of Georgia. In re J.R.T., 233 Ga. 204, 210 S.E.2d 684 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Record of transferred case must include findings and conclusions. — Findings of fact and conclusions of law must be made by the trial judge and must be included in the record of transferred contested custody cases. Coleman v. Coleman, 238 Ga. 183, 232 S.E.2d 57 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Transfer of child custody case is continuation of that proceeding. Thus, a transfer order in a habeas corpus-child custody proceeding is not final and hence is not appealable without a certificate of immediate review. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs. v. Perkins, 244 Ga. 237, 259 S.E.2d 427 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Custody determined on report to which access denied to parent. — It is error for the issue of child custody to be decided on the basis of a report if either parent is denied access to the report and is thereby denied a hearing and the right to examine witnesses in an effort to refute the report. Anderson v. Anderson, 238 Ga. 631, 235 S.E.2d 11 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

In cases originating in the superior court where referrals were made to the juvenile court or the Department of Family and Children Services for a written welfare report, the statute authorized the report, but it was error for the issue of child custody to be decided on the basis of that report if either parent was denied access to the report and thereby denied a hearing and the right to examine witnesses in an effort to refute the report. In re J.C., 242 Ga. 737, 251 S.E.2d 299 (1978), appeal dismissed, 441 U.S. 929, 99 S. Ct. 2046, 60 L. Ed. 2d 657 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Custody determined on report not disclosed to parties. — If a final order of a superior court, involving custody of children, expressly states that the order's findings are based in part upon a report prepared by a juvenile court, and the report is not filed or otherwise made available to either of the parties, the court's order cannot stand. Westmoreland v. Westmoreland, 241 Ga. 552, 246 S.E.2d 672 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Any error by superior court waived by consent of parties. — When the parties consent to the submission of the question of custody to the juvenile court, and after the report is received, it is further agreed that the superior court should then consider whether there has been a substantial change of condition since the divorce decree, and issue an order determining the matter of custody, any error by the superior court judge in having no independent hearing is waived by the parties. Haralson v. Moore, 236 Ga. 131, 223 S.E.2d 107 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-302).

Award of permanent guardianship affirmed. — Award of permanent guardianship to the aunt was affirmed because the parent gave no reason to believe that any objection to taking judicial notice of the deprivation order would have had any merit, nor did the parent identify specific evidence that the parent would have brought forward to challenge the earlier deprivation order. In the Interest of L. B., 319 Ga. App. 173, 735 S.E.2d 162 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-30.1).

OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 24A-302 and pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-6, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Support proceedings. — Subsection (b) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15) authorized the superior court to transfer to the juvenile court support cases not involving a question of paternity as well as those support proceedings originating from a court-established support unit in the judicial circuit. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

Superior court may not transfer a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act proceeding to a juvenile court under subsection (b) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15). 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

Paternity questions. — Since no provision under subsection (b) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15) would permit the transfer of paternity questions to a juvenile court, no case in which paternity was involved may be transferred under that statute by a superior court to a juvenile court. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U89-7 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

Permanent custody determination upon divorce decree. — When a superior court transfers the question of custody determination to a juvenile court pursuant to subsection (b) of former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15), the juvenile court may make only a temporary custody determination pending the outcome of the divorce action; but if the divorce decree is entered the juvenile court can then make a permanent custody determination. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. U94-1 (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-6).

15-11-16. Commencement of proceedings.

(a) A proceeding under this chapter may be commenced:

(1) By an order of transfer of a case from another court as provided in Code Section 15-11-11 or 15-11-567, subsection (f) of Code Section 29-2-6, or subsection (b) of Code Section 29-2-8;

(2) By the summons, notice to appear, or other citation in a proceeding charging a juvenile traffic offense or a violation of the laws, rules, and regulations governing the Department of Natural Resources Game and Fish Division; or

(3) By the filing of a petition for legitimation under Code Section 15-11-11, or in other cases by the filing of a complaint or a petition as provided in Articles 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 10 of this chapter.

(b) The petition and all other documents in the proceeding shall be entitled "In the interest of _____, a child," except upon appeal.

(c) On appeal, the anonymity of a child, and where appropriate, a victim or witness who is under the age of 18 years, shall be preserved by appropriate use of a child's, victim's, or witness's initials as appropriate.

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

Editor's notes. — In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 24A-801, pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-11 and pre-2014 Code Section 15-11-35, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

Deadline for filing delinquency petition. — Under O.C.G.A. § 15-11-521(b), the state must file a petition alleging delinquency against a juvenile who is not detained within 30 days of filing of the complaint or seek an extension of that deadline from the juvenile court; if the state misses the 30-day deadline and does not seek an extension, the case must be dismissed without prejudice. In the Interest of M.D.H., 300 Ga. 46, 793 S.E.2d 49 (2016).

Delinquency proceeding commences upon filing of petition when authorized. — Former Code 1933, § 24A-801 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-16) provided that a proceeding under the Juvenile Code was commenced in cases of alleged delinquency by the filing of a petition when authorized under former Code 1933, § 24A-1601 (see now O.C.G.A. § 15-11-420). Hartley v. Clack, 239 Ga. 113, 236 S.E.2d 63 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-801).

Transfer of proceedings. — Juvenile court acquired jurisdiction when a juvenile complaint form was filed in that court, and the superior court correctly transferred the case back to that court after an arrest warrant by the state attempted to establish jurisdiction in the superior court. In re C.R., 263 Ga. 155, 430 S.E.2d 3 (1993) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-11).

Juvenile court's issuance of order of detention did not result in that court's taking jurisdiction because only a "petition" within the meaning of the former section could commence a juvenile proceeding. Longshore v. State, 239 Ga. 437, 238 S.E.2d 22 (1977) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-801).

Juvenile court retained jurisdiction over the defendant for an offense the defendant committed when the defendant was 16 years old until the entry of the juvenile court's order transferring the case to the superior court. In re D.L., 228 Ga. App. 503, 492 S.E.2d 273 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-11).

Addressing child's special immigrant juvenile status. — In a deprivation proceeding, a juvenile court erred by failing to address the child's special immigrant juvenile status under 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(27)(J)(ii) and a remand was necessary since the juvenile court had to determine whether the evidence supported the findings so that the federal government could address the issue in separate deportation proceedings. In the Interest of J. J. X. C., 318 Ga. App. 420, 734 S.E.2d 120 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-35).

General Consideration

Editor's notes. — Many of the following annotations should be examined in light of the amendment to Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI) which took effect November 1, 1981.

In light of the similarity of the statutory provisions, decisions under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101, pre-2000 Code Section 15-11-15 and pre-2014 Code Sections 15-11-29 and 15-11-41, which were subsequently repealed but were succeeded by provisions in this Code section, are included in the annotations for this Code section. See the Editor's notes at the beginning of the chapter.

State as parens patriae created juvenile courts for protection of children. Robinson v. State, 227 Ga. 140, 179 S.E.2d 248 (1971) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2411).

Deprivation sufficiently alleged after petitioner alleged a child was committed to a state-run psychiatric institution in spite of contrary medical and psychological evaluations and that the child was denied care and education necessary for the child's physical, mental, and emotional health. In re A.V.B., 267 Ga. 728, 482 S.E.2d 275 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

Delinquency adjudication hearing serves same purpose as arraignment. — Delinquency adjudication hearing merely serves the same purpose in the civil juvenile court proceeding as an arraignment under the criminal code. M.E.B. v. State, 230 Ga. 154, 195 S.E.2d 891 (1973) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101); D.C.E. v. State, 130 Ga. App. 724, 204 S.E.2d 481 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Adjudication proceeding is actually nothing more than pretrial hearing held in the county where the child was apprehended and in the custody of local authorities for committing the alleged unruly acts or delinquent behavior. M.E.B. v. State, 230 Ga. 154, 195 S.E.2d 891 (1973) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Order entered following a delinquency adjudicatory hearing under former Code 1933, § 24A-1201 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-17 and 15-11-490) was not a final judgment appealable under former Code 1933, § 6-701 (see now O.C.G.A. § 5-6-34) but was instead merely an order entered in a pretrial hearing similar to an arraignment. D.C.E. v. State, 130 Ga. App. 724, 204 S.E.2d 481 (1974) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Venue

County of parent's residence. — Revision of Ga. Const. 1976, Art. VI, Sec. XIV, Para. VI (see now Ga. Const. 1983, Art. VI, Sec. II, Para. VI), providing that venue in juvenile court cases may be determined by the provisions of the Juvenile Court Code of Georgia, removed any constitutional impediment to applying former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-17, 15-11-270, and 15-11-401) to parental termination proceedings when the parent resides in a different county from that in which an allegedly deprived child is found. In re R.A.S., 249 Ga. 236, 290 S.E.2d 34 (1982) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

Action to terminate parental rights on ground of deprivation need not be brought in county of parents' residence. In re S.H., 163 Ga. App. 419, 294 S.E.2d 621 (1982) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

County of child's foster home. — Proceeding to terminate parental rights may be commenced in the county in which the child resides in a foster home. Cain v. Department of Human Resources, 166 Ga. App. 801, 305 S.E.2d 492 (1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

Because the child was placed into the Department of Family and Children Service's legal custody, a rebuttable presumption arose that the child obtained a Jones County legal residence for the purposes of determining venue; thus, by alleging that the child was in the department's custody, and by setting forth the department's address in Jones County, the department's petition provided sufficient information to establish that the child's residence was in Jones County, making venue therein, proper. In the Interest of A.J.M., 277 Ga. App. 646, 627 S.E.2d 399 (2006) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

County where parent resides. — For cases holding that venue for termination proceedings lies in the county where the parent resides, decided under prior constitutional provisions, see Quire v. Clayton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 242 Ga. 85, 249 S.E.2d 538 (1978), and Williams v. Department of Human Resources, 150 Ga. App. 610, 258 S.E.2d 288 (1979) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Determining legal residence. — Juvenile proceeding for delinquency or unruly conduct may be tried either in the county where the child resides or in the county where the unruly or delinquent conduct occurred. In re A.M.C., 213 Ga. App. 897, 446 S.E.2d 760 (1994) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

In determining where a juvenile resides for purposes of venue, it is generally the legal residence that controls. In re A.M.C., 213 Ga. App. 897, 446 S.E.2d 760 (1994) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

In a proceeding against a juvenile for the status offense of unruliness, the juvenile's legal residence for purposes of venue was in the county of the Department of Family & Children Services having custody over the juvenile, even though the place of the offense and the juvenile's family residence were in other counties. In re A.M.C., 213 Ga. App. 897, 446 S.E.2d 760 (1994) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

Since the requirements for venue in a county were met, the fact that the childrens' mother was in the process of moving to another state when the county department of family and children services obtained custody of her children was insufficient to rebut the presumption that the children resided in the county. In re K.M.L., 237 Ga. App. 662, 516 S.E.2d 363 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

Former statute did not conflict with general venue provisions of Constitution insofar as delinquency proceedings were concerned. G.S.K. v. State, 147 Ga. App. 571, 249 S.E.2d 671 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Waiver of objection to venue. — Since the case was transferred from the county, where it was originally filed, to another county pursuant to appellants' own motion, appellants waived any objection to venue in the subsequent county when the appellants moved that the venue be transferred to that county and are estopped from raising this issue. In re M.J.G., 203 Ga. App. 452, 416 S.E.2d 796, cert. denied, 203 Ga. App. 906, 416 S.E.2d 796 (1992) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

By a parent's actions and inactions, the parent waived the parent's right to object to the venue of termination proceedings. In the Interest of H.D.M., 241 Ga. App. 805, 527 S.E.2d 633 (2000) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

Venue lies in county where juvenile committed criminal act. — Although some of the proceedings in juvenile court are of a criminal character, not all are. For those that are, delinquency, unruliness and juvenile traffic offenses, the venue provisions of the Juvenile Code and the state constitution, that venue lies in the county in which the act was committed, are in accord. Quire v. Clayton County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 242 Ga. 85, 249 S.E.2d 538 (1978) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Juvenile's change of residence did not bar the exercise of jurisdiction over the juvenile by the juvenile court in the county in which the offense occurred. In re D.L., 228 Ga. App. 503, 492 S.E.2d 273 (1997) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-15).

Evidence showed that the delinquent conduct occurred in the victim's house, which was sufficient to establish the venue of the case wherein the juvenile was properly adjudicated. In the Interest of M.C., 322 Ga. App. 239, 744 S.E.2d 436 (2013) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Insufficient proof of venue. — In a juvenile delinquency case, the state failed to prove venue since the state offered no evidence that a church where an aggravated assault occurred was within the boundaries of the county in question; as to charges of obstruction of an officer, there was no evidence as to the location of the houses where the acts in question occurred. In the Interest of D.D., 287 Ga. App. 512, 651 S.E.2d 817 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Although there was sufficient evidence to support a juvenile's adjudication of delinquency based on the finding that the juvenile had committed acts, which, had the juvenile been an adult, would have supported a conviction for burglary in violation of O.C.G.A. § 16-7-1(a), the adjudication was reversed because the state failed to present any evidence to establish proof of venue beyond a reasonable doubt. The investigating officers' county of employment did not, in and of itself, constitute sufficient proof of venue to meet the beyond a reasonable doubt standard; however, the reviewing court noted that retrying the juvenile was not prohibited under the Double Jeopardy Clause because the evidence presented at trial was otherwise sufficient to support the adjudication of delinquency. In the Interest of B.R., 289 Ga. App. 6, 656 S.E.2d 172 (2007) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Because the state failed to prove the element of venue beyond a reasonable doubt, and there was no indication in the record that the juvenile waived that requirement or that the court took judicial notice of venue as an element of the offenses charged, the juvenile's adjudications of delinquency had to be reversed. In the Interest of J.B., 289 Ga. App. 617, 658 S.E.2d 194 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Dispositional hearings conducted in county where defendant resides. — It was at the dispositional hearings provided for in former Code 1933, § 24A-2201 (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-101 and 15-11-210) that the actual "case" was tried, thereby comporting with the constitutional mandate that civil cases shall be tried in the county where the defendant resided. M.E.B. v. State, 230 Ga. 154, 195 S.E.2d 891 (1973) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

In a deprivation proceeding, the court erred in basing venue on the childrens' brief visit to the county where the deprivation petitions were filed because the children were residing and attending school in another county at the time. In re B.G., 238 Ga. App. 227, 518 S.E.2d 451 (1999) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Because a child was born in Lee County and had lived with the child's mother and maternal grandparents in Lee County for ten out of the 16 months of the child's life when a petition alleging deprivation was filed under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29(a) (see now O.C.G.A. §§ 15-11-270 and 15-11-401), Lee County was the proper venue for the action. In the Interest of C.R., 292 Ga. App. 346, 665 S.E.2d 39 (2008) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Service on mother in county of residence sufficient. — Service of process on the mother in the county of this state in which the mother of an illegitimate child resides is sufficient to give the county juvenile court jurisdiction over both the mother and the child regardless of whether there was a "detention" of the child and in spite of the fact that a welfare worker obtained possession of the child outside of the state. Sanchez v. Walker County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 138 Ga. App. 49, 225 S.E.2d 441, rev'd on other grounds, 237 Ga. 406, 229 S.E.2d 66 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Venue exists despite absence of child. — If a particular county is the residence of the child and of the child's mother, venue properly exists there for temporary custody actions even if the child was not personally present within the boundaries of that county on the date of the filing of the petition to the court for temporary custody. Sanchez v. Walker County Dep't of Family & Children Servs., 138 Ga. App. 49, 225 S.E.2d 441, rev'd on other grounds, 237 Ga. 406, 229 S.E.2d 66 (1976) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1101).

Venue in county of child's residence and where child born. — Requirements for proving that venue was properly in Cobb County were met because a mother was residing in Cobb County when her child was born and when the underlying proceeding alleging deprivation commenced and that the child remained in the custody of Cobb County Department of Family and Children Services through the time the juvenile court entered the court's deprivation and non-reunification order. In re R. B., 309 Ga. App. 407, 710 S.E.2d 611 (2011) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Challenge to court's jurisdiction unsuccessful. — Although former Code 1933, § 79-404 (see now O.C.G.A. § 19-2-4) provided that the domicile of an illegitimate child shall be that of his or her mother, yet, where the plea to the jurisdiction alleged "this court has accepted jurisdiction and custody of the minor child … and is holding said child subject to the order of this court," which clearly showed that the child was before the court, and there was no allegation showing the domicile of the mother, who was present in court, or any other reason why the juvenile court did not have jurisdiction, it was not error to overrule the plea. Springstead v. Cook, 215 Ga. 154, 109 S.E.2d 508 (1959) (decided under Ga. L. 1953, Nov.-Dec. Sess., p. 87, § 3).

Child was residing in Cobb County when an underlying proceeding alleging deprivation commenced and had remained in the custody of Cobb County Department of Family and Children Services through the time a termination of parental rights order was entered; accordingly, requirements for venue in Cobb County were met. In re R. J. D. B., 305 Ga. App. 888, 700 S.E.2d 898 (2010) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

There was sufficient evidence that venue was proper in Douglas County, Georgia, in a deprivation proceeding, as the Douglas County Department of Family and Children Services (DFCS) had been involved with the family for some time; the subject child's parent lived in a shelter in Douglas County in May and June of 2010, and at the time the deprivation petition was filed the child was in the custody of the Douglas County DFCS, where the child remained through the entry of the deprivation order. In the Interest of D. S., 316 Ga. App. 296, 728 S.E.2d 890 (2012) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-29).

Conducting Hearings

Juvenile court proceedings are not criminal, but certain guaranties of due process applicable to criminal trials must be applied in the juvenile court hearings. Robinson v. State, 227 Ga. 140, 179 S.E.2d 248 (1971) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2411).

Juvenile hearing must meet essentials of due process and fair treatment. — Juvenile hearing need not conform with all of the requirements of a criminal trial or even of the usual administrative hearing; but the hearing must measure up to the essentials of due process and fair treatment. Robinson v. State, 227 Ga. 140, 179 S.E.2d 248 (1971) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2411).

Presentation of evidence. — In a hearing held to determine if a juvenile should be adjudged delinquent for committing acts that would have supported convictions for driving on the wrong side of the road and second degree vehicular homicide if the juvenile had been tried as an adult, the trial court did not abuse the court's discretion by allowing the state to reopen the state's case for the purpose of introducing evidence which showed that a person who sustained injuries in an accident the juvenile caused died as a result of those injuries. In the Interest of A.L.S., 261 Ga. App. 778, 584 S.E.2d 27 (2003) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-41).

Requirement of independent corroboration of an accomplice's testimony, now set forth in O.C.G.A. § 24-4-8, is to be applicable to a juvenile proceeding. In re J.H.M., 202 Ga. App. 79, 413 S.E.2d 515 (1991) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile probation officer cannot accuse child under own care. — It is error for a juvenile probation officer to conduct accusatory proceedings against a child who is or may be under the officer's care or supervision, even with a licensed attorney who thus could be considered "legal counsel for the child," because the official whose statutory responsibilities include the supervision and assisting of juveniles can best serve that function if the official remains an objective and unbiased figure. In re P.L.S., 170 Ga. App. 74, 316 S.E.2d 175 (1984) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Appellant juvenile's failure to object to accusatory proceedings conducted by a juvenile probation officer denied appellant's right to rely on that error as a basis for reversal on appeal, but if such a procedure is allowed over proper objection appellate courts should not hesitate to reverse. In re P.L.S., 170 Ga. App. 74, 316 S.E.2d 175 (1984) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Trial judge has right to propound question or series of questions to any witness for the purpose of developing fully the truth of the case; and the extent to which the examination conducted by the court shall go is a matter within the judge's discretion. T.L.T. v. State, 133 Ga. App. 895, 212 S.E.2d 650 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1801).

Court examination may be cause for new trial. — Lengthy examination by the court of a witness called by either party will not be cause for a new trial, even though some of the questions propounded by the court were leading in character, unless the court, during the examination of the witness by the court, expresses or intimates an opinion on the facts of the case, or as to what has or has not been proved, or the examination takes such course as to become argumentative in character. T.L.T. v. State, 133 Ga. App. 895, 212 S.E.2d 650 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1801).

Limits on exercise of right of cross-examination by judge. — It is most important that a juvenile court judge exercise the right of cross-examination so long as the examination does not constitute a manifest abuse of discretion nor go beyond the boundaries of becoming argumentative or expressing or intimating an opinion. T.L.T. v. State, 133 Ga. App. 895, 212 S.E.2d 650 (1975) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24A-1801).

No interference with juvenile court discretion unless manifest abuse. — Former Code 1933, § 24-2420 vested in the juvenile court judge broad discretion which the Court of Appeals had no right to control unless the discretion was manifestly abused by the juvenile court judge. Land v. State, 101 Ga. App. 448, 114 S.E.2d 165 (1960) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2411).

Hearings without jury were intended for benefit of child to spare the child from the unfavorable publicity of a public trial before a jury. Robinson v. State, 227 Ga. 140, 179 S.E.2d 248 (1971) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2411).

Hearings without jury do not deny due process or fair treatment. — Provision that the hearing shall be without a jury does not deny due process or fair treatment to the juvenile. Robinson v. State, 227 Ga. 140, 179 S.E.2d 248 (1971) (decided under former Code 1933, § 24-2411).

Presence of murder victim's mother. — Trial judge did not err in allowing the mother of a murder victim to remain in the courtroom during delinquency proceedings. In re L.D.H., 213 Ga. App. 297, 444 S.E.2d 387 (1994) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Presence of assault victim's relative during hearing. — Juvenile court may permit a relative of the victim of an assault to be present in the courtroom during the hearing on that offense since the victim has suffered a significant loss of vision as a result of the assault and the relative is the person who took the victim to the hospital after the assault. C.P. v. State, 167 Ga. App. 374, 306 S.E.2d 688 (1983) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Juvenile must be warned before waiving counsel. — Juvenile did not make a knowing and intelligent decision to proceed without counsel since the referee did not warn the juvenile or the juvenile's mother of the danger of proceeding without counsel or of the consequences of an affirmative finding or admission of the charge enumerated in the petition; the juvenile appellant and the juvenile's mother did not stand before the court with open eyes, knowing the danger and consequences of proceeding without the benefit of legal representation. In re W.M.F., 180 Ga. App. 397, 349 S.E.2d 265 (1986) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).

Recording Proceedings

Recording of proceedings are mandated, plainly and simply in the absence of waiver. In re R.L.M., 171 Ga. App. 940, 321 S.E.2d 435 (1984) (decided under former O.C.G.A. § 15-11-28).
