17 WHEREAS, absenteeism can be attributed to a variety of factors, including, but not limited 18 to, health issues, family instability, socioeconomic barriers, transportation difficulties, and 19 school climate concerns; and

20 WHEREAS, addressing chronic absenteeism requires a collaborative and multifaceted 21 approach that involves school administrators, educators, parents, policymakers, and

24 significantly reduce chronic absenteeism and its negative effects; and

27 multiple state agencies, education organizations, and local school systems in an effort to raise 28 awareness and develop collaborative solutions; and

29 WHEREAS, a comprehensive review of student attendance in pre-kindergarten through 30 grade 12 education is needed for legislators, education leaders, and community stakeholders
