Georgia Outdoor Stewardship Program

The purpose of this appropriation is to provide funding through grant and loan opportunities for land conservation, parks, trails, and outdoor recreation.

Program Overview

Summary of Activities: Provides a dedicated funding mechanism to support parks and trails and protect and acquire lands critical to wildlife, clean water and outdoor recreation across the state of Georgia; as well as loans to any city, county, or nongovernmental entity to defray the costs of conservation land or easements. Aspects of the program are outlined in OCGA Title 12 Chapter 6A.

Fund Sources: The program was created through HB332 (2018 Session) and was a constitutional amendment affirmed by voters in the next statewide ballot. State sales taxation derived through establishments with NAICC 451110 (sporting goods) was targeted to fund this grant and loan program, not to exceed 40% of the receipts; and these dedicated funds were first appropriated in the General FY2021 budget at an estimated $16 million; and further augmented to $19.4 million in the Amended FY2021 budget. The General FY2022 Budget saw the base reset to $20,705,266. There are provisions in the law to reduce the amount if the prior year receipts fall at least 1% below the receipts of the year preceding that.

Timing: After review of applications, the projects proposed for awards by the board are now presented to the House and Senate respective appropriations committees for review and approval; typically accomplished during regular legislative session. The application, review and approval process is outlined in OCGA 12-6A-8.

Summary of Activities: Research on the main Athens campus varies from discovery-oriented to specific applications in all of the disciplines represented in CAES. Strengths exist in plant breeding and developing new varieties, using genomic approaches to improving food and fiber production, integrated pest management, poultry health and nutrition, and commercialization and evaluation of economic impact of agriculture. In addition, the Center for Applied Genetic Technology, the Institute for Plant Breeding, Genetics and Genomics, the Plant Genome Mapping Laboratory, and the Regenerative Bioscience Center facilitate the incorporation of modern technologies into agricultural research to address critical needs and provide novel solutions to previously unmet challenges. The research conducted by the faculty and staff at the Coastal Plains Station in Tifton has helped farmers grow the traditional crops in a more efficient and environmentally friendly way and given them many other options like new turfgrass varieties, nursery plants, fresh market vegetables, fruit and nut trees, and beef and dairy cattle, to name a few. Griffin Campus researchers focus on food safety and quality enhancement; urban agriculture; turfgrass breeding and management; genetics; crop and pest management; and environment and natural resources.
Location: Athens (College Station), Tifton (Coastal Plain Station), and Griffin (Georgia Station).
Fund Sources: Various external sponsors, including USDA Hatch fund transfers and federal and industry sources.
Noteworthy: Part of the UGA College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences (CAES); provides 75% of licensing revenue for UGA.

Areas of expertise include agricultural production and agribusiness support, agricultural and urban water quality and best management practices, school and community gardens, pollinators, community health and wellness, nutrition education and financial and life skills, in addition to coordinating 4-H, Georgia's largest youth program. Extension programs in Agriculture and Natural Resources provide real-time support to improve crop yields, battle pests, and share best practices, all of which result in direct savings to farmers and agribusinesses. Extension work in Family & Consumer Sciences teaches healthy lifestyles, safe food preservation, and certifies individuals to operate a variety of businesses that drive the state’s economy. Extension also runs the Georgia Master Gardener Program, which helps Georgians make environmentally sound and often profitable gardening and landscape decisions. In the area of youth development, the Georgia 4-H program is one of the nation’s strongest, teaching citizenship, leadership, communication skills, and agricultural and environmental awareness through hands-on learning experiences and in-school programs as well as the nationally acclaimed Environmental Education program. Extension also houses the Agricultural and Environmental Services Laboratories, which provide diagnostic testing via the Soil, Plant and Water Lab; the Feed and Environmental Water Lab; and the Pesticide and Hazardous Waste Lab.

Location: State staff are housed primarily in Athens, Griffin, and Tifton as well as in 159 plus County offices throughout the state. In addition, Cooperative Extension operates five 4-H camps: Rock Eagle (Eatonton), Wahsega (near Dahlonega), Burton (Tybee Island), Fortson (near the Atlanta Motor Speedway), and Jekyll Island.

Noteworthy: County governments and other local partners provide local program facilities and partial funding for local Cooperative Extension faculty, staff, and facilities. CES is part of the UGA College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences (CAES).
